THE END

Epilogue:

"Well?" he whispered.

"Sure," she murmured. —RACO.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:

Weber—Konzertstück in F Minor.
Saint-Saëns—Carnival of the Animals.
Moussorgsky—Pictures at an Exhibition.

To All Faculties

Mail orders are now being accepted for the Vic. Music Club's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's

"PATIENCE"

TO BE PRESENTED IN

Hart House Theatre--Dec. 5, 6, 7, 8

Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed, envelope
All Seats Reserved

Evenings $1.00. Matinee Dec. 8th, 75c

Box Office Opens in Victoria College November 26

PLEASE NOTE CORRECTED PRICE AND DATE

IT HAPPENS EVERY DAY
It happens every day at the corner of Bloor and Bay. He is well built, over six feet—and blind. She is short (and over 70!), with a wonderfully happy face. Arm in arm they come, just before the papers arrive—work for awhile, together—and arm in arm they go home, together. She is happy because her only son has returned from the Navy, because of good health and no worries—and any way, "why not?" When Charles Showers first sold papers at this same stand veterans of World War I were just graduating from U. of T.—there was a church where our office is located—and there were not so many people to buy papers.
published by b. a. stevenson, c.l.u. and associates of the university branch.
57 bloor street, west.
M4 4136.

JOAN RIGBY

COATS
DRESSES TWEEDS SWEATERS
SUITS
54 BLOOR W. M4. 4969

Plywood

for book shelves, walls, furniture indoors and outdoors

The Plywood Shop

140 Pears Ave. RAndolph 6348
(8 minutes from University)

Have some fun and brush up your foreign languages while shopping. On parle français. Moe govoreem po-russkee (nemnogo). Man spricht deutsch. Hablamos español (un poco).

Big Moment
Drink
Coca-Cola
THE COCA-COLA COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.
Toronto, Canada

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

The Mulock Cup . . .

The time-honored emblem of intramural football supremacy, the Mulock Cup, goes on the block this afternoon for the fifty-second year. It is just that many years ago since a young undergraduate named Bruce Macdonald tackled the late Sir William Mulock and came up with a two-and-a-half foot trophy decorated with lions' heads.

Through the years both have gained prominence. Dr. Bruce Macdonald is now the chairman of the Board of Governors while the aging mug has no fewer than fifty-one gilt shields emblazoned on its polished surface.

During its youth, the cup was contested for on a greensward situated on the present site of Varsity Stadium and students were expected to come through with a dollar admission fee!

Time has changed certain factors but the Mulock Cup and the accompanying traditions roll along, hand in hand.

And so, after a blazing intercollegiate pop-up, two teams have emerged to battle it out for the honors. The game will be close and may the best team win.

Bits from Here and There . . .

The masterminds behind the two teams serve to prove that intramural football has its better points . . . University College's Ross Sturgess is a P.H.E. grad attending classes at O.C.E. He last performed for U.C. two years ago when it was defeated by this same School aggregation . . . On the opposing side then, as well as this afternoon one finds Chunky Moore and Dan Collins. Moore's record reads: four years as end for School teams including one championship squad, a degree in mining and a year as president of the Engineering Society . . . Collins served as snap for the same team while picking up a civil engineering degree . . . Three intramural grads striving for those coveted laurels . . . The School team has had but a single point scored against it this year! In league play a year ago, it was unscored on. A bit of a record . . . Another prognostication was disproved yesterday by the Athletic Directorate when it appointed Roy Dilworth as coach of the senior Blue basketball team. Ozark Ike was unavailable for comment.

What's on Today

Red and White

8:00 p.m.—U.C. Red and White Night at the Women's Union, admission by registration card. Teams from U.C. and Sr. S.P.S. will meet, with the U.C. team acting as hosts to their rivals.

St. Vitus's Dance

8:00 p.m.—Newman Hall, St. Vitus's Dance.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that . . .

The Department of Veterans' Affairs provides Dental and Medical Treatment during the time that you are in receipt of your Educational Benefit.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. M1. 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

111 WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE.
NOW PLAYING

EVGS. at 8:20; — MATS., Wed. Sat. at 2:20

The Messrs. SHUBERT Present
A Repertoire of FAMOUS OPERETTA with a superb cast of Singers, Comedians and Singing Chorus of 40.

1st WEEK, Mon. thru Fri. Mat. Wed.

"ROSE MARIE"

IMMORTAL MUSICAL BY RUDOLF FRIM

Saturday Matinee and Night

"COUNTESS MARITZA"

OPERETTA MUSICAL BY EMERSON KATMAN

2ND WEEK BEG. NOV. 28
Mon., Tues., Wed. Evgs., and Wed. Mat.

"COUNTESS MARITZA"
Thurs., Fri., Sat. Evgs., and Sat. Mat.

"ROSE MARIE"

PRICES (Tax included)
EVGS.: 90c, $1.20, $1.60, $2.40 and $3.

MATS.: Wed. and Sat. 90c, $1.20, $1.60, and $2.40.

Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Sportswoman

by Polly Mutz

Of Baskets

The freshman league has been reported as exhibiting the best basketball technique seen this year. And tops among these freshies is the U.C. team. They have won both the latest games in which they have participated. In the first, they defeated P.H.E., and in the second it was St. Hilda's freshies who were white-washed. The U.C. Juniors don't seem too far behind the young 'uns . . . with the good work of Mary Louise Kent on the forward line they managed a score of 19-15, Vic. Juniors being the last half. The fourth and last combination that thought it expedient to report results (they're good kids!) was Physio-Saints . . . The former team attained the decision with a score of 10-2.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

SPORTS CALENDAR

RUGBY	2.15	STADIUM: MULOCK CUP FINAL:
		Sr. SPS vs. U.C.	Lye, Clayton, Ferguson
SOCCER	4.00	FW Trin I	Dent. Life
	4.00	FE SPS I	Med. I Roberts
LACROSSE	1.00	SPS IV	Trin. Cross
	4.00	Jr. SPS	Med. II Foote (postponed to next week.)
SWIM LEAGUE	4.00	Med. I	Vic. Moffat
		Wyc.	St. M. B
	5.00	Sr. SPS	U.C. I Morrow
		Emman	For
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Jr. SPS	Jr. Vic. Fine
	4.00	Emman A	Pharm. Williams
	6.30	I Med.	II SPS B Stone
	7.30	III SPS A	St. M. B Stone
	8.30	Wyc. B	Emman B Stone
HOCKEY	4.00	Pharm
(Practices)	4.30	Forestry

Soccer Standing Committee Meeting—Today—1:00 p.m.
(To arrange playoffs, appoint referees, etc.)

He found what makes the Planets move

As a boy Isaac Newton (1642-1727) built a clock, a mechanical carriage, and dreamed of sailing through the air. One of the most brilliant mathematicians of all time, he discovered the binomial theorem and the elements of the differential and integral calculus. He studied the heavens, carried on experiments in optics and color, and built a reflector telescope. Observing an apple fall from a tree in his mother's garden, he began to ponder on the attraction of mass to mass, and so evolved the theory that the law of gravity governs the whole universe.

Just as a falling apple suggested to Newton a line of research which had far-reaching results, so such things as a broken gear, a worn-out grinding plate or a burnt-out heating element have started industrial scientists on researches which have saved thousands of dollars to users of a great variety of products.

Research on Nickel has helped industry in scores of ways to save money by using Nickel and its alloys. That meant more Nickel could be produced and sold from Canadian mines.

Now, as after the first World War, International Nickel is continuing to co-operate in research in order to find new uses and markets for Canadian Nickel.

The information collected by International Nickel from the whole field of metal research is available at all times to Canadian engineers, designers and metallurgists.

Thus will science and industry, working together, build a wider use of Canadian Nickel so that still more benefits will come to Canada.

FORWARD THROUGH RESEARCH

Canadian Nickel

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED, 25 KING STREET WEST, TORONTO

New and Entrenous

A Hat Movement

By Ross McLean

Misses Margaret Chisholm, Eleanor Dymond and Dorothy Oliver, three young sophomores of Hutton House, write excitedly to suggest: "Let's get under a Hat Movement!"

Ex-Servicemen

The Wrens of Westphal House take great pleasure in inviting you to an informal

House Party

at their new residence,
142 Crescent Road, on Thursday, 22nd Nov., at 8:30
Tickets may be obtained from UNTD office, 119 St. George St.

"We want a Hat," they exclaim. "A Varsity Hat."

Varsity, they feel, needs a Hat.
Varsity has a song.
Varsity has a yell.
Varsity has spirit.
But Varsity has no hat.

"There is the Queen's red, blue, and gold tam, Western's purple and white Eton cap, McGill's red and white beanie," they list.

"And Varsity's blue and white—?" But there they have you!

"How about," the trio proposes, "The Varsity getting behind a campaign for a Toronto Hat?"

"Here are a few ideas: a royal blue and white tuque; a blue stocking cap with a white tassel and white 'T'; a blue beret with a white tassel; a blue and white gob hat; a blue derby with a white 'T'; and a shallow-brimmed blue and white pork-pie."

"Of course," they admit, "there are other ideas and perhaps some of the other Varsity readers will send in their suggestions."

"Whatever is decided, let's make it an original —

"Distinctive —

"And outstanding Varsity Hat!"

Hats off, ladies!

Yale had a student graduate at 14 and the University of Manitoba was not long in announcing that they had had a student graduate at 17 but Miss Beverly Echlin has returned from the office of this university's registrar with the disheartening information that no one seems to know just who was Toronto's youngest graduate.

"I couldn't get any dope at the registrar's," Miss Echlin reported to this department. "There are," she added hopelessly and in brackets, "40,000 cards to go thru."

"It's like Grand Central!"

Plaquest Drama Guild's production of

'LARCENY INC.'

DIRECTED BY JOSEPH E. JOLLEY
"A snappy coherent production."
—JEFF WAITE, The Varsity

TONIGHT ONLY—8:30 P.M.

at

Harbord Collegiate Auditorium

Tickets: 50c and 75c

Sorry.

We sent Miss Ruth Caryl to the Meteorological Service of Canada the other day. She chatted pleasantly with Andrew Thomson, the assistant controller, about the Service and its wartime role. That role was, our Miss Caryl learned, double-edged. Four hundred university graduates from all over Canada were trained in the science, you see, and later lectured fledgling pilots to prepare Canada's fliers to cope with icing fog and storms. "With such knowledge they would know instinctively what to do to reduce the hazards of those dangerous conditions," Mr. Thomson said.

Moreover there was the customary "prob" service. This was supplied to C.O.'s of training schools. "It was," Miss Caryl reports, "of immense value to the officers to know in advance whether future weather conditions would be suitable for flying so planes could be made ready with the assurance that conditions would be favourable.

"Without this information," she adds "student pilots would have lost much time in getting ready and tuning up the machines."

Many of these meteorologists have now returned to their former occupations. However, Mr. Thomson feels, a large number of them will make meteorology their life work. More are needed, incidentally. To indicate the "unprecedented expansion of the Service," Mr. Thomson revealed that the full-time staff had leapt from 150 to 900.

EATON'S

Give a Hat This Christmas

The gift certificate way... complete with miniature hat and hat box. The man who receives your gift certificate will be doubly grateful for he can choose for himself and pick his correct size, style and colour... and also, shop at his leisure, after the Christmas rush is over.

We have a splendid selection of English and domestic fur felts ranging from 5.00 to 10.00.

The Men's Shop, College Street.

T. EATON CO LIMITED

Jewish Student Fellowship

Presents

First in a Series of Cultural Evenings

A MUSICAL CONSISTING OF JEWISH FOLK MUSIC

Narrator—M. Sachs

PLACE: Wymilwood.

DATE: Thursday, Nov. 22.

TIME: 8:00 p.m.

St. Bartholomew's Christmas Fair

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY, NOV. 22 AND 23

3:30 pm. — 10 p.m.

509 Dundas Street East

(Harbord Car — First Stop East of Parliament)

"RUSSIA WANTS OUR FRIENDSHIP"

THE VERY REV. HEWLETT JOHNSON

DEAN OF CANTERBURY

Just Returned From a Conference
With Generalissimo Stalin in Moscow

Also

ARCHBISHOP ALEXII

SPECIAL MUSICAL PROGRAM

TONIGHT at 8:30 P.M.
MAPLE LEAF GARDENS

DOORS OPEN 7:30 P.M.

TICKETS: 50c, 75c, $1.00, $2.00

ON SALE: GARDENS; TORONTO CONSERVATORY;
441 QUEEN WEST; 7 BRUNSWICK; 300 BATHURST;
365 YONGE STREET.

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR CANADIAN - SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

FOR SALE

Encyclopaedia Britannica, latest printing, perfect condition. G. L. Williams, 556 Sherbourne Street.

LOST

Green Parker pen, initialled "L.P.S." vicinity Medical Bldg, Mon. Finder please leave at S.A.C. Office.

BOARD AND ROOM

Room and board in graduates' home, for student, in exchange for help with children. MO. 8961.

FOR SALE

Microscope, Standard Bausch and Lomb instrument in excellent condition. $50.00. Phone MO. 6609.

LOST

Trench-coat, in Hart House, Friday, Nov. 16th. Locker card No. 1249 in pocket. Sentimental reasons. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

WANTED

Olsen and Massa Applied Acoustics. Price of new book if in good condition. Arne Christensen. Phone any evening, Monday to Friday, Scarborough 371.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restrung. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

LOST

Navy blue raincoat, taken from Big Hall, Economics Bldg, 4 p.m., Tues. Please leave at office at Economics Bldg., or call J. F. McRae, MI. 2700.

LOST

Wren's naval Burberry, size 3, taken on week-end from women's locker room, University College. Please return to S.A.C.

LOST

Gabardine trench coat, from hook No. 107 in locker room in Chemistry Bldg., Tues., Nov. 20. Ph. LY. 0416.

STUDENTS! Saturday Night DANCE

ROYAL YORK HOTEL BANQUET HALL - - - - - SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th

ELLIS McLINTOCK -- His Trumpet -- And His Orchestra

TICKETS AVAILABLE THURSDAY AND FRIDAY IN UNIVERSITY COLLEGE ROTUNDA (EAST DOOR — OPPOSITE HART HOUSE)

Manager: Duncan A. White, IVth Yr. Civil Engineering

Dancing From 9 to 12.

Tickets $1.00 Per Couple

International Education Lauded By Campus Heads

AGENCY ESSENTIAL --- SMITH

Without exception the heads of the various departments and faculties are in favor of international education, as embodied in the United Nations Charter. This agency is to be known as the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. Forty-four nations have accepted, with the exception of the Soviet Union, who, in turning down two invitations to join, provided the only discordant note. The constitution allows for an exchange of scholars and teachers and the choice of delegates is to be made by the various governments in consultation with the countries' educational bodies.

When interviewed, President Smith said, "This new organ is as essential a prop to world security as any other agency put in the U.N.O. whether it be economic, political or military. There is not a comparable organization within the League of Nations."

Dr. S. Beatty, Dean of Arts, similarly expressed his gratification by saying, "I am glad that those responsible have come to realize the importance of education as a means of keeping peace." He went on to say that education must primarily stress independence of thought and action, as well as respect for the ideas of other countries.

Dean C. R. Young, of Engineering, expressed his approval in the following words, "International order and under-

(Continued on page 4)

Debaters Take Axe To Ottawa Policy

Racial discrimination, labour problems, and alleged inequalities in the government's re-establishment program will all be meat for next Wednesday's Hart House debaters, Bill Lyon, III Law, Secretary of the Debates Committee, told The Varsity last night.

"We are going to touch on whatever burning topics come up," Lyon said. "To that end, the motion for debate has been made as elastic as possible."

The motion before the House will be: "That this House resolutely condemns the post-war domestic policy of His Majesty's Government at Ottawa."

The debate will take place in the Hart House Debates Room next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Liberal Club Back On Campus Today

Politically minded students who at present have no outlet for their opinions will soon have an opportunity to discuss current problems according to George Ness, III Law. Ness is chairman of the organization committee of the Liberal Association, a pre-war feature of campus life, which will return to the university this week after an absence necessitated by war-time demands on students' time.

An open meeting will be held at eight o'clock this evening in the Women's Union to draw up plans for the re-organization of the club.

Tovell Directs 'Our Town' For U.C. Players' Guild

There's scandal, jealousy, and a wedding in "Our Town" as the advertisements have been boasting for the past week.

There's also two-months of effort, two Varsity cheer leaders, Noel Chapman and a choir of 12, and considerable skilled direction in the Thornton Wilder play to be presented next week by the U.C. Players' Guild.

Sixty Guild members have spent the past seven weeks preparing the unorthodox Wilder production. Realism is promised by an efficient sound effects department. Costume making has been organized by Marian Jones.

But in "Our Town" there is also much of its director, Vincent Tovell, now taking post-graduate work in English.

A graduate of Upper Canada College and U.T.S., he spent from 1935 to 1938 in Europe, studying painting, attending an international school in Brussels and spending his summers in Paris.

During the past four years Tovell has appeared in numerous top C.B.C. dram-

Some plain and fancy blocking on that line but the pig skin is nowhere in sight—maybe it's being kicked—or then again, maybe the duck has it.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:
Williams—Fantasy on Greensleeves
MacDowell—Piano Concerto Moussorgsky—Selections from Boris Goudonov
de Falla—La Vida Breve

Medieval Students Claimed Superior

"Modern students are intellectually confused and immature in comparison to students of the middle ages who listened to lectures given by Thomas Aquinas," said Dr. Anton C. Pegis, Professor of Ancient and Medieval Philosophy at the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies at St. Michael's College. Dr. Pegis continued to say that the blame for the present day slump in thinking lay on the shoulders of the teachers and books. Books are badly written and poorly read, mainly because modern authors and readers have no faith in their ability to know the truth.

Dr. Pegis will address the Thomistic Society at Brennan Hall this Sunday on the subject of "Philosophy—a Mystery." Graduating in '31 from the Institute, Dr. Pegis taught at Marquette University for five years, then transferred his activities to Fordham University in New York. Though still connected with Fordham, he teaches history at the Institute to a class of 24, and conducts a seminar of 10 students.

C. U. P. Flashes

Saskatchewan Plans War Memorial; McGill Veterans Discuss Grants

Montreal, Nov. 20 (CUP)—A national conference of student veterans has been called for by the McGill Veterans' Society in a letter to the McGill Daily.

This conference should be held to discuss the question of inadequate grants paid to students by the government, suggests Lon Starkey, President of the Society in his letter. The housing shortage for veteran students would also be brought up for discussion at the conference. Representation has been asked from 21 Canadian Colleges.

"The Christmas season would be the best time for the conference, since numerous delegates would have to travel for several days and the middle of the Christmas vacation would be satisfactory to all," Starkey said in his letter.

Needles Scrounged For Record Hour

In response to the moving demand, the S.A.C. made out the cheque for $30.

Who needs $30? Professor Savan thought he did, but he thought the Record Hour probably needed it more. He has had to scrounge needles for the past few weeks, and now Professor Savan thought he might allot six whole dollars to the needles.

When the Carnegie Fund donated the records and record player to the University in 1941, it forgot to promise to send a needle every two days. Apparently they did not know that needles wear out.

After Mr. Savan has bought needles, and has replaced broken and warped records, he hopes he will be able to hand a few cents to the Faculty Committee which will choose the new records to fill in the gaps in the collection.

Professor Savan went on to explain the small attendance. He thought that despite the notices, some people still suppose the hour is just for U.C. women. Others think it is merely an Arts affair. Others are vaguer still. "What?" they ask, "is the record hour anyway?"

Mr. Savan volunteered the information that the Women's Common Room, situated in the south-east corner of University College's second floor, is open daily between 4:00 and 5:30 for all those who like to hear classical or semi-classical selections.

"The audience varies from 29 on dull days to 50 or 60 on days when the student in charge has chosen a popular program. They come and go, read and write. Why they even knit!" Mr. Savan concluded.

Well, Mr. Savan, we'll be around to help you use that $30 cheque.

Saskatoon Nov. 21 (CUP)—A students' Union building is being planned as a war memorial at the University of Saskatchewan. A drive is to begin soon for the collection of funds necessary, and both students and graduates are expected to contribute.

The president of the Students' Representative Council, Ed Wahn, has been appointed chairman of the funds committee.

"We expect that our drive should go over the top," said Wahn. "During the depression years, we managed to scratch up enough money to build the University stadium. Today, with more money and an increased enrolment, it is a real chance to carry out the Union project."

The matter has been brought up before the Board of Governors and has received their complete approval.

HEALTH SERVICE

All men who have not had medical examinations must make arrangements for medical appointments immediately. This applies to all years.

What's on Today

V.C.F.

1:10 p.m.—Missions Group meeting in Room 211, Medical Building.
Speaker: Rev. Z. P. Carles, B.A., L.Th., formerly of University of Madrid.

U.C. Rugby Team

1:30 p.m.—Picture will be taken in uniform in front of U.C.

U.C. Glee Club

4:00 p.m.—Practice of U.C. Glee Club in Women's Union

Scientific Workers

5:00 p.m.—Meeting in Women's Union. Talk on Anthropology and Modern Life.

Arts and Letters

6:45 p.m.—Medical Arts and Letters Meeting at Wymilwood.

I.S.S.

8:00 p.m.—The I.S.S. Committee meeting will be held in Trinity Board Room.

O.T. Dance

8:00 p.m.—Free admission to the O.T. Dance at Aura Lee Club. Refreshments.

ENGINEERS RECAPTURE MULOCK CUP

Fumbling Is Specialty As Rugby Rivals Clash

NO RAZZLE-DAZZLE HERE

Senior School, about whose talents their friends have been curious, yesterday passed the final examination to prove worthy of the intramural championship as they plastered the defending University College team, 13-6. Thus, after a year's absence, the Mulock Cup returns to the School of Practical Science.

Keith Hendrick was the big gun for the winners as he kicked, plunged and ran his way through the Royal College squad. He accounted for four singles and scored his team's only touchdown.

Bert Hamm, Georgie Evans and Norm Millen came through with sparkling performances. Hamm, a former Balmy Beach quarter, came through with all the remaining points for his team as he scored on placement and convert attempts.

Senate Announces Award Winners

At a recent meeting of the Senate of the University of Toronto, the following awards were made:

Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

The Second Garnet W. McKee-Lachlan Gilchrist Geophysics Scholarship, to S. F. Love.

Ontario College of Education:

The Pakenham Memorial Prize, to Miss M. E. Williams.

Faculty of Dentistry

The Pro Libris Prize, to R. W. Marshall.

School of Social Work:

School of Social Work Alumni Scholarship, to John McKnight.

The M. M. Scholarship, to Miss R. Potaskey.

The Bernard Vise Memorial Scholarship, to Miss F. Glassman.

The Rabbi Brickner Scholarship, to Miss F. Glassman.

Admission Scholarships

The Forestry Memorial Scholarship, to D. J. Veane.

The Ontario Hockey Association War Memorial Scholarship, to D. A. Smith.

McGill Petitions Atomic Arms Race

MONTREAL, Nov. 16. (CUP)—McGill students have presented the Students' Executive Council with resolutions and a signed petition concerning atomic energy. The students urge that Canada, Great Britain, the U.S. and Russia meet to prevent a competitive armament race, and that a system of international control of atomic weapons be established in the framework of the United Nations. Canada must reserve exploitation of atomic energy as a state enterprise.

These resolutions will be forwarded to the Prime Minister of Canada and to all university students' councils in Canada, asking support.

Scheming Scholars Skip With Scooter

Forgetfulness has de-mechanized a youngster who lives at 61 Eastbourne Avenue.

Borrowed last Friday for use as a prop in a university skit, a boy's scooter has not yet been returned to its young owner who has become a reluctant pedestrian.

Terms of the scooter loan were that the borrower return it the following morning. Meanwhile the boy's mother is reportedly "embarrassed to have unsuspectingly assisted in robbing her son of his treasured scooter."

The case of the missing scooter awaits solution.

Jim Bromley, Hal McKnight and Butko played above average games along the off-again, on-again School line.

Nick Volpe was the star of the day for the losers as he called the signals in a capable manner and took time out to complete a Tettmar pass and romped 65 yards for the only touchdown to be scored on the new Mulock Cup championships all season.

Don Plaxton, Warren Clayson and Bruce Tettmar fought hard for the losers and gained valuable yardage plunging. Nels Kuhn and Joe Upton held the U.C. line together.

Hendrick took advantage of a strong tail wind in the opening quarter to boot two singles. Early in the second stanza, the School team began to roll downhill as Bromley picked up a Red and White fumble on the midfield line and ran it to the 30. A Seymour-Bromley pass left the ball on the 10. Millen plunged to the three and even with the help of a penalty, the winners were forced to rely upon the placement kicking of Bert Hamm who split the uprights from the fourteen.

On the last play of the half Volpe came through with his spectacular run. Edmonds converted to give University College a 6-5 lead at the half.

A fantasy of fumbles footled the fans for the first few moments of the second half as the teams took turns in being generous. Then Bromley blocked a U.C. kick which a teammate recovered on the Red and White 45. A fumble lost the ball but a high snap to Cooper went wide and Shool recovered on the 20. A Millen-to-Hendrick forward scored the major on the second play. Hamm converted.

Hendrick added two more singles in the final period in the form of a rouge and a kick to the deadline.

The defending champions opened up with an aerial attack in the dying moments of the game but interceptions and fumbles blocked their path to further scoring honors.

Gazillika . . .

"Where's that aerial attack?" shouts U.C.'s most loyal fan as the Arts-men fight to even the score. "I should lay eggs when you do it so well!"

Editorial

That Tote Again

Has anyone been reading the advertisements in this newspaper recently? Have you noticed the little green-eyed dragon with the curly tail? Isn't he cute? Is that the point? No, of course it isn't. The text of those ads is a dead giveaway — some irate person is pleading for biography cards to be brought in on time.

"Oh yes, I must remember," Joe College says, as he turns to the Champus Cat column, then goes to a lecture and promptly forgets all about the little Monster for another week.

Some Slip Up

Every year there are several Joes and Josephines who keep forgetting until it is too late, and then are bitterly disappointed when they are not represented in Torontonensis. Maybe Joe doesn't realize it at the time, but later in life, when he may have moved to Timbuctu, and old Varsities and college magazines have mouldered away to dust, that yearbook will be the only reminder of his college career.

To cover a campus of this size, housing thousands of potential graduates, a yearbook larger in size than that of any other Canadian university is needed—and produced. Every year, at graduation-time in June, every graduate receives a Torontonensis along with his degree.

Rightly enough, it is a purely student publication—from its student-editor to those represented on its pages.

The Staff Are Harried

A tremendous amount of work falls on the shoulders of the staff —work which continues throughout the entire scholastic year. Writers, make-up experts, photographers, artists, typists, people to telephone recalcitrant students and tardy representatives, more people to rush about visiting printers and engravers—all of them have their work cut out for them. It would be a full-time job, even without lectures.

College representatives are responsible to their faculties for arrangements about photographs, biographies, and space in the book. However, the basic responsibility rests on the students themselves.

Those of the graduating years are told of photo-appointments well in advance and have heard all about biography cards by now. An attempt at legible handwriting on the cards would save later spelling mistakes, and prompt surrender of properly-filled cards would help space the work of the staff through the year, instead of creating a frantic rush at about exam-time.

It Takes All Of Us

Hopeful graduates are not the only ones with Torontonensis responsibility. All those who are members of basketball teams, dramatic clubs, engineering societies, debating leagues, college magazines, literary or language clubs, sports teams—and of all those groups which go to make up a full year's activities on the campus, which must be represented to give a complete picture of that year of university life: they are all responsible for doing their share.

Being on time to have a picture taken, completing and filling out a biography card, typing out a report of your club's activities, may seem petty and inconsequential, perhaps a bit of a bother, to the individual student at the time, but when we add up the total score, it comes to a pretty large figure. To argue the point, if your part seems to be so small, it shouldn't take much time to carry it out.

Torontonensis is the biggest co-operative effort on the campus. There is no reason why it should be the editorial bother it is, in a society which prides itself on being democratic and therefore co-operative.

In its tiny way, co-operation in the production of Torontonensis is a test of citizenship. Let us all meet the test: and get that material in now!—M. G. B.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College, M.L. 6611
Business Office, M.L. 6221
Night Office, M.L. 6745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant: Barbara K. Road, B.A.
Makeup Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.H.C.
News Editor: George Foster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor: Wally Deffry, 476
Assistant: E. Rose McLean, 477
Sports Editor: Mickey Michalski, 477
Women's Assistant: Polly Mox, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, 476
Editor: Phil Freedman, 476

Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager: E. A. MACDONALD
Night Editor: Phil Shackleton
Assistant: Fred Kahn

Movies

More Grapes
F.O.B. Loew's

"Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," currently at Loew's, is another installment in the relatively new and growing shelf of American Literature which includes Anderson's "Tobacco Road," Ostro's "Wild Geese," Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," Sessions' "Hold Autumn in Your Hand," etc.

A short time ago and in this column another reviewer disposed of this class of writing and picture with "... stark and sordid... text on American Economics." A similar charge could of course be made with regard to Victor Hugo, Dostoevsky and G. B. Shaw. "Our Vines etc." is in my opinion top notch American literature.

For those who desire to step out of the clutter of sham, pretense and shoddy imitation of modern urban society and re-establish contact with the warmth, color and pulse of real value, the picture offers a wholesome departure from the glamorized pulp and purified rubbish for which Hollywood is usually a trade mark.

The content of "Our Vines..." is further testimony to the fact that the beautiful ideals of living are not in the exclusive custody of Perc Westmore, Schiaparelli and Helena Rubinstein. This tribute notwithstanding, I counsel those souls who are simply "nave-zee-ated" by the faintest traces of reality in their entertainment to avoid the show by all means.

In the meantime I am amazed at how kids such as Butch Jenkins and Margaret O'Brien can be such crack actors.

We left Dr. McGeech pantless atop the tower, fending off the onslaughts of ferocious Tch-ich flies. Rachel, the museum's most popular mummy, has lost a toe; the Atomic Hamburger has vanished, and with it its creator, Steinmug. "Q" is on the loose! NOW READ ON:

Chapter Two

McGeech did not hesitate long. As the clothes-devouring demons circled on whirling wings for yet another charge, the Terror of the Underworld acted like lightning.

He reached for his pocket handkerchief.

Curses! He had no pocket. His pants were gone.

Undeterred, McGeech flicked from behind his ear the substitute handkerchief he kept for just such emergencies. As the drove of Tch-ich flies bore roaring down upon him out of the darkness, he waved it aloft.

He waved it in a carefully-selected spot: between himself and the north-east pinnacle of the tower. Crazed with hunger for cloth of any description, the 40 murder-birds veered from their primary target, the vest of McGeech, and flashed towards the fluttering handkerchief.

At the critical moment, McGeech flicked it away. One after the other, banging like a chain of box-cars, 40 Tch-ich flies in rapid succession crashed into the tower pinnacle.

Silence. But scarcely had the drone of wings faded from the night air, scarcely had the rumble of tumbling corpses ceased, when McGeech sensed a new peril. With a crash the trap-door slammed; the trap-door by which he had gained access to the top of the tower for his midnight rendezvous with Steinmug.

He was trapped! Far down inside the tower, a evil chuckle tilted and died away.

Often before, McGeech had escaped from precisely similar predicaments. In '23, he had been locked in the washroom of the Taj Mahal; in '31 he had been imprisoned by a vengeful criminal in a plummeting elevator, crashing down a shaft of the Chrysler Building; only two months ago his Port Credit landlady had turned the key upon him after a misunderstanding about the rent.

The escape act was old stuff for McGeech. Leaning over the edge of the tower, he fixed the ground beneath him with an icy stare.

Allowing the stare a few moments to harden, he flung his arms around it, vaulted over the parapet, and slid as though down a brass pole.

He was safe. And inside the tower—? (Continued on page 3)

TRINITY COLLEGE
ATHLETIC DANCE
"The Modernaires"

STRACHAN HALL
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23

DANCING 9-2
$2.50 a Couple

Tickets on sale at the Porter's Lodge, Trinity College

Art, Music and Drama

The Merit Is Mixed

Eaton's College Street Art Galleries are featuring this week a sort of Canadian hodge-podge, of the most widely varying worth. The central gallery is devoted to Ontario landscapes in color by Peggy Brisby. These represent scenes with considerable attraction for residents of this city, since they concern the Island—known to all Torontonians; the beautiful rolling farm country around the city, which refreshes so many city-stifled souls; and the roads and bush of Haliburton where so many Toronto people spend their summer holidays. The depictions are pleasing, but unfortunately of no particular inspiration, so that the paintings' charm lies mostly in their subject matter. Color is determined in the interests of realism by the limits of the artist's competently-handled medium, and is in general hard; harsh green is especially ubiquitous and jarring. Compositions are conventional; or inclined to be photographic. We have the usual sheep on hillsides, rail fences, autumn woods, and so forth—unexciting, certainly, but no duller than the endless women on chairs, still-lives of fruit and vegetables, triangles and color planes so dear to those who object violently and indiscriminately to painting with any meaning other than visual pleasure. In short, Peggy Brisby's work is in the 19th century academic tradition, and has both the good and bad inherent therein.

Paintings by Emily Carr, which occupy two adjacent galleries, are of mixed excellence. Some are in her best manner—and when we say in the best manner of Emily Carr, we mean fine painting indeed. Others appear to be the dregs of her production, reminding one almost of imitations of the master's style, confidently offered for sale in the knowledge that no matter how poor the effort, Emily Carr's name will sell it. Winchell Price, York Wilson, and Louis Muhlstock are featured on this floor by interesting and representative pieces. A number of works by Tom Stone and Juanita Symington are also shown. They should do a roaring business with the calendar trade. Realism heightened by gaudy color designed to catch a purchaser's eye, marks their work. That is not to say the pictures are without skill, and they do have a certain attraction for those who like the not-too-raw wilds—charm of subject matter, again.

On the fourth floor is an "Exhibition of Contemporary Canadian Artists," the chief merit of which seemed to me to reside in the way it is put up; the works are exhibited cleverly as if hung in an oversized living room, with white walls and facsimile furniture. Each painting is assigned a little alcove-panel by itself, in which its qualities can be appreciated to the full, without background distractions. Unfortunately, in this case, none of the paintings shown begin to do their makers justice, thus providing rather derogatory auspices for the demonstration of new exhibition techniques.

In the sum of my opinion, the show is not worth making a special trip to see, but you could certainly do worse than visit it if you are around the store.

—ALAN GOWANS.

Green Issue
Contest

What kind of War Memorial should the University of Toronto erect in the next few years?

The Varsity is offering a prize for suggestions backed up by reasons. The War Memorial contest will be a feature of the annual Christmas Literary Issue, scheduled for publication Wednesday, Dec. 12, editor Hugh Kenner announced last night.

"Entrants in this special contest should argue their cases in not more than 400 words," Kenner stated. "In a recent student poll, a Memorial Library, an Art Gallery, a Cenotaph, were all suggested, and there are probably many more ideas. Every student with a suggestion is urged to contribute."

Prizes will also be awarded, as in former years, for fiction, essays, poetry, light verse, and art. Judges in the various categories will be announced later. Closing date for all entries for the Green Issue will be 5-p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 5.

What Do
Unitarians Believe?

Rev. William Jenkins

was for the 18th century monarchists to see any hope of political unity in a democracy.

True religion to a Unitarian is above all else, the continuing quest for the more abundant life of mankind. He is open to receive guidance and enlightenment from every source of truth. He cannot have a fixed creed or catechism and remain truly liberal. He recognizes no final revelation, no received body of doctrine, but acknowledges a wide difference of opinion so long as it is based on sound fact and serious thought. Unitarians are not a fellowship of believers but a fellowship of seekers.

We invite you to hear the Rev. Wm. P. Jenkins discuss The Religion of Reason Sunday, November 25th, at 11 a.m. The First Unitarian Church is at 216 Jarvis St., just above Dundas St. Write for free Unitarian literature. This is our 100th year in Toronto.

ORGANIZATION MEETING

UNIVERSITY
LIBERAL CLUB

All interested students are invited to come and discuss plans for the formation of a University of Toronto Liberal Association.

WOMEN'S UNION, 8 P.M., TO-NIGHT

ASK TO SEE . . .

MEN UNDER STRESS By Grinker & Spiegel

The best book on war neurosis and reconversion to come out of the war. Of immense interest to the person contemplating Civilian Air Service Work. A book for Social Service Workers. Includes case histories. Non technical. At your booksellers $6.00

THE BLAKISTON COMPANY

215 Victoria Street, Toronto

Hart House Bulletin Board

Friday Afternoon Recital

There will be a recital of 17th century music in the music room at 5 p.m. on Friday, played by Greta Kraus, harpsichordist, Elie Spivak, violinist, and Cornelius Ysselstyn, cellist.

Visitors' Sunday

Next Sunday, 25th November, will be a Visitors' Day at Hart House, and members may introduce friends, including ladies, to the House that day between 2 and 4 in the afternoon. The whole building will be open for inspection. An exhibition of photographs by Lt. F. R. Kemp will be on view in the art gallery. Members will be asked to show their membership cards at the door.

VIC 4T8 (Second Year) CLASS PARTY

NOV. 23, 8 P.M., BURWASH HALL

FREE

STAGE SHOW, DANCING, REFRESHMENTS

The Sportswoman

By Ed. Ayer

Wanted: Snowflakes . . .

Snow's about the only thing the U. of T. Ski Club hasn't provided for in its plans for the current year. All else—basic and advanced instruction, transportation, excursions, ski movies, weekly competitive racing, and inter-campus meets—was put on paper at Tuesday night's organization meeting. Even social skiing is on the agenda.

Skiing 'n Sheing . . .

The sport has come a long way since Canadians quipped about its continental pronunciation; but this year "sheing" may give way to "heing". Though in wartime he's hadn't quite surrendered the field, they'll be back with a vengeance this year, making up for lost time. Schuss Sam reports a promising ski team for inter-varsity aspirants.

Sam also reports the trails and cabins on the Club's property at Aurora in good shape after last Sunday's expedition of 15 ardent club workers. The chalet roof has been repaired, the broken skis cleared away stacked for firewood, new signs posted on the trails. "But," adds Sam, "they didn't bring any snow with them."

Meeting Tomorrow . . .

Second big general meeting of the Ski Club is slated for Room III, Anatomy Building (where there are lots of seats) at 5 p.m. President Pete Kingsmill intends to brief the meeting on equipment angles—avoiding skis with dangerous knots, for example. Full membership details, privileges, Toronto Ski Club affiliation at reduced rates, etc., will also be up for discussion. Come along and join the Varsity Club—it's free!

I've taken to pipe smoking like a prof to knowledge since I've discovered sweet, cool, mild Picobac.

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service.
321 BLOOMING ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

BUY WAR SAVINGS

Trinity Eleven Takes Dents 2-0

Trinity College firsts wound up an unbeaten soccer schedule Wednesday afternoon when they defeated Dents 2-0 in the final game in Group 11. The Red and Black has been victorious in six starts and has yet to be scored on in the current season.

Throughout the game the play centred in the Dents area. The first tally came just after half time when MacDonald booted a ground shot into the Dents net. Wallace of Trinity followed with another score shortly afterwards.

Trinity now advances into the semi-finals which will be played next week. Outside regular league play, Trinity has been victorious in two exhibition games and holds the record of eight straight wins with no goals scored against her. Mathews in goal, Dobell and Glen on defensive play, and Adamson and Eliot on the forward line, have turned in outstanding performances.

The Champus Cat

(Continued from page 2)

The man who had sought to balk McGeech by closing the trap-door was inside the tower; a creature of "Q"; perhaps—McGeech's heart bounded—perhaps "Q" himself!

With a firm hand he reached for the knob of the door at the tower's base. At that instant the door opened.—Woo.

(To Be Continued)

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

Our stock of earrings is especially interesting just now. . . . also bracelets, bangles and brooches. Come in and see for yourself.

32 Bloor St. East
(Near Red Cross Headquarters)
MI. 5975

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

For Skulemen Only . . .

Congratulations and all that . . . You have hit the top again after an absence of a single year. Two championships out of three years is a good batting average in any league . . . You packed the Mulock Cup back to the south end for another twelve months but more important than that, you gained a host of friends yesterday afternoon . . . The term "Dirty School" has been white-washed and crossed from the list of adjectives that can be applied to your teams . . . The sportsmanship and good feeling exhibited yesterday in the face of mounting odds stood out like a dime's worth of liver on a silver platter . . . Even after that questionable major you came back and played your hearts out for that victory . . . Yes, you played like champions, like true champions, so let's keep that reputation up there!

From Around and About . . .

Basketball and hockey practices are in full swing . . . Former Blue cage stars like Whitey Clayton, Stu Scott, Harry Mayzell and Murray Thomson have shown up well. Of the newcomers, Barry Lowes and a former airman answering to the name of Jones have been most noticeable . . . Ace Bailey paced his seniors through their second session yesterday minus commercial stars like Kossick, Halter, Henry and Ball. These players were given the day off so that performances last night for their respective teams would not suffer . . . A comparative unknown named Morris sprang up to give Davidson a battle for the goal position. Wonder if Frank McCool brought him from Calgary? . . . Don Bark showed class around the centre spot while Harvey Bain issued notice that he is headed for a banner season. . . . Although Bailey is giving all comers an even break, he is weeding the undesirable material out but fast. Two more sessions and the opening line-up will be within guessing distance . . . By the way, has anyone seen Dave Bauer or was the football season too much for him? . . . Ozark Ike was last seen leaving Roy Dilworth's basketball session muttering nasty mutterings under his breath. Back to the McBatt's, we hope! . . . Also understand that Art Chetwynd and George Daley have quite an ambitious program lined up for all wrestlers and potential wrestlers. Embryo grunt and groaners will be welcomed with open arms both literally and figuratively, any evening between the hours of five and six . . . Some sport this, as champions have ranged from a six-footer who weighed 115 to a five-foot-six heavy-weight . . . If you are interested, show up and then—let George do it!

SKI CLUB . . .

There will be a General Meeting of the Ski Club in Room 111, Anatomy Building, on Friday, Nov. 23rd. at 5 p.m.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION COURSE

The University Health Service, with the co-operation of the University of Toronto Athletic Association, is offering to men students and staff a course (lecture, practice, and examination) on Artificial Respiration, on Tuesday, November 27th, and Thursday, November 29th—Debates Room—Hart House—at 5:00 p.m.

All men enrolled in Life Saving Courses must take this Course to qualify for their awards.

All male students and staff in the University are eligible to enrol and take the course. For further details see either Mr. Griffiths or Mr. McCutcheon.

Men who satisfactorily complete the course will qualify for the Respiration Service Badge of the Royal Life Saving Society.

Tuesday, November 27th

LECTURE AND DEMONSTRATION

of the

THEORY AND PRACTICE OF RESUSCITATION

Lecturer—Dr. R. W. I. Urquhart

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

Thursday, November 29th

PRACTICAL EXAMINATION

and

TRUE-FALSE TEST ON THEORY

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

NOTE: During the week starting November 19th, all gymnasium classes will receive basic instruction in Resuscitation Practice, preliminary to the course offered the following week.

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE	1.00 Med. II	Vic.	Robson
	4.00 For	Dent	Rae
SWIM LEAGUE	1.00 For. A	Jr. SPS.	Burt-Gerrans
	4.30 Pre-Med. A	Dent.
VOLLEYBALL	1.00 For. A	St. M. A	Himel
	4.30 Pre-Med. A	PHE. I	Fine
	5.30 For. B	U.C. VI	Fine
	6.30 IV SPS. A	U.C. III	Starkman
	7.30 Trin. D	U.C. V	Starkman
HOCKEY	4.00-5.00 Vic.
(Practices)	6.00-7.00 Med.

SPORT SCHEDULES

For Week of November 26th

LACROSSE (balance of schedule)

Mon., Nov. 26	1.00 P.H.E.	Sr. S.P.S.	Cross
	4.00 S.P.S. IV	St. M.	Duncan
Tues., Nov. 27	4.00 Jr. S.P.S.	Vic.	Price
Wed., Nov. 28	1.00 Jr. S.P.S.	Med. II	Vetter
	4.00 Dent.	S.P.S. III	Cornish
Thurs., Nov. 29	4.00 U.C.	Med. II	Rae
Fri., Nov. 30	1.00 Trin.	St. M.	Cooke

SWIM LEAGUE

Mon., Nov. 26	5.00 U.C. I	Vic.	Moffat
	4.00 Trin. C	S.P.S. IV
Tues., Nov. 27	4.00 Pre-Med.	St. M. A	Beer
	4.00 Knox	Trin. B
Wed., Nov. 28	4.00 St. M. B	S.P.S. IV	Morrow
	5.00 Wyc.	Trin. C
	5.00 Med. I	Sr. S.P.S.
Thurs., Nov. 29	4.00 For	U.C. II	Marshall
	4.00 Dent.	Knox
		Pre-Med.

VOLLEYBALL

Mon., Nov. 26	1.00 Sr. Med	Sr. Vic.	Himel
	4.00 Dent A	Pre-Med. A	Fine
	6.30 U.C. VI	Trin. C	Mackie
Tues., Nov. 27	1.00 IV SPS A	Dent B	Cooke
	4.30 IV SPS B	Vic III	McDonald
	6.30 II SPS B	I Med	Brisbin
	7.30 PHE II	Dent D	Brisbin
	8.30 Emman A	Wyc. A	Brisbin
Wed., Nov. 28	1.00 Med Servicemen	For
	4.00 Jr. S.P.S.	Jr. U.C.	Eilbeck
	6.30 III SPS B	U.C. IV	Swan
	7.30 St. M. A	Trin. A	Swan
	8.30 St. M. B	Trin. B	Swan
Thurs., Nov. 29	1.00 Dent A	S.P.S. III	Eilbeck
	4.00 Sr. U.C.	Sr. Med.	Burt-Gerrans
	6.30 Jr. Med.	Jr. Vic.	Fine
	7.30 II SSP B	Vic. IV	Fine
	8.30 Emman B	Knox B	Fine
Fri., Nov. 30	1.00 Pharm.	Wyc. A	Mackie
	4.00 U.C. VI	St. M. C	Starkman
Sat., Dec. 1	12.00 U.C. VI	For B	Lyon
	1.00 Med Servicemen	Trin. C	Lyon

N.B.: All Managers please note — Applications for changes must be made before Saturday noon.

WRESTLING

Individual Sport at Its Best

Wrestling is an all around athletic outlet for men of all weights, and is considered one of the best activities for general body building. The nature of this activity lends itself to rapid development of proficiency, regardless of the build of the individual. In addition, it assists in developing self-confidence, mental alertness, initiative and general physical fitness.

Beginners' classes, and advanced classes, are held every afternoon, Monday to Friday, from 5.00 to 6.00 p.m., Hart House, under the supervision of the Varsity coach, Mr. George Daly, and his assistant, Mr. Arthur Chetwynd.

All men are extended an invitation to join one or more of these classes.

Intercollegiate Swimming Team

On Friday, November 23, at 5 o'clock there will be an organization meeting of the University of Toronto Swimming Club in the Athletic Directorate Room, Hart House.

All swimmers participating in Interfaculty Swimming Meets, who would be interested in competing on a Varsity team are requested to be present.

All men interested in the organization of a Varsity Water Polo Team are also urged to attend the meeting.

A good attendance is necessary to ensure the success of the meeting. Be there on time!

FRIDAY, NOV. 23. AT 5:00 P.M.

BOULDING'S ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

NOW IN STOCK

COME EARLY — SUPPLY LIMITED

COLE'S BOOK MARKET & Book Exchange

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

726 YONGE (Block South of Bloor)

RA. 1148

Exercises

THURS., FRI., SAT. EVE.—7:45 P.M.

FRI., SAT. MORN.—7:45 A.M.

SUN. MORN.—10:00 A.M.

Followed by Communion Breakfast.

Tonight

NEWMAN CLUB

invite all interested to their

ANNUAL SPIRITUAL RETREAT

conducted by Rev. Elmer G. Kieffer, C.M., D.C.L.

Niagara University, N.Y.

in Newman Chapel (St. George & Hoskin) commencing

THURSDAY, NOV. 22, 7:45 P.M.

Tonight

Question Box

FRI. AND SAT.—4:30 P.M.

All practical questions submitted will be answered.

REMEMBER?

HAIRSTYLING FOR YOU . . . the Antoine men make a study of your own very distinctive profile and "do right by that head" because it irks them to see a gal with a frowsy silhouette. Comb it, shape it suavely and let it blow if you like, knowing that with the magic Antoine touch it can't help but blow in the right direction, that direction meaning distinctive flattery because it's not by chance that they pattern their hairstyling, but by a careful study of what type of hair-do is best suited for each particular type of face. The Antoine Salon is at Holt Renfrew's.

TIME PROGRESSES . . . and one noticeable change is in the women's clothing of to-day. Every year some new fashion, fad or style is created by the top rank designers of Canada to help the well-groomed women look still smarter and better turned out. If you're looking for that very thing Joan Rigby is your best bet. She has clothes which are appealing to any women from sixteen to sixty . . . Her styles vary from conservative sports wear for lectures to individual glamour dresses for that coming Soph-Frosch. Joan Rigby's labels speak of durability and long wear. If friends and relations come to town introduce them to Joan Rigby's.

DO YOUR CLOTHES ANNOY YOU? Well, if so, you may be sure they annoy other people no less. Do you have the right kind of tie for that new sports jacket? Are your accessories such as suspenders, belts, handkerchiefs, socks, so old that they give your whole outfit that "tired" look? If so, STOLERY'S can show you the answers. The eyes of the campus co-eds will doubtless begin to sparkle when they see your approach. But I'm giving you fair warning, buy for yourself, as you know what you want. The fairer sex may know an awful lot about some things but when it comes to men's accessories don't be afraid to make your own undaided decisions; the gals will like 'em too.

WE DIDN'T WRITE THIS STORY last week because frankly we were awaiting results. It was a dinner date and the guy who was paying the check turned his ankle on the curb just as he was about to get into his car. Well we helped him back to the house and he took off his shoe and sock and got working on his ankle with some Sloan's. We went on to dinner, and he limped a bit, with a sorry-for-himself look. The

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that . . .

The Hospitality Bureau, 65 Adelaide St. W., has been quite successful in finding living accommodation for ex-service men and women. They are open between 8 and 10 in the evening and their telephone number is WA. 8493.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. M.L. 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

some guy asked us to dinner again last night, ankle O.K., and all serene. "Must have been that liniment," he said. "Usually when I turn that ankle I'm a cripple for a month!" And we could tell he admired us no end for being such a wise gal with the Sloan's.

PYJAMAS FOR SLEEPING BEAUTIES. The Evangeline Shops really have some dandies! Many gaily coloured prints in spun rayons, daintily patterned. Others in gingham, bright peasant colours. These are particularly suitable for the college girl we think, the gal who knows it gives her a subconscious feeling of being on good terms with the world to look smart even when not visible. These pyjamas make excellent gifts, too, and we advise looking 'em over before the holiday rush begins.

THE DRUM BAG . . . it's a plastic import in tortoiseshell and black . . . and only three ninety-five at Creed's. Then there's an underarm "Pouch" in Gostskin, in brown and black, from five ninety-five to eleven seventy-five, dandy for day-in and day-out wear. There's a lizard underarm shoulder bag at 9.75 in black and brown. In compacts there's a "bell" compact, metal trimmed in various colours for only 3.95, attractive tortoiseshell cigarette case at 3.95, any of which will slip into your new handbag of imported patent leather in "collar-box" style at 9.00 or pouchy style at 14.50. Corde cocktail bag, slipper top, 6.75, or "flat-top" with dome, black, brown, navy, same price.

THAT "MUST" LOOK for well-dressed women . . . you can find it at NORTHWAYS. How about a classic wool in your favorite pastel, they're so soft and warm for an informal night "do". Perhaps a peplum suit in grey. This suit can be worn practically anywhere if you like a suit which is neither too formal nor too feminine. When leisure is in order you can snuggle into a housecoat of padded satin in lush colours, trimmed with lace to give it a dainty air; if you prefer a more tailored

Ex-Servicemen

The Wrens of Westphal House take great pleasure in inviting you to an informal

House Party

at their new residence,

142 Crescent Road, on

TONIGHT

Tickets may be obtained from UNTD office, 119 St. George St.

Toronto Conservatory of Music

WEDNESDAY

FIVE O'CLOCK

ONE HOUR CONCERTS OF CHAMBER MUSIC

String Quartets, Wood-Wind Ensemble, Chamber Orchestra, and Soloists.

November 28, December 12

January 16 and 30

February 13 and 27

March 13 and 27

Conservatory Concert Hall
Series Tickets $5.00; Single $1.00
University Student Series Ticket $2.50 — Single 50c

Hart House Shelves Receive New Books

The Library Committee announces that the following books have recently been added to Hart House Library:

D. D. Calvin: A Saga of the St. Lawrence.

C. S. Forester: Commodore Hornblower.

R. McAlister: Hi Sky.

Sir Wm. Dampier: Shorter History of Science.

Will Durant: The Masters of Philosophy.

R. C. K. Ensor: A Miniature History of the War.

Lorne Pierce: A Canadian People.

Joseph Wechsberg: Looking for a Bluebird.

James Thrall Soby: Paintings and Prints by Georges Rouault.

McGill Professor To Examine Hess

Montreal, Que., 19 (CUP)—Dr. D. Ewen Cameron of McGill University and Dr. Nolan C. Lewis of Columbia University, both professors of psychiatry, have been summoned to Nuremberg, Germany, to assist in determining the sanity of Rudolf Hess, onetime deputy Fuehrer of the Hitler regime.

The doctors will collaborate with French, British, and Russian experts in probing the No. 3 Nazi's mental oblivion, and will discuss the findings of Major Douglas Kelley, who has already examined Hess.

idea, a warm flannel which is easily slipped on after a bath.

FOR A PERFUME that bespeaks youthful charm wear Fragrance Gemy . . . a sparkling fragrance that matches gay moments and happy hours. Gemy Dusting Powder, Talcum, Toilet Water and Eau de Cologne all are distinguished by this delightful fragrance. Choose Gemy for your personal friends. A holiday package contains Eau de Cologne, Perfume and Talcum, nestling in a satin-lined box. Another gift package contains Toilet Water and Dusting Powder. Fragrance Gemy is a creation of Richard Hudnut.

Education . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

standing is the basic desire of the peace and this can only be achieved on a sound educational foundation. Man's morals," he added gravely, "have not kept pace with his scientific achievements; an international morality must be fostered."

Dr. C. Martin, Head of the History Department, approved of the plan but said that Canada would be wiser to make a greater effort to achieve national university integration "right here on her doorstep. Why not try the U.N.O. plan on a smaller plan here in Canada by a greater exchange of students, teachers, and ideas with the U.S. and South America?"

CLASSIFIED ADS

LOST

Trench-coat, in Hart House, Friday, Nov. 16th. Locker card No. 1249 in pocket. Sentimental reasons. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restringed. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

FOR SALE

Microscope, Standard Bausch and Lomb instrument in excellent condition. $50.00. Phone MO. 6609.

BOARD AND ROOM

For male student, in comfortable private home, vicinity of Danforth and Coxwell. GE. 2581.

LOST

Two cashmere sweaters in brown bag, Economics Bldg. or Hart House. Phone MA. 2179.

ABERDEEN'S FLORAL STORES

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., M.L. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation of This Ad

Corsages are a Specialty—Have your Date Wear One to the Whitney Hall Formal

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

Bangles

. . . The more the merrier . . . so wear 'em by the dozen with casual togs or your best bib 'n' tucker. They'll lend that indefinable air so necessary to today's uncluttered clothes. As a Christmas gift, they will be more than appreciated.

$1.00 to $5.95

Evangeline

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 751 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pace
- In Hamilton—King and John Sts.

Do Your Christmas Shopping Early

KNOCK!
KNOCK!
KNOCK!

WHO'S THERE?
IT'S THE HAPPY GANG!
FAVOURITES ON THE AIR
NOW ON VICTOR RECORDS

Here's grand news for radio and record fans! A smart colorful Victor album of recordings by the Happy Gang . . . a choice collection of the Gang's many-sided repertoire. Your Victor Record dealer will gladly play these for you. See him today.

THE VICTOR "Happy Gang" ALBUM

SHUT THE DOOR!
DON'T PLAY BINGO TONIGHT MOTHER
Bert Pearl and the Gang

TUMBLING TUMBLEWEEDS
Eddie Allen, Cliff McKay and Bert Pearl

THE LORD'S PRAYER
Eddie Allen with Kathleen Stokes at the Organ

CLAIR DE LUNE
Blain Mathe and His Violin with Kathleen Stokes at the Organ

TOO-RA-LOO-RA-LOO-RAL
Eddie Allen

DARK EYES
Cliff McKay

VICTOR ALBUM No. CP-2 . . . $3.50

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ARTISTS ARE ON
VICTOR Records

Coming Soon!

RCA VICTOR RECORD PLAYER

Your RCA Victor dealer will soon be displaying this compact, precision built RCA Victor Record Player. Playing records through your radio it doubles the enjoyment of home entertainment for a small investment. Watch for it at your RCA Victor dealer's . . . better still place your order with him now.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

111 St. West of University Ave.
NOW PLAYING

EVGS. at 8:20 — MATS. Wed., Sat. at 2:20

The Messrs. SHUBERT Present A Repertoire of FAMOUS OPERETTAS with a superb cast of Singers, Comedians and Singing Chorus of 40.

1st WEEK, Mon. thru Fri. Mat. Wed.

"ROSE MARIE"

IMMORTAL MUSICAL BY HUBBARD PRINCE

Saturday Matinee and Night

"COUNTESS MARITZA"

SPARKLING MUSICAL BY EMMERICH KALLMAN

2ND WEEK BEG. NOV. 26

Mon., Tues., Wed. Evgs. and Wed. Mat.

"COUNTESS MARITZA"

Thurs., Fri., Sat. Evgs. and Sat. Mat.

"ROSE MARIE"

PRICES (Tax included)

EVGS.: 90c, $1.20, $1.50, $2.40 and $3.

MATS.: Wed. and Sat.: 90c, $1.20, $1.50, and $2.40.

Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

VARSlTY Saturday Night DANCE

ROYAL YORK HOTEL BANQUET HALL . . . SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24th

ELLIS McLINTOCK -- His Trumpet -- And His Orchestra

TICKETS AVAILABLE TODAY AND FRIDAY IN UNIVERSITY COLLEGE ROTUNDA (EAST DOOR — OPPOSITE HART HOUSE)

Manager: Duncan A. White, IVth Yr. Civil Engineering

Dancing From 9 to 12. Tickets $1.00 Per Person

Liberal Association Aims Embodied In Constitution

TO SPREAD DEMOCRACY KNOWLEDGE

"To aid in securing and promoting the good government of Canada by spreading the knowledge of liberal democracy" is one of the aims of the University of Toronto Liberal Association as included in the constitution adopted at the organization meeting in the Women's Union last night.

Nearly 30 students attended the meeting, which was held under the chairmanship of George Ness, III Vic.

The meeting decided to affiliate the Club with the Ontario Young Liberal Federation, with the qualification that membership in the club would not necessarily entail membership in the Liberal Party.

The Liberal Party will assist the Club by providing literature and suggestions, the chairman said, but the direction of the Club will rest with its members. The Association hopes to send delegates to the Young Liberal Federation convention, to be held in Toronto in February.

"As University students," Ness said, "we should seek to become leaders in the political field. The Association will strive to be liberalistic."

Appointed to the executive were: George Ness, President. John A. Teeter, Treasurer. Perham Stanley, Secretary. Joe Clark, Counselor.

The position of Vice-president, to be filled by a woman, was held over until a later date.

Two members were appointed to report to the Association on the Ford Strike Committee.

Date of the next meeting will be announced within the next week.

Student Deplores Reckless Roadsters

Installation of traffic lights or traffic police at the Hoskin-St. George intersection during two perilous weekday periods is recommended by a student of the University of Toronto in a letter to The Varsity.

Deplores the treacherous traffic conditions at this crossing between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., Irvin Rechtschaffen, II Optometry, suggests a light signal or policeman on duty as necessary solution to "wild and reckless" automobile traffic which makes it "absolutely unsafe for a pedestrian to cross St. George Street during these hours."

Situation, which he describes as "a source of great danger," is apparently due "to the failure of the student body to lodge a complaint or to demand traffic policemen during the rush hours."

It is imperative, urges the writer, that the installation of either traffic lights or traffic police take place immediately "before a fatality occurs."

New and Entrenous

"Auction Footnotes"

By Ross McLean

Trivia and treasures together go on the auction block at the Post Office's yearly sale of unclaimed parcels.

The Postal Auction, annual delight of "Kage" Wood, III Biology, is now over and Wood has added a pair of boots to his collection of articles that have strayed in the mails.

The boots, his purchase at the 1945 sale, are considerably more practical than the electric hair dryer, the dozen volleyballs and the pedometer that he had bought in previous years. Wood has no explanation for the boots. Possibly his army term has sobered him.

At any rate, he chose to ignore such exciting parcels as No. 70 which contained 1 wet mop, 1 dust mop, 15 mop handles and 1 green blind, 48" wide. Or No. 19: Quantity of hair nets, dark brown, cap shape, also slumber nets with elastic, about 12 dozen in all.

But boots he bought and boots he must have wanted.

Irresistible items such as "1 lady's corsetette, heavy weight front lacing, 19 1/2" length, about size 34, slightly soiled by water" and, in the same parcel, 1 pr. black shoulder pads and 3 small bottles perfume. These held no appeal.

Works of literature were offered "Forbidden to Women," "Men Are Such Fools," "Forever Amber" and "Be Glad You Are Neurotic." Assorted trinkets: 1 Dr. West Tooth Brush, 1 silver colored hip flask with bayonet locking top, capacity 12 oz., Panama hats, unfinished, extra fine quality, suitable for reblocking, 1 box building blocks, 1 2-oz. bottle Chanel No. 5, 1 "Bingo" game, 1 jackknife, 1 pkt Varga girl playing cards, baby's pink plastic telephone rattle, 1 pr. brass candlesticks, light weight, 9" height, slightly used, 1 beaded holder for whisk, 1 box assorted used spectacles, 3 forged steel open end wrenches, 1 bottle capser, 50 prs leather soles for men's shoes and 20 prs rubber heels and 1 1/2 lb. aluminum studs for shirts, were sold.

Each article suggests an enchanting domestic drama.

Picture Baby experiencing the frustration of no pink plastic telephone rattle and becoming, consequently, hopelessly retarded in the modern art of telephone conversation.

Envision Dad loitering listlessly around the barn, postponing work day after day, waiting, waiting, waiting for the 21" horse collar—destined never to arrive.

Visualize Mother trying to work up an interest in "True Confessions", impatiently awaiting the arrival of "Men Are Such Fools", Brother losing interest in bridge and rummy without his Varga girl cards, Sister losing popularity without her Chanel No. 5 and her bottle capser and her pocket knife.

Yet footwear! What prosaic purchase! Pick up thy boots, Wood and walk!

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1945

No. 41

Grad Denies Intolerance In Pharmacy

Morris Haberman, a member of the Rokeah club of Jewish graduates of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, declared yesterday, "There hasn't been the slightest discrimination against Jews in the College of Pharmacy," in reference to the charges levelled against the faculty by Alistair Stewart C.C.F., M.P. for Winnipeg North.

Mr. Haberman went on to say that in his twenty years of association with the faculty he had never heard a complaint of that sort.

In a statement of figures of admissions, failures, prize-winners and graduates Dean R. O. Hurst of Pharmacy revealed that in the past four years, of 272 graduates 85 were Jews; of 27 failures eight were Jews, and of 24 prize-winners 10 were Jews.

"These figures," the Dean said, "don't indicate discrimination" after admission to college; and there is no possible room for discrimination on admittance "because all applicants who possess apprenticeship and matriculation requirements are admitted, regardless of race."

In a return statement Mr. Stewart said that "Representations have been made by students in the faculty that my charge with reference to their faculty was unfounded."

"However, the more I hear arguments for and against the charges I made, the more convinced I become that there should be an inquiry into the records of certain departments of the University."

Many Newmanites Meet at Western

London, Ont., Nov. 16 (CUP)—Delegates to the Newman conference at The University of Western, Ontario from November 16th to 18th travelled from as far west as the University of British Columbia and east to Dalhousie University and from Wayne University, Newman's Principles to Present Day Christian Problems."

Lieut. Edward Kirchner, international vice-president of Pax Romana and of the Catholic University of America, Washington, discussed the aims and activities of Pax Romana, an international organization formed in Washington to co-ordinate the activities of all Catholic clubs established on University camp; Mr. Kirchner proposes the affiliation of Canadian Federation of Newman Clubs with Pax Romana.

At the banquet on Sunday Mr. P.M. Dewan discussed the "Application of man's Principles to Present Day Christian Problems."

Science of Man Lecture Topic

"New forms of energy in the hands of men create new kinds of society," stated Bill Farley IV General in an address this afternoon before the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers entitled "Anthropology and Modern Life."

"Anthropology," he said, "is the science of man as a physical and a cultural being. It studies man in non-political and political society. The findings of anthropology show more and more that human cultures vary, that people live in different ways because they have faced different problems. History is the process in which man and man's environment interact and change each other. Man can only solve social crises through organization. With knowledge of the past and present, primitive and civilized, we are equipped to cope with our democratic system."

"It is interesting to note that sociological biology and psychoanalysis are all closely allied to anthropology because they compose man as he is."

Fact-Finding Committee Reports Two-Day Loophole

Two days elapsed between the report of the conciliation board to the Minister of Labor and stoppage of work at the Ford Plant, it was revealed in a report of the University Fact Finding Strike Committee released last night by Ethel Klassen, Chairman.

The report quotes a letter received by the committee from the Department of Labor which states, "a strike is not illegal under Wartime Labor Regulations if the dispute question has been investigated by a Board of Conciliation and 14 days have elapsed between the date on which the Board makes its report and the stoppage of work."

"However," the report continues, "it is to be remembered that negotiations had been carried on for two years and the public must decide whether this fact weighs more than a possible minor infraction of the law."

According to the Labor Gazette, Oct., 1945 from which the committee drew its facts the Conciliation Board reported to the Minister on September 10, 1945 and the strike began on September 12.

"The issue in the Ford Strike," the report states, "is one of union security." The union is asking for a union shop. This is described in the report as "the second most secure form of union security." The union shop system requires that all new employees must within a stated period become union members. Present employees may be exempted.

"Negotiations," according to the report, "were at a standstill until the union decided to restrict the number of plant protection men. The despatch of police at the request of the Windsor police commission induced the union to form a car blockade. Hon. Leslie Blackwell, confronted with the option of calling out militia, withheld them at the request of the Windsor City Council."

"Proposals of arbitration on all or some of the points of contention have been made by the company. The union will not submit the question of union security to arbitration because it does not regard justices competent in labor matters in which the law is not clearly defined."

Flees From Spain, Don Speaks Here

A Don in the Spanish Army, Rev. Zacarias P. Carles spoke at a meeting of the Varsity Christian Fellowship in the Anatomy Building yesterday. As an officer in the loyalist army, serving on many fronts, he earned the title of Don for his military ability in the Spanish Civil War.

After receiving degrees from the Universities of Madrid and Barcelona, and a Spanish Government scholarship, Mr. Carles' work was halted by the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War.

Franco's victory ended religious liberty, churches were closed, leaders were killed or forced to flee. Don Carles escaped to England and became a British citizen. He attended a Baptist congress in the United States; and on his way back to England by way of Canada he was persuaded to remain in this country.

Mr. Carles is at present teaching Spanish at McMaster University, and lecturing at universities throughout Canada. He hopes to return to Spain to preach the gospel some day.

Before the Civil War, Mr. Carles was Spanish Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Madrid, during which time he translated the New Testament into Catalan, a Spanish dialect. He is now president of the Spanish Christian Mission.

Pickets Protest Skating Scandal

More than 25 University students picketed a North Toronto skating rink last night, protesting the management's alleged refusal of admittance to a 15 year old Negro lad Tuesday night.

The boy, according to press reports, was turned away after paying the admission fee. His companion, a white boy, then protested the insult by refusing to enter.

Bearing such placarded slogans as Racial Prejudice Will Not Be Tolerated and The Negro must have Complete Freedom and Equality, the student pickets patrolled the pavement for more than half an hour in biting cold, shouting slogans and identifying themselves to passers-by with University yell. Two plainclothesmen stood quietly by.

Since the skating arena was not open last night, the pickets were unable to get a statement from the management. Nevertheless, they vented their feelings by carrying on the march. Local residents and neighbouring shopkeepers watched the demonstration and offered encouragement.

After the organized line had left, several teen-age boys carrying hockey sticks and skates continued marching before the rink for more than an hour.

$1,500 SCM Goal For World Literacy

A campaign launched Tuesday has an objective of $1,500. Portions of this will be distributed not only to the World Literacy Campaign, but also to establish war-shattered European student Christian groups, and provide Toronto's share in the national S.C.M.

Placard-Hung Students Join Picket Lines

Some 20 students from the University of Toronto joined strikers in picket lines at the Imperial Optical Company plant on Dundas Street near Sherbourne, at 7:30 yesterday morning.

The picketing students carrying placards reading "U of T Students support strike," "Hermant evading the Law," "Union security is our security," and "We are students; is this our business? You're darned right it is; we don't want Fascism here," marched in a body on the picket lines, amid the applause of the workers. With the exception of six pickets at the door, the sidewalk in front of the building was kept clear by 22 policemen, four of whom were mounted.

The strikers augmented by the students tried to break through the police lines but were repelled by the police.

Ken Morrison, president of the University L.P.P. Club, which was responsible for student participation in the demonstration, addressed the workers over the loud speaker system.

After circling in front of the plant for an hour in their attempt to break the police lines, the students marched west along Dundas Street, to the Hermant office building and dispersed there.

Modern Education Lecture on Monday

The Committee Representing the Teaching Staff of The University of Toronto is sponsoring a series of lectures beginning on Nov. 26th on "Education For Tomorrow." This group, whose members are elected every three years, undertakes to arrange at least one series of lectures a year. "Education" has been chosen as the timely subject of this series because of the rapid changes taking place in education at this time.

Professor Wasteneys, President of the Committee will begin the series on Monday with a lecture on "Professional Education." Head of the Bio-Chemistry Department and one of the chief organizers of the Committee, Dr. Wasteneys has long been interested in any new trends in educational development.

President Hutchins of the University of Chicago will also speak in this series at a date to be announced later.

Let There Be Light Engineers Bring it

Frederick N. B., Nov 21—(CUP)—The University of New Brunswick owes a debt to the ingenuity of a campus reformer, Al Cameron IV Electrical Engineering.

For years the main student's thoroughfare up the hill from the town of Fredericton to the University has been without lights; it is steep and treacherous especially in winter, at night. The prolonged agitation for lighting was led by Al Cameron.

Lights were finally granted but due to the current man-power shortage no labor was available. Cameron conscripted friends and cheered on and advised by the whole campus, personally installed the lighting system.

Initiations Of 1914 Tough Eggs And Presidents Fly

Freshmen were a tough breed, once. Before the last war they went through an inferno of atrocities unmatched until Belsen and Buchenwald; and survived it.

We know they survived it, because we have been talking to one of the survivors. He is Mr. F. D. Ellis, a member of the 1914 freshman year. In a way, it was a historic year. The class of '18 were the last to go through what Mr. Ellis gently calls "the initiation."

"After we got ours," he said, "the University put a stop to it. And a good thing, too. It just couldn't have gone on."

His powers of description failing, Mr. Ellis dug out a yellowed clipping from The Varsity, where the ceremony was unblinkingly reported:

"Under cover of a hail of rotten eggs and supported by buckets of axle grease," the clipping began, "the Science sophs this morning outmanoeuvred and finally routed the freshmen in their annual fight to the finish."

Deprived of their base of supplies, the frosh hadn't a hope. The report described tersely the fate of the vanquished:

"The flanking movement which followed gave the sophs a decided advantage. Rip went collars, coats, shirts, ties, trousers—everything."

Mr. Ellis was even more graphic: "We ended up with not enough clothes on the bunch of us to clothe one man," he said. "One chap took the street-car home wearing nothing but a borrowed raincoat and a pair of shoes."

President Falconer had a tiny finger in the pie, too. "Serenely unaware of the battle—although advance notices were out in profusion," Sir Robert arrived at his office on schedule. Attracted an hour later "by the terrific yelling," he entered the field of battle.

Here the reporter achieved an especially enigmatic touch: "Disgusted with the sights, he repaired to the basement of the School of Science," presumably the presidential bomb-shelter.

"Here, after the fight was over, he asked the names of about a dozen freshmen who were trying to clean up."

Mr. Ellis supplied the sequel. "Several days later," he said, "One of the freshmen died of a ruptured appendix. That was the last year the initiation was held like this."

Editorial

Pharmacy Exonerated

Further light has been thrown on the campus racial discrimination issue raised some short while ago by Alistair Stewart, C.C.F. member of parliament for Winnipeg North. Stewart, who charged that anti-Semitism was being practiced by the faculties of dentistry, medicine and pharmacy, has not yet published full reports to substantiate his statements, but his initial barrage was sufficient to draw denials from the deans of the faculties mentioned.

Whether guilty or not, such retorts were naturally expected from these sources and their views cannot be accepted as final and definite proof of innocence. Yesterday, however, an unofficial spokesman for the Jewish students in the first year at Pharmacy informed The Varsity that they have encountered no examples of anti-Semitism in that faculty. The spokesman, who prefers to remain anonymous, said, "I see no outward signs of discrimination in Pharmacy."

Absolutely Fair

Speaking for himself, he revealed that, had it not been for the aid of R. O. Hurst, Dean of Pharmacy, he would not have been released from the Service to continue his studies. "A number of my friends, also Jewish, are similarly indebted to Dean Hurst," he continued.

Yesterday, as reported in this morning's news columns, a Pharmacy graduate of 20 years' standing stated that "there hasn't been the slightest discrimination against Jews in the faculty of Pharmacy."

"I have been connected with the Jewish Graduates' Club for 20 years, and I haven't heard a single complaint of that sort," he said. "The entire Pharmacy faculty has bent over backwards to see that we got every possible break."

This would seem to indicate that Dean Hurst and his staff take an absolutely fair and unprejudiced attitude toward all their students. Racial and religious differences appear to affect academic treatment little or not at all.

Furthermore, the first year in Pharmacy contains over 20 Jewish students in a total enrolment of some 150. This is certainly a fair ratio for one racial group and no evidence has been revealed to show that the percentage of Jewish students admitted has been limited.

In the light of student reaction in that faculty we feel justified in concluding that Mr. Stewart's charge, insofar as Pharmacy is concerned, is without foundation.

Dentists Are Cautious

The remaining faculties, Dentistry and Medicine, however, have yet to be cleared of the discrimination charges. Dental students, both Jewish and non-Jewish, when approached by The Varsity, have generally proved loath to discuss the topic, and some have admitted frankly that they fear "special attention by faculty members" should they express honest opinion.

This is decidedly far from a wholesome situation. When students fear to speak on a purportedly democratic campus we must begin to look to the welfare of free expression.

Perhaps there is no discrimination practiced in Dentistry. Perhaps there is. But the mere fact that students in that faculty are adopting a closed-mouth policy would seem to indicate that all is not as it should be.

Lack of Evidence

About the Faculty of Medicine we have as yet no conclusive evidence of discrimination and therefore must reserve a statement of our opinion. Perhaps Mr. Stewart will supply proof. We must remain neutral until the weight of evidence lists one way or the other.

But we are very anxious to see Mr. Stewart's reports concerning the two faculties. His evidence concerning Dentistry should be "interesting" in the light of the general student attitude, and that concerning Pharmacy will bear some attention after the favorable comment of Jewish students.

—P. S.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Reestablished 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42a
University College, ML 6611
Business Office, ML 6221
Night Office, ML 8745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, B.A.
Assistant: Barbara E. Hood, B.A.
Music Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.H.E.
News Editor: George Porter, A.T.
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, A.T.
Feature Editor: Wally Belfry, A.T.
Assistant: E. Ross McLean, A.T.
Sports Editor: Reg Herman, A.T.
Women's Assistant: Mickey Michalski, A.T.
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, A.T.
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, A.T.
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, A.T.
Editor: Ralph Jones, A.T.

Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, A.T.
Business and Advertising Manager: E. A. MACDONALD
Night Editor: Peggy Bates
Assistant: Joe Taylor

Art, Music and Drama

He Rushes But He Gets There

Rudolf Serkin's program last night at Eaton Auditorium was made up of classical works most of which are seldom heard. Yet most of the pieces sounded familiar. This, I've been told, is one of the signs of an artist. Other signs of Serkin's artistry were not lacking in a program that was consistent in its extremely musical performances.

To my mind, Beethoven's Polonaise, Op. 89, and three Caprices by Mendelssohn were the best played pieces on the program. The Beethoven was a fine example of Serkin's sound musicianship. Differences in tone and volume were brought about with artistic finesse, and the rhythms were well marked but unobtrusive.

The chief criticism that can be levelled at Serkin is that he often plays too quickly. Certainly the beauty of Chopin's Barcarolle was marred rather than enhanced by the speed at which it was taken. It is a pity that a performance that captured the mood of the piece so well in all other respects should have been spoiled by an incongruous tempo. Serkin has a general tendency toward playing everything, but especially Chopin, at break-neck speed. The Butterfly Etude, played as an encore, was exquisite at this unusual rate, but other numbers suffered.

Schubert's Phantasie in C major, Op. 15, is an incoherent mass of beautiful melody. It is of uneven length and is unbearable except in the hands of an artist. Last night it was not only bearable but it held the interest of the audience throughout. This fact just added further reason for reaching the inevitable conclusion that Rudolf Serkin is a great pianist.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN.

Next Week's Concerts

In order that students may be informed about the city's cultural activities, the following schedule of coming events is printed.

On the campus, next week, there will be three programs worthy of note. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the U.C. Players Guild presents Thornton Wilder's play, Our Town, in Hart House Theatre. On Sunday evening, a

Newman Club Retreat

Conferences today and Saturday 7:45 p.m. Masses: Saturday 7:45 a.m., Sunday 10 a.m. To be rounded off with a Communion Breakfast Sunday and a talent program at 9 p.m.

—O—

St. Michael's

8:30 p.m. Saturday—Freshman dance at St. Michael's College in Brennan Hall.

—O—

Ukrainian Students' Club

8:45 p.m. Sunday—Meeting of St. Michael's College Music and Drama Society, Brennan Hall. Guests of the evening to be Jacqueline Doiron, soprano; Gisèle Lafèche, violinist; Earl Moss, accompanist.

—O—

Thomistic Society

2:30 p.m. Sunday—Next regular meeting in Newman Hall. All members are requested to attend.

2:30 p.m. Sunday—Second meeting in Brennan Hall. Dr. S. A. Pegis will speak on "Philosophy — a Mystery."

—O—

Wymilwood Concert

9:00 p.m. Sunday—All Faculties invited to attend a program featuring student artists. Lorne Watson, pianist; Gwen Mihaiko, mezzo-soprano; and Bill Hussek, cellist.

Hart House Concert

There will be a concert of chamber music this afternoon at five p.m. in the Hart House Music Room. The artists will be Cornelius Ysselstyn, 'cello, Grete Kraus harpsichord, and Eli Spivak, violin. All House members are invited to attend.

Ajax Students' Handbook

The Students Administrative Council is publishing a students' Handbook for students who will be registering in Ajax Division.

Any University organization or club whose activities would be of interest to these students may leave in the Students' Administrative Council office in Hart House, an account of their club's activities and the names and addresses of their executive officers for inclusion in the book. All material must be in by December 1st.

students' recital is to be given at Wymilwood. And Tuesday afternoon at five in Convocation Hall, Dr. Willan will continue his series of organ recitals with an all-Bach program.

Off the campus there will be many concerts of interest. Tuesday night: the regular subscription program of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, with Claudio Arrau as soloist. The program, it seems, is still a secret.

The first in this year's series sponsored by the Casavant Society will feature Claire Coci, gifted young organist. The program will be given Wednesday night at Eaton Auditorium. Then, Friday is "Pops" night in Massey Hall.

Last year, a very successful series of chamber music concerts was given on Wednesday afternoons at five o'clock. This year they are to be resumed, and a more ambitious schedule has been prepared. The first concert is to take place this coming Wednesday, and it will feature the Parlow String Quartet assisted by Cornelius Ysselstyn, 'cellist. The major work is to be Schubert's great C major Quintet.

Para los Hombres que se Afeitan Diariamente

PREPARACIÓN ESPECIAL QUE SUAVIZA LA PIEL Y ECONOMIZA TIEMPO

PARA los hombres que necesariamente tienen que afeitarse todos los días, la Crema Glider resulta inestimable: es suave... no irrita... no es grasienta ni aceitosa.

Para usar la Crema Glider, primero debe lavarse bien la cara con agua caliente y jabón. En seguida, espárrase rápidamente la Crema Glider usando la punta de los dedos—jamás con Brocha.

Hace tersa la piel

Al instante, la Crema Glider suaviza la piel—da instantánea tersura a las escamosidades superficiales de la piel. Permite que el filo de la hoja corte la barba a ras de la piel, sin irritarla. Ayuda a eliminar esa molestia que sienten los hombres de piel muy fina al afeitarse diariamente, les deja el cutis más suave y más limpio.

GENEROSA MUESTRA GRATIS

Otenga un tubo de Crema Glider y pruebelo hoy mismo. Escriba por generosa muestra gratis a J. B. Williams Company (Canada) Limited Dept. 77-18 LaSalle, Montreal.

L.P.C.I. Grads!

Organization Meeting of the Alumni Association
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 28
8:00 P.M.
at
Lawrence Park Collegiate

ROYAL ALEXANDRA
(1111 ST. WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE.)
NOW PLAYING

EVGS. at 8:20 — MATS. Wed., Sat. at 2:20
The Messrs. SHUBERT Present
A Repertoire of FAMOUS OPERETTAS with a superb cast of Singers, Comedians and Singing Chorus of 40.

1st WEEK, Mon. thru Fri. Mat. Wed.

"ROSE MARIE"
IMMORTAL MUSICAL BY HUBBARD PRINCE

Saturday Matinee and Night

"COUNTESS MARITZA"
SPARKLING MUSICAL BY EMERICH KALMAN

2ND WEEK BEG. NOV. 28
Mon. Tues. Wed. Evgs. and Wed. Mat.

"COUNTESS MARITZA"
Thurs. Fri. Sat. Evgs. and Sat. Mat.
"ROSE MARIE"

PRICES (Tax Included)
EVGS.: 90c. $1.20. $1.40. $2.40 and $3.
MATS.: Wed. and Sat.: 50c. $1.20. $1.40. and $2.40.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Soon the winter snow will be here and the ski crowd will head for the hills... that's when you'll need a nice heavy sweater. The one you see here is hand knitted and is just the thing for skiing, as well as skating, snow-shoeing, 'n so on. You'll find this sweater, and many more attractive Snow Togs at the Snow Shop on Fashion Floor, the Third.

SIMPSON'S

GOING-- GOING-- ALMOST GONE

SCHOOL NITE TICKETS

On sale to all Faculties commencing

Monday, November 26th

at the

ENGINEERING SOCIETY OFFICE

12 noon — 2 p.m. daily

Varsity
Saturday Night Dance
ROYAL YORK HOTEL BANQUET HALL
Saturday, November 24.
ELLIS McLINTOCK—HIS TRUMPET and ORCHESTRA

Tickets on Sale Today 12-2 p.m.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE ROTUNDA
(at East Door, opposite Hart House)

Also on sale at the door Saturday night
$1.00 per Person

Hart House Bulletin Board
Friday Afternoon Recital

There will be a recital of 17th century music in the music room at 5 p.m. today, played by Greta Kraus, harpsichordist, Elie Spivak, violinist, and Cornelius Ysselstyn, 'cellist.

Visitors' Sunday

Next Sunday, 25th November, will be a Visitors' Day at Hart House, and members may introduce friends, including ladies, to the House that day between 2 and 4 in the afternoon. The whole building will be open for inspection. An exhibition of photographs by Lt. F. R. Kemp will be on view in the art gallery. Members will be asked to show their membership cards at the door.

Sing Song

There will be a sing song at 1:30 p.m. today in the East Common Room.

* The Russian Influence on Modern American Literature.
Raco

Intercollegiate Swimming Team

On Friday, November 23, at 5 o'clock there will be an organization meeting of the University of Toronto Swimming Club in the Athletic Directorate Room, Hart House.

All swimmers participating in Interfaculty Swimming Meets, who would be interested in competing on a Varsity team are requested to be present.

All men interested in the organization of a Varsity Water Polo Team are also urged to attend the meeting.

A good attendance is necessary to ensure the success of the meeting. Be there on time!

FRIDAY, NOV. 23. AT 5:00 P.M.

Women's Basketball Schedule

Tues., Nov. 27	Physio. vs. Meds. A	6:30-7:30
	St. II vs. U.C. II	7:30-8:30
	St. Mikes vs. P.H.E. Sr.	8:30-9:30
Wed., Nov. 28	Vic. Jr. vs. Vic. D	5:30-6:30
	Dent. N vs. Vic. Fr.	6:30-7:30
	P.H.E. Fr. vs. St. Fr.	7:30-8:30
	Vic. II vs. P.H.E. II A	8:30-9:30
Thurs., Nov. 29	St. Fr. vs. Dent. N	5:30-6:30
	St. Sr. vs. St. Mikes	6:30-7:30
	U.C. II vs. Physio.	7:30-8:30
	Nurses vs. P.H.E. II B	8:30-9:30
Fri., Nov. 30	St. II vs. O.T. II	5:30-6:30
	Vic. Fr. vs. O.T. Fr.	6:30-7:30
	U.C. Fr. vs. O.T. Fr.	7:30-8:30

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

Space vs. News . . .

Once again those hard-hearted post-war advertisers have fenced us in. From now on all we can do is live in hopes of an open page in the very distant future . . . With the football picture cleared away, the soccerites step into the somewhat b. clouded spotlight as the playoff stage is reached . . . After the group playoff Saturday morning between Med. I and S.P.S. I, six teams will be left in the running for the Arts Faculty Cup. Monday will stage two games: Knox vs. S.P.S. III and the above group winner vs. Forestry. Vic. and Trinity tackle the winners on Wednesday while the final game is scheduled for a week today . . . After Vic. boxla stars had defeated Med. II, 9-6 in the opening game, Forestry and Dents put on a bit of a show in the second feature. Fists, elbows, knees and noses brought about a donnybrook in the final minutes of the game. The game? Oh yes, Forestry won 9-3 . . . One of our reporters came back from a basketball practice, bubbling with enthusiasm . . . "Roy Dilworth let me quote him," he blurted, "he will let me put quotation marks around it." . . . The irony of it all. When there is space, the coach won't open his mouth so much as to sneeze. When there isn't room for anything, some kind-hearted fellow says a lot that is worth printing . . . Anyhoo, Dilworth said: "It's a dream team and it's up to me to develop it. With so many stars on the roster, it could fall apart only too easily." . . . How true, true, true . . . The squad has been reduced to 28 and no further cutting will be done until after two exhibition games next week against unnamed opponents. The club will be picked on merit of exhibition play . . . The first scheduled game comes off on the evening of December 8 when the Blues tangle with a Buffalo quintet . . . After watching a number of practices, all we can say is: Our lines have tender hopes.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

For Lack of Space

There should be room to mention the latest basketball games, in which P.H.E. II B walked all over Vic. B with the admirable help of their stars, Betty Jackes and Jesse Nicols, by a score of 34-3, but there isn't. Then there was the game that was outstanding for the good passing of P.H.E. Srs. including Helen Shepherd, who out-shot the Saints to the tune of 32-6, despite the hard work of Mary McPherson, but we won't mention that, nor the next game that the Physio team deserved to win, but didn't, because P.H.E. II A achieved a score of 20 to Physio's 8.

It would have made a good story how the U.C. freshies swamped the Dental Nurses 52-4, due mainly to the guard work of Lillian Laakso . . . those freshies deserve to be told how good they are . . . but there is no space. The last exhibition of basketball was a trifle slower than the rest, but it rates attention it will never receive just to say Aileen Scott of the U.C. senior team was outstanding but her team lost to the Nurses, 17-4.

And then there is the story that must be scrapped about the P.H.E. II softball team winning the championship of '45 when they defeated St. Hilda's. It would have made good copy if only for the fact that the regular umpire didn't turn up, due to extenuating circumstances, so one of the spectators idly standing at the edge of the crowd was shanghaied to do the job. The captain of the Saints, Jean Topping, had injected much life into her team over the past week, and helped to put up quite a fight . . . but the score ended 13-3 for the P.H.E.'s . . . but we won't talk about that.

All we will say tonight is . . . patronize our advertisers.

U.C. Basketball

The opening basketball practice will be held on Friday from four to five in the gym. All those who want to play this year, please attend.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service
321 BIC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

SERVICE FOR LAZY STUDENTS ONLY

Typing and Duplicating
Notes, Music, Charts, etc.

Call MRS. SMART
ELgin 5531

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE	1.00	St.M.	Trin.	Robson
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Vic V	P.H.E. II	McDonald
	4.00	Trin. C	Med	Servicemen
				Eilbeck
Saturday	1.00	Sr. Med.	Sr. U.C.	Burt-Gerrans

INTRAMURAL SOCCER PLAYDOWNS

Sat, Nov. 24	12:15	Group Playoff	Med. I	SPS. I	Hassanali
Mon., Nov. 26	3:15	Playoffs (1)	Knox	SPS. II	Life
		(2)	Forestry	SPS. I or	Eaton
				Med. I
Wed., Nov. 28	3:15		Vic I	Winner (1)	Fyfe
	3:15		Trin. I	Winner (2)	Eaton
Fri., Nov. 30	2:30	Final

Ski-ers Non-Ski-ers Would-Be-Ski-ers

You are all members of the University Ski Club.

This allows you to join the Toronto Ski Club at reduced rates. Renewal $2.00

New Membership, or if membership has lapsed. Entrance fee $5.00, plus year fee $2.00 . . . $7.00

If a member before joining the Forces . . . $2.00

Come and hear about it and join on Friday, Nov. 23rd.

Room 111 Anatomy Building 5 p.m.

Interfaculty Hockey Practices

Mon., Nov. 26	4:15-4:45	Trin.
	7:30-8:30	S.P.S.
	8:30-9:00	Med.
	9:00-9:30	St. M.
	9:30-10:00	Knox
Wed., Nov. 28	4:00-4:30	Vic.
	4:30-5:00	U.C.
Thurs., Nov. 29	4:15-4:45	Med.
	4:45-5:15	For.
	6:30-7:00	S.P.S.
	7:00-7:30	Dent.
Fri., Nov. 30	9:00-9:30	U.C.
	9:30-10:00	Vic.

No dressing room space will be allotted—players change skates in the stands.

Planning your future...

YOU ARE building a foundation for your career in the business or professional world by obtaining a good education. It is wise for you to make sure early in life that you build a good foundation for your financial future by obtaining the right kind of life insurance policy.

MUTUAL LIFE representatives do not merely sell "policies", but are trained to arrange for you the best contract to suit your particular circumstances and plans.

WE SHALL be glad to direct you to the nearest Mutual Life representative.

THE MUTUAL LIFE
OF CANADA

HEAD OFFICE • WATERLOO, ONTARIO

Low Cost
Life Insurance
Since 1869

ABERDEEN'S FLORAL STORES

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., MI. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation

OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty—Have your Date Wear One to the Whitney Hall Formal

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

Varsity-McGill Debate

MONDAY, NOV. 26, 7:30 P.M., CONVOCATION HALL

Resolved: That this house approve unrestricted European immigration to Canada for the next ten years.

Affirmative:

VARSITY—Flora Moffat
Allan Brown

Negative:

McGILL—Winston Mahavir
Jack Macdonald

Will those desiring to speak from the Floor leave a note in the S.A.C. office for the Speaker, giving name, faculty and side they support.

"small business" ISN'T SO SMALL!

Ordinarily one Canadian in every six gainfully employed, earns his livelihood in a "small business." It may be a farm, a store or a lumber-yard; an architect's office or a service station. Taken together, these individual enterprises provide a very substantial part of Canada's total jobs—must continue to do so after the war.

During the years ahead many people who dropped small business for war reasons will want to return to their accustomed or new ways of making a living. Thus old businesses will be revived. Many new ones will be started by returned men and people now in war industries. The commercial banks will do their part to afford assurance that no sound credit requirement need be left unserved in the field of small business.

As such businesses grow, they create additional job openings; that has been the pattern of Canadian enterprises. Most large companies began in a small way. And practically all could name some bank which played a part in their growth by providing the loans they needed to finance their day-to-day operations.

Your bank stands ready to serve businesses, small or large, well established or just starting out. Banks do not initiate such businesses—but they do furnish necessary working capital and many other forms of banking service.

This Advertisement is Sponsored by your Bank

FOR PIPE SMOKERS OF DISCRIMINATING TASTE

GOLDSTEIN'S PERIQUE MIXTURE

The Same Old Formula Since 1883

A high-grade blend of Turkish, Perique, Virginia and Latakia Tobacco, approximating those excellent imported brands made in Scotland and England.

Every user of it is an ardent advocate of its merits.

Its popularity is growing fast. You cannot pay less and get as good; you cannot buy better if you pay more.

For the present it is packed in a heavy waxed bag, in a cardboard container. It keeps in excellent condition.

It is put up in half pounds and sells at $1.50, plus tax; and also in a pocket package containing 1/10 lb. at 30 cents, plus tax.

WM. GOLDSTEIN & CO.

152 YONGE STREET
Toronto

52 SPARKS STREET
Ottawa

City Churches

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist
St. George St. at Lowther Ave.
Branch of The Mother Church
The First Church of Christ,
Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

11 a.m.

Sunday, November 25th
"BODY AND SOUL"

Wed. Evening Meeting
at 8.00 o'clock

including Testimonies of Healing
through Christian Science.

Free Public Reading Room where
the Bible and Authorized Christian
Science Literature may be read,
borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Bloor Street East

Rector:

REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

11 a.m.—MORNING PRAYER

Preacher:

CANON CODY, C.M.G., D.D.

3 p.m.—BIBLE CLASSES.

7 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER.

Preacher:

VERY REV. C. SWANSON, D.D.

Organist:

Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University Students Welcome at
All Services

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY

Trinity Square

(OR Yonge, 2 below Dundas)

Invites students to join with us
in services that combine beauty
of worship with progressive
Christian action

Regular Sunday services at
8, 9.30, and 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m.

St. Andrew's

King and Simcoe Sts.

Minister

Very Rev. Stuart C. Parker,
D.D.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

DR. PARKER

Students specially invited.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

Huron Street—Just South of Bloor

7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist

10.15—Matins.

11 a.m.—Junior Congregation.

11 a.m.—CHORAL EUCHARIST

(Broadcast over C.B.L.)

Preacher:

Rev. J. M. N. JACKSON, M.A.

7 p.m.—CHORAL EVENSONG.

Preacher:

The VERY REV. H. H. CLARK,
D.D.

Dean of Ottawa.

CORDIAL WELCOME TO ALL UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

Corner Bloor and Huron Streets

Rev. Preston MacLeod

M.A., B.D.

will preach at both Services

SERMONS:

"The Strategy and Tactics of the Gospel"

11 a.m.—I. STRATEGY.

7 p.m.—II. TACTICS.

8.15 p.m.—Friendship Hour.

FREDERICK C. SILVESTER

Organist and Choirmaster

STUDENTS SPECIALLY
WELCOME

Church of the Redeemer

(Bloor and Avenue Road)

8 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION

11 a.m.—MORNING PRAYER

Preacher

Canon R. A. ARMSTRONG, D.D.

"THE NAIL AND THE GOAD"

7 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER

Preacher

CANON ARMSTRONG

"FAITH'S VICTORY"

Organist: Otto James, A.R.C.O.

Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter

DD., LL.D.

Fire-side hour at close of
Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

WALMER ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

(1 block west of Spadina Rd.—block north of Bloor)

Rev. Adiel J. Moncrief, D.D.
MINISTER

SUNDAY

11 a.m.—DR. ELBERT PAUL of Vancouver

7 p.m.—MR. E. D. RENAUD, B.A., PAED
Masonic Service

8.15 p.m.—The Young Peoples' Society

YOU WILL ENJOY THE YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS
Immediately following the Morning Service (12.10-1 p.m.)

MR. CHARLES RICKETTS, Guest Teacher

ERIC FEE, President

WM. BUCK, Pianist

A Friendly Church Where A Warm Welcome Awaits You

Canadian Campus Sweeteries Cater To Hungry Students

Every college has one . . . What? A campus eatery! The place where the gang gathers at the slightest provocation, or no provocation at all. The round-the-clock social centre for Senior and Frosh, whether you hail from the University of New Brunswick or U.B.C. They're as essential to the Canadian Campus as a college yell, and as popular as Santa Claus.

The restaurant round the corner usually finds itself elected to play host to hordes of hungry students who in return save a large slice of well-buttered affection for Mac's or Pete's or Leo's or Mel's. Students at Mount Allison say that "practically any time you feel there ought to be something going on, you can usually track it down to Mel's—Mel, himself, is a tradition. He is always keeping an eye on things but he's everybody's pal . . . a great guy. He lends an ear to any problem from ice cream for a prom, to buses for the football game in Fredericton."

The college meeting place at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish is reported to be a combination soda-fountain, confectionery store and magazine rack. "It is small but Leo's in late afternoon greets more people than any other spot in town. Leo's is the meeting place of students living on and off the campus and has by its 'beyondful' milkshakes tempted many a would-be scientist to cut a lab short."

The campus rendezvous is uniformly small and overcrowded, but the eds and co-eds seem to like it that way and college spirit flourishes despite the fact that six crowd into booths meant for four. "Boomers", favourite restaurant of University of Western Ontario, is a case in point.

"Boomers, one of the oldest restaurants in the city, is divided into two sections: a long counter at the front usually lined up three deep with drooling students, and a dim smoky back room lined with tables and more students . . . Tables meant for two support six cokes, and six-man tables manage to crowd in twelve students. It has been a tradition to 'Meet me at Boomers' for as long as anyone at Western can remember."

The Queen's crowd experiences the same housing-shortage, where twenty-five are usually crowded into the Campus Coffee Shop intended to seat fourteen. A similar complaint comes from Acadia University where the overflow from Pete's goes to the home of a Wolfville lady who feeds the hungry Acadia dians hamburgers, hot dogs, toast and coffee.

Favourite orders include milk shakes at Boomers, University of Western Ontario, chocolate cake à la mode at Queen's University, and coffee and tea-cakes at Bell's, University of Saskatchewan. Wherever they are, students are hungry.

Feeding the students is, nevertheless, a secondary function for restaurants as versatile as the campus variety. The Grill Room at the University of McGill boasts a ruling prohibiting bridge playing between 12 and 2:30 "so that the hordes which pour in for lunch do not have to sit on top of the piano or on the benches in the hallway."

The five campus canteens on the Manitoba campus are centres for the gang. They gather there "to discuss the students' politics and the shape of the blonde in the biology class." The same might be said of "The Varsity Tuck Shop" at the University of Alberta. "Tuck is the scene of countless after-four dates, between-lecture snacks, and lunch time discussions . . . during the evenings students take a break from their studies to talk to their friends or listen to the juke box there."

The campus eatery is an institution, and many are its functions, from promoting romance, as in the case of La Petite Chaumière, which the students of the University of Montreal claim "is the very place to hold the hand of your girl-friend (that will certainly cost you a chocolate sundae, but she is so sweet)"; to acting as an emergency shelter in the case of Bell's, at the University of Saskatchewan. "Everyone patronizes warm place to wait for that street car Bell's because you get good food, Kleenex, gum if there is any, and a in sub-zero weather."

Friday Afternoon Recital

Greta Kraus, harpsichordist, Elie Spivak, violinist, and Cornelius Ysselstyn, cellist, will play the following program at the Friday Recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. today:

Trio in B minor Locleil (1653-1728)
Sonata (for 'cello and harpsichord) Cervetto (1682-1783)
Sonata (for violin and harpsichord) Festing (? -1752)
Suite in F (for harpsichord) Couperin (1668-1733)
Trio G. P. Telemann (1681-1767)

Ruch Psychology and Life.

Brown Modern Short Stories.

Now available at

The University of Toronto Press

BOOK DEPARTMENT

KNOX CHURCH

Spadina and Harbord

11 a.m.

"Practical Christianity"

By REV. J. STANLEY GLEN,

Ph.D., Th.D.

Professor of New Testament,
Knox College

7 p.m.—Flt. Lieut.

REV. R. U. MacLEAN, B.A.

R.C.A.F. Chaplain

8.15 p.m.—FELLOWSHIP HOUR

Students Specially Invited

THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)

MEETING FOR WORSHIP
on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

AT THE

Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"As death comes on our own wills, and a new life is formed in us, the heart is purified and prepared to understand clearly."—JOHN WOOLMAN

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that . . .

The Hospitality Bureau, 65 Adelaide St. W., has been quite successful in finding living accommodation for ex-service men and women. They are open between 8 and 10 in the evening and their telephone number is WA. 8493.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS

67 St. George St. M1. 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

LOST

Trench-coat, in Hart House, Friday, Nov. 16th. Locker card No. 1249 in pocket. Sentimental reasons. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

FOR SALE

Encyclopaedia Britannica, latest printing, perfect condition. G. L.
Williams, 556 Sherbourne St.

LOST

Sterling silver Waterman's fountain pen. A. Taylor, JU. 8755.

FOR SALE

White bunny evening coat, size 16.
Modern style, three-quarter length.
Worn 3 times. $40.00. JU. 1273.

LOST

Single strand of pearls, either on
Trinity field of back campus, Thurs.
Leave at S.A.C. Office. Reward.

LOST

Vicinity Applied Physics lab., Wed.,
Parker pen and pencil in brown case.
Leave at Engineering Society Office.

A Saucy Splash of Colour to tie over your curls and under your chin . . . bunny soft and cosily warm . . .

an "Angora of Abercorn" handwoven wool scarf.

Plain and contrasting effects in a score of radiant shades. Each . . . 2.50

EATON'S Main Store - Main Floor

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

BOULDING'S ECONOMIC ANALYSIS

NOW IN STOCK

COME EARLY — SUPPLY LIMITED

COLE'S BOOK MARKET & Book Exchange

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

726 YONGE (Block South of Bloor)

RA. 1148

smoke the mild
cigarette

Buckingham

Listen to

"Canada in the Modern World"
by Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph.D.
Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB -- Every Sunday—2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

Dean of Men's Residence Professor Cochrane Dies

FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY

For more than 25 years Dean of the University College Men's Residence and one of the world's leading classical scholars, Prof. Charles N. Cochrane, 55, died Friday afternoon at the Dean's house, University College. He had been critically ill since last spring.

A member of the staff of University College for two years, Prof. Cochrane was professor of Ancient History and author of two books which brought him world-wide fame. His "Christianity and Classical Culture" is recognized as the definitive work in its field, and was welcomed by both Roman Catholic and Protestant theologians. His "Thucydides and the Science of History", published in 1929, was also widely known.

Dean Cochrane's special interest was the philosophy of History, his chosen field was the Augustan age at the twilight of the Roman Empire. He had in preparation a work on St. Augustine as an Historian, based on a course of lectures delivered last spring at Yale University shortly before the onset of his illness.

"He was a distinguished scholar and a very loyal colleague of the college", Principal W. R. Taylor said yesterday. "He had an international reputation, and the loss at his passing is severe, not only to scholarship but to the staff of U.C."

Registrar W. J. McAndrew said that "all the educational institutions on the continent" would be the poorer for Dean Cochrane's death.

"A very, very serious loss to University College," said former Principal Malcolm W. Wallace. "He was one of the outstanding scholars of the University, and had gained world-wide fame for his books."

Prof. Cochrane was born in Omeme, Ont., the son of the late Dr. Charles E. Cochrane, a physician. He attended Lindsay High School, and graduated from University College in 1911 with the McCaul medal in classics. Awarded a scholarship, he spent two years at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and on his return to Canada joined the staff of University College as a lecturer in classics.

During the First World War, Prof. Cochrane served as an officer with the C.O.T.C., and in 1918 went overseas with the 1st Tank Battalion. He was associated with St. Stephens Anglican Church, and was a member of the Royal Society of Canada and the Historical Association.

Surviving are his widow, Gladys Cochrane; a daughter, Mary Anne, now a teaching fellow in the U.C.-English Department; and a son, Hugh David, final year student in Mathematics and Physics.

U.C. STUDENTS

To enable University College students to attend funeral services for the late Dean C. N. Cochrane, all U.C. lectures will be cancelled from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. today. The funeral will be at 11.00 a.m. at St. Stephens' Church, corner College and Bellevue.

Vets' Allowances Said Sufficient

Ottawa: Student veterans' allowances of $60 for single men and $80 for married men without children were termed "abundantly sufficient" by Veterans Minister Ian Mackenzie last week.

Mr. Mackenzie's flat denial of complaints that allowances are inadequate for men going to university in the bigger cities may or may not be cabinet opinion, according to a news dispatch published in The Globe and Mail. The entire question of veterans attending university is scheduled to come before the Veterans Committee of the House of Commons this week.

Anticipated now is a statement by Deputy Minister Walter S. Woods on the opinions of the presidents of the bigger Universities, as handed down during a recent meeting of the depart-

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The following appointments to positions in the University Symphony orchestra have been announced: Kate Rumley, Honour Music—Concertmaster.

George Crun—Staff Pianist.

George Armbrust Staff Organist and Head Librarian

Jean McMillan and Elaine Fricker—Librarians.

C.O.T.C.

All members of COTC who are not taking training now are required to return all articles of clothing and equipment issued to them, to 119 St. George St., immediately.

Q. M. Store hours:
Saturdays. 0900 hrs to 1245 hrs.
Mon. to Fri. 0900 hrs to 1645 hrs.
H.C.H. Miller,
Major
for Officer Commanding
U. of T. Cont. C.O.T.C.

Changing Of Wonder To Wisdom Described By St. Mike's Philosopher

"Philosophy begins with the wonder of mystery, and ends with the mystery of wonders," said Dr. Anton C. Pegis, Professor of the History of Philosophy at the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in his address to the Thomistic Society yesterday.

Philosophical wonder is such a common experience that it occurs to no one that philosophy begins so obviously. Human experience can be compared to a reader who begins to read in the middle of the book. He is given enough understanding to make him wonder, continued Dr. Pegis, author of The Basic Writings of St. Thomas Aquinas.

The philosopher intends to show that in the world there is a multitude of changing objects which, though continually changing, are related.

The changes which we see pose the problem of coming into existence. Then there is the problem of plurality, and one seeing multitude sees unity also, Dr. Pegis continued. The experience of multiplicity does not convince humans of chaos as the order, but is the proof of an orderly process which makes unity as real as the things.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1945

No. 42

All Students To Pay Costs Of Vandalism

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 24—(CUP)—Queen's University which has been faced with charges of vandalism following recent rugby week-ends at both McGill and the University of Toronto, has arranged for payment of compensation amounting to $500.

At a meeting of the Alma Mater Society held last week at Queen's the claims were laid before the court. McGill presented a bill amounting to almost $500. The University of Toronto did not submit any bill. It was decided by the AMS court that the entire university was morally responsible for the recent damages and that it would be impossible to apprehend only known guilty individuals, for many would thus escape charges. The court then decided that each faculty at the university would contribute, on proportional basis, toward the total costs. The manner in which the faculties will raise the money is left to their own discretion.

In the Queens Journal editorial, the action of the court was "courageous and firm." The decision of an over-all levy for the entire university was considered the most democratic method of collecting the funds.

Thinkers, Not Rah Rahs Sent Here By McGill

By Wally Belfry

"See that you bring home the bacon," were the farewell words of a McGill debating executive to his team as they departed for Toronto. But they just don't feel like a football team piling out of a beribboned bus to "do or die for Dear Old Donut, glory, and not much else." McGill sent thinkers, not rah-rahers.

Hindu Winston Mahabir and ex-air force Jack McDonald of McGill drop their normal geniality and turn ponderously serious when mention is made of today's Toronto-Montreal debate at Convocation Hall.

"We have a definite social responsibility to fulfill," frowns Jack. "We're trying to draw the right conclusion—win, lose, or draw."

On their own home grounds they're accustomed to speaking before a small body of appointed judges; here they will be judged by the entire house in true parliamentary manner. Thus they are officially "debating under protest" but actually they state a vague, indefinite preference for the Toronto system.

"The question is whether or not the house can give an unbiased decision," said Winston, causing Jack to add "We're afraid some will still decide according to their original feelings rather than reasons the debate has suggested to them."

S.A.C. Debates Commissioner Graham Cotter said he felt they had uncovered "a more mature way of dealing with this problem," in allowing house members to rise and express their individual views. "Just recently," he added, "I spoke from the audience but the speakers convinced me my arguments were wrong so I voted against myself."

"After to-morrow's debate the house should be able to see the conclusion just like that," said Jack with a slap on the table.

The subject "Resolved that the House approves unrestricted European immigration to Canada for the next ten years," fortunately restricts itself to Europe, otherwise Winston would find himself an immigrant arguing against immigration.

Speaking in Sabu tones and mannerisms, Winston said that he was a resident of Trinidad but actually a Hindu. He attends McGill on Trinidad government scholarship which has taken him through four years of Honor Sociology and now into his second year of Medicine.

"Canadian people are not conscious of race," he said. "People say to me 'You are a Hindu' but they just happen to be right. Hindu is actually my religion only whereas Indian is my race."

Jack's home is in Ste. Hyacinthe, Quebec. He regrets that he joined the air force as a radar expert while the largest naval radar base was in his home town. His debating style is said to be direct, aimed at the man-in-the-street.

After their arrival in Toronto Sunday evening, their week-end started immediately with a party in their honor at the home of Gyneth Stencil, Publicity Director of the University of Toronto Debating Union. Tomorrow morning they plan to take a bus-man's holiday and attend a few classes. After luncheon given by the executives of the U.T.D.U. they intend to spend the afternoon in preparation of their debate topics.

Schiller To Star In German Cinema

Going to the movies—German style—will be the main attraction at the second meeting of the U. of T. German Club. A modern, full-length sound-film, based on the life of Friedrich Schiller, one of Germany's greatest dramatists, is to be shown. A discussion about this film, in English, will follow the showing.

"We promise an entertaining and interesting evening, even for those who cannot follow the dialogue," said Otto Butz, president of the club.

According to executive members, the German Club is this year planning to establish itself on a campus-wide basis. The meeting, next Tuesday night at 8 p.m. in the Women's Union, is open to all faculties.

Pumping System On Constant Guard Against Hart House Flood Menace

Hart House is in constant menace of flood.

In subterranean depths of stately, tranquil Hart House waits, ever alert, an elaborate pumping system on guard against this danger.

Hart House, when erected, was located on the site of a pond.

Although the pond had been drained, the earth 'neath the House foundations is a sponge which, if permitted, could drain into the lower floors.

Hence the pumping system, on vigil against the threat of the earth sponge, which throbs automatically into action when water has seeped to a certain level

Police Action Called Illegal By Students

Three university students submitted a written complaint against the Toronto Police Department to Mayor Robert Saunders Saturday morning following dispersal of a group of approximately 30 undergraduates who Friday night picketed Icelandia, north Toronto ice skating rink. Mayor Saunders said the charges—including an allegation that undue force was used in breaking up the demonstration—will be investigated.

Friday was the second student picket episode at Icelandia in protest against an alleged instance of racial discrimination involving the management's refusal of admission to a 15-year-old Negro youth.

Police reserves under Inspector William Nursey of No. 12 Station were summoned when a crowd estimated at more than 100 gathered to watch the demonstration. The students, who claim that the picketing was carried out "in an orderly and quiet manner," said any congestion in traffic was caused by the crowd and not by the students.

Several students were taken into custody by the police and released shortly after. No charges have been reported laid against any of the pickets.

Picketing was continued, without incident, Saturday afternoon and evening. The students carried placards bearing such slogans as: "Is Hitler Hiding Here in Canada?", "Is This Canada or the Southern States?", "Racial Discrimination Must Go." Other signs declared that they were a non-political, humanitarian group. The pickets were reported not to have obstructed entrance to the skating rink.

HART HOUSE CONCERT

A program of Christmas music will be given by the St. Mary Magdalene Singers, under the direction of Dr. Healey Willan, at the Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House on Sunday next, Dec. 2. Representatives of the various colleges and faculties are asked to call at the Warden's office today for their allotments of tickets for this concert. The program will be announced later in the week.

Medical Service Threatens Action

"Some form of compulsion will have to be used if students don't take the responsibility of reporting for appointments for medical examinations," said Dr. C. G. Gossage, director of the University Health Service. He explained that many students have failed to make appointments for their annual examination thus increasing the problems caused by this year's large enrolment.

Students of all years who have not yet had their examinations should report to the Health Service offices immediately.

Ask Government To Delay Action

Saskatoon, Sask., Nov. 22 (CUP)—At a mass meeting Friday the student body and the Students' Representative Council of the University of Saskatchewan approved a resolution protesting the impending deportation of Japanese-Canadians. Copies of the resolution were wired to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Labor, the Leader of the Opposition, and the National Leader of the C.C.F.

Following is the text of the resolution:

"Whereas Canada has just successfully completed her part in a world war against Fascism, and whereas present policy of the Canadian government as regards Japanese-Canadian citizens tends strongly towards racial prejudice and the suppression of minorities, which are two basic tenets of the philosophy of Fascism, therefore the Students' Representative Council of the University of Saskatchewan resolves that urgent representation be made to the Canadian

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:
Bach—Partita No. 2, in C Minor.
Brahms—Sonata in G Major (violin and piano).
Mozart—Quartet in F Major (oboe and strings).
Haydn—Quartet in F (op. 3, No. 5).

government to the effect that no further action be taken on Bill 15, Clause (9) Section (3) respecting expulsion of Japanese-Canadians from Canada, until ample time has been allowed for complete review of the case, and fuller expression of Canadian public opinion."

Similar action was considered at a special meeting of the Varsity Students' Administrative Council early this month. The S.A.C. decided to defer action until they received reports from the Students' Committee on Japanese-Canadians showing that representative student government organizations in the campus support the protest.

Editorial

Santa And Satan

The alarming thing about Gen. Chisholm's recent attack on Santa Claus is not the suggestion that Santa may be on the way out. Santa, like the Christian Church, thrives on attack. It takes continuous pummeling to keep him alive. Blasphemy, as G. K. Chesterton long ago pointed out, is not a weapon. It is merely an artistic effect, depending on belief, and it will only fade with belief. As long as people are shocked by the Chisholms of this world, Santa and all he stands for is safe.

What is really alarming about Gen. Chisholm is that he has gotten to the root of the matter; only he is waving the roots around as though they were the branches. Gen. Chisholm is perfectly right in assuming that on belief in Santa Claus our civilization hinges; only he makes it hinge the wrong way. Gen. Chisholm says in effect that to survive we must disbelieve.

The Truth Can Kill

What the general says would be merely amusing were he not so dangerously almost on the right track. The peculiar danger of the most recent progressive thinking is that it is so nearly right. After 300 years in the wilderness, thinkers are returning to the essential river; but they are approaching on the side where the whirlpool lies. Thirst was unpleasant, but it did not kill us; the stream has power to drown.

Our forefathers were told that our future depended on our having been born in the right kind of climate; not among the disgusting, heat-dragged Spaniards and Italians. A later generation were flattered to be told that they had been born with hair of a pale color, and noses of appropriate straightness, and hence were numbered among the Anglo-Saxon Empire-builders. Still later, worried young men asked biologists if they had been born with the right kind of glands; for otherwise the race would wax senile and would surely die.

A Heretic Kills A Heresy

It has taken a heretic to remind us that our future depends not on how we were born, but on how we believe: as the mediaeval theologians used to say, on how we die.

For after all these years the Mind has returned to its own. Men are again believing, as a minority whom they scorned as fanatics urged them for decades to believe, that the history of a civilization and even its survival depends upon the mind: upon what is believed: as men used to say, upon its religion. They are right.

But General Chisholm wants us to believe the wrong things. He insists that everything depends on a converted materialist who now upon the mind; so long as the mind believes in nothing but matter: a quaint example of an idea being born feet first.

He propounds the truly astonishing idea that belief in Santa Claus cripples the imagination: as though a man should say that only a perpetual use of dark glasses can save too much seeing from crippling the eye.

The Fear of Santa

He propounds something more astonishing still: the idea that children who believe in the existence of Santa Claus are afraid of him, because he is something like a ghost. Children are positively friendly with ghosts. It is grotesque to meditate on a man who can really believe in Jimmy, age 6, putting out a cookie and a cup of water to placate a maleficent demon coming down the chimney, and trick it into leaving toys. If the demon were as extraordinary as all that, Jimmy would much more likely want to get up and talk to it. It is not as though Gen. Chisholm were scandalized to find a child who feared Santa. He accepts it as normal that children fear Santa; and there is something cold and even terrible in such acceptance. It is diabolical, this assumption that what men cannot see they must fear. It is the Manichean darkness. It is the mentality that begot Moloch: Moloch of Carthage, whose red fires lapped up the babies of fearful believers.

It is diabolical. . . Children must not believe, lest they believe in the Unknown God who destroys: whose name was once Satan. Everything hinges on our belief; but we must only believe what no one doubts. We must not believe in anything beautiful or comforting, lest we fear it, and go mad from fear. We must not know good from evil, for that very knowledge is evil; which amounts to saying that everything is evil—except ignorance.

It is diabolical. The antidote is laughter; it is also silly. —W. H. K.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Co-editors: Fran Webster
George Legris

Correspondence

Plea For Adoption

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Criticism of the general complacency in the face of the terrible food shortage in Europe has been so widespread on the campus that I would like to suggest a concrete plan through which our feeling in this matter might find some positive outlet.

Why can't the U. of T. "adopt" a European university and ease the situation of its students a little by sending them food-parcels as Christmas gifts (much better late than never!)

Since Canadians have been the liberators in Holland, perhaps the University of Amsterdam might be a good choice. I suggest that campus organizations get together on this matter and set up a committee to direct further action. Parcels could be sent by individual Varsity students or small groups of two or three to the students of the "adopted" university.

I have contacted the Netherlands legation, and find that names of Dutch students could be obtained without much difficulty. Price of parcels: $3.23 to $5.85. Trouble involved: negligible (made-up parcels can be sent through the stores).

May I quote in this connection from the latest issue of Time: "In London a letter to the editor, suggesting that Britons give up some of their skimpy rations for the sake of Europe brought out 30,000 volunteers in a month."

W. KOHN.
GRADUATE STUDIES.

Art, Music and Drama

Virtuosity Revealed At Victoria

It is obvious that the Victoria College Music Club is an active and worthwhile group. The Wynmilwood Concert last night revealed clandestine talents. Bill Hossack coming clothed, showed himself the true artist in his interpretation of the familiar Bach Air for the G String. Gwen Mihalko charmed the audience with the German song group whose short phrases were more suited to her voice than those of Ah Mon Fils by Meyerbeer, which required greater control and pathos.

We have been cloyed with Chopin. Last night, Lorne Watson presented a whole group of this master's works with perhaps too much gusto. His technique, one of uncontrolled weight release, was unsuited to the idyllic nature of the E Minor Etude. However, the Chopin Scherzo benefitted from this style of playing; its forcefulness was emphasized.

The general effect of the recital was pleasing. Such concerts are to be commended not only because they provide entertainment for students but also because they provide experience for the young artists.

—DAPHNE BYERS.

Bizarre, But Beautiful

It seems that Mr. Mazzoleni just can't keep Tchaikovsky off his programs. Like so many other English conductors (Beecham, Dorati, Cotes) the TSO's associate has a remarkable penchant for the works of the melancholy Slav; and at Friday's popular concert he infused the banal Slavic March with a plethora of sincere emotion and vigour which was magically reflected in the orchestra and audience. Surely it is high time that Ettore Mazzoleni had an orchestra of his own; this reviewer would like to see him as conductor in Vancouver, where their fine orchestra is subjected to a string of guest conductors each season.

I shouldn't like to be stranded on a desert isle with a marimba; its musical resources are too limited. But these resources were so thoroughly exploited by young Muriel Kilby that a capacity crowd hung spellbound on each note.

This youthful artist is already musically mature, and she brought the most poetic and satisfying interpretations to bear on each of her numbers. Master of her bizarre instrument, her sheer virtuosity is so assured that she can devote herself to achieving the utmost subtleties of expression. Most amazing was her performance in the initial allegro of the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto, which, difficult enough to fiddle, she did to perfection, cadenza and all.

The conductor distinguished himself again in three English Folk Songs by Vaughn Williams, music evidently close to his heart. For the woodwind it was a personal triumph. The sole blight on the proceedings was Robert Russell Bennett's schmaltzy, overloaded arrangement of 'Oklahoma' tunes. Mr. Mazzoleni supervised with unholly relish, but he should go to the real experts, such as Kootsianetz. The encores Pavane of Morton Gould was worse, however; here is music for a dance band rather than a symphonic ensemble.

—DOUG ROSS.

Toothache

"The show of the year," or the twenty-sixth annual performance of Dentistics, wended its slap-stick way across Hart House stage last Friday in the true Dentistry tradition. Well-written skits, beautiful chorus girls and happy drunks chased through the audience by Irish cops were features of the hour-long show. In spite of technical difficulties such as poor lighting, amateurish staging and in places unbelievably hammy delivery of lines, the show managed to delight two capacity audiences with its occasional bright spots. Chuck Kennedy, Dentsman, started as the ultra-effeminate man of tomorrow in the opening skit, and Don Herron, imported for the occasion from Vic, made campus history with his Danny Kaye impression of a man and his appendix. Sid McComb a theatrical version of a popular faculty member, engaged in some highly amusing verbal fistfights with his real-life counterpart seated in the audience.

The orchestra, with its usual spatter of Schoolmen, did a marvelous job

Canterbury Tales or Would You Rather
Be a Mule?

A good Wif ther was of beside BATHE, 2

She was in the shallo end theroff,
And cleanning betwene her toes.
For this she hidde employ a prolon toothbrush.

Came there a gentle tapping at the door.
The good Wif, being a good Wif, did ask

"Is thatte you John"? hopefully. 3
"Nay," quoth the voice behinde the door,

"Tis I, the Fuller brushe manne," He hidde open the door, poking his head

Around the doore saying "Hi toots" 4
She threw aside her toothbrush and turned to the door, there perceiving
Someone who was not her John.

"Egad" she gurgled, pulling the water up to her chin. 5
Little Peter Wabbit 6 was hippy-hoppetying along one glorious June day.

He met Reddy Fox who was jumping for sour grapes. 6 He had just had a big meal of Mexican jumping beans.
"Saludos Amigos," 7 he said.

"Hi" said Peter Wabbit. Reddy Fox told Peter about a very poor meal
he had at the Stork Club with a stork.

"And do you know what happened"? 9
"Who asked you to butt in "queried the
Fox? 10 Have you any reference? 11
The fox became very angry at this, and slapped little Peter Wabbit right across the mouth with a grape skin. 12

Peter Wabbit was rather angry at this.
"I didn't do nothin'" he wimpoled. 13
"You were making nasty remarks,
"snarled the Fox. 14

"Well then, who is,
Come out and be identified." 15
Peter Wabbit became disgusted with the whole situation, and went home. And what do you think we found there? 16

Nawwww! Goldilocks and the three bears.
Baby bear was just saying. "Somebody's been sleeping in my bed." 17

Baby bear ignored this completely. 18
Baby Bear, sat down on a block of ice and said, as he always does, "My tale is told." 19.

— O —

1 Apologies to the dean of the same name Z. C. B. DeMille, 3 hopefully, it says 4 14th century slang for "hail, fair damselle" 5 This has gone far enough, we will now tell you a bed-time story.

6 Rabbit? 6c. Aesop 7c. Disney,
8c. us. 9 Your guess is as good as ours.
10 I'm a Tutti Frutti Footnote. 11
You're asking ME. 12 He got one. 13
He was one of the Barrett Bunnies.
(13 was always our unlucky number).

14 He is not 15 This thing is getting out of hand. 16 The good Wif of Bath?
17 The Fuller Brush man! 18 THE FULLER BRUSH MAN!!! 19 This seems to be the end doesn't it?

LIBED, TIDDYWEE.

of smoothing out awkward pauses but was hampered considerably by some rather bewhiskered Hellzapoppin gaggery which was carried on simultaneously.

The last act, in a broadcasting studio setting, was crammed with the entire musical output of the show, with the exception of the opening song by a whitecollared quartet. A mixed chorus formed the background for two girl soloists from Vic Lois Bouck and Ruthie Sawyer, last year's inimitable "Chick from Vic," and a barber-shop quartet which sang a couple of sentimental Gay Nineties "with moustached gusto."

M.W.R.

The famous "sailor" trademark is recognized as a guarantee of unfailing quality.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT
CIGARETTES

THERE ARE STILL A FEW RUSH SEATS

Left for each performance of

"Our Town"

On sale today:

MORNING—U.C. Rotunda.

AFTERNOON—Hart House Box Office.

Reserved tickets that have not been picked up will be sold today.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

There is still a shortage of Books for all College Courses.

Bring in your used Text Books today — We will pay
HIGHEST CASH PRICES

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

COLE'S BOOK MARKET
& Book Exchange

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

726 YONGE (Block South of Bloor)

RA. 1148

L.P.C.I. Grads!

Organization Meeting of the Alumni Association

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 28
8:00 P.M.

at
Lawrence Park Collegiate

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLO 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

University Symphony Orchestra

WATCH TUESDAY'S Varsity FOR AN-NOUNCEMENT OF TIME AND PLACE OF NEXT REHEARSAL.

There are still a few openings in the String, Bassoon, Oboe, and French Horn sections.

Anyone interested please call MA. 4977 or JU. 7830

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

There will be a rehearsal of the Glee Club at 5 p.m.
today in the music room. A full attendance is requested.

ACHTUNG!

This Ad.
Is Different.
So is the Next Meeting
of the

U. of T.
German Club

Where You Can Enjoy
A Full-length
Modern

MOVIE

In German,
Based on Schiller's Life.
Don't Miss It!

Tuesday, Nov. 27.

AT 8 O'CLOCK P.M.

Women's Union

79 St. George St.

Dancing Refreshments

For Attendance
A Ph.D. in German
Is Not Required

Wrestlers Work Out Daily Under Guidance Of Daley

A dictionary defines wrestling as: "Grappling and trying to throw an adversary especially in a sporting contest under a code of rules." While this definition is simple enough, a frequenter of the Hart House wrestling room, Mr. Art Chetwynd, hastens to point out that books have been written on this subject and that there is room for more of an explanation than the above definition.

Wrestling is, according to our informant, a healthful and an interesting activity. It gives opportunity to both the sports-minded and the body-building enthusiasts to take part in a health-producing activity.

An illusion common among pessimists is that this sport is rough and very painful. Too often also, certain men, particularly those who feel that they are not husky or strong enough to participate, are inclined to eliminate this sport from their list without so much as an experimental try.

Chetwynd hastened to reassure these doubters that wrestling and the various training methods used in its activity can be taken part in quite safely and enjoyably by most individuals.

A further note on this sport goes on: "The Department of Athletics offers classes in wrestling, for beginners and advanced men, five evenings each week, Monday through Friday between five and six o'clock in the wrestling room in the Athletic Wing, Hart House.

"Further details may be obtained by applying at the office of the assistant director of Athletics, Mr. Griffiths, north-east corner, ground floor of the Athletic Wing, or from the staff member for wrestling, Mr. Chetwynd."

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

Dear One-Tooth:

As I am sitting here amidst luxurious surroundings, I am thinking that you are not hearing from me in a long time and that the reason why you are not hearing from me in such a long time is something that makes the story much longer.

It seems that I am developing a severe case of claustrophobia in the past two months and that as soon as the doors of that certain institution are closing behind my back, I decide to retire to a life which says that I must be courteous to coppers at all times.

On Saturday afternoons, it seems that I am always going down to the establishment more commonly known as the Bloor Street Bowl and this is calling for some explanation as I am not the type that usually inhabits places of sporting events that do not offer a change of odds every three minutes but it seems that these places are also being frequented by friends who make books and I find, through experience, that I am always capable of picking up a few potatoes by risking a bit of scratch on the winning team.

But here I am and no sooner do I push my way through the gayly dressed dolls and the guys that are sporting them, than I find myself facing with citizens from the Land of Runyon. I am most amazed and stand there for such a space of time that I am swept by the crowd to the ticket wickets where a huge "SORRY, SOLD OUT" sign strikes me right where I should never be struck.

Well, what amazes me all the more is when I spot the Gonoph under the sign with a fistful of duckets in his huge clammy fist and he is looking around at the guys attempting to promote these duckets at a few bob more than the duckets are worth.

On observing more closely, I find that all of the Gonoph's lower East Side crew are on hand to assist in the hustling of the duckets and that they have all the entrances covered better than the way a Hart House wheatsake covers a butter dish.

Well, by this time the crowd is mostly all in the Stadium and only a few characters who cannot purchase duckets are left standing outside and since by pure coincidence I have a couple dozen tickles in my inside pocket, I decide to take a crack at this rough-and-tumble dodge.

There is one thing that I forget to take into consideration, however, and that is the lengthy arm of the pugs commonly referred to as coppers and as I notice that they do not bother the Gonoph and his crew I decide that the practice of ducket-hustling is not frowned upon in this lily-white metropolis.

Pretty soon I am at the door on Devonshire Place and am thinking that this is one sweet racket as the potatoes roll in fast and I am getting to think of Florida and the ponies in the deep south when I receive a rude awakening in the form of two of those men in the blue suits accompanied by that Black Maria.

A few hours later I am sitting in surroundings only too familiar with us and since I now have a lot of time on my hands, I decide to write to my best and dearest friend, namely you, Dog-Face. I do not figure that it is a good thing for me to join up with the Gonoph whenever again I am breathing the ozone-free and so would you, as a personal favor to your best friend, please find out how he has transferred his surroundings from the scenes of the Harvards and the Yales to cooler locales around the Torontos. Therefore since the Winniepegs are coming and I am too, I would appreciate this assistance very much as I would if you could get me a couple dozen duckets for Saturday's game. Anticipatorily yours,

—DOG-FACE HASENPEFFER.

Intramural Sports Committee Meeting Today — 5 P.M.

SPORTS CALENDAR

SOCCER	3.15	Back East Playoff: Knox vs. S.P.S. II	Life
		Front West Playoff: Forestry vs. S.P.S. I	Eaton
LACROSSE	1.00	P.H.E.	Sr. S.P.S. Cross
	4.00	S.P.S. IV	St. M. Duncan
SWIM LEAGUE	5.00	U.C. I	Vic. Beet
		Trin. C	S.P.S. IV
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Sr. Med.	Sr. Vic. Himel
	4.00	Dent. A	Pre-Med. A Fine
	6.30	U.C. VI	Trin. C Macke

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION COURSE

The University Health Service, with the co-operation of the University of Toronto Athletic Association, is offering to men students and staff a course (lecture, practice, and examination) on Artificial Respiration, on Tuesday, November 27th, and Thursday, November 29th—Debates Room—Hart House—at 5:00 p.m.

All men enrolled in Life Saving Courses must take this Course to qualify for their awards.

All male students and staff in the University are eligible to enrol and take the course. For further details see either Mr. Griffiths or Mr. McCutcheon.

Men who satisfactorily complete the course will qualify for the Respiration Service Badge of the Royal Life Saving Society.

Tuesday, November 27th

LECTURE AND DEMONSTRATION

of the

THEORY AND PRACTICE OF RESUSCITATION

Lecturer—Dr. R. W. I. Urquhart

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

Thursday, November 29th

PRACTICAL EXAMINATION

and

TRUE-FALSE TEST ON THEORY

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

NOTE: During the week starting November 19th, all gymnasium classes will receive basic instruction in Resuscitation Practice, preliminary to the course offered the following week.

Women's Basketball Schedule

Mon., Dec. 3	O.T. Fr. vs. P.H.E. Fr.	5:30-6:30
	Physio. vs. Vic. II	6:30-7:30
	St. II vs. Meds. A	7:30-8:30
	Meds. B vs. U.C. Fr.	8:30-9:30
Tues., Dec. 4	Meds. A vs. P.H.E. II A	5:30-6:30
	P.H.E. Sr. vs. Vic. Sr.	6:30-7:30
	U.C. II vs. O.T. II	7:30-8:30
	U.C. Jr. vs. Vic. Jr.	8:30-9:30
Wed., Dec. 5	Vic. Fr. vs. P.H.E. Fr.	5:30-6:30
	O.T. Fr. vs. Dent. N	6:30-7:30
	P.H.E. Jr. vs. Nurses	7:30-8:30

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Kibitzers

Are a most essential item in most games . . . including bridge, basketball, and softball, as we learned this week-end. When playing a tough and touchy bridge game, a gasp inhaled by the onlooker placed at your elbow can prevent many a catastrophic lead . . . so we learned. Then there are eyebrows which shoot heavenwards in alarm when you attempt to massacre one of Culbertson's laws on drawing out your trump . . . and you are dragged back from the brink of another precipice. One crime was perpetrated in last Friday's column due to our vulnerability and apparent short-sightedness . . . there were no kibitzers to point out the dangerous wording of an apparently innocuous paragraph . . . too late came the warning. To which we reply . . . no sarcasm was intended, and we welcome any constructive criticism, especially if the critic is willing to put her grief in writing and "do" a column some time. Is there a bidder in the house?

Avast . . . Beginners

The University Ski Club held their second meeting last Friday, and they decided to devote special attention to the instruction of beginners . . . so all you co-eds who have skis salted away in the closet can start waxing them up, and dream of gracefully swooshing down snow-covered hills without falling . . . someday. Paid student experts will be on hand Sunday afternoons to boost you out of the Newmarket banks and persuade you to try it again . . . the right way.

The well-known twosomes, Doug and Peg (Pugsley) Mann, are among the guiding lights of the club. They are to assume the heavy onus of picking racing teams destined for intercollegiate competition.

The executive is busy persuading the weather man that snow will descend in great quantities soon . . . Won't it! and hoping that the bogey of transportation restrictions will vanish at the same time to give the green light to ski week-end plans. In the hopes that our readers include the Mighty Male, we throw in the item that the next meeting of the club is to take place in two weeks . . . and the deadline for membership is January 6.

Amazing...what VERITHIN COLORED PENCILS can do for you!

Checking
is more accurate because VERITHIN
holds a fine point for over 4,000 check marks before it needs resharpening.

Drawing
VERITHIN
is a revelation. All 28 colors sharpen to needle points for fine detail.

Records
are permanent when written with VERITHIN.
Won't smear or run under moist hands,
rain or water.

10¢ EACH—Less in Quantities

EAGLE VERITHIN COLORED PENCILS

Wednesday Five o'Clock
One hour of Chamber Music

PARLOW

String Quartet

Cornelius Yesselsyn.
Assisting Artist

Tema con variazioni Glire
Quintet in C major,
Op. 163 Schubert

NOVEMBER 28th

Toronto Conservatory of Music Concert Hall University Student Series Ticket
$2.50; Single Ticket 50¢.

smoke the
mild
cigarette

YOUTH IS CALLED TO

"Remobilize for Christ"

For a Challenge to Meet the Times

— COME —

TONIGHT, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, AT 7:45 P.M.

AN INTERDENOMINATIONAL RALLY

In Walmer Road Baptist Church

THE SALVATION ARMY REV. A. H. LIMOUZE, D.D.
BAND will play and lead in of the Presbyterian Church,
US A. will deliver a challenging address.

This special meeting for youth is held in conjunction with the Annual Meeting of the United Stewardship Council of North America convening in Toronto at this time.

VARSlTY-McGILL DEBATE

TONIGHT at 7:30 P.M.

RESOLVED: THAT THIS HOUSE APPROVE UNRESTRICTED EUROPEAN IMMIGRATION TO CANADA FOR THE NEXT TEN YEARS.

Affirmative: VARSITY—FLORA MOFFAT
ALLAN BROWN

Negative: McGILL—WINSTON MAHABIR
JACK MacDONALD

CONVOCATION HALL

New and Entrenous

Budgies And Claus

By Ross McLean

"Children are getting a lot smarter these days, I have to admit."

The observation came from S. Claus, a child welfare worker of 25 years experience.

"Children will be children now and tomorrow too," he told Martha Schober who visited him at Eaton's. "But today they ask you so many questions and are not satisfied with the usual answers."

"How much do my reindeer weigh? And how far do I have to travel?"

"Sometimes, I worry that I'm losing my grip and that they are giving me the proverbial bird."

"But those that aren't giving it to me want me to give it to them. What is this budgie bird that every second child is asking for now? I've never even heard of it before. They all want it because it can be trained to talk."

He did get hot in his red corduroy slacks, fur-trimmed coat and heavy cap, he told Martha. She could see how he was sweating now, couldn't she? It was a hot outfit but he had had it for several years. He changed his gloves every day and sterilized his beard every time he took a drink. He ate, he said, a lot of marshmallows to get his ruddy complexion.

He never scolded children. All he used was strategy and it worked, he claimed, like a miracle. He had had some curious requests.

"Now let me tell you some of the funniest requests I have had since I became Santa twenty-five years ago. Why only the other day a little feller asked me for a live skunk to play with. And last week there was the 78-year-old lady from the States who said that I was the first real Santa she had ever seen and wanted to have her picture taken on my knee. Oh, I've had some funny ones over the years." But Claus' memory was not, it appeared, too long.

What would he bring the President of the University for Christmas?

"How would it be if I brought him some nice long cigars?"

Santa's occult powers were failing him.

"Or maybe he would like to have some of my special wine? I know what he needs—an extra holiday." Claus smiled so coyly.

And how would he enter the girls' residences?

That, he apologized, was his Santa-secret.

BUY WAR SAVINGS

Skulemen Hammer
For Comin Review

In the basement of the School Building much midnight oil is being burned as a hustling band of Schoolmen pick up hammers in place of slide rules to give their all for School Nite.

Yes, 'that' School Nite set is nearing completion with an idea even more novel, more startling than last year's space ship.

The tall chorus is rehearsing and the master minds of the stage department have been heard muttering about 'ultra violet black light,' floating bodies, and spectacles that light up.

If the numbers of disgruntled turned-away ticket seekers are any indication it appears that the show is already a sell-out.

What's on Today

U.C. S.C.M.

4:00 p.m.—Forum series, "Do You Believe?" Leader: Rev. D. C. Candy. Upstairs in Women's Union.

4:00 p.m.—"Old Testament Speaks" Leader: Marjorie Peck. Downstairs in Women's Union.

McGill Made Host
To Student Meet

Montreal, Nov. 24—(CUP)—McGill University will be the site of this year's conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. These conferences were held annually from

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

The Department of Veterans' Affairs provides Dental and Medical Treatment during the time you are in receipt of your Educational Benefit.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

1926 until the outbreak of war. With the re-organization of this confederal body, a Dominion-wide census of opinion on veterans' affairs will be brought together on various problems related to the post-war world.

CLASSIFIED ADS

LOST

Single strand of pearls, either on Trinity field of back campus, Thurs. Leave at S.A.C. Office. Reward.

LOST

Sterling silver Waterman's fountain pen. A. Taylor, JU. 8755.

FOR SALE

White net evening gown, size 13-15. LO. 0822.

BOARD AND ROOM

For girl, in exchange for light duties. Mrs. Percival, 187 Douglas Drive, MI. 9793.

FOR SALE

Lady's evening wrap, custom made, full length, fitted, black uncrushable velvet, white fur trim, white satin lining. Like new. LA. 9752.

LOST

Lady's Waterman fountain-pen; grey with red streaks; gold trim. Lost around Oct. 24th. Please leave at S.A.C. office. Reward.

LOST — REWARD

Red wallet, containing large sum of money, between Mac's Drug Store, Huron and 5 Willcocks St., Friday about 1:30. Return to S.A.C. Office.

ROOM AND BOARD

In exchange for help in the house. Mrs. Bethune, 13 Christie St., LO. 0805.

LOST

Tan leather pen-case, with name engraved, vicinity Medical Building, Thurs. Finder please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Black leather key case, Wednesday night, vicinity of campus. Reward. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

FOR SALE

Maths, Physics and Chemistry texts. RA. 2277.

INTERESTING

FACTS ABOUT OIL

How Science Works a Miracle in

OIL'S
"House of Magic"

If you were to visit one of Imperial Oil's seven Canadian refineries, it would be like stepping into a veritable "house of magic". Natural crude oil is piped in at one end... and after many complex processes comes out in the form of more than 500 different products, ranging from chemicals for synthetic rubber and gasoline and oil for cars, to wax for candles and asphalt for roads!

You begin to see how this miracle happens when you look at a kettle of boiling water. As everybody knows, water has a boiling point of 212° Fahrenheit. At this temperature it gives off steam, which can be condensed to form distilled water.

Crude oil, however, is not a pure substance like water. It is a mixture of many different chemical compounds called "hydrocarbons", each with its own particular boiling point. As a result, when crude oil is heated, it gives off a succession of vapors as the temperature is raised. By keeping these vapors separate and condensing them, crude oil can be broken up into gasoline, kerosene and other oil "fractions".

This is what oil men call a "pipe still". Inside are many hundreds of feet of steel pipe heated by burners inserted through one wall. The crude oil is pumped through the pipe and raised to a temperature of about 725° F. It then enters the "bubble tower".

This is a simple diagram of a bubble tower. It is a tall, steel drum in which the heated crude oil is separated into its various "fractions", which are drawn off through openings in the side. The bubble tower is very hot at the bottom and comparatively cool at the top.

Every two feet or so up the tower there are large steel discs or trays, like big pie-plates, containing liquid formed by condensation of some of the hot oil vapors.

This shows how the trays work, and what happens inside a bubble tower. The hot oil vapors rise from the tray below and bubble through the liquid in the tray above (hence the name, "bubble tower"). The light vapors, escaping from the liquid, rush upward to higher trays. The heavy vapors, however, are condensed and carried off in liquid form through pipes. More and more vapors are condensed as they pass through the trays higher up, and are drawn out through the sides of the tower at various levels.

The typical Imperial refinery, with its bubble towers and other fascinating processes is truly "a house of magic". Out of it comes gasoline to power our cars... fuel oil to heat our homes... kerosene for the farmers' lamps and stove... lubricating oils to keep the wheels of industry and transportation rolling... waxes for floors... asphalt for roads and airport runways... even basic ingredients for Miss Canada's cosmetics. All the crude oil is utilized to bring to modern living a total of MORE THAN 500 DIFFERENT, USEFUL PETROLEUM PRODUCTS!

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

Need For Liberal Arts In Education Stressed

WASTENEYS OPENS LECTURE SERIES

"Radical reform in the system of primary and secondary education" was recommended yesterday by Prof. H. Wasteneys, head of the Biochemistry department, as the ideal antidote to exaggerated emphasis on professional education. Prof. Wasteneys opened the lecture series on Education sponsored by the Committee representing the Teaching Staff.

The speaker advocated that professional students at university be taught to stress basic principles rather than masses of detail on new discoveries. This could be done by letting vocational schools supplement the training given in university, he said.

Recognition that students who are to be community leaders should be well acquainted with many subjects outside their immediate curricula has led the engineering and medical faculties to introduce compulsory arts courses in such subjects as history and political science, he said. Medical students must now take a two-year pre-medical arts course.

Quoting Prof. Newman of Cambridge, Prof. Wasteneys stated: "The purpose of a university is to bring about intellectual health." To this end, he said, "only such courses as breed ideas in men and can be advanced by research" are of value. Such courses as journalism and salesmanship should be left to technical schools," he said.

An emphasis on the humanities in high school, and stress in the university of the cultural values of a professional course and on extra-curricular activities were essentials of the speaker's prescription for a broader education.

Prof. Wasteneys supported the recent statement of President Smith that "the major mission of the arts faculties is developing students who will be defenders of human freedom, examples of human dignity, and apostles of human values."

Varsity Team Loses In Montreal Debate

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 26 (CUP)—The McGill debating team of George Annette and John Rowe, upholding the resolution "Resolved that this House approves unrestricted European immigration to Canada for the next ten years," won a 2-1 decision over the University of Toronto team of Telford Georges and Sheila McQueen.

George Annette pointed out that farming and new industries require an increased population and thus Canada would benefit from any immigration.

Immigrants come from politically and religiously oppressed countries, said Sheila McQueen, and thus they would be unable to adjust themselves to the Canadian economy.

John Rowe maintained that immigration would improve international relations and bring new drive to Canada.

By immigration Canada would receive only the politically undesirable and the psychologically unbalanced, said Telford Georges in concluding the debate.

Professor John Humphrey of the McGill Law Faculty chaired the debate. The judges were Professor Cullerton of the McGill Economics Department, Dr. Dangelzer, formerly director of Montreal's C.B.C., and Professor Quinn, of the Medical Science Department of Sir George Williams College.

Cloistered School Co-eds To Bloom At Skule Nite

Hurrying through the corridors of the School Building at almost any hour of the day or night is a haggard worried chap behind a pair of misty spectacles. He's the director of the School Nite Revue and his name is Jim Templeton. To date he's been unavailable to reporters and when last seen was reading script and muttering quietly "But fellows!!!"

Through the secrecy surrounding the revue, rumours have trickled out about a certain strictly hush-hush bit of Machiavellian mechanical Rubie Goldbergism—about the seldom seen but beautiful co-eds of School—and about a script that leaves the director breathless and worried.

It is no rumour that Whitey Belshaw has outdone himself in the musical department, having written all the arrangements, including a feature rendition of "Five Guys Named Mo" and an entirely new song "I'm Yours for the Asking." Costumes and make up are under the

Plan Special Issue For Local Writers

Plans were completed late yesterday for a major departure in campus publishing, The Varsity Literary Supplement, to appear Friday, Dec. 14. This follows the regular Christmas issue of The Varsity, published traditionally the morning of Dec. 12.

The ambitious project will introduce a radically different format. Not in any sense an extra issue of the undergraduate daily, it will appear as a tabloid, a magazine with eight full pages given over exclusively to creative writing and art—no advertising, no news.

"This new treatment will give the supplement a more permanent character," Editor Hugh Kenner said in announcing the tabloid. "It will be something akin to The Times Literary Supplement, and every bit as deserving of preservation."

The editor pointed out that The Varsity Literary Supplement is the only all-university literary publication on the campus. In it will appear fiction, essays, poetry, light verse, and art representing every college and faculty.

A panel of expert judges, responsible for maintaining a high standard of craftsmanship in the supplement, has requested that all student entries be submitted for consideration not later than 5 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 5.

U.N.T.D.

The following U.N.T.D. ratings are to report to Ship's Office, 119 St. George Street, on or before 12:00 Thursday, 29 November, 1945.

JOHNSTON, William.
McLEOD, Alan B.
NELSON, Roland E.
SCOTT, Warren.
SINCLAIR, Duncan.
TAYLOR, Earle M.
RIETER, Walter.

(Signed) D. A. F. ROBINSON,
Lieutenant-Commander (SB) RCNVR,
Commanding Officer, U.N.T.D.

ORGAN RECITAL

Dr. Healey Willan will continue his series of organ recitals to-day at 5:00 p.m. in Convocation Hall with an all Bach program.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1945

No. 43

McGILL WINS INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE

Picketing Students Beaten; Complain Of Police Tactics

Three students, one of them a girl, reported that they had been struck by policemen during a clash which occurred yesterday morning when a group of university sympathizers joined picket lines in front of the Imperial Optical Company's plant on Dundas Street.

The girl, a third year Sociology student, was allegedly struck on the head by a mounted policeman when the demonstrators attempted to form a mass picket line on the south side of Dundas Street. The strikers were repeatedly turned back by the police.

The charges were substantiated by Mrs. Rae Luckock, former C.C.F. member of the Ontario legislature who said: "I saw a mounted policeman raise his hand and strike a girl across the face."

Several students attempted to identify the policeman accused of striking the girl but he denied having struck the girl and refused to reveal his identity. Other students claimed that "billys" were used by the police.

This was the fifth clash between police and strikers since the commencement of the strike on Nov. 6. Student participation began last Thursday when members of the University Labor-Progressive Club and members of Toronto labor organizations demonstrated to sympathize with striking members of Local 514 United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

In yesterday's demonstration many of the students who took part were not members of the Labor-Progressive Club.

P. & H.E. Puzzles Plenty Of People Punctuation, '&', Perplexing Problems

For too many students of the University of Toronto the cryptic letters "P. & H. E." form an unbreakable code word.

With off-the-mark stabs such as "Psychology and Honour Engineering", too few can translate the letters as meaning Physical and Health Education and place the "and" in its proper position.

Though Junior in the Faculty Family,

P. & H. E. continues to amaze justly proud parents by growing at an astounding rate. Throughout the development, brain remains proportional to brawn.

A balanced course finds the P. & H. E.-man or -woman travelling in the course of a day from parallel bar to parallel bar and from push-ups to psychology.

"If the truth were known," commented Ken Jackson, an ex-air force officer now in his first year, "you would find that we spend more time pulling apart frogs, literature and hypotheses than the average B.A. seaker."

"And mingling Shakespeare with calisthenics is no cinch!"

"But," explained Jackson, "the guys and gals of P. & H. E. don't want sympathy. They just ask that people remember that P. & H. E. means Physical and Health Education and that the 'and' is between the 'P' and the 'H'."

Watch that conjunction!

Cover Contest For Campus Mag.

The Undergraduate, University College magazine, is offering a five dollar prize for a new cover design.

"We hope that this plan will enable student artists and photographers to contribute to the new issue," said co-editor Bob Weaver.

Entrants of the contest must be students of University College. Both photography and art work are acceptable, but contestants must remember that the cover will also contain the heading: The Undergraduate 1945-6 and that the probable size of the magazine will be 8 1/2 by 11 inches. Contributions must be given to members of the magazine staff, or deposited in the slot in the door of Room 10, University College, before Dec. 7. Name, year and course, and telephone number of the entrant should be attached to suggestions.

Members of the staff of The Undergraduate will judge the entries and the winner will be announced in the last issue of The Varsity before Christmas.

O Christ who are the light and day William Byrd

Carols:
All my heart this night
rejoices Johann Georg Ebeling

King Herod and the cock Martin Shaw

The Shepherd's
Song Robert Fleming

Alleluia, pro Virgine
Maria 15th century

In dulci júbilo Robert Pearsall

Hart House Concert

The St. Mary Magdalene Singers, conducted by Dr. Healey Willan, will give the following program at the Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House on Sunday next, 2nd December:

I

Advent Motets:
Lo, in the time appointed Healey Willan

Audi vocem de celo Thomas Tallis

Hosanna Orlando Gibbons

Madrigals:
Sing we and chaunt
it Thomas Morley

O let me look on thee once more Orlando di Lasso

I know a young maiden Orlando di Lasso

The Silver Swan Orlando Gibbons

All creatures now are merry-minded John Benet

II

Christmas Motets:
Behold thou shalt conceive Jacob Handl

Hodie, Christus natus
est Healey Willan

Immigration Is Rejected In First Post-War Debate

INTERNATIONAL ASPECT STRESSED

The House split, 110 to 106, to defeat the resolution "that this House approves unrestricted immigration to Canada for the next 10 years," and gave victory to the McGill team last night in Convocation Hall in the first intercollegiate debate since before the war.

The international aspect of the debate caused students from the West Indies, Hungary, Russia, Austria, England and Germany to participate in the discussion from the floor.

Introducing the session, Speaker Graham Cotter said that in keeping with tradition the debate would be conducted in true parliamentary manner, rather than being contested. This system allows House members to rise and speak for a maximum of five minutes.

Alan Brown, in moving the resolution, said that the last 15 years have shown the folly of nations trying to live alone. "We have finally discovered prosperity is not an isolated thing," he said, advocating co-operation amongst nations on the immigration matter.

Brown ridiculed the idea that immigrants would be taking jobs from deserving veterans, saying that Canada today was much underpopulated.

"Why," he said, "our government is so worried about the population it pays time-and-a-half for production of babies."

First speaker for the negative, Winston Mahabir opened by saying that he was actually an immigrant arguing against immigration, but fortunately the one word "European" excused him in that he was a West Indian.

In his self-described "florid" manner, Mahabir attempted to belittle the suggestion that Canada was underpopulated by saying "This age of mechanization dispenses with much labor," and that "For economic purposes Canada is just a ribbon along the border of the United States."

The affirmative argument was continued by Flora Moffat who said "The crux of the argument is that immigration tends to prevent depression and unemployment."

Final negative speaker Jack McDonald, speaking from an ex-serviceman's viewpoint said "I do not want to see my returned brother stand in line to have his throat cut by a foreigner!"

The driver, who remained unidentified, was not a student of the University.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C. is open to the men and women of every college and faculty. To-day's program: Berlioz—Roman Carnival Overture. Enrico Caruso singing two operatic arias.

Franck—Sonata in A Major (violin and piano).

Tchaikovsky—Romeo and Juliet Overture.

To Remodel West Hall In Honor Of U.C. Heroes

"Initial blessing" has been given by the Alumni Association to University College's plan to transform West Hall into a memorial to the 2,030 former students who served in the Second Great War, Principal Taylor told The Varsity Friday.

"It is my feeling," said Dr. Taylor, "that there should be some memorial in the college to our students who have served and particularly to the 98 men and women who were killed."

The project which will convert West Hall into one of the "most beautiful lecture halls" in Canada calls for an estimated expenditure of $15,000.

"When I suggested we transform West Hall into a memorial hall I felt it would become for all time a challenge to the youth who enter University College," said the principal. "It will create spirit in the institution."

"The names of those who have died will be emblazoned on the walls and, perhaps, we will have a book of memory containing names of those who fought in the war."

The principal pointed out the Norman-Romanesque architecture of West Hall makes it almost an exact replica of the reception hall of the Wartburg in Germany. It was in this famous castle that Martin Luther once stayed, and here the meistersingers held their contest in the middle ages.

Dr. Taylor feels an architect should be able to retain the beauty of West Hall's architecture while converting it into a modern lecture hall.

The walls above the woodwork will be covered either by arabesque paintings or symbolic figures on an arabesque background.

"We are going to put in permanent seating—no more kitchen chairs—change the lighting and see what we can do about the acoustics."

"We will get rid of the echo by use of an amplifying system or by padding the walls with sound-absorbent material as we did in the faculty's common room."

"When these changes are made," the principal added, "we should have a wonderful hall for large classes and public lectures."

He estimated the transformation could be completed within a summer. "We have the ideas—all we need is $15,000."

Contributions from alumni members, students and friends of University College will be welcome," said Dr. Taylor.

"We feel we would like to have our own memorial in the college. The names of U. C. students who fought in the First Great War are engraved on Memorial Tower but are not distinguished from the names of men from other colleges and faculties."

Editorial

Unfair To Varsity

Let it be very clear what we are going to discuss. We are not going to discuss whether Varsity students have the legal right to participate in picketing, either at Icelandia or at the Imperial Optical Co. We are not going to discuss whether their presence in the picket lines is doing the cause of the strikers any good, nor whether that cause is just.

Our question is a moral question: whether it is advisable for student pickets to take part in these demonstrations.

We think that it is not advisable. We think that all students owe a primary duty to the good name of the University and to their fellow students, a duty which the picketers are neglecting. We think that they are bringing public censure upon the undergraduate body and the University, and that it is more important to avoid doing this than to sympathize publicly with an extremely debatable cause.

Not Apathy But Wisdom

We are not recommending apathy towards questions of the day. Let it be understood that The Varsity strongly urges the University to take up an unequivocal position on the moral issue of racial discrimination, whether on its own campus or elsewhere in Toronto or in Canada. Racial discrimination is not to be tolerated in an enlightened society; it involves a direct and clear-cut question to which an equally direct and clear-cut answer can be given.

Unfortunately, as we have pointed out many times before, no similar clarity is discernible in certain industrial disputes currently occupying newspaper space. There are two sides to such issues, colored, according to the observer's own predilections, black and white or white and black respectively. To the rigidly impartial observer, the picture might be more accurately described in varying shades of dirty gray.

It Does Us No Good

So the question at hand is neither the validity of the cases now being energetically supported by small groups of undergraduates with sympathies which manifest themselves in picket lines, nor the legality of such student interference in other people's business. The question is whether, from the point of view of the University at large, such interference is wise.

We say again, it is not wise. Universities have become identified in certain quarters with radical ideas, with crackpot political and economic theories, with all that is tentative, unsound, and downright dangerous. And the student pickets lend weight to such carping.

It is true that such identification is unjust. Universities are more reasonably to be identified with ideas at large, with the rational modification of practices that have not worked altogether well, with what is fundamentally sound in human thought. Universities are more responsibly concerned with human progress and they are in a better position to be guided by the light of history than are their most vocal critics.

The fact remains, however, that Universities, being traditionally suspect to a part of the public, must be always on guard against lending substance to that suspicion.

Adverse Publicity

Now, the participation of the merest handful of undergraduates in picket lines representing any side of a question, on North Yonge St. in Dundas Square, or in the middle of Toronto Harbor, cannot but be regarded by the newspaper-reading, radio-listening public as evidence that university students generally are a meddlesome lot of trouble-makers, a band of immature crusaders. Such adverse publicity only serves to increase the public misunderstanding of an already sadly misunderstood institution.

The action of a couple of dozen Varsity students, moved by their personal zeal for a particular cause, is amplified and exaggerated in the public mind against all 9,537 Toronto undergraduates, and against all university students everywhere within earshot of the repercussions. Does this seem fair to those students holding political views at variance in degree or in kind with those of the picket-line combatants? Is it fair to the University, an institution itself aloof from such squabbles?

It is not fair. We have said that the University is fighting perpetually for its life. Its warrior body must be in fighting trim; the body must not be enained by any of its members.

—R. R.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-A MT. 6611
University College MT. 6221
Business Office MT. 6221
Night Office MT. 6745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Paul Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.H.E.

Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager: E. A. MACDONALD

Night Editor—George Forster
Assistant—Ed Lindgren

Art, Music and Drama

Wilder: Philosopher vs. Dramatist

Both the Wilder plays that have been presented on the campus this year—Skin of Our Teeth and Our Town—go berserk in the last act; in both plays the third act becomes a philosophical commentary on the former two. In short, both degenerate into religious exposition in dialogue form. Nevertheless, the vigour and integrity of the first two acts, and the unconventional stage strategy of each of the plays, sustain them and make them as important as anything the American theatre has given us these ten years.

The theme of the earlier play Our Town, which successfully strangles the third act of that play, is the inadequacy of man to his experience. Man (Wilder claims) does not realize the sad deficiency of his responsive nature, his dullness and aesthetic impregnability, until death renders him impotent in this world's affairs. This philosophy results in the third act "Love of Death" reverie which makes the point of the play. Unfortunately the point is made by doing violence to the dramatic medium; the author superimposes his religious conviction as a sort of literary motif, rather than incorporating it as part of the dramatic complex.

A gently satirical sketch of a typical small town forms the framework of play Leacock called it Mariposa; Wilder gives it the name of Grover's Corners. Chief participants in the dramatic action are the members of the families of Dr. Gibbs and Editor Webb. Mr. Webb has a daughter Emily, who marries George, only son of Dr. Gibbs. Emily dies giving birth to her second child. And that's about all that happens wide. Where are they to be accommodated, let alone jobs found for them? No one has answered that question yet.

There are 25,000 British War Brides waiting to come to Canada to start up homes with their Canadian veteran husbands. Many have children. The boys still in Holland are getting engaged and married to Dutch girls at a rapid rate. I feel strongly that the returning soldier and his bride should have priority over Japanese even if by accident of birth or naturalization they are legally Canadians.

Mr. Lute questioned the legal grounds for deportation. As I understand it, the government has the power to deport the Japanese under its special powers during "a State of Emergency" which is still deemed to exist. Peacetime legislation in this connection is now before the House if it has not already been passed.

The proposed deportation is therefore democratic as it is the will of the majority of the people as expressed by the elected representatives of the people in the Dominion Parliament that such legislation be passed.

I still maintain that it is merely high-minded hypocrisy for U. of T. students to attack the people of B.C. unless they have a practical solution to the problem which involves some concrete action not self-sacrifice by the people of Ontario. "By their fruits shall ye know them."

—GEORGE E. BETTSOON.
Trinity I Arts.

Editor, The Varsity:

Dear Sir:

In reply to Mr. Kohn's letter of Monday's Varsity, I would like to point out that there is on the campus a local branch of the International Student Service, a committee organized for the purpose of dealing with student relief needs. This committee is concentrating this year on an appeal for financial aid from students of this campus to go towards re-establishment of European universities.

It therefore has taken no measure towards collecting money for overseas food parcels. An effort has been made to obtain a list of names of students in Holland and France, in order to communicate with them, but no reply has yet been received.

I therefore suggest that any student wishing to send Christmas gifts of food to others overseas, send them in care of a university where they can be distributed by official sources.

The I.S.S. on this campus is not unaware of the crisis in Europe as Mr. Kohn would seem to indicate; it is reserving its appeal until after Christmas when an extensive campaign for funds will be launched. These funds will go to the central committee of The World Student Relief Federation in Geneva. (Continued on page 3) in a small town, so that's about all the story that there is.

There is no set for this play. Only a few absolutely essential properties are used and most of these are symbolically conceived. A stage manager conducts the audience through the play, turning the dramatic action on and off like a faucet, and at times participating in the dramatic action himself. These unconventional stage practices, as most reviewers will probably explain to you in detail, reflect the influence of the Chinese theatre.

The barrenness of the stage unquestionably conveys the notion of the universality of the setting, but the demand it makes upon the imagination of the audience is large and the required illusion is utterly dependent on the skill of the actors, especially in pantomime.

It is therefore no little praise to say that the U.C. group came through with flying colours. None of the actors is great, the amateur element is omnipotent, but the level of technical competence is high.

Sam Telford as the Stage Manager gave a very steady performance, though perhaps a little too offhand in Emily's "return to life" scene. Editor Webb's part was excellently handled by George Gibson. John Walker in trying to assume the gruff tones of middle-aged Dr. Gibbs became somewhat unintelligible; he fades out at the end of speeches. Nowhere did the amateur aspect of the show make itself more apparent than in the general tendency to lose valuable lines by failing to allow for the laughter of the audience.

Mrs. Webb (Marj Blackall) and Mrs. Gibbs (Charmion King) are notable for their energetic and convincing pantomime. Hal Walkley's George Gibbs is adequate, but rather dull in comparison with Bea Thorkelson's charming and spirited interpretation of Emily Webb.

Gordon Atlin's pantomime as Howie Newsome, the milkman, deserves praise as does the singing of the Presbyterian choir. The lighting—the sole realistic technical effect of importance—is noteworthy.

Credit for the success of this show really goes to the director, Vincent Tovell, for achieving so much with a hard-working, but not supremely gifted, group of actors.

—JEFF WAITE.

Say, the food we've been getting in the restaurants lately is nothing to write home about.

Therefore we haven't written home about it.

We ordered a steak at a nearby beanateria the other evening.

A steak?

A mistake!

It certainly came from a poorly-put-together cow.

...

The waitress shuffled up to rearrange the dirt on the counter.

We wondered about our dessert.

We thought we would have a piece of apple pie a la mode.

But they were out of a la mode.

So we had ice cream instead.

...

They didn't have apple pie either, it turned out.

Unwarily, we substituted gooseberry.

It tasted like absent-minded rhubarb.

...

While I was waiting for it I swept the room with a glance.

That was all it had been swept with lately.

...

Why doesn't some alert restaurateur introduce chinaware of red hue so that the left-over Tangee and Fatal Apple smears around the rim of a coffee cup would no longer be noticeable to irritate?

It threatens to be the biggest thing full, fresh fruit flavor with an amber bottle.

Who do you see about a patent?

EROS.

Neilson's

VERY SATISFYING
VERY NOURISHING

Fairweather
on Yonge

88-90 Yonge Street
NO BRANCH STORES

To Give Your Beaux
A MERRY WHIRL!

For the coquette in you... a flirtatious little "chou", rimmed with pink rosebuds and with a demure mist of veiling... to wear on formal dates... 10.00

Milinery
THIRD FLOOR

FAIRWEATHER Limited ★ 88-90 Yonge Street

TEXT BOOKS and SUPPLIES
FOR ALL COURSES

Save Money on Your Text Books

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(1 Block south of Bloor)

Hart House Bulletin Board

Hart House Debate

The regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the Music Room at 5:00 p.m. to-day. Complete attendance is requested since an audition is being held at this rehearsal by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Glee Club

The second Hart House Debate will be held at 8:00 p.m. tomorrow in the Debates Room. The resolution will deal with the post-war domestic policy of the Federal Government. It is expected that the discussion will be concerned with matters of current interest such as the racial question, housing, rehabilitation and the flag.

Blue Cage Squad Opens Season With Exhibition Tilt Tonight

Full Speed Ahead!

That is Roy Dilworth's slogan for the forthcoming basketball season as he rounds the team into shape for its initial game of the year and for his initial game as mentor of the Varsity Blues.

The opener takes place at seven o'clock this evening on the polished Hart House floor and the opposition for this exhibition game is Y.M.H.A.

Dilworth will carry a squad of twenty-eight men into the game and hopes to give all an equal chance to display their wares. This will be his policy for the following three exhibition games as well. Simpson Grads are scheduled for an appearance on Thursday while Tip Tops and another team are to play here next Tuesday and Thursday.

The team roster, to date reads: Zeaton, Wallace, Thomson, Gibson, Cranham, Spry, Fountain, Mayzell, Clayton, Himell, McReynolds, Meschino, Andrews, Hennessy, Varga, McAdam, Fitch, Glat, Tetmarr, Scott, Choate, Swan, Potruff, Starr, Tredgett, Sturges, Lowes and Jones.

SPS In Semi-Finals After Soccer Win

A goal off the boot of Boris Stoicheff gave School 1 the right to advance into the soccer semi-final against Trinity next Wed. afternoon. The goal, which came half way through the opening half after Stoicheff had taken a pass from Johnny Robinson, gave the SPS eleven 1-0 win over Forestry.

The game was rough and tough throughout with an abundance of body-checking and indiscreet elbowing on the part of both teams.

Stoicheff, Robinson and Ajuha were the outstanding performers for School while Cambell, Mennill and Beckwith showed up well for Forestry.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

Now Playing Second and Final Week
Evgs. 8:20: MATS. Wed-Sat. 2:20
Mon. Tues. Wed. Evgs.; Sat. Mat.

COUNTRESS MARITZA

Thurs., Fri., Sat. Evgs.; Sat. Mat.

ROSE MARIE

PRICES (Tax included)
EVGS.: 90c, $1.20, $1.50, $2.40 and $3.
MATS.: Wed. and Sat.: 60c, $1.20, $1.80, and $2.40.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Ex-Service Students Life Insurance

AT PREFERRED LOW RATES
e.g. $5,000.00 — $400 a Month
Call NORM RICHARDSON
Day-WA. 1844, Evening-HU. 3929

University Symphony Orchestra

Next Rehearsal for Full Orchestra on Wednesday, November 28th, 7:30 P.M.

AT CONVOCAION HALL

Prompt and Full Attendance Essential

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF FUTURE PRACTICES WILL BE MADE AT THIS TIME

SPORT IN SHORT

Soccer—Quarter Finals
S.P.S. I 1—Forestry 0.
S.P.S. II 0—Knox 0.

Lacrosse
P.H.E. II—Sr. S.P.S. 7.
St.M. 6—S.P.S. IV 6.

Swimming
U.C. 28—Vic. 5.
S.P.S. IV 20—Trin. C 11.

Volleyball
Dents. A 2—Pre-Med. A 0.

Boxla Teams Sprint Playoffs Next Week

The thirteen teams have now rounded the turn and entered the home stretch of the Intramural Lacrosse League, with this week bringing the final few games of the regular fall schedule. The playoffs will begin early next week.

Group I will probably send two teams into the play-offs, with Meds I and P. H. E. assured of finishing in that order. Group II will also qualify two teams, but Vic. U.C. and Meds II are still in the running.

Vic, with four wins, are certain of nothing less than a first place tie. If Meds II can beat U.C. on Thursday they will gain the second position, provided they also knock off Jr. S.P.S. tomorrow. If U.C. win they will automatically enter the playoffs with four wins and two losses.

Forestry has run up a string of four straight wins in Group III and will prove tough opposition in the Dafeo Cup drive. Only one team enters the finals from this group.

Group IV finds S.P.S. IV and St. Mikes in a verbal battle for top honors and the lone playoff position. They played to a 6-6 draw yesterday, but S. P. S. IV have protested the last St. Mikes goal. The group title hinges on the decision of the Committee at tomorrow's meeting.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

The Students' Choice:
BLOOR TAXI
LIMITED

Sub-station at

HARBORD and ST. GEORGE

R.A. 5151

Switchboard connecting
all branches
For Quick Service — For Efficiency
CALL US!

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle
work at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service.

321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of
the Faculty

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Jam and Journalism . . .

Misfortunes and mistakes hobble along behind us in groups these days, making this old gray head even grayer, and shadow our dreams a deeper color of black. Which all goes to show the vulnerability of human nature . . . but on the sunnier side of the street proves that someone does cast an eye over this sheet ever so often if only to say . . . "Aha! another error!"

In the issue of Nov. 21 this column reported a basketball game between Vic. B and U.C. juniors, stating that the U.C. team had won the game by a score of 19-15. Well, it seems that the Vic. girls should have been congratulated rather than their opponents . . . so to Barb Seibert (the best guard of the lot), Peg Scott, Isobel Birkenshaw (the gal with four points to her credit in said game), Jean Birkenshaw, Ruth Irwin, Ida Mae Nicholson, Val Wilmot (also having shot four balls into the net), Jane Shoemaker (marking up her team's score by nine points), Doris Inch, and to a player minus a surname in the report . . . Cynthia, who is reputed to be "very good", we say . . . it was a mistake, and to you all goes the credit of winning the basketball game.

With Fear and Trepidation . . .

We offer more basketball scores to the reader, hoping that they place laurels where laurels should be placed . . . on the right heads. P.H.E. II B came out on top after a tough tussle with P.H.E. juniors, the score a witness to the even struggle . . . 18-13. Betty Jackes of the II B team exhibited prowess as a forward which could make her co-workers beam with pride.

The next game was a sharp exhibition by freshe teams . . . O.T. defeating St. Hilda's . . . score unknown. These peppy junior league teams have three aspirants tied for first place . . . and the reports say that they are all evenly matched. The finals should make good watching . . . hmmm?

Varsity Coach Ace Bailey One Of Game's Greatest Stars

By Mickey Michasiw

There aren't too many sporting nouns in the vocabulary of the average hockey fan—or the average hockey writer, either, if facts must be faced. One of those most frequently employed from Noah Webster's pride and joy is "greats" and it usually is used in a sense which indicates more than remarkable ability.

From an aggregation of National Hockey League "greats" comes Irvin Bailey, who, it seems, holds the key to whether the 1945 Varsity Blues are to have a winning or a losing hockey season. Upon the shoulders of this "great" fall the responsibilities of weeding, selecting and molding, not only the senior team but also the Junior "B" edition until a coach is appointed.

Irvin (Ace) Bailey needs no introduction to hockey fans. In his playing days, he was a two-way star. He played a mean right wing. On the lacrosse field he had equal aptitude. Off the playing surfaces he was, and still is, admired, respected and worshipped.

Bailey's hockey career began in goal rather than on the wing position which brought him fame and, perhaps, fortune. From Bracebridge High he moved to the big city to play lacrosse for the Mimico Mounties and hockey for St. Mary's C.L.M.A.A. The latter team is now known as the Marborough Juniors and it was with this team that Bailey was converted into a forward.

Early in November, '26, Bailey signed a pro contract with the Toronto St. Patrick's. In February of the following year Major Connie Smythe and associates purchased the franchise and purchased the franchise and changed the name to Maple Leafs. Bailey stuck with this organization for eight years, until his career was brought to a sudden halt in Boston on December 12, 1933. Eddie Shore, rough and ready Bruin defenseman, checked from behind and Bailey went down. The sound of his head striking the ice surface was heard throughout the Boston Rink.

With the same courage and determination that he displayed on the athletic field, Bailey fought for his life. This fortitude coupled with the best in medical science pulled him through the terrible crises which kept him in the hospital for thirty-six days while friends and fans rallied around anxiously awaiting hospital bulletins.

While Shore was the culprit, the Ace bore him no grudge. He mentioned no names, blamed no one.

"It happened in the heat of battle," he maintained. "Those things will happen. People are apt to lose their heads."

On his discharge from hospital, a sell-out benefit exhibition game was staged at Maple Leaf Gardens. Much controversy took place before Eddie Shore was granted a place on the All-Star team and the pre-game ceremonies were highlighted by the Bailey-Shore handshake.

As a result of the accident, he was barred from hockey as a player and referee because of the danger of bodily contact. The special helmet was introduced shortly after to avoid head injuries in heavy checking games.

To keep out of hockey was more more easily said than done as far as Bailey was concerned and so in 1935 he appeared as coach of the West Toronto Juniors and was also at the helm of a commercial team. The following year he accepted the opportunity to mastermind the Blues.

A rebuilding program was inaugurated under his watchful eye but it was not until the spring of 1940 that McGill's dominance was finally broken. Cessation of hockey caused by the intervening war years found the Thompson Trophy resting in Hart House. A team made up of players like Bob Copp, Jack Quigley, Don Dunbar, Jock Mainard and Cam MacLachlan had finally brought home the long-awaited and sought-after laurels. During the war years, Bailey's coaching chores were limited. The Research Colonels of the Toronto Senior Series came under his guidance for a season. After another breather, the Blues were reorganized last year.

This is another season, however and sees a return to intercollegiate competition. Thrice weekly the seniors go through the paces at the Arena under the quiet Bailey's guidance.

During practice sessions, Bailey often skates around disregarding orders to keep out of hockey or at least on the sidelines. Last winter he was spotted with a hockey stick in hand showing a wing the principles of dodging a bruising rearguard.

From the start of the present season, the Blues began to attract the attention of the railbirds. A lot of them think this is the Blues' year. It will be, too, if the material shows half the stamina and determination that Irvin (Ace) Bailey has shown through his lifetime.

Correspondence . .

(Continued from page 2)

and will be distributed according to need, from there.

JUNE WRONG,
Chairman of the U. of T. I.S.S. Committee.

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE	4.00	Jr. SPS.	Vic.	Price
SWIM LEAGUE	4.00	Pre-Med.	St.M. A	Moffat
		Knox	Trin. B
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	IV SPS. A	Dent. B	Cooke
	4.30	IV SPS. B	Vic. III	McDonald
	6.30	II SPS. B	I Med.	Brisbin
	7.30	PHE. II	Dent. D	Brisbin
	8.30	Emman B	Knox B	Brisbin
SOCCER Playoff	3.15	School II	vs. Knox	Life

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION COURSE

The University Health Service, with the co-operation of the University of Toronto Athletic Association, is offering to men students and staff a course (lecture, practice, and examination) on Artificial Respiration, on Tuesday, November 27th, and Thursday, November 29th—Debates Room—Hart House—at 5:00 p.m.

All men enrolled in Life Saving Courses must take this Course to qualify for their awards.

All male students and staff in the University are eligible to enrol and take the course. For further details see either Mr. Griffiths or Mr. McCutcheon.

Men who satisfactorily complete the course will qualify for the Respiration Service Badge of the Royal Life Saving Society.

TODAY

LECTURE AND DEMONSTRATION

of the

THEORY AND PRACTICE OF RESUSCITATION

Lecturer—Dr. R. W. I. Urquhart

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

Thursday, November 29th

PRACTICAL EXAMINATION
and

TRUE-FALSE TEST ON THEORY

Place—Debates Room—Hart House

Time—5:00 p.m.

NOTE: During the week starting November 19th, all gymnasium classes will receive basic instruction in Resuscitation Practice, preliminary to the course offered the following week.

VARSITY SOCCER TEAM

PICTURE — WEDNESDAY, 1 P.M.

MEETING

of the SKI CLUB EXECUTIVE

Wednesday, 5 p.m. St. Hilda's games room.

Speaking of SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

Sport Splashes . . .

Coinciding with the announcement that this season's intercollegiate swim meet will be held at Queen's on March 2, came the news that local swimmers have been splashing through the Hart House pool with a better-than-average record for consistency . . . Al Marshall, holder of the Canadian senior breast stroke record, led his University College team to a convincing 28-5 victory over Vic. yesterday. The big news is not in the victory but, rather, is in the manner through which it was attained . . . All five events were taken by the winners. In the 50 yard back event, Sawyer was clocked at 32.0 . . . the interfaculty record stands at 33.6 . . . the intercollegiate laurel is 32.4 and was set 'way back there in '25 . . . In the 50 yard free-style event, Opie came through with another smashing performance with his time recorded at 24.3 . . . the interfaculty time is 25.2 and he was but a tenth off the intercollegiate mark. With swimmers of this calibre around, the Varsity swim team is in for a very rosy future . . . The Varsity water polo team meets stiff competition in its opener tomorrow evening as it tackles the team that is reputed to be the best club in Canada, Central Y.M.C.A. . . . The Junior "B" hockey squad is still under the tutelage of Ace Bailey but yesterday, was pared to eighteen. Brankston, Pearson and Smythe are catching the eyes of the rink rats. Their first game is carded for next Monday with St. Mike's Junior Bees as opponents. Game time is 8:30.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

VARSAITY Saturday Night DANCE

ROYAL YORK HOTEL BANQUET HALL SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st
ELLIS McLINTOCK -- His Trumpet -- And His Orchestra

Dancing From 9 to 12.

TICKETS ON SALE THURSDAY AND FRIDAY, 12-2, IN U.C. ROTUNDA

Tickets $1.00 Per Person

New and Entrenous

Lights Out!

St. George Street, it seems, is not referred to in Hydro Electric Power circles as "the boulevard of broken beams."

On what must be almost weekly excursions the green H.E.P.C. truck cruises up St. George on a bulb-replacing mission.

Bulbs in street lamps along St. George must, we suspected, have a much shorter lifespan than bulbs on, say Clifton Ave.

Due, doubtless, to prankish University students who so densely populate St. George.

Not so. So far as he knew, the man at the H.E.P.C. office said, St. George Street was no worse than any other street in Toronto.

How many lamps are broken in the whole city every year, our reporter wondered next, desperate to come away with some information.

She would have to refer that question to the Superintendent of the Street-Lighting Department, the hydro man said. But the Sup't was out. The reporter hung up.

Obliged to launch personal research into the matter, the reporter strolled the distance on St. George between Hoskin and Bloor and reports that there are five broken lamps, three on the east side, and two on the west side.

Speaking of Swing

Down For The Count

Friday and Saturday nights saw the return at the Queensway Ballroom of the "Jump King of Swing" Count Basie. Although his old standbys Buck Clayton, Lester Young, Jo Jones, and Earl Warren, who formed the nucleus of the original band were not with him, the performance of the new one proved that it still played some of the finest jazz. In the main every arrangement was typical riff-Basie, consisting of simple repetitious section passages backed by powerful take-offs. The rhythm section which included Fred Greene, guitarist, and Fred Richardson, a five-string bassist, was a powerhouse, driving the brass to terrific heights from the opening bars of I Got Rhythm to the close of the One O'Clock Jump.

"Snooky" Young former Lunceford and Hampton lead man, headed the brass section with his thrilling top G's. His blowing was high and exciting never descending to the level of tasteless and indiscriminate screeching which is characteristic of altogether too many supposedly great trumpeters today.

These reviewers would have been pleased if Al Kilian had been there to add his trumpet to the already outstanding brass section. We were denied this pleasure as Al, as far as we know, is with the Lunceford aggregation.

Some of the outstanding moments were provided by Buddy Tait who distinguished himself by his moaning tenor solo behind the blues vocals of James Rushing. It has been said that no one can sing the Blues like Jimmy and with this we heartily agree. The voice of James R. Can hardly be compared to that of Frankie, but it has that quality and rhythm that leaves the field of native, sorrowful blues exclusively to him.

Illinois Jacquette, a comparative newcomer to the field of jazz, although not quite filling the shoes of his predecessors Don Byas and Lester Young, showed himself to be a master of the jazz medium by his weaving of intricate patterns around the chords of Confessin' Body and Soul, and Jumpin' at the Woodside. Other members of the band who drew attention, were trumpeter Harry Edison and clarinetist Ruddy Rutherford.

The Count's piano, although pretty, is outdated and does not compare to the playing of the New Jazz artists on 52nd Street. Those who saw the last jazz concert will agree that Errol Garner surpassed him by far, not only in his versatility, and imagination, but in his flawless ambidexterous technique. Nevertheless the Count remains one of the foremost of jazz composers with such numbers as the "One O'Clock" Jump, "Basie Boogie", and other hits to his credit.

SHAUL, STARMAN.

(Advertisement)

(Advertisement)

(Advertisement)

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

The Department of Veterans' Affairs provides Dental and Medical Treatment during the time you are in receipt of your Educational Benefit.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR SALE

Maths, Physics and Chemistry texts.
RA. 227.

LOST

Tan leather pen-case, with name engraved, vicinity Medical Building, Thurs. Finder please leave at S.A.C. Office.

FOR SALE

Full dress suit, for man, 6 feet tall, waist 32. Call HU. 2052, after 7 p.m.

FOR SALE

Britton and Brown illustrated Flora, second edition. Call HU. 2052, after 7 p.m.

LOST

Signet ring, engraved "T.G.H.", lost Sat. night on or near campus. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

LOST

Black zipper notebook, lost at Stadium, Sat. afternoon. Contains Medical notes. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE

Lady's dark blue fitted coat, slightly worn, size 16, tall. $10.00. LA. 7426.

WANTED

Two ex-servicemen, 1st yr. C. & F., desire tutor in Actuarial Science. Apply Box T, The Varsity.

LOST

Small black suitcase, containing University text books, valuable lecture notes, urgently needed. Liberal reward. HY. 5129.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restring. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

Statement of Facts Concerning IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY LENS PLANT STRIKE

(Located at 365 Dundas St., East of Sherbourne St.)

DEMOCRACY vs. DICTATORSHIP

The employees in this Branch Factory of Imperial Optical Company, located at Ontario and Dundas Streets, in a free democratic secret vote, voted 5 to 1 against going on strike. Despite this, Local 514 of the U.E.-C.I.O., dictatorially called this strike with the aid of outside Union Organizers and against the wishes of the majority of the employees in this Plant. Since the strike began, and despite the pressure of the Union, approximately 50% of the employees have shown their loyalty and reported for work each day.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH LOCAL 514 U.E., C.I.O.

For more than a year this Company has bargained in good faith with Local 514, treating the Union Organizers and their representatives with courtesy and consideration. The Government Board of Conciliation, which met in July, 1945, reported "The Board was impressed by the fact that both Parties made conscientious effort to resolve their differences."

This Company had every good intention of concluding an agreement with this Local; however, the subsequent conduct of this Local towards the Company, its employees, and its management, has made it impossible for the Company to enter into a contractual relationship with it and still uphold the principles of Canadian Democracy.

Information has been spread by Local 514 U.E.-C.I.O. in a way which tends to grossly mislead those who do not know the true facts, and it is to clarify the real points at issue that this statement is made.

This Company Respects the Rights and Dignity of Organized Labour

This Company recognizes the right of its employees to join any lawful organization or Union of their own choice and has not discriminated against them for this. The Company feels that the irresponsible actions of this Local has prejudiced the cause of organized labour which has done so much for the working man and for the Industrial development of this Country.

This Company has never refused to meet at any time with its employees with a view to resolving differences and assuring co-operation and mutually satisfactory working conditions.

Working Conditions in This Plant

A full week's pay. 52 weeks a year.

Local 514 U.E.-C.I.O. has publicly acknowledged that wages are not the issue in this strike. Wages in this plant are as high or higher than those paid in competitive Plants in this industry. In early October, all employees were guaranteed that the basic rate now paid or higher would be maintained for at least the next two years.

It is the policy of this Company to assure workers a full week's pay throughout the year and therefore they receive a full week's pay even for weeks that contain a public holiday. Workers are paid for public holidays at their regular basic rate of pay.

If there should be a breakdown on machines, or if something interferes with production, or if sufficient work is not available, workers nevertheless receive their regular basic rate of pay.

The usual vacations with pay are granted to all employees.

Year end bonus.

For the past several years, this Company has been able to pay those who have been with it for a year an extra week's pay as a special bonus. This has been made possible by the loyalty and co-operation of the employees and the excellent results that they have achieved. Those who have been with the Company for less than a year at that time have received a smaller cash payment.

Morning and Afternoon Refreshments.

Each morning and afternoon, Tea, Coffee or Milk is supplied to all employees without charge.

Company Cafeteria.

There is a Cafeteria in the Plant for the use of the employees. Both hot and cold meals are served at Cost Price.

First Aid.

There is a Registered Nurse available in a specially equipped Medical Dispensary where drugs and compounds, etc., are supplied without charge.

Plant Doctor.

A Physician is available whom employees and their families may consult in confidence and at no charge.

Group Insurance.

A special Group Insurance plan is available to all employees at very low rates with the Company underwriting part of the cost.

Sports Activities.

Membership in the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. is available with the Company paying 50% of the Membership Fees.

Organized teams for both men and women to take part in Baseball Leagues, Bowling Leagues, etc., with the major portion of the expense paid by the Company.

Harmonious Relations.

1. There is a Labour Management Committee elected by the Employees functioning in this Plant.
2. This Modern Air-conditioned Lens Plant is one of the finest on the American Continent.
3. Working conditions are a prime concern of management and the safety record of the Company is an excellent one.
4. Established in 1900, this Company has always enjoyed an enviable reputation for harmony and mutual confidence between employees and management.
5. In normal times, the Labour turnover of this Company has been less than 2%.
6. More than 100 employees in the Company generally have served with it from 15 to 25 years or more.
7. This Company has always been resourceful enough to provide regular employment throughout the entire year with no seasonal lay-off. Never in its 45 year History has it been necessary to have a general lay-off; even in times of depression and severe difficulty this Company has always been resourceful enough to provide regular employment for its workers throughout the year. An expanding Export Business has made this possible, even at times when competition from other countries was most severe.
8. Working conditions outlined above have been in effect for many years in this Plant.

Acts of Violence and Intimidation Cannot Be Tolerated

The majority of the employees in this plant have expressed their wish to continue working, and for their benefit, despite threats and intimidation, the Imperial Optical Company Lens Plant will remain open.

Citizens everywhere appreciate the efforts of the Toronto City Police in maintaining law and order, which they have done with the greatest restraint and courtesy, insuring legal picketing and protecting the legal democratic right of citizens to work.

IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST DECENCY AND DEMOCRACY MUST PREVAIL.

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY, TORONTO

Varsity Blues Triumph In First Practice Game

INDIVIDUAL PLAYER CHARTS

University of Toronto basketball Blues won their opening game last evening in the midst of mild chaos.

The game, originally billed as a practice encounter, proved to be just that as both teams took ample opportunity to experiment with plays and players. By mutual consent the game was played in five eight-minute "quarters" and after the end of the game, the scoreboard read, Varsity 58, Y.M.H.A. 24.

Coach Roy Dilworth sent a bevy of twenty-five players into the game in hopes of narrowing his roster down through this means. Five players took the floor for each "quarter" and played through without substitution during that particular session.

Dilworth had set up a private Gestapo squad which sat along the Hart House sidelines preparing an individual player chart. With this data and that to be gathered at the next three practice games, Dilworth will narrow the team down to a moldable size.

Sideline comments at the game concurred that the bulk of Dilworth's work would fall when the double bakers' dozen would be pared to the ten men he is able to dress for a game plus the substitutes he will carry.

Of the five combinations to sport their wares, the first and the last caught the fancy of the small but enthusiastic crowd. Both quintets were loaded with former Blues... Don Gibson, Gord Wallace, Bill Fountain, Murray Thomson, Stu Scott, Harry Mayzell, Colin Cranham, Doug Spry, Zeke Zeaton and Joe Meschino.

Don Gibson led all Varsity scorers with three baskets and was impressive throughout his tenure. Wallace netted two baskets.

Of the last five to take the floor, the Mayzell-Cranham-Meschino combine accounted for 13 points.

Barry Lowes, Whitley Clayton and Ross Sturges paced others during the remaining three "quarters".

For the visitors, Manager Bill Rogin led off with "do as I do and do as I say" by leading all scorers with his eight points. Shoom, Simon and Litvack also showed up well.

Varsity: Gibson (6), Fountain (2), Scott, Wallace (4), Thomson, Lowes (4), McAdam (2), McReynolds, Potruff (2), Choate, Swan (2), Clayton (5), Glat (2), Himell (5), Hennessy (4), Sturges (4), Andrews (1), Varga, Starr, Fitch, Mayzell (4), Cranham (5), Spry (2), Zeaton and Meschino (4).

Y.M.H.A. Seniors: Simon (2), Flicht (2), Litvack (4), Wiseman (2), Shoom (3), Takefman (2), Shetman, Rogin (8), and Shapiro (1).

Grants Too Low Claim McGill Vets

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 26 (CUP)—Presentation of a brief containing the facts on maintenance grants and housing of ex-service students at McGill University to the Parliamentary Committee on Veterans' Affairs was decided last week at a general membership meeting of the McGill Students Veterans' Society.

Results of a questionnaire, on which the brief will be based, show that McGill's 350 veterans find the present maintenance grants inadequate. They claim that the expenses of a student, whether married or single, are $100 a month. His grant is $60 a month, in the case of a single man, and $80 a month if married.

The president of the society stated that these figures should be of assistance to those on the Veterans' Committee who are interested in amending the present rehabilitation legislation.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U. C., is open to men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:
Brahms—Botschaft
Trene Liebe
Wienlied
Harris—Symphony No. 3
Beethoven—Symphony No. 6

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1945

No. 44

HERMANT TO ATTEND DEBATE TONIGHT

Unprecedented Registration Will Flood Campus In 1946

Possibility that registration at the University of Toronto may reach 15,000 by next September was suggested by figures recently given The Varsity by President Sidney E. Smith. The number of full-time students this term exceeds 9,500, with occasional students bringing the overall total to some 10,300 Dr. Smith said.

Amplifying his prediction of further mushroom growth, the President stated that 14,500 ex-service students were now attending colleges and universities across Canada, of whom 3,500 are at the U.

of T. D.V.A. experts told a recent conference of university heads in Ottawa that the total number of ex-service students in Canada should reach 17,000 by January, 1946, and 30,000 by September, 1946.

Since the University of Toronto, is expected to absorb some 30% of the Dominion-wide veterans' enrolment, ex-service students here should number 5,000 by next January and between 7,000 and 9,000 by next September. These plus an estimated 6,000 civilian undergraduates will make up the total enrolment.

The increase in registration next spring will be taken care of by the opening of the Ajax division, Dr. Smith said. From 1,700 to 2,000 Ajax students are expected to enter the first year of applied science and engineering there.

In September, Ajax will mushroom as its freshman population enters second year, swollen by the first year students now on the Queen's Park campus; simultaneously a new crop of Ajax freshmen will enter. Total registration at Ajax is expected to reach 4,000 by that time.

No relief could be seen for several years, the President concluded.

U.N.T.D.

All UNTD ratings, with exception of those who have applied for discharge will parade Thursday, 29th November, at 1900, at the CO-TC building, 119 St. George Street.

(2) Ratings are to use rear entrance to drill hall.
(3) Rig of the day, No. 3's with lanyards.

(D. A. F. Robinson)
Lieut. Commander RCNVR
Commanding Officer UNTD.

Varsity Calls Creative Writers For Christmas Literary Issue

Three men outstanding in their respective fields have agreed to assist in the preparation of The Varsity's forthcoming Christmas Literary Supplement, editor Hugh Kerner announced today.

Mr. John A. Hall, member of the staff of the Fine Art Dept. and instructor of the Hart House Art Classes and of the newly-formed Women's Art Group, has agreed to judge the art contributions and select a number for reproduction.

Poetry will be judged by Prof. E. J. Pratt, head of the English Department at Victoria College. Dr. Pratt, author of Brebeuf, Dunkirk, and other lauded poems, will select prizewinners in the light and serious verse departments.

Judge of the essays and short stories will be Prof. F. E. L. Priestley, member of the department of English at University College. Dr. Priestley is the author of a forthcoming book on the 18th Century radical thinker Godwin, and instructor in one of the U. C. writing classes.

"Prizes will be awarded for art, short stories, essays, light verse, and poetry," the editor stated "and the cream of the contributions in each section will be published in the special 8-page supplement."

"In addition, The Varsity is sponsoring a contest for suggestions for a suitable University War Memorial, the judges for which will be announced later. Each suggestion should be backed up by a 400-word essay, the best of which will also be published in the supplement."

New Co-operation Seen In Future

"This is a further indication of the growing co-operation between many campus organizations which we hope will continue in the future," said president Roy Clark in speaking of the forthcoming panel discussion to be held at the C.C.F. Club's open meeting this evening.

Heading the discussion, "Imperialism, the Spark of the Next War," will be Prof. George Grube, President of the C.C.F. Ontario Provincial Executive. John Habron, president of the Spanish Club, Morley Clarke, president of the Student's Christian Movement, Max Day President of the Avukah Society, and Telford Georges, of the U. of T. Debating Team are to participate in the panel.

Locale of the discussion is to be Wymtwood, the time set for 8:00 p.m.

Government Proposals Presented For Comment

DISCRIMINATIONS STRESSED

Mr. Sydney Hermant, Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, the Rev. W. Lyndon Smith, and writers of several recent controversial letters to The Varsity have all been invited to attend tonight's Hart House debate on the government's post-war policy, W. D. Lyon, Secretary of the Debates Committee, stated yesterday. The debate, open to all members of Hart House, will be held in the second-floor Debates Room at 8 p.m.

While only Mr. Hermant has definitely accepted the invitation, it is expected that the rest will attend and speak from the floor of the House. Mr. Hermant is assistant to the President of the Imperial Optical Company, currently the focus of Toronto's thorniest labor dispute. The other guests are expected to take sides on the race prejudice issue. The resolution to be debated is: "That this House resolutely condemns the post-war policy of His Majesty's Government at Ottawa."

Labor disputes, charges of racial and religious discrimination in the University and elsewhere, re-establishment of student veterans, and the deportation of Japanese-Canadians are expected to come in for vigorous comment. "The motion was purposely left elastic to let speakers introduce what matter they please," Lyon said. "Members speaking from the floor are expected to provide the meat of the evening's proceedings; and our guests are associated with the most controversial topics of the day."

The privilege of speaking from the floor is open to every member of the House, according to the published Rules of Procedure. Members wishing to speak may leave a note to that effect addressed to the Speaker at the Wardens' office before 5 p.m. today; they may also in the course of the debate pass a note to the Speaker requesting permission to speak. While such requests do not confer the right to speak, they facilitate the work of the Speaker.

The direct radio link in the United States will transmit a continuous exchange of important lectures, debates, music and sports between Swarthmore, Haverford, Bryn Mawr and the University of Pennsylvania, all members of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System. The IBS also includes campus stations at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia Brown, Williams, Union, Cornell, Bucknell, University of Virginia, Alabama and Stephens.

Establishment of the hookup was predicted six months ago by the first college broadcast, linking twelve IBS member stations for an hour-long program celebrating the San Francisco United Nations Conference. Before the war college stations were going on the air from Maine to California. Special wired-radio transmission systems confined their broadcasts to the college campus. In these stations, student actors, engineers, writers, announcers, musicians and sound effects men are now receiving invaluable radio experience.

Immediate administrative regulations to permit veterans attending university to earn as high as $75 a month without any deduction being made from their D.V.A. allowances were announced after yesterday's meeting of the Veteran's Committee of the House of Commons. Hitherto earnings of only $40 or less have been permitted without deduction. There was no indication that the allowances themselves would be raised from their present level of $60 a month for single students and $80 for married students with no children.

New Regulations For Veterans Pay

Varsity Sailors' V-J Day Spent In Jamaican Port

Fireworks and Jamaica rum combined to provide a group of U. N. T. D. volunteers with an explosively memorable V-J Day in Kingston, Jamaica.

Upon completion of their fortnight's training last summer at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, the wanderlust-bitten group volunteered to serve in Canada's navy during the summer.

Came several weeks of unexciting, token minesweeping in Halifax harbor, and then the entire nautical company was drafted onto a destroyer to be delivered to a Pacific coast shipyard.

"The first day out we were all out flat," one of the group recalled.

They put into the Jamaican port on that August Monday on which the war ceased. Native celebrants refused to reoil the ship. The crew decorated to aid the Jamaicans in their celebrations.

The voyage continued, taking them through the Panama Canal and on to Los Angeles where they examined in awe the mighty, ten-mile-long Kaiser Liberty shipyards.

It was during their stop over here that one of the group remembered a magazine account of the hospitality to servicemen of Hollywood's comedy star, James Gleason. The group decided to test the story's validity and spent the few hours intermission, before continuing their trip, in the luxury of Gleason's palatial home as his guests. He invited them to take a dip in his swimming pool.

From Los Angeles they travelled up the coast to Vancouver and by train to Ontario.

The men received the same treatment on board as the other ordinary seamen. "There was nothing lower than us," one of them commented, "than the keel."

"It was hard work," he admitted, "the heat was awful, and we had to take a lot of dirt from the officers, but somehow it seems worth it all now. Maybe it's just because we only remember the good things."

Pre-War Hart House Debaters Decided How They Would Govern

By Ross McLean

It was on January 31 in 1924 that a group of Hart House debaters filed out of the Debates Room. After a heated inaugural session, the House had viewed with confidence the formation of a Labor Government in England and said that it would welcome the development of a similar party in Canada.

With an important destiny in Canada, Hart House debates had begun.

Debating topics in the subsequent twenty-one years were to range from the British North America Act to de Valera, speakers were to include W. L. M. King and Viscount Bennett, and interesting sidelights were to be numerous.

Hart House Debates were equipped with a lucid set of rules of procedure. Their deliberate design was to permit a general "free and easy" behavior. As

Norwegian Youths At U.S. Colleges

(Exchange) University of Nevada—There is a possibility that the number of Norwegian students will soon answer the roll call at the University of Nevada, according to the Sagebrush, campus newspaper. Conferences on the subject have taken place between Senator E. T. Carville of the State of Nevada and officials of the Norwegian Embassy in Washington.

Within the past few months, between 200 and 300 Norwegian youths have been sent to the United States by their government to obtain college educations in American universities.

explained by Warden J. B. Bickertsteth, these rules were to allow members to come in and out of the Debates Room continually during a meeting. "We are anxious to get away from the idea of an audience sitting stiffly in their places throughout the evening," he said.

Women were admitted to a Hart House Debate only once. Forty co-eds took advantage of the opportunity and heard Hart House discuss the desirability of living in Moscow or Berlin.

Moscow won and the ladies were toasted with unexpected élan.

At the conclusion of the debate a member rose and declared that he wished to toast the female guests. He apologized for having no vodka, but substituted what he alleged was Heidelberg beer.

Excitedly, The Mail and Empire described the goings-on to its readers the next morning, then blushed to discover in the later dailies that the "Heidelberg Beer" was ersatz: vinegar and soda.

Hart House debates have in the past proven irresistible targets for impromptu stunts by undergraduate members.

During the Munich season Chamberlain was to the fore as the House weighed his policy against Eden's.

A pair of U.C. men entered the house in the unmistakable guise of Hitler and Chamberlain and performed a pantomime. Bergen-McCarthy stung with Hitler improperly in the dummy's role on Chamberlain's lap. "If people disagree with my policy," reasoned the student-Chamberlain after the laughter had faded, "let them consider my goat."

The United States flag went flying out the Debates Room window during a debate on Canada's share of Empire defense. The press took proper note and as a result university sympathies were again sorrowfully misrepresented.

The actual incident is related thus: The Stars and Stripes were carried solemnly into the room. A negative speaker in dramatic flourish, seized the flag and tossed it out the window. The flag was speedily retrieved from the ground below and the House Speaker was rebuked for letting it enter in the first place.

"Delendus est DeValera" was a 1934 resolution that witnessed the suggestion that the Speaker don a green tie as fitting clothing accessory. The Clerk was instructed to affix the cravat and "after some difficulty succeeded in so doing."

Appearance of a green carpet in the corridor outside the Debates Room provoked a member to rise on a point of order and inquire why it had been laid. Was it, the member prodded, an Omen of a Happy Event?

The possibility that it was gripped the House, and they swiftly voted congratulations to the Warden. The motion was reluctantly declared out of order.

The carpet was no omen, said the Warden. It had been decided to lay a carpet during each debate. The carpet remains today. It is now red.

Most publicized session was the one at which Viscount Bennett, as Speaker, addressed the House for an hour on the wisdom of Canada retaining a preferred position in Empire markets. The account of this speech was carried in all Canadian papers and also in the London Times. He carried the vote, 311 to 190, but a year later the House voted want of confidence in the Bennett government.

Tonight will be Number 70.

Editorial

Scientific Method

The mailbag has been bulging lately; and only pressure of space has saved our readers from feeling its weight more than they do. In particular, they have been spared the hypnosis of the subtlety of modern witch-words: "scientific method."

Without having made a statistically accurate analysis, we would guess that about one correspondent in three crams the sword of "scientific method" down our throat. One writer deplores current "attempts to decry the value of scientific method in the field of human problems" as being "really an attempt by those most skilled in the manipulation of abstract symbols to escape the necessity of bowing to fact"; in short, the old charge of priestcraft. Several others whoop with delight at the ignorance of "scientific method" displayed in our recent defence of Santa Claus.

Hot Air
We are unabashed. "Scientific method" is what we have called it: a witch-word; a tool to terrify; a fraud.

The very phrase is meaningless. Science is defined in the Concise Oxford Dictionary as "systematic and formulated knowledge"; scientific is defined as "according to the rules laid down in science for testing soundness of conclusions; systematic; accurate."

"Scientific method", therefore, means "methodical method." We should like to be shown any other kind.

We are tempted to offer a handier definition: "'Scientific method' is an implement of priestcraft: commonly used in attempts to terrify priests."

Up-to-date?

We do not accuse our correspondents, and other wielders of this term, of bad faith; we accuse them of short-circuited thinking. By "scientific method" they generally mean "modern method"; with the vague idea that no one has ever been methodical until now.

"It is manifest", they declaim, "that scientists are daily upsetting Old Concepts and Expanding the Boundaries of Knowledge. The ancients thought they lived in the centre of the universe, with a blue vault half a mile above their heads. Science has shown that we are specks in an infinite cosmos. Guesswork has been replaced by Indisputable Fact."

It would be truer to say that inaccurate observation has been replaced by accurate observation; principally because the past century has presented scientists with a multitude of devices wherewith to observe more accurately. If Aristotle or some other muddle-headed ancient had possessed a 200-inch telescope, he would have used it.

The Root of the Evil

Now the basis of the muddle about "scientific method" is that observation is confused with deduction. All conclusions are reached by deduction. Deduction then shows that all matter is composed of whirling electrons. Deduction then shows that the material part of Joe Smith is composed of whirling electrons.

When a man is going to make deductions, the more true premises he has the better. So observation, accurate observation, is to be encouraged as a provider of true premises. But the only provider of true conclusions is a system of thought at least as old as Aristotle.

The error is abroad, however, that a great number of true premises permit any number of conclusions on any variety of subjects that strike the experimenter's fancy. There are a great many numerical facts on the size and structure of the physical universe. There are no facts of that sort whatever on the place of man in that universe. Yet the "deduction" is drawn that because the universe is a very large place indeed, therefore man must be very insignificant indeed. Yet there is not a particle of evidence to deny that the whole has been created for his delight.

Similarly, there are being loudly announced to-day a great many conclusions of the kind called "probable". If "probable" indicates uncertainty about some of the facts, well and good. But it generally indicates nothing of the sort. It generally indicates that there is no possible deductive basis for the conclusion; but because the conclusion is dear to the experimenter's heart, the facts are said to "suggest" it. We have called that the statistical fallacy. It is very common in the social sciences.

Meanwhile, let us hear no more about "scientific method". It is not new, except when it is false.

—W. H. K.

The Varsity

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-6
University College
Business Office
Night Office

News Editor: George Foster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Assistant: Wally Belfry, 478
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant: Rex Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Mickey Mickshaw, 477
Women's Assistant: Polly Mott, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, 476

Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager: E. A. Macdonald

Co-editors: Blanche Stanley
Martha Schober

Books

Profane Virtues

It is relatively easy for a man living in the twentieth century to recapture the age of St. Joan or the time of Oliver Cromwell. He can understand violent social upheavals, persecution, revolution and war. He cannot easily comprehend an age in which people lived a relatively snug and secure life, an age in which wars did not affect more than a small fraction of the population of a country, an age in which Edward Gibbon could travel from Switzerland to England via France and spend a few days with friends in Paris, even though the two countries were at war. How indeed, living in an age of confusion and utter restlessness, should the twentieth century man be able to understand the eighteenth century, "an age conscious of its own enlightenment?"

Peter Quennell in his masterly book The Profane Virtues (Macmillans in Canada, $4.00) has succeeded in illuminating and interpreting the age through short and lively biographical studies of four of its most brilliant and representative men—Boswell, Gibbon, Sterne, and Wilkes.

These four men had little in common save their immense resources of vitality, their passionate desire to live and enjoy life. "They lived with gusto; they died regretfully." They embody different aspects of eighteenth century culture and achievement, and when one has finished with the book one is left with a sharp and distinct, if of necessity not quite complete, picture of an age.

It speaks for the ability and the grasp of Mr. Quennell that he has been able to achieve this in 220 pages. He does not fictionalize his material. There is no imaginary dialogue, that evil of most historical novels in which the author makes his people talk in language not even remotely like that of the age he is dealing with. Mr. Quennell shows that one can be dramatic without inventing dialogue. "As he (Boswell) sat in the back parlour of a London bookseller's shop drinking tea with the proprietor, Tom Davis and his wife, through the glass door he saw advance a majestic ungainly figure, a huge elderly man in dark ill-fitting clothes, with wrinkled black worsted stockings and a scrubby unpowdered wig... Now Johnson's vast awkward body rolled into the outer shop; and, as Davies announced his arrival with mock-heroic emphasis, Boswell breathlessly prepared himself for the perils of a first encounter."

The portrait of Wilkes is not as successful as are the other portraits, though it is highly important because it supplies a great deal of necessary background and rounds off the work. The accounts of the lives of Boswell and Gibbon are charming and most engaging.

The short biography of Sterne, however, is the best thing in the book, a dramatic portrait done with singular creative power: which was to be exchanged (Continued on page 3)

"FATE"

A One-Act Play
In One Act

ANNOUNCER (A lovable old codger if there ever was one)
GRANDMA (A typical unforgettable American grandmother)
JULKS (A butler of the lovable reserved variety)
MOWKS (A coachman, equally lovable and unforgettable)
O'REILLY (An American bartender, and a character)
WINCH (A die-hard tobacco farmer)

ANN: (Wearing full dress suit. Comes to lower left corner of stage.)

Ladies and Gentlemen of the theatre audience: I have the great honour to present tonight an opus of that genius playwright, Evinrude T. Dodds. The fame and popularity of the author or make unnecessary here an introduction to Dodds, but it might be well to indicate a few of his lesser know ideosyncrasies as appear in his treatment of the plot.

(At this point a person later identified as Julks enters back left and begins trapping by hand the flies and moths that have settled about the ANNOUNCER'S shoulders)

ANN: Dodds was born in 1878, and flunked six times out of third grade. This developed in him later life an intense distrust of all forms of "Book-larnin'" as he terms it, one which lingers to this very day. He was always a country man, and was evidenced by the fact that he never wore low-topped shoes. In fact he never wore shoes. His first play, "Rain in My Rain Barrel," was written at the age of seven in payment for a glass of beer. That was in 1885. Since then, 63 plays have streamed from his prolific pen, as well as three novels, 17 sonnets, 1 blank verse (rejected by New Yorker), four short stories, 9 match-box advertisements and several blank checks.

The play you will see tonight was conceived while Dodds was visiting a friend at Centre Island. He was idly watching a garbage scow nuzzle up to an anchored ore boat when genius struck. The result will soon be before you.

(Retires into the wing as the curtain rises on an Edinburgh street scene, complete with ash cans and alley cats. MOWKS and JULKS, in street attire, enter from RIGHT and LEFT respectively. They pass at centre stage and stop a few steps apart, (Continued on page 4)

STATION CHUM CKEY 1:00 P.M. SUNDAYS
8:00 P.M. SUNDAYS
HIS WORSHIP ROBERT H. SAUNDERS, K.C., (Osgoode - 27) is a very busy man. Every day he joyously welcomes returning troops - attends public luncheons, dinners and meetings of all kinds - sympathetically listens to delegations and tactfully hosts visitors - and still finds time to report to his em-ployers - "The Mayor Reports" is an accurate, factual, sincere report of a week of Toronto's history direct from the Mayor's desk.
"Meet the Mayor" is when the citizens ask the questions - and the Mayor answers. You have a Mike it last Sunday night! Toronto can be proud of its first citizen - and salesman.
published by B. A. Stevenson, C.L.U. and associates of the university branch.
57 Bloor Street, West. L1 4136.

JOAN RIGBY

COATS
DRESSES
TWEEDS
SWEATERS
SUITS
54 BLOOR W. MI. 4969

Hart House Bulletin Board

Hart House Debate

Members of Hart House interested in labour-problems, defects in the rehabilitation programme, racial discrimination, will be welcomed at the Hart House Debate at 8 p.m. tonight in the Debates Room

CASH! CASH!

FOR USED TEXT BOOKS FOR EVERY COURSE

Bring them in today - we will pay
HIGHEST CASH PRICES

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE RA. 1148
(1 Block south of Bloor)

U. of T. C.C.F. CLUB

TONIGHT: PANEL DISCUSSION

"IMPERIALISM" - The Spark of The Next War

Forum: Chairman, Prof. George Grube.
Morley Clarke, Pres. S.C.M.
Max Day, Pres. Avukah.
John Harbron, Pres. Spanish Club.
Telford, Georges, U. of T. Debating Team.

WYMLWOOD - 8:00 P.M.

Fri. and Sat. Evenings Sold Out

GOOD SEATS STILL AVAILABLE FOR ALL OTHER PERFORMANCES OF

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN'S

"PATIENCE"

PRESENTED BY

THE VIC. MUSIC CLUB

December 5, 6, 7 and 8

HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE OPENS

THURSDAY, NOV. 29 (10 A.M.-2 P.M. DAILY)

EVENINGS, $1.00

MATINEE (Dec. 8), 75c

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL
10 Avenue Road

MI. 8361
WE DELIVER

Art, Music and Drama

The Material Is There

ORGAN RECITAL

It is believed that Johann Sebastian Bach began to learn the organ at the age of fifteen. Between then and his death fifty years later, he composed what is now almost universally acclaimed as the world's greatest organ music, some of which was played by the University Organist, Dr. Healey Willan, in the third of his series of recitals in Convocation Hall yesterday. Dr. Willan did not fall below his usual standard of precision and musicality in the recital, despite the handicap of an organ that was out of tune.

On the program were the Prelude and Fugue in E Minor, Choral and Fugue in D minor and several chorale-pretudes. The Prelude and Fugue in B minor with which an effective climax was made to the recital is tinged with a melancholy extraordinary to Bach's larger organ works. The Prelude gives a sense of grandeur, although the dynamic force used was actually very small. The impressive Fugue opened with an ample forte which swelled both in volume and richness of tone to a magnificent close.

Dr. Willan will give the next organ recital in this series Dec. 11.

—JOHN GARTSHORE.

Frankly, we have underestimated the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. It does have the makings of a great orchestra when it is handled properly, and for the first time this year, it was handled properly last night. Ettore Mazzoleni is a fine conductor. His beat is precise, he has a good sense of volume, and his interpretations are musical. The tone of the orchestra is marred by an utterly incompetent brass section which must be improved or replaced before the orchestra can be considered first-rate.

The program last night was devoted to works by Beethoven. After an apathetic start, the Seventh Symphony received a vigorous and eminently satisfactory performance. I was interested in seeing whether Mazzoleni would take the trio of the third movement at the common slow pace or the Toscanini's ridiculously fast rate which is becoming the vogue among conductors. He settled for a sane compromise which I considered better than either.

The G major Piano Concerto, considered by many as Beethoven's greatest work in this form, is essentially a virile composition. Claudio Arrau's interpretation, especially in the third movement, was marked with feminine affectations

(Continued on page 4)

Speaking OF SPORT

By Jerry Ewins

Slugging and Splashing . . .

With outdoor fall sports drawing to a close, and the indoor team sports approaching the playoff stages, interest has been revived in the innocent pastimes of boxing, wrestling, fencing and swimming.

Throughout the week of December 10, the Junior Boxing, Wrestling and Swimming Tournament will be staged and possible participants are already rounding into shape with daily workouts in the Athletic Wing.

These Interfaculty Tournaments are always wide-open affairs with a mammoth entry from the undergraduate body, due chiefly, to the few restrictions placed upon contestants. The only men excluded from participating in the meets are those who have placed on former Varsity teams or have previously won an Interfaculty event.

Both boxing and wrestling fell down badly during the war years, but the returning servicemen have touched off a new spark of interest with their return to the campus and these two sports are looking forward to bumper crops this winter. Mel Glionna handles a ringfull of fisticuffs hopefuls every night from four to six, and George Daley's wrestling room is filled to overflowing with grunt and groaners during the same hours.

To ensure the proper conditioning among all athletes who plan to take part in the forthcoming tournaments, the Interfaculty Sports Committee, with the approval of the Athletic Directorate, has passed a ruling which stipulates that all contestants must bear the stamp of approval of the various coaches before qualifying for the events. This means that participants are required to turn out regularly to the daily classes, or satisfy the coaches that they are in good shape as a result of other sports and have a sound knowledge of boxing or wrestling.

Some of the times achieved in the current interfaculty Swim Meets have been really superb. If this is any indication of things to come both Interfaculty and Intercollegiate competition should reach a high level this year. Bill Moffat's men have broken several Interfaculty records in the Swim League this fall, and two or three Intercollegiate records have been touched.

All four tournaments provide each college and faculty with the opportunity to gain important points and to enhance its chances of winning the T. A. Reed Trophy, emblematic of Intramural athletic supremacy.

FIFTH YEAR . . .

Don Gibson

Five years is a long time and that is precisely what Gibbie is aiming at. For the past four years he held down a berth on the University of Toronto basketball Blues and judging from his performance of last night, a fifth season may be in the offing.

Gibson, a graduate of the School of Practical Science, is at present attending O. C. E. and, therefore, is eligible for intercollegiate competition. The tallest man on Roy Dillworth's list, he stands 6'4" and plays centre.

BUY
WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Books . . .

(Continued from page 2)

pected, because Sterne is a much more strange and complex personality than any of the others. He was a sentimentalist and yet a cynic, a lover of things beautiful who could at times be almost incredibly inhuman, a clergyman who pursued women as he pursued beautiful words and impressions, "rather because of their appeal to the imagination than for their claims on the intellect."

Mr. Quennell is a consummate stylist. His writing is graceful, at times powerful, and always lucid. He demonstrates clearly how learning and scholarship can be presented with wit and charm. Perhaps the most beautiful single sentence in the book is the description of Gibbon's style: "It recalls one of those broad impetuous rivers, Rhine or Rhone or Garonne, whose massive glassy swells are continually erupting into small whirlpools, breaking into angry cross-currents that foam and vanish again."

The four men come at the end of a great era. Even during their lifetime, though they could hardly know it, the harmonious civilization in which they had blossomed was slowly breaking up. The rule of "the profane virtues of sincerity and moderation" was almost over. A new age was dawning, an age far more ambitious, but also far more destructive.

HENRY KREISER.

VARSITY SOCCER TEAM PICTURE — WEDNESDAY, 1 P.M.

SPORTS CALENDAR

SOCCER Playoffs	3:15	BE Trin I	SPS. I	Fyfe
	3:15	FW Vic I	SPS. II	Eaton
LACROSSE	1:00	Jr. SPS	Med. II	Vetter
	4:00	Dent	SPS. III	Cornish
SWIM LEAGUE	4:00	St.M. B	SPS. IV	Morrow
	5:00	Med. I	Trin. C
		Wyc.	Sr. SPS.
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	Jr. SPS.	U.C. II
	4:00	Med Servicemen	For	Lyon
	6:30	Jr. U.C.	Jr. SPS.	Eilbeck
	7:30	III SPS. B	U.C. IV	Swan
	8:30	St.M. A	Trin. A	Swan
		St.M. B	Trin. B	Swan

LACROSSE STANDING COMMITTEE MEETING TODAY — 1:00 P.M.

Applications are now being taken in Athletic Office for Hockey, Basketball and Water Polo referees.

He divided the world into Elements

Because of his outstanding scientific work, Lavoisier was elected to the French Academy in 1768 at the age of 25. He spent most of his fortune fitting out a research laboratory, and hired as his assistants several brilliant young scientists. He disproved the faulty theories of the chemists of his day and laid the foundation of modern chemistry. We owe the modern concept of the element largely to him as well as many chemical terms used internationally today. He served the government in matters relating to agriculture, hygiene, coinage and the casting of cannon. He was falsely accused by Marat in the years following the Revolution and went to the guillotine in 1794.

JUST as Lavoisier fitted out a research laboratory to find out about chemistry, so International Nickel operates research laboratories in Canada, England and the United States to seek out new uses for Nickel.

With the help of this research, sales of Canadian Nickel doubled and trebled in the years following the first great war. Now, Nickel laboratories together with other scientists are again devoting their research to the problem of finding new uses for Canadian Nickel.

Canadian engineers, designers and metallurgists have free access to the scientific and technical data gathered by International Nickel from the whole field of metal research.

As industry gets to know still more about Nickel and its uses, the demand for Canadian Nickel will increase. Canada and Canadians will benefit accordingly.

FORWARD THROUGH RESEARCH

Canadian Nickel

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED, 25 KING STREET WEST, TORONTO

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

The University Advisory Bureau was set up on the authority of the Board of Governors to make available to Veterans a full-time advisory service. They would be glad to help you on any matters upon which you wish to consult them.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Champus Cat

(Continued from page 2)

dating recognition a-borning in their eyes.)

MOWKS: Haven't I seen you before somewhere?

JULKS: Chicago maybe?

MOWKS: I've never been in Chicago.

JULKS: Neither have I; it must have been two other guys!
(Chortling gaily, they draw rolled-up copies of Esquire from their sleeves and belabour each other about the head and ears with them. The AN-NOUNCER re-enters to investigate the trouble but they chase him off, clubbing him in glee.) (CURTAIN amid outraged cries of "Author" from the audience.)

Zet.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

NOW PLAYING Second and Final Week

Evgs. 8:20; MATS. Wed.-Sat. 2:20

Mon. Tues. Wed. Evgs.; Sat. Mat.

"COUNTRESS MARITZA"

THURS. FRI. SAT. EVGS.; SAT. MAT.

"ROSE MARIE"

PRICES (Tax Included)
EVGS.: 90c, $1.20, $1.80, $2.40 and $3.
MATS. Wed. and Sat.: 90c, $1.20, $1.80, and $2.40.
Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Life Of Schiller Shown In German

A German film centered about the life of Friedrich Schiller, the great German poet and dramatist, was featured at the second meeting of the University German Club held last night in the Women's Union.

The story traced Schiller's life from his enforced training at the Wurtemberg Military Academy to the production of his revolutionary play, The Robbers, and subsequent escape to a neighboring duchy.

Though the words were somewhat difficult to follow due to the worn-out condition of the sound track, the authenticity of the sets combined with the German dialogue create a general atmosphere of the period which largely appealed to the audience, and held their interest throughout.

A discussion on the merits of speaking German exclusively during meetings terminated in a decision to hold the greater part of the meeting in German, the general discussion to be in English.

Ex-Service Women

There is to be an informal gathering of all ex-service women of the University at

NEWMAN HALL

Monday, Dec. 3, 8 o'clock
Come and bring your knitting, and your sugar too!

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 7 St. W. Phone ML 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

Ex-Service StudentsLife Insurance

AT PREFERRED LOW RATES

e.g. $5,000.00 — $400 a Month

Call NORM RICHARDSON

Day-WA. 1844, Evening-HU. 3929

UNIVERSITY COLLEGEEX-SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN

The Principal and Staff of University College invite all ex-service men and women, registered in University College, to a reception to be held in their honour on Saturday Afternoon, Dec. 1st

in the Women's Union, 79 St. George Street, from three to five-thirty o'clock.

New and EntrenousThe Husband-Student

Hank is a medical student and Meg is his wife.

This is all recent so that perhaps their story will not be known to you. Hank has just been a medical student for a few months. Meg has just been a wife a little longer.

Hank's problem is not unique. He has been in the service for five years and five years form quite an academic chasm to leap across. Meg's problem is not uncommon either.

Meg is an idle bride.

She and Hank have a one-room apartment in the home of some of Hank's mother's friends in north Toronto. Their flat contains two beds, two armchairs, two chests-of-drawers and a table. Hank's books cover otherwise-barren surfaces and skeletons cover the walls.

"Yes," Meg agrees, "It is crowded—even for two."

Hank rises early. It is a geographical necessity if the T.T.C. is to deliver him to his first lecture on time. He has a hasty breakfast—without the traditional newspaper—and then commutes.

Meg darns socks, reads books: murders, political theories, journalistic accounts, anything she can get her hands on.

At noon she is allowed into the kitchen to warm herself a lonely bowl of soup. At 5.30 again the new bride is given the pass to the kitchen to cook their dinner which they carry to their room.

Dinner conversation is not easy. Meg knows nothing about medicine and his friends are not hers. She has done nothing all day and seen no one.

After dinner he gets out his books to study. Meg takes up her knitting and obliges, when necessary, with a quiet consoling "Yes, dear. It does seem awfully complicated."

There would have been less solitude had Meg become a student at the University too. She enrolled for two days. She and Hank had made such plans for their education together. But she took sick and there were two trying months during which her husband tried to nurse her and carry on his so-demanding studies. It was a case of the young fledgling doctor and husband studying and practising medicine and it exhausted both of them.

Hank and Meg were without entertainment while she was sick. Now that she is well again he tries to do better by her.

They went to the Meds-at-Home, their first time out in two months. He took her to a Physics lecture. They haven't missed one since.

And she reads.

The doctor forbids her to study or to go out in bad weather or, even, to read a treatise on Sociological Tendencies. (It did appeal to her.)

As for a piano in the room—!

She doesn't read any of the American magazines either. D.V.A. does not permit such luxuries.

Saturday's are the nicest days. They go to Hank's mother's basement where he has set up a laboratory and they spend a quiet day dissecting rabbits. They got a new one the other day, a nice-white one named Thumper. They will enbalm it this Saturday.

Meg's home is in the United States. Is she lonely? A little. Toronto does seem a little unfriendly when you know no one.

Not unhappy, mind you. But lonely. And yet Meg is not alone.

There are a hundred other Megs who share their husbands with a college course. There is a situation.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Transplanted

For the nonce, we feel free as a bird put in a larger cage... with more (relatively speaking) air to breathe. An orphan child (time out to wipe away salty tears) cast out from the "sports" page must needs take refuge within the shelter of the Features Department (thanks, chum).

Anyhoo... there were some basketball games played, and some two reported. Without more ado, here is what the gel sez... P. & H. E. seniors were a difficult team to beat, according to one of the St. Mike's team who fell before the Phys. Eds. onslaught. They were fast, co-operative, and Kay MacMillan (P. & H. E., not to be confused with Psychology and Honor Engineering) proved to be a jewel of a forward. The St. Mike's coach still refuses to single out any 'specially good players, sez he... they are all worthy of mention... (for lack of space we'll defer that till later).

In the second game, P. & H. E. II B garnered 38 points to win over O.T.'s II. The Occupational Therapy girls could not muster enough drive to breach the strong guard line of the P. & H. E. team... but both exhibited the grade of spirit from which champions are made.

The sign "30" will adorn these sheets after a postscript from Sue Gray, basketball president, has been added... to the effect that all games scheduled for Friday are to be played at 415 Yonge Street, not at O.T.E. ... also (her brow perceptibly darkening), any teams wishing to cancel games after the twenty-four hour deadline must reconcile themselves to the fact that they lose the game by default.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERSWhat's on Today*L.P.P. Club

8:00 p.m.—Open meeting tonight in the Women's Union. Leslie Morris, provincial leader of the L.P.P., will speak on "Student Interest in Labor Conditions."

C.C.F. Club

8:00 p.m.—In Wymilwood, panel discussion at open meeting of the C.C.F. Club. All are cordially welcome.

MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

Women students wishing to practice hockey or swimming who have not already had their medical examination should make their appointments immediately at the Women's Health Service, 44 Hoskin Ave.

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

Our stock of earrings is especially interesting just now, ... also bracelets, bangles and brooches. Come in and see for yourself.

32 Bloor St. East
(Near Red Cross Headquarters)
ML 5975

EATON'SSki Sweater that keeps the weather out...

and your natural body warmth in. [They're hand-made in British Columbia, from 100% virgin wool, and natural oil in the wool help to shed water. Here's a sweater that's made to order for you keen, cold weather skiers. Small, medium and large sizes in an attractive Ski/Moose design. Each 19.95

PHONE TR. 5111

Sporting Goods Department, Eaton's Main Store Main Floor

T. EATON CO. LIMITEDArt, Music, Drama

(Continued from page 2)

which I found distasteful. Arrau's technique is more than adequate; but he must have been tired for he immediately fell a bar behind the orchestra in the first movement. However, that situation was soon remedied and a performance which appealed to many followed. The second movement was very well done. Of all Mazzoleni's achievements last night his greatest came in the concerto where the accompaniment was perfect and the piano audible even when playing softly.

CLASSIFIED ADSLOST-REWARD

Red wallet, containing large sum of money between Mac's Drug Store, Huron and 5 Willcocks, Friday, about 1:30. Would finder please return to S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE

Full dress suit, for man, 6 feet tall, waist 32. Call HU. 2052, after 7 p.m.

LOST

Black zipper notebook, lost at Stadium Sat. afternoon; contains Medical notes. Please leave at S.A.C. office or phone LY 7187.

WANTED

Two ex-servicemen, 1st yr. C. & F., desire tutor in Actuarial Science. Apply Box T, The Varsity.

LOST

Small black suitcase, containing University text books, valuable lecture notes, urgently needed. Liberal reward. HY. 5129.

PERSONAL

There will be a big Christmas meeting of the Ale and Quail on Thurs. Dec. 27th.

RUCHPsychology AND Life

Get Your Copy Now

SUPPLY LIMITED

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO PRESS

BOOK DEPT.

LOST

Gold tortoiseshell Rex compact, lost in University College, Friday morning. Keepsake. Please call HU 1407, or leave at S.A.C. office.

ROOM AND BOARD

For girl in Leaside home, in exchange for very simple duties. Apply to the S.A.C. office.

LOST

Schaeffer pen and pencil, green striped in brown leather Parker case.

FOR SALE

Pair of skis, Chalet, 6 ft., with bamboo poles, and harness. HY 8157, after 6:30 p.m.

LOST

Double strand of pearls lost Wednesday, between O.C.E. and Annesley. Please return to S.A.C. office Reward

LOST

Signet ring, engraved "T.G.H." Sat. night on or near campus. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

"..he loves me!"

THE COCA-COLA COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.
Toronto, Canada

Adopt Blitzed University Is S. A. C. Proposal

LETTER CONTAINS SUGGESTION

Plans for a mammoth pre-Christmas drive during which students at the University of Toronto would "adopt" a European University and send parcels of food and other Christmas packages to its students were mooted at yesterday's meeting of the Students' Administrative Council. A committee of three Council members was appointed to set up organization for the drive.

First suggested by W. Kohn, student in the School of Graduate Studies, in a letter published in The Varsity last Monday, the plan was enthusiastically supported by Council members. A supplementary letter from Kohn urging Council action was tabled at the meeting.

Except for the broad principle of sending Christmas aid to European students, the Council is at the moment committed to no detailed plan. It is probable, however, that a specific University will be "adopted," according to Ed. Kirkland, President of the S.A.C. The Council committee has authority to decide on a plan and set up a campus-wide organization to carry it out.

Kohn's proposal, as outlined in his letter, was for the U. of T. to "adopt" a European University and ease the situation of its students a bit by sending them food parcels as Christmas gifts (better late than never!).

"Parcels could be sent by individual Varsity students or by small groups of two or three to the students of the 'adopted' university," Kohn continued.

"I have contacted the Netherlands legation, and find that the names of Dutch students could be obtained without much difficulty. Price of parcels: $3.23 to $5.85. Difficulty involved: negligible (made-up parcels can be sent through the stores)."

The Council executive emphasized that the drive was wholly distinct from that being held by the International Students' Service in January. "The I.S.S. are committed to a definite program laid down by the World Student Relief organization," Kirkland said.

"I.S.S. will contribute to a general fund to aid students everywhere. We hope to make a concerted effort in aid of a specified University. Also, our parcels will arrive in time to be of some value during the winter months."

It was emphasized that there would be no overlapping, nor were I.S.S., in the Council's opinion, failing of their duty. Severity of want in Europe cannot be overemphasized, one member said. "I.S.S. are doing their best to alleviate continuing hardships. What we should

None Would Know Should Varsity Go

"Even if Convocation Hall were to burn down The Varsity Literary Supplement would ignore the news," Editor Hugh Kenner declared when he talked over plans for the special eight-page tabloid. "It's to be turned over exclusively to undergraduate creative work in literature and art."

The ad-less, news-less issue of Friday, December 14, is being prepared to make a lasting record of the best in serious poetry, light verse, essays, short stories and drawing on the 1945-46 campus. It will be the only all-University periodical of its kind.

The board of adjudicators has requested that all material to be considered for publication be submitted before 5 p.m., next Wednesday, December 5. Clearly marked with the author's name, year, faculty, and address, manuscripts and sketches should be addressed to the editor.

Cash prizes are being offered for contributions adjudged best in each class of writing and in art work.

RECORD HOUR

The record hour welcomes today, in addition to its usual listeners, the members of the International Students Club. The program will consist of folk music of many peoples.

Prop Man Has Trouble With Wilder

Thornton Wilder has spoken twice from the Hart House stage this season. Once with, once without atmosphere. Bob Simpkins and Carmen Guild have been respectively the men to provide it or not provide it.

Simpkins, stage manager for the Vic production of "Skin of Our Teeth" was faced with the task of providing the following required props: one dinosaur, one baby mammoth, one roller chair, one Atlantic City boardwalk flat complete with side shows and Turkish bath.

Contrast the simple inventory of stage props needed by Guild for the U.C. production of "Our Town" Two step ladders, eight kitchen chairs, two kitchen tables, two garden trellises—a compromise by the author.

For Simpkins the duties involved realistic sound and light effect to herald the end of the world. For Guild it entailed mere off-stage clanking of milk bottles, clucking of chickens and whinnying of horses.

Wilder, the theatre's most consistent shatterer of conventions, demanded the most elaborate settings and scenery for his "Skin of Our Teeth" and refused them for "Our Town" in order to suggest the ubiquity of his play's community.

As a result Simpkins was forced to devise intricate carved "flats" and backdrops that would vanish in an instant as the script insisted. It was on the other hand necessary only for Guild to supervise the lighting of a bare wall in order to suggest the time of day or night.

Someday, Simpkins and Guild feel, Thornton Wilder may write a play that will hit a happy medium in the scenery department.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1945

No. 45

DEBATE CONDEMNS GOVERNMENT 64-52

"Are Pickets Within Law?" Auld Cites Criminal Code

F. C. Auld, K. C., professor of Jurisprudence at the University of Toronto School of Law, was consulted by The Varsity on the question of the legal status of undergraduates currently participating in picketing at the Imperial Optical Company and at Icelandia. Students demonstrating their sympathy with the Imperial Optical Company strikers are reported to be members of the University Labor-Progressive Club. Those engaging in picketing the North Toronto skating rink style themselves a non-political, humanitarian group, protesting an alleged case of racial discrimination.

Professor Auld referred The Varsity to the following section of the Criminal Code of Canada, which he termed "pertinent."

Unlawful Assembly

Section 87—An unlawful assembly is an assembly of three or more persons who, with intent to carry out any common purpose, assemble in such a manner or so conduct themselves when assembled as to cause persons in the neighborhood of such assembly to fear, or reasonable grounds, that the persons assembled will disturb the peace tumultuously, or will by such assembly needlessly and without any reasonable occasion provoke other persons to disturb the peace tumultuously.

(2)—Persons lawfully assembled may become an unlawful assembly if they conduct themselves with a common purpose in such a manner as would have made their assembling unlawful if they had assembled in that manner for that purpose.

Vagrancy

Section 238—Every one is a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant who (e)—Loiters on any street, road, highway or public place, and obstructs passers by standing across the foot-path, or by using insulting language, or in any other way;

(1)—Causes a disturbance in or near any street, road, highway or public place, by screaming, shouting, swearing or singing, or by being drunk, or impeding or incommoding peaceable passers.

Section 239—Every loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding six months or to both.

Four Geophysicists Have Their Day As President Promotes Professors

President Sidney Smith has announced four appointments in the Sub-Department of Physics. Col. J. T. Wilson and Dr. A. A. Brant have been promoted to Associate professors. J. H. Hodgson has been appointed Assistant Professor of Geophysics while Dr. N. B. Keevil will continue in a similar position.

Col. Wilson graduated from Trinity College in 1930 and did post-graduate work at Cambridge and Princeton. In 1939 he joined the Royal Canadian Engineers, becoming Technical Liaison Officer at Military Headquarters, and later Director of Operational Research. He was one of the founders of the Arctic Institute of North America and is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada as well as several other scientific societies.

After a distinguished athletic career as a hockey player, Professor Brant graduated from Victoria College in 1932. After working on atomic disintegration at Princeton he went to Berlin for his Ph.D. He joined the staff at Toronto in 1936.

He has carried out geophysical work at Steep Rock Mines in Northern Ont., and was consultant for the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. in 1942. In 1943 he was consultant in the Ontario Department of Mines and the next year directed work at Great Bear Lake for the Department of Munitions and Supply.

Professor Hodgson graduated in Applied Mathematics in 1940. As an undergraduate he worked with seismograph parties in the American south-west. Upon graduation he became a field engineer in Texas and has recently been on the staff of the Ontario Department of Mines. He is a member of the Seismological Society of America and the American Geophysical Union.

A fellow of the Royal Society of Canada Dr. Keevil graduated from the University of Saskatchewan in 1930 and went to Harvard as a Research Associate. For the past four years he has been investigating radio-activity of North American rocks for the Geological Society of America.

Sympathizers Give Their Reasons For Joining Optical Picket Line

Yesterday morning some 30 undergraduates joined striking members of Local 514 U.E.W. (C.I.O.) on the picket lines in front of the Dundas St. plant of the Imperial Optical Co. Several of them were asked by The Varsity "Why, as a university student are you here this morning?"

Replies were as follows:

Kurt Dahl, II Moderns: "I am here because I have been engaged in the same struggle for 15 years in Germany, France, Belgium, and Holland. For these things I went to fight in Spain. Organization and solidarity of intellectuals as well as working people can ensure the equitable solution of labor problems."

Bill Fairley, IV General: "The students must identify themselves with movements outside the university which are ultimately in their own interests."

Lou Bachner, I Soc. and Phil: "I am completely in sympathy with the workers at Ford and Imperial Optical. The most effective way I can demonstrate this is to identify myself here on the picket line. If we 30 people here do not represent the whole university I suggest that the others find a similar method of expressing their views."

Edith Spiegel, III Sociology: "I believe in the right of labor to organize and I believe in doing something about my convictions."

Bess Podoliak, III Sociology: "I have definite sympathies with the workers; I believe we are citizens as well as members of the university. I want to counteract the idea of a university as an ivory tower."

Bob Hurst, Occasional student: "It is important that students should interest themselves in the welfare of the country. And when we hear of such things going on we should come down and see them for ourselves."

Bob Endelman, IV Sociology: "Intellectuals who have worked out the problems of labor in their own minds, apart from emotional bias of personal opinion, shouldn't remain in cloistered isolation from social realities, but should give concrete expression to their intellectual views."

Consider Main Features Score "Smugness" of Policy

SYMPATHIZE WITH UNION MEN

The Dominion Government's post-war domestic policies were "re-olutedly condemned" by a vote of 64-52 at last evening's Hart House debate.

Charges and counter-charges focussed on Ottawa's "sorry lack of integrated policy"—in labor relations, in handling of minorities, and in social reforms—as the House witnessed a hot hour of cross-fire from the floor.

Presence of John Wigdor, of Local 514, United Electrical Workers (CIO) and Sydney Hermant, assistant to the president of the Imperial Optical Company, sparked the discussion.

Mr. Hermant, currently appearing before the Ontario Labor Court, was under oath to refrain from public comment upon the strike at his downtown plant.

Deploping Ottawa's desire for "sweeping powers", D. H. Hay, of Victoria College, second speaker for the opposition, envisaged Canadian citizens today as "little children following an omnipotent master's faltering and uncertain footsteps". He cited Bill 15, seeking extension of the War Measures Act, as evidence.

He complained of "smugness" on the part of the government, criticized its habit of "putting important policy last and minor matters first", accused Ottawa of a lack of foresight in the "shameful delay" at Sunnybrook Hospital and in the peacetime reconversion of Research Enterprises Limited. R-E-I, he said, potentially a world leader in industry, has been broken up and sold to American companies coming to Canada to take advantage of cheap labor.

W. H. F. Kennedy, U.C., mover of the resolution, in a review of the government's attitude toward Japanese-Canadians, declared that "the problem had at its roots the very things for which we fought." He recommended that a definite attempt be made "to inform the public of the worth of these fellow citizens."

Strikes at the Ford Motor Company in Windsor, Brown's Bread Limited, and the Imperial Optical Company in Toronto, have demonstrated the need for "an impartial third party" in labor-management disputes. This party should be the Dominion government which has the power to effect a final settlement, he stated.

"Labor relations must be based essentially on mutual confidence and on the will to co-operate," maintained A. D. Knox, U.C., defending the government. "This has been notably lacking on both sides." Reference to Hansard would prove the Government's "distinct support of the cause of labor."

He lauded the government's well-defined program for the gradual release of wartime controls. Its criterion was the avoidance of any economic dislocation such as inflation. He suggested that the government was being made a scapegoat in the Jap-Canadian issue, and listed incidents of intolerance in Alberta, and in Ontario at Ingersoll and Forest Hill Village. "Place the blame where the blame is due," he demanded.

Praise of the government's veterans' re-establishment and agricultural program came from the final speaker J. Stanborough of the Faculty of Applied Science. Gratuities are paid to the returning Canadian veteran on a ratio of 6:5:3 in comparison with those of New Zealand and United States respectively. The government has also moved to prevent fluctuation of prices in major farm commodities and so to remove the farmer from his financial see-saw.

Mr. Wigdor, U.E.W. official, spoke in support of the resolution although emphasizing that this carried no implied support of the "Tory government of Duplessis or Drew."

Speaking generally on the Dominion Government labor policy Mr. Hermant endorsed the restraint evident in Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell's conciliation methods. "You cannot force good will, cooperation is a two-way street."

That projected post-graduate work in the Paris Latin Quarter, that business with the slightly shady angle you've worked out after four years in C. and F.—all will be discovered and recorded. The scene of this inexorable research is the Records Department in Simcoe Hall where an inquisitive staff of six headed by calm, competent-looking Miss M. Thompson, are the Sherlock Holmeses who feed the files with information on every undergraduate and graduate of U. of T. since 1844. The original purpose of the Department had been to keep the addresses of all graduates in order that they might vote in elections to the Senate, but right from its inception in 1919 the nosy ones tried to keep as complete records as possible.

Campus activities, scholarships, marriages, business appointments, general claims to fame are uncovered through phone calls, tracers, printed forms sent to the last known address of the elusive graduate, and a microscopic perusal of The Varsity, daily newspapers and other journals. Furthermore, wherever the graduate wanders a special set of geographical files follow him.

The Records Department also acts as a deluxe information bureau. Everyone from banquet chairmen seeking background material for an introduction, to credit bureaus enquiring about enlistments, have found their answers in the files.

"Do University graduates ever climb flag-poles, go on hunger strikes or lead South American Revolutions?" But Miss Thompson shook her head gently, (perhaps regretfully), "No, they're pretty orthodox in their activities."

"Be International" Is Club Invitation

A novel record program has been planned to feature the meeting of the International Students' Club at four o'clock this afternoon in the Women's Common Room of University College.

The club's purpose, it was emphasized by the executive, is to assist students of all origins in becoming acquainted with the many distinct national cultures represented on the campus. Students from abroad are enabled to meet Canadian students in a personal and cordial atmosphere and to discuss with them the problems peculiar to both.

Frances Zwick, secretary of the organization, pointed out that the club has done much to lessen provincialism on the campus and that it has helped to build international consciousness among the students.

All students, and particularly the freshmen who are apt to be slow in taking advantage of campus organizations, are offered a special welcome to the meeting.

Students On Trek To Art Sanctuary

Tomorrow, the University Fine Art Club will trek en masse to the studio of Dr. A. Y. Jackson, Canadian painter who is reputed to be more familiar with Canadian topography than any other Canadian artist. Dr. Jackson toured through the Canadian West last summer, returning with several canvases on which were recaptured the scenery he had seen. These will be on exhibition tomorrow at 8:15 to help illustrate the lecture on his work, which will be given by the artist himself. Dr. Jackson is known as one of the well-known Group of Seven.

The studio is situated at 25 Severn St., one block north of Davenport, off Yonge.

Correspondence

We Hear From The Critics

We have succeeded in one thing at least—we are being read. We have succeeded in something else—in making a substantial part of our reading public hopping mad.

It is not as perverse as it sounds, to say that we write largely to annoy people. There is no point in preaching to be converted. Like at least one other writer, we "have no opinions—only convictions"; and they happen to be convictions with which many of our readers disagree.

Naturally, we should like them to agree; though there is little hope for some of them. But if we cannot make them agree, we can at least make them think; and if their contrary convictions survive that ordeal, we shall have done our small part in forging campus thought.

On this page we present a trickle from the flood of letters that have descended upon this office in the past few days. They are all worth reading; because they illustrate aptly current thought.

At the moment, we offer no replies, because we want to leave as much space as possible for the objectors. Perhaps other readers will share with us some of the labor of replying. But in the next few days we hope to deal with most of the points covered in these letters.

"Truth comes by conflict."

—W. H. K.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Once again, or shall we say, as usual, The Varsity has clearly illustrated its reactionary policies, this time in suggesting it isn't advisable for students to take part in demonstrations concerning racial and social equality.

Perhaps the reason for the picketers' actions could be clarified by first letting The Varsity's editorial staff have access to one fact, namely that these demonstrations are held to wake the people up. Winning the strike or having the proprietor of the Iceland rink apologize were the two things furthest from their minds.

People have up till now usually just talked about these things, and The Varsity is still just talking. Talk! Talk! False painted orations stressing racial and social equality; but do we ever have The Varsity say, "Let's do something to further the cause of the people?"

When we hear of University students in Argentina fighting desperately against reaction and fascism, or of how students in Poland, Austria, not to mention many in Germany before and during the installation of Nazism, fought and demonstrated to make this a decent world to live in—we, the University of Toronto, stick out like an ugly duckling in this family.

The fact that only a small part of the students were picketing to do away with racial and social injustice should indeed make the faces of the others here at school turn purple with shame. Those few are the true spirited University students.

The Varsity and the others who received a big laugh from it are only a discredit to the institution.

The common man who has no college education needs our help. He has been used as a toy by big business men much too long now. Where can they turn for help with but a few good leaders? Thus it is up to the university to come to their aid.

It is up to us to show not only in words but in actions, demonstrations, and strikes that there is injustice and that that injustice has to be done away with if we are to carry on as civilized, intelligent, free people.

I might ask The Varsity, "Don't you think it's time you ceased pretending you want justice? How about setting a spark once in a while? How about leading the students?" Let's quit making excuses for reaction and conservatism! They have enough crooks backing them. Let's become, as university students, champions of justice and true democracy.

—J. J. REZETNIK.
I U.C.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

With reference to an article entitled "Placard-Hung Students Join Picket Lines" in your Friday, Nov. 23, edition:

Do you not think that it is carrying our prided University Democracy too far, when twenty vociferous, radical students have the bumptiousness to join picketing strikers, at 7:30 a.m., caparisoned with signs stating to all who were up to read them, "U. of T. students support strike," "Hermant evading the Law," "Union security is our security" (Local 999, D.V.A.), and "We are students; is this our business? You're darned right it is; we don't want Fascism here."

I ask you? Is there anything more Fascist than a minute minority, with extremely vocal ideas, taking it upon themselves to represent the great majority without any authority whatsoever? It seems to me that Hitler used the same methods most successfully, in his struggle for "Justice".

I wonder how many of these strikers and their impulsive supporters in the University saw action overseas?

—W. A. E. SHEPPARD,
II Pass.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I have read with interest your well-written editorial of Tuesday's date headed Unfair to Varsity. I infer that your objection to University students taking part in a strike by picketing is based on the grounds that the issue is controversial, and that the University will therefore appear to some of the partisans in an unfavorable light. It should be pointed out, of course, that to those people, in this case labor and labor sympathizers, who are on the other side of the fence, the students referred to will appear as champions rather than troublemakers.

You assert at the same time that the University has a moral responsibility to society, and should take up an "unequivocal position" on such clearcut issues as, for example, racial discrimination. I doubt very much, Mr. Editor, whether any issues can be found in which the distinction between right and wrong is so sharp as you imply. On the example you have chosen, a great many people, including Mr. Bettson, whose letter appears side-by-side with your editorial, can find room for argument. I fear that if the University must refrain from arousing the ire of any party to a controversy, then it will have no recourse but to withdraw into an ivory tower and view the world as a disinterested spectator. This is certainly not your wish, and I feel that you must therefore reconsider your position on this question.

It might be argued in this particular case that those who are antagonized number among them many who are influential and powerful, and that their displeasure should not be incurred. Such a fear would amount virtually to a suppression of freedom of expression, something which the University must not countenance. It could lead only to an institution meek and subdued in spirit, incapable of exercising that moral leadership which you affirm is one of its responsibilities.

Take sides, if you like, on the issue in question, but do not take to task those students who were justifiably, and I might add courageously, expressing their sympathies.

—BERNARD ETRIN,
Lecturer, Faculty of Applied Science.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The writer of Tuesday's editorial seems to be in the throes of a struggle with a powerful persecution complex. Universities are sorely discriminated against, their students are sadly misjudged as a band of immature troublemakers gone berserk. As the editorialist sees it, a very disheartening situation indeed.

To correct it, students should enlarge their ivory tower to include one conference-room specifically designed to accommodate a permanent sub-committee of the U. of T. fact-finders association. Preferably it is to be a room in the basement, hidden from the gaze of the occasional visitor from the outside world who could not but mistake it for a seething hotbed of subversive underground activity.

Students, according to him, should

Ads Multiply

Lose News

Keep Record Hour

"Gad!" Genius Exclaims

Gad Indeed!

Indeedy!

"Gad," muttered the advertising genius, Phil More-Space, to the editor of The Varsity. This was a noisy outlet for the ecstatic joy Phil always felt when he replaced another feature in The Varsity with advertisements.

"The Greenland Society For Inebriated Cops guarantees us two-column ads every day for the next five years," shouted Phil gaily. "Of course we'll have to throw out the Editorials."

The Editor, Porky Shorty Tenner, looked confused. "But with ads by International Pickle, Imperial Coal-Oil and Metropolitan Door-Knobs all we have left is the Record Hour!"

"Where's your gratitude to our advertisers?" snapped the advertising genius. "Where would The Varsity be to-day if it weren't for magnanimous contributors like Treacleson's pimple-proof chocolate bar and Fargooson's Electrolysis Cure for Bearded Co-Eds?"

"Don't kid yourself, continued the genius, 'nobody patronizes our advertisers. Nobody's cigarette tastes different lately and nobody reads past Raco's Cats anyway."

"Why, take the paper yesterday. The front page carried that sensational story about the two naked co-eds caught smoking in the U.C. Rotunda, and the ad for:

"FAMOUS BIG-PORE BEAUTY CREAM—Guaranteed to remove wrinkles from prunes! Don't try it on your face—it only seems to work on prunes."

"And the second page," raged Porky Shorty, "all it carried was a review panning Beethoven's 5th and an ad for: 'WATER-PROOF STERILE SOAP—the only soap in the world guaranteed not to float, not to lather and not to stop B. O.—just sits and keeps you company in the bath-tub.'"

"A very soaperior advertisement" grinned the advertising genius, "and almost as good as the third page with—"

"That's all, brother," gritted Porky Shorty, who sadly riddled the genius in the belly with a tommygun, wrapped him in a long list of classified ads and dropped him into a seething vat of boiling oil and molten nickel. RACO foretell such misconceptions about an institution which is really meant to view race and labor problems with an Olympic calm and to remain aloof from incomprehensible "squabbles" of that kind.

I trust I am not misconstruing the editorial when I understand it to say that the only hope to escape criticism is to keep your mouth shut and to remain inactive: a rather sorry existence for anybody to lead, especially students. Evidently, the news of what happened to umbrella-wavers has not yet penetrated the walls of the editor's office.

The editorial strongly urges an unequivocal stand by students against racial discrimination, whether on this campus or elsewhere, but hastens to contradict itself by deploring student action on North Yonge Street. Undoubtedly, labor problems admit of the most diverse interpretations, but so do race problems, on the basis of your own argument.

When, therefore, as the writer correctly observes, "a mere handful of students" took action on both issues, they were merely supporting a cause which they believed to be right. An intelligent public would just as little regard them as representative of student opinion as the football enthusiasts who recently adorned Convocation Hall. The University's good name as a whole is not involved at all.

Picobac's the pick of the Frat House! What a tobacco... so mild so fragrant so cool... so long lasting.

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO

Tailored Treasure

Trim and slim, with a tuck-it-in or leave-it-out shirt, these two-piece pyjamas in colourful prints of spun rayon or cotton are strong on looks and long on wear. A large and interesting assortment to make Christmas shopping a delight or personal selection a pleasure.

$2.98 to $5.95

Evangeline

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 751 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pape

In Hamilton—King and John Sts.

Do Your Christmas Shopping Early

Art, Music and Drama

Good Start For "Five O'clock"

There is every indication that this year's series of Wednesday Five O'Clocks will maintain the high standard of performance established last year.

Furthermore, the list of works to be played is promising, including as it does many modern chamber works as well as the standard classics. The series, then, should arouse enthusiasm amongst those who take their chamber music seriously. And yet the programs are such that those who take it casually, if that is possible, will also find them of interest.

The first concert in the series was given by the Parlow String Quartet yesterday afternoon. Their playing is about the same as it was last year, rough occasionally but generally very fine.

The Schubert C major Quintet, played yesterday with Cornelius Ysselstin as second cellist, is a monumental work. It is almost frightening to think what Schubert might have produced had he lived past his thirty-second year, the year in which he penned this masterpiece. Although it is replete with lyricism, the work achieves a dramatic intensity seldom if ever equalled in music. The performance was intelligent and musical. The second movement was played more quickly than the pace to which I am accustomed, but it lost only very little of its tremendous effect on this account.

The other work on the program, Tema con variazioni from Quartet in A, Op. 3 by Glière, I found uninteresting. The theme is trivial and can't withstand the work to which the composer puts it. However, the man who wrote the program notes likes it.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN.

Casavanti Series

Someone has said that the pipe organ is too heavy an instrument for a woman. This was definitely disproved last night by the celebrated New York organist, Claire Coci, in the first of this season's Casavanti Society concerts. Miss Coci showed perfect control over the large Eaton Auditorium instrument throughout her recital. Her adroit manipulation of stops, pistons, and pedals alike, coupled with her more than pleasing manner, delighted last night's audience.

On Miss Coci's program were the Bach Prelude and Fugue in A minor, Liszt's Prelude and Fugue on B.A.C.H., and two movements from the Modale Suite by the Dutch contemporary composer, Flor Peeters. The Bach was played in good classical style, brilliantly registered and well phrased. The Liszt and Flor Peeters, both modern pieces, gave immense scope for displaying marvelous manual and pedal technique, and dexterity in quick but smooth registration.

The Toronto Men Teachers' Choir, under Eldon Brethour, who assisted Miss Coci, gave a pleasing performance. The only number which was sung unaccompanied was the old English hunting-song, John Peel, in a pleasant, novel arrangement. The Choir opened its section of the program with Gluck's Evening Song and Thanks be to Thee by Handel, well rendered, but with piano.

The next recital in the Casavanti Society Series on December 12, will feature the three Toronto organists, Hazel Brillinger Olsen, John Hodgson, and Roma Page, assisted by the Malvern Collegiate Choir, directed by Roy W. Wood.

—JOHN GARTSBOR.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Co-editors: Henry Westcott
Phoebe Taylor

(Continued on page 4)

S.P.S. Loses Twice In Soccer Downed By Vic And Trinity

S.P.S. succumbed to a double trouncing in yesterday's semi-final soccer tilts to leave Vic and Trinity to battle it out on Friday for the Arts Faculty Cup. The firsts bowed out 2-1 to Trinity on the back campus, while their conferees were downed and drowned 7-0, by Vic on front.

Both games were played despite the worst field conditions thrown at them by the weatherman in years. Players were virtually covered in mud from head to toe, and the wet, heavy ball made the going rather slow.

Vic showed a lot of power, especially on such treacherous footing, and their on-sided win rates them as slim favorites for the championship. Roberts booted home three goals for the red and gold, and Hikichi scored another pair, providing the main punch of the Vic attack between them. Vic never looked back after the initial goal, and led 4-0 at the half. Reed and Plewman accounted for the other two scores.

Trinity I ran their string of consecutive victories to nine when they defeated S.P.S. I. MacDonald broke the ice with a ground shot to the off corner, but Jung got this one back for School from a scramble in front of the goal.

Jung was the first man to beat Mathews, the Trinity goalie, this season. Adamson broke the halftime deadlock with a shoulder high shot into the S.P.E. net, and although School fought back grimly the Trinity team held a slight edge in the play throughout the whole second half.

SPORT IN SHORT

Soccer

Trinity I, 2—S.P.S. I, 1.
Vic I, 7—S.P.S. II, 0.

Lacrosse

Meds. II, 14—Jr. S.P.S., 7.
Dents., 10—S.P.S. III, 6.

Volleyball

Med. Servicemen, 2—Forestry, 1.
Jr. U.C., 2—Jr. S.P.S., 0.
III S.P.S. B, 2—U.C. IV, 1.
Trinity A, 2—St. Mikes A, 1.

Lacrosse Playoffs Start Next Week

The lacrosse playoff schedule was drawn up by the Standing Committee for Lacrosse at yesterday's meeting in the Athletic Directorate room. It was also decided that two referees should officiate at each playoff game.

St. Mikes and S.P.S. IV will replay their league game which ended in a 6-6 draw on Monday night, due to an S.P.S. protest which was ruled valid by the committee. The game takes place today at five o'clock.

The winner of this game will play P.H.E. next Monday at one. The winner of today's Meds. U.C. game will play Forestry, Group III champs, Monday at four.

The survivors of these sudden-death affairs will then go on to the semi-finals, meeting Vic. Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. and Meds. I at four, respectively.

The finals will be the best two out of three games, with the teams playing eight-minute quarters instead of the usual six. They are slated for next Thursday at five, Saturday at 12:30, and Tuesday at five (if necessary).

Speaking OF SPORT

By Jerry Ewins

From Wall To Wallbars

It will take some doing to surpass the brand of Intramural lacrosse which is unfolded before the bloodthirsty eyes of a few scattered spectators in the big gym these days. Some of those games pack just as many thrills as that homey May evening when father dropped his cigar into little Willie's board of fireworks. The Donnybrook Fairs that highlight most of them would do credit to any hotel room free-for-all scene in a grade B movie. And all this trouble descends on the overburdened shoulders of but a single arbiter—with a good deal of the macabre intentions directed at him personally. Any scalp is fair game, but the referee is the real unsung hero of the wallbars.

The significant feature of this fall's lacrosse season is that the powers that be have finally decided to provide a second official for all future games, which includes the playoffs and all subsequent contests in years to come. This should eliminate all opportunity for team managers to replace absent referees and officiate at their own games. The compliment will doubtless take effect in the proper circles.

Several teams have risen above the rabble in the play thus far this year, and proven themselves in no uncertain terms to be hot after the Dafeo Cup. Senior Meds have been positively brilliant at times, and P.H.E., though rather short on reserves, can possibly floor the most capable squad of all. Their quality more than makes up for any deficiency in quantity. Vic. have looked good, but not really impressive, perhaps due to the stiff competition they have received from Jr. Meds and U.C. The boys from Forestry are the biggest success on the scoresheets, but then they might burst at the seams and do a repeat of last fall's performance when the first round of the playoffs is over.

Wander over to the gym some of these days and see what goes on for yourself—it's time well spent.

With Interest

The rugby All-Stars seem to have been forgotten. This isn't good. A lot of fellows go out and give a lot of time to rugby on those pleasant afternoons when they could be elsewhere, studying or otherwise killing time. The only return the player gets out of it is the fun of playing, with the added thrill, especially to the novice, of possibly getting his name in the papers once in a while. To him the idea of being chosen on an All-Star team is a distinct honor.

The responsibility of choosing these teams rests with the team managers, and so far one team has appeared—just one. The Dents' manager, for instance, knows a heck of a lot more about his team than anybody else, and when final selections are made his teams are closely scrutinized to see who from Dents deserves a place on the first or second team. An ominous silence.

Well, that's all there is to it. The two teams will be published on this page tomorrow, and there are eight more team managers still to report. What are you going to do about it?

What's On Today

There's a Meds-U.C. lacrosse game at four, a group playoff, and it should be good . . . There's a basketball game at seven, our three-team combined Blues guesting to Simpson Grads . . . There's a St. Mikes Football Dance at 8:30 at the Newman Club . . . Advertise our patrons.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Muiz

Swimming Notes

The individual college swimming meets are in full swing this week, which all goes to prove that a mental attitude can overcome such paltry incidents as low temperatures and Toronto winter weather. St. Hilda's picked two promising champs . . . Joyce Cobban who excelled in all the races and was placed second in the style swimming, and Pat Patterson achieving first place in diving, ornamental, and style swimming.

Ski Notes

The Ski Club has drawn up a proposed program for the current year, which should prove of interest to a goodly number of Varsity students intending to participate actively or otherwise in the coming ski week-ends. Operating on the principle that the best way to learn how to ski is by racing, the Ski Club proposes to have a slalom race on the club hills every week-end for the novices . . . thus building up future University ski teams. Transportation to the grounds of the club will be arranged by bus at slightly reduced rates every Sunday (so the program goes).

Interfaculty meets are planned to take place in February, the points for this event counting for the Reid Trophy. As for the intercollegiate angle, the club plans to place a men's and women's team to represent Varsity in the competition with other Universities . . . Mayhap this new "Big Blue" team will repeat the achievements of former years, what with Marc Guppy and the Manns upholding the prestige of the club.

The club made a good start last Sunday on their trip to Aurora to work on the grounds. Reports have it that the club house now boasts a new coat of paint, the jump has been repaired, and the trails have been denuded of their yearly crop of brush. A group of sixteen wrought all this, setting out at 10:00 with lunches and liquid refreshments . . . they had themselves a "whice" of a time besides making themselves useful.

Finally

There comes to our attention two more basketball games . . . both involving U.C. II. In the first game this team defeated St. Hilda's by a score of 8-14, no less. It was a wide open exhibition, stars of the evening being Jean Kausman (U.C.) and Joan Hume (U.C.). The next game found U.C. II losers to Vic. II by one game . . . score 7-6 for Vic. It was remarkable for the amount of close checking on both sides, and two players making all the point between them . . . Mary Hicks for U.C., and Kay Fowler for Vic.

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE	4.00	U.C.	Med. II	Rae
	5.00	Re-play:	S.P.S. IV—St. M.	Rae
SWIM LEAGUE	4.00	For.	Knox	Marshall
		Dent.	Pre-Med.
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Dent. A	S.P.S. III	Eilbeck
	4.00	Vic. III	III Med.	Burt-Gerrans
	6.30	Jr. Med.	Jr. Vic.	Fine
	7.30	II S.P.S. B	Vic. IV	Fine
	8.30	Emman A	Wyc. A	Fine

Applications are now being taken in Athletic Office for Hockey, Basketball and Water Polo Referees.

Sports Schedules -- Week of Dec. 3rd

SWIM LEAGUE (Balance of schedule)

Mon., Dec. 3	5.00	Vic. For.	Med. I Emman	Beer
Tues., Dec. 4	4.00	Trin. C Vic.	St. M. B Jr. SPS.	Burt-Gerrans
Wed., Dec. 5	4.00	Emman Jr. SPS. SPS. IV SPS. III	Trin. B Trin. A Wyc. Dent.	Moffat
Thur., Dec. 6	4.00	U.C. I Trin. B	Dent. I Knox	Moffat

VOLLEYBALL (Balance of schedule)

Mon., Dec. 3	1.00	SPS. III Jr. Vic. Trin. C	Dent. A Jr. SPS. U.C. VI	Eilbeck Fine Starlman
Tues., Dec. 4	1.00	Knox U.C. III III SPS. B	Pharm. Dent. B U.C. IV	Cooke Brisbin Brisbin
Wed., Dec. 5	1.00	Vic. IV Dent. D For. B	I Med. Vic. V Med. Servicemen U.C. VI	Burt-Gerrans Stone Swan Cooke
Fri., Dec. 7	1.00	Med. Servicemen

Referees please stand by for possible playoff dates from Tues. on.

HOCKEY PRACTICES

Mon., Dec. 3	4.15 - 4.45 6.15 - 7.00 7.00 - 7.30	St. Mikes S.P.S. Forestry
Wed., Dec. 5	4.00 - 4.30 4.30 - 5.00	Pharm. Trin.
Thur., Dec. 6	4.15 - 4.45 4.45 - 5.15 6.30 - 7.00	Emman Wyc. Dent.

George Is In There Pitching As Grapplers Prep For Tourney

With the Junior Intramural Wrestling Tournament coming on in only two weeks, two of the busiest men in the Athletic Wing at Hart House are wrestling Instructor George Daly and his assistant Art Chetwynd.

George came to the University of Toronto in 1937 as an assistant coach under the famed Cliff Worthly, and since then has assumed top position on the staff of grappling instructors. In his first three years here, the last three of intercollegiate championships in the assault sports, the Daly coached crew helped bring the wrestling titles to Varsity.

Prior to his coaching, George's last competitive wrestling was in 1936, the year the Olympics were held in California. He was runner-up to Howie Thomas as Canada's representative in the light-weight class.

Through the war years, wrestling as an intercollegiate sport was almost entirely curtailed. Although the supply of potential wrestlers was also cut down, top-rate men like Sklar, Schaeffer and McDonough were developed via his Intramural competitions.

This fall has seen many changes in the Varsity wrestling set-up from that of the last five years. There are more men out for instruction, and more experienced wrestlers out. The prospects are very best for another intercollegiate championship wrestling team this year, and both George and Art are decidedly optimistic about their chances.

"The boys show a real willingness to get down to hard work this year," said George, "and if that is any indication of their ability we'll bring another title to Varsity this winter."

TEAM PICTURES

The intercollegiate soccer and harrier teams will have their pictures taken at 1:00 p.m., Friday, weather permitting.

Neilson's

Jersey Milk Chocolate

The Quality Chocolate

smoke the mild cigarette

Buckingham

VARSITY Saturday Night DANCE

ROYAL YORK HOTEL BANQUET HALL - - - - - SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1st

ELLIS McLINTOCK - - His Trumpet - - And His Orchestra

Dancing From 9 to 12. TICKETS ON SALE TODAY AND FRIDAY, 12-2, IN U.C. ROTUNDA Tickets $1.00 Per Person

REMEMBER?

A GIFT OF CHARM... Gevey Fragrance by Richard Hudnut can be had in Dusting Powder, Talcum, Toilet Water and Eau de Cologne. A holiday package of Fragrances Gevey comes with Eau de Cologne, Perfume and Talcum for a delicious sequence of daintiness. Fragrance Gevey has been created for beautiful women who know the subtle art of self-flattery, who understand the importance of a fragrance which is neither too aggressive nor self-proclaiming, but which wraps the wearer in an aura of totally pleasurable femininity.

A SPRAINED BACK need not be dangerous but it can be very unpleasant. Try patting on an application of Sloan's Liniment before going to sleep. You'll probably wake up feeling a hundred percent. Sloan's works quietly and effectively while you sleep, brings up circulation re-inforcements to drive out the soreness and stiffness. Makes a good inhalant to control one of those nasty winter head colds, too. Put a teaspoonful of Sloan's in a glass of hot water and breathe in the steam. Sloan's has a hundred uses which is why it has earned that world-wide reputation.

LUXURIATE IN LOVELIES

Creed's have glamour bedroom attire in everything you want, nighties, panties and slips with or without lace trimming. These range from 4.95 to 10.95. Then for something a little more tailored they have some very smart slips at 3.95. Bed-jackets are really scrumptious, a darling one in French blue or Tea rose made in sheer chiffon with, round the neck and sleeves, the same soft blue marabou. This is 9.50. And a special note to the Varsity newlyweds, a boudoir set for all those shower presents floating round. Consists of a nightie case - 3.60, hosiery case 1.69, glove case 1.35, and three little sachets at 90c, in dainty pink satin with hand-painted designs on the front.

FASHIONS FROM THE SHOULDERS UP... Luxurious head squares in lush colours teamed with your tailor-mades to take top honours around the campus. What about a pastel for that black coat and a pair of those precious angora gloves of the same colour? These head squares are really dapper for skiing, warm and cozy, and even have embroidered wool skiers and other designs at the corner. The gloves and squares together are an ideal present for Christmas; something that will go over in a big way. There are other gift ideas at the Lady Ellis Shops, your nearest, 723 Yonge St., just south of Bloor, and in various neighbouring districts.

GROW OLD ALONG WITH ME... the best is yet to come... is a slogan which very aptly suits Joan Rigby's clothes, because they are of quality chosen by experts in fabric and design to preserve their good lines year after year. It isn't just by chance that a Joan Rigby suit or ensemble outwears ordinary clothing. It is created to wear like an old friend, designed in lines that are not likely to become outdated by the turn of the season. Take your holidaying relatives and call on Joan Rigby if it is something in very good day-time or evening wear they are looking for. Joan Rigby's, 54 Bloor Street.

OH WHAT A DRESS... It's at Northways, a formal in pink champagne, and it's been given full score according to our way of thinking. This plain dusty pink concoction is to wear on formal occasions, frat parties, etc., and more and more city parties are going formal, incidentally. The neck is high and round with a saucy little slit opening and the skirt is gathered at the hips (not many gathers, just a few clever ones). The rest of the dress is plain and good style with a belt of the same dusty pink material studded with gold knobs. Northways's have other delightful formal in fashionland.

IN THE DUSK OF THE DYING DAY... It's wonderful to completely relax before your conscience begins to urge you to study, so in those few sacred minutes why not relax effectively in one of those well known Evangelical housecoats. There are ever so many to choose from in gay quilted bengaline, satins, crepes, chintz, piques, and that "top it all" flannel for warmth and comfort. These are going fast. For that present of all presents have a look at 'em. Evangelical Shops are conveniently situated anywhere in town, your nearest is 751 Yonge Street, just north of Bloor.

FRANK STOLLERY'S corner, at Bloor and Bay, has magnetism these days for the bound-to-get-ahead young man who knows his appearance may not help chalk up a "pass", academically speaking, but it does very definitely help him to make friends and influence people. A good scarf and glove set comes in wool, at a very considerate price, and one of those Glenwill ties at 1.50 will be enough to add vitamins to an average suit. They've some dandy casual coats in corduroy, and dressing-gowns of superior quality. Better do your Stollery shopping in person though. Those Stollery salesman like being helpful.

BE AS LOVELY AS YOU ARE... and a little lovelier still because Antoine has developed a theory by which the natural and graceful lines of your head are accentuated in a sculptured hair-cut. Even if you wear a long bob the Antoine men are trained to shape it to hug the head with the disarming lines of a child's silhouette. Not only in cutting but in fingerwaving and hair styling the Antoine men are recognized as tops, in almost any civilized country.

New and Entrenous

Thursdays Off

By Ross McLean

Sarah Lawrence has a president only six days a week.

On Thursday Harold Taylor, the newly-appointed president of this progressive girls' college in Bronxville, N. Y., vanishes. "I simply disappear and write," he explains.

Those were his terms when Sociologist Helen Merrell approached him with the offer to assume the presidency. And to them he intends to stick.

Philosophy and writing were to have been Taylor's life. Certainly that was his intention when he graduated from this University in 1935. The Muse flirted but her advances were spurned by the started Taylor when he received a scholarship as "the best all-round man" in his class. He remained for a now-possible M.A., took his Ph. D. at London University, got a teaching job at the University of Wisconsin, married, moved into a remodelled barn with his English bride and thought he could then see the direction of his destiny.

He had been there for five and a half years when Sarah Lawrence went shopping and discovered him.

It was a big year for Sarah Lawrence. The once-scorned "country club" for fashionable young ladies in search of knowledge had come of age. It was 18.

To its 295 bobby-soxed undergraduates it provided a relaxed type of personalized education, emphasizing the small seminars and the faculty evenings.

But Sarah Lawrence, on the fringe of Manhattan, needed a new administrator.

Toronto-trained Taylor accepted. President Taylor, impatient of colleges that "rely more upon acquiring respectable opinions... than upon creating an attitude of mind which insists on examining opinion critically" is happy in his new role.

He has, he confesses in a letter to this department, a "very warm feeling" about his alma mater.

"The philosophy I studied there with Dean Brett, Fulton Anderson, and Herbert Davis gave me a depth of interest in philosophical subjects and in literature which has been responsible for the attempts I have made to learn more about philosophy and literature.

"At one time," he recalls, "I enjoyed an association with The Varsity and wrote a few editorials for Mickey McGuire when he was Editor.

"We had a good life there," he asserts. "And the chance to play football, study philosophy, and live with such good friends was a rare privilege."

A word to the wise... we advise you to make your Antoine appointment early in the month, Holt Renfrew, 3rd floor.

Collar-adv-handsome, President Taylor is 31.

About his students at Sarah Lawrence he reports: "They are just friends of mine... We talk to each other and are quite unaware that one is a boy and one a girl."

Varsity's "best all-round man" of 1935 seems to have been a good choice.

Correspondence...

(Continued from page 2)

it apparently takes guts to take a stand. If those now taking stands represent only a minority of student opinion, the blame rests with those who disagree but remain silent.

It is remarked that the university must be always fighting for its life. But if the university fosters only apathy—and we mean just that—then the university is not fighting for its life, it is already dead.

PHILIP L. COOPER
JACK GRANOFKY
MARGUERITE JERSAK
MARTIN SHUBIK
KEN MORRISON
BOB BROOKS
LAWRENCE CAPLAN
BARRY ALLEN

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Regarding the editorial, Unfair to Varsity, which appeared on November 27, may I say that I cannot agree with the reprimand given to the University "picketers."

According to you, "Universities are more reasonably to be identified with ideas at large"; which, it would seem, degenerates into a concurrence with popular opinion. I do not think this should be so. Students, especially those

What's on Today

Sociology Club

8:15 p.m.—This evening in Wymilwood. Panel discussion on "The Practical application of Sociology." Students will discuss the application of sociology in camps, welfare agencies, and Government work. A special invitation is extended to first-year Soc. and Phil. students, ex-service students, and all interested. Refreshments will be served.

U.C.-Trinity Classics Club

8:15 p.m.—Meeting tonight in the Women's Union. Student Papers on Numismatics and Mystery Religions. Refreshments. All welcome.

Lecturer Decries Nationalist Trend

"The history of the Church is the history of a revolution," said Dr. Lyndon Smith of Trinity College in his lecture last night in Wycliffe's Sheraton Hall. Dr. Smith's was the last in a series of talks on religion given by campus heads.

"The attitude of the state toward the Church," he continued, "has varied from one of fear to one of indifference. In its early attempts to gain recognition religion was forcibly discouraged. Once given toleration, however, it was discovered by such men as Napoleon and Frederick the Great."

He stated that nowadays, "To achieve our ends power must rise above moral convictions. This is the result of the new nationalist trend which is well illustrated by the policy of the late great Fascist powers."

"Mussolini proudly stated that 'Fascism has an ethic but no theology.' It was the habit of the Fascists to systematically wipe out religious influences to the point where their presence had no effect on popular belief."

"Even in our own supposedly civilized who have been exposed to the liberal arts, have allegedly reached a stage where they can think for themselves. Their ideas may or may not differ from the "ethical" ideas of the time. Regardless, I believe it is their moral and legal right to take direct action if they think their cause is right.

Consequently, I do not think you are justified in taking exception to the actions of those "contrary political elements" on the campus who believe they should take more than the aloof academic stand in current issues.

—R. THOMAS,
IV S.P.S.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

The University Advisory Bureau was set up on the authority of the Board of Governors to make available to Veterans a full-time advisory service. They would be glad to help you on any matters upon which you wish to consult them.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

countries a nationalist spirit has grown, putting power in the limelight, leaving religion to sink lower in the background. We have, "he concluded, "coarsened the beauty of our freedom by exultation in power."

Hear Yourself
EXACTLY AS OTHERS
HEAR YOU... on an ELECTRICAL TRANSCRIPTION
Ideal check for Teachers, Students, Speakers, Singers, Actors, etc., or for Greetings, Congratulations, etc.
Only professional equipment used.
FARADAY DIXON
BROADCASTING SERVICE
HOWARD 9731

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.
Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service
321 BLC 1 St. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of
the Faculty

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restrung. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

DON'T FORGET EL. 6649

For all your typing and mimeographing requirements. Low rates. Harry Shift, after 5:30 p.m.

LOST

Small black suitcase, containing University text books, valuable lecture notes, urgently needed. Liberal reward. HY. 5129.

FOR SALE

Pair of skis, Chalet, 6 ft., with bamboo poles, and harness. HY 8157, after 6:30 p.m.

PERSONAL

Members of the Ale and Quail; carousal on December 27th.

LOST

Black wallet, containing Sergeant's mess card; vicinity Physics Building. Reward. MI. 1041.

Virginia Dare says "they're SNOW QUEENS"

MAIL ORDERS FILLED
With money order, include 10c to cover cost of mailing. Send to head office, Kent Bldg., Toronto

Be sure that these Snow Queens are under the tree—tagged with those very special names on your Christmas list.

A STORE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Virginia Dare

Blues Tie Simpson Grads In Exhibition Cage Tilt

DILWORTH USES ALL SUBS

A group of 24 gladiators from three Varsity basketball teams last evening went on a boy's errand and the result was a basketball freak, a tie 49-49 game.

The Blues backed the Simpson Grads into their own zone throughout the final four "quarters" but the ten-point lead built up by the visitors in the opening period enabled them to coast to the final whistle.

Roy Dilworth carried through with his program of giving all men an opportunity to prove their value to the team. Five men performed in each of the five periods with the only exception coming in final bracket as Dilworth's list ran out and he was forced to send in substitutes.

Players of sufficient calibre will be graded into three teams to carry Varsity colors into the intercollegiate fray.

Youthful Don Whalen of the Grads led the scorers with 14 points.

He netted five baskets in the first eight minutes as his check was unable to cope with his play. Ed Milton with nine and Curly Warren with seven were outstanding for the visitors.

Experience began to rear its head among the Varsity players as former Varsity-ites came through with sparkling performances. Aspirants for the senior squad turned in good offensive efforts but fell down defensively as Simpson's came through time and again to shower the basket with shots. It was only poor marksmanship that held the score down.

From the horde of Blues, stars were numerous . . . Zeaton, Thomson, Scott, Hennessy, Himell, Mayzell, Cranham and Spry all caught the eye of the spectators.

Scoring honors among the Blues were divided among seven players. Varga, Zeaton, Glat, Hennessy, Himell, Spry and Mayzell each came up with four baskets.

Varsity: McAdam, Varga (4), Swan, Starr, Stewart (2), Scott (2), Zeaton (4), Thomson (2), Glat (4), Choate (3), Clayton, Sturgess, Gibson (3), Hennessy (4), Andrews (2), Himell (4), Spry (4), Lowe (2), Potruff (1), Fountain, Fitch, Mayzell (4), Cranham (2), and Wallace (2).

Simpson Grads: Bredin (1), Milton (9), Poulton (2), Moores (6), Park (3), Abram (4), Easto, Whalen (14), McDowell (3), and Warren (7).

McGill Muses Inspire Many

Montreal, Nov. 28—(CUP)—McGill's Younger Poets, an anthology of verse representing the work of undergraduate writer on the McGill campus during the war years, is being prepared for publication.

Edited by Dr. Files of the English department, the manuscript is reported in final form. Its publication awaits only the raising of sufficient funds to finance the project. Half the amount necessary has been collected privately, and subscription blanks are being handed around among the student body in an effort to raise the remainder.

Compilation of the manuscript has been carried on over the 1939-45 period by a standing committee.

A Tschichatscheffianum Decided Her Career

"Maybe the fanciful names lured me," explained Professor Madeleine Fritz, Associate Professor of Palaeontology, "names such as Apocynophyllum Willughbyoides, Geyler or Arancarioxylon Tschichatscheffianum, but I think it was rather in spite of these names that I chose my field."

Professor Fritz strolled past the countless fossil trays forming weird and bizarre shapes and added laughingly, "And now I am a victim of the names myself," referring to Trachytoechus Moniliformis Fritz, which was her discovery.

Professor Fritz is an authority on Bryozoan fossils, and claims that worms have their fascinations too. "In fact, I even had two little ones named after me," she added, and smiled somewhat embarrassedly, as she showed Iridites Fritzae and Serpulites Fritz, explaining that the latter interested her especially, since many higher forms had developed from it.

"Why, in the long run we probably

Dr. R. F. Brown Discusses China

A man with a firsthand knowledge of the intricate political situation in China, Dr. R. F. Brown, graduate in Medicine from the University of Toronto, is to address the International Affairs Society next Monday afternoon. He is expected to deal specifically with the work of the Chinese Communist party.

Graduating from Varsity in 1928, Dr. Brown practised for some time as a mission doctor in the Chinese interior. He was asked by political leaders to organize medical units on the northwest front where there had been an almost complete lack of medical facilities; and it was in the course of these duties that he gained his knowledge of the "8th. Route" Army which opposes the Chinese Central Government.

All students are invited to attend the meeting in the Women's Union at 4:30 p.m., Dec. 3.

Far East Needs Our Engineers

"High priority" is asked by the British Colonial Service for applications from, civil, mechanical and electrical engineers seeking appointments to Malaya and Hong Kong, according to a cable received from Sir Ralph Furse, director of recruitment.

Greatest need is for civil and mechanical engineers capable of qualifying as railway engineers in the Far East. Losses due to the Japanese occupation and the cessation of normal recruitment during the war years have left the civil governments in these places desperate.

Applications for the Colonial Service are asked to make further enquiries of Mr. Evans in the registrar's office.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program: Bach—Mass in B Minor (selections).

have sprung from the lowly worm ourselves," she suggested to her science class, which has been taking these grim facts in truly scientific spirit and is already convinced that the human species will soon (one to two million years) be extinct because of over-specialization. There seems to be no way of combating this sure evolutionary suicide except by reverting to the earthworm.

"People usually think of fossils as dead things, something vaguely like mummies," Professor Fritz explained. But in truth they are living witnesses, for they unlock the secrets of the past."

She stopped before a frightful monster: "Tyrannosaurus Rex" the terror of the museum. "He's a bit small," said Miss Fritz, affectionately patting Tyrri's super-jaw. "But we have a huge pile of bones in the cellar. You see, they are just assembling a Brontosaurus!"

Bronto will be a little fossil some 60 feet long.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1945

No. 46

Pool Room Phil Sums Career In Hart House

Since 1925 Phil has been a name that countless thousands of University of Toronto student have associated with the Hart House poolroom. Even the conversion of the poolroom hasn't shaken Phil's position in Hart House, although it's a sad step from pool cues to cheese sandwiches and brown milk.

"This is exactly my 20th year in charge of the poolroom," Phil replied when trapped in the new tuck shop adding up the day's accounts. "Around here they usually call me Lefebvre, but my name is French, Le Feubre, and I was born in Jersey in the Channel Islands."

A veteran of the last war, slim, black-haired Phil announced that he is approaching his 46th birthday. "Keep young by keeping in touch with young people all the time," grinned Phil. "Maybe I've got something there, eh?" At any rate, it is hard to imagine Phil with two grown daughters, one of whom is coming out of the air-force after two and a half years, he announced proudly.

"I guess they don't play—uh—", we meekly suggested.

The reply was an emphatic negative.

The Hart House poolroom was the first and only place Phil has ever worked in Canada. Although he admitted winning amateur tournaments in the Old Country, "just club tournaments,

Forty Willing Soldiers Here

Total peacetime strength of the University of Toronto contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps, is 40 men, all ranks, at present according to Major H. C. Miller, adjutant.

Of the 40 men, 15 have been formed into an advanced ex-servicemen's group, and the remainder form a basic training squad. The basic training group includes several members of last year's contingent and many of these have been promoted to non-commissioned rank, Major Miller told The Varsity.

Object of the peacetime continuance of the C.O.T.C. is the training of officer material for the Canadian Army Reserve. Schedule for the contingent includes three hours per week, a total of 60 by the end of the session.

Plans are reported going forward for the annual summer camp; but no definite location has been established yet.

The Varsity Review

Trinity's Review Is Reviewed Victoriana's Acta Is Analyzed

We Regret - - -

We regret—these reviews seem to be starting with regrets—that The Varsity's review of the first number of Acta Victoriana paid insufficient tribute to the most sweeping and significant experiment in college magazine production in all our experience.

There has never been such a resurrection as Acta has displayed this year. The editor is working hard to make his magazine a unity and not an assemblage of contributions; and—praise be!—does not take himself or his work too seriously. The result is a delightful production, whose overall charm somehow bridges some rather pedantic prose-pieces.

There is not a great deal of creative writing; whether from policy or from accident we cannot tell. Of what there is, we liked best Marion Brown's When I No Longer Live (really free verse); Douglas Vallean's sardonic little poem, Reflection in the Rain. Jan McIsaac's story, Valse Triste, misses its chief chiefly because the flashback technique is handled with insufficient contrast between the present and the memories. The other story, Alan Brown's you know, in billiards and snooker," Phil refused to go into details.

(Continued on page 4)

Who have been the best players to go through Hart House since 1925? Phil immediately named Dr. Harold Dawson and Dr. Benny Hoffman in English, with the former at the very top, and Bill Burns of S. P. S. as topman in snooker. Other greats of the green tops named by Phil were Frank McGee of U. C., Darcy Hilliard of Dents, George McFedren and George Carrey of U.C., Stuart MacDonald of Meds, Jack Greer of S.P.S. and about here Phil's memory began to fail him for the far-distant past.

On the whole, Phil thinks University students are very good, indeed. "No man has ever deliberately left the room without paying—although some have left in a hurry for lectures, they always returned to pay."

Where does he play now? "I don't think I've played six times outside the poolroom in all the years I've been here. I played for love of the game; it's the only way to play English billiards," and Phil doesn't intend taking up playing for money to keep in practice.

Taking us by surprise, he remarked "My only other love besides billiards is soccer, you know, it's an old English game. My brother played on the Oxford Varsity team." Phil, who never went to University, was kept off the Army team by a bum knee.

He doesn't know when the tables will be coming back, but the saving grace of the sacrifice of the poolroom's conversion is that the name in charge is still the fabulous Phil.

Work The Day Study The Night

Business people seeking degrees comprise almost 20 percent of the members of the teachers' course, Mr. W. B. Sharp, Associate Director of the Department of University Extension, announced yesterday.

These evening students have enrolled to such an extent that the present enrollment of 4,000 allows no more admittees.

The introduction of two new courses in this month accounts for the upsurge in enrollment. These new courses are Soil Mechanics, a course in reclaiming unproductive land, and Internal Auditing. Both courses are of less than three weeks' age.

We Apologize - - -

We apologize for leaving the autumn issue of The Trinity Review so long unreviewed; a contributing reason was laziness, another was lack of space; besides which, the Review is pretty heavy reading.

The editor was caught between a Provost's Installation and a shortage of contributors; he redeemed the latter difficulty brilliantly by a long essay of his own; but the end result is not too happy, because there is too much of a good thing. The editor's seven pages on Creative Thinking and Arts Instruction and Provost Seeley's seven-page Installation Address make between them 14 pages of solid prose, demanding concentrated reading; an inauspicious omen. The reviewer is apt to rise periodically for air, as though from the swamps of a three-volume novel.

We emphasize all this because we think it may have influenced some Review readers to call the autumn number flat and heavy. Actually, the contributions sparkle with life and fairly ooze

(Continued on page 4)

Emergency Loan Fund Helps Late Cheque Problem

FIND SHELTER FOR 1700 STUDENTS

More than 450 students, formerly members of the armed services, have been saved from "extreme hardship and possible discontinuance of their studies" by an emergency loan fund set up by the Students' Administrative Council, E. A. Macdonald, general secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., told The Varsity yesterday.

"Clerical bottlenecks in the offices of the Department of Veterans' Affairs have, in many cases, held up allowance cheques," Mr. Macdonald said. "Sometimes the hold-up has lasted several months."

U. C. Will Debate Palestine Issue

Monty Simmonds, speaking for the government in the University College Parliament this afternoon, hopes to show that the Jews have "more than a legal basis for a national homeland," he told The Varsity last night.

We hope to prove, too, that the formation of such a homeland would extract from the world the virus of anti-Semitism which is so serious a threat to democracy," Mr. Simmonds said.

Opposition Leader Mary Richardson presaged that her side of the house will take "a realistic approach, in contrast to the emotional and sentimental attitude of the government." She termed the solution offered by the government expedient neither on economic nor political grounds."

The question of the adoption of Palestine as a national homeland for the Jews comes before the house in the Junior Common Room at 4 p.m.

Group To Discuss Jap-Can. Question

The campus committee on the Japanese Canadian question will hold a meeting on Monday at 5 P.M. in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College, Don Franco IV History announced yesterday.

The committee invites representatives from every campus organization to attend if possible. Mr. Franco said that the committee has already received contributions from various University organizations and individuals to proceed with their work, but in view of the urgency of the situation would appreciate further donations.

The debate which took place last week in the House of Commons on the Japanese-Canadian situation will be discussed at the meeting.

CORRECTION

The meeting of the Fine Art Club, erroneously reported for tonight in yesterday's Varsity, was held last night. The Varsity regrets any inconvenience it may have caused club members.

Husband-Student Case Solved By Sympathizer

By Ross McLean

Hank, we told you was a medical student. And Meg, was his wife.

Meg, we also mentioned, was lonely.

Well, we have received a letter, addressed to us but speaking to Meg: "I was interested in 'The Husband-Student' in yesterday's Varsity. Many of us older women struggled triumphantly through similar situations after World War I, and the story brought poignant memories. Now, there is no need for young wives to be lonely. People are just people and wherever you go there are counterparts or prototypes of the folks back home."

"When our three students leave every morning a quiet descends upon this house that it is not accustomed to, and it remains from 9 to 4 each

It was emphasized that these loans to students are made or the sole purpose of coping with late cheques. They are not made to students who may be exceeding their monthly allowances. The amount of an individual loan is based on that particular need. Loans are repayable on receipt of allowance arrears.

The S.A.C. has also found shelter for about 1,700 students, Mr. Macdonald estimated, in surveying how the hard-working Hart House office has met the unprecedented campus problems of 1945-46. An emergency Room Service, set up in the West Common Room before the term opened, carried the big influx. When the flurry abated, the special staff dropped to one and the Room Service moved from its own office to a desk in the S.A.C. office proper, but went right on functioning.

The Room Service is still doing business. In fact it expects a pick-up in business soon, when about 50 new students in the Certificate Course in Business will have to be accommodated.

Columbo Burns Too Soon Alas

A School Nite publicity stunt misfired on the centre campus yesterday at 1.45 when the interplanetary space ship "Columbo" relic prop of last year's production, burned to a charred skeleton in 30 seconds.

Stunt devised by pyromaniac publicists had been intended to attract campus crowds to the burning of Columbo on which last year's script had focussed.

The flames had devoured Columbo however in half a minute. The conflagration managed to escape attention almost completely.

Six-year-old Larry Cohen, of 28 Russell Street, did notice the first fire. The youngster plied the smoking ribs with snowballs, darted in and out of the frame in traditional smoke-eater's manner, reported gaily when asked whether he intended to attend School Nite that he "was going to the Icecapades tomorrow."

So I extend an invitation to Hank's wife and any other young wife, to come here and use this home. There's a piano waiting to be played and lots of music; a sewing machine for clever hands to work, books, maps and magazines galore, and a gas stove whereon they may try out their bridal blunders as so many of us did years ago.

"There's space enough for them to keep them busy at anything they want to do—so my advice to them is 'get together and get busy!'"

"Of course, it is a matter of 'select neighborhood' or 'right people' this little old house is not interested."

The letter, Meg, is signed: Maud Watherson. Mrs. Watherson lives at 212 Rosemount Avenue. Her telephone number is KE 5559.

Editorial

May We Repeat?

Yesterday's barrage of correspondence, along with some dozen other letters for which we had no space, bring home prominently a number of misconceptions regarding our policy on student participation in picket-lines and their primary loyalty to the University.

That policy was outlined in our editorial columns last Tuesday; and the following notes are intended as supplementary exposition of points which experience has shown were unclear in that editorial, or which were not treated in it at all. The misconceptions may be tabulated as follows:

That We Are Arguing Against The Cause of The Strikers

On this we have never committed ourselves one way or the other. It is, as we said, too complicated a matter for editorial dictation. Each of our readers has his opinion, which is his business. It is not for us to decide that question for anyone. We have done what we could to furnish facts as a basis for decision.

That We Are Inconsistent, Having Been Decisive on Other Matters

We were decisive on vandalism and race prejudice, where (a) a clear moral principle is involved, and (b) the facts were indisputable. That others argued these points makes no difference. A man who denied certain of our moral principles and argued in favor of theft would receive a decisive rebuff from us, as, we think, from our readers.

That We Are Inconsistent, Having Upheld the Argentine Students

The revolt in Argentina was a very different matter. (1) The La Plata students, like those of France and Poland, were fighting a government which denied the right of the University to teach as it saw fit; a thing the Imperial Optical Co. has not done. (2) There was, again, a clear moral principle and no dispute on the facts; not a mere cloud of obfuscation on both sides.

That Our Policy Is "Anything To Escape Criticism of The University"

It is not. If students were to incur severe criticism for debating the strike, we would urge them to carry on. If the University were to be criticized for any corporate action, such as conferring a degree on a Communist, we would applaud its action. But when the University is unjustly criticized for the actions of individual students, we urge those students to reconsider.

That We Are Encouraging Apathy Towards Public Affairs

Not at all. We have done everything in our power to encourage students to make up their minds about the strikes, as about many other things. What we have not done is to encourage in any way walking in picket lines.

That We Deny The Right of Students To Display Their Convictions

Apart from the very dubious legal ground on which the amateur pickets are treading, we object not to their display of their opinions, but to their advertising their status as University students, and attempting to give the impression that the University, or its student body, shares those opinions. What they do as private citizens is no concern of ours. What they do as University students is the concern of everyone of us.

That We Advocate "Sitting In An Ivory Tower"

An ivory tower is not a bad place to acquire wisdom, which is not found in the streets. But it would be fairer to say that we encourage students to take advantage of the only uncluttered four years they will ever have in which to clear up their minds.

That The University Will Not Be Criticized For The Action of The Picketers

It assuredly will; and it is being criticized now. One correspondent drew an unhappy parallel with the recent outbreak of vandalism; the public, he said, will no more attribute dangerous ideas to all students than it attributed vandalism to all students. But we published letters indicating that the work of the vandals was reflecting on all of us. So is the notoriety of the pickets.

That We Are Being Subjected To Pressure By "Vested Interests"

This is utterly false. It reflects, however, a slightly different confusion. When we urge defense of the good name of the University, we do not mean the good name of the governors, its staff, or its institution generally. We mean the good name of all of us as students. We do not mind if the public disagrees with the picketers. We do object if the public condemns us for opinions we do not all share; or more important, for condoning an immaturity of action which we have never condoned.

So What Is Our Policy?

Our policy, which we commend to all sympathizers with the strikers, is to form firm convictions, and defend them as convictions. Those who feel the need to advertise their sympathies should do so not as students but as private individuals; and should investigate the legality of whatever means they choose.

All of us should remember, further, that when the University accepted us as undergraduate members, it exacted from us a promise of corporate loyalty. If we are not willing to maintain that loyalty, we should leave.

And we should remember that not everything that is permissible is wise; which is perhaps the greatest moral lesson the University can teach.

—W. H.K.

A. M. and D.

Painting Is Fun

Painting is fun. Especially is this the case if you paint entirely for your own enjoyment, as a personal means of self-expression, with no thought of keeping the family in groceries. That is the sort of art being exhibited next Saturday afternoon and evening at the Arts Club, Asquith Avenue. Perce M. Gardiner, who graduated in '43 and is now teaching at Malvern Collegiate, did the some 25 works on view in his spare time over a period of six years and an impressive show they make for an amateur. Of course, Gardiner is an amateur only in the sense that he doesn't paint for a living; he studied painting at the university, under J. W. Beatty, and some of his efforts are to mind certainly worthy of a professional.

Over the sixty-year period he has developed out of a naturalism learnt from Beatty into a decorative abstract handling of landscape; one of his latest works is a sally into the currently popular field of non-objectivism. Gardiner's work displays competent craftsmanship, with evident traces of the sound stippling technique taught by Peter Haworth to Fine Art students. His glowing color contrasts and harmonies are especially effective.

Some people think that oil painting is a very highbrow technique to be used only by professionals. This idea no doubt. Stems from the little tin watercolor boxes through which public and high-school kids receive their entire introduction to the alleged delights of Art. Actually, in many ways it is easier for beginners to paint in oils than in water color—although the former medium is infinitely messier, accounting for its taboo. For instance, alterations or erasures can be made quickly and completely in wet oil simply by rubbing the paint off with a rag which leaves the surface good as new; in watercolor, alteration is a painful business requiring expert treatment for success. And when it comes down to it oils are not very much more expensive than watercolors. For those lucky people—if any, these days—who are looking for something to do in idle hours or feel the need of expressing themselves, why not take a shot at oil painting? Winston Churchill does it—and closer to home, Perce Gardiner does it. And if you want to get a little inspiration, to see what an amateur can do, visit Gardiner's exhibition at the Arts Club. A good show

ALAN GOWANS.

Dickler & Future: Great

There have been recent indications of a revulsion from the view that the piano is a singing instrument; that its compositions must be free from sentimentality; that they must be dissonant; opposed to all that is expressive. The Eight Dedications of Charles Jones Toronto-born contemporary composer and exponent of this form, were presented last night at Eaton Auditorium by Sylvia Dickler. The work was faultlessly performed with the required enthusiastic exploitation and avoidance of all mechanical regularity. It was grouped with the esthetic Chopin Nocturne in E flat major whose lyric poetry contrasted shockingly with its fiery companion piece. This was incomprehensible.

The sonata of Beethoven represents classical form applied to expression of dramatic feeling. In Miss Dickler's performance of Sonata, Op.109, the violent contrasts allowed by the form, and the dignity and scope were present, but I do not think that the master would have played it thus. The bucolic nature of the vivace was taken too seriously; played too romantically.

The savage prestissimo was given too much delicacy.

The unconfined ebullience of Liszt's emotionally irregular Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 10, and the bursting floods of vivid self-expression drew two encores from a Toronto audience usually unappreciative of true art.

Sylvia Dickler is young. She is an artist possessing astounding facility in technique. When she realizes her limitation in the future she will be great.

—DAPHNE BYERS.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I read with mounting loathing your recent editorial entitled "Two and Two," until shortly before its shameful conclusion nauseas sent me weaving to the window.

That such an editorial should be published at all—nay, especially that it should be published in a University newspaper, is subversive and dangerous and Fascist and Communist an irreparable blow to the cause of the open mind; which have set back by (at a Conservative estimate) 700 years.

How anyone in this enlightened age could make two and two equal four is beyond me. These Superstitions of the Dark Ages, Sir, have no place in our time of free thought, untrammelled broadening, and the Great Rosy Dawn.

It is plain that you are in the pay of monks—nay, assassins of thought, eager to guard their influence with the people. They shall not, must not succeed. True, our greatest scientists exercise their hard-won liberty of free thought in disagreeing somewhat on the sum of two and two; but all are agreed that it is anything but four.

I hope you are man enough to publish this letter. You are a reptile. I don't like you.

D. V. FRETSOME.
IV DISHWASHING.

Books

Special Sciences

"The science of human relationships."

The day before he died Franklin Delano Roosevelt wrote these inspiring words: "To-day we are faced with the fact that, if civilization is to survive, we must cultivate the science of human relationships—the ability of all peoples, of all kinds, to live together and work together in the same world, at peace." A world at peace means, of course, no race riots, no race prejudice, no discrimination. How are we to get this kind of a world? Some clues are given in three Public Affairs Pamphlets published by Progress Books (15 cents each).

Why Race Riots? by Earl Brown, is a detailed study of the Detroit riot in June, 1943. The author pays particular attention to the history of Detroit, its industrialization, unionization, overcrowding, and the importance of religious sects catering to the numerous competing groups in the city.

Race Riots Aren't Necessary by Alfred McClung Lee (Professor of Sociology at Wayne University) is a better pamphlet than the first mentioned. The race riot is compared to the visible part of an iceberg: the unseen parts is made up of inequities, discriminations and segregations. "In the long-term program, housing and employment are the key issues. They do the most to create friction. Solution of these problems can do the most to promote racial understanding. Both must be faced frankly and attacked concretely. The educational work must be practical and tied in with current activities." The pamphlet is somewhat limited in scope however—it stresses emergency measures "if a crisis threatens" and does not emphasize sufficiently the importance of the invisible part of the iceberg.

The Races of Mankind is the most interesting of the three pamphlets. It is written by two anthropologists, Ruth Benedict and Gene Weltfish, both of Columbia University: it was prepared under the supervision of a committee of the American Association of Scientific Workers. It is a good pamphlet for several reasons: it includes more anthropology for 15 cents than you'll find anywhere else; cartoons by Reinhardt of PM are worth looking at apart from the text; and it emphasizes the need for a better and wider democracy in which freedom from fear is the most important freedom—"every labor decision that lessens the terror of being 'laid off' and gives a man self-respect in his employment."

(Continued on page 3)

Gay-go. Together!

Say "Merry Christmas" with gifts that go together! ... like this lovely sterling silver bracelet and matching slave bracelet.

Simpson's
Jewelry, 700 Main Street, 2nd Floor

Listen to

"Canada in the Modern World"
by Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph.D.

Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB -- Every Sunday—2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY
Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

University of Toronto

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB

Organization Meeting

Women's Union - 8 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 4

Varsity
Saturday Night Dance

BANQUET HALL—ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Saturday, December 1st

ELLIS McLINTOCK AND HIS ORCHESTRA

DANCING: 9-12.

TICKETS: $1.00 PER PERSON.

Tickets on sale To-day, 12-2, in U.C. Rotunda.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Sing Song

There will be a sing song in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. today.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College M.L. 6611
Business Office M.L. 6221
Night Office M.L. 8745

Night Editor: Wally Belfry
Assistant: Frances Fulton

Correspondence

Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I wish to commend your editorial in Tuesday's issue of The Varsity condemning the practice of picketing certain establishments by University students. Everyone has a right to his opinions on controversial issues of the day, but when members of an organization, which closely follows the line of a foreign and totalitarian state, pretend to speak for the body

(Continued on page 3)

Most Intramural Grid Squad Represented On All-Star Team

Well, here they are—the Intramural Rugby All-Stars. It took frantic last-minute phone calls and midnight conferences with tardy team managers, but this year's edition finally began to take shape early this morning. By one the ballots were all counted. By two the teams were chosen and verified.

The choice is, on the whole, a very fair one—the fairest made in several seasons. Nearly every team is represented, and the Mulock Cup champs Senior S.P.S., place nine men on the combined teams. Vic and U.C. each hold down four positions, while St. Mike's, the other semifinalist, snare three. Dents put two names on the honor roll, and Meds and Trinity one each.

Only two men did a repeat performance, possibly due to the fact that the best men in Interfaculty competitions went up to the Blues this fall. Colin Cranham, Rod Smith and Gus Campbell all made the big jump, after achieving notoriety on last year's All-Stars. Jim Bromley made the grade as end on the second team for the third straight time, and Nels Kuhn repeated at first team middle. Aside from these two, this year's team boasts all newcomers.

Hendrick topped the backfield selections by a wide margin. He was mentioned on every team submitted, although a few votes were for the second team. Millen and Volpe were hot on his heels, but each received a fair battle from the abundant opposition available for the halfline spots. Kuhn was the most popular choice for the line, although he was situated all the way from inside to outside by the bewildered balloters. He compromised at middle wing. Sharpe was also well up in the line voting.

The following are the balloting results:

First Team
Flying Wing	Hammm, Sr. S.P.S.
Halves	Hendrick, S. P. S. Millen, Sr. S.P.S. Huycke, Trinity.
Quarter	Volpe, U.C.
Snap	McKnight, Sr. S. P. S.
Insides	Upton, U.C. Sharpe, Sr. S. P. S.
Middles	Morris, Vic Kuhn, U.C.
Outsides	E. Staley, U.C. Booth, Sr. S. P. S.
Second Team
Flying Wing	Young, Dents. Burford, Vic.
Quarter	Cochrane, Sr. Meds.
Snap	Bauer, St. Mike's.
Insides	Black, Vic. Glenn, Sr. S. P. S. Whitton, Vic.
Middles	Williams, Dents. Butko, Sr. S. P. S.
Outsides	Rocchi, St. Mike's. Bromley, Sr. S. P. S.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

KEEP DEC. 12th OPEN for the UNIVERSITY FRENCH CLUB PRODUCTION LES FEMMES SAVANTES —Molière

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasliw

Rumblings From Around and About . . .

In football, as in any other sport, debate spurs the blood and furnishes a gargantuan proportion of the game's sensual organisms. The actual competition supplies the shell but the intricate details come from the Monday morning, the grandstand and the fraternity quarterbacks. By all odds, football is the most controversial sport in the universe of campus sporting activities. To add fuel to the dwindling fire comes another log in the form of the annual and, slightly belated intramural All-Stars . . . If any differences of opinion occur, the complaints may be addressed to the two missing team managers if you know where to find them; we didn't . . . If any men on either Med team feel elated, their complaints should go to their managers, if there were managers connected with their teams. We wouldn't know.

The basketball Blues, like 'ol man river, keep on rolling along. The two games to date have displayed an abundance of agonistic material and have laid ample ground for expectation of future achievements . . . Last evening's tie could easily have been chalked up as a victory had Dilworth refused to give everyone an equal chance. A player, out for the first time, could not keep up with his check and this resulted in five quick baskets . . . Leftists on the campus please note that there is a form of democracy on this campus although you claim different . . . Dilworth is in for a bit of a busy time betwixt now and Xmas what with eliminating and formulating and practice games and exhibition encounters. The Blues as of last night will be pared down but the remainder will not be divided into the three teams until after the festive season . . . Next Tuesday is still an open date but Tip Tops play here Thursday evening. On December 8 University of Buffalo tangle with the club in the second part of the double header which also pits the Senior A's against West End "Y" . . . The following week finds the club on the road with an encounter at Naval Armoury in Detroit against Wayne on the Friday and another with Assumption in Windsor on the following evening. After a breathing spell during the holidays, they swing back into the basketball picture with a game in Buffalo against Baldwin-Wallace, a Cleveland college. The second part of that doubleheader pits Canisius against Scranton . . . On February 23, in Niagara Falls, New York, they tangle with Niagara University . . . Ian Morrison, Grad Studies, is in for a busy year as team manager what with the increased number of games and travelling. His understudies, Art Jackes and Avie Bennett, are due to move to the other teams on their formation.

With the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in town for the Grey Cup disaster, attention has been drawn to the University of Manitoba's application to enter the North-Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference . . . The conference includes Iowa State Teachers College, Morningside College, Municipal University of Omaha, North Dakota State College, North Dakota University, South Dakota State College and South Dakota University . . . Manitoba's application for admission must be met with the unanimous approval of the members . . . For a smaller university, this program is indeed an ambitious one. To top it off, a committee has been appointed to investigate the possibility of erecting a university stadium . . . Could be that the U. of M. will soon be challenging the Blue Bombers for the right to represent the west in the Canadian finals . . . Tip Tops of the Varsity Wednesday-Saturday League have added Jack Maynard to their faltering line-up. Jack, press reports say, was formerly a Varsity front-line star.

The current issue of Saturday Night carries a story by Duncan Rees which elucidates upon the fact that during the reign of Edward II, soccer was banned, "as there is a great noise in the city caused by hustling over large balls from which many evils might arise which God forbid" . . . We hardly know whether this thirteenth century law or the weather has caused the Blackwood Cup final to be postponed from today until some day next week.

Even Professional Names Illuminate Blues Hockey

"You pays your money and you takes your choice. You takes one of the Blue hockey teams. The Junior Bee from the Toronto and District branch of the O.H.A. or the senior team from the Intercollegiate Hockey League," stormed the staunch supporter of Varsity hockey.

"Why?" someone innocently inquired.

"Well, if you takes the seniors you have Ace Bailey and if you takes the juniors you have Staff Smythe," he offered.

"Staff Smythe . . . you know Connie Smythe's eldest son. He's just out of the Navy and is ararin' to go. He picked up a good deal of hockey moxie as a star, and even before that as a player and silent adviser on the Maple Leafs. His kid brother Hugh is on the junior team now and was under Ace Bailey last year.

"And not only that but the material . . . its on the terrific side. Look at those guys out there now. And Bailey has cut quite a number of fellows off the club. Good guys too . . . too bad but they can't all play. Always another year like I always say.

"The managers? Sure, I know. Harvey Spence of Skule is the senior manager. Swell kid too, just out of the army, was wounded twice over there . . . couldn't have picked a nicer guy. To top it all, he played goal for Junior School back in '42 when they won the Jennings Mug. Yep, swell guy all right. "The others? Well, there's Bill MacDonald to handle Staff's boys. He was in the Army Course here and just got back from dear old blimey. The Directorate got generous and appointed two assistants, Jack Fine and Bob Armstrong. "Yep, we're in for a swell season.

The seniors have the real trips to provide the incentive to go out and get to work. They go to Colorado Springs to play Colorado College on December 28 and 29. On February 16 they travel to West Point to beat the Army Cadets. Then there's other games with Omaha, Nebraska, University of Minneapolis, Minneapolis, Dartmouth, Clarkson College and a couple others. And the inter-collegiate games with McGill, Queen's and the University of Montreal, too.

"And the games coming up now . . . just look at this list! On Monday the Bees play St. Mike's Buzzers at 8:30. On the seventh the seniors take on Staffords. On the tenth the Bees play U.T.S. and on the fourteenth Ace's boys meet McMaster.

"What a card. All for free too, just need a portion of the University registration card . . . the athletic part. What a useful piece of paper. What a team. What a team.

Yes, what a man!

CORRESPONDENCE

(Continued from page 2)

of the University of Toronto, it is time that it is made clear to the outside population that they speak only for themselves and their adherents.

LEE W. LARKIN,
ARTS I.

BOOKS

(Continued from page 2)

ment, every arrangement that secures the little farmer against losing his acres to the bank—all these and many more can free people from fear." When we have such freedom there will be no need for scapegoats. —WILLIAM FAIRLEY.

SPORTS CALENDAR

SOCCER FINAL

Vic. I Trin. I
Postponed; teams please check with Athletic Office.

Fyfe, Life

VOLLEYBALL

1:00 Pharm.	Wyc. A	Macke
4:00 U.C. VI	For. B	Starkman
12:00 U.C. V	St.M. C	Lyon
1:00 Med. Servicemen	Trin. C	Lyon

LACROSSE PLAYOFFS

Mon., Dec. 3	1:00 (1) SPS IV or St.M.	PHHE	Vetter, Rae
	3:45 (2) Med II or U.C.	Forestry	Cross, Shepherd
Tues., Dec. 4	4:00 Winner (2)	Med II	Sheppard, Cross
	5:30 Vic.	Winner (1)	Rae, Vetter

FINALS: Thursday, Dec. 6th, Saturday, Dec. 8th, and Tuesday, Dec. 11th (if necessary).

ATTENTION! --- Swimming and Water Polo Players

A meeting to which all competitive swimmers and water polo players are invited will be held in the Athletic Directorate Room, Hart House, TODAY (Friday) at 5:00 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to form a Swimming and Water Polo Club and to discuss plans for the season.

SKI INSTRUCTORS

Skiers are needed by University Ski Club to provide instruction for beginners this winter. Please make application in writing, to the Director of Athletics, Hart House.

The Sportswoman

By George Legris

Snowed Under

Late yesterday afternoon, Polly smiled a particularly dazzling smile at me so I am now substituting for her out of brotherly affection. Here's to lots of skiing soon. Hockey is appearing in the near distance with the odd co-ed trudging through the slush with a stick and a pair of skates. Saturday's rugby game promises to be chilly, and blankets are recommended to thwart the sniffles and sneezes next week.

Swimming

There is a great deal of talk flying around concerning the women's intramural swim meets which have taken place or are about to occur. The winners of the individual clashes will be chosen to compete in the intercollegiate squad later on in the year. Consequently, all are doing their best and just about drowning themselves in the U.T.S. pool on Bloor Street. Since males are not allowed to see these happenings (probably because the women go around in costumes similar to those used in Hart House pool) all news of recent events is to be phoned in. Well anyway, one can always go to the Queen Street hang-out with one's friends in Engineering.

Score Sheet and Such

Yesterday's column has been brought to task by an old friend who points out that the recent game between St. Hilda's and U.C. II was reported incorrectly "again" (says she). The score should be something like 28-10 for the Royal squad . . . Team managers should always make it a point of double-checking on scores after phoning them in.

Latest sports news . . . St. Hilda's fought a good fight against St. Mike's last night and went down 15-11. The Trinity girls led till the third quarter but fell behind at the end of the game. Rosemary Cunningham and Florence McDonald did valiant work for the Irish team . . . The P. & H. E. results for the swim meet are: Free style, Fran Lee; ornamental swimming, Helen DeJardine; style swimming, Helen DeJardine and Sue Gray; long plunge, Sue Gray . . . The Vic. reports are: Free style, Claire Hutton; backstroke, Jackie Manser; breaststroke, Claire Hutton; ornamental swimming, Dot Jackes; Hutton again for style, and finally the long plunge was carried off by Eleanor Coutts.

Again --

Thrill to the Satisfaction of complete "up-to-the-minute" Formal Attire.

at

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET Near Wellesley, K1. 3770
At Spadina K1. 0991 571 YONGE STREET
Open Evenings Special Student Rates

University Symphony Orchestra

THERE WILL BE A REHEARSAL FOR FULL ORCHESTRA

on

Saturday, Dec. 1st, 2p.m. sharp

IN WEST HALL, UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Prompt and Full Attendance Essential

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

"The All-Night Record Men"

AT "SCHOOL NITE"—TO-NIGHT
MUSIC ROOM, HART HOUSE

For the past 5 years providing the various organisations on the campus with "the Best in Recorded Dance Music"

When you're on a committee—and working with a limited budget—remember that the quality of the music determines the success of your affair—don't take a chance on unknown "canned" music

—Call—

"THE ALL-NIGHT RECORD MEN"

CONSULT YOUR HANDBOOK FOR THE NUMBER

COLLEGE TEXT BOOKS NEW and USED

Try Cole's for that hard-to-get Text book you need

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE RA. 1149
(1 Block south of Bloor)

City Churches

BLOOR STREET
UNITED Church

Corner Bloor and Huron Streets

11 a.m.

REV. GEO. C. PIDGEON, D.D.

7 p.m.

REV. PRESTON MACLEOD,
M.A., B.D.

Sermon:

"Seeing God in 1945"

Communion at both Services

Frederick C. Silvester,
Organist and Choirmaster

Students Specially Welcome

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Bloor Street East

Rector:

REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

Preacher:

THE RECTOR

3 p.m.—BIBLE CLASSES.

7 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER.

Preacher:

The Rev. ROLAND HILL,
B.A., L.Th.Fireside Hour after Evening
Service in the Parish Hall.

Organist:

Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University Students Welcome at All ServicesKNOX CHURCH

Spadina and Harbord

11 a.m.

"The Threefold Vision"7 p.m.—"HOW TO BE FREE"
By REV. ROBT. LENNOX,
M.A., Th.B.Professor, Presbyterian College
Montreal.

8.15 p.m.—FELLOWSHIP HOUR

Squadron Leader

REV. MAURICE FLINT

Students Specially Invited

CHRISTIAN SCIENCEFirst Church of Christ, Scientist
St. George St. at Lowther Ave.Branch of The Mother Church
The First Church of Christ,
Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

11 a.m.

Sunday, December 2nd

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced"Wed. Evening Meeting
at 8.00 o'clock
including Testimonies of Healing through Christian Science.Free Public Reading Room where the Bible and Authorized Christian
Science Literature may be read,
borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter
D.D., LL.D.

Fireside hour at close of

Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

Huron Street—Just South of Bloor

7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist

10.15—Matins.

11 a.m.—Junior Congregation.

11 a.m.—CHORAL EUCHARIST

Preacher:

Rev. CANON C. J. S. STUART,
M.A.

7 p.m.—CHORAL EVENSONG.

Preacher:

Rev. J. M. N. JACKSON, M.A.

Annual Recital of Christmas
Music, Monday, December 17th,
8.15 p.m.

CORDIAL WELCOME TO ALL UNIVER-

SITY STUDENTS

Church of the Redeemer

(Bloor and Avenue Road)

8 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION

11 a.m.—MORNING PRAYER

Preacher

CANON W. PRIOR

7 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER

Preacher

CANON R. A. ARMSTRONG

Organist: Otto James, A.R.C.O.

St. Andrew's

King and Simcoe Sts.

Minister

Very Rev. Stuart C. Parker,
D.D.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

DR. PARKER

Students specially invited.

THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY
OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)

MEETING FOR WORSHIP

on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

AT THE

Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED

TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"As justice is a preserver, so it is a better procurer of peace than war."

—WILLIAM PENN

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE

Bathurst Street at Ava Road

at 11 a.m.

RABBI ABRAHAM T. FEINBERG

will speak on

"WORLD WAR FOR ISRAEL'S LIFE"

ARE JEWS TOO MILITANT?"

Public Cordially Invited

Free bus service from Bathurst and

St. Clair every 15 minutes, commencing at 10.40 a.m. until 11.20 a.m.

and leaving the Temple at 12.30 p.m.

and 12.50 p.m.

Canadian Campus

Memorials For Living

By Barbara Jones

"What form should a university war memorial take?"That's one of the questions current on Canadian Campus. The answers vary in detail, but show an unmistakable trend toward the functional type of memorial rather than the traditional cenotaph of the First Great War.Memorial plans vary all the way from the blueprint and fund-raising stage to those already under construction. Some Canadian universities have not yet progressed beyond the thought that some sort of memorial should be erected to commemorate the sacrifice of their own students and graduates.At Queen's University, where no official plans have been formulated, student opinion favors the erection of a university building such as a new 'students' union. Opinions are similar at the University of Manitoba. Manitoba arts students feel that books, books, and more books, added to the new library would be a lasting memorial to which bereaved families of servicemen could continue to add. A student architect suggests a memorial stadium, but all opinions agree that whatever the memorial it should be something useful.A survey of student opinion at Dalhousie University indicates that the students are in favor of an auditorium or a new men's residence. Less than one percent of those questioned approved the construction of a cenotaph.The War Memorial at Acadia University is almost completed now. It began to take shape in 1943 when a barracks was required for the No. 2 Canadian Army University Course. During that year the ground floor of a new men's residence was built and in the spring of '45 construction was again under way. One hundred and sixteen veterans are now housed in the residence and by next fall, when the build-ing is finally completed, it will accommodate 140 men.A War Memorial Wing is to be added to the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium at McGill University. Half of the wing will be occupied by a swimming pool and a memorial hall, the other half by a basketball floor. A campaign to raise the necessary funds has been carried on among the students by the Graduates' Society, asking each one to sign a pledge to pay $10.00 with the payment of their fees.The University of Saskatchewan plans a student union building for their War Memorial. A Student Memorial Committee is already at work and construction will begin next fall. Appeals for funds are being made to the university alumni, to commercial organizations and to the whole student body.A Memorial Rink was erected at St.
Francis Xavier University to commemorate the dead of the First Great War, and the students are now striving to raise sufficient funds for a Memorial Football Stadium. The project was begun last summer and will be continued next spring so that the field will be ready for football next fall.No official plans for an All-University War Memorial have yet been advanced at the University of Toronto but the Alumni Association has recently approved University College's plan to transform their West Hall into a Memorial Hall. The hall would then be used for large classes and public lectures.Similarly at the University of New Brunswick, although no official action has been taken, opinion follows the popular trend with a desire for a functional, living memorial. An indoor skating rink is needed on the campus, and most of the students support a movement to erect a memorial rink, which would be available to the city as well as the university.Acta . . .
(Continued from Page 1)Rockhouse, is a triumph of exact vocabulary and a failure in integration.A special feature is a slick-paper insert with two excellent Emily Carr reproductions and an equally excellent appreciation by Richard Stingle: factual, thoughtful, unpretentious, and convincing.More routine non-fiction includes an able setting-forth of the case against deporting the Japanese-Canadians, by Howard Lacey; the report of a student poll on adult re-education in occupied Europe; an unorthodox review of Van Loon's Tolerance, by David Knight; a plea for the documentary film by perennial ex-Vietnam Neil MacDonald; and a highly statistical piece on Biological Research as a booster for Canada's Fisheries, Forestry, and Agriculture: which appears on what is called "Science Editor's Page."Special mention should be made of the "George Priceless" cartoon, a delightful pastiche by Don Harron which manages to combine Price and The Skin of our Teeth.We wish we could mention everything.
If Acta can keep up the standard of this year's first two issues, it will be something to look forward to. And other editors might well take a leaf from Mr.
Hoeniger's book. Acta has come a long way from its old Slough of Despond, in which gloomy verse issued from six-headed poetesses, each hand with a different name; and a tiny, cohesive editorial board allegedly frightened off all but the elect with the cock of a critical eyebrow.

The housecleaning was worth while.

—HUGH KENNER.

THE CHURCH OF THE
HOLY TRINITY

Trinity Square

(ON Yonge, 2 below Dundas)

Invites students to join with us
in services that combine beauty
of worship with progressive
Christian actionRegular Sunday services at 8, 9.30, and 11 a.m., and at 7 p.m.Review . . .
(Continued from Page 1)good thinking: it is only the mass effect that is discouraging.Of Editor Cooter's massive critique of Arts Instruction, we can only say that The Varsity, with more space, would reprint it intact; than which,
these space-short days, we have no higher tribute.W. M. Kilbourn's Retrospect 1944 is a set of freshman reminiscences done with uncommon sensitivity and refreshing picturesqueness of observation; it is a pity the style goes a bit heavy in spots. The other major prose effort,
I. E. Alger's N-44, the stream-of-consciousness record of a bingo game, is something rare among undergraduate short stories: a new subject well-handled. The ending is unnecessarily melodramatic for our taste; though we have had no luck trying to think of a better one.Orrie Crossing and Justice, both by A. M. S. Wallace, are both remarkable:
the first because of its uncanny overtone of bagpipes, the second because it is a perfect, polished epigram: something to prize.Peace, by Catherine Bliss, is a morceau that would be haunting if the situation did not require much decoding; G.
T. Jeffrey's Burned Bulb seems uncertain whether it is light verse or not.
Dorothy Harley is much more sure of herself: Going to Stay Right Here
With the vye Store is neat, funny, and sufficiently subtle.Which is all there is. It was worth reading; and we wish the editor better luck next time with his balance.

—HUGH KENNER.

What's on Today

Vic. S.C.M.

Open House will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in Alumni Hall. Rev. A. E.
Armstrong will speak. There will be refreshments and recreation. Everybody is welcome.

Newman Club

Saturday: 5:30 to 8:30, last tea dance of the term. Sunday: 9:00, Debate.St. Thomas Aquinas's Chapel
Monday, Dec. 3: 8:15 a.m., Solemn High Mass in honor of St. Francis Xavier. Rev. G. B. Phelan, celebrant.Whisk! and you're gone . . . skimming your way over the snowy slopes! Warm, comfortable, and so smartly garbed . . .
in ski clothes from EATON'S Winter Shop.Ski Suit—cotton and wool gabardine, in navy, brown, green, red and navy, or gold and brown.

Sizes 14 to 20 included $29.95

Mitts—"pigtex" grained sheepskin, with warm fleeced cotton lining. In green, navy, brown. Pair 1.98Kerchief—spun rayon square . . . gaily decorated with skiing scenes. In white, yellow, red, or navy. Each . . . 1.50EATON'S Winter Shop - Fourth Floor EATON'S Main Store.

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Beck Recommends
Mind Over MatterThe dismal failure of material means "to solve the problems of human existence was the theme of Herbert W. Beck of San Francisco in an address here recently.Mr. Beck of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., spoke in The Ontario College of Education before the U. of T. Christian Science organization.Philosophizing on his religion, Mr.
Beck said "In healing sickness it is the false belief that man is imperfect and subject to the conditions of that belief which is cast out of the consciousness."

D.V.A. Notice

There are between 80 and 100
D.V.A. cheques still unclaimed at the Bursar's Office in Simcoe Hall.
Students who have not as yet received their cheques are asked to pick them up at the Bursar's Office as soon as possible.

Ex-Service Women

There is to be an informal gathering of all ex-service-women of the University at

NEWMAN HALL

Monday, Dec. 3, 8 o'clock
Come and bring your knitting, and your sugar too!

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that . . .

The University Advisory Bureau was set up on the authority of the Board of Governors to make available to Veterans
a full-time advisory service.
They would be glad to help you on any matters upon which you wish to consult them.UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS67 St. George St. M.L. 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.Have You Lost
Anything?Have You Anything
For Sale?For quick results
put a Classified Ad.
in "The Varsity"

Phone M.L. 6221

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

ROOM AND BOARD

For girl in Leaside home, in exchange for very simple duties. Apply to the S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE

Lady's cloth coat, beige, fur-trimmed, size 16-18. Excellent condition. Ph.
Mary, GE. 2377, after 6.

LOST

Grey Oxford overcoat, outside Hart House Library, Wed. night. Red plaid scarf and pair brown gloves.
Please leave at S.A.C. office.

LOST

One maroon scarf. Reward.
HU. 7600.

LOST

Grey Waterman's fountain pen, inscribed "Marion Awde." Please leave at S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE

One brown tweed suit, 36 chest, 33 inner leg; and formal evening clothes, same size. HU. 7600.Baha'i World Faith

112A BLOOR STREET WEST

Subject:

RELIGION RENEWED

WALMER ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

(1 block west of Spadina Rd.—block north of Bloor)

Rev. Adiel J. Moncrief, D.D.
MINISTER

SUNDAY

11 a.m.—"BLESSED HELPING HAND"

(Broadcast CBL)

7 p.m.—"THE CHURCH OR CHURCHES"

Communion Service

8.15 p.m.—The Young Peoples' Debate

YOU WILL ENJOY THE YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Immediately following the Morning Service (12.10-1 p.m.)

MR. CHARLES RICKETTS, Guest Teacher

ERIC FEE, President WM. BUCK, Pianist

A Friendly Church Where A Warm Welcome Awaits You

"Undemocratic Practices" Condemned By U.C. Parlt.

SWEEPING MAJORITY BACKS GOV'T.

A motion "that this House looks with disfavor upon what it considers the undemocratic practices of Mr. Hermant in his capacity as assistant to the president of the Imperial Optical Company and hopes that he will do everything in his power to bring this strike to a satisfactory conclusion" was passed on Friday afternoon by the University College Parliament. The motion, introduced before the orders of the day, was carried by a vote of 100-40. Mr. Hermant is honorary president of the University College Literary and Athletic Society.

A private motion, introduced by Allen Porter, "that this House condemn the present indecisive stand of The Varsity in opposing progressive movements on the campus in their attempt to support the cause of the workers and persecuted minorities" was tabled by the speaker until the next session.

In the debate on the first motion, Ed Safarian accused the Imperial Optical Company of a refusal to bargain in good faith with the "recognized bargaining agent". In reply to Mr. Hermant's charges that the union is irresponsible, Safarian declared that the union is responsible to its members but that Mr. Hermant is responsible "only to his own conscience".

Gordon McCaffrey, president of the U.C. "Lit", spoke against the motion and urged students not to picket the company's premises but to demand an adequate labor code from the federal government.

The main motion of the day "that this House recommends the adoption of Palestine as a national Jewish homeland" was passed 134-30.

Phyllis Cohen, opening the debate for the government, argued that "the capacities of Palestine are such as could absorb agriculturally and industrially a much larger population. The suggestion is one of a federation of Arabs and Jews in Palestine without domination by any outside power."

"These are no times to foster nationalism," contended Mary Richardson, speaking for the opposition. "The 'rights' are all on the Arabs' side. We could point out that of the few hundred thousand Jews left in distressed circumstances, many can be taken into Britain, the Commonwealth, the U.S.A. and Western Europe. The government proposal puts forth a dangerous precedent." Monty Simmonds pointed out that the Jewish culture thrives only when the people of that faith have the same rights and privileges as other citizens. "Palestine," he maintained, "is the only place where this may be achieved."

Howard Mann stated that Palestine is one of the most unsuitable locations

Record Hour

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and the women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:
Bach—Mass in B Minor (concluded).

Globe-Trotting Scientist Studies People And Gases

By Margaret Bowes

A self-styled "rolling stone" has paused to gather a year's worth of moss on the U. of T. campus.

He is Dr. R. J. Tickle, whose travels since 1934 have taken him from his native Australia to Hawaii, the United States, to Greenland and now to Canada.

Surrounded by test-tubes, bottled gases and assorted chemicals this slight soft-spoken, bearded scientist works these days in the subterranean depths of the Pharmacology Building. His National Research Scholarship assignment: intensive work upon gas analysis.

Sydney-born Dr. Tickle left University in 1934, practiced for three years, then yielded to a long-postponed desire to travel. After two months in Hawaii, he arrived on this continent to begin what he terms a six-month "vagabond tour" of the United States.

His keen interest in people and customs prompted him to desert the highways for the by-ways where, according to the Doctor, he met the inhabitants of the land, face to face, and saw them as they really were—not as they pretended to be.

Speaking with the suspicion of an English accent, Dr. Tickle described his three-year stay in Greenland.

In 1941 the island was virtually isolated from the rest of the world. The Danes, desperate for a man of his experience, persuaded him to remain. Language was an obstacle at first. Once mastered however, Dr. Tickle found the Islanders a warm, friendly people.

"But," he grinned, "when I began to talk to myself in Danish—I left."

His beard, he admitted, was product of Greenland. Raised partially in self-defense against the inclemencies of Arctic weather and partially because soap, warm water and razors were scarce, the beard was regarded by the natives as an indication of strength and virility.

Dr. Tickle made no comment about the beard's continued existence. Perhaps he has just become attached to it. Or vice versa.

An expert in his own field of work, a thoughtful student of human nature, Dr. Tickle's impression in the course of his travels is that the language barrier is the greatest stumbling block to international understanding. Ideally, he looks to the day when men will speak in identical terms of identical things.

"Then," he observes, "we will indeed be on the way to permanent peace."

Where next on his globe-spanning itinerary? Dr. Tickle isn't sure. But he speaks with enthusiasm of visiting Russia, South America and the Scandinavian

Among the slides he showed were X-ray pictures which had been taken to discover flaws in metal castings. Other slides portrayed the screen of a radar set, while others showed night reconnaissance taken with flash bombs.

One slide showed a group of men, who did not know they were being photographed, watching a movie. The army knew that men were falling asleep during training films. By means of photographs taken by infrared light, invisible to the human eye, the authorities were able to discover what part of the movies caused the inattention.

Dr. Clarke also showed a time-lapse movie of the whole sky from dawn to dusk taken in full color. The picture was taken by photographing the reflection of the sky in a spherical mirror. By taking a frame every six seconds, the whole day was reduced to four minutes in the movie.

The next lecture of the current R.C.I. series, "The Story of Plastic Surgery," will be given by Dr. Stuart Gordon, Chief Surgeon of the Department of Veterans' Affairs next Saturday in Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

Convocation Hall.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1945

No. 47

The Varsity Goes To A Party As Dr. Satterly Blows Out 66

The University of Toronto's most renowned bubble-blower got a new bubble set for his birthday last Friday. For John Satterly was 66 and his first year physics students had decided to fête him fittingly.

Prof. Satterly, famed for his annual liquid air demonstrations, was the startled recipient of an enthusiastic surprise birthday party.

The birthday bounce was in Prof. Satterly's stride as he entered Room 43 in the Physics Building a few seconds past noon on Friday. Benignly he beamed upon several score surprised "surprisers" who had plotted to turn this routine lecture into a gala celebration.

In gay and yellow and orange chalk, the width of the backboard proclaimed "Happy Birthday".

This was to be his last year at the University of Toronto, the Professor confessed as he struggled to express his gratitude to the congregation of punch-proud fledgling physicists.

He was retiring, he said. He wanted to go to England.

The bubble set was ceremoniously presented to the flustered professor. It would his students suggested, aid him in his surface tension research.

A tin helmet was produced. Protection, the class giggled, in further atomic investigations.

A box of chalk was the next gift from the class. An inveterate chalk-destroyer, the professor was grateful. He turned and scrawled sincerely with his new chalk, "Thank you, John Satterly."

The over-worked "small boy" of countless Satterly demonstrations was wheeled in—appropriately placarded. Most diminutive student of the class, the birthday-present "small boy" was grinning importantly.

(Continued on page 4)

Sociology Club Studies Groups

The contributions of a progressive camp organized to provide "democratic experience in group living" in the Catskill region of New York were discussed by Jackie Singer IV Sociology at a panel discussion of "The Practical Application of Sociology" before the Sociology Club last week.

On the principle that "each person is a member of society and has a contribution to make that society" the campers work together in undertaking useful projects and administering a cooperative store and post-office. Special emphasis is placed on the relation of the camp to the community, culminating in an annual folk festival.

The Army program of rehabilitating men at its Psychological Retraining Centers for service in the front lines was outlined by Saul Littman, IV Sociology who indicated that a similar means of treating minor neuroses on a group scale could be adopted with considerable results in civilian social work.

In illustrating the role of the Brightside Nursery, on New York's Lower East Side, as an institution and in relation to the community, Judy Henderson and Barbara Brooks IV Sociology emphasized the success of this pioneer Settlement House in raising the general standard of living among families in its district.

Zionism Topic OF D. Newman

Many Zionists who are unfamiliar with the early history of the movement will shortly be enlightened according to Nellie Gurvitch, one of the executives of Atnahsh, student Zionist movement.

Mr. David Newman, a leader of the Toronto Jewish community will speak on the history of Zionism and the role of the movement's early leaders tomorrow night at Cartwright Hall.

A discussion period will follow the address.

Faculties Report Delays On Jap-Canadian Stand

IMMEDIATE ACTION CALLED FOR

Heads of the student governments of the Faculties of Engineering, Dentistry and Medicine today reported on the action they have taken with regard to the impending deportation of Japanese-Canadians. The question was referred to faculty organizations by the Students' Administrative Council early in November, when the S.A.C. deferred action on a resolution condemning the government's policy until student opinion had been more fully ascertained.

Murray McCullough, President of the Engineering Society, announced that the engineers have taken a negative view of the question. Many of them are from British Columbia and feel that Varsity

Jap. Deportation Issue At McGill

Montreal, Nov. 30—(CUP)—Since information regarding the Japanese-Canadian problem has proved slow in arriving from Ottawa, at a meeting of the Students' Executive Council of McGill University plans were made to elect a special committee of two to further investigate the situation.

Some of the students at the meeting expressed the opinion that, "If the Council was to deal with all the current political problems of Canada, University business would be neglected." In the opinion of the majority of the students the Japanese-Canadian problem is a topic of general concern to all students regardless of its political significance.

Campus Book Shop Run By Students

LAWRENCE, Kansas. (Exchange)—For 35 years the University of Kansas has wanted a book store and this February the plans will finally be crystallized.

Several students started to raise money for it 30 years ago by selling stock at $10 a share but the plan fell through due to the opposition of local merchants.

Then students began meeting at a definite rendezvous to exchange used books. This custom took hold and the exchange mechanism improved with the passage of time but it never assumed the proportions of a real campus book store.

Definite plans for the book store will be drawn up as soon as a location and a manager can be found.

Varsity Advisory Bureau Seeks These Students

The following students are requested to get in touch with the University Advisory Bureau at 67 St. George Street, immediately. The telephone number is MI. 3791.

Anderson, John, G-1729; Armstrong, Geo. A., Lieut.; Beharrell, Fred, C-39702; Belyea Richard, O-5850; Bockner, Lewis, R-200539; Bourdon, Doug. T., R-129340; Campan, M. D., 616234; Card, Dr. L. Major; Clarkson, Max, O-14280; Colgan, H. H., J-92896; Collins, Robt., R-237668.

Colvin, James, J-96167; Corbett, C. B., J-20141; Crichton Doug., R-115353; Cryderman, Chester, H-45825; Cunningham, John, R-257365; Davies, Albert, B-17008; Davies, R. A., Capt.; Dedrick Malcolm, B-89999; Desroches, B. G., R-170571; Di Bello, Vict., B-635481.

Donovan, G., O-20257; Dunlop, Thomas, Capt.; Drupina, M., B-122427; Evans E. M., Capt.; Fine, Samuel, B-434957; French Robt., W-84227; Fraser, Jas., R-95864; Fraser, D. A., J-15615; Fraser, James, J-40821; Galbraith Robt., Lieut.; Giffen, F. J., R-251661.

Gordon, Robt., O-27932; Gray, James, B-164514; Greenberg, Wm., R-100747; Hamra Geo. J., R-115185; Harding, John M., Major; Harrison, Art., Lieut.;

students do not realize the conditions that exist in B.C. At a meeting of the society, with a bare quorum present, no vote could be taken.

The Engineering Society was annoyed by the emphasis on immediacy evident in the petition, feeling that the other faculties would not adhere to this provision, said McCullough. The executive agreed with the philosophy which prompted the petition, but was not willing to commit itself to censoring government action on any specific minority.

Doug Langmaid, president of the Dentistry Students' Parliament, explained the lack of action in his faculty. The petition was circulated during fourth year examinations when many students were absent from the college. A vote has been taken among first and second years, but its indecisiveness prevented the executive from committing the faculty as a whole.

Many students, said Langmaid, are not yet fully aware of the facts.

Little information has been presented to the Faculty of Medicine according to Bob Slater, vice-president of the Medical Society, who believes this to be the reason for the inactivity of medical students.

According to Don Franco, chairman of the Committee on Japanese-Canadians the University must protest the government's action immediately in an attempt to prevent the deportation. The committee will meet this afternoon at 5:00 p.m. in Cartwright Hall. Representatives from all faculties are requested to be present.

INFORMAL RECITAL

Charles Dobias, violinist, of 3rd year St. Michael's College, will play the following program at an informal recital in the east common room of Hart House at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday:

Melodie Tchaikovsky
First Movement of the Concerto in E Minor Mendelssohn
Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Zigeunerweisen, Opus 20 Sarasate

Editorial

A Literary Entree

Do you remember last year's literary issue of School's Toke Oike? Was there anything memorable in The Undergraduate, University College's annual literary event? What about the Acta Victoriana of years gone by, or The Trinity Review? Commendable periodicals in themselves, to a greater or lesser degree, was their reader interest not largely limited to their particular time and place of issue?

No Lasting Record

The point we are endeavoring to make is simply this: the University of Toronto does not produce any publication devoted to the creative work of its undergraduates as representatives of the University. There is no lasting record of the fact that literary talent does abide here.

The absence of the record, of course, does not deny the presence of literary talent of high quality among Varsity students. An imposing list of the creative work of Toronto graduates could be summoned as witness. But why should the identification of authorship with the University be so lately forthcoming, and so incidentally? Why no blue and white parallel to McGill's Younger Poets, for example? Why no all-university publication representing the total undergraduate literary life?

These Are Important

College or faculty periodicals do occupy an incontestable place among campus publications. And we would be the first to protest the discontinuance of any one of them. We do feel, however, that there is another, perhaps a higher, most certainly a broader place that has been left too long unoccupied. There is a definite place for this currently non-existent University literary product.

It is not strictly accurate to lament the total absence of a university-wide product less than two weeks before the appearance of The Varsity Literary Supplement. An ambitious innovation, this may in some measure help to make up the deficiency of student literary production. It cannot, however, pretend to answer the full need. It is a step in the right direction; but it does not go the whole way.

An Example

Perhaps the most important function to be fulfilled by The Varsity Literary Supplement will be in its example. It may be able to demonstrate in a restricted way, but tangibly, a direction that could be followed with profit to the University's reputation. The fact that an encouraging number of contributions are daily reaching the editors and the adjudicators of contests in various creative departments augurs well for such a venture. An established periodical—perhaps a quarterly—would doubtless find even greater support than does this hastily conceived, but we hope not prematurely delivered tabloid.

Menu Item

Certainly the student-poor, time-filled years of war were no time for embarkation upon new ventures of this nature. It is remarkable, indeed, that University publications managed to carry on in the face of difficulty. But today, an overflowing, energy-abounding campus virtually hungers for new taste thrills, new menus of interests. Perhaps it is a time for a literary entrée. How about a helping of vers libre, well done?

We submit that the twofold benefit of a serious University of Toronto literary periodical—both undergraduate contributors and their alma mater would profit—would more than repay the energies demanded in its production. Prerequisite to its greatest success, again, would be the non-parochial nature of its sources and its influences. It should, in effect, skim off the cream from the University's literary churn.

—R. E. R.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1888
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 424
University College, M.L. 6611
Business Office, M.L. 6221
Night Office, M.L. 8743
News Editor, George Forster, 476
Assistant, Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor, Wally Boffy, 478
Assistant, E. Ross McLean, 477
Sports Editor, Reg Herman, 476
Women's Assistant, Mickey Michalski, 477
Men's Assistant, Polly Mott, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor, Jerry Ewins, 476
Assistant, Barbara Jones, B.A.
Art, Music, and Drama, Dorothy Harley, 476
Editor-in-Chief, W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor, Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant, Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor, Phil Wallace, B.P.E.
Staff Photographer, Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager, E. A. MacDONALD

Night Editor: Reg Herman
Assistant: Eileen Sanders

Correspondence

East Is East
Is East

Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

With the approach of the Christmas season and its customary association with warmth and conviviality this seems a fitting time to apply a mental hot-foot to the Torontonians ice-bound personality.

We from the Warm and Woolly West are not used to the clam temperaments found in Toronto "the Good", so we shall hurl our clods with candor against the strange wall of frigidity behind which the Torontonians huddle, eskimolike, in their antipathetically lined parkas, reeling each on his own dim glow for social warmth.

To vegetate in a mental backwater is, in itself, bad enough but when this stagnant pool is frozen by cold indifference to everyone outside of it it is time for someone to apply anti-freeze to the local igloo mind.

Considered as a whole, you are very different from us who come from that limbo of lost souls West of Winnipeg. Individually, we must admit, contact of some sort can be established after a sufficient period of preheating, particularly in the case of exservicemen and women. However, in just as many cases, your sub-zero humours defy us defrosters and dismiss us with a chill-blained look of indignant outrage. The friendliest things, as a group, that we have seen within a ten-mile radius of Simcoe Hall are the squirrels and the pigeons.

There is something decidedly repugnant about the atmosphere in this area. We recommend a city-wide air conditioning system to prevent contagion from your stuffy personalities.

"Reserve" is the word commonly used to describe these icy intellects. As one of its definitions for reserve the dictionary gives: "the preservation of a certain state". In Toronto this state closely borders that of suspended animation. If one could be happy in Toronto he would never dare to let his facial expression show it. One would think that the citizen's emotions are kept in quick-freeze lockers.

In itself your sophisticated aloofness is unpardonable, but when coupled with a definite pride in this complacent exclusiveness it is not only unpardonable but also incomprehensible and exceedingly irritating to the outsider. Surely you cannot deny this pride in your own unsociability when, with no blush of

To the Editor of the Literary Issue,—
I'm enclosing herein some of my humble efforts. They're really pretty terrific, eh, eh, but I should let them speak for themselves.

TRAGEDY: The Nude Dude and the Seedless Figs.

(Copyrighted by Iggnutz Jones)

Weakly, painfully, his breath coming in gasps, Willie the Wit staggered along the gutter of dark, dismal Ripper Square...

Beads of sweat dribbled down his sunken nose, he lurched and swayed along the gutter...

A massive shape loomed and a vice-like grip enclosed his neck. The cop snarled, "Yer walkin' with one foot in the gutter and one on the sidewalk. Yer drunk."

Relief flooded Willy's face. "My, I thought I was lame," and sadly he wondered off...

Slum people slouched this way and that. Some slouched into pool halls, others slouched into dark doorways, still others slouched into each other.

And elsewhere the upper classes danced and laughed...

POETRY An Ode For Sex Education
(Copyrighted by Iggnutz Jones)

There was a young student named Tarts,

Who did nothing all night but play darts;

He said, "I'll admit
I'm a bit short of wit,

"But look at the girls in Pass Arts."

Note to Ed. of Litt. Supp: Iggnutz Jones is the personality behind.

RACD.

shame rising to your frost-rimed cheeks, you blithely admit "Yes, people are erect in Toronto, you, a Westerner, would notice it particularly."

We notice and protest.
S. B. BOYLE,
H. D. BOYLE,
Victoria.

Editor, The Varsity,

Dear Sir:

I have read your editorial of Thursday, Nov. 29, with interest and agreement. You are quite right when you say that your recent editorials and replies by the student body are causing much

(Continued on page 4)

Art, Music and Drama

Madrigals and Motets

Despite the fact that in Elizabethan times English music and musicians led the world in achievement, it is only rarely that the modern concert-goer has the opportunity of hearing the compositions of this period. Few artists or ensembles ever attempt anything written before the 18th Century, and when they do the performance is generally second-rate, due to the artist's unfamiliarity with the requirements of the style.

Last night in Hart House members of this university were privileged to hear a concert consisting mainly of 16th century English vocal music, magnificently performed by the St. Mary Magdalene Singers, under the direction of Dr. Healey Willan. Motets and madrigals by Tallis, Gibbons, di Lasso, Byrd, and others occupied most of the program, along with two works written in the same style by Dr. Willan himself. These pieces proved decisively that it is quite possible to write music in conformity with strict rules of counterpoint and form, and still make it delightful to listen to. Although these compositions consisted of intricate patterns of interweaving melodies, the motets had an almost angelic character, while the contagious rhythm of some of the madrigals proved them to be excellent dance pieces.

Its humor skated expertly along on the thin ice of double entendre which its occasional tropical line threatened to melt.

Its most entertaining character: A hissing prototype of old Artsmen, as seen through Skule eyes, portrayed by Bill Neale.

Its only fault: The gold ink came off its programmes. —ROSS McLEAN.

period, not the tempered scale used universally since Bach. This makes some of the notes sound slightly out of tune to ears desensitized by a modern piano. Each singer's tone is pure in quality, and the style of singing is neat and tidy in the best English tradition.

In short, last night's concert was a remarkable throw-back to the greatest days of English music.

—BROCK McELHERAN.

Pops' Concert

A demonstration of good orchestral playing was effected by the Toronto Symphony orchestra under the exceptional direction of Ettore Mazzolini at the Pops Concert at Massey Hall last Friday evening.

The entire orchestra responded amazingly to Mr. Mazzolini's forceful musical personality. His expressive conducting led the players to the attainment of new musical heights.

Maria Kurenko, Russian soprano, sang with clarity despite the fact that the volume of the orchestra was too great at times for her to compete with. The two Russian folk songs by Gretchaninoff effectively rendered. In all numbers, Miss Kurenko's enunciation was excellent.

Ettore Mazzolini has made the Toronto Symphony orchestra come to life. It is another notable achievement to add to his already long list. He possesses the power of producing music to reach into the hearts of people. With the acclaim of true music-lovers ringing in his ears, he faces a brilliant future.

—EILEEN SANDERS.

The famous "sailor" trademark is a symbol of all that is best in tobacco manufacture and guarantees that the contents of the package will maintain Player's world-wide reputation for excellence and dependable quality.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT
CIGARETTES

University of Toronto

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB

Organization Meeting

Women's Union - 8 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 4

Jewish Student Fellowship

ANNOUNCE

The ANNUAL CHANUKA Party

- Chanuka Operetta
- Chanuka Gifts
- Chanuka Games

THE ORIGINAL CHANUKA CEREMONY
REFRESHMENTS DANCING

PLACE —
The Belvin, 245 College St.

DATE —
Saturday, Dec. 8th, 8:30 p.m.

PRICE —
$1.50 Per Couple

TICKETS MAY BE PURCHASED FROM J.S.F. EXECUTIVE, AND FRATERNITY AND SORORITY REPRESENTATIVES.

Let Us Send You Samples of this Clean, Family Newspaper

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Free from crime and sensational news... Free from political bias... Free from "special interest" control... Free to tell you the truth about world events. Its own world-wide staff of correspondents bring you on-the-spot news and its meaning to you and your family. Each issue filled with unique self-help features to clip and keep.

The Christian Science Publishing Society
One, Norway Street, Boston 15, Mass.

Name: _____
Street: _____
City: _____
State: _____
Zip: _____

☐ Please send sample copies of The Christian Science Monitor.

☐ Please send a one-month trial subscription. I enclose $1.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

The regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held today at 5:00 p.m. in the Music Room. All members are requested to attend in preparation for Christmas engagements.

Informal Recital

Charles Dobias (III St. Michael's), violinist, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday. Miss Gabrielle Dobias will be at the piano.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Junior B's Meet St. Mikes In Opener Of Hockey Season

The first peacetime Varsity hockey game will be faced-off this evening at 8:30 when the Varsity Junior "B" O.H.A. entry entertain the St. Michael's College Buzzers.

The Junior Bees have been hard at work for the past three weeks but team conditioning and molding was delayed for two weeks while a junior coach was appointed. Ace Bailey, senior mentor, gave the team as much of his spare time as he possibly could but proper training was not started until the new coach, Staff Smythe officially took over.

The roster has been slotted to eighteen players, most of which will be in action in this first exhibition game. Name players on the squad are few and far between although Paul Hutzlak former Marlborough goalie is listed as one of the goales.

Staff's younger brother Hugh, is slated for one of the frontline berths. Last year, Hugh was one of the smoothest wingers on Ace Bailey's senior team but this year decided to revert to the younger squad.

Griff Pearson also of last year's senior is expected to show form along the forward line.

Students are reminded that admission is free on the presentation of an admit-to-lecture card with the athletic portion attached.

All-Stars Again Plus Not-Quites

The way the All-Stars appeared in the Friday issue—with three Second Team Flying Wings it was confusing to say the least—makes a rehash of the subject rather necessary. The fault lay in a linotype machine breakdown. The harried night editor scurried around in the background, trying to straighten things out, but this was just one of the errors he neglected to correct. It was regrettable, and we apologize. The complete two teams are therefore reprinted below, and this time they are right.

In this connection, there are several bits that might justifiably be added about some of the guys who played well all season yet failed to clamber past the brink of All-Star hill.

For Dents there were Petruccio and Woodledge for St. Mikes Mackan, MacIntyre and Higgins for Trinity Hendra; for Vic Drew and Cooke for Junior School Nord; for Senior School Farquar and Roberts for Junior Meds Gora; for Senior Meds Clomes; for U.C. Bennet, Tettnar, Staley and Bostin. There are others, no doubt, but these men came the closest in the representative voting.

Don't be surprised if a couple of the names appearing in this article pop up on next year's Blues.

First Team

Flying Wing.....Hamm, Sr. S. P.S.
Halves.....Hendrick, Sr. S. P. S.
Millen, Sr. S. P. S.
Huycke, Trinity.
Quarter.....Volpe, U. C.
Snap.....McKnight, Sr. S. P. S.
Insides.....Upton, U. C.
Sharpe, Sr. S. P. S.
Middles.....Morris, Vic
Kuhn, U. C.
Outsides.....E. Staley, U. C.
Booth, Sr. S. P. S.

Second Team

Flying Wing.....Young, Dents.
Halves.....Niero, St. Mikes.
Burford, Vic
Cochrane, Sr. Meds.
Quarter.....Bauer, St. Mikes.
Snap.....Black, Vic.
Insides.....Glen, Sr. S. P. S.
Whiton, Vic
Middles.....Williams, Dents.
Butko, Sr. S. P. S.
Outsides.....Rocchi, St. Mikes
Bromley, Sr. S. P. S.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC

by
ST. SIMON'S Choir
(Ninth Season)

"A Concert beautiful beyond praise should run a whole week."

EATON Auditorium, Mon. Dec. 10

8:15 p.m.

TICKETS: $2.00, $1.50, $1.00
Box Office TR. 1144

Dorothy Parnum, RA. 8191

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

Champions All . . .

For no apparent reason, it was christened the "game of the year". Throughout Canada, anxious and straining ears were glued to radios while on the field the two supposedly top ranking teams in the land stood face to face.

A determined Argonaut twelve answered the opening whistle for the first peacetime battle in seven years. Clear in the memory of football fans was the last encounter between the two teams and the Argo supporters felt confident that their players would repeat their 1938 victory over the Bombers for the Grey Cup.

On the second play of the game, Doug Smylie was on his way to a touchdown but ice on the field caused him to lose his footing with no one between him and the goal line. On the ninth play, the Argos had their first touch.

The 35-0 score sent fans scurrying through record books for a score to surpass it and it was only when they reached the middle twenties that anything was found to compare with it.

Time and current events proved the Argonauts a great team, a throw-back to the 1937 and '38 clubs of Lou Hayman—the brainiest and the brainiest ever to ramble over foreign fields wearing the Double Blue. Experts tabbed them a great team early in the season. More so when Krol was added to the fold. Fair weather friends looked upon Tedder Morris as a mere replacement until Roughriders and Balmy Beach tasted defeat. Then, and only then, did the Argo stock take a sudden rise. Fans were quick to hop on the bandwagon.

Today, Argos are Canadian champions. Names such as Copeland, Myers, Krol, Doty, Smylie and Karrys will live—not because they wear a football crown—but because they were fighters, all for and one for all. Triumph alone does not test the heritage of a thoroughbred; it is the fight and determination that tries his true mettle.

It is this spirit in the Argonauts that carried them through to victory. It is the spirit of a champion.

Creed or Conscience . . .

C.I.A.U. officials at Kingston recently indicated their disapproval of athletic scholarships, scouting, etc., and while they indicted no college, they indicated that their eyes are not nearly as closed as one would have been led to believe. The rap on the knuckles was worded thusly, "that such unsound and unethical procedures will be discouraged by any institutions where such practices are now tolerated."

Any dreams for a sport fortress that may have been harbored by any college must have received a sudden jolt.

Through intention or oversight, however, one loophole was provided. Nothing was said regarding the violation of the ruling and therefore no penalty was provided. Could be that C.I.A.U. moguls turned out that transcrip- tion merely as a museum piece?

If a law were suddenly passed prohibiting the use of automobiles, would people heed the ruling if no penalty were provided for its infraction? True that a number of citizens would give up their pleasures as it would be the honorable thing to do. But how many?

Thus, since these methods have been prevalent during the past, there is little assurance that a simple agreement will remedy the situation.

The Sportswoman

by Polly Mutz

Near The Last Lap

The basketball schedule is in the last week of its schedule. This guarantees a better brand of basketball as the teams are well versed in the law of survival of the fittest, and are intent in proving how fit they are while opportunity knocks for the last time.

The U.C. freshmen defeated the O.T. freshmen in one of the best all-around games of the season. The teams were fairly evenly matched, which is always the cue for an interesting game. What is more, both sides of the question were aware of the meaning of good sportsmanship . . . were good winners and good losers. The referee was quite overcome by the amount of co-operation and clean play exhibited. Our only regret . . . the score is missing from the report.

Another Grade A game was that between P. & H.E. II B and the Nurses. They also smiled equally brightly at defeat and victory, played for the sake of the game rather than for a win . . . though no doubt neither began the game with the sole intent of losing. The Phys. Eds. scored a count of 19 over the Nurses B. Outstanding players were Betty Upper, guard for Nurses, and Betty Jackes, forward for P. & H.E.

The game between U.C. II and Physio. was noteworthy for more than polished playing . . . reports have it that Marg Chisholm, U.C. forward, was sensational . . . this star player shone brightly in her passing and forwarding . . . it was a sheer delight to watch. The Saints registered a win over O.T. II, in a game remarkable for un-sensationalism, sloppy plays, cut-throat competition.

Definitely The Last Lap

The finals are scheduled to start Friday, Dec. 7. It's to be a round robin affair in which the winner of one league will play every other top team. The freshmen are to give the red-breast ball a push next Friday when U.C. face either P. & H.E. or Vic, who are tied for a place in the semi-finals. The same evening, the cream of the senior league challenges P. & H.E. II B. The remainder of the finals will take place on Dec. 11 and 18. The team possessing the highest number of points (3 points awarded to winners, 2 to teams tied, 1 to losers,) will claim the title. In case of two teams having equal totals conjecture has it that the total number of baskets will be brought into evidence . . . though a meeting of the club has yet to take place and verify this.

Joan Davis, now attending O.C.E. will referee, along with Louis Dowson, last year's president of the basketball club, also a student at the College of Education. The scene of the great finals is to be the inner sanctum of Hart House . . . the time: 7:30 for the first game, 8:30 for the second. Women spectators may attend.

Joan Davis graduates from the position of referee to coach of the Inter-collegiate team once the interlacally set-up is settled. The coaches of the league teams are to send in the names of their players they think competent intercollegiate material . . . Joan will choose her team from this number. The practices begin after Christmas, on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 5:30, O.C.E. . . in preparation for the meet in Montreal, so the hopefuls say.

SPORTS CALENDAR

SOCCER FINAL, Stadium	2:30	Trin. I	Vic. I	Life, Fyfe
LACROSSE PLAYOFFS	1:00	SPS. IV	PHE.	Vetter, Rae
	3:45	U.C.	Forestry	Cross, Sheppard
SWIM LEAGUE	5:00	Vic.	Med. I	Beer
		For.	Emman
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	SPS. III	Dent. A	Eilbeck
	4:00	Knox A	Pharm.	Fine
	6:30	Trin. C	U.C. VI	Starkman

VOLLEYBALL MEETING TODAY 1:00 p.m., re protest, playoffs.
INTRAMURAL COMMITTEE MEETING TODAY, 5:00 p.m.

University Football Talent Promising For Season Of '47

By Wally Belfry

For more legal reasons, this gang's as well known as the Polka Dot Gang. Still, its a year ahead of the calendar to call them all university students.

The crystal-ball's football plans reveal the possibility of an influx of big league football talent into Varsity's '46-'47 season. Hold your hats and helmets, fellows—revival of the old freshman rule may make them ineligible for anything but your own college squad!

Toronto's west end, like all other ends of all other cities, has sand lots where almost every year one of its prodigies bridges the gap into the big league. That park much west of the Exhibition Grounds, the one that slopes down to the lakeshore, is an exception.

Here is a gang who, from the day they first understood the difference between a football and a light bulb, used to skip Sunday School every week and hold a little competition to advance the ball nearest the other team's goal-line.

There was the blond kid, big for his age; and the tiny one who made up for his size with his speed. There were the doctor's two sons; the doc treated them like professional athletes from the day they were born. There was the foreman's son, and his pal, the scrappy kid who seemed to like to fight almost better than he liked to play football. Then there were the pair who admitted it, one was hockey-crazy and the other lived for the baseball season. There were more than this, of course, but we can't all make the grade.

They weren't all in the same class, in the same public school even. They were split worse than ever in high school. But somehow they were always together on the same football field when Sunday afternoon rolled around.

It was always the same gang that showed up, Sunday after Sunday. Yet you couldn't call them exclusive because they just weren't. They took on all comers. Very few came. It was just touch-rugby so size didn't matter in the backfield, still a guy tired of being out-run, outsmarted, and generally out-played, play after play, Sunday after Sunday.

By now the big blond could pass on the run like a machine gun on a fighter plane; the tiny one, smallest of them all, could run fastest of them all; and the doc's sons had a fair share of everything it takes to make a ball-player.

The line-play was not for weaklings either. The rugged outside wings were the scrappy kid and the foreman's son, working together like oxen in a yoke. The baseball and hockey men were in there in the thick of the line-play and they used to click nicely on a high-low block.

It couldn't last forever. They didn't even get out of high-school before the outbreak of a war (you may have read about it). They were too anxious to get in the forces to finish their matrics. Some liked the idea of going down to the sea in ships; some liked the idea of floating through the clouds, and still others liked the idea of keeping old terra firma under them at all times. In any case the armed forces had some pretty nasty ideas about not letting them go home every Sunday afternoon so for a few years the sand lot was pretty lonely. The few who did remain had nothing to do but go to Sunday School on Sunday.

Finally the war came to an end (you must remember the celebration) and the boys hurried happily home. They weren't children now, and they had some serious ideas about making up for the education they had lost. Still they couldn't let the old pignik alone, and besides, a guy needs some sort of recreation.

The sandlot was "kid stuff" now as they spent the autumn with senior teams. So listen to the results:

When Toronto Argonauts won the Canadian Championship Saturday one of their touchdowns was scored by a big, blond man named Royal Copeland, whose machine-gunning passing may win him a place on all All-Star teams. Tiniest of them all, 138-pound Freddy Doty is doing a man-sized job as Argo's ace quarter-back. Both the doc's boys were out there—Rod and Doug, Smylie. Doug came through with two touchdowns for this championship team. Still on opposite ends of that forward wall, foreman's son Jack Coutts likes to play with Bruce Richardson, whose fistfistic activities have made him a famous name in Maple Leaf Gardens circles. Benny Enwright followed his heart down to the States to play semi-pro baseball and you've been reading about big Ross Johnstone, one of Toronto Maple Leaf's more rugged defensemen.

You're holding your breath and going back to where it said something about this array of ability coming to U. of T? Well let's not lean too close to that crystal-ball, but Freddy is going into Ajax in January; Copeland, Rod Smylie, Richardson, and Coutts have learnings this way after Rehab School is through with them. Doug Smylie expects to go to Cornell University on a football scholarship.

Now the question is: Will that freshman rule keep these boys in the inter-faculty league, or are we perhaps assured of a championship Blues squad?

Please
Patronize
The People
Whose Appearance
Periodically
In This Paper
Makes Publication
Possible---

Our Advertisers!

ROYAL ALEXANDRA
100 ST. WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE

NOW Playing

BIEVINS DAVIS and ARCHIE THOMSON present

GUY KIBBEE
(IN PERSON) IN
A JOY FOREVER

A New Comedy by VINCENT MCCONNOR
with
DOROTHY SANDS

NICHOLAS JOY • LORING SMITH
Staged by REGINALD DENHAM
Selling and Columes by STEWART CHANEY

PRICES (TAX INCLUDED)
Evs: 60c, $1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.
Wed. Matinee: 60c, $1.20, $1.80.
Sat. Matinee: 60c, $1.20, $1.80, $2.40.

Victoria Richmond
& Victoria

NEXT SAT. AND ALL

Return By Popular Demand!
LONDON AND NEW YORK
COMEDY SUCCESS

HASTY HEART

BY JOHN PATRICK

SEATS NOW SELLING!

Box Office open Daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Evenings at 8:30: $2., $3.40, $1.80, 90c
Wed. Matinee at 2:30: $1.80, $1.20, 60c
Sat. Matinee at 2:30: $2.40, $1.80, & 60c
(Tax included)

MASSEY HALL NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

THE FAMOUS

ADAM GARNER

VLADIMIR PADWA

FIRST PIANO

QUARTET

FRANK MITTLER

EDWARD EDSON

NBC MUSICAL SENSATION!!!

$1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.00, Inc. Tax. SEATS NOW

STUDENTS!

When post war Ring Covers are available, DOMINION will have them.

For the present we will do our best to look after as many orders as possible. Materials for the manufacture of Ring Covers are still very limited.

Ask your bookstore. He will keep you posted.

Dominion Blank Book Company

U.N.T.D. Begins Routine Procedure For Commissions And Discharges

The following UNTD ratings and applicants are to report to Ship's Office 119 St. George St. before 1200 Tuesday 4 December, 1945.

HUTCHISON, D. A.
NAYLOR, Herbert K.
GRUETZNER, Edward M.

The following UNTD ratings who have applied for discharge are to report to Ship's office as soon as possible re discharge routine.

BARKE, P. F.
BROOK, A. G.
BURLAND, C. D. D.
CLEMENCE, S. C.
DUDGEON, E. H.
DURAND, E. J.
EAYRS, J. G.
FINBOW, S. T.
FREEMAN, W. A.
GREEN, E. C. L.
GREEN, E. W. H.
HIBBARD, R. R.
JARRELL, J. E.
JOHNSTON, G. W.
MCBRIDE, J. A.
MCWEN, J. E.
MCMURTRY, D. W.
MORRIS, G. A.
NIBLETT, E. R.
PHELAN, J. B.
PUNNETT, F. E.
RAYNOR, D. G.
ROBSON, J. H.
STEWART, W. R.
WADDELL, Stuart
WALKER, W. L.

(D. A. F. ROBINSON)
Lien. Cmdr. (S B) R. C. N. V. R.
Commanding Officer, UNTD.
Former members of the UNTD who have completed two academic years in the UNTD, and those awaiting discharge who may wish to rejoin with the prospect of obtaining a commission in the Naval Reserve will be permitted to appear before a Selection Board, even though they have not yet rejoined.

For the purpose of appraising the members of the UNTD who have completed two full academic years of UNTD training as potential officer material, a Preliminary Selection Board will convene in the near future.

Your attention is drawn to a more complete notice on the bulletin boards in Hart House.

Those interested are to report to the Ship's Office, 119 St. George Street, before 1200 Thursday, 6th December, 1945.

(D. A. F. ROBINSON)
Lieutenant Commander (SB) RCN-VR
Commanding Officer UNTD.

Correspondence

(Continued from page 2)

interest and thought among undergraduates of this University.

However, I believe that through no fault of your own nor that of the editorial staff of The Varsity, a vociferous minority on the campus is achieving much publicity for its ideas and ideals through the news and correspondence columns of your paper. To my mind, this minority uses every means at its disposal to force its ideas on the University as a whole.

In the case of the editorial "Unfair to Varsity", results prove this opinion to be true. Letters to the editor, supporting his viewpoint are practically nonexistent, while there is a flood of disagreement.

It is pathetic to think that what I consider to be a majority group on the campus has not expressed its views on the controversial subjects which have been rocking the campus this autumn. I feel that I have been neglecting my duty as a member of this society in not attempting to refute the statements and views of our friends in the C.C.F. and L.P.P. clubs for I do not hold their views nor do many other students in the University.

The time has arrived, Mr. Editor, for the large masses of the people who are not of socialist persuasion to get into action. They must prevent a minority group from insidiously trying to force their way of thinking upon everyone.

Where is this large group, you must be asking? What has happened to it? True, it must have been active at the

New and Entrenous

"Nothing Like Them"

Two delegates from the University of Montreal spent a whirlwind Friday accumulating impressions of the University of Toronto and CNR'd home Saturday morning to report to Le Quartier Latin readers on their exchange visit.

The pair—Charles Lussier, president of the U. of M's student government, and André Bissonnette, C.U.P. editor of the campus newspaper—telescoped three days of campus-touring into 15 hours of sight-seeing in order to return to their home university in time to celebrate its 25th anniversary.

A Warden-conducted tour of Hart House, a Registrar-guided trip through Simcoe and Convocation Halls, an S.A.C.-supervised visit to Trinity and St. Michael's and a climactic evening at the School Night Revue comprised the duo's day.

Lussier and Bissonnette had responded to an invitation from Warden Bickert to introduce a student exchange between Toronto and Montreal for the promotion of better understanding between the French- and English-speaking camp.

"In these relations," Bissonnette had written in valiant colloquial English, "two points could be stressed upon. First, the national point of view. That means the occasion for us to know you and vice-versa. Second, the artistic point of view. Toronto and Montreal are now in Canada two artistic centers. So it could be interesting for us to know the artistic trends of Toronto."

The artistic point of view continued to interest Bissonnette throughout his stay here.

Did we at Toronto, he wondered, have strong artistic movements? But no? But at Montreal the Moderns and the Traditionalists are at each other's throats.

In Montreal, it seemed, University recent Dominion and Provincial elections, but after the results were announced the members of this group said: "I told you so—it can't happen here." They then returned to their politically dormant state. The fact is that it can happen here, yes, right here in good old conservative Toronto. There is a certain apathy in these "solid citizens" (just what the socialists hope for) and it is dangerous.

We have heard enough and will undoubtedly hear more from these leftist groups; but where is the other side of the question? We must be in possession of all points of view in a controversial issue, for without the whole picture any decision would be worthless.

In conclusion, may I make a plea for the visible support of the students who I know must have less radical and much sensible views than those which have recently appeared in your correspondence columns. —W. G. LAWSON, II Arts.

students took art seriously.

Le Quartier Latin, he explained, is a more literary and artistic paper than The Varsity.

His paper, he said, would publish next week the delegates' impressions of Toronto. Don't be offended, they together cautioned, if it has some jokes. Articles have to have jokes, they pointed out. If an article hasn't jokes, it's just no good. Not jokes against Toronto, mind you. Just jokes.

They were assured that Toronto would not be offended anyway. That Toronto is used to it.

Messieurs Lussier and Bissonnette are liable to make a strange report. Certainly an unpredictable one.

They arrived Thursday evening, borrowed an automobile to survey this city, had a flat tire on downtown Yonge Street and spent almost two hours searching for an open garage to make repairs. Here and again the next day they had an opportunity to make one apparently inescapable observation. Toronto pedestrians, they noted, are better behaved than any in Montreal.

"It is the discipline," André felt. "They do not run for street cars or dart across streets," Charles commented. "We have nothing like them in Montreal!"

Jap-Canadian Committee Meet

5:00 p.m.—There will be a meeting of the Committee on Japanese-Canadian question at 5:00 p.m. in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's. Representatives from all faculties and colleges are asked to attend.

Education Lecture

5:00 p.m.—Dr. J. McCutley, headmaster of Pickering College, Newmarket, will talk on "Primary and Secondary Education", at 5:00 p.m., in Room 8, U.C.

Professor Satterly Celebrates With Famous "Small Boy"

(Continued from Page 1)

Admitted to the hush-hush hatchments of the physics class, Mrs. Satterly had told the plotters the professor's favorite tobacco. A canister of it was next presented.

Finally there appeared a birthday cake with one squat white candle in the centre. For appearance, for economy and for convenience the integer 65 had been declared an arbitrary zero and the single candle inserted and lighted instead of the proper 66.

Singing of a revised version of the "Blue and White" and showing of special lantern slides brought the lecture period to the half-hour mark. An overdone Professor Satterly, now officially 66, dismissed the students 15 minutes early, gathered up his treasures, smiled at the "small boy" and went to eat.

Organ Recital Postponed

The next organ recital will be held on Tuesday, December 11, instead of December 4 as announced. The program will be published next week.

AVUKAH

STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION

NEXT METTING

MR. DAVID NEWMAN

Will give an outline of the History of Zionism, followed by a discussion. Refreshments.

DATE: Tuesday, December 4.

PLACE: Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's College.

TIME: 8:00 p.m.

Complete Line of

SCHOOL SUPPLIES

FOR EVERY COLLEGE COURSE

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(1 Block south of Bloor)

The Torontonensis Board IMPLORES:

TWENTY-NINE DENTS to escape a moment from the tedium of teeth;

SEVENTEEN MEDS-MEN to ignore "Surgery!";

SUNDRY PHARMACISTS to lay that pestel down;

ASSORTED ARTSMEN AND ARTSWOMEN from Vic. and U.C. to pick that pencil up;

AND SCATTERED SCHOOLMEN, Physio's, Nurses and P. & H.E. people to pause in whatever each group is now doing;

And return

THAT BIOGRAPHY CARD

to your TORONTONENSIS rep immediately — or sooner!

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

LOST

Havergal College gold ring, Thursday afternoon, north end of front campus. Please return to S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Black zippered notebook, with Political Science notes. In Economics Bldg., Monday, Nov. 26. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Pair glasses, plastic rims, in blue leather case Thursday night between Mac's and 99 St. George. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Student's Handbook, in back of which is my admit-to-lectures card. Finder please phone Austin Cooper, RA. 5072.

TAKEN BY MISTAKE

Will the person who took the green topcoat from rack outside Hart House Library please call MI. 0773, and get his own in exchange.

ROOM AND BOARD

Accommodation with breakfast and dinner. Rushton Road. Ex-service-man preferred. Apply Box U, The Varsity.

LOST

Identification bracelet, with name JOHN MCWEN, and Hart House locker key, Friday morning, vicinity Parl. Bldgs. Leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Grey and black fountain pen, name engraved "M. O. Tremayne". Wed. noon, vicinity U.C. and Whitney Hall. Please Phone MI. 9543.

FOR SALE

Man's tuxedo with shirts, like new; 38. Also lady's evening dresses; 18. Reasonable. ME. 1307.

LOST

Grey Oxford overcoat, outside Hart House Library, Wed. night. Red plaid scarf and pair brown gloves. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

FOR SALE

Lady's evening wrap, full length, fitted, black uncrushable velvet, white fur trim white satin lining. Like new. LA. 9752.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service.
321 BLC 1 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

FINAL EXAMS

won't be starting for a while, but copy for THE VARSITY LITERARY SUPPLEMENT is due

DECEMBER 5th

Japanese Canadian Petition Awaits Complete Returns

SCHOOL, MEDS, DENTS DELAY

At yesterday's meeting of the Committee on Japanese-Canadians the heads of the student governments of the Faculties of Medicine, Dentistry and Engineering announced that they would call meetings to discuss what action their faculties will take regarding the impending deportation of 10,300 west coast Japanese-Canadians. The question was referred to faculty organizations early last month.

Doug Langmaid, president of the Dentistry Students' Parliament, said that he would make a special attempt to discover opinion among senior students, but that it would be almost impossible to get a vote from first year students because of their large numbers and the fact that they don't take classes together.

The Medical Society's Vice-President, Bob Slater, reported that little had been done in his faculty. In one class, the vote was almost equally divided, which makes the 70 percent affirmative vote requested by the S.A.C. improbable. However, an unofficial vote will be taken.

"S.P.S. has had little information about the topic," reported Murray McCulloch, President of the Engineering Society. There has been little distribution to literature, he said, and many engineers feel that students in Arts colleges are more interested in the topic than they are. He promised that the executive will discuss the problem and will arrange for class representatives to pass around the petition.

Don Dewar, acting chairman of the Committee on Japanese-Canadians, announced that other faculties and colleges have voted for the petition and that the S.A.C. is waiting for the results of the polls in these three faculties.

The committee stressed that no action is demanded with regard to Japanese nationals who wish to return to Japan, but only with those who wish to revoke their acceptance of the repatriation offer.

Scholar, Athlete McGahey Is Dead

Professor Joseph E. McGahey, M. A., Professor of English in St. Michael's College, died early Sunday morning from a heart attack at the age of 44. He was faculty advisor to St. Michael's Student Council and during the fall term had directed most student activities including the football team, dramatics and the glee club.

He graduated from St. Mike's in 1924. As an undergraduate he was quarterback of the intercollegiate rugby team, a debating contemporary of the Hon. Paul Martin, Secretary of State, and president of the Students' Council.

He entered the army as a chaplain in 1940 after lecturing in English at St. Michael's. Until returning to Toronto this summer he was rector of the Newman Club at the University of Saskatchewan.

"Professor McGahey displayed academic excellence as a professor, an orator and a preacher," said Father T. P. McLaughlin, Superior of St. Michael's College. "His sudden death leaves the whole college with a feeling of loss of a good athlete, teacher and friend."

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Warlock—Capitol Suite
Ravel—Daphnis and Chloe
Villa-Lobos—A prole do Bebe
Gould—A Latin American Symphony
Milhaud—La Creation du Monde

Attractive Pastel Colors; U.C. Common Room Next

Subtle, pastel colors combine with modern, harmonizing furniture in the common rooms of University College's sophomore residences.

Clue to their attractiveness lies in the successful formula for interior decoration employed by their designer, Mrs. Adelaide Marriott.

"The keynote to decorating," she reveals, "is simplicity and suitability."

Having re-designed the common rooms at 5 Wilcocks and 146 St. George St. and the reception room at Hutton House, Mrs. Marriott, Don at 146, is now working on the completed plans for interior decoration of the U. C. Junior Common Room.

The redecoration process had reached the blue-print stage early in the term. Next step was a white print drawn to

Break Soccer Tie Today At Varsity

The Vic and Trinity soccer teams continue their soccer battle this afternoon at Varsity Stadium at 2:30.

This game is necessitated by the scoreless draw chalked up yesterday at the Stadium as neither team could take advantage of the breaks to break onto the scoresheet.

The battle for the Arts Faculty Cup proved to be a close affair, as play centred midfield with neither team gaining much ground. In the late stages of the game, Viv applied the pressure but to no avail as the heavy-checking Trinity boosters came through in the clinches.

To Give Women Business Talk

"Three authorities in their respective fields will discuss their subjects for the benefit of the members of the Women's Commerce Club," said Jean Mann, president of the club.

Each of the speakers has had practical experience in her specific department, and will be able to give a picture of the opportunities for women in work in economics, Miss Mann said.

Miss Helen Burpee will speak on chartered accountancy, Miss Muriel Mudie on actuarial work, and Miss Betty Rosengren on the general topic of women's prospects in economics. The meeting will take place at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 5, in Wymilwood.

Explore Tumors By Using Chicks

The development of chick embryos will be related to tissue culture in studying a possible cure for tumors and viruses at Thursday's Biology Club meeting.

Dr. Raymond C. Parker of the School of Hygiene will illustrate his talk with motion and microscope demonstrations. His subject will be worded "The cultivation of animal tissue outside the body, and the use of developing chick embryos in the study of tumors and viruses."

All students interested in this aspect of experimental biology are invited to the meeting at 8:15 in the large lecture room main floor, Connaught Laboratory.

scale with the required furniture sketched in color.

With the outline completed and the overall plan in mind, Mrs. Marriott chose her color scheme.

Walls of the Junior Common Room, it was decided, would be a subtle yellow, vibrating the tones of the furniture which will harmonize a celeron green with terra cotta.

Individual pieces of furniture will consist of durable leather-covered lounges and easy chairs. Card table units will be introduced—flexible for re-arrangement where necessary. The chairs will have spring seats covered in leather and backs curved.

"To plan a piece of furniture," observes Mrs. Marriott, "requires the same skill as to design a house."

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1945

No. 48

VARSITY TO BE AMSTERDAM'S SANTA

Love Triumphs At Victoria As Misogynists Overwhelmed

Quoting poetry, love letters, and averring that "The emotional and mental torment of unrequited love was not really worth it all," Vern Chapman and Claire Sloan-Seale went down under an overwhelming majority last night in the Victoria College Debating Parliament.

Alumni Hall was packed to the rafters with a predominately feminine audience, who, it seems are in favor of the resolution, "It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all," despite the gruesome evidence of suicides, disrupted homes, and mental homes filled with frustrated Romeos and Julietts which were drawn by the Opposition.

The Government supported by Elspeth Latimer and John Trueman based its arguments on the theory that the experience is good for the individual, and pointed out the many great works of art that would not have been produced save through the suffering of those who have lost in the game of love.

Trueman declared that "Proctor and Gamble would have very little to say on their radio programs if they didn't have their love programs." He hoped to prove that even love which is lost has a commercial value on the radio.

A technical difficulty arose which stymied both sides for a while when it was found that the word "sex" must never be used in these debates. References to "glands," and other phrases got around this difficulty.

Vern Chapman quoted a letter in verse which was addressed to one Miss Dix. The writer had fallen in love with a theologian and sought advice. Quoth Miss Dix,

"For your complaint there is no cure,
So drink a vial of arsenic pure."
To cement his argument, he also cited Polonius in a speech from Hamlet, Act II, Sc. II, line 146.

At the end of the 2-hour debate, only a few staunch misogynists were left to back up the defeated Opposition. Rumor had it that the Government had, with malice aforethought, packed the benches with girls from one of the residences.

"I am extremely shocked to see so many in favor of a degeneration of morals in the community," commented Chapman.

Chinese Communists Are Students Distrust The West--Dr. Brown

"Define your terms before applying the term 'communist' to the North-West Chinese," Dr. R. F. Brown, for many years a resident of China, cautioned the International Affairs Society yesterday afternoon.

He declared that the so-called Chinese Communists are a large and well-organized group of young Christian intellectuals. They are university students who begin their lectures with a shouted pledge: "No fear of death! No striving for personal gain!" These social reformers are determined to resist interference by Britain, America and Russia. They have watched what they consider to be the follies and errors of the Western powers whose creed is the accumulation of national wealth and they condemn them.

"China does not own one useful coal mine in her own country," Dr. Brown asserted. "The British, Belgians and Americans control every one. This is the kind of interference which will not be tolerated by these 'communists' any more than the policy which exempts foreigners living in China from obedience to Chinese law."

Dr. Brown, after a career in China ranging from advisor to the British Embassy in Chungking to an Anglican medical missionary, is now the Medical Officer for Toronto's slum areas. Before coming to speak at the meeting he had visited two homes—in one, 14 children and their parents live in one room; in the other, 8 children and their mother live in a kitchen.

"This," said Dr. Brown, "is a tangible example of the hypocrisy of the Western Christian democracies which these organizations of hungry Chinese students despise and distrust."

Canadian university students, in the speaker's opinion, are among the worst informed and the most indifferent concerning the problems and affairs of China.

"The Chinese do not trust Western nations," he said, "they despise us for the indifference we have shown them, particularly during the early struggle against Japan."

It will be much better for us to make friends with China now than to antagonize her and have her later as an enemy."

C. U. P. Flashes

Wallace Back From Conference McMaster Plans Memorial Gym

Kingston, Ont.,—Dec. 3, (CUP)—Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal and vice-chancellor of Queens, has returned from London after leading the Canadian delegation of the UNESCO (the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization), which is affiliated with the United Nations Organization. The purpose of the first conference was to draft a constitution for the UNESCO.

The new organization will meet periodically in Paris to discuss educational, scientific and cultural matters in the affiliated countries. "The main function of the UNESCO will be to broadcast knowledge of the cultural development of the nations concerned in order to breed understanding," said Dr. Wallace. "It is felt that, in the long run, this is the vital basis for peace but it will take a generation to become effective. Until then peace must be maintained by power."

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 3—(CUP)—The McMaster Memorial Committee has decided upon a gymnasium and swimming pool as the proposed war memorial. The gymnasium, felt to be the most pressing need of the University, will be called Memorial Gymnasium. Plans for a stadium or arena were discarded as impractical.

The gymnasium will include a floor for basketball, badminton and volleyball with a gallery for spectators and a stage that can be used for dramatics. A swimming pool will be built at the other end of the building with dressing rooms, accessible to the stage, between the pool and the gym. If possible an indoor track will circumvent the whole building.

George Mowray, treasurer of the committee, hopes to present a complete plan to alumni and students to enlist their support as ratification of the proposal.

To Provide Christmas Cheer For Needy Dutch Students

DRIVE FOR FUNDS OPENS DEC. 10th

Students of the University of Amsterdam in Holland will be "adopted" by students of the University of Toronto this Christmas. A committee, headed by J. W. Giles, II Forestry, is being organized by the Students' Administrative Council to send parcels of food to the needy Dutch students as a gesture of Christmas goodwill.

To date, plans call for a two day drive commencing Monday, Dec. 10, when each faculty will be responsible for collecting the necessary funds. In the meantime, the Central Committee will arrange for the purchase of suitable articles of food. On Wednesday, Dec. 12, a Christmas tree ceremony will be held on the campus to which each faculty will bring their contributions.

The idea was first suggested by W. Kohn, School of Graduate Studies, in a letter published in The Varsity. The Students' Administrative Council took up the plan last Thursday and appointed a committee of three to formulate tentative plans for the drive.

Each faculty, college, and school has been requested to send a representative to an organization meeting tomorrow at 5:00 p.m. in Room 82, University College.

The S.A.C. has emphasized that the current drive should not be confused with the campaign conducted by the International Student Service in January.

"The I.S.S. is committed to a definite program laid down by the World Student Relief Organization," said S.A.C. President Ed Kirkland. "They will contribute to a general fund to aid students everywhere. We hope to make a concentrated effort in aid of a specified university."

Literary Efforts Now Almost Due

Entries for The Varsity's Christmas Literary Supplement must be in the hands of the editor by 5 p.m. Wednesday Dec. 5. They may be left in the News Office, Room 42-4, University College; or in the S.A.C. Office, Hart House.

Specifications for the material for which prizes will be awarded are given below:

ART: Drawings of any subject, any size, suitable for reproduction; ink, pencil, linoleum cuts, etc. are all permissible.

VERSE: Light and serious verse of any reasonable length.

FICTION: Short stories, up to 1,500 words long; shorter if possible.

NON-FICTION: Any subject, up to 1,500 words long.

WAR MEMORIAL: Suggestions for a suitable World War II Memorial for the campus: cenotaph, memorial library, art gallery, or what have you. Must be substantiated by a 400-word argument.

Dick Tracy, Flying Jenny Not Good For Children?

Will the man-eating plant devour Flying Jenny? Will Dick Tracy escape Fitch's evil trap? Is King of the Royal Mounted going to catch the murderer? These are the vital questions that make adolescent hair stand on end—the barbs can't have all the credit.

After much deep thought, the Inter-faculty Debating Union has decided to consider the comic strip in public debate with the resolution that "Comic strips have a disastrous effect on the development of the adolescent mind."

To say that the adolescent's special spine-tingling stimulus has a disastrous effect on the development of the mind is a bold and debatable statement. To take the defensive side, the debaters might refer to grateful mothers who swear by Popeye as spinach-seller number one. Then there are all the grateful guys who follow Li'l Abner's technique and escape the clutches of Daisy Mae.

Some Psychologists claim, however, that comics are decidedly injurious to the adolescent's emotions. Remember the emotional conflict aroused when Boots and Rod just couldn't get together? For further illustrations of the comics' helpful hints to awkward adolescents, Joyce Baines, IV U. C., and John Mills, S. P. S., will hold forth today at 5:00 p.m. in Room S 25, in the Engineering Building.

The government upholding the resolution will be represented by Bob Ram-bush, St. Michael's and Margaret Moss, St. Hilda's. How the government will attack the comics, and how they will be upheld, is a matter of strict secrecy, but students from every faculty and college are invited to attend this second Inter-faculty Debate.

Editorial

Asleep At The Switch

We have not done any deprecating for a long time, having been too busy being deprecate. But we hereby deprecate, deplore, and decry the indecisive way in which the question of an organized protest to the impending deportation of 10,300 Japanese-Canadians has been bandied about on the campus. We accuse unnumbered students of dormant citizenship; in particular do we accuse a number of faculty Representatives of falling asleep at the switch.

There is no question of the urgency of the problem: the deportation of these citizens is impending as soon as transport space is available.

The Issue Is Clear

There is no question in our mind that the deportation is unjustified. The point is hardly worth discussing; except that a number of students seem to have the idea that a principle should bow to expediency; that because there is a certain problem connected with retaining these people, therefore they should be deported as the easiest solution.

These objectors are the first to admit that deportation of the Japanese-Canadians is contrary to every one of our professed ideals; the ideals of racial equality, of the equality of all men before the law and before God, for which we allegedly fought the late war. But, the detractors say, there is a slight difficulty in applying these democratic ideals to the case of the Japanese-Canadians; hence, they should be deported.

That fallacy it is not our present task to demolish. We shall take it up later, if there is still demand for us to take it up.

But Leaders Are Dormant

What concerns us now is that the organized protest that was promised from this campus has failed to materialize; apparently because a number of key individuals have preferred not to be bothered with it.

There has been on this campus for some weeks a Committee on Japanese-Canadians. This committee has busied itself with obtaining a mandate from the student body to protest to Ottawa the impending deportations.

On Wednesday, October 31, the Students' Administrative Council considered the request of this committee for official support for five resolutions bearing on the question. The Council here muffed its chance for providing leadership: it adopted four of the resolutions, in particular protesting to Ottawa Clause "g" of the National Emergency Powers Act which empowered the government to revoke citizenship and arrange deportation of any citizens whatever; but the fifth resolution it held over.

Too Much Caution

That was the first error: the fifth resolution was a request that the Council "formally protest to the Dominion Government . . . their present deportation scheme for 10,300 Japanese-Canadians. The Council should have supported that resolution, immediately and without question; especially since it did support the Clause "g" resolution which covered a much wider ground. It is illogical and unjustified to uphold the principle but reserve judgment on a clear-cut application.

However, the Council was swayed by a number of cautious members; and the Japanese-Canadian question was "deferred pending more explicit evidence of widespread student approval." A Council Committee was appointed, empowered to take action as soon as this evidence could be furnished. The furnishing of the evidence was the job of the Committee on Japanese-Canadians.

That was a month ago. Nothing has happened since. The S.A.C. Committee waits ready to throw the switch; the Japanese-Canadian Committee has not furnished the required evidence; because from three of the largest faculties on the campus it can obtain no expression of opinion one way or the other.

Sand In The Wheels

Meds, Dents, and School, The Varsity is informed, are holding up everything. Meds, Dents, and School, according to a front-page news story in today's issue, are experiencing difficulties in getting a vote on student opinion.

We can understand the difficulties; but they should not have delayed some sort of definite report for a month. Either a large proportion of the student body is apathetic, or certain key individuals are neglecting their duty, or something is basically wrong with the machinery of student government: in at least three faculties.

—W. H. K.

Books

Tambour
And Others

Thomas H. Raddall, the author of Tambour and Other Stories (McClelland & Stewart $3.00) has recently begun to establish himself as a writer of regional stories. Regional literature has frequently added a good deal to broader literary tendencies—a new slant on old problems, a certain depth of understanding that is sometimes achieved when the scope is intentionally limited, naturalism, striking imagery—and Mr. Raddall has therefore a certain potential importance. For this reason it is particularly fortunate that these stories about the Canadian east coast are neither as interesting nor as important as they should have been.

There are nineteen stories in the present collection. They are about the sea, about Indians, trappers and bridge builders, about witchcraft and back-country murders. Most of the stories were first published in MacLeans, the Saturday Evening Post and Blackwood's Magazine, and I think this provides a clue to the author's failure to create a really vital regional feeling.

Take Tambour as an example. This is the story of a lighthouse off the east coast. During the First World War the people on the island were isolated and almost forgotten; they faced starvation and terrible boredom; no longer were they able to obtain some slight companionship by tapping out wireless messages to other isolated operators. The story has magnificent possibilities, and it almost develops itself. But there is a "surprise ending" to spoil the whole effect.

In all his stories Mr. Raddall employs a fundamentally un-literary technique. But unlike certain other regional writers (Sherwood Anderson, for example), he does not appear to be consciously attempting to achieve a new style and effectiveness. His is the writing of a good reporter with an unusual area to cover. Among other things, I wish that Mr. Raddall would try to write for some better magazines. Perhaps then he could do what the essential fitness of his material demands.

On the first page of The Road Back (McClelland & Stewart $1.00) the authors, James H. Smith and Natacha Rambova, state that rehabilitation means, among other things, "reinstating a lost purpose." I do not think that many readers would dispute this definition, and I also think that it simply renders books of this sort, no matter how valuable they may be in certain ways, fundamentally purposeless.

This does not mean that The Road Back has no value. It is a straightforward and reasonably short summary of the ways in which rehabilitation may be made more efficient and successful. Particularly interesting is the section on community rehabilitation centers which suggests one way in which authority and responsibility may be decentralized and individual effort made to mean something.

(Continued on page 4)

McGeck at the foot of the Carillon Tower, his arch-enemy trapped inside, reached for the door . . . Now Read On!

CHAPTER THREE

He turned the knob, and the door opened briskly outwards: opened beneath the weight of a form that fell, lumpy and lifeless, to the pavement at McGeck's feet.

He turned the form over with his foot. It was Steinmug.

Steinmug, the creator of the Atomic Hamburger, was dead.

The trained eye of McGeck detected easily in the starlight the synopsis of the ganglions, the perfunctory epistaxis, the livid rotten-potato color of the masochistic column. The symptoms were unmistakable. Steinmug had died of Stummick's Disease!

Stummick's Disease!

McGeck had run across it before. Once in Afghanistan he had seen a native porter expire in horrible agonies, blaspheming Buddha for failing to shield his servant from Stummick's Disease. It was swift, sure, and deadly.

Once contracted, there was no hope: only a sudden gasping and strangling after 24 hours. One thing alone forestalled an epidemic that might have wiped out the population of the globe: Stummick's Disease was contagious, but only by way of the right foot.

Let the right foot but touch an in-

(Continued on page 4)

Correspondence

Rigours
At SeaThe Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The article in your paper of last Wednesday about the U.N.T.D. Ratings' trip through Panama is worthy of comment, in my opinion. To some, I suppose, it was very generous indeed of those fellows to volunteer their expert services in the fighting of the war at sea during this last summer. Their attitude towards their Panama cruise, however, is not particularly worthy.

The statement by one that "It was hard work, the heat was awful, and we had to take a lot of dirt from the officers" is what get me.

Before completing my four years in the navy and returning to Varsity I was fortunate enough to join a ship which did that same cruise, about ten days before those fellows. I'd like to point out that that is about the best fortnight's cruise any fellow could ever be offered—and believe me there are lots of fellows who have done four or five solid years on the North Atlantic who would have given a lot to take it.

If those U. N. T. D. seamen think that "tropical routine" with a party at each port of call, all the sunbathing and showering they want, fresh fruit and three square meals a day, and nearly all of every night in their hammocks, is

CORRECTION

A Varsity reviewer in yesterday's issue fell prey to a mistake in billing.

Listed in the programme of the School Night Revue as Arts Man and praised for his performance was Bill Neale. Actually the actor in the role was Bill Flanagan.

The Varsity intends to send the School Night Committee a bill for this correction.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA
1000 ST. WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE.

NOW Playing

BLEVIN DAVIS and ARCHIE THOMSON present
GUY KIBBEE
(IN PERSON) IN
A JOY FOREVER
A New Comedy by VINCENT MCCONNOR

with
DOROTHY SANDS
NICHOLAS JOY • LORING SMITH
Staged by REGINALD DENHAM
Selling and Costumes by STEWART CHANEY

PRICES (TAX INCLUDED)
Evegs: 50c. $1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.
Wed. Matinee: 50c. $1.20, $1.80.
Sat. Matinee: 50c. $1.20, $1.80, $2.40.

Victoria Richmond
AND ALL

NEXT SAT. NEXT WEEK

Return By Popular Demand!
LONDON AND NEW YORK
COMEDY SUCCESS

THE HASTY HEART
BY JOHN PATRICK

SEATS NOW SELLING!
Box Office open Daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Evenings at 8:30: $2, $2.40, $1.80, 90c
Wed. Matinee at 2:30: $1.80, $1.20, 60c
Sat. Matinee at 2:30: $2.40, $1.80, & 60c
(Tax included)

MASSEY HALL NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

THE FAMOUS QUARTET

ADAM - FRANK
GARNER - MITTLER
VLADIMIR - EDWARD PADWA - EDSON

FIRST PIANO

NBC MUSICAL SENSATION!!!

$1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.00, Inc. Tax. SEATS NOW

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club
The regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held today at 5:00 p.m. in the Music Room. All members are requested to attend in preparation for Christmas engagements.

Informal Recital
Charles Dobias (III St. Michael's), violinist, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. Today. Miss Gabrielle Dobias will be at the piano.

Billiard Room Tuck Shop
The Billiard Room Tuck Shop will be open for lunch from 11:45 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. From 3:00 p.m. Monday to Friday and all day Saturday, this room will be available to members as a quiet room for study.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1890
Member Canadian University Press

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.H.E.
News Editor: George Forster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Assistant: Wally Belfry, 478
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant: Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Mickey Michasiw, 477
Women's Assistant: Polly Muts, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Barker, 476
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, 476
Editor: Philip Freedman, 476

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD

Night Editor: Bob Cooke
Assistant: Cec Blockley

Art, Music and Drama

An Old Friend Returns

In the appraisal of a visiting orchestra, inevitable contrasts will be drawn and comparisons made with the home-town organization. Last night's appearance of Reginald Stewart's Baltimore Symphony in Massey Hall afforded ample opportunities. The personnel amounts to about ninety, slightly larger than Toronto. The woodwind section is absolutely superlative; the strings are silky and sumptuous, but lose some vitality thereby. But the brasses are not quite prominent enough, unlike Toronto, where the reverse is too often true. Consequently the potential volume of the band is restricted, although its tone is exceeding mellow.

Reginald Stewart was greeted with appreciation by his audience, among whom there were no doubt fond remembrances of early Proms. The conductor initially delivered a very romantic reading of Brahms' monumental First—more like a Bruno Walter reading than a Toscanini, stressing the melodic line

(Continued on page 4)

ALL-VARSITY Christmas Tree

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER TWELFTH

WATCH THE "VARSITY" FOR ANNOUNCEMENT

VARSITY JRS. TIE SAINTS

Juniors Lack Co-Ordinated Play While Saints Have Smooth Passes

By Peg Wallace

The Varsity Junior O.H.A. entry battled to a 10-10 deadlock with St. Mike's Buzzers last night in their first exhibition tilt of the year. Staff Smythe, Varsity coach, had 17 hopefuls in his line-up and used them in three shifts with two goalies playing half a game each.

In the first period Varsity showed plenty of spirit and came out playing hard-up hockey. Barber opened the scoring for Varsity at 6 minutes of the period only to have the Saints retaliate two-fold with goals by Larlee and Primeau. Lack of organization, wild passes, and other such first-of-the-season bogies, dogged the Blues' footsteps through the whole game, but the boys used their time to good advantage when St. Mike's McParland got a two-minute penalty for deliberately holding Pelaur's stick. With the Saints playing a man short Varsitymen Barron and Foran slapped home two goals in quick succession before the play degenerated into a flurry of small rushes garnished with plenty of fast skating and high-sticking. The score at the end of the first period of play stood at 3-2 for the Smythenmen.

Only 48 seconds of the second period had elapsed when Hannigan broke away for St. Mike's and beat McGuire cleanly on a fast pass from Primeau. From then on the Saints opened up with a barrage of shots and kept the puck in Varsity territory consistently. Macaretta scored a fluke goal from a scramble at the University net, boosting the tally to 3-3. Thompson, first string defenceman for Varsity, garnered himself a penalty for tripping and left the team a man short as St. Mike's pressed home a heavy attack. Varsity defense was weak and, despite effective back-checking by the forwards and attempts to clear the puck down the ice, Hannigan and McLellan blasted the Blues' net for two quick goals. The Smythenmen staged a rally and managed to keep the puck in enemy ice until finally Barber scored on a pass from Petrocco.

With Hutzlak net-minding for Varsity the play roughened up considerably as both teams burnt up the ice in a series of aimless rushes. Branksten drew out the Buzzer goalie on a pass from Davison to tie the score 5-5. The Saints still had a man in the penalty box and failed to keep out a Varsity rush and Hurley scored on an assist from Foran. The team gained confidence and settled down to some serious hockey. Their rushes, up to now definitely inferior to Father Flanagan's boys', began to show more organization and style. Hurley made the most spectacular score of the game at 15 minutes and 6 seconds of the second period when he dodged a Saint body-check, shot from the blue line, and notched the lower left-hand corner to make the ante 7-5 for Varsity. The Double-blues turned on the pressure in an effort to equalize the score and the period ended with the play all around the Varsity net. Hutzlak had a hot few minutes in goal but handled the chore with professional coolness.

The third period showed definite improvement over the previous two with both teams playing a wide-open clean game. Davison scored Varsity's eighth goal on a play with Branksten and Hurley. From then on Hannigan from St. Mike's took over in a one-man whirlwind attack. On his first rush he came in on the Blue defense, had Hutzlak beaten cold—and hit the goal-post! Back to the fray with the very next rush, he succeeded in blasting one home to stay. During the remainder of the period tension mounted as both teams struggled for mastery. The Saints scored three goals in a row in less than three minutes to boost the score to 9-8 in their favor. A double penalty for high sticking cleared the ice somewhat and the play opened up considerably.

Benefitting from the Saints' smooth passing plays and effective checking, Hannigan golfed in another sizzler to make the bad news 10-8 for the Buzzers. The Varsitymen went all out to even the score and, although they were handicapped by poor checking and one-man rushes, managed to keep the rubber on enemy ice most of the time. Only minutes were left when Davison scored on a long pass from Branksten and Barron whacked one in from the depths of a scramble in front of the Buzzer net.

(Continued on page 4)

Speaking OF SPORT

By Phil Shackleton

Campus Cagers . . .

Last week the Varsity basketball picture was somewhat clouded. Campus readers asked "Who's going to make the team?" As if the sports department could answer such a question. This week, however, the picture is still rather puzzling to the impartial observer. Meaning is, it seems that there is not one basketsteering squad lining up for winter play. Not one, not even two, but rather there are three sizzling teams champing at their respective bits and muttering dark and collective threats regarding that which they intend to commit upon the persons of the teams from such distant parts as McGill and Western.

Now when the call for caging talent first rent the air above the athletic wing of our campus sports palace, it drew such an enthusiastic reply that Coach Roy Dilworth found himself confronted by a young army of student fauna, numbering some 70-odd individuals. And such fine mannered young gentlemen they were that Dilworth and Company judged it would be a sorry misuse of talent if but one quintet was to be culled from this wholesale offering. Thus it was that our athletic moxies decided it would be a very fine thing if they set up an extra team or so.

Last night we strolled about Hart House running into various individuals, chatting basketball lore mostly, until we pinned down Warren Stevens and invited him to up-clear us on the contemporary setup. The said Mr. Stevens cleared us up to the following extent: The first team will play in the senior intercollegiate league, along with McGill, Queen's and Western. The second team will go into action against Western seconds and McMaster and O.A.C. firsts, and the Varsity thirds will face Western thirds and McMaster and O.A.C. seconds.

Behind The Scene . . .

That should clear up some puzzled campus minds. The original squad, cut to 25 off last week's exhibition games, has been pruned further this week as Dilworth posted 13 names, 10 of which will appear on the line-up of the first team. Any one who thinks Dilworth has had an easy job in player-plucking might suggest how he can cut his firsts to 10.

At any rate here's the list: Don Gibson, Whitey Clayton, Doug Spry, Sid Himel, Stu Scott, Harry Mayzel, Colin Cranham, Murray Thomson, Gord Wallace, Wally Zeaton, Tom Hennessy, Al Varga and Louis Glait. You look them over. Then tell us which ten you'd pick.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Changes In The Pattern

The swimming club has come through with a change of plans. Initial blueprints had scheduled the intramural swim meet for the first of the Athletic Night series. Now this does not seem feasible, so the girls will be a solo attraction some evening late in January, with one factor remaining constant, the Hart House Pool.

Every week day Tuesday to Friday from 5:15 to 6:00 for the next two weeks will find the babes in briefs practicing for this event in the Household Economics pool . . . which coincides with the recreational swimming period with the exception of fifteen minutes. The reason for this overlapping is an extremely full timetable . . . another earmark of this postwar era of double bunks and crammed restaurants. Winifred Baxter, swimming instructor, hopes to have more time after Christmas . . . if Santa is a good kid.

Off Night

Last night seemed a slack basketball time . . . with one exceptional game out of four. The exception was the game between P. & H.E. and O.T. Freshies, 26 for P. & H.E. and 20 for O.T. P. & H.E. boasted a fast shooting forward line . . . also good hard-checking guards . . . which makes practically the entire team in creditable shape. Joan Cracknell of O.T. was singled out as a "crack" centre forward . . . the opponents' comment on her one-handed shots, "She is one player who uses her head!"

Physio attained the lead over Vic. II by a score of 9-4 in a not-too-spectacular game . . . there were no stars . . . the Physio captain substituting a guard in the place of a missing forward seemed a psychic move as the gal in question (name unknown) played as if she were an old hand at the business of shooting baskets.

Meds A garnered one more basket than St. Hilda's II (score 18-16), in a game cluttered up with too many penalties. The last game on the list was a victory of U.C. freshmen over Meds B. Though U.C. won, 20-12, their coach pronounced in thunderous tones that they were off their game, were sloppy. Meds, on the other hand, played well.

Sue Gray has a few changes to announce in the schedule . . . on Tuesday the Vic. and P.H.E. freshmen play at 5:30; P.H.E. juniors versus Nurses at 8:30 . . . On Wednesday Meds A take on P.H.E. II A at 5:30, and U.C. juniors the Vic juniors at 7:30.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The following Senior A players are requested to be present tonight in the big gym at 7 p.m. for a practice game with the Seniors: McAdam, Starr, Petroff, Choate, Swan, Sturgess, Andrews, Tettmar, Lowes, McReynolds and Varga.

TRACK TEAMS

The Varsity track team picture will be taken at 1:00 p.m. Wednesday. All members of the team report to Hoc Phillips in the athletic wing of Hart House.

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE Semi-finals	4:00	U.C. or Forestry Vic.	Med. I	Sheppard, Cross
SWIM LEAGUE	5:30	Trin. C SPS. IV	PHE.	Rae, Vetter
VOLLEYBALL	4:00	Jr. Vic. U.C. III	St. M. B Wyc.	Burt-Gerrans
	1:00	III SPS. B	Jr. Med. Dent. B	Cooke
Group Playoff	4:30	Knex 8	U.C. IV	Brishin
Re-Play	7:30	St. M. A	Emman B	Fine
SOCCER Final-Replay	8:30	Stadium: Vic. I-Trin. I	Life, Fyfe
Senior Intercollegiate Track Team Picture	1:00 p.m. Wednesday

VARSITY WATER POLO

There will be a practice Tuesday, Dec. 4th (TODAY), at 5:00 p.m. All players wishing to play on the Senior and Intermediate Teams must be present. The practice last Saturday was poorly attended, and if Water Polo is to continue, a better attendance is necessary.

Standing Committee Meetings

SWIMMING—Thursday, Dec. 6—1:00 p.m.—to make arrangements for Junior Swim Meet and for Swim league playoffs.

BOXING and WRESTLING—Thursday, Dec. 6—5:00 p.m.—to make arrangements for Junior Meet.

JR. SWIMMING MEET—Entries now being accepted in Athletic Office.

JR. BOXING and WRESTLING MEET—Entries now being accepted in Boxing and Wrestling Rooms.

P.H.E. Forestry Enter Semi-Finals After Overwhelming Lacrosse Wins

Yesterday's games pushed the Intramural lacrosse playoffs ahead a notch into the semi-final stage, as two powerful teams literally smothered their opposition. PHE piled up the biggest score of the year when they walloped School IV's 23-3, and Forestry successfully squelched a bewildered U. C. squad 17-2.

The PHE win is all the more impressive when the fact that they accomplished this feat in only three periods is revealed.

Three men whipped in 19 goals between them, Foote notching seven and Dzupina and Ferguson six apiece. Too good got three, setting up his mates rather than executing the plays himself, and Robson scored the other one for his first of the year. Howard, McCombe and Denham shared the three School counters between them, but S. P. S. was so thoroughly outplayed that these goals had mere nuisance value.

PHE will meet Vic today at 5:30 p.m., and they are regarded as odds-on favorites to take the red and gold squad. Vic got a bye into the semi-final round by virtue of their Group II leadership at the end of the regular schedule.

Forestry's Mel Lawson was the individual star of their clash with U. C. in yesterday's four o'clock affair. He scored eight of his team's seventeen goals, yet it is rumored that this was his second game of lacrosse. He ran up five quick ones in the first period, cooled out somewhat for the second and third, but came back with a pair in the final chapter.

Puttock rapped home three for the lumbermen, while Bastedo and Carmichael got two and Cox Johnston one each. Robson and Oakleaf scored U. C.'s goals early in the game, as Vetter, one of the best goalies in the circuit, tightened up and shut them out completely for the second half.

Play was decidedly rugged throughout, but as the final outcome was never in doubt tempers were generally held in check. Holman of U. C. acquired a major penalty in the first period when he massaged Kallio across the back of the neck with his stick.

Yesterday's win earned Forestry the right to meet Meds I in the order semi-final today at four.

The Students' Choice:

BLOOR TAXI
LIMITED

Sub-station at
HARBORD and ST. GEORGE
RA. 5151
Switchboard connecting
all branches
For Quick Service . . . For Efficiency
CALL US!

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Store: 31 Bloor West. MI. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation
OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty — Have Your Date Wear One to the St. Hilda's Dance

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

University of Toronto

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB

Organization Meeting

Women's Union - 8 p.m., TONIGHT

JOHN COWAN and BILL HEMMERICK present:

The Post-Christmas Carousel

with ELLIS McLINTOCK AND ORCHESTRA

At CASA LOMA

$100.00 in Prizes

Thursday, December 27th

LIMITED TICKETS AVAILABLE

smoke the mild
cigarette

Buckingham

Your Morning Warning From
TORONTONENSIS' Editorial Board.

Space contracts will positively

NOT be accepted after Friday, December 7

U.C. PLAYERS' GUILD

PRESENT

Two 1 Act Plays

"Hands Across the Sea"

AND

"Wait And See"

WOMEN'S UNION

Wednesday, Dec. 5th, 8 p.m.

Membership Cards may be obtained at the door.

MUSIC

REFRESHMENTS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

LOST

Lady's Waterman's fountain pen; grey with stripes; gold trim. Lost around Oct. 24th. Please leave at S.A.C. Office. Reward.

LOST

Havergal College gold ring, Thursday afternoon, north end of front campus. Please return to S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Red looseleaf notebook, 3-ring, containing English notes. Lost Tues. afternoon. Please call Arthur Currie, HU. 8420.

LOST

Black zippered notebook, with Political Science notes. In Economics Bldg., Monday, Nov. 26. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Black Waterman's pen, Monday, Nov. 26. Please phone MO. 1073.

LOST

Student's Handbook, in back of which is my admit-to-lectures card. Finder please phone Austin Cooper, RA. 5072.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

FOR SALE

Attractive new evening gowns, size 18-20. Reasonable. Private. LA. 1858.

LOST

Pair glasses; plastic rims, in blue leather case Thursday night between Mac's and 99 St. George. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

NOTE BOOK

Lost, Black leather zipper notebook, 2nd year S.P.S. Ross McMillan. RA. 4574 after 8 p.m.

LOST

Identification bracelet, in front of Hart House, engraved "Earl Sullivan". McMaster University crest. Please leave at Hall Porter's desk.

$25 REWARD

University student (veteran) and wife (teacher), urgently require small furnished flat, north end if possible. The Varsity, Box W.

New and Entrenous

Ah Wilderness!

John Chrysdale stood in Stanley Park in Vancouver and admired the trees.

It was mid-September and it had been months since the young P. & C. student had seen such trees.

John likes trees.

He had missed them throughout the long summer months spent in the desolation of the District of MacKenzie.

He was glad to see them again.

Two minutes after the opening for a "geologist's companion on northern" had been posted outside the S.A.C. office last April, Chrysdale had been inside the office applying for the job. He was accepted and accompanied B. W. Lee, graduate in geology of this University now taking his Ph. D. at McGill, first to Val d'Or and then to Yellowknife in quest of a pair of rare elements—tantalum and columbium.

By C.N.R. Lee and Chrysdale crossed Canada in late June and by C.P.A. plane to Yellowknife they flew, arriving on July 7.

For the rest of the summer they were on their own.

"We didn't see anyone. Just the two of us. Of course we took along all our food and the fishing was good."

And he had baked bread, Chrysdale confessed. He had done all the cooking—cakes and ginger bread. They ate dehydrated vegetables daily but they were without firearms else they might have killed wild game to vary the menu.

Three thousand miles from his home in (Aurora, Ontario), Chrysdale was on the top of the world. There was daylight 24 hours a day—an uncanny situation to which he only gradually became accustomed. It was not until August that he saw stars in the sky at night.

But the area was more barren and lonely than Chrysdale can describe. There was little trouble with wild animals, he reports, Oh—there was that bear—

The bear, he recounts, wandered into his tent one morning by mistake. "The bear looked at me," Chrysdale explains, "and I looked at him and he turned and left. He was just a small one. Probably didn't realize where he was."

Mosquitoes were the real problem. The two-man geology party wore mosquito head nets all through July and slept under mosquito bars.

Geologists, Chrysdale is inclined to believe, are not a sociable species. Lee and Chrysdale's daily conversation could be given a word count on ten fingers.

"I'd call him for breakfast and at night I'd ask him if he had found anything and he'd say no and that was about it. I spent most of my time studying calculus. He liked to read and think."

"As far as I know we didn't find a darn thing although we staked three claims."

About garbage-littered Yellowknife, Chrysdale has few kind words. "It's strictly a boom town," he describes. "I saw so many characters there that they don't seem to be characters any more."

Ice in Great Slave Lake in July started Chrysdale. Swimming was possible only in that month. Temperatures didn't climb above 60. And the District of McKenzies' undernourished vegetation depressed him.

"But Vancouver—" he recalls. "That's the number one place I'd like to settle down."

Those trees!

Varsity Juniors

(Continued from page 3)

The last two minutes of play seemed all too short as each team fought to score the decisive tie-breaker but the bell rang to end the game with the score still deadlocked 10-10.

Outstanding among the Varsity hopefuls were Brankston, Varsity player-maker with one goal and three assists, Barron with two goals, and Foran, a fast-skating forward with one goal and two assists. Father Flanagan's boys were sparked all the way by Hannigan, top scorer of the game, who accounted for four tallies singlehanded. Larlee, their second highest scorer, played a fast, tight game, and McParland, although an unnecessarily rough player, proved very effective in the pinches.

Varsity: McGuire, Hutzalok, Irwin, Morrison, Clarkson, Davison, Boyd, Pelau, Smyth, Hurley, Petrocco, Thompson, Brankston, Barber, Barron, Foran and Hartrey.

St. Mike's: Hannigan, Scholes, Dunn, Primeau, McParland, McLellan, J. McLellan, C., McNamara, Larlee, Macarett, Kelley, Ryan, Williams and Donlevy.

What's on Today

U.C. S.C.M.

5.00 p.m.—"New Testament Speaks." Study Group Leader: Rev. E. T. Lute. Women's Union.

S.P.S. V.C.F.

1:10 p.m.—Meets at 1:10 today in Room E34 Electrical Building. Speaker: Rev. Clarence Keen of High Park Baptist Church. Lunches available.

Books...

(Continued from page 2)

The simple fact remains however, that present social and political trends do not suggest that any general solution of our major problems is near. And this means that, no matter what aid is given ex-

Correspondence...

(Continued from page 2)

hard work—then I recommend to them a consideration of the conditions at sea during the Battle of the Atlantic in winter, or the Battle for the English Channel, or the Russian convoy routes at any time of the year. Under those conditions, I trust, their story would be different.

I should like to point out also that under normal conditions, where possible, the U. N. T. D. Seamen at sea were given jobs worthy of their expected higher standard of education. Whether they were able to keep them or not must have been greatly in their own hands.

P. G. FRIEYER.

III C. & F.

Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

"Let us hear no more about 'scientific method.'" I am quoting from the editorial of November 28 on the Scientific Method. On the contrary, I do not think we can hear enough about scientific method. The scientific method in both physical and social sciences must be defended against everyone who attacks it or misuses it. The scientific method, originating with Galileo, Descartes and Bacon, is one of the great developments of mankind. Ralph Linton, Professor of Anthropology at Columbia University, writes in his new book The Science of Man in the World Crisis, "The invention of the scientific method may prove even more revolutionary in the long run than that of getting power from fuel."

The scientific method gives us knowledge and power over our environment and over our own lives.

—WILLIAM FAIRLEY,
Chairman, University Section,
Canadian Association of Scientific Workers.

servicemen, they, together with the vast majority of all people, will continue an existence still lacking any adequate purpose. Rehabilitation plans should be continued and improved. But the larger problems are still fundamental; and these are the business of all of us.

ROBERT WEAVER.

Art, Music, Drama

(Continued from page 2)

in preference to dynamic energy. Aside from some retarded tempi when approaching crescendi, the performance was excellent within a conventional framework.

Two highly divergent Richard Strauss works completed the program. The superb Tod und Verklärung was given the best performance I have ever heard, bar none. It was as if the conductor realized to the full the dramatic implications of this grandiose, dramatic tone poem, and let them speak for themselves. The work, which the critics have labelled "tarnished," takes on renewed life and meaning in such a magnificent conception. Antal Dorati's arrangement of a suite from Strauss's Rosenkavalier takes some of the opera's best pages and not a few of the worst ones. The consequence is annoying—a snatch of one of the lilting waltzes cut short by wearisome, bombastic episodes. Ormandy inflicted it on us last May; was it necessary to have a duplication so soon?

—DOUG ROSS.

A JOY FOREVER

Vincent McConnor obviously knows far more about the history of painting than he does about the art of the drama.

In his new comedy, A Joy Forever, now playing at the Royal Alex, he mixes romantic platitudes on the artist's sophisticated comedy in a spirited but usual—a dull subject at any time—with rather unsuccessful manner.

The play is well constructed so that the sentimental inanities do not bog down any one portion of the inaction, and the few truly brilliant wisecracks are planted at well-regulated intervals.

Typical of the McConnor brand of humour is the following: The artist in question, Benjamin Vinnicum (played by Guy Kimbee), when asked by a former model for his photograph, suggests the following inscription: "To dear Violet the little blond with the cute buttocks."

Guy Kimbee's portrayal of the artistic Rip Van Winkle who is unearthed after thirty years in hiding (and whose art thereupon receives the stamp of popular approval) is all that could be expected of one so steeped in stage-craft. Dorothy Sands, as his housekeeper Tina, is equally competent; and around these two the completely conventional story of the eccentric genius is woven. The remainder of the cast is adequate and so is the set.

The title of the play is taken from the opening lines of Keat's Endymion: a rather pretentious caption for a mediocre comedy.

JEFF WAITE.

THE COMING WEEK

Maths and Physics Society

8:00 p.m.—Annual party will be held Thursday, in the Women's Union.

Complete Line of SCHOOL SUPPLIES

FOR EVERY COLLEGE COURSE

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(1 Block south of Bloor)

St. Hilda's Dance

Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits and Accessories for Rent

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET Near Wellesley. KI. 3270
At Spadina KI. 0991 571 YONGE STREET
Open Evenings Special Student Rates

TRINITY DRAMATIC SOCIETY WILL PRESENT

CHICKEN EVERY SUNDAY

By J. and P. EPSTEIN

DECEMBER 14th and 15th

TICKETS: 75c and $1.00

Tickets on sale: December 3-8, Trinity College Porter's Lodge — December 10-15, 11 a.m.-3 p.m., Hart House Box Office

'Campus Political Balance' Seen In Prog.-Con. Club

TEMPORARY EXECUTIVE NAMED

Formation of a campus Progressive Conservative Club last night at the Women's Union has "finally balanced the campus political representation" in the opinion of the club's temporary executive committee.

Previously at least three campus clubs have identified themselves with Canadian political parties, only one of which had leanings to "the right", they contend. "In the formation of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club we hope to effect a more fair opportunity for all students to support their political convictions," said spokesman Jack Chipman.

The inability of a group meeting for the first time to elect officers fairly and according to ability was believed to have been reduced by the election of a temporary executive committee until a permanent group can be chosen after the holiday season. Provisional officers chosen were: Ralph Graham, Jack Chipman, Dick Walker, Bill Lawson, Bill McNee, and Phyllis Smith.

In a special session, to be held early in January, permanent officers will be elected to the positions of President, two Vice-Presidents, Secretary, and Treasurer.

Officially sanctioned by the Progressive Conservative Party of Ontario, a tentative constitution was presented to the audience of 49 as a framework to provoke discussion. This constitution was based on one which had been previously found effective in other Conservative clubs.

Divided into seven articles, the constitution was the basis for much discussion. "In the time available," said acting-chairman Ralph Graham, "no tangible constitution could be planned due to the sincere anxiety of the attendance to develop meticulous wording." An estimated third of the number present found occasion to rise and offer suggestions.

It is planned to present a guest speaker at each of the future meetings of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club. The first speaker will be announced later.

C.C.L. Research Director

Eugene Forsey, author and economist and research director for the Canadian Congress of Labor, who is scheduled to address an open meeting of the University C.C.F. Club at the Women's Union, Thursday, December 6.

No Fraternities For Chicagoans

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4. (Exchange) —The University of Chicago has banned social fraternities operating at the undergraduate level, outlawing pledging after March, 1947.

This Board of Trustees' decision followed a two-year investigation of fraternities by a faculty committee and a University administrative ruling board. The ruling does not affect fraternities in the graduate divisions—above the end of the conventional sophomore year.

The University has invited fraternity representatives to discuss the possibilities of reorganization at this graduate division level. The seven-member faculty committee which recommended abolition of the social groups included six former fraternity men.

A Musical-Medical Life For This Singular Twin

By Bev Echlin

Had Ross Johnson been twins he would have been spared a dilemma.

"I often wish I were twins," he remarked, "then I could devote all one self to music and the other self to medicine."

For Ross Johnson today is 19 and in second year medicine despite his considerable musical talent, demonstrated most recently at Daffydil Night.

Born into a musical family, his mother a voice and piano teacher who was giving singing lessons ten days after his birth, Ross' baby carriage had a permanent position close to the piano. He knew the notes on the keyboard before he knew his ABC's. At five he began regular lessons from his mother and at 16 he graduated from the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

He has since won two tuition scholarships at the Conservatory; the last he won while in Meds. He stood eleventh in his class last June.

Paper deliveries during school paid for his music lessons. By his fifth form he was able to teach piano and this he continued for two years.

"I feel music is a wonderful asset," he says in explanation of his career choice. "I can always appreciate it. But for a career it is too insecure. Concert artists are a dime a dozen. You must be outstanding to receive any acclaim and even then it takes years of study and practice without any income."

"I never wanted to teach music. On the other hand my grandfather was a doctor and I had always been greatly interested in medicine."

He has recently experimented with composition. A prelude which he played at Daffydil Night was his own. "I've always diddled at the piano and often some beautiful chords or catching melody has stuck in my mind, just as you might find some phrase or words pleasant to the ear. Though not constructive, I've written these down."

Ross will hang out his shingle and start up a practice after graduation. Music will be his recreation.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1945

No. 49

More Easily Said Than Done Writers Show The Artists

"It must be easier to write a line than to draw one," mused Varsity Editor-in-Chief Hugh Kenner as he sorted through manuscripts submitted for The Varsity Literary Supplement. "And verse seems easier to write than prose, to judge from the volume of entries."

He pointed to the total absence, to date, of entries in the art contest planned in conjunction with the tabloid record of undergraduate creative work, to be published Friday, December 14. There has been a last-minute flurry of manuscripts arriving at the S.A.C. and Varsity news offices as today's 5:00 p.m. deadline approached; but there has been little evidence of activity on the part of campus artists.

John A. Hall, instructor of Hart House art classes and a member of the Fine Art Department staff, expressed his disappointment at lack of response to this student endeavor. Mr. Hall was appointed judge of the art submitted for publication.

Late last night Editor Kenner announced an extension of the deadline on art work to next Monday, December 10, at 5:00 p.m. It is hoped that the additional week-end will bring some evidence of student interest, he said. Drawings of any subject and of any size suitable for publication can be used—ink, pencil, linoleum cuts, etc.

CBC To Broadcast Glee Club Carols

A half-hour spot on the CBC's coast-to-coast Trans-Canada network has been given over to the Hart House Glee Club, according to Charles Delafeld, director of institutional and religious broadcasts for the CBC.

Singing from the Great Hall of Hart House, the Glee Club is to present a Christmas program from 7:00 to 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, December 18. House members are being invited to attend the broadcast and to participate in three of the songs to be done in unison.

ORGAN RECITAL

Despite various contradictory announcements, Dr. Healey Willan's next Organ Recital will be given in Convocation Hall on Tuesday, December 18.

Morals, Digestion, Sanity Imperilled By The Comics

DEBATERS FEAR FOR ADOLESCENTS

It isn't the atomic bomb, it isn't the jet-propelled plane that will decide the future of our civilization, it is the comics! The resolution that "Comics have a disastrous effect on the development of the adolescent mind" was upheld by a 27-20 vote yesterday at the second interfaculty debate of the year in the Engineering Building.

Linking the topic with this university, Bob Ramush, St. Michael's, for the government, said, "Not even our own University is free from harm—Invisible Scarlet O'Neil has invaded the Hart House showers!"

Are you worried about when the Green Hornet will strike next?

Today's Palestine Model For Future

"Britain can only stand before the world if she stands for freedom," asserted Mrs. Lorna Wingate, in an address to the Political Science Club in Wyllwood yesterday.

"The Jewish problem in Palestine is a world-wide problem. I believe the whole trouble between the Jews and the Arabs lies with a few selfish, conservative, Arab politicians, who, by agitating against the Jews, hope to gain more power for themselves. These politicians engage in modern gangsterism under ancient rules."

"Jewish Palestine today is a working model of what the 21st century may bring to mankind," continued Mrs. Wingate. "Here is a great experiment in co-operative living."

First interested in this problem when she went to Palestine with her husband, the late Maj.-Gen. Orde Wingate, in 1936, she travelled with him for three years through Egypt, Syria and Lebanon. Troubled with qualms about meeting the Jews she found that of all the nations, they showed the greatest individual achievement in their service to humanity. These people are not only carrying on the traditions of the past but are also prophets of the future, she said.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty. Today's program:

Beethoven Egmont Overture
Schumann Piano Quintet in E Flat Major
Elgar Enigma Variations

Indiscriminate Lumbering Depleting Canada's Supply

By Bob Cooke

"Timber!"

With that age-old cry another tree starts its journey through the lumber-mills to serve man in a multitude of ways.

To supply the huge demand a 1.5 billion dollar lumbering and pulp industry has grown up in Canada, but it was only recently that men came to realize that our huge reserve of forests is limited. It was only recently that men came to realize that the policy of ruthlessly cutting all the trees in a lumbering concession was swiftly eating into the possible supply.

With the aim of training men in the best use of the lumber crop, training them to treat trees as a crop which must be harvested so that natural growth of reforestation replaces all trees cut, the Faculty of Forestry was established as a part of the University of Toronto in 1907. Since then three other Canadian universities have opened courses in Forestry.

Since 1907 more than 300 men have been graduated from the Toronto Faculty of Forestry. Most of these men are now employed in either Dominion and Provincial Forest Services or in the lumber and pulp paper industries.

In their lectures, laboratories and field work they receive instruction in many subjects related to the establishment, care and protection of forests. Silviculture, a lecture course, supplemented by field work, is the study of factors affecting the growth of trees. Another subject, Forest Entomology, is concerned with forest insects, particularly those which attack trees. Other studies include Forest Mensuration, estimating the lumber yield of a wood lot, and Forest Utilization.

This year the registration in the Faculty of Forestry has tripled. Instead of the normal 60 students there are 180, more than 100 of whom are ex-servicemen. To handle them many new laboratories and other changes have had to be made at the modern Forestry Building on St. George Street.

And what about their future? "Canada's lumber will have to be expanded as a part of the expansion of Canadian trade," says Dean G. G. Cosens. "As a result of this, Forestry offers remarkable opportunities for young men from the services and secondary schools."

The ex-servicemen seem to agree.

Know Your University

Sic Transit Observatoria

Latitude 43 degrees, 39' 35" N

Longitude 90 degrees, 23' 41" W

Proudly the plaque proclaims that piece of information and boasts that this is the only point in the neighborhood of Toronto whose longitude has been telegraphically determined.

The stone is a transit pillar which was contained in one of the buildings of the magnetic observatory which once stood on this spot—now the site of the Chemistry Building. The pillar was placed in position in 1854. It has kept its age well.

It served as a support for transit instruments used in the time service of the observatory. Its longitude was determined in 1883.

Monument-appearing, the pillar throughout two wars has solemnly and faithfully accepted salutes from raw C.O.T.C. recruits.

Editorial

What? Where? When?

A familiar sight in this neighborhood is the haggard-eyed individual who goes wandering about the campus in a perpetual frenzy, strewn bits of notepaper in his wake, and ready to weep on anyone's shoulder. He is the one who comes tearing up, flops down in a chair and sobs out the sad story that no one will make up his mind for him.

"I have an essay due in two days," he sniffs "and everybody says I should do it a different way. I went to Professor Whosits, and he said that he thought the economic side of the question should be stressed. Then I bump into Professor Whatsits, and he said that while the economic aspect is undoubtedly important, there is also the sociological viewpoint, which is even more important. The kids in my class say to include as much of both as I can. That would take pages and pages! What shall I do?"

Raving Heebie-Jeebies

Yes, what should he do? Certainly not what he is doing at the present. Even if the professor gave him an outline for his essay, it would still be handed in several days or weeks late accompanied by a long string of tearful laments on the hidden intricacies of the problem and a recital of the many hours spent stewing over the essay. Examinations send this type of student off into raving heebie-jeebies.

What exactly is he doing, aside from making himself a general nuisance and wasting the time of professors, other students and himself? The general procedure, from the essay-writing standpoint is thus. The essay topics are posted, say, three weeks in advance, (if he doesn't get around to finding them until they are nearly due, he has another grievance). The first problem presents itself to his unorganized mind. What to write upon? This decision takes several days, during which time, he goes about asking the other students what they are writing, on, what they think he should do, and so on ad infinitum, according to the extent of his inventiveness. He will then look up several books on all the subjects, to see what they are really about, and begins to get a frustration complex when he finds that the books are taken out by other students who are rapidly getting their preliminary reading done.

Lather of Lamentation

The approaching essay-deadline, and the scab-like efforts of classmates serve to work him up into a lather of lamentation. Finally, his back against the wall, he decides on a topic, without much thought, aside from the fact that he has to write on something, and fast. Now he proceeds to get confused by millions and millions of books and references. He sees so many sides to the question that he can no longer make decisions with a clear conscience or mind. If he makes up his mind one way, he is neglecting the other.

More consultations ensue, with students, professors, and anyone who looks sympathetic. If they are in another course, it is even better chance to waste a whole hour or so telling them the enormity of the struggle through which he is battling. Finally, after a near-nervous breakdown, the essay is produced, and our friend goes off to a movie to calm his shattered nerves.

Going, Going . . . Nowhere

This student must realize that he is rapidly getting nowhere and wasting valuable time on the way. If he sits back for a bit and thinks it over, he will see that he will have to make himself make up his own mind. No one else can do it for him. He can make himself take one topic at the onset of an essay, even if he has to do it by the pin-a-tail-on-the-donkey method. Once decided, he should stick to it, and keep reasonably quiet—at any rate, as quiet as the other students are who are doing the same essay. This effort, great as it may seem, may well be the beginning of the end of his whole unorganized state, and perchance his chance to win friends and influence people. Maybe he might even be a help to the class instead of a general pest.

—M. G. B.

The Varsity

Established 1899
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College, MT. 6611
Business Office, MT. 6231
Night Office, MT. 6745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, A.T.
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, A.T.
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Phil Shaderton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.E.
News Editor: George Forster, A.T.
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, A.T.
Assistant: Wally Belfry, A.T.
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, A.T.
Assistant: Reg Herman, A.T.
Sports Editor: Mickey Michael, A.T.
Women's Assistant: Polly Muts, A.T.
Mc's Assistant: Jerry Erwin, B.A.
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, A.T.
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, A.T.
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, A.T.

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD
Night Editor: Bob Robinson
Assistant: Wes Hurley

Correspondence

The Views of Mr. B

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Mr. Bettison will not leave well enough alone. He persists in presenting his views with a diligence worthy of a better cause, and he deserves to be contradicted in the bluntest manner.

"We live in an imperfect world," moans Mr. B., and on reflection decides it would be far less trouble to make it more imperfect still by heaping crime on injustice. The property of the Japanese-Canadian has already been sold, therefore, Mr. B.'s mind brilliantly concludes that it is right and proper—no, it is expedient!—to expel them forthwith.

There are thousands of girls waiting in Europe to join Canadian husbands—who, let me observe, are Canadians only "by accident," just as Mr. B.'s appearance in this imperfect world was undoubtedly a deplorable accident—and to make room for them we must remove a bunch of "foreigners"!

I shall not labor the point. Both Mr. Lute and Mr. Stall have written excellent replies exposing the moral bankruptcy evident in such abysmal failure to understand the difference between principle and expediency. "Democracy is expedient!" "Realism" reigns supreme! Such "profound" statements reveal nothing but a shocking emptiness in the cerebral regions. The depths to which Nazism descended were in part at least due to the abandonment of a belief in the validity of principles of human conduct.

PAUL M. PFALZNER
IV M. & P.

Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

In the midst of such adverse criticism as has filled your columns of late, we feel it opportune to commend heartily the general tone and substance of your editorials.

More particularly we agree with you in those editorials dealing with "The Open Mind" in connection with President Sidney Smith's address at the installation, and recently, "Santa and Satan" and "The Scientific Method". You have distinguished the function of induction and deduction in the social sciences. If science is certain knowledge of something in its causes, both have their place and each has its limitations. This you have presented—keep up the good work.

—DES FITZGERALD, IV Philosophy.
—EZIO CAPPADOCIA, IV History.

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Your recent editorial on Scientific Method shows the wisdom of the founders of the University in locating the natural science and social science divisions as far removed as possible from the humanities. If such absurd ideas as those contained in this editorial were allowed to contaminate the sciences, the latter would suffer a setback for centuries.

If you had made the slightest attempt to learn the elements of scientific method, available in numerous books of such simplicity that even Varsity editors can understand them, we shouldn't have the pitiful spectacle of this editorial.

If the scientific method were solely concerned with perfecting the instruments of observation and thus providing "true premises", as you imply, then it would seem surprising that men like the astronomer Bruno were burnt at the stake, when they used instruments perhaps inferior to those used by the Arabs 800 years before. The importance of science lies in the fact that it observes, draws an inductive generalization, draws deductions from this generalization, and (most important) tests these deductions empirically.

Your statement that "observation, accurate observation, is to be encouraged as the provider of true premises; but the only provider of true conclusions is a system of thought at least as old as Aristotle" shows the encephalopathy of a thorough grounding in scientific thought. As long as thought is hamstrung by the absurd idea that useful deductions can be drawn from "common-sense" premises, refusing to test empirically the deductions from such premises, we are still in the Middle Ages.

It would seem that the most vociferous
(Continued on page 4)

When I say that as a child I fed on Aristotle and was practically nourished at the breast of Goethe, you of course see that our was an enlightened and cultured family of the early 1850's. My father, the typical Victorian, read Spurgeon and Moody and my mother, who was slightly more active in her religious pursuits, published a pamphlet definitely proving that God had not saved King George IV. I might also add that my poor mother was so deluded as to have an affair with a wealthy brewer living on what is now Bloor Street but that my father and I always agreed that probably they never got any farther than preserving each other's coffee-grounds.

Those were the dear days I will ever remember: My school room with its globes and tattered Delphine editions of the classics; the little white kitten whose head I rocked off by accident while rocking in my rocking-chair, an lecherous old uncle who lent me Les Fleurs du Mal and was by consequence the almost ruin of my life; my great aunt who always advised porridge on any occasion whether a marriage or a funeral; my dear mother herself one of whose lists I still keep as a book mark.

1 oz. of blueing
1 can of Bon Ami
a muffler for your father
some lozenges for my cough

But alas, I soon grew up and at the early age of 16 was caught shaving with my mother's embroidery scissors. At that age also I had my first love affair. A certain Laetitia Pinkerton. I bought her ices for some time; until one night at a concert, I detected her clapping softly between the movements of a quartet. At once I dropped her.

Even before this I met one of my dearest friends, Percival, whom although I sometimes love with an undying hatred I also hate with an equally eternal love. He will ever be the sphinx in my life. Incredibly handsome, I met him at a party in 1857 thrown by a domestic-faster manufacturer's daughter. I remember I had been handing the lieutenant-governor coffee when Mrs. Eglantine (that unfortunate woman who afterwards fell out of a window at Nice) came up to me and said: "You will have to meet Percival Darcy." At once I knew it to be a great moment in my life.

(To be continued)

—JAMIE.

Fashions

Orchids To Jane

(The College Gal's Wardrobe provides another set of fashion vignettes for The Varsity's style reporter who publishes her November notes.)

The U.C. Freshie's night of triumph . . . the First Year Dance at the Women's Union . . . Diana Hamilton wearing "sky blue pink" . . . her dress of sky blue crepe with pink bead trim accentuating the oval neckline and along the slit pockets . . . Jayne Morrison in a stunning silk creation . . . flowered clusters on a black background . . . the popular oval neckline featured tiny tucks . . . a full skirt tied at the waist with a belt of same material . . . Helen Richenback in a snappy brown and white houndstooth check suit with glamor pin . . . Barbara Boehm with page-from-Vogue smartness in long-sleeved jersey blouse worn under a neat jumper of navy and white check with initials B.B. woven into it . . .

Society welcoming back the "dress" affair . . . random glimpses at the Meds' At-Home . . . Lois Manby in white velvet and net, sparkling with silver sequins . . .

Most memorable: Jane Strickland of Trinity at the S.P.S. Soph Frosh ultra glamorous in shocking pink . . . the Schiaparelli influence? . . . cap sleeves, low neckline, side drapes, trimmed with tiny white beads.

Off to observe December date-dress data . . . MILORDED SPICER.

Trinity Dramatic Society

Will Present

"Chicken Every Sunday"

By J. and E. EPSTEIN

Dec. 14. and 15. Tickets 75c, $1

ON SALE:

December 3rd to 8th

TRINITY COLLEGE PORTER'S LODGE

Dec. 10. -- 15. 11 a.m. -- 3 p.m.

HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE

JOAN RIGBY

DRESSES

COATS
TWEEDS
SUITS

SWEATERS

54 BLOOR W.

ML. 4969

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

NOW Playing

BIEVINS DAVIS and ARCHIE THOMSON present

GUY KIBBEE
(IN PERSON) IN
A JOY FOREVER
A New Comedy by VINCENT MCCONNOR

DOROTHY SANDS
NICHOLAS JOY • LORING SMITH
Staged by REGINALD DENHAM
Setting and Costumes by STEWART CHANEY

PRICES (TAX INCLUDED)
Evgs.: 60c, $1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.
Wed. Matinee: 60c, $1.20, $1.80.
Sat. Matinee: 60c, $1.20, $1.80, $2.40.

Victoria Richmond & Victoria

NEXT SAT. AND ALL

Return By Popular Demand! LONDON AND NEW YORK COMEDY SUCCESS

THE HASTY
HEART

BY JOHN PATRICK

SEATS NOW SELLING!
Box Office open Daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Evenings at 8:30: $2., $2.40, $1.80, 60c
Wed. Matinee at 2:30: $1.80, $1.20, 60c
Sat. Matinee at 2:30: $2.40, $1.80, & 60c (Tax included)

MASSEY HALL NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

THE FAMOUS FIRST QUARTET
- ADAM -
- GARNER -
- FRANK MITTLER -
- VLADIMIR -
- PADWA -
- EDWARD EDSON -
NBC MUSICAL SENSATION!!!
$1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.00, Inc. Tax. SEATS NOW

BIOLOGY CLUB -- THURS., DEC. 6th At 8:15 P. M.

CONNAUGHT LABORATORY Large Lecture Room — Main Floor

DR. RAYMOND C. PARKER School of Hygiene

Speaking on

The Cultivation of Animal Tissues Outside the Body and the Use of Developing Chick Embryos in the Study of Tumors and Viruses.

with Motion Pictures and Microscope Demonstrations

Everyone Welcome — Members Free — Non-Members 15c

Formal Attire for St. Hilda's Dance

Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits and Accessories for Rent

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET 671 YONGE STREET
At Spadina KL 0691 Near Wellesley. KL 3270
Open Evenings Special Student Rates

FORESTRY, VIC OUSTED FROM LACROSSE CONTEST

Meds. I and P.H.E. successfully passed the semifinal milepost yesterday by eliminating Forestry and Vic. respectively. The doctors encountered the stiffer opposition, but their 17-10 win was just as impressive in the long run as P.H.E.'s 22-5 slaughtering of the scarlet and gold.

The biggest lacrosse crowd of the year turned up to witness the Forestry and Meds clash, and they were treated to one of the best games of the year from the spectator angle. The Forestry-Dents league brawl of a couple of weeks back has a slight edge perhaps, but yesterday's game ran it a close second. Mac McCutcheon and Jimmy Folwell raced in with reinforcements to cope with a last period free-for-all, and after a center floor conference with these two arbiters, the two teams played lacrosse for the rest of the game, much to the disappointment of the gallery.

Forestry jumped into an early lead when Lawson and Carmichael found the range, Carmichael's goal coming while Nikaido was serving a penalty for creaming Vetter, the Forestry netminder. They kept up a steady pressure on the Meds' goal, as the doctors appeared disorganized, and only some fine work by the Meds' goalie held the score at two. Rogers snapped Meds back to life with several good rushes, one of which McKay capitalized on just before the end of the period, to leave Forestry out in front 2-1. Haliburton tied the score shortly afterward, and then hit the post on the very next play, and Meds never looked back from here on in. McKay got two and Rogers one, Carmichael getting one back for Forestry, and the half ended with Meds ahead 5-3.

Haliburton and McKay each netted three goals before Forestry could get organized, but the woodsmen replied with four assorted markers to leave them five in arrears as they entered the final chapter, down 12-7. Meds outscored them 5-3 in the remaining time, and emerged on top, 17-10.

McKay with eight and Haliburton with five were Meds' big guns, while Rogers got two and Spooner and Rae one each. The usually reliable Nikaido was kept off the scoresheet completely. Lawson, Puttock, Hambly and Carmichael got a pair apiece for Forestry, and Bastedo and Johnston counted once.

P.H.E., playing a seven-man team, out-classed Vic. by a wide margin. Vic. did not threaten at any time, as they had no defence against the P.H.E. passing attack. Dzuipina got eight, Foote five, Toogood four, Edmond and Robson two, and Ferguson one, for the physical eddies. Hart scored a pair for Vic, while Armstrong, Beggs and Patrick counted one each.

Soccer Finals Taken By Vic

Classy forwards and heavy-checking backs today proved too much for Trinity as the Victoria College Footballers fought their way to final possession of the Arts Faculty Cup. In the second game of the series, necessitated by Monday's 0-0 draw, Vic. gained a hard-earned 2-0 decision in a thrilling display before a good-sized crowd on the back campus.

An early Vic. lead on a first half goal goal by Hikichi was never overcome by Trinity, although the Red and Gold rooters weren't able to breathe easily until well on in the second chukker. Colvin scored the clincher on a beautiful shot from 20 yards out. Matthews in Trinity goal had little chance, as the ball bounded from the crossbar on the way through.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Jerry Ewins

Concerning Competence

The boys who draw up those Intramural schedules and arrange the groupings in the various team sports must know what they're doing. That's our considered opinion after close observation of the happenings around here these past few years.

Take yesterday for a frinstance, and let the sport be lacrosse. These 24-carat characters snoop around at the beginning of the season and reported to themselves thusly: P.H.E. are going to have a strong lacrosse team this year, therefore we should put them up in Group I where they'll get some competition during the regular schedule. Which they did. Also, said they, we should put Meds. I in Group I again this year, as most of last year's Dadoe finalists are back on the team this year, and besides Meds. always come up with good lacrosse teams. Which they did. Statistically speaking, the weighted entries in the team sports practically always find themselves in the finals come the playoffs' playoff. We'll bet once more on the sure thing.

Well, Meds. came through, and P.H.E. came through, and now these two will battle to the death in a best two of three final series next Thursday, Saturday and Tuesday. The boys guesstimated very accurately.

Yesterday's Meds-Forestry game saw the woodsmen beat themselves, a good trick if you can master it. Forestry figured Meds. were too good for them, so they figured further that the only way to beat them was to slow Meds. down to their speed. And for a hectic first period the strategy worked. They were ahead 2-0 and then 2-1 as the stanza ended. Medsman Nikaido was playing right into their hands with his temper flareup in reprisal for some decidedly roughhouse tactics. When a few foresters beat him unmercifully about the head and shoulders, they accomplished the feat with finesse, i.e., the referees' respective backs were turned. But when Nikaido brought his tiny weapon down across the back of goalkeeper Vetter's neck he got caught, and was duly penalized.

This was all Meds. needed to smarten them up. From there on in they coaxed Forestry into the penalties, proceeding the while to broach a beautiful attack. They teased Forestry into a 17-10 defeat, thereby talking them out of their fond playoff hopes again this year (they did it so nicely last season).

This year's final series will undoubtedly be one of the cleanest and classiest seen round these parts in years. Meds. and P.H.E. both possess potent passing attacks and the capable individuals with which to execute them successfully. The resulting lacrosse should be beautiful, and they'll hardly need referees. "Concerning competence", time will tell.

Skimming The Surface

The Senior and Senior A basketball Blues skirmished last night in the big gym, and as the players are beginning to get in shape the stars begin to shine. Mayzel and Scott showed up terrifically, while Clayton's set shots dropped in quite regularly. Thomson and Hennessey rounded out the best five men on the floor. Varga's shooting, Potroff's work around the basket, although he lacked fire defensively, and Swan's smooth efficiency stood out on the Senior A squad. . . . What's this about four bits for Saturday night's basketball doubleheader? Are they kidding? The Athletic Nights only cost 25 cents last year. Is this inflation in our midst? Come on fellows. . . . Hec Phillips announced yesterday that he'll enter a track team in the coming meet at West End "Y" on Tuesday, December 18. Might be he's looking for new fields to conquer.

Wide Experience in Coaching Brought by Basketball Mentor

By Joe Taylor

"My ambition is to learn to play the piano," he stated. The speaker was genial, energetic Roy Dilworth, coach of the Varsity Senior Basketball team, and an amazing fellow to boot. He fairly overflows with enthusiasm and good spirits when the subject of his year's spirits when the subject of this year's great ambition of the moment is to guide the Blues to an Intercollegiate Championship.

Hamilton born and educated, Roy attended Delta Collegiate, and from thence went to McMaster, graduating in 1934. In sports and studies alike he stood out, winning the Lampadion Gold Medal while in High School as the second best all-round student, and becoming a member of the Honor Society at McMaster.

He won his letter at McMaster no less than seven times for basketball and track, and in the latter he was the intermediate intercollegiate high jump champion four times in succession. His favorite sport, however, is baseball, and he has received two offers to play pro ball.

Academically, he was also above average, competing while at McMaster for a Rhodes Scholarship.

His coaching career began after his graduation from O.C.E. in 1935, when he went to the High School of Commerce in Hamilton. Two years of instruction brought forth many fruits. Two basketball championships, a track relay championship and a football championship were among his achievements.

From Hamilton he came to North Toronto Collegiate, and for seven years strove mightily to produce winning teams. How well he succeeded is shown by the results. His basketball teams annexed five city championships. His track team was the first in 15 years to defeat Central Tech., and in 1944 his hockey team won the TSSAA title.

(Continued on page 4)

SPORTS CALENDAR

SWIM LEAGUE	4:00	Emman Jr. SPS.	Trin. B	Moffat
	5:00	Vic. SPS. III	Trin. A Sr. SPS. Dent.
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	Vic. IV	I Med.	Eilbeck
	4:00	Dent. D	Vic. V	Stone
	6:30	For. B	Med-Servicemen	Swan
	7:30	Jr. SPS.	Jr. Med.	Brisbin (Group Playoff)

VOLLEYBALL-Regular Schedule

Thurs, Dec. 6 6:30 Med-Servicemen U.C. VI Swan
Please note change, game was originally scheduled for Friday.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYOFFS

GROUP PLAYOFFS (if necessary):

Wed., Dec. 5	7:30	Jr. SPS.	Jr. Med.	Brisbin
Thurs., Dec. 6	4:30	Trin. A	St.M. A	Himel
	8:30	II SPS. B	I Med.
Fri., Dec. 7	1:00	For. B	Med. Servicemen	Cooke

PLAYOFFS:

Thurs., Dec. 6	1:00	Sr. Vic.	PHE. I	Brisbin
	5:30	Sr. Med.	Knox A	Himel
	7:30	Knox B or Emman B	U.C. V	Swan
Fri., Dec. 7	4:00	Jr. U.C.	Trin. A or St.M. A	Brisbin
	6:30	II SPS. B or I Med.	Vic. III	Lyon
Sat., Dec. 8	12:00	III SPS. B	PHE. II	Fine
	1:00	Jr. SPS. or Jr. Med.	SPS. III	Fine
Mon., Dec. 10	1:00	For. B or Med. Ser.	III SPS. A	Burt-Gerrans
	4:00	Knox B, Emman B or U.C. V	IV SPS. A	Eilbeck

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

The Cheerleaders . . . Profile No. 2

There are four of them . . . perhaps we should use the past tense as the rugby season is over, and the group has been disbanded for the first post-war intercollegiate games. At any rate, these four lasses were much the same size . . . diminutive of stature, but the amount of energy per square inch was terrific. Bea Thorkelson, Bunny Joyce and Mary Rose Ritiyak are blondes. Marilyn Duff though, broke the pattern—she's dark.

"It was pretty rough starting out this year as the initial group," said Bea, "as there were no old-timers around to show us the ins and outs of leading a howling mass of students through cheers." New routines had to be worked out . . . they all collaborated on the new cheers and routines. Then there was the problem of costumes . . . due to the dearth of dress-makers, "the four" worked on their brief, but effective, white skirts till three the morning they left Toronto for the Queen's game. The practices took from one to four hours in the dark, deserted and cold stadium . . . it was very unglamorous behind the scenes.

One of their most encouraging moments was that afternoon Queen's came to Toronto and the student body collected in section "Q" began a spontaneous and inspired spelling of T-o-r-o-n-t-o in alternate bobbing rows. Another moment not so happy was the ill-timed cheer at the moment the McGill and Toronto converged on the spot below the cheering section, nearly massacring Bunny Joyce in their scramble for the ball.

Bea Thorkelson, III General U.C., has transferred her effervescent energies to dramatics . . . portrayed Emilie Webb in the U.C. production of "Our Town". Bunny Joyce, III Arts, doubles as one of the cheerleaders for the St. Mike's intercollegiate rugby games. Marilyn Duff, II Arts U.C., is an ardent baseball and basketball player. Mary Rose Ritiyak, II Arts U.C., is from Baltimore, and also has dramatic leanings . . . was cast as Rebecca Gibbs in "Our Town".

Pictures of this pulchritudinous foursome can be clipped from the January issue of New World . . . which comes on the newsstands December 15.

Our Town --

Everybody likes their own home town—and we like ours. We like the way Toronto goes to the Stadium on Saturday afternoon—to some dance at night—and to Church on Sunday.

We like the ice water in the taps—the lawns and flowers in Queen's Park—the "big city" view of Sunny-side as you curve off the Queen Elizabeth Way—the ride on the ferries—the view of the hills as you cross Hogg's Hollow Bridge—the Canadian National Exhibition—coffee in Diana's at ten.

We think our town is tops.

published by b. a. stevenson, c.l.u. and associates of the university branch.
57 bloor street, west. k1 4136.

Loaf Sugar

will be needed for Boxes for Holland

Save Your Coupons

And Don't Forget The

All-Varsity Christmas Tree, Wednesday, Dec. 12.

THE COCA-COLA COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.
Toronto, Canada

The Next VARSITY Saturday Night DANCE

Will be held in the form of a CHRISTMAS DANCE
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22.
HORACE LAPP and His Orchestra. Watch for Details

REMEMBER?

YOU MIGHT AS WELL BE RIGHT... that's the psychology which takes a girl with a future in mind Joan-Rigby-wise in shopping these hectic days. A Joan Rigby number is there to stay, designed to take a prominent place in a well-ordered wardrobe and hold its own against all comers. Those well-tailored, well-designed lines are certain in delineation, the colours are suavely muted, the fitting as important as it should be. Joan Rigby is as clever with evening glamour as with a trim, trig, daylight ensemble, and can give you precisely the right advice when it comes to choosing the dress you are likely to return to for several seasons with a look of veiled triumph in your eyes. 54 Bloor Street West.

EXQUISITELY DESIGNED TO LEND LUXURY TO YOUR SUIT

... If you have a suit which seems to be lacking in something, Creeds' costume jewellery is the finest we've seen in town. Their glamour pins and accessories are sophistication "par excellence" to revitalize that well-tailored plain basic suit. For evening sequined combs in your high piled hair have been designed with a purpose to give you glamorous dignity. If you are puzzled about Christmas presents, what about one of Creeds' compacts, they have one in particular which is definitely "smartness personified", made in heavy glass inlaid with sterling silver designs.

FRANK STOLLERY'S... corner of BLOOR and YONGE, has magnetism these days for the bound-to-get-ahead young man who knows his appearance may not help him to chalk up a "pass", academically speaking, but it does definitely help him make friends and influence people. A good scarf and glove set comes in various shades of wool, at a very considerate price, and one of those GlenTwill ties at a 1.50 will be enough to add vitamins to your old suit. They've some dandy casual coats in corduroy and dressing gowns of superior quality. Better do your STOLLERY shopping in person. Those STOLLERY salesmen like being helpful.

DON'T LISTEN TO A HEAD COLD if it tells you not to keep that date on account of you can't say a single sentence without sneezing. Try the good old Sloan's technique, pour a glassful of very hot water from the tap, add a teaspoon of Sloan's, make a tent over your head with a towel, and breathe in deeply. Although Sloan's is primarily a liniment for the relief of muscular sprains, people have found its value is unquestionable when it comes to easing up nasal congestion; we just thought we'd remind you in time to save many a good evening that might otherwise have been jettisoned.

LONG SLIMMING LINES in devastating colours... it looks like a festive season ahead with parties going formal, and Northway's Fashionland right in there with plenty of say-so when it comes to choosing that all important "first formal"... And you don't have to be an under-eighteen to admit it's a "first formal" this season because many of the war-crop debutantes have never worn a dress longer than knee-high since prom (not prom) days. Northway's Fashionland provides the little extra service you want in these rush shopping days, an entire floor to make up your ensemble, from a dashing Bromleigh to a glamor date or evening dress, and suits, blouses, jumpers, fur coats as well.

GIVE A GIRL A GOOD NAME... his choice of a THREE FLOWERS GIFT BOX by Richard Hudnut is a young man's prestige-security in gift-giving, and one which for a young man of romantic intentions can be called on unquestionably advantageous gesture. There's not a girl whose eyes will fail to sparkle when she opens the delectably fragrant box... whether it's an expensive three-piece set of Three Flowers powder, lipstick and rouge, or

Basketball

(Continued from page 3)

The results of his coaching have been felt here at Varsity too. At one time, six out of 10 men on the basketball team, under Coach Warren Stevens, were Dilworth products. Jimmy O'Brien of the current championship track team, Davidson, goaltender of the senior hockey team, and Don Barron of the Junior Bees, have also received the Dilworth touch.

At present he is teaching at UTS, specializing in French, basketball and football.

As a further outlet for his seemingly boundless energy, Roy has broadcast football, golf, basketball, hockey, lacrosse, horse-racing, track and field, baseball and wrestling. And he likes them all.

Distinctive Show of Camera Art

Reputedly one of the best displays of photographic art in Canada, the annual Hart House Camera Club exhibit will be shown in Hart House Art Gallery, January 15 to January 30. It is not confined to the work of Camera Club members, but is open to any undergraduate, graduate, or faculty member of Hart House.

Six awards are made to pictures judged most outstanding among those hung. Usually about 70 photographs—approximately a third to one-half of those submitted to the judges—are shown. The A. F. Coventry Award is given in the senior class, which is open to entrants who have won at least one first or two seconds in previous Hart House exhibits. In the junior class, made up of all other entries, the K. B. Jackson Cup is awarded. Four honorable mentions for other outstanding pictures are made.

Entry forms are available at the Hall Porter's Desk in Hart House and all prints must be handed in not later than Wednesday, January 9. Each person may submit 12 prints and 12 Kodachrome transparencies or slides. The exhibit will be essentially pictorial, but there will also be a scientific section.

any one of the more elaborate ones ranging in size all the way up to a complete ten-piece set of cosmetic smoothies.

HOUSECOATS BEAUTIFUL AND RIGHT... Have you seen them at the Evangeline Shops. They are smart, aren't they? Evangeline has a superb collection, different styles, colours and materials that vary in every way. Travel robes for that long-awaited vacation or a pretty crepe in various shades, chintz, in gaily flowered designs, padded satins, and so on. These housecoats are the perfect present to give to some feminine member of the family. Evangeline Shops, as of course you know, have a Shop in your district. Nearest one is Yonge Street, just north of Bloor on the east side.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service. 321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762 (Ground Floor St. George Apartments) OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

Our stock of earrings is especially interesting just now... also bracelets, bangles and brooches. Come in and see for yourself.

32 Bloor St. East (Near Red Cross Headquarters) MI. 5975

Correspondence

(Continued from page 2)

ous exponents of such logic are afraid felt here at Varsity too. At one time, well-buttressed position of the logic-deductive method and, worst of all, lead to conclusions which may actually serve as guides to action instead of mere academic pap. The recent attacks on progressive education, which you seem to have swallowed hook, line, and sinker, are nothing less than a plea to return to the Middle Ages and once again base all thought on intuitive common-sense; failing to recognize not only that common-sense is notoriously inaccurate, but also that its content varies from age to age. The extent of the reality involved in such thought is "bounded above and below by the two covers of a dictionary."

—W. D. GOODMAN,
IV U.C.

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Of all the letters printed in your issue of Nov. 29 with reference to the picking of the Imperial Optical Company by U. of T. students, I found W. A. E. Sheppard's the most interesting; not because he has anything to say that is worth discussing but because of his last paragraph which says, "I wonder how many of these strickers and their impulsive supporters in the University saw action overseas?"

I'm sure that Sheppard has seen action overseas, otherwise I doubt that he would write such cheap-jack trash; but I would like to ask him just what the one thing has to do with the other.

If it will put his mind at ease, let me assure him that as one of the "impulsive" student supporters of the strikers, I served overseas, where among other things I learned history a little more thoroughly than he seems to have.

—LEW BOCKNER,
I Soc. & Phil.

Windsor Pianist A Coming Artist

A rising young Canadian pianist, George Hadded of Windsor, will give a piano recital next Friday at 5:00 p.m. in the Music Room of Hart House. Mr. Hadded has given numerous concerts in the United States and Windsor. He was featured on a Canadian Cavalcade of the Air broadcast this year, when a short history of his life was given. He is scheduled to appear in an Eaton Auditorium Concert soon, and will be playing with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra after Christmas.

Mr. Hadded will play the following pieces at his recital:

Bach Siciliano.
Fantasy in C Minor.
Beethoven Sonata, Opus 53 (Waldstein)
Chopin Valse, A Flat, Opus 42.
Nocturne, C Sharp Minor.
Etude (Revolutionary),
Opus 10, No. 12.
Etude, Opus 10, No. 3.
Polonaise, A Flat, Opus 53.

HART HOUSE CHAPEL

Holy Communion is celebrated every Thursday morning at 7:50 in the chapel. Tomorrow the celebrant will be Rev. D. C. Candy (Church of England). The daily services continue at 9:40 a.m., 4:45 p.m., and 5:20 p.m.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

D.V.A. should be informed of your present Toronto address. Change of address forms are available at our office.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. MI. 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Accenting Smartness and Snug Warmth

Chamois Vests

Here's a back warming suggestion for chilly Winter weather... wear a chamois vest under your jacket or windbreaker. Lined or unlined, button or zipper front, in soft, natural coloured English chamois. Small, medium and large sizes. Each 7.50 to 12.50

Unlined, long sleeved, zipper front style. Each 16.95

Phone Tr. 5111

Eaton's Main Store/Second Floor

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Space contracts

MUST be signed by December 7

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL
10 Avenue Road

MI. 6361
WE DELIVER

NOTICE

Anyone finding blue air force wallet, containing registration card, license, discharge slip, etc., Tues. morning in U.C., please phone N. M. Bristol, MO. 6551.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restring. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

TYPING

I'd be very glad to do your typing! "Evelyn", Box A, The Varsity.

LOST

Large buff envelope containing assortment of Hart House Glee Club music, in Convocation Hall on Dec. 3rd. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Identification bracelet, in front of Hart House, engraved "Earl Sullivan". McMaster University crest. Please leave at Hall Porter's desk.

University of Toronto Liberal Association

Meeting at Wymilwood on FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7th at 4 O'clock P.M.

SUBJECTS UNDER DISCUSSION:

The Japanese-Canadian Question.
The Report of the Fact-Finding Committee on the Ford Strike.
The Program for the Year.
Organization of Discussion Groups on National Problems.
This organization welcomes Students interested in Canadian Government and Liberal Policy.

The U. C. FRENCH CLUB Presents

"LES FEMMES SAVANTES"

By Molière

HART HOUSE THEATRE

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER TWELFTH

TICKET SALE BEGINS TODAY IN U.C. ROTUNDA -- 11 to 1. AND HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE -- 2 to 4.

Amsterdam Drive Success Up To Individual Colleges

SANTA TO ATTEND CEREMONY

The success of Amsterdam University's Christmas will depend on response of Toronto's individual colleges, Central Committee for the "adoption" decided in last night's organization meeting at University College.

College representatives heard Chairman Walter Giles, II Forestry, brief the committee's plans stressing that the committee will be responsible for only the last day of the drive—colleges responsible until that time.

An "all-out drive" will end next Wednesday on the front campus with an elaborate ceremony at which the college reps will present their donations. Chosen chairman of the committee for this ceremony, Lloyd Ackert, Victoria, has planned a band, Christmas carols, and a sound-truck. Mr. Ackert hinted, that "Santa Claus" would be on hand, that Dutch native costumes may circulate throughout the crowd. The largest Christmas tree on the campus will add further color to the scene. "We'll have the largest tree we can get," said Miss Parkes of the S.A.C.

As soon as possible the rounda of each college will display a typical gift-box and a booth to receive donations. The boxes cost an estimated five dollars, two of which is for postage and shipping.

The strangest of shipments to a university, 192 boxes of salt, are on their way to Toronto to be included in the Christmas boxes. The Netherlands is reported to suffer especially from shortages of salt, sugar, pins, and needles. The inclusion of pocket-books by the best English-speaking authors will not be in vain since English is said to be compulsory in all Holland high schools and the majority of university arts courses.

It is hoped this effort will in part repay the hospitality of the Dutch people to Canadians fighting in Holland. As Miss Parkes said, "Of course we cannot begin a relief project—it's too great a job!" In confirmation Mr. Giles said, "We shall not make a great effort to solicit for money, but rather count on subscriptions to come in."

He added, "We would rather this were a more personal matter between Amsterdam and ourselves."

Sharing of Atom Urged in Letter

Colorado, Dec. 5.—(Exchange)—In a letter to the University of Colorado, encouraging the participation of all American students in the Atom Bomb issue, students of Sarah Lawrence College in conjunction with the faculty and administration, resolved that "the development and control of atomic energy must be shared with the United Nations," and registered their opposition to the May-Johnson Bill.

The reasons for taking this stand were set forth in the letter, and are as follows:

- (1) That it is not in the interest of this nation and world peace to seek security in the enforced secrecy of a scientific principle. All nations now share the fundamental knowledge of atomic energy, and foremost scientists say that our advance in technical applications will be duplicated by the rest of the world within a maximum period of three and a half years.
- (2) If the May-Johnson Bill is passed free scientific inquiry in this country will be prohibited, while other nations will be encouraged to develop their scientific research to the utmost degree.
- (3) That we do not think this bill is consistent with our traditional democratic principles of free thought and free exchange of ideas.
- (4) That if this opportunity to unite nations is used to divide them, we will continue in a policy of mutual suspicion and fear.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1945

No. 50

Optical Strike Terminates; Apologize for False Charges

The strike at the Imperial Optical Company lens plant, at Ontario and Dundas Street has been terminated, and all company employees at the plant will at once return to work, J. E. Casson of the Imperial Optical Company announced last yesterday afternoon.

Mr. C. S. Jackson, President of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, and International officer of the union issued statements yesterday on behalf of the union thanking both Mr. Percy Hermant and Mr. Sidney Hermant for their goodwill in arriving at an operative agreement mutually satisfactory to both parties, and apologizing for the allegations many of which he termed "unfounded and highly irresponsible" made by the union supporters during negotiations and the course of the strike against the Imperial Optical Company and its management.

In addition the union stated that it will do everything in its power to remedy any injustice that may have been done to the Imperial Optical Company and its personnel and is certain that in the future harmonious relations will exist between the company and the union.

Both parties have come to an agreement whereby all future undertakings and commitments shall be carried on between the International Union of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers and the company with no contractual relations with Local 514.

The union and management issued a joint statement to the effect that the report of the Conciliation Board only recommended that certain suggestions be adopted; but that there was no directive that they must be accepted either by the Union or by the company, and that failure to accept these recommendations by either party is not contrary to the law.

Ken Morrison II Political Science and Economics, President of the Campus L. P. C. Club which participated in picketing the Imperial Optical Company, when asked for an opinion on the close of the strike said "I am very happy that the strike is over and that we as students had some small share in bringing it to an end."

Collapsible Stage Aids Production

A portable stage is being built in the common room of Brennan Hall in St. Michael's College to facilitate production of plays by the Music and Drama Society. The construction crew, under Drama Director Dick Donnelly, has promised that the collapsible stage, now being erected in eleven sections, will be ready for Sunday night's presentation.

"We feel that this feat of engineering shows that the dramatic spirit is not dead among us," Donnelly told The Varsity. "This portable stage is to be used by a rolling stock company which will present a one-act comedy murder entitled Murder by Request."

Philosophy Club Hears J.C. Taylor

Last night, at a meeting of the U. of T. Philosophical Society, Mr. J. C. Taylor read a paper on Objective Psychology and the philosophical theory of perception.

His interpretation of the relevance of psychology for epistemology was based on the work of the Wittgenstein School of logical analysis; more particularly on that of Egon Brunswick of the University of California.

The core of the paper was in the comparison of the two major ways of defining "perception": (1) the subjective, introspective definition which employs the notion of sense-data as its primary point of integration, (2) the objective definition which shifts the emphasis to a consideration of the object immediately perceived by the organism in experience. Mr. Taylor defended the latter position.

Such a shift in emphasis regarding definition was justified pragmatically as facilitating syntactical usage. This discussion in itself might appear to be an exercise in tautology, but the further implications of the distinction (if legitimate) were granted, by all who understood the paper, to be of great import.

The crude Mr. Taylor was at pains to make his meaning clear even to the undergraduates; he stopped more than once to elucidate his material when he realized they were lost; if they failed to comprehend him at all points that was because of difficulties inherent in the subject-matter that no man, even Will Durant, would attempt to minimize.

Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Toronto and Cambridge. In the near future he expects to visit the University of Melbourne, Australia.

Invite to Write Extended to U.C.

The Modern Letters Club will hold a Creative Writing night on Thursday, Dec. 6, at eight o'clock at the Women's Union.

"Any U. C. student who has ever put a pen to paper, is welcome to read his creative efforts," said President Robert Weaver. There is no previous selection. This is the second Creative Writing night which the club has held. As usual, refreshments will be served afterwards.

CHRISTMAS EMPLOYMENT

Some openings are still available for employment with the Post Office, for students who can commence work December 17. For further information, apply Students' Administrative Council office.

Music Conservatory Board Appoints Johnson Chairman

MANAGER OF METROPOLITAN OPERA

Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has accepted the post of chairman of the newly established Board of Directors of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Dr. Sidney E. Smith announced early this week.

In describing the function of this body Dr. Smith stated that the formation of the board marks the first major step in a program designed to bring about closer integration of the Conservatory and the University. Since 1919, authority over the Conservatory has been vested in the University. In recent years, however, the two educational institutions have been working together so closely in the field of musical education that it is now desirable to recognize the Conservatory as an integral part of the University.

Talent Plentiful At U.C. Musicales

A recent member of the R.C.A.F., a former jazz band director, and other U.C. music enthusiasts have been organized to represent college talent in the coming U. C. Musicales.

Members of the group include: Leonore Koppel, violinist, an ex-airwoman, and Mildred MacTavish, soprano, both new to the musical hours; A trio—Kurt Levy, cellist, Paul Serson, violin, and Ken Peacock, pianist, himself a composer and director of a jazz band; Ruth Rohrer, studying under Mona Bates for her B.M.; and Elaine Fricker and Joline Brownley, who will complete the program with piano selections.

"It is definitely important that we build up the musical side of U. C.," states Miss Mary McKellar, U.C. Directress for the W.U.A. It is hoped that the Musicales may eventually become a monthly affair, serving a definite need of the college. The first is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 9, at 8:30 in the Women's Union.

Greenland Consul Expert on Reindeer

First Canadian consul to Greenland, A. E. Forsild, now curator of Herbarium of the National Museum, Ottawa, is to give an illustrated lecture on Russia next Friday, December 7, at 5:00 p.m., in the Great Hall of the Economics Building.

Mr. Forsild, a native of Greenland, was educated in Copenhagen, and was formerly employed by the Dominion government in the exploration of the Arctic with a view to establishing reindeer herds in that area. During the war years, he was named first Canadian consul to his homeland.

RECORD HOUR

Today's program:
Brahm-Academic Festival Overture
Bach-Concerto in D Minor (2 violins)
Debussy—L. Cathedrale Engloutie
Corelli-Concerto Grosso ("Christmas Concerto")
Mozart—Symphony in G Minor No. 40.

Rumored Deceleration Plan Discussed by Dejected Dents

There is a rumor going around the Faculty of Dentistry that the course will be decelerated this year. If this is done, the students who are now in their third year will graduate in 1948, instead of 1947.

Dean Arnold Mason said that this is only a rumor and is completely unofficial. Nothing definite can be known until the faculty meets on Monday. "It is very doubtful that it will be decelerated for the present third year," Dean Mason said.

The present third year will end in the middle of February. If the course resumes its pre-war program, they will not start fourth year until September. "This would mean that we would have to find employment in March to continue to September. With the lay-offs and the return of servicemen, this will be very difficult," said Dave Boyd, III Dents.

Last spring the second year class presented a petition deploring the suggestion that the course be decelerated and it was accepted by the faculty unanimously. They guaranteed that the situation would not be charged.

There are many reasons why Dents want the wartime system maintained for this year: many students have made up their minds that they would graduate in four years, instead of five; they may have made financial arrangements that could not be stretched to five years; if they do not begin their fifth year until September 1947 they will be deprived of the experience of working on the floor with senior students, because those students will have graduated before then.

Boyd said, however, that the faculty has some good points on its side—they want to use the vacation period for a refreshing course for ex-service students. The government at Ottawa decided that all accelerated courses should be decelerated now that the emergency is over; thus the rumor has spread.

The students' spokesman is to be Doug Langmaid, V Dents, President of the Students' Parliament, who will discuss the petition with Dean Mason to-morrow. "I am fairly sure that there will be no change for the present third year," Dean Mason said last night.

Live Patients Give Dents Experience

By Bob Cooke

Dental chairs; 90 of them—all in one room.

One is bad enough; but 90—
"I don't know who was more scared at my first appointment," said dental student Al Younger, "the patient or myself."

The 90 terror-stricken chairs are part of the equipment of the Dentistry Clinic on an upper floor of the College St. Dentistry Building. Fifth year students spend most of their time there, acquiring enough experience to set up a practice immediately upon graduation.

"It wasn't as experimental as it sounds," Younger resumed the account of his first appointment. "I had had two years of drilling and filling on models. But a live patient—!

"We were supposed to start on easy cases, but I used to wonder if they weren't sending the hardest ones to beginners."

Student dentist Younger is more confident now. A technician interrupted the interview at this point to check the work he was doing on the teeth of a small girl.

"Okay," said the technician
Younger returned to his drilling. The small patient seemed seriously concerned; her small friend kept up a fascinated prying into the drawers where Younger kept his instruments.

"Dentists send any work they can't handle up here," he went on, to receive special attention from the professors. If we are scared we tell the patient it's our first extraction. It's probably his too.

"If we have to repeat a piece of work, we tell the patient he wants to get it exactly right; and they seem to enjoy being fussed over."

Usually the patients are people who can't afford regular dentist's fees; but the war-time shortage of dentists has

—STAFF PHOTO BY RALPH JONES.

The work of the Surgery at the Dental Clinic is demonstrated by Dentsman Don Copeland and Dental Nurses Phyllis McArthur and Ruth Miller, who administer gas to volunteer "patients" Allen Younger.

(Continued on page 4)

Editorial

She Stoops to Conquer

The modern career woman is commonly called a foreshadowing of the coming Utopian world where all, even women, are equal. Personally, we're from Missouri. In no Utopia could men and women be classed as equal.

Since the first man wedded the first woman, the woman's place has been in the home. When men went off to fight their wars, women stayed at home to tend the cattle and the children. When men were dictating their empires and moulding policies of their states, women polished silverware and washed diapers. When men were off golfing, women scrubbed floors and knitted little things.

Now They Want Equality

And now women want equality with men. Now women want to win wars too. They want to govern countries too. They want to play golf too.

The women of today want to be the leaders of tomorrow.

The women of today want to be the thinkers of tomorrow.

The women of today want to be the golfers of tomorrow.

What the women of today seem to forget is that they are the tomorrow of the human race. They forget that the job of washing diapers, adjusting bibs, and cleaning feeding bottles is really more important than dropping bombs, punishing crimes, and golfing. These ambitious women fail to realize that their appointed job is supremely greater than any of the paltry tasks of the male.

The Minor Male

The male only fends off the danger that threatens the life that woman gestates. The male, according to many philosophers and scientists, could be almost completely dispensed with. Why then does the woman of today seek equality with men, to whom she already holds a superior position in life? By seeking a "career" she really lowers herself. By seeking a career, she stoops to conquer.

Right now we can hear violent and piercing shrieks of denial on the part of many would-be female doctors, professors, politicians, actresses, and even theologians. These sweet protagonists of suffrage are entitled to follow whatever career their perverted inclination may choose. But they are not making the supreme use of their lives. They are not taking advantage of the gifts with which God endowed them for the specific purpose of continuing life on this planet.

Why Educate Women?

Let there be no envy squandered upon these women with the misguided ambitions. Let no woman contemplating marriage let the loss of a potential career deter her. While seeming to comply with social tradition she is really taking the first step up the ladder of real achievement.

To what end, then, a liberal education for a woman? Does she need a liberal education to keep house, to push a pram, to wash diapers? A liberal education is more important in marriage than in a career. A liberal education will help form the characters of her children. A liberal education will make her a more tolerant companion in marriage, helping this legal tie for protection of the family become for her a spiritual tie as well. A liberal education will make her a better citizen of the community. A liberally-educated woman will know why she is washing diapers.

—S. B.

LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

Campus Artists are reminded that Art Entries for The Varsity Christmas Literary Supplement will be accepted at the S.A.C. Office, Hart House, until Monday night. Entries in all other departments closed yesterday.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College MI. 6611
Business Office MI. 6321
Night Office MI. 6745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kemner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Paul Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.E.Z.
News Editor: George Forster, 476
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Assistant: Wally Belfry, 478
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 476
Assistant: Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Mickey Michael, 476
Women's Assistant: Polly Muta, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD

Night Editor: Fran Webster
Assistant: Irene Steiner

Correspondence

University-Conscious

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

Most of the students at the University of Toronto are well aware, I am sure, that theirs is the largest and best-known University in Canada. After several years of absence from college life I chose to come here to study because of this University's well-known high standards. However, I have missed so far a sense among the students of the University's being a whole rather than several colleges.

Consequently I think we could do well to take a lesson from the majority of other universities in Canada by liberalizing and expanding our student government. I remember well how students at my undergraduate university came to feel themselves a part of it through the share they took in their own government.

If we here elected part of our students' council as representatives of the whole college, if we followed the proceedings of regular council meetings in this paper, and if we had general meetings of the student body several times a year to discuss policy and instruct our council of our wishes, then, I am sure, more of the students would realize the importance of the University in their lives.

Also I think that the candidate for office should be required to make themselves and their policy known to the student body before balloting.

Finally, I would like to point out how it is now a commonplace that education should have as one of its aims the preparation of the student for life in a democracy. I submit these suggestions as a contribution towards helping to build on this campus a sense of citizenship in our University and country.

Vic Horwood

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Last week, Mr. Bettson stated the following views in a letter to The Varsity:

1.—What we did to the Canadians of Japanese ancestry is wrong, but it is still expedient and democratic to deport them.

2.—We are justified in deporting them, because parliament has voted to do so; and this is a democracy, hence rule of the majority.

Does Mr. Bettson really believe that a thief's victim should be killed and thrown into the sea, because this is more expedient than returning the stolen goods? Besides, the thief might protest!

The characteristics of a democracy are rule by the majority and tolerance of the minority. Without minority there is no democracy. If majority is a good excuse for deporting a part of the minority, let parliament go the whole hog and deport the entire opposition. Then we will have lots of room.

Many a Japanese-Canadian might have done good service to Canada if he had been permitted to do so, as many American Japanese were. The value of the American Japanese in democracy's cause has been widely applauded.

Finally, Mr. Bettson gave his letter the stamp of a liberal citation. If Mr. Bettson would read a little more of the sermon on the Mount, he would find that only a few lines from his quotation there was another which has been often called the very essence not only of Christianity, but of human ethics no matter what religion:

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men would do to you, ye do even so to them."

JOE KATZ.
II M. & P.

A. M. and D.

"Patience"
A Virtue

The Victoria College Music Club's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience is nearly all that can be expected from an amateur group. It amused the audience throughout, and since that is the obvious goal of most Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, it was decidedly successful.

Patience is among the best of the G. & S. operettas. It provides a reasonable amount for good voices as well as an abundance of slapstick. It was in the latter department that the production excelled, due mainly to the antics of Jack McAllister as Grosvenor and Don Davis as Major Murgatroyd.

Tom Pearl as Bunthorne was outstanding; his diction was plain, his acting good. The best singing was done by Mary Leuty as Jane and Marg Kerfoot as Angela.

Lois Bouck in the title role has a voice that is more than adequate for the part. But her stage business, the mainstay of G. & S., is weak, and needs to be more varied. Generally, the cast would be well advised to devise more business for the encores instead of repeating every little motion.

Another respect in which the production might be improved would be to decrease the volume of the orchestra during solos. However, in spite of these and other minor defects, the production is well paced and above all, funny. It is worth seeing.

PHILIP FREEDMAN.

GAGNIER RECITAL

It would be a decided encouragement to music students if Canadian concertgoers began to appreciate Canadian talent. In pre-war years a musician's chances of success depended upon his acquiring a European training. Fortunately, circumstances of the war necessitated a shift of musical culture from Europe to America, with New York as the natural centre. Toronto, lying in the shadow of New York, is bound to be directly stimulated. It is to be hoped that an awakened pride and interest in national musical possibilities will be a general reaction in Canada. If the smallness of the audience attending Claire Gagnier's recital is an indication of Canadian apathy, then prospects for a musical future look dim.

Claire Gagnier is a young Canadian soprano who deserves a full house. Two years ago she gained the spotlight by winning a Scholarship Award offered by the Singing Stars of Tomorrow radio program. Since that time Miss Gagnier has added concert to her many and varied radio broadcasts.

Claire Gagnier has been blessed with a sweet, flexible, coloratura voice and a charming stage presence. Her voice is extremely light, most effective in the florid, Italian arias, and better suited to radio than concert work. The outstanding selection of her program was Prock's Theme and Variations, a composition requiring fine control and purity of production. The general effect of the English group was good, although often the words were obliterated by too prominent consonants. Cecile Prefontaine played competent accompaniments.

COURT STONE.

Many people have brought forth theories about the interpretation of Finnegans Wake, and have tried to demonstrate that it means this or that. Actually all their speculations are wrong because they have failed to realize that the book is written in a code which is deciphered as follows: take the initial letter of every word, and when you join them all together you will find that Finnegans Wake is a simple five-act play written in perfectly simple basic Pass English. The cat has prepared this concise version of the story which will appear also in the last pages of next month's Readers' Digest:

RIDERS OF THE WESTERN WORLD
OR THE ABSENTEE LANDLORD
COMES HOME

(In glorious two-dimensional technocracy).

Cast: Various Irish types, a Kerry blue terrier, a broth of a boy and two spalpeens (loaned by MGM).

(The scene is laid in the Mulligans' parlour. The lights are low and there is a general air of grief and desolation. Outside the banshee can be heard sounding the last post, the Irish national anthem, and the all clear. Various bobs are sitting around sipping poteen and mending fishing nets. Finnegan is borne in on a pall.)

Murphy: 'Tis a wicked night, neither fit for man nor beast. (The door blows open, and two beasts come in in a swirl of torn paper fragments. They sit down by the fire and blow their hooves).

Mrs. Mulligan (Spitting into the fire) God bless yiz ye poor dumb baists—have a martini. (She passes them drinks. They take them without saying)

(Continued on page 4)

Now On Sale!

Linton:

Study of Man

Benham:

Economics

The

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
PRESS
BOOK DEPT.

Victoria Richmond
& VictoriaNEXT SAT. NEXT WEEK
AND ALL

Return By Popular Demand!

LONDON AND NEW YORK
COMEDY SUCCESSTHE
HASTY
HEART

BY

JOHN PATRICK

SEATS NOW SELLING!

Box Office open Daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Evenings at 8:30: $3, $2.40, $1.50, 80c

Wed. Matinee at 2:30: $1.80, $1.20, 80c

Sat. Matinee at 2:30: $2.40, $1.50, & 80c

(Tax included)

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discounts to Students and Members of the Faculty

Neilson's

JERSEY MILK CHOCOLATE

The Quality Chocolate

Evangeline

For gay warmth in winter, tie a brightly coloured wool scarf in jaunty fashion around your head... snuggle your hands into a pair of vivid, angora gloves and you'll weather the wintry winds with cheery confidence and cosy comfort. A grand idea for Christmas gifts, too.

Scarves and Squares, $1.39 to $2.50
Wool Gloves - - - $1.00 to $2.98

Do Your Christmas Shopping Early

Hart House Bulletin Board

Friday Afternoon Recital
George Haddad, young Canadian concert pianist, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. on Friday. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

Glee Club
Arrangements have been made for the members of the Glee Club to sing carols this Sunday evening, 8th December, at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bloor Street East at Jarvis. Members will meet inside the main door of the church at 6:35 p.m.

Blues Face Tough Schedule With Two Games & Wedding

Seven o'clock this evening will mark two important events. At Hart House the Varsity Blues "No 1" will be taking the floor for their encounter with Tip Tops of the City League. In another part of the city, a team member will be going through the most important step in his life. Whitey Clayton is to be married while the rest of the team carries on!

A perfect wedding present for Clayton would be two Blue victories in three nights as they tangle with University of Buffalo on Saturday evening.

While the happy groom will be missing from the line-up, ten players are on tap for the opening whistle... Scott, Mayzell, Fountain, Gibson, Himell, Hennessy, Cranham, Thomson, Zeaton and Glat. Also missing will be Doug Spry who finds Colonel Calverley of "Patience" too intriguing to leave behind and Doug Wallace who is suffering from a minor injury and is being saved for the Buffalo game.

Little is known hereabout regarding the Tip Toppers. Max Grossman on the team. Pete Titanic and Max on the team. Pete Titanic and Max Samuelly are back for another whirl. Rumor has it that Argonaut Joe Krol has been signed. Krol's appearance assures his team of one man who can chalk up points in double figures.

While there is no admission charge for tonight's game, a charge of fifty cents per head is being levied for the opportunity to view the American invaders.

The University of Buffalo team comes here with little fanfare. It has been out of the basketball picture for the past few years and in its comeback campaign, it has arranged twelve games. Five of these games are with Canadian teams and further games with McMaster and Western are scheduled.

Aerodynamics Is Series Topic

Former head of the aerodynamics section, Division of Aeronautics, Research Council of Australia, Gordon N. Patterson is opening a series of six technical lectures on "Modern High Speed Flight" in the Physics Building, Thursday, December 6, at 4:30 p.m.

Dr. Patterson is a B.Sc. graduate of the University of Alberta, and holds a Ph.D. from the University of Toronto. As officer-in-charge of the aerodynamics section, he was attached to the Research Council at Farnborough, England, during the war.

Speaking OF SPORT

Correspondence . . .

Dear Sir:

I would like to comment on the remarkable job of refereeing done in Tuesday's Art Faculty game. Unfortunately, the referee seemed to be under the delusion that it was rugby and not soccer that was being played. Even if he knew, it was doubtful whether it would have made much difference, since it looked as though he had never seen any more soccer than the casual glimpse of one of the games played on the front campus this fall.

It amazed me that for the final game of the soccer season a referee should have been chosen who knew nothing about the game except what he had read in a rule book the night before. The referee, being in P.H.E., may need experience in refereeing every type of sport, but I hardly think that a final game is the time for him to make this experiment.

Yours, although disgusted,

—M. M. FITZPATRICK, I U.C.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Advent

The month of December seems to be the month for preparations for great things. First of all comes Christmas, and the preparations take the form of mad forays in downtown emporiums. Next on the list are exams . . . we all come under this edict more or less. Then the hockey teams are buffing up new recruits . . . starting this Thursday. U.C. is to take the initial step . . . this hockey team will hold their first practice at Varsity Stadium this Thursday . . . that's today . . . between the hours of 11:30 and 12:30. The Saints follow suit on Friday, when the gathering of the hockey clan will commence at 12:15 . . . also at the Stadium.

"Nets" To You

The basketball season is going out in a pyrotechnical display . . . some might call it fireworks. One of the games you write home about was between the Vic. and P.H.E. seniors. At the end of the first quarter the score board registered 9-4 for Vic. For the remainder of the game the Phys. Ed. guard line formed a solid phalanx, only allowing Vic. forwards through for two baskets and two free shots in the last three quarters, so that the final score was 19-15 for P.H.E. The P.H.E. captain had nothing but praises for the opposing team . . . their six-line defense was powerful . . . Joan Calk and Rowena Smith were potent Vic. guards . . . Ann Smith was the high-scorer for Vic. The P.H.E. captain refused to single out any individual stars, protesting that the team in its entirety should rise and take a bow.

U.C. II defeated O.T. II by the mammoth score of 33-3. The O.T. guard line did nobly, but the forward line left much to be desired. The players insist that the coaches, Pat Austin for U.C. and Joan Christie for O.T. deserve honorable mention for their hard work this season . . . it was due to the coaches' never-failing optimism and hard work that the teams

SPORTS CALENDAR

LACROSSE Finals	5:00	Med. I	P.H.E.	Duncan, Cross
SWIM LEAGUE	4:00	U.C. I	Med. I	Moffat
		Trin B	Knox	(double pt. meet)
VOLLEYBALL	6:30	Med. Servicemen	U.C. VI	Swan
Group Playoff:	4:30	Trin. A	St.M. A	Himel
Playoffs:	1:00	Sr. Vic.	P.H.E. I	Brishin
	5:30	Sr. Med.	Knox A	Himel
	7:30	Emman B	U.C. V	Swan

INTERFACULTY HOCKEY PRACTICES

Mon., Dec. 10	4:15 - 4:45	Vic
	6:15 - 7:00	S.P.S.
	7:00 - 7:30	Dent.
Wed., Dec. 12	4:00 - 4:30	Knox
	4:30 - 5:00	U.C.
Thurs., Dec. 13	4:15 - 4:45	St. M
	4:45 - 5:15	S.P.S.
	6:30 - 7:00	Med.

VARSITY WATER POLO

Practices will be held Tuesday and Friday at 5:00 p.m., and Monday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:00 p.m. All players are requested to make every effort to be present at evening practices.

There will be a game Monday, Dec. 10th, 7:00 p.m. at Hart House.

Varsity vs. Broadview — December 10 at 7 p.m.

STANDING COMMITTEE MEETINGS

SWIMMING—Today—1:00 p.m. re Junior Meet.

BOXING and WRESTLING—Today—5:00 p.m. re Junior Meet.

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Store: 31 Bloor West, MI. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation
OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty — Have Your Date Wear One to the St. Hilda's Dance

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

U.C. FRENCH CLUB

PRESENTS

'Les Femmes Savantes'

By Molière

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Wednesday, December 12

Tickets 75c — in U.C. Rotunda 11-1; Hart House Box Office 2-4

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

LOST

Blue Lady's Parker pen, in Convocation Hall, Wed., Nov. 28th. Reward. Call JU. 4027.

LOST

Blue Waterman pen, between Household Science and Physics Bldgs., Tuesday morning. Please phone KI. 5617.

LOST

Brown Parker pen, between U.C. and Economics Bldg., Tuesday. Please leave at S.A.C. Office.

LOST

Small brown notebook, containing Political Science notes, on campus within the last week. Would finder please phone LL. 7388 or return to S.A.C. Office.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

$25 REWARD

University student (veteran) and wife (teacher), urgently require small furnished flat, north end if possible. The Varsity, Box W.

NOTICE

Anyone finding blue air force wallet, containing registration card, license, discharge slip, etc., Tues. morning in U.C., please phone N. M. Bristol, MO. 6551.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restringing. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

LOST

Identification bracelet, with American insignia, "Harry Dunn, 16177852", on back. Please phone LA. 5851.

LOST???

The answer is a Classified Ad in The Varsity. Ask at the Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House.

The Gift that Keeps on Giving

VICTOR RECORDS

Choose from popular "Smart Set" Albums . . . thrilling instrumental favorites . . . great orchestral masterpieces . . . exquisite chamber music . . .

and beloved songs and operatic arias — by the world's greatest artists! Here are a few suggestions . . . for many others see your Victor Record dealer.

FOR Sister and Brother

"FATS" WALLER FAVORITES — "Fats" Waller and his Rhythm ALBUM P-151 . . . Price $3.50

PORGY AND BESS (Gershwin) — Charlie Spivak and his Orch. SHOWPIECE SP-6 . . . Price $1.75

A DUKE ELLINGTON PANORAMA — Duke Ellington and his Famous Orchestra — ALBUM P-138 . . . Price $3.50

FOR THE Children

THREE BILLY GOATS GRUFF ANSWER THREE QUESTIONS, IF YOU CAN Told by Gudrun Thorne-Thomsen — CONTAINER Y-8 . . . Price 50c

DRAMATIZED FAIRY TALES — Milton Cross with the Cast from "The Lady Next Door" — CONTAINER BC-4 . . . Price $1.50

NUTCRACKER SUITE (Tschalkowsky) — Leopold Stokowski — Philadelphia Orchestra — ALBUM DM-265 . . . Price $4.80

SEE YOUR VICTOR RECORD DEALER Today!

FOR Father

TRIO No. 1 IN B FLAT MAJOR (Schubert) Rubinstein—Heifetz—Fleischer—ALBUM DM-923 . . . Price $6.15

SYMPHONY No. 5 IN C MINOR (Beethoven) Arturo Toscanini—NBC Symphony Orchestra ALBUM DM-640 . . . Price $6.15

MUSIC FROM "CARMEN" (Bizet) — Leopold Stokowski—New York Symphony Orchestra — ALBUM DM-1002 . . . Price $6.15

FOR Mother

CONCERTO IN F (Gershwin) Piano—Jesus Maria Sanromá with Arthur Fiedler—Boston "Pops" Orch.—ALBUM DM-690 . . . Price $5.80

LES SYLPHIDES BALLET (Chopin) — Malcolm Sargent—London Philharmonic Orch.—ALBUM DM-306 . . . Price $4.80

MUSICAL SHOW HITS Gladys Suaribout—ALBUM M-935. Price $4.75

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ARTISTS ARE ON

VICTOR

Make a Record Today!

RECORDS

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

REMEMBER?

WRITERS' CRAMP? It can be pretty vicious with a raft of exams to write when the muscles in your right hand gang up and refuse to work. (Can't tell that to the prof. as an alibi for a low mark even if it's as true as the day is light.) One solution and the best one we can think of is to keep a bottle of Sloan's around. Sloan's does wonders for sprained or over-worked muscles, relieves tension, brings circulation to the area where it's most needed to drive away the numbing pain. Sloan's Liniment is the liniment which has won top honours on its greater efficiency, greater pain-easing effect, quicker action.

MEMO... when holidaying relatives spend a few days in town for a mid-seasonal shopping spree, we suggest that you direct them to Joan Rigby's if they are looking for the sort of clothes which are intended to stay with them for many a comfortable day. Joan Rigby clothes are very definitely clothes with a purpose, that purpose being to maintain as high a designing standard for Canadian clothes as is maintained anywhere in the world. Tweeds, tailormades, formal afternoon and evening wear, simple daytime dressmaker styles, they all have one quality in common at Joan Rigby's... they are of superb workmanship and design.

BLACK MAGIC THROUGHOUT THE EVENING... swirling and dancing at the formal holiday party. This very simple finery in black crepe is just ideal for "that evening dress you have been looking for" with cape sleeves, sweetheart neckline trimmed with sparkling sequins, the skirt plain with long lines and that nice swing for dancing. There are others just as attractive in blues, tea rose, pink, soft greens. So it is going to be easy to be dressed for the occasion. After concentrating on dresses, turn towards what to wear with the dress of the night, perhaps one of those well-styled Northway fur coats; have a look at 'em anyway...

BEFORE YOU GO WANDERING hither and you with that dazed look in your eye which indicates the festive season is approaching too quickly for your budget to adequately service, we beg you to remember that an Evangeline Shop gift for a girl of discrimination need not set you back too far in the trade balance of your own particular spending account. Evangeline gifts, whether large or small, are chosen to be acceptable to the feminine discrimination, and a pair of gloves, a gay head scarf, a set of hankies, or costume jewelry, a blouse or an elaborate padded satin housecoat, all come from a very good family of feminine accessories if you've shopped for 'em at the Evangeline Shops, and whether it's a large gift or small, it's hall-marked "correct."

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN trying to get along... with a lady whose I.Q. (meaning of course "irresistible quotient") makes the competition tough, we advise a little strategy. Send a Richard Hudnut Three Flowers Gift Box, there's a small but acceptable one containing powder, lipstick and rouge, and others ranging in size up to the complete set of ten exquisite items. Apart from the fact that she'll "ooh" and "coo" over it, we believe that the fact she'll be using the contents every time she primp for a rival date ought to give the lady a terrific attack of conscience, huh?

HOLIDAY SHOPPING HAS ITS advantages, it also has its headaches, chief among the latter being the difficulty in finding interesting and original items before they get snapped up before your eyes. Creed's gift selections are celebrated for their quality and definitely superior design. Each article, whether it is a compact or a handbag or a piece of costume jewellery, has been selected by a celebrated fashionist who knows the sort of thing smart Toronto women travel across the border to find. We want to hand a bouquet to Mrs. Creed for her marvellous work in assembling accessory items which would be important in any great city the world over, and putting them within the reach of Bloor Street shoppers.

TIPS ON STOLLERY'S... The majority of the people reading this will either skim over it or take it in very casually. Notwithstanding the fact that the men buy their own clothes (and usually think they know all the answers,) it's smart to take the advice of the highly trained men at STOLLERY'S. If you are the reckless type, looking for a sports jacket of such brilliant hues that one must buy a bullet-proof jacket in order to keep the tribe from shooting, then let me advise you to let one of STOLLERY'S experts in men's wear take you in hand. Clothes mean as much to a man's morale as to a woman's, and money spent the right way pays dividends.

LADY ELLIS'S LINGERIE... Lingerie to a woman is like a gift of gold, she can never have too much of it. Luscious satin nighties with a little short padded satin cozy coat to match would be "the gift"; chenille bed jackets for warmth and attractiveness, pantie and slip combination can also be a very much wanted Christmas present or a more practical gift is a slip alone which is always very acceptable, a more generous gift is one of Lady Ellis's housecoats in striking colours. Your nearest Lady Ellis is 723 Yonge Street, just south of Bloor.

Champus Cat
(Continued from page 2)

a word being as they are poor dumb beasts).

Casey: (Indicating Finnegan with an empty Guinness bottle) 'Tis a terrible thing to be taken away in the prime of life—killed by an informer he wuz.

Finnegan: (Rising in his coffin) Lookit me poor arm blowed off wid a bomb! First Beast: (Half turning his head, drily) Brave talk for a daid man. (Finnegan subsides muttering)

Mary Cassidy (Suddenly) Olive just had a permanent (She displays her coiffure to the company)

Mrs. O'Toole (Striking her savagely) Stop yer wailin' woman, we've work to do. (She solemnly places another ice cube on Finnegan).

J. M. Synge: (Shouting from the room above) Louder please! C. B. de Mille: Faster!

(The tempo increases and the five blades up in the grate. Mary Cassidy puts her spinning wheel into high and begins to keen at the top of her voice. The two beasts stub their cigarettes on the coffin and begin to bombard the rest of the company with snowballs and gamma rays. Three pigs get up from underneath the table and rush outside in terror bearing an act of James II.)

(End of Act I)

JAKE.

U.N.T.D.

All UNTD ratings who have requested discharge are to report to the Ship's Office, 119 St. George Street, at their earliest opportunity.

D. A. F. Robinson
Lieut. Cmdr. (SB) RCNVR
Commanding Officer, U. N. T. D.

What's on Today

U.C. Glee Club
4:00 p.m.—Practice, in the Women's Union.

Engineering Physics Club
7:15 p.m.—Dr. Jackson will speak on "Three-Dimensional Photography" tonight at 7:15 in the west music room of Hart House.

Drill and Fill
On Live Patients

(Continued from Page 1)

sent many others to the clinic. The patient makes an appointment at the general office, the examination is carried out by a professor, and arrangements are then made with the student who is to do the work.

Besides the 90 chairs, the clinic has the appropriate complement of drills and fixtures; instruments are the property of the students. Facilities for X-Rays and manufacture of dentures are also available.

Denture-making, it seems, is a major time-consumer. One student last year had to make 17 impressions of the patient's jaw before finally getting it right.

Graduates this year, being still army men, aren't too sure of their future; but many grads are still in the school. Some Toronto dentists work at the Clinic part-time as instructors and clinicians.

PATRONIZE
OUR ADVERTISERS*Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

If you are maintaining two establishments (e.g., if your wife or dependent parent is living out of town and you are living in Toronto while at University) you may apply for an extra allowance of five dollars per week.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS

87 St. George St. M.L. 3781
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Jewish Student Fellowship

ANNOUNCE

The ANNUAL CHANUKA Party

- Chanuka Operetta
- Chanuka Gifts
- Chanuka Games

THE ORIGINAL CHANUKA CEREMONY
REFRESHMENTS DANCING

PLACE —

The Belvin, 245 College St.

DATE —

Saturday, Dec. 8th, 8:30 p.m.

PRICE —

$1.50 Per Couple

TICKETS MAY BE PURCHASED FROM J.S.F. EXECUTIVE, AND FRATERNITY AND SORORITY REPRESENTATIVES.

MASSEY HALL NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

THE FAMOUS

- ADAM -
GARNER- VLADIMIR - PADWAFIRST PIANO

QUARTET

- FRANK -
MITTLER- EDWARD - EDSON

NBC MUSICAL SENSATION!!!

$1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.00, Inc. Tax. SEATS NOW

Eugene Forsey

Research Economist, Canadian Congress of Labour

Will Speak at

4:00 TODAY

in the Women's Union at
"FULL EMPLOYMENT"

Sponsored by U. of T. C.C.F. Club
ALL WELCOME

Your Morning Mourning:

All space contracts must be signed today or tomorrow at the S.A.C. office in Hart House.

Torontonensis Editorial Board

Magazines, Good Books

and Reading Matter will be needed for Boxes for Holland

Bring YOURS to

The All-Varsity Christmas Tree, Wednesday, Dec. 12*Virginia Dare

says: "DO YOUR DREAMING IN THESE"

Pyjamas
2.98

They're sleep-time lovelies in bon-bon shades... yet sturdy enough to take plenty of sudsing... the sort of pretty-and-practical gift that every young lady likes to find waiting for her under the Christmas tree.

Small, Medium and Large. Pink,
Blue and Varied color prints 2.98

MAIL ORDERS FILLED

Send money order to Head Office, Kent
Building, Toronto. Include 10c for postage.

"Styled by Lee's"

A STORE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Virginia Dare

Powerful Varsity Rally Nips Tip Top Cage Squad

FINAL SCORE 50 TO 42

Operating in the same smooth efficient manner that carried the Blue and White to the top of former intercollegiate basketball heaps, the 1945 edition of the Varsity seniors hit on all cylinders in the second half last evening as they overran Tip Tops by a 50-42 score.

Trailing on the short end of a 20-14 count at the end of the first half, the Blues rallied under Dilworth's masterminding to count 36 points. Relying on an individual substitution routine, the Blues came through time and again with valuable baskets.

While the second half displayed excellent basketball, the opening session was the direct opposite as shots went wild and men were left uncovered. The visitors gained the lead in the first minute but baskets by Mayzell pulled the Blues on even terms and from that point it was nip and tuck with the Toppers slowly pulling into the lead.

After the rest period, two quick baskets by Murray Thomson instilled life into the Blues.

Play ranged back and forth for the better part of the next twelve minutes as the visitors' score was slowly whittled down. With seven minutes to go and the score 36-32 for the Toppers, Colin Cranham sank two set shots. That was the turning point of the game as Mayzell, Wallace and Thomson came through with successive baskets to clinch the lead and the victory.

Alongside Cranham's offensive play, stood the stellar performances of Harry Mayzell and Murray Thomson who played like twins. They shared 26 scoring points between them and looked like "the best ball hawks around."

Defensively, Wally Zeaton stood head and shoulders above his teammates. He continually broke through Tip Top plays and proved a virtual thorn in their side. His offensive play was definitely lacking. Gord Wallace, newly elected team captain, gave Zeaton a battle for defensive honors.

As far as the other side of the picture is concerned, football star Joe Krol of the Grey Cup Argonauts carried the crowd appeal. Krol made his initial appearance of the season in a basketball uniform last night and proceeded to net 14 points which tied Mayzell's 14 for the evening's scoring honors.

The small crowd in the gallery was impressed by the fact that Krol the footballer and Krol the cage star are two different people. Krol's value to a basketball team is under the basket for the payoff and he exhibited difficulty in carrying the play down the floor.

Krol's offensive burden was shared by Pete Titanic, Harry Eckler and Wilson. Defensively, Bush Young and Max Grossman stood out.

The game was one of the cleanest ever played on the Hart House floor as but six fouls were called all game and these were equally divided between the two teams.

Varsity Blues: Scott (2), Hennessy, Gibson (4), Mayzell (14), Thomson (12), Cranham (4), Zeaton (7), Wallace (2), Glat (3), Fountain and Himel (2). Total, 50.

Tip Tops: Young (2), Bacon (4), Grossman, Wilson (4), Katas (2), Titanic (6), Krol (14), Hurley, Johnson, Eckler (4), Minarsky, Moores (4), and Moore (2). Total, 42.

Edders Take Meds In Dafoe Primary

PHE outplayed and outfought a sparkless Meds quintet to cop the initial game of the Dafoe Cup finals yesterday in the big gym. The 20-15 win gives them a decided edge in the best two of three game series, and on the basis of the form displayed in yesterday's contest, they will be tough to bar from the ultimate honors.

The difference between the two teams was in the protection they afforded their respective goalies. Edmond and Robson were particularly effective defensively, providing an airtight protective ring around the PHE net. The majority of the Meds scores came on shots from well out, whereas the Medsmen repeatedly left Edders uncovered in the near vicinity of the crease. Foote especially capitalized on the situation, amassing a total of nine goals in his roving role.

The referees threatened to make a farce of the game, as they began to call things too close, and indoor lacrosse, big gym variety, a fast-moving rugged style of play makes for the best game. Either the offences lessened or the refs let up, as the second half was virtually free from penalties, and the brand of play vastly improved.

Meds, down 15-10 at the start of the last period, rapped home three quick goals to bring them within two of their rivals. PHE promptly tightened up however, and were going away from Meds at the finish.

Foote, Edmond and Drupina were the best trio for the Edders, counting nine, four and five goals respectively. McKay was outstanding for the doctors, with his smooth playmaking, using a shot that bounced at the goal crease effectively to rack up seven clean-cut scores. Nikaido got five, and Haliburton, although he missed several "sure-things" chances, scored a pair in aid of the Meds cause.

Varsity Tea

A Varsity tea for all reporters will be held Friday Dec. 14 at Wymilwood at 4.30. Every member of the Varsity Staff is requested to be present.

Months Of Boredom For Imprisoned Fliers

He looks like any other student, perhaps a little older than the average, but no different from any other freshman Chemical Engineer. But Harry Meyers spent over a year and a half in a German Prisoner of War Camp.

"It isn't a horror story," he said, describing his experience, "it's just a story of monotony and boredom." He was loath to go into details about his capture and imprisonment, sketching his story as modestly as possible.

Flight Lieutenant H.A. Meyer's plane, Halifax, was shot down in a raid over Germany in the winter of 1943-4. From the time of his capture by the Nazis until he was released in May, 1945, he was confined within the fences of a Baltic coast prisoner of War Camp. "There were ten thousand of us, American and British fliers, all within a mile of fence," said he, "but we did manage to get some recreation. The Red Cross, which was a wonderful help throughout, and the Y.M.C.A. sent us some equipment for games and at one time we had two soccer teams.

"We ate pretty well," Meyers continued; "The Germans allowed us a small food ration and weekly parcels from the Red Cross supplied the rest of our food. We had fairly anxious moments, though, when the parcels were late."

They had a small library of books supplied, once again, by the Red Cross. Have you ever loaned a book to a friend? Imagine the wear ten thousand airmen can inflict on a small library and you'll understand why the books didn't go very far.

"We couldn't keep a book very long and we didn't get much reading done," he explained. "I managed to brush up on my Upper School Chemistry, although I didn't know what course I'd be coming into." Sort of "birth of a Schoolman" idea.

The interview took place in the Drafting Room of the Schoolhouse, as Harry puzzled over a problem. In that, as well as most other respects he is now just as normal as any engineering student

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1945

No. 51

SCHOOL VOTES DOWN S.A.C. PETITION

$150 For Amsterdam From School Society

The Engineering Society last night donated a cheque for $150 to the Amsterdam University Christmas fund. It was the first announced contribution by any campus organization.

A university student who rode eight miles to lectures every morning on a bicycle completely lacking tires, then went on foot, in light oxfords and lightweight socks when the wheel let him down in mid-winter...

Students in a Dutch technical school piecing together makeshift slide rules from bits of wood and logarithm tables. University libraries burned...

Scientific equipment stolen by invading Germans... These are some random pictures from a first-hand view of war-ravaged Holland reported by Pete Kingsmill, II Civil Engineering. Kingsmill saw Holland as a Trooper with the Calgary Tank Regiment. He was there for five months, criss-crossed the country from north to south, lived with two Dutch university students for a time.

"Dutch university students are really no worse off than other Hollanders," Kingsmill told The Varsity. "Everyone in the country is suffering acutely from lack of clothing and food. The Jerries sacked the country."

Kingsmill, newly-elected secretary of the Engineering Society, has been named with Bill Daniels, III Mining, 2nd vice-president of the society, to organize the SPS drive in aid of Amsterdam University's Christmas Fund.

Meds, Dents Back Protest Against Jap Deportation

CANVASS STUDENT BODY

Spurred on by demands for definite action on the Japanese-Canadian question, the executives of Faculties of Medicine, Dentistry and Applied Science yesterday issued the results of partial canvassing recently done among the students. Medsman and Dentists are in favor of supporting the motion asking fair treatment for the 10,000 Japanese in danger of deportation. The Engineering executive voted against the motion.

Doug Langmaid, President of the Dental Students' Parliament, said that the majority of the dental students support the petition. "A poll taken of over half the students shows that 70 percent

Forsey Advocates State Ownership

"The sphere of state action and state ownership must be widened to include high and low levels of prosperity," declared Eugene Forsey before the University C.C.F. Club yesterday afternoon.

"We must have something better than alternating good and bad years," said the research director of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Dealing with the role of full employment in society, Mr. Forsey offered Sir William Beveridge's definition as "more jobs than people to fill them." The C. C. F. concept, he explained is reasonable conditions and wages in a planned, free society. The C. C. F. hopes to keep relative stability throughout all parts of the total outlay to ensure full employment.

"Private works cannot be timed to wait for private enterprise," he asserted.

Indulgence in bureaucracy to a high extent was recommended by the speaker as protection from international monopolies. Canada he termed "the happy hunting ground of monopolistic practices."

Encouragement and restriction of private enterprise dependent upon circumstances was advocated. Despite existing schemes instigation of a bureau was seen as the only means of controlling resources.

The Medical Society executives similarly voted to uphold the motion on the Japanese problem. Discussion of the subject was supplemented by leaflets issued by the S.A.C., and the motion was carried with one dissenting vote from an absent member. Petitions are being circulated through the various years to ascertain the support which the student body may give to the motion.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon, the Engineering Society Executive representative of the students of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering voted 13-3 against supporting the S.A.C. petition protesting deportation of Japanese-Canadians.

A release from the Engineering Society stated that in the past, "the Society stated that in the past, the Society petitions of any kind for or against the Government."

"The present executive," the release continues, "in its official capacity as the undergraduate governing body of S.P.S. retains this feeling but, in this case it seems that, due to pressure, it could not take a neutral attitude but must be positive or negative, and the aforementioned motion was the direct outcome."

"However, in view that, provided the Committee on Japanese-Canadian Affairs desires to seek the personal support of anyone in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, it is so entitled."

Murray McCullough, President of the Engineering Society, pointed out that this is the third time that the Japanese-Canadian question has been brought up at these meetings. Each previous time, the motion to back the S.A.C. action was defeated. The question was deferred until now because a complete representation could not be obtained.

Letter From Holland . . .

Here are some quoteworthy bits from a letter recently received by Dr. E. F. Burton, head of the Physics Department. It comes from Dr. Gorter of the University of Amsterdam, newly-adopted Varsity protégé. The extracts indicate something of the attitude of the Dutch university toward Canadians generally:

"... It was a grand sight when the eight first Canadians entered Amsterdam and we could hardly believe it... The informal behavior of your troops made them very popular at once. They also brought huge quantities of food and we could eat nearly as much as we liked!... we soon realized that we had been robbed probably more thoroughly than any other country. We have always been a rich country and it is difficult to realize how poor we are now."

"... In the last winter there was neither gas nor electricity and all experimental work (in the University) was stopped. The universities were a centre of resistance and many students were shot, others were deported to Germany and several hundreds died there. It is peculiar that though our losses in the field were small, the number of people who died through the war is calculated to be about 2.10 percent on nine million people. . . ."

French Patriot Editor Tells Of Underground

McGill Gets Decision Over Vermont Debaters

Montreal, Dec. 6.—(CUP)—McGill University debaters took a 2-1 decision over the University of Vermont in the first international contest here tonight. Debating according to U. S. rules—10-minute constructive, 5-minute speeches—out of deference to their American guests, the McGill team upheld the negative side of the resolution: That the trend toward the left in world politics is inevitable.

Sherman Raymond and Conrad Shattner represented McGill against the Vermont team of Eileen Pickett and Stanley Golden.

University Symphony

Next rehearsal for full orchestra on Saturday, December 8th, at 2 p.m. sharp, at West Hall, U.C.

Letters Club Members Hear Colleagues' Works

Members of the Modern Letters Club gave readings last night in the Women's Union of their own verse and prose—the prose in some cases being selections from novels in progress.

Jamie Reaney read poetry and some prose passages from his novel which he said that he had begun with a plot, but had "discarded it half-way through." He described the work as "an experiment of exaggerated emotions."

Editor of a French underground paper under the very nose of the Nazi censors, Georges Adams kept hope of thousands of French patriots during the war's darkest days. He related some of his experiences to French students of the University yesterday afternoon.

M. Adams, former editor of a pre-war Paris evening daily, returned from active combat duty to take over the principal underground paper on the death of its originator, Jacques de Coeur. He built it up from a single mimeographed sheet to an eight-page printed monthly with a circulation of more than 200,000.

Books of patriotic poems, pamphlets describing the execution of French patriots and events of the occupation, were also published by the group of print shop technicians working in secret.

"The writers of France, by prose and poetry, kept the ideal of liberty before the people, and at the depths of their despair it was the journalists who gave them the courage to carry on," said M. Adams. "Their contribution with their pens was as great as that of the men at the front with their tanks and guns."

He said the contributions of the French intellectuals toward victory were far greater than most people "realize."

HART HOUSE CHAPEL

Each month in Hart House Chapel, there is a service of Holy Communion on the second Sunday at 8:15 a.m. Next Sunday, Dec. 9, is the day this month. All communicant members of the Church are invited.

The Celebrant will be Rev. D. C. Candy (C. of E.).

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U. C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program: Schubert—Symphony No. 8 ("Unfinished") Liszt—Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 Beethoven—Symphony No. 6 in F Major.

King Tut's Vile Temper Break For Plastic Surgeon

You've seen pictures of the plastic surgery miracles of war medicine in Life and other magazines. Shattered faces moulded with the aid of photographs to exact replicas of the original features has become almost a commonplace accomplishment.

Motion pictures of the surgical miracles will illustrate the lecture of Dr. Stuart D. Gordon, chief plastic surgeon of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, to the Royal Canadian Institute tomorrow night. The address, on "The Story of Plastic Surgery," will be delivered in Convocation Hall at the University.

The general impression is that plastic surgery is a recent development, but Dr. Gordon plans to trace its evolution from 3000 B. C., when King Tut of Egypt beat one of his pals over the head with a club.

No specialty is separated from the general body of surgery until a sufficient group of illnesses, or similarities in technique have justified the setting apart of a special group. Plastic surgery, like all other specialties, has a long history behind it of gradual development, down through the years to the last war, following which the specialty came into its own.

Since then plastic surgery has come of age and justified itself, if only by its contribution to the care of the wounded in the second world war. Today this specialty stands firmly established as part of the art of surgery, broadened and strengthened by the trials and lessons of modern warfare.

Dr. Gordon, surgeon at the Toronto General Hospital, graduated from the University of Toronto in 1925, carried on post graduate work in Toronto for four years, and then studied for two years in London, England. Since that time he has been on the staff of the University of Toronto.

As is usual with the Saturday night lectures of the Royal Canadian Institute, "The Story of Plastic Surgery" will be open to the public.

Editorial

Parlez-vous Francais?

(Fred D. Hocniger, editor of Acta Victoriana, has contributed The Varsity's second Guest Editorial of the year, which is published below. During the year we hope to invite all campus editors and a number of other undergraduate officials to make an appearance in these columns.—Ed.)

This is a general criticism of a widespread attitude among students of this University, encouraged by a weak spot in our system of education. It concerns the teaching of French and the students' reaction to French as a language.

Let me state the point by a concrete reference: as editors of a student magazine on this campus, we were recently criticized for printing an article in French. The reason given was that, no matter its contents, it would not be looked at by the majority of students, and would appeal only to a small group with a particular knowledge of French—would thus be "undemocratic".

We realize that this criticism paints a true picture. But we would point out the peborability of the situation: Toronto University is Canada's largest and greatest university. But at this centre of learning, only a relatively small number of students master French sufficiently to be able to enjoy a French article, French being a legally-recognized language in this country and one spoken by 30-40 percent of our citizens.

A recent visitor to the University of Stockholm discovered that the majority of Swedish students were able to listen to an address in either English, French, or German. How are we to foster understanding and co-operation with French-Canadians, if even university students fail to read (not to mention speak) their tongue? The fault lies with both students and educators.

There is great need of an improvement here in our system of education, particularly university education. This brings me to a second point: it is not a secret that even our fourth year honour students in French do not possess a thorough knowledge of spoken French: in other words, the very men setting out to be high-school teachers in French feel uneasy if provoked to a conversation in that language. Their grammar is all right and they know some literature, but what about pronunciation and facility of expression?

We suggest that gradually the system of French teaching at McGill be more and more adopted. This means that all lectures in French literature be taught in French, particularly in the upper years; that all essays be written in French; that in Honour French classes, compulsory seminars or talks be given by undergraduates in French, increasingly as they advance. This would both raise the standards of our French courses, and make better teachers.

Secondly, we propose that students in all courses be required to pass an examination in moderately difficult French (translation into English) before obtaining their degree.

It is necessary for Anglo-Canadians seriously interested in the future and health of their country to be able at least to read and enjoy the language of their French-Canadian co-citizens. Students ought to take the first step in this. And it will require renewed deliberation by our French Department.

—F. D. H.

NO PAPER TUESDAY

A regular edition of The Varsity will be published Monday, Dec. 10, and the final news issue for 1945 will appear Wednesday, December 12. No paper will appear Tuesday. The Varsity Literary Supplement will be published Friday, December 14, and will contain no news or announcements of any description. All announcements, etc., must be submitted for publication in either Monday's paper or Wednesday's.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1886
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-A
University College
Business Office
Night Office

MT 6611
MT 6231
MT 8745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, B.T.E.
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, B.T.E.
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.P.H.E.
News Editor: George Forster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Assistant: Wally Beltry, 478
Feature Editor: E. Rose McLennan, 477
Assistant: Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Mickey MacIsaac, 476
Women's Assistant: Polly Mott, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Kriva, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD

Co-Editors: John K. Rooke.
Edgar Simon.

A. M. and D.

Brown Study

Last night once again it was proven that the term soprano may cover a multitude of virtues. Anne Brown who sang at Eaton Auditorium is a dramatic soprano of great power.

Of seven compositions in her first two groups, six were German art songs. The other, My Lovely Celia, in English, was the first song of the evening and is noted for that reason alone. In the lieder group however Miss Brown showed fine interpretive style, and amazingly clear diction.

My Lord It's All the Wind by Bach established the standard of the remainder of the concert, and the second Schumann composition, The Fortune Teller presented with great dramatic skill made the audience completely hers.

Air de Lia from Debussy's L'enfant Prodigue was the sole composition in the third group. The French was very well done but showed that Miss Brown was more at home in the German language.

Following the intermission Miss Brown returned with a group of English Art songs. In A Little Snowdrop Miss Brown showed an unsuspected lyrical quality while Rapunzel, a transcription of an old fairy tale, contrasted well with Requiere, an American song in which one might be tempted to find the realistic influence in music.

The final group comprised Irish and Scottish folk songs and spirituals. Miss Brown showed her lyrical range in these songs, of which Loch Lomond arranged by Edna R. Heard was outstanding.

The personal charm and grace of Anne Brown added much to a pleasant evening.

JANICE MURRAY.

RATHER UNINSPIRED

"Blessed is the nation that has no history" ... so goes the old maxim. Whether this benediction applies equally well to art exhibitions is, a moot point; but certainly there is little to say about the current show at the Art Gallery of Toronto. The Canadian Group of Painters exhibit work which in the mass is neither exciting, nor revolting, nor discouraging—it just hits a solid average. There is a roomful of non-objectives which produces the effect a roomful of non-objectives usually does; and the bulk of the collection calls forth, to me at least, little except for a few general observations. The impression of the exhibition as a whole is that of compositions all in various degrees of abstraction done in harsh, hard colors on a high tonal key.

It is rather surprising to note, I think, a rather strong element of romanticism in a great many of these works. How else can you account for so many representations of tumble-down shacks and dilapidated hamlets in general, or of the "gingerbread Gothic" houses of late Victorian times? If painting is devoted to aesthetic beauty, and modern architecture is as inspiring and intrinsically beautiful as so many aesthetic moderns claim it to be, why is it so seldom represented in painting? Or perhaps this is a facetious observation ...

Another gallery contains pictures by war artists, which include some of the best work in this exhibition. The rest of the galleries are devoted to Toronto's permanent collection of old and modern masters, including an interesting exhibition of recent acquisitions, mostly in watercolors.

All in all, the current show, while not particularly inspiring, is a good sample of contemporary Canadian art, which students could do much worse than to visit. The exhibition remains open until December 16th.

ALAN GOWANS.

and their generous contribution to I. S. S. drives are points in School's favor, but must be considered of relatively minor importance compared with the two questions on which they have chosen to cast a reactionary vote.

Unless Engineering students decide to reverse the decision of their governing body, School's attitude on social matters must stand as a blot on the record of a proud faculty.

E. SIMON, 473.

Corrections

Due to some silly little oversight, a really minor detail—we blush to mention it—of the lack of a compositor, The Varsity has printed a few mistakes in its pages lately. We're taking this opportunity to catch up with our apologies.

CORRECTION

We regret reporting Mr. Iggnutz Jones, author of the best-seller "Forever Under," as addressing the Love, Lovely Love Club on "The Essential Difference Between Co-Eds and Females." The lecturer's name is Iggnutz P. Jones.

CORRECTION

In the line-up of the All-Stars we reported Percy Itchpitztrendersky as one of the seven flying wings. He's not. He's one of the fifteen outsiders.

CORRECTION

It isn't true that the Editor of The Varsity prefaces every remark with: "Of course, officially this isn't the view of the entire University of Toronto, but —"

and CORRECTION

We wish to correct our correction of the correction that Professor Vanderbilt Pish will address the Australian Country Party Club on "The Marxist Influence on Sex Education." He spoke to them last week. Have you been inconvenienced lately?

Para los Hombres que se Afeitan Diariamente

PREPARACIÓN ESPECIAL QUE SUAVIZA LA PIEL Y ECONOMIZA TIEMPO

PARA los hombres que necesariamente tienen que afeitarse todos los días, la Crema Glider resulta inestimable: es suave ... no irrita ... no es grasienta ni aceitosa.

Para usar la Crema Glider, primero debe lavarse bien la cara con agua caliente y jabón. En seguida, espárrase rápidamente la Crema Glider usando la punta de los dedos—jamás con Brocha.

Hace tersa la piel

Al instante, la Crema Glider suaviza la piel—da instantánea tersura a las escamosidades superficiales de la piel. Permite que el filo de la hoja corte la barba a ras de la piel, sin irritarla. Ayuda a eliminar esa molestia que sienten los hombres de piel muy fina al afeitarse diariamente, les deja el cutis más suave y más limpio.

GENEROSA MUESTRA GRATIS

Obtenga un tubo de Crema Glider y pruebelo hoy mismo. Escriba por generosa muestra gratis a J. B. Williams Company (Canada) Limited Dept. 29-20 LaSalle, Montreal.

Victoria Richmond & Victoria

NEXT SAT. NEXT WEEK

Return By Popular Demand
LONDON AND NEW YORK
COMEDY SUCCESSES

THE HASTY HEART

BY JOHN PATRICK

SEATS NOW SELLING!

Box Office open Daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Evenings at 8:30: $2., $2.40, $3.00, $4.00
Wed. Matinee at 2:30: $1.50, $2.00, $2.50
Sat. Matinee at 2:30: $2.40, $3.00, $4.00 (Tax included)

Gay-go-togethers!

Give her presents that go-togethers ... like this perfect purse and belt. Both are of light tan leather, and sparkle with bright gold studs.

Simpson's
main Street Hrs.

Again ...

THRILL TO THE SATISFACTION OF COMPLETE "UP-TO-THE-MINUTE" FORMAL ATTIRE.

AT

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

571 YONGE STREET Near Wellesley Kl. 3270
256 COLLEGE STREET At Spadina Kl. 8961
Open Evenings Special Student Rates

MASSEY HALL

NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

THE FAMOUS

ADAM
GARNER

VLADIMIR
PADWA

FIRST PIANO

QUARTET

FRANK
MITTLER

EDWARD
EDSON

NBC MUSICAL SENSATION!!!

$1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3.00, Inc. Tax. SEATS NOW

The University of Toronto Liberal Association

Meets Today

IN WYMILWOOD — 4:00 P.M.

Among other matters on the program will be the election of a Vice-President. The Association is young—give it strength by your participation.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Midday Sing-Song

There will be a sing-song in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. today.

Friday Afternoon Recital

George Haddad, young Canadian concert pianist, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. today. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

Glee Club

Arrangements have been made for the members of the Glee Club to sing carols this Sunday evening, 9th December, at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bloor Street East at Jarvis. Members will meet inside the main door of the church at 6:35 p.m.

Notice to Squash Players

Commencing Monday, 10th December, 1945, the playing periods will be increased from thirty to forty minutes. This policy will be continued throughout the balance of the present term at which time the question will be reviewed.

Cage, Ice Squads To See Action

Blue Cagers Meet Bisons

The hitherto undefeated Varsity basketball Blues will face the biggest stumbling block along their path to success when they take on the University of Buffalo team in the Hart House gym Saturday evening.

Although the Buffalo team has been inactive officially for the past few years, it played four games last season, dropping but one of them. Six members of that team are back.

Twelve men are on the visiting lineup but only two of them range over six feet. Another oddity regarding the team is the lack of a single letter man on the squad.

The semi-windup of the evening's program brings together the Varsity "A" squad and West End Y.M.C.A.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

Pro and Con . . .

Sure and it's a great day for the Irish, or so the saying goes . . . Mr. Fitzpatrick comes forth with a complaint regarding soccer officiating. Up jump some half dozen soccer devotees who are ready and probably capable to do away, not only with the aforementioned M.M., but also with the entire "sports department." . . . While we do not share the author's views, we certainly do not deny him the right to voice an observation as, apparently, his critics hasten to do . . . More constructive, however, is a letter from Tom Cossitt, president of the Trinity Athletic Association. Space alone prevents a complete reproduction of Cossitt's letter . . . "On behalf of the Trinity soccer team, I would like to congratulate the referees on the splendid job they did. Messrs. Fyfe and Life not only showed they were versed in all aspects of the sport concerned, but also their performance will go far in maintaining a very high standard of refereeing in interfaculty soccer" . . . "After reading the letter, anyone who had not witnessed either game might assume that the athletic office had appointed incompetent referees. This charge must be answered as I am sure that in the opinion of all those on the campus who know anything about soccer, better choices of referees could not have been made." . . . Applause! . . . Well, Mr. Fitzpatrick?

Strong Squad Faces Icemen

Acc Bailey's senior hockey Blues are raring to follow the example set for them by their junior brethren and the basketball team. Their particular stumbling block is to be Toronto Staffords of senior O.H.A. fame. The game is billed for this evening at 8 o'clock. Admission free to students with the athletic portion of their registration card attached.

Bailey team was cut to a conventional seventeen last night. In goal is hold-over Flash Davidson and newcomer Dick Ball. On defense are Ian Hart, Bill Wade and Harvey Bain of last year's team together with Bill Doyle, Johnny Radcliffe and Ed Kryzanowski.

The first line is lifted intact from Tip Tops of the Varsity League—Gord Ball centering Wally Halder and Bob Harry Johnson, Frank Rutledge and Kossick and Jim Brofley on the second line while the "kid" line is composed of Harry Johnson, Frank Rutledge and Dave Bauer.

The team threatens to go all out this evening in order to prove to the skeptics that they are also of senior "A" calibre and not lower.

Red Horner brings his team to Varsity Arena fresh from a 8-3 victory over Hamilton Pats. Among players on his roster are Jackie McLean, Morman, George Mara and Sydney Smith.

Ring, Swim Prelims Slated For Next Week

The preliminaries of the Junior Interfaculty Boxing and Wrestling Tournaments will be run off next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in the boxing and wrestling rooms of the Athletic Wing, starting each night at five o'clock. Entries for both competitions close Monday at five.

The Junior Swim Meet preliminaries will be held next Thursday at five, with entries closing Tuesday at five.

The finals in each of these three departments are slated for Friday, Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. The boxing and wrestling events will be moved into the big gym for the evening.

SPORTS NOTICE

BASKETBALL

All members of the Varsity senior and "A" teams are asked to report to the practice this evening at 5 p.m.

LOST

One compositor. Please communicate with Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Editors.

LOST

Monday night, between Mac's and St. George St., wallet containing registration card, discharge papers, Finder phone W. A. Inch, KI. 1494.

LOST

On University grounds, pearl necklace, Wednesday afternoon. Finder please return to S.A.C. Office.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

SPORTS CALENDAR

SWIM LEAGUE	5:00	Pre-Med For. Vic.	Dent. Trin. B U.C. II	Marshall, Moffat
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	For. B	Med. Servicemen	Cooke (if necessary.)
	4:00	Jr. U.C.	Trin. A or St.M. A	Brislin
	6:30	II SPS	Vic. III	Lyons

SWIM LEAGUE PLAYOFFS

Tues., Dec. 11	Group playoffs: 5:00	Pre-Me For. Vic.	Dent. Marshall, Moffat
			Trin. B (if necessary)
			U.C. II
Mon., Dec. 10	5:00	SPS. IV	Pre-Med. Beer, Burt-Gerrans
			For. or Dent. Trin. B
Tues., Dec. 11	Semi-finals: 5:15	Jr. SPS	Moffat, Burt-Gerrans
Wed., Dec. 12	Final: 5:00		Moffat, Burt-Gerrans

JUNIOR SWIM MEET

Entries Close at Athletic Office—Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 5 p.m. Eligibility Certificates must be signed at time of entry.

PRELIMINARY HEATS—Thursday, Dec. 13, at 4 p.m.

Watch "The Varsity" for Time Schedule.

FINALS—Friday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

This is a meet for novices and freshmen. Sr. Interfaculty winners are ineligible. For list of events, entry and further information, apply at the Athletic Office, Hart House.

VARSITY WATER POLO

Practices will be held Tuesday and Friday at 5:00 p.m., and Monday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:00 p.m. All players are requested to make every effort to be present at evening practices.

There will be a game Monday, Dec. 10th, 7:00 p.m. at Hart House.

Varsity vs. Broadview — December 10 at 7 p.m.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Muts

Though Not The Most

Appropriate time of the year to indulge in the fine sport of swimming, thirteen girls from U.C. volunteered to dunk themselves in water for the sake of their colors. While the rest of the population of Toronto buried their persons in furs, these mermaids donned swim-suits, took deep breaths, and proceeded to show the calibre of their swimming.

Miss Baxter, Barbara Hinchcliffe and Pat Patterson acted as judges . . . awarding first and second places in the back stroke race to Elizabeth Holmes and Diana Lowe, respectively. Marg Dale reached the ribbon first in the breast stroke race, with Elizabeth Holmes not far behind. Marg was also the winner of the freestyle swimming; Elizabeth maintained her position as second. In the ornamental swimming competition Marg Dale again distinguished herself, and was awarded top honors, Anne Spence receiving next best. The judges agreed that Judy McEvel possessed the best swimming style; then came Anne Spence. Naomi Bristol floated the longest distance in the long plunge, Chris Zumstein at her heels.

A tragedy in the form of a broken diving board curtailed the diving competitions. Aside from this disturbance, the competitors agreed that they dared to hope now for a good showing in both the interfaculty and intercollegiate meets, if one is allowed to judge from such an exhibition as just described . . . and we grant you that one can.

ABERDEEN'S FLORAL STORES

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., M1. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation

OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty—Have your Date Wear One to the Whitney Hall Formal

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

smoke the mild
cigarette

this is the Branch Bank where Jack keeps his money—so he does not have to keep his savings at home with the danger of loss, fire, or theft, and can pay bills safely and conveniently by cheque.

this is the Teller in a branch of a different bank in another city, who made sure that the man who presented the cheque was really the man Jack intended to pay. Then the amount of the cheque was added to that man's deposit account.

this is the Clearing House maintained by the banks so that customers' cheques can be exchanged and the banks can settle their accounts with one another every day. From here, Jack's cheque was sent to the clearing department of his own bank, and from there to the branch where Jack keeps his account.

this is the Ledger-Keeper who made sure that the signature was really Jack's. Then he debited Jack's account. The amount is entered in Jack's passbook next time he comes in, so he always knows exactly where he stands.

This is a sketchy outline of what happens when you pay an out-of-town bill by cheque. Many people pay their large local bills that way too. To be able to pay by cheque is a tremendous convenience which costs you little or nothing. Banks are the bookkeepers for millions of our fellow-Canadians.

This Advertisement is Sponsored by your Bank

JOHN COWAN and BILL HEMMERICK present:

The Post-Christmas Carousel

with ELLIS McLINTOCK AND ORCHESTRA

At CASA LOMA

$100.00 in Prizes

Thursday, December 27th

LIMITED TICKETS AVAILABLE
$2.00 PER COUPLE

FOR PIPE SMOKERS OF DISCRIMINATING TASTE

GOLDSTEIN'S PERIQUE MIXTURE

The Same Old Formula Since 1883

A high-grade blend of Turkish, Perique, Virginia and Latakia Tobacco, approximating those excellent imported brands made in Scotland and England.

Every user of it is an ardent advocate of its merits.

Its popularity is growing fast. You cannot pay less and get as good; you cannot buy better if you pay more.

For the present it is packed in a heavy waxed bag, in a cardboard container. It keeps in excellent condition.

It is put up in half pounds and sells at $1.50, plus tax; and also in a pocket package containing 1/10 lb. at 30 cents, plus tax.

WM. GOLDSTEIN & CO.152 YONGE STREET
Toronto52 SPARKS STREET
OttawaCity Churches*KNOX CHURCH
Spadina and HarbordSACRAMENT SUNDAY

11 a.m.:

"The New Society."

7 p.m.:

"The Crisis of the World."
Students Specially Invited
By Rev. Prof. Robert Lennox
M.A., Th.B.
Professor, Presbyterian College,
Montreal.

Students Specially Invited

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITYTrinity Square
(Off Yonge, 2 below Dundas)

Invites students to join with us
in services that combine beauty
of worship with progressive
Christian action

Regular Sunday services at 8, 9.30, and 11 a.m., and at 7 p.m.Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter
D.D., LL.D.

Fireside hour at close of
Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

BLOOR STREET
UNITED CHURCH

Corner Bloor and Huron Streets

11 a.m.

Rev. Geo. C. Pidgeon,
D.D.

7 p.m.

Rev. Preston MacLeod
M.A.

Sermon:

"THE LIGHT THAT SHINETH IN DARKNESS"

8.15 p.m.—Friendship Hour.

FREDERICK C. SILVESTER
Organist and ChoirmasterSTUDENTS SPECIALLY WELCOMEGO TO YOUR CHURCH ON SUNDAY*THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)MEETING FOR WORSHIP
on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

AT THE

Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"There is a spiritual darkness, the clouded and benighted understandings of men through disobedience to the Light and Spirit of God."
WILLIAM PENN

CHRISTIAN SCIENCEFirst Church of Christ, Scientist
St. George St. at Lowther Ave.

Branch of The Mother Church
The First Church of Christ,
Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL
11 a.m.

Sunday, December 8th

"GOD THE ONLY CAUSE AND CREATOR"*Wed. Evening Meeting

at 8.00 o'clock

including Testimonies of Healing
through Christian Science.

Free Public Reading Room where
the Bible and Authorized Christian
Science Literature may be read,
borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Bloor Street East

Rector:

REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

YOUTH SUNDAY

8 a.m.—Holy Communion

11 a.m.—Morning Prayer

Preacher—

The Rt. Rev. W. C. White, D.D.
(Returning to Honan, China)

3 p.m.—Bible Classes

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer

Preacher—The Rector

A Gallery Choir, the Hart House
Glee Club, will sing Christmas
Carols, under the direction of Dr.
Charles Peaker, F.R.C.O., Conductor.

Organist:

Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University Students Welcome at
All ServicesCanadian Campus*Politics--Lesson One

By Dorothy Harley

Reports reaching Canadian Campus on this week's topic—students government—demonstrated that Universities provide a training ground for future citizens. Every college answering this week's query stated that there was some form of responsible students council on their campus. In nearly all cases interest is keen.

The majority of camp elections are held in the spring, the successful candidates taking office the following fall.

At Queen's each faculty elects two representatives who together with the president of each faculty, automatically a member, make up the Alma Mater society. This body has a permanent secretary treasurer. The president and vice-president are selected from four incoming senior representatives by an electoral college composed of the retiring president and senior representative and the incoming junior representative.

Student government at Mount Allison is in the hands of the Student Union, officers being president, vice-president, and secretary. The president, a man, and the vice-president, a woman, are elected from the senior class. The secretary is a junior.

McGill has two governing student bodies, the Students' Executive Council and the Women's Union. All women come under the jurisdiction of the Women's Union but the Executive Council is supreme. The Executive Council is scheduled to meet every second Wednesday but for the past few weeks has held meetings weekly. These culminated in a six hour session last Saturday when constitutional changes for the McGill Students' Society were considered.

Association Generale des Etudiants de L'Universite de Montreal, usually called the A. G. E. U. M. is the University of Montreal's student body The president is elected from a different faculty each year. Students are trying to change a rule by which only the members of the faculty from which the new president is to be chosen may vote. The president is assisted by the usual committee.

The Students' Administrative council at the University of Toronto is composed of the student heads of all faculties. As in the University of New Brunswick major campus organizations are represented.

U.C. Musicales

Following is the program outlined for the U. C. Musicales to be held in the Women's Union this Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

1. The Sea Palmgren
Prelude No. 2 Gershwin
Intermezzo Lechitzky
Elaine Fricker

2. Andante Movement, violin concerto, Mendelssohn
Serenade Espagnole Chaminade-
Kreisler
Leonore Koppel

3. Polonaise Chopin
Joline Brownlye

4. Piano Trio No. 3 in B flat
Opus 11 Beethoven

Paul Serson, Kurt Levy, Ken
Peacock

5. Kashmiri Love Song Amy
Wood-Finden

By the Waters of the Minnetonka Thurlow Lieutenant

Mildred MacTavish
Siloti

6. Organ Prelude in G Minor Bach-
Siloti

Polonaise McDowell.

Ruth Rohrer

Friday Afternoon Recital

George Haddad, pianist, will play the following programme at the recital in the music room of Hart
House at 5 p.m. today:

Bach Siciliano.
Fantasy in C minor.

Beethoven Sonata, opus 53 (Waldstein).

Chopin Valse, A flat, opus 42.

Nocturne, C sharp minor.

Etude opus 10, No. 12.

Etude, opus 10, No. 3.

Polonaise, A flat, opus 53.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

If you are maintaining two establishments (e.g., if your wife or dependent parent is living out of town and you are living in Toronto while at University) you may apply for an extra allowance of five dollars per week.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS

57 St. George St. ML 3791

Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses

filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discount to Students and Members of the FacultyU. C. FRENCH CLUB

PRESENTS

'Les Femmes Savantes'

By Molière

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Wednesday, December 12

Tickets 75c — in U.C. Rotunda 11-1; Hart House Box Office 2-4

Keep it DARK

Charcoal black for your dancing loveliness... in rayon covered cotton ben-galine as smooth as a waltz! It's elegantly simple ... with long winged sleeves, a wisp of bustle back, and studded colour to sparkle at your waist and neckline. Sizes 9 to 15 included.

Each... 16.95

Main Store—Fourth Floor

EATON'SMoney! Sugar! Books!

ARE NEEDED FOR

PARCELS FOR HOLLAND

Leave these at the booth in your Faculty or College — and BE AT THE

All-Varsity Christmas Tree

FRONT CAMPUS, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12

WAXIE SAYS --

Don't be an "Ick";
Take it from St. Nick.
This year... put your Christmas Gift on Record.
Everything from Art Tatum to Art Toscanini is available at "The House of Music."

The Campus

RECORD BAR

658 SPADINA AVE.

at Harbord

RA. 3636

LET US PUT GOOD WAX IN YOUR EAR

Listen to

"Canada in the Modern World"

by Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph.D.

Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB -- Every Sunday—2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

WALMER ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH
(1 block west of Spadina Rd.—block north of Bloor)Rev. Adiel J. Moncrief, D.D.
MINISTER

11 a.m.: "THEY THAT WORSHIP GOD"

7 p.m.: "HOW JESUS USED LIFE"

8:15 p.m.: Young People's Discussion:

"WHAT SHALL WE DO WITH THE DEFEATED."

YOU WILL ENJOY THE YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Immediately following the Morning Service (12.10-1 p.m.)

MR. CHARLES RICKETTS, Guest Teacher

ERIC FEE, President WM. BUCK, Pianist

A Friendly Church Where A Warm Welcome Awaits You

VIC STUDENTS - VOTE TODAY!

Vic Chicks Seek Sweets

PHOTO BY GRAHAM MCHATTIE

Pictured above are the four featured attractions in Victoria College's two-day drive to collect contributions for the purchase of food parcels for the students of Amsterdam University. From left to right: Bobs Ewing, Jean Nethercott, Barbara Richardson and Janie Dunbar.

All Colleges To Collect Gifts For Needy Netherlanders

STRESS CO-OPERATION

The year's biggest campus co-operative movement to date, the three-day drive to brighten the Christmas of Amsterdam University opened to-day.

Until Wednesday's closing program (outlined in the upper right-hand corner of this page), responsibility for the drive's success rests entirely with the colleges and their representatives. Each college and faculty is conducting its own collecting campaign, publicity and packing arrangements. Central Committee for the campaign announces that this is done in an effort to make this a more personal matter between Amsterdam and the University of Toronto, partially an attempt to repay the kindnesses shown by Netherlanders to Canadians fighting in that region.

Donation booths have been erected in all colleges and faculty buildings, and in prominent locations such as Hart House. Also on display are sample boxes illustrating the purpose contributions will serve.

Mass quantity shopping will provide the goods such as food and books; students are asked to contribute money to make possible such shopping. Sugar, which cannot be purchased without coupons, is to be asked of student donors, either loaf sugar or actual ration books.

The Netherlands is reported to be badly in need of sugar, salt, pins and needles, and pocket-sized books by good authors.

Medsmen Choose Executive Officers

Medical students voted last Friday in Hart House Theatre for the year's executive officers, and J. E. McBinnie, III, was elected President of the Medical Society. The Women's Undergraduate Association chose Pat Armstrong, III, as its president.

The full list of officers elected is as follows:

For the Medical Society: Vice-President, Pete Heywood, II; Treasurer, Art Chisholm, I; Secretary, Pete Stevens, Servicemen's year; Chairman C.A.M.S.I., R. B. Salter, III; Vice-chairman C.A.M.S.I., Dorothy Ley, II; Secretary-treasurer, Ross Dobson, I.

For the Medical Athletic Association: President, John W. Hazlett, III; Secretary-treasurer, Jim Smith, I; Publicity Manager, Don Campbell, II.

For the Medical Women's Undergraduate Association: Vice-president, Billy Train, II; Treasurer, Barbara McKinnon, I; Secretary, Pat Boyd, Servicemen's year; C.A.M.S.I. Rep., Mice McKee, III.

For the Medical Women's Athletic Association: President, Jean McPherson, II; Vice-president, Dorothy Ley, II; Treasurer, Joy MacKinnon, I; Secretary, Lois Loyd, I.

Date For Dinner In Hart House Hall

For many years the Warden of Hart House has entertained members of Hart House who are unable to return home during the Christmas vacation. The tradition will be continued this year with a dinner in the Great Hall on Thursday, December 20.

According to an announcement from the office of Warden J. B. Bickersteth, it will be necessary to restrict this year's dinner to undergraduates because of the increased enrolment.

Any member who is eligible to attend should come to the Warden's office as soon as possible and secure his ticket as it is essential that the Dining Hall Department know at an early date the number of men who will be present.

Any eligible undergraduate should regard this notice as his invitation.

'Sheaf' Sends News To Western Cities

Saskatoon Dec. 8.—(CUP)—An extra issue of the Sheaf, student newspaper at the University of Saskatchewan, was published to-day protesting the threatened "violation of minority rights which will occur if Bill 15, giving power to the Governor in Council to authorize 'entry into Canada, exclusion and deportation and revocation of nationality' passes the third reading in the House of Commons."

Copies of the special issue flooded Regina and Saskatoon. The Winnipeg Free Press, quoting from the Sheaf extra, criticized the government for laxity in informing Canadians of the implications of the revocation bill which owed its origin to the Japanese-Canadian problem.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1945

No. 52

SUPPORT THE AMSTERDAM APPEAL

University Liberal Club Plans Forum With All Political Sects

Joint meetings of all campus political factions at which the various political policies could be discussed were proposed at Friday's meeting of the University Liberal Association.

The scheme, proposed by President George Ness of the Liberal Association, calls for participation of the four clubs which represent the major Canadian parties—Liberal, Progressive Conservative, C.C.F., and Labor-Progressive. Each club would send a speaker to outline the policy of his club. The entire student body would be invited to participate in the ensuing discussion.

United Engineers Needed In Future

"Your success as an engineer will depend on sticking to one field so that your experience will be cumulative," said Brigadier R. E. Smythe, director of the Technical Service Council.

"In this day of the increasing power of trade unions engineers feel that they must have some organization which will be recognized as a collective bargaining agency," said Tom Darbie, representative of the Federation of Employee Professional Engineers and Assistants.

These were the main points stressed in a panel discussion at the joint meeting of the Junior and Student Branches of the American Association of Mechanical Engineers Thursday night.

Brigadier Smythe outlined the work that was being done by the Technical Council in matching engineers seeking employment to the needs of industry. The Council serves as a means for the undergraduate to contact some of the smaller industries which would be willing to employ him.

The other speakers described the work which the organizations they represented were doing in trying to improve the situation of engineers as a group. G. R. Lord, vice-president of the Association of Professional Engineers of the Province of Ontario, said that the Association was seeking to graduate jobs by the experience needed and the ability involved as a means of obtaining an even scale of wages in all industries. The present delinquent in the Province of Ontario, to which the Association has made representation. The provincial government pays men much lower salaries than does industry for comparable work.

Tom Denbie described the reason for the creation of The Federation of Employee Professional Engineers and Assistants which act as a recognized collective bargaining agent for employee engineers. The Federation had to be formed as no professional organization previously in existence would qualify for this function under government regulations.

Mr. Winfield, of the Student Survey Committee of the Engineering Institute of Canada presented a report of a survey on the salaries of graduates.

STUDENTS' HANDBOOKS

A number of Students' Handbooks, 1945-46 edition, are now available in the Students' Administrative Council office in Hart House for students who may not have received them at the start of the term. Present registration card.

Campaign Ends Wednesday With Fast-Moving Program

SIEGEL AND HARRON TEAM

The All-Varsity Christmas Party, a fast-moving, loud laughing program on the little island south of the front campus, will terminate the three-day drive for "adopted" Amsterdam University Wednesday at one o'clock.

"Best bit of university humour since Schuster and Wayne turned professional," is predicted by the Program Committee when top campus comedians Alex Siegel and Don Harron "ad lib" their way through the 45-minute program. Victoria's Harron, bulwark of many a Bobession, should click with U.C.'s Siegel of funny Follies fame. Said Don, "Although you have to be in the mood to ad lib, when you're working with a man like Al there's a certain feeling between you that does it."

Santa Sends Reply To 'Varsity' Query

North Pole—(CUP)—Following is text of a telegram received from The Varsity's North Pole office in the wee small hours of the night from S. Claus, who was invited to attend the Varsity Christmas Tea to be held in Wymilwood the end of next week.

"DELIGHTED TO ATTEND VARSITY TEA STOP ALWAYS WANTED TO BE A NEWSPAPERMAN MYSELF STOP LOOKING FORWARD TO MEETING A BUNCH OF REAL NEWS HOUNDS AND HOUNDESSES STOP GOSH IT'S COLD HERE STOP LOVE AND KISSES STOP S. CLAUS."

The Varsity extends a cordial invitation to all reporters and interested parties to be on hand to greet the distinguished visitor.

Blues Beat Bisons In Cage Exhibition

The Big Blues, rolling along on an unbeaten path, were a basketball facsimile of a hurricane Saturday evening as they roared through their first peacetime American opponent with a 91-11 victory over University of Buffalo's overmatched and overpowered young squad before a disappointingly small crowd at Hart House.

Although the 80-point margin indicates the trouncing suffered by the Bisons, the tilt was even more one-sided than the score. The outclassed visitors were, at times, comparable to an intramural quintet and it took them exactly twenty-one minutes of play to net their first field goal. It took them the entire game to count a grand total of two baskets. The other seven points were picked up through the medium of foul shots. They had but 21 shots at the Varsity hoop.

The 91-point game and the 35 points counted by the Blues in the third quarter sent officials hurrying through record books. It was believed generally that these scores set new unofficial university records. Another record was the Varsity shooting mark of 44 baskets of 63 shots a percentage of seventy, well above the miraculous.

Roy Dilworth's starting lineup of Murray Thomson, Colin Cranham, Harry Mayzell, Gord Wallace and Wally Zeaton had been on the floor but thirteen seconds when Thomson's shot from under the basket went through the hoop. From that point on the winners were never headed as they came through at will.

The Buffalo attack wilted early in this quarter as the zone defense thrown up by the Blues proved to be more than a puzzle. The three Buffalo counters were chalked up on fouls as the over-anxious Varsity-ites caught the eyes of the referees. First quarter score was 20-3.

The second edition proved to be a direct replica of the first and even more so as the Blues ran in 24 points while

Hindus Inventors Of Plastic Noses

In spite of the use of incantations and charms, some of the ancients developed plastic surgery treatments which are still in use. Some of them were described to members of the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall Saturday night by Col. Stuart Gordon, M. B., Chief Plastic Surgeon of the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

The ancients, he said, did some wonderful work in repairing superficial deformities. The Hindus, 5000 years ago, found a method of developing a new nose, a technique which is still being used under the name of the Indian method.

Col. Gordon showed movies showing the origin of some plastic surgery techniques and their modern applications. In most of the cases illustrated a flap of skin was raised on another part of the body and the free end attached to the injury. After a blood supply was assured the flap was cut free from its original position and trimmed to the desired shape.

Herbert H. Lank, of Canadian Industries Ltd., will give the next lecture in the current R.C.I. series next Saturday, "How's Your Imagination" will be the subject.

holding the bewildered visitors to a single marker.

With the score 44-4 against them, the Bisons started the half out with their most blistering attack of the night. It resulted in a basket by Keller. After three or more wild shots which landed nowhere near the hoop, the attack bogged down and the Blues took over. When the smoke of the quarter had cleared away, the scoreboard in the corner carried the figures: Varsity 9, Buffalo 7. Apparently the originators of the board had underestimated the scoring power of Varsity cage teams and had failed to provide a number over 70.

The final ten minutes were a repetition of the preceding three periods as the home five took time out for a shooting practice. Shots from all sections of the floor rained upon the twice and it was only the final whistle that saved

(Continued on page 3)

Purdue Ponders Education vs. Draft

INDIANA, U.S.A., Dec. 4. (C.U.P.)

—Three times yearly Purdue University sends a questionnaire, planned by faculty members, to subscribing high schools throughout the United States. The questions are of political, social or educational importance, usually concerned with current problems.

The results of the poll are a source of reference for educational authorities and Parent Teacher Associations. Recently the War Department has become interested, hoping to use information collected from the surveys as a means of re-educating the German youth.

The latest survey question was, "If they cost the same amount would you prefer compulsory military training or spending the money on the improvement of education?" The results showed 61 percent wanted the improvement in education; 31 percent desired the military training and three percent were indifferent. The questionnaires often pose 15 to 20 queries at one time.

Varsity Band

Special practice for Varsity Band, Tuesday, Dec. 11, Drill Hall, for All Varsity Christmas Tree Ceremony on Wednesday. This will be the last practice until January 8th.

Editorial

A Misunderstanding

The Varsity regrets an unfortunate series of accidents in Friday's paper which contributed to the impression that we are fighting the Engineering Society's recent decision regarding the Japanese-Canadian question with the worst weapons of yellow journalism. We owe it to our south-campus friends to clear ourselves of the charge of sniping from the underbrush. If we are going to disagree, we shall do it openly and in these columns.

Crux of the dispute was a letter in our correspondence columns from Mr. E. Simon, a graduate of the class of 4T3. Mr. Simon's name also appeared in an adjoining column as co-editor for the night, and it is alleged that he used his position as night editor to sneak a letter into the paper, and to bring his letter up to date with facts not accessible to the ordinary student until next morning.

We agree that the total impression is unfortunate: but in fairness to ourselves and to Mr. Simon, we must insist that he and we acted acted in good faith. Mr. Simon's letter was written two days before, when after a month no word had been received from School on the subject. Realizing the shortness of time before publication of The Varsity ceased for the term, he brought his letter to the Press Thursday night. There, he learned that the Engineering Society had acted in the interim; and by changing a few words brought his letter up to date. He made no substantial additions; the opinions he expressed were his own; and we do not think that The Varsity is in any way involved, or that its facilities were in any way misused.

Later in the evening, Mr. Simon, who three years ago was a Varsity staff member, agreed to solve a temporary staff crisis by helping the night editor. This he did as a private citizen, not as a staff member; just as he wrote his letter as a private citizen.

We apologize to the engineers, and others who have been upset by our apparent partiality, for an unfortunate impression. We repeat that there was no conspiracy on our part to misrepresent their doings or their views; nor any attempt on Mr. Simon's part to abuse his familiarity with the workings of The Varsity. Chance alone is to blame.

Finally, a slip of the compositor's hand rendered illegible the most important paragraph in the main front-page story, and left the Engineering Society without a coherent published explanation for its action in voting against organized support of the petition. In fairness to the Engineering Society, we should explain that their policy in the past has been to refuse to meddle in petitions of any kind for or against the government, and that their vote against support of this petition was due to this policy and not necessarily to any conviction that the Japanese-Canadians should be deported. The Society stressed that individual engineers were perfectly entitled to support the petition; but as a matter of policy they kept hands off as a Society.

Art, Music and Drama

A Little Of Everything

A flood of concerts, advertising and letters to the editor has forced the following reviews to take on a much condensed form. We apologize to anyone who has been overlooked.—Ed.

U.C. Musicale

University College at last is beginning to take part in campus musical activity. The musicale given last night by students of the college was a step towards more active participation.

Not even U.C. students will claim that the musicale produced anything of a professional calibre. Yet in one respect it was more commendable than some of the recitals given by more accomplished student artists. It was a pleasure to find a student recital in which virtuoso pieces were practically neglected and the emphasis put on worthwhile music. U.C. can become a leader in campus musical life by following their own example in choosing programs.

Other good examples to follow would be the performance last night of Beethoven's Op. 11 Trio by Paul Serson, Kurt Levy and Kenneth Peacock, and Ruth Roher's playing of the Prelude in G minor by Bach. —P. F.

George Haddad

Members of Hart House were treated to a very fine program Friday afternoon when George Haddad, young Canadian pianist, gave a recital of classical works. The most interesting performance was that of Beethoven's Waldstein Sonata, which was very much like Schnabel's interpretation, that is, very much like Beethoven.

Mr. Haddad's performance of the Bach and Chopin was quite good. —P. F.

The Hasty Heart

The Hasty Heart, a fine play by John Patrick, has already been reviewed in this column. However, it is being staged by a different company at the Victoria Theatre this week and a few words about it may not be amiss.

The script is warm and tender, and it is handled sympathetically by an adequate cast. Paul Anderson in the major role is perhaps a bit too surly in the first act, but otherwise he does an excellent job.

The play itself is a beautiful thing and all but the arch cynic will enjoy it. —P. F.

Correspondence

Schoolmen Protest

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Regarding those contrary engineers in The Varsity issue of the 7th, isn't it strange how they can be so reactionary when they've usually had some experience with industry and labor in the world outside? It must be provoking for an Artsman, say, to have to tell them to apply the scientific outlook to political affairs.

Instead of calling for enough government bureaucrats to give all of us our modern progress and security with the morning mail, and demonstrating for the odd strike on the side, the Engineer often persists he has to cook up something for consumers himself, as he mutters through his beer suds, "Oughta be a better way o' doing it."

—W. A. MARTIN.
S.P.S. 4T6.

Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Upon reading your editorial refuting my support of the scientific method, and proving by use of the dictionary that it only means "methodical method" and is therefore a meaningless phrase, I was (I assure you) greatly chastened.

Indeed, I myself had recourse to the dictionary. In Annandale's Concise English Dictionary I find by equating definitions, the following:

"White" is the same as "pallid".

"Pallid" is the same as "wan".

"Wan" is the same as "gloomy".

"Gloomy" is the same as "dark".

"Dark" means "wholly or partially black".

But the result of this piece of purely deductive (or Aristotelian) reasoning, alas, has only made me more and more confused.

Should I see a psychiatrist?

—J. H. HARROLD.
Graduate in Physics.

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Your headline of December 7, "School Votes Down S.A.C. Petition", was to me more than alarming, it was disgusting.

On an issue as important as the deportation of Canadian citizens of Japanese ancestry, one would assume (Continued on page 4)

Books

Johnny Chinook

Who would most enjoy Johnny Chinook (Longmans, Green & Co., $3.50) is difficult to say. It purports to be a collection of Alberta folk-tales and might delight some with its Wild Western qualities while, on the other hand, some might find the light thrown on Canadian culture more inviting. However, the American author, Robert Gard, has, evidently with some diligent research into old files of both weekly and daily newspapers and some questioning of Albertans with either long or very imaginative memories, turned out a book that illuminates some almost forgotten phases of our pioneer era.

There are the usual ballad-like themes of successful murderers, prospectors who disappear into the wilderness, gold mines found and lost, Indians who, by nature, have a legend ready on the least provocation, eccentric hotel-keepers, and noble R.C.M.P. officers. There are stories whose content reminds one of Twain's Jumping Frog—that of the rainmaker of Medicine Hat who received several thousands from the city council for every inch of rain he caused to fall; still other tales—for instance, the one about Paddy Nolan, a picturesque lawyer who constantly refers to his clients' innocence as being "snow-driven"—remind one of Halliburton. Johnny Chinook constantly reveals important factors in the development of the West—the scarcity of women, the perennial presence of whiskey smuggled from the United States. And, best of all, Mr. Gard realizes the humour involved in the struggle between Canada's two railroad companies—the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. That this competition added a peculiar flavour to life in Canada had scarcely been recognized until the publication of Johnny Chinook. The tale of Jeff Davis manages to sneak in even the epic when the reader (with perhaps an epic tear) views the old ox-teamer, (Continued on page 4)

THE SAGA OF SUZIE

Music: Rhapsody in Pink (Pianissimo)
Fade into announcement.

Announcer: The Saga of Suzie . . . brought to you by Bubbly-Wubbly Soap Flakes. Bubbly-Wubbly Soap Flakes are precision-designed to make the biggest fattest bubbles ever. Bubbly-Wubbly Soap Flakes make your stockings last twice as long. They make your panties twice as long—make all your panties culottes—good show! Dishes swished in Bubbly-Wubbly come sparkling clean—no traces of grease, dirt or design! Bubbly-Wubbly is a MODERN soap—makes cleaning easier, more economical. And what is more, you can chew it, too! Remember, make your clothes come Bubbly-Wubbly-white with Bubbly-Wubbly hustle-bubbles—banish all your wash-day troubles with Bubbly-Wubbly bubbles!

—And now the sad saga of Suzie. As you remember, our heroine had just returned to her home, after spending her last two ears in the Pen, (she used them to bribe the genial warden for her release, only to find that her father had committed fatal suicide by burning down the mansion after finding that his wife had died in an accident during her elopement with the milkman who had poisoned her sixteen brothers for squandering the family fortune which they had found in the bulging pockets of her faithful wooer, Rupert, who was shot down by officers of the law in a mad, mad dash for freedom. And so, cheerful and undaunted, we find little Suzie, facing the world, homeless, penniless, famished, loveless, and earless.

Fade-out, music—The Camels are Coming.
Fade.

Suzie: (singing) Please don't tear our— Well, well, what have we here? My dear old Daddy's wisdom tooth in the ashes of his cornucopia—HOME! (scratching sound) Hmmm, m, there's still some gold in it I do declare. Dear Daddy, always thinking of me. Maybe I can hock it.

Music—Heigho, off to the Fair.

Sound effects—feet walking, door creaking, eyebrows lifting.

Susy: Wanna buy a tooth? Hmmm. Pawnbroker: Could be.

Susy: I'm just an impoverished uneducated, kleptomaniacal female sans famille, as the bourgeoisie would have it. How much chum?

Gong strikes—Bong!

Announcer—Yes. How much will Susy get for her deceased father's wisdom tooth? Listen tomorrow to the Saga of Suzie—to the next chapter entitled "Tooth or Consequences!" And now, before we close, a little more about Bubbly-Wubbly! —Rat-a-tat-a-tat-a-tat-bang!

New announcer (calmly): Due to circumstances beyond our control, we are unable to bring you the usual Bubbly-Wubbly commercial. We will use up the remaining five minutes of our show with a musical interlude.

Music: Funeral March (obbligatissimo).
Lento and Tidywoo.

LIGHT UP AND Work

It's amazing how the smoking of a Sweet Cap. gives pleasure to the task and makes those study hours fly.

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction—anywhere . . . anytime! And when you tune in "LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

STATION CJB-C KEY
9:30 P.M. Every Thursday Night.

VAR-SITY

Post-Term DANCE

AT THE BEAUTIFUL LIDO DECK
OF THE BRANT INN, BURLINGTON

Thursday, Dec. 20th

DANCE TO LEN SALCI AND HIS ORCHESTRA

This Dance to be Held in the Form of a
Christmas Party

DON'T WAIT TILL THE LAST MINUTE—
MAKE YOUR RESERVATIONS EARLY.

Admission:
$5.00 Per Couple

This includes Bus Fare.

TICKETS ON SALE IN U.C. ROTUNDA

Starting at 1:00 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 13.

Buses to leave Bay Street Terminal at 8:00 p.m., December 20.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

The regular rehearsal of the Hart House Glee Club will take place at 5 p.m. today in the music room. All members are asked to attend to prepare for Christmas engagements.

Visitors' Sunday

Sunday, 16th December, will be a Visitors' Day at Hart House. Between 2 and 4 that afternoon members may introduce friends, including ladies, to the House which will be open for inspection.

JOHN COWAN and BILL HEMMERICK present:

The Post-Christmas Carousel

TICKETS OBTAINABLE AT ST. GEORGE GRILL, HARBORD STREET

At CASA LOMA

$100.00 in Prizes

Thursday, December 27th

LIMITED TICKETS AVAILABLE
$2.00 PER COUPLE

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1888
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-A
University College
Night Office

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor: Robert E. Robinson, B.A.
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make-up Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Fay Wallace, B.P.H.E.
News Editor: George Forster, B.T.
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, B.T.
Assistant: Wally Bell, B.T.
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, B.T.
Assistant: Roy Sherman, B.T.
Sports Editor: Mickey Michalski, B.T.
Men's Assistant: Jerry Lewis, B.T.
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, B.T.
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, B.T.
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, B.T.

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD

Night Editor: George Legris
Assistant: Eunice Davies

Staffords Sink Before Blues As Bailey's Boys Put On Power

Ace Bailey and his men sailed into Red Horner's highly regarded Toronto Staffords last Friday night and wended them 10-9. Staffords, fresh from a convincing 8-3 victory over Hamilton Pats on Wednesday, were badly outplayed for two periods, but came to life for eight goals in the final frame to nearly pull the game out of the fire.

Ace and Red were formerly teammates on the Toronto Maple Leafs, and the two teams on the ice Friday night typified the respective styles of play of the rival coaches. Ace's Varsity Blues thus presented him with both a physical and a moral victory in their timely win.

The Senior Blues built up a 6-0 lead for the cool and collected Dick Ball in their nets, and then proceeded to toss it away when Doug Davidson took over midway through the second period. Davidson did look bad on several shots—the clever George Mara seemed in particular to find little difficulty in slipping the rubber past him—but his defence was woefully inept at times, leaving all the work for the backchecking forwards. The system worked well for two periods, but when the front lines began to tire, the results were disastrous.

The Ball, Halder, Henry line accounted for seven of the ten Varsity goals, Ball and Halder getting three each and Henry the other one and this threesome came up with some of the prettiest passing combinations seen round Varsity arena in some time. Torontos tried to slow these speed boys down with heavy bodychecks at the defence, and Henry was the big fall guy as he stepped into several stiff ones.

When Staffords tossed aside these tactics in the third period, they found the Varsity rearguards offered very little obstruction to their offense. They sifted through for five scores in the last 13 minutes, while Bromley's lone counter was all the Blues could manage, although it was the goal which actually decided the contest in Varsity's favor. Bain and Doyle were the Varsity badmen, Bain collecting nine minutes in all through two minors and a major. Doyle tackled Stafford for his five-minute sentence, as tempers ran high at times due to the heavy checking.

Mara, Willson and Dixon handled eight of the nine Staffords goals between them, Mara amassing four and three assists. Shannon was a standout on defence, and Red Gilbert, though abundantly scored on, was effective in the Torontos nets when given decent protection.

Varsity Seniors—Goal, R. Ball; Defence, Wade and Bain; Center, Halder; Wings, Henry and G. Ball; Alternates, Rutledge, Bromley, Kosick, Bark, Bauer, Johnston, Doyle, Kryzanowski, Stafford, and Davidson.

Toronto Staffords—Goal, Gilbert; Defence, Shannon and Jamieson; Center, Mara; Wings, Dixon and Willson; Alternates, Smith, Ingoldsby, Stafford, Mann, Junken and Thomson.

P.H.E. Basket Girls Down Red & White

In the semi-final basketball tilt Friday night the U.C. girls eliminated Physical and Health Education by a score of 16-8. The game was featured by erratic shooting, with the Red and White scoring only two of their six free throws.

At quarter time the score was tied 4-4 but by a Royal College drive in the next session netted them four points. P. and H.E. staged a comeback in the third quarter but were again blanked in the fourth.

No fouls were called against U.C. by referees Eleanor Pattison and Lois Dowson.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

You are represented on the University Advisory Committee and on the Committee of the University Advisory Bureau by four Ex-Service Students. They are: Engineering Mr. F. Huntsley Medicine Mr. A. H. Stevens Victoria College Mr. H. Lacey University College Mr. J. Duggan They will be glad to pass on any suggestions that you may wish to make.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS
67 St. George St. M.L. 3781
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Mickey Michasiw

And So To Bed...

Ever come in on Sunday night from a big week-end and be dead tired having had only two hours' sleep Saturday night and none since boy what a feeling and then you suddenly realize you have a big test Monday and you try to study but the book jumps and blurs and your eyes are red and blackcircled and when you get up on Monday at oh six fourteen people laugh and pinch you and say it is alive and you begin to wonder if not already and you just about manage to get through Monday when the editor asks for your copy and you just laugh at him and think terrible thoughts like murder and torture and you finally tell him it is beyond all possible human endurance and to please depart as your mind is like a hunk of concrete and it is very funny because you can sit back and look at your mind and talk to it and you say mind produce something but your mind just grins and sits back like a hunk of concrete boy what a feeling and after a whole term of this same feeling you just sit at a typewriter through force of habit and the words come in a stream which the line man interprets into something like this and boy what a feeling!

But before you go home you get to thinking of what a swell term it has been what with the return of intercollegiate and a bunch of swell fellows to the campus and you think of how they helped to make a happy job out of what would otherwise have been a tiring affair and you think again and see that people like Warren Stevens and Mac McCutcheon and Roy Dilworth and Ace Bailey and the Athletic Office staff of Misses Lea, Boyd and Walters aren't too bad when you get to know them better and you think of all the little favors that they have done and the time they took off to help you and you feel yourself getting smaller by the second.

Near the end of the column you remember the sportsmanship shown by the Mulock champion school team and the Vic. soccer team which took quite a beating from the advertisers and the other intramural sports which took a back seat to intercollegiate functions which brought you in contact with a lot of nice people and the other kind at Queen's and Western and from McGill and it's a bit of a wonderful feeling even though you are dog-tired and with these happy thoughts you close the term's activities with but one thought —

AND A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL!

Varsity Cagers Beat Western Y

Varsity's Senior A basketball team battled their way to a 33-23 win over West End YMCA in the preliminary of Saturday night's double bill in the big gym. West End were only down 14-10 at the half, but a few quick baskets by the A men gave them a commanding lead early in the third quarter, and they held it for the rest of the way.

The game was a rather disorganized affair, with neither team showing any particular class. Passes went astray, shooting was erratic, and the close checking which prevailed slowed the game down to a walk at times. As someone said, "It wasn't even good Intramural basketball."

The loss of possession of the ball for 'travelling' and 'steps' by both teams was appalling for supposedly organized basketball. Potroff of the A men and Murdoch of West End were the most frequent offenders.

Swan, Andrews, Glat and Hennessy were Varsity's best, while Wynn, Watts and Tettnar were the pick of the West End squad.

Varsity—Sturgess 5, Varga 1, McAdam, Glat 6, Swan 7, Potroff 6, Andrews 4 and Hennessy 4.

West End YMCA—Stockman, White, Wilson, Corrigan, Wynn 8, Watts 9, Murdoch 2, Tettnar 2, Whidan and Graham 2.

Toronto Swimmers Top Water Record

If the performances put on by Varsity swimmers Saturday night at Hamilton are any indication of what will happen at Kingston and Montreal in the Intercollegiate meets there, U. of T. is in for another undefeated year in doing aquatic.

In the Senior 100-yd. breast event, Al Marshall's winning time of 1:08.4 topped the officially listed time of 1:13.6, and the second-place time run-off in the Senior 200-yd. relay by Tesky, Moffat, Cranfield and Kimball for Varsity of 1:41.1 took one and one-tenth seconds off the mark set by McGill in 1936. These times cannot be considered new C.I.A.U. records, as Saturday's meet was sponsored by the C.A.S.A.

The defeat suffered at the hands of Central "V" has spurred University water polo enthusiasts to challenge Central to a return game to be played at Hart House this Saturday at 2 o'clock.

In the meantime, Broadview is expected to fall victim to Varsity's water polo prowess this evening at 7 o'clock.

BUY
WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

SPORTS CALENDAR

SWIM LEAGUE Playoffs: 5:00	SPS. IV Jr. SPS.	Dent. Beer, Burt-Gerrans Trin. B
VOLLEYBALL Playoffs: 1:00	For. B III SPS. A Burt-Gerrans
4:00	Emm. B IV SPS. A Eilbeck
6:30	U.C. IV Jr. SPS.	SPS. III Fine

Junior Boxing and Wrestling

Entries Close at Athletic Office—Today, at 5:00 p.m.

PRELIMINARIES

TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY—5:00 p.m.

FINALS

FRIDAY, December 14th—8:00 p.m.
Watch "The Varsity" for further announcements.

The Sportswoman

By George Forster

We Nash Our Teeth

Once upon a time a female in fourth year confessed that her education was being sadly neglected.

She felt, she said, that it was time this defect was corrected. She knew, she said, absolutely nothing about the affairs of the gridiron. On a golf course she could tell the difference between a mashie and a midiron. But in the stadium she couldn't tell a plunge from an end-run.

She knew when to send a present to a sick friend and when not to send one. But after four years of watching rugby games she still thought the line was what the boys handed her.

Now we wouldn't want this young lady to think that we have misrepresented or slandered her;

But we seriously think there should be a slight modification in the academic curricula

So as to correct the woeful ignorance of women with regards men's sports and rugby in particular.

We feel that those in authority could render

A valuable service to millions of mere men by altering the agender.

Blues-Bisons

(Continued from Page 1)

the Buffalo team from an embarrassing century count.

Stars of the Varsity team were the eleven players who ran up the score. Glat and Hennessy shared the duties of newly-wed Whitey Clayton and looked on the tired side after their inspiring performance for the Senior A's in the curtain-raiser.

Wally Zeaton is rapidly earning himself a place in the hearts of basketball fans, not only because of his stellar defensive play but because of his colorful shooting and crowd-pleasing antics.

Buffalo's leading scorer with four points, Alper was the only visitor who looked at home against the Blues. The rest of the roster relied on their questionable ability of dribbling the ball through rather than passing. They returned to Buffalo a sad but much wiser lot.

Varsity Blues: Mayzell (20), Himel (6), Thomson (16), Glat, Wallace (2), Scott (15), Zeaton (8), Gibson (10), Cranham (9), Fountain (5), and Hennessy.

University of Buffalo: Gaines (1), Fortels, Keller (3), Hess, Boron (2), Weiss, Davies, Grossman, Alper (4), Fadum and Hochmuth (1).

NOTICE

Advance ticket sale for Varsity Christmas Dance, Royal York Hotel, in U.C. Rotunda, Dec. 14, 18, 19, 12-2 p.m.

LOST

15 minutes' studying time from 7:30-7:45 p.m. because I'm going to listen to S.S. from Dial 580.

LOST

Black and gold Parker pencil, Friday between 12 noon and 2 p.m. Finder please leave at S.A.C. Office or phone RA. 8404.

LOST

Bunch of keys, between Athletic Wing, Hart House, and back campus, on Tues., between 2:30 and 4:00 p.m. Please turn in to S.A.C. Office.

NOTICE!

Will the girl finding black Waterman's pen please phone again. MO. 1073.

FOR SALE

Lady's evening wrap, full length black velvet, white fur trim, white satin lining, flannel inter-lined. Price $15.00. Size 12 or 14. Like new. LA. 9752.

TAKEN BY MISTAKE

Will person who took black coat from Room C32, Mining Bldg., Friday morning, please call A. Mark, KI. 6309.

WANTED

Copy of Chant and Burton's "Text-book of College Physics" plus the answers. Please phone LY. 2859.

FRESHETTES

You can have a comfortable vacation, winter sports, time to rest. Healthy, beautiful surroundings. Limited reservations. Phone immediately. MO. 4962.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. "Serge Apartments")

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

VARSAITY Christmas Dance Saturday, December 22.

ROYAL YORK HOTEL — BANQUET HALL

HORACE LAPP and His Orchestra

Featuring PAT BERRY and RUDY HANSEN

DANCING, 9-12.

TICKETS, $1.00 per Person.

Tickets on sale:

Friday, December 14

Monday, December 18

Tuesday, December 19

12-2 p.m. in the

U.C. Rotunda.

Also on sale at the door the night of the dance.

The Drive Is On For Xmas Parcels For Holland

Give What You Can -- MONEY, SUGAR, READING MATTER At Your Faculty or College Collecting Posts

EACH COLLEGE AND FACULTY WILL PRESENT THEIR CONTRIBUTIONS AT THE ALL-VARSITY CHRISTMAS TREE ON THE FRONT CAMPUS, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12TH AT 1:00 P.M. FOLLOW THE BAND TO THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Correspondence . .

(Continued from page 2)

that a student poll would have been taken. However, the Engineering Society deemed itself fully representative of the student opinion on the subject.

I do not dispute their right to do so on matters which are of minor or even semi-major importance. But when an issue of such grave importance as this, over which we have just fought a bloody six years war, comes to the fore, I for one strongly object to having my opinion represented by a group which knows or cares little about the subject.

One of the members of the Engineering Society Executive, when asked why he hadn't seen to it that a poll of student opinion was taken, replied, "Personally, I was too busy with 'Skule Nite' to care. Let the Arts men worry about it. Any Skule men who have been thinking about this question haven't been doing enough school work." Words fail me!

The least the Executive could have done was to have held an open meeting where the students could have expressed their opinions.

It also seems appalling that the future of our scientific advancement lies in the hands of a group of men whose comprehension of social problems is as short-sighted as that portrayed above.

My spark of revolt against the executive's decision has been fanned to a fire by the feelings of many of the engineers I know. Sir, for the thirteen members of the Engineering Society Executive who refused to support the petition, I firmly believe that there are a few in S.P.S. whose opinions they do not represent. For those thirteen I sincerely apologize and humbly hang my head in shame.

—JACK WALTER,
II S.P.S.

Books . . .

(Continued from page 2)

deprived of his position by the railroads, driving his pet oxen farther and farther into the wilderness away from their destined slaughter-house.

The great difference between Western humour and that of the East is certainly emphasized enough in the story of Bob Edwards and Peter McGonigle. Because of a Toronto newspaperman's inability to appreciate Western exaggeration, Lord Strathcona for a few exciting days wishes to hang the exuberant editor of an Alberta weekly who had rather libelled his lordship with a long story reporting him as having toasted an escaped horsethief. We blush for Alberta's journalism, although we admire its saucy invention.

In a great many of the stories the loneliness and melancholy of the West are underlined and the attempts of Albertans to meet their surroundings with vigorous living and reckless attitudes are sensitively recorded. In only one instance does Mr. Gard fall into the pit of pedantry. His sketch of Senator Dan Riley suspiciously turns into a list of Alberta's natural resources when the senator ends his yarn of the "Lost Lemon Mine" with: "The area is rich in coal, some low grade phosphate rock, and low grade deposits of iron. There are interrelated beds of conglomerate ash."

On the whole Mr. Gard has succeeded in catching the atmosphere of early Canada, and his lighter tales have an admirable "zip". His book differs from the usual volume on pioneer Canada since it strives to give some cultural meaning to what otherwise might remain "old-time yarns". Decorated with neat illustrations by W. J. Phillips and a painted jacket, Johnny Chinook is a Canadian book well worth buying.

COMING EVENTS

U.C. S.C.M.

4:00 p.m.—Upstairs Women's Union—Forum Series "What do you believe," under Rev. Candy.
Downstairs Women's Union—"Old Testament Speaks," under Marjorie Peck.

Panhellenic Association

5:00 p.m.—Women's Union — Meeting for all freshies who have received registration cards.

U.C. Trinity Classics Club

8:15 p.m. Thursday—Puppet performance of Plautus' comedy "Menaechni" at St. Hilda's College.

St. Joseph-St. Michael Debate

8:30 p.m. Friday—Debate on participation of University students in industrial strikes and disputes.

Amsterdam Appeal

(Continued from Page 1)

follow the bag-pipes in the manner of Hamelin's Pied Piper.

As the attendance grows, Santa "Harron" Claus will be drawn into sight by an octet of reindeers bearing tags of Donner, Blitzen, and company. Santa having been enthroned, President Sidney Smith will mount the platform to open the proceedings. Hearing of the scheduled program, President Smith smiled an enthusiastic "I think it's a grand proposal." When the President's official sanction has been received the donations will be made.

Master of Ceremonies Siegel, well-equipped to deal with the situation, will direct the Amsterdam donations to Santa Claus. The representatives will surrender the contents of their college or faculty's donation box in rapid sequence, each declaring the amount presented so that the boy and girl reps presenting the greatest amount may be rewarded. When asked the nature of the reward, Chairman of the Program Committee Lloyd Ackert said "That's strictly our secret!"

Many faculties and colleges plan to send onto the platform representatives to caricature their respective student bodies.

When the last rep has been received, Santa will rush away "theoretically to Holland, actually to a two o'clock lecture," said Harron.

Art, Music, Drama

(Continued from page 2)

Pops Concert

Most appreciated orchestra on the stage at Friday evening's Pops concert was the choir of 60 women's voices conducted by Leslie Bell. Most appreciative audience was the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, attentive to a man during the two groups of unaccompanied songs.

Outstanding, if any one quality could be said to exceed the supreme beauty of the choir's other parts, was diction. Every syllable came through to the audience with unclouded clarity, even in the most subdued planissimo. Conductor Bell's own arrangements, particularly in the much-sung Joshua Fit de Battle and a Choral Rhapsody of favorites from Porgy and Bess, carried the greatest appeal.

Of the orchestra, let it suffice to say that it was not the same TSO that has been heard on other occasions. Perhaps the conductor Samuel Hershenson should be held to account, perhaps the program. Least offensive, perhaps, was Caucasian Sketches (Ippolitov-Ivanov), in which Violist Robert Warburton's work was noteworthy.—BOB ROBINSON.

smoke the
mild
cigarette

Buckingham

He paved the way for the Electric Age

The son of a blacksmith, Michael Faraday (1791-1867) went to work at thirteen. As an apprentice in a book bindery he read scores of volumes, especially those on scientific subjects. He attended some lectures given by Sir Humphry Davy, and wrote to him and asked for—and obtained—a job in his laboratory. He carried on research in chemistry, investigated the alloys of steel, and produced several new kinds of optical glass. His most important research work was in electricity and magnetism. His discoveries paved the way for the development of electro-plating and the widespread use of electric power today.

BECAUSE of Faraday's discoveries, the great electrical industry has grown up in modern times. Because of discoveries about Nickel made in research laboratories, the Canadian Nickel industry has grown into one of the world's great industries.

Well equipped Nickel research laboratories in Canada, United States and Great Britain will continue to co-operate with scientists everywhere in developing new uses and markets for Nickel.

Canadian engineers, designers and metallurgists have free access to the scientific and technical data gathered together by International Nickel from the whole field of metal research.

As industry gets to know more about Nickel and its uses, the demand for Canadian Nickel will increase still more. Canada will benefit accordingly.

FORWARD THROUGH RESEARCH

Canadian Nickel

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED, 25 KING STREET WEST, TORONTO

The Peace Of Christmas

It is rather a truism than a truism to say that Christmas brings peace to the world. This season that truth is, so to speak, silhouetted, like a number of other truisms which have recently reaffirmed themselves as truths. Learned men, jaded men, tired men, and journalists have been busy debunking Christmas for many years, but it goes on being the feast of the Prince of Peace: never more triumphantly than this year, when all the wildly acclaimed heralds of peace have flatted and significantly failed.

The world has been filled for half a century now with the clamor of planners of perpetual peace; men of an almost oppressive sanity who have made peace depend on disarmament, or on a strong army, or on a league, or on invincible sovereignty; on compulsory education, on better housing, on free trade, on tariffs, and on a good five-cent cigar. The thing to grasp about every proposal for peace is that it is a material and even mechanical proposal, hinging on a grouping of nations, a massing of guns, or a patching of roofs. It is perhaps not unfair to the peacemakers, however, to suggest that their spirit is rather far removed from the spirit of Christmas; and it has been, ironically, the recent armistice which has usurped most patently the prophecy of Christ and brought not peace but a sword.

The difference between the Biblical and the modern peacemaker is less theological than practical; it may be best summed up by saying that the reformer urges us to do something, while Christmas exhorts us to rejoice about something. We have no quarrel at the moment with those who question the nature of that Something about which Christendom rejoices; we only point out that they, at any rate, never ask us to rejoice. They are always urging us to shed our coats and place our shoulders to an all but immovable wheel; not a rejoicing prospect. And it is beginning to be doubtful whether any amount of shoving on any wheel, any amount of tampering with the merely material parts of the world, is going to bring peace.

The prejudice for settling all things by discussion is passing, and it is beginning to be a matter for suspicion that the materialists argue so loudly. We ought to have been suspicious long ago, from the fact that we have been confident of only one peace for 1900 years; and that is the peace of Christmas. We have hoped in many directions, but only in this one thing have we ever really trusted. Nobody has ever seriously denied the solemn exaltation of Christmas: its peace.

Unhappily, everybody talks about peace as if it were a negative thing, like silence; whereas the experience of Christmas should have warned us that peace is an assertive thing, like song. Peace springs not from the absence of conflict, but from the presence of justice: of harmony. The musicians achieve harmony with many sounds; nobody hating noise has ever pretended to achieve harmony by a mingling of silences.

The secret of the Christmas peace is that it does not abolish things, but controls them; it is not a hush, but a concert.

It controls gluttony, which under its spell becomes feasting; it controls avarice, which becomes delight; it controls ostentation, which becomes generosity; and it tempers hate into the clean zeal of a crusade. And with all these controlled, there is peace;

*The idle humble hill and wood
Are bowed upon the sacred birth,
And for one little hour the earth
Is lazy with the love of good.*

Until men have learned to strive towards a similar good by similar means, we must go on enjoying with the truce of Christmas our sole example of peace; it is a peace precarious, not perpetual; but being peace and therefore an affirmation of good, it brings in its little season joy.

And this joy we wish our readers.

Will Herald Christmas With Carols On Airways

Resuming a pre-war custom, the Hart House Glee Club, under the direction of Dr. Charles Peaker, will broadcast a half-hour program of Christmas Carols Tuesday evening, December 18, from the Great Hall over a CBC coast-to-coast network.

Undergraduates who wish to hear the broadcast concert are asked to dine in the Great Hall between 6:00 and 6:15 p.m. Those dining elsewhere should come to the Hall at 6:50 p.m. During the broadcast the audience will participate in the singing of four carols, Hark the Herald Angels Sing, The First Nowell, O Come all ye Faithful, and Good King Wenceslas.

To relieve congestion, those not waiting for the broadcast are asked to dine at 5:30 p.m. or after. The Glee Club will dine in a body at 5:15.

Only Hair-Raising Hart House Quartet Gives The "McCoy" Brush-Cut

For a combined total of forty-nine years this Hart House quartet has been lowering undergraduate ears and attending to the male campus-coiffure.

Next-ling for that length of time altogether have been Messrs. Morton, Wiggins, Mahood and Huff, who ten hours daily Monday through Friday wield clippers, brushes, scissors and razors about the crania of Joe College. A lot of hair has fallen on the floor!

"When I came here twenty years ago, this institution had already been running for six years," reminisced Mr. Morton, manager of the Hart House barbershop, during a combination interview and hair-cut with The Varsity. "Since then nothing really hair-raising has happened here."

As they perform their tonsorial tasks, the quartet uses plenty of chair chatter. "We talk all the time," admitted Mr. Mahood, custodian of the third chair from the door, who began in the Athletic Wing parlor a decade ago. "We keep right with the trends. It's rugby in fall, hockey in winter.

"For non-athletic customers it's world affairs."

Of 1,500 barber shops in Toronto, the Hart House foursome claim to be the only brush-cut experts.

"There are only four barbers in this city that can give the real McCoy brush-cut. And, brother, they're right here in this room!" exclaimed Mr. Wiggins.

"Mr. Wiggins invented the brush-cut," offered Mr. Huff.

"Well," protested Mr. Wiggins, "that sort of came as an inspiration: One day a medical student came in with hair all over his face . . ."

"But," argued Mr. Huff, "you said the idea came as you were cutting hedge . . ."

"Anyway," summed up Mr. Wiggins, possibly the crew-cut creator, "there are only four barbers that can give the real McCoy brush-cut. And they're right here. That's off the record, y'understan'!"

"I was never in a really close shave here," recalled Mr. Mahood. "But when I was working in the Royal Bank building a fellow with a giant sweepermoustache once came three days in a row to have it trimmed; he had to sit

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1945

No. 53

DRIVE ENDS WITH TODAY'S PROGRAM

Political Groups Support Proposed Joint Meetings

The idea of joint political meetings, proposed at a recent meeting of the University Liberal Association, is supported by most campus political organizations it was learned by The Varsity last night.

The interim executive of the Progressive-Conservative Club feels that it will be unable to participate for a few weeks as the club is still in the throes of organization, but spokesmen for the other campus political organizations, the C.C.F. and L.P.P. clubs, have expressed their willingness to participate in the scheme which calls for regular joint meetings of the four organizations at which spokesmen will outline the various political policies.

"I heartily endorse the action of the Liberal Association in proposing this scheme," said C.C.F. President Roy Clark. "This spirit of open enquiry is definitely in line with the previous policy of campus political clubs, and the Liberal Club is to be heartily congratulated for their proposal. Something along the same line was conducted last year when representatives of all parties spoke at a pre-election meeting on the campus."

Ken Morrison, President of the Labor-Progressive Club, said that the scheme would be put before the club at its next meeting and he felt that the club would support it. "I, personally, am in favor of it," he added.

Speaking for the interim executive of the Progressive-Conservative Club, Dick Walker stated that the executive had decided to defer participation until they had completed organization.

"At the moment," said Walker, "we are not in a position to take any active part in the project, but if we are approached in the latter part of January I feel that we would be better able to participate."

The scheme was first proposed at last Friday's meeting of the Liberal Association as a move to make University students more familiar with the platforms and policies of Canadian political parties.

When informed of the reactions of other organizations the Liberal Association's president, George Ness, said: "The response is very gratifying. I hope that after Christmas we will all be able to get together and make these meetings a real success."

New Club Introduced To Campus As Pass Arts Students Organize

The first Pass Arts Club meeting was introduced to the university last night after a group of second year Pass Arts students, represented by Don MacLeod, decided to remedy the lack of an organization in which all Pass Arts students could participate. These students felt that there was no opportunity to get together in a group and achieve unity in their course, said Mr. MacLeod, and that Pass Arts was missing out. The speaker asked the audience whether they thought it was a good idea to have a Pass Arts Club, whether it should be enlarged to include first and third years, and what the policy was to be.

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY

Practice on Saturday, 15th December, West Hall University College, 2:00 p.m., and not in Convocation Hall Wednesday.

R. L. Birdwhistell, introduced by June Guay, addressed the meeting. His topic was "The differences between a progressive and a liberal education."

Education, Professor Birdwhistell declared, has two functions: one to equip, and the other to dequip. A liberal education, he continued, is that kind having an almost equal balance of equipment and dequipment.

In referring to the high neurosis rate among university students, the speaker stated that teachers are teaching people what is wrong in society and breaking down their beliefs in themselves and in others. We are educated to do one thing: to argue about what we know. Thus we are no longer liberals, but "gliberals," he continued.

The meeting closed with a discussion period.

Today's The Drive's End Today's The Program's Day

AMSTERDAM'S HAPPINESS

Today will hit the detonating cap to bring to an explosive close three days of the biggest all-campus co-operative movement seen in the present year.

The sparks will fly at 1:00 when master-comedians Don Harroon and Alex Siegel step onto the platform on the little island south of the front campus for the brisk program concluding the drive to aid Amsterdam University.

Chosen as symbolic of the universities of liberated countries, Amsterdam University will have its Christmas fate decided by the response of U. of T. students. The eagerness shown to date may in part be explained in that Canadian troops, in their Second Front assignments, fought through the Netherlands. Many student-veterans, many students who had friends or relatives in this theatre have shown by their contributions that they have not forgotten the kindnesses paid by the Dutch to our troops.

The office of the Central Committee for the drive currently resembles an assembly-line with its departments of 700 chocolate bars here, 100 dozen buttons there—potential energy to be released at 1:00 today.

Debaters To Argue U. C. Lit. Prexy Pickers' Action Seeks Lusty Yell

Two aspects of a recent campus controversy will be voiced in next Friday's parliamentary debate between St. Michael's and St. Joseph's College. Defending the resolution that "The University students as such, are justified in joining picket lines in recent strikes," J. Mahoney and J. Wallace, both of St. Michael's intend to base their arguments on their firm conviction that "the students have every right to participate in picketing corporations which are infringing on the rights of labor. We further maintain that it is the student's privilege to take part in such demonstrations when they are of national concern."

The opposition, composed of Kathleen Cahill and Patricia Clarke of St. Joseph's, take a different viewpoint. "Apart from the very dubious legal grounds on which the amateur pickets are treading," they said, "we object not to their display of their opinions, but to them advertising their status as university students in attempting to give the impression that the University or its student body shares those opinions."

University College is in the market for a good yell.

Anyone with any ideas on the subject will get a cordial reception, and possibly a prize too, from Gord McCaffrey, president of the U. C. Lit.

With an envious eye (or ear) to "Toike-oike" and similar punch-laden slogans from other sections of the campus, the Lit is sponsoring a contest to produce suitable songs and yells for the Royal College.

Up to now, said McCaffrey, few people know all the words to the songs and yells which puts somewhat of a damper on college spirit.

The Lit is inviting contributions from all U. C. students, to be jotted down on a sheet of paper and handed in at the Lit office before Christmas.

Songs are to be written to the tune of "The Blue and White" on the hopeful assumption that most students know the tune. However, McCaffrey added, the Lit would gladly accept any other strain that pulls at the Royal Collegian heartstrings, with original music being

EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

If you cannot go home for Christmas and would like to be entertained that day in a Toronto home would you please get in touch with the Warden's office, Hart House, or the University Advisory Bureau, 67 St. George Street.

Varsity Tea

All those interested in working for The Varsity are reminded of the tea to be held by the staff of the paper next Friday in Wymilwood at 4:30. Guest of honor, Santa Claus, will also be there.

A portion of the Hart House clip room where the barbershop quartet manipulate tonsorial tools and conversation with equal ease.

up too; wouldn't take it lying down. He finally left, disappointed, swearing he would go back to Italy to have a better job done."

Most loquacious of the four is Mr. Wiggins. He has been trimming and lecturing twenty customers a day, five days a week, since he began on September 27 in 1928. Allowing for the two-week annual vacation, this makes a total of 87,970 haircuts.

Using Ripley's average of 140,000 hairs per customer, he has perhaps clipped, scissored and shaved 12 billion, 375 million, 800 thousand hairs. Who knows how many words!

Students Remaining Over Holidays Will Celebrate At Warden's Dinner

"It is the most cosmopolitan group of any gathering in the University during the whole year," said the Warden of Hart House of his annual Christmas dinner for Hart House members who are unable to return home for the vacation.

"We have students here from all over the world, and all those staying at the University over Christmas come to the dinner. But there are so many this year that I must restrict this year's dinner to undergraduates," he continued.

The dinners began in a small way about 20 years ago in the Great Hall and every year since, they have been held with the idea of doing something for those who must remain at the University over the holidays. This year, following a short musical program, President Smith and Warden Bickert-still will extend the season's greeting to each student and the Warden will give everyone a specially prepared Christmas gift.

Over 300 cards have been sent out this week to those who appear in the Directory as coming from distant points. The Warden emphasized that anyone eligible who has not received an invitation should apply to his office as soon as possible to obtain his ticket.

THE VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College, M.L. 6611
Business Office, M.L. 6221
Night Office, M.L. 6743

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor: Robert R. Robinson, 476
Assistant: Barbara K. Hood, B.A.
Make up Editor: Phil Shackleton, B.A.
Assistant: Peg Wallace, B.F.E.
News Editor: George Forster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 476
Assistant: Reg. Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Mickey Michasiv, 477
Women's Assistant: Polly Mutz, 476
Men's Assistant: Jerry Ewins, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476

Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, 476
Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. MACDONALD

Night editor: Henry Westcott
Assistant: Betty Mutz

News Staff

Ernest Deutsch, Percy Schaffer, Audrey Hart-Smith, John Booth, Eunice Davies, Bob Johnson, Jim Cole, Mary Murdoch, Joan Cowan, John Cowan, Martha Schorber, Frances Fulton, George Legris, Ruth Cohen, Helen Scott, Janice Murray, Lillian MacIntyre, Bubbles Tomb, Phoebe Taylor, Bob Henderson, Joyce Pratt, June Guay, Flora Mulligan, Kathleen Cahill, Toby Tobias, Bob Batten, Betty Mutz, Eleanor Dickson, Bob Marjoribanks, Angus Hamilton, Lillian Hotz, Ulrich Loewenthal, Eddy Lindgren, Dorothy Greenberg, Bill Toye, Joyce McKinnel, Babs Flint, Dorothy World, Fred Stinson, Miriam Bassin, Lisbeth Cleaver, Adele Timmins, Elizabeth Sowers, Loggie Klaus, Cyrel Wilkes, Marilyn McPhee, Kay Tipping, Ethel Greben, John Wilkie, Cecilie Blockley, Don Fergie, Ken Brewster, Sylvia Oakley, Dave Stanley, George Bettison, Joan Fraser, Wes Hurley, Phyllis Bloom, Anne Ballantyne, Albert Delmanche, Mary Rapier, June Fergie, Lloyd MacDonald, Buzz Stanley, Bill Belt, Pat Coristine, Norm Clarke, Eileen Sanders, John Rooke, Jane Hinds, Theresa Gallivan, Laila Reitenberg, Jack Tinker, Henry Mira, Bea Thorckelson, Kaye Young.

Sports Staff

Harry Bordanero, Scott Carson, Al Cringan, Craig Cringan, Matt Dennis, Sue Gray, Alf Heakes, Ed Lindgren, Sandy Smeaton, Joe Taylor, Henry Westcott.

Art, Music and Drama Staff

Jeff Waite, Vernon Chapman, Alan Gowans, Daphne Byers, Milton Wilson, Douglas Ross, Eileen Saunders, Mary Francis Bowman, Bruce McEwen, Court Stone, John Garshore, Hanus Gruber.

Feature Staff

John McRae, Bob Cooke, Virginia Fox, Margaret Bowes, Ernst Deutsch, Harold Atin, Peggy Heinoenen, Barbara Milburn, Mildred Spicer, Fred Kahn, John Straiton, Doug Anglin, Bill Elliot, Al Rose, Betty-June McKenzie, Shiloh Hotrum, Joan Quirie, Ann Taylor, M. J. Dennis, Jack Granovsky, Ann Hill, Bea Thorckelson, Nete Goldberg, Syd Jourard, Kison O'Hara, Julian Rezetnik, Arthur Troit, Jack Tinker, Janice Murray, Eileen Sanders, Eileen Hemerick, Ruth Carville, Norma Bardenstein, Loggie Klaus, Mike Hornvansky, Doug Rudell, George Bettison, Mike Mackenzie.

Art, Music and Drama

To Conduct Or Not To Conduct

After four concerts given by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra I am led to the unavoidable conclusion that Sir Ernest MacMillan is quite incompetent as a conductor. All that last night's concert provided was ample illustration of this fact.

Considering that Beethoven's wonderful "little" Eighth Symphony was played practically without the benefit of a leader, the orchestra did a pretty good job. Sir Ernest manages to fall far behind the players or spring way ahead of them when giving cues. Further, his beat is so ill-defined that no orchestra could possibly follow him. The players, then, have to set their own pace and establish their own volume. Small wonder that the dynamics were negligible. If the orchestra played what Sir Ernest meant them to play, then Sir Ernest's conception of the Eighth Symphony is as appalling as his conducting. For example—the first movement was as fast as the last; the second movement had a mechanical rather than a pliable consistency in rhythm without the tonal variations which give it its effect; the cello accompaniment to the horn solo in the trio was inaudible; and there was an abundance of miscues in the last movement.

The major work on the program was Faust Symphony by Franz Liszt. I suppose that it is Sir Ernest who is responsible for inflicting this fourth rate tuff on an unsuspecting audience. The Liszt of this symphony is a trifle more subdued and religious than the Liszt of the keyboard. But even then, all the effect of the symphony derives from a pack of little tricks which lend it simultaneously a certain pretentiousness and a certain emptiness. The performance might be described as adequate but who cares how well had music is played? The orchestra reverted to its old style when it drowned out the male chorus and tenor soloist in the epilogue.

Those who have read the review of the last T.S.O. concert will have noticed that all these defects were absent. I am convinced that Toronto has a good orchestra. What it needs is a conductor.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN.

Four-In-One

The First Piano Quartet, as you may have guessed, consists of four gentlemen who play four pianos—all at the same time. On Monday night, in their first Toronto appearance, they proved that they play four pianos at the same time extremely well. What I have been trying to find out is why they do it.

From a musical point of view there seems to be no reason whatever for playing four pianos—all at the same time. The various works which they have transcribed for eight hands and three hundred and fifty-two keys gain nothing, and in fact suffer distortion in being extracted from their proper medium. Any way you look at it, four pianos do not sound like a string quartet nor like a symphony orchestra. Oddly enough, they sound even less like one piano. Consequently, the Quartet's performances of Chopin were bad. Works written for show purposes only, such as Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2, sounded very good. But then, from a musical point of view there is no reason for playing such mediocre music.

From an exhibitionist point of view however, the group does very well. Their arrangements are in as good taste as they can be and their precision is something to marvel at. But I cannot imagine why anyone would want to play four pianos—all at the same time.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN.

French Without Cheers

Because this is to be the last issue of The Varsity for this term we are obliged to review the U.C. French Club's production of Les Femmes Savantes from the dress rehearsal. Allowances have been made because of that circumstance. But this general criticism will more than likely be applicable to tonight's public performance.

The U.C. group know their French, but they do not know much about acting. If you wish to improve your pronunciation you should certainly attend. But, they play the whole show too far up-stage; the pace is slow, in a play that should breeze along; there is frequent untidy grouping on the stage, shielding one another from the audience; incessant up-staging of each other, unnecessary movement in all directions. And this is not the accidental kind of thing that is automatically righted by the presence of an audience.

Murray Sacks burlesques Chrysalis; the resultant caricature represents one way of acting Molière generally, but the rest of the cast are not playing the farce interpretation.

Both he and his wife, Philaminte, played by Peggy Garnham, fail utterly to convey the impression of age. Their movements and their voices are as youthful as those of their two daughters.

The elder of these, Armande (Barbara Chandler), speaks flawless French and is generally the most competent actress. Her sister, Henriette (Monica Allent), sounds too much like an elocution record. Henriette's suitor, Clitandre, portrayed by Harold Atice is dull and his movements are meaningless. They are quite the most frigid pair of lovers I can recall seeing.

Mary Crichton is entertaining as the vain Belise, mainly because it is the most entertaining character any way. Aristote, the diplomat, is completely lacking in aristocratic dignity as interpreted by Earle Hampel. Not that the rest of the cast ever succeed in creating the atmosphere of the polished French society of the period but they do move in general with some semblance of poise and assurance.

The pace of Scene 5, Act III, in the hands of Eric Kruh as Trissotin and Fernand Boulanger as Vadius is good. Similar variety in tempo as is achieved in this scene is required throughout the play.

It looks to me like a production in need of another week of rehearsal.

—JEFF WAITE.

Correspondence

Chagrin At School

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

In last Friday's Varsity, a certain E. Simon wrote a stupid, annoying, and ill-timed letter, in which he charged the Engineering Society Executive being dormant regarding his so-called University interests, namely petitions. Moreover in this letter, this same character charged, in as many words, that this is so because of a certain few who have guided the Society for the past few years. Thus, this can result only in a reply by one who has served from 1940-1944 as a member of this Executive and who in his graduating year not only was President to the Engineering Society but also as First Vice-President of the S.A.C. Therefore, this letter is to clarify and explain to all the E. Simons, of U. of T., School's policy regarding petitions. This policy, I might add, has been exercised in the past, present and (I hope) in the future.

The policy is that the Engineering Society Executive does not want to be involved in any petitions which does not affect Schoolmen as a body. This is so because of the following reasons.

First, the Engineering Society has always felt that Schoolmen should not interfere with Government policies. The Government is elected by the people and, in turn, appoints responsible, capable and experienced personnel to investigate any current problems. Moreover, these investigators have before them the true perspective for pros and cons. Thus, University students, who are in the position to not obtain the same perspective, can not be able to give an honest judgment.

Secondly, the members of the Engineering Society Executive are elected to administer School's Social functions. They are not elected to represent political opinions of Schoolmen. It must be concluded that such functions as School Nite, School Dinner, School-At-Home, etc., could not attain the highest standards annually unless many, many hours of hard work are unselfishly given by the experienced senior members of the various committees who are also on the Engineering Society Executive.

Thirdly, the Executive has always felt that to give a true statement on such matters as the Japanese question, a ballot system must be exercised. Due to the greatest registration and a timetable to suit such a mass enrolment a great difficulty and time would result to obtain a period agreeable to 1,600 Schoolmen for balloting. Then too, Christmas tests, which are now or will be in progress, curtail any free time, thus, the ballot system is not possible.

Lastly, this year's executive has not only its interests concentrated on the administration problems of some 1,600 Schoolmen and a Supply Store but also to some 2,000 future Schoolmen who are to take up residence at Ajax some 20 miles away. To add to this, the Executive has the responsibility to administer the operation of a Supply Store at Ajax.

The Engineering Society has stated recently, and as in the past, that it is agreeable for those persons who are sponsoring the petition to personally seek endorsements. Thus, to be just, I am sure that the reader will conclude that because of the Executive's lack of free time, it is the wisest choice to not be involved in any petitions and to direct their interests to more personal problems.

Therefore, to all the E. Simons at U. of T., I hope that the above will clarify School's position in such matters. Instead of criticizing the Executive, be a gentleman and give them praise for a good job well done which means a great deal of hard work, worry, and little credit.

Try to remember that those students (Continued on page 3)

Vic. Literary Society

6:00 p.m.—Writers' Group will meet at Margaret Moffit's house, 193 Strathmore Blvd. Guest critic: Prof. E. A. Havelock. Contributions anonymous... supper 25c. All writers and critics welcome.

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

FOR CHRISTMAS

Come to this Shop that has blossomed into Romance.

32 Bloor St. East
(Near Red Cross Headquarters)
M.L. 5975

U.C. Students

Pick Up Your

Christmas Card Orders

in

U.C. ROTUNDA

Wed., Thur., Fri

10 A.M. — 1 P.M.

Gay-go-together!

Give her presents that go-together.... like this perfect purse and belt. Both are of light tan leather, and sparkle with bright gold studs.

Simons
main Street Hrs.

Neilson's

VERY SATISFYING
VERY NOURISHING

Hart House Bulletin Board

Visitors' Sunday

Sunday, 16th December, will be a Visitors' Day at Hart House Between 2 and 4 that afternoon members may introduce friends, including ladies, to the House which will be open for inspection.

Glee Club Carol Broadcast

The Glee Club will broadcast Christmas carols from the Great Hall between 7:00 and 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, 18th December. See write-ups in this issue for details.

Everybody's Going To...

The Christmas Carousel

The Dance of The Year

ELLIS MCINTOCK AND HIS ORCHESTRA

Tickets at St. George Grill
$2.00 per Couple

CASA LOMA
THURSDAY, DEC. 27

To Hold At-Home In Two Installments

This year an innovation will be introduced into the annual Victoria College At-Home. To accommodate the unprecedented registration the dance will be held in two installments.

"This will give everyone in the College a chance to come to at least one of the dances," said Don Meek, Social Director of the Victoria College Union. Eaton Auditorium will be the scene of the first dance on February 1, with the second one being held in Simpson's Arcadian Court on February 22. Ellis McLintock and his orchestra will provide music on both occasions.

A complete floor show, with a chorus line restricted to freshettes, will feature both dances. Casting and rehearsals for the show are getting under way this week.

JOAN RIGBY

COATS
DRESSES TWEEDS SWEATERS
SUITS

54 BLOOR W. MI. 4969

"...SO NOW WE'LL HAVE A BANKER IN THE FAMILY!"

"Well, Bob has finally decided! When he's finished school he wants to go to work in a bank. And I'm glad—for a lot of reasons..."

He'll get a thorough training, and can even receive university instruction in banking and economics while he is working. Banking isn't learned in a day, but he'll get lots of help—and every opportunity to move up as he proves himself. The road to the top is wide open, and offers:

SECURITY AND PEACE OF MIND

Social security is a phrase prominent in public discussions these days, but the practice of it is not new. Consider the banks and their employees:

1. Pension Funds, to which, with their employees, banks themselves contribute substantially, make it possible for employees to devote all their business lives to banking, sure of an income for life when they reach the age of retirement.
2. Annual vacations with pay.
3. Ordinary sick leave with pay, and special sick leave arrangements in special cases.
4. Group life insurance contributed to jointly by banks and employees.
5. Good working conditions.
6. Unlimited opportunity for enterprise and advancement.

Banks and their staffs, in co-operation with each other, have made it possible for the latter to enjoy a well-founded sense of permanency and security.

This Advertisement is Sponsored by your Bank

"One New Carol" Is Dean's Desire

A Christmas tree, carols, and the Nativity pageant will bring the fall term to a close for the women of University College to-night in the Women's Union, when Miss Marion B. Ferguson, Dean of Women, entertains at her annual Christmas party.

The Nativity pageant, presented by undergraduates, is an annual feature of the party which is open to all University College women, resident and non-resident.

"It is part of the undergraduate's education to learn at least one new carol while at the University," said Miss Ferguson in extending her invitation.

Bachelors' Grants Suffice at Queens

KINGSTON, Dec. 11. (CUP)—Results of a questionnaire distributed among ex-service students of Queen's University show that present government grants are considered sufficient for single men but insufficient for married men.

The majority of the student veterans favored the forthcoming National Conference of Ex-Service Students at Montreal on Dec. 27, 28, 29, as an ideal basis for discussing their common problems and finding satisfactory solutions.

An appeal to local citizens and to the University was suggested as the only solution to the housing shortage which is, at present, one of the veterans' biggest problems.

Correspondence

(Continued from page 3)

much-debated question are too basic and too important to be dealt with in a high-handed irresponsible manner. What the Canadian Government proposes to do, in our names as Canadian citizens is basically a cowardly bullying act, entirely unworthy of a people professing enlightened Christian principles, and who like to congratulate each other upon helping to save the world from just such acts as they now propose to perpetrate upon a group of our own citizens!

The question of Japanese "assimilability" has no bearing upon the principle involved—indeed the majority of them were born in Canada and have proven valuable citizens. If the Japanese were considered undesirable, why should they have been admitted to the country in the first place? Having admitted them in good faith, is it not dishonorable to welch on the agreement, now that we need fear no retaliation from Japan?

In concluding, I would urge that Engineering students pay less attention to their efforts to play the campus "Dead-End K&R's", and more to their moral obligations as potentially influential citizens of Canada.

—F. B. B. Scott,
IV Yr., Dept. 10.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I am a little weary of hearing right-wing people complaining about noisy minorities who express views different from their own. As a matter of fact, any person who expresses himself on any subject is in a minority, since most people lack the courage, the knowledge, and the ability necessary for the expression of any idea.

If Mr. W. G. Lawson, whose letter recently graced this paper, regrets the fact that other right-wing people, which probably includes most of the students of this Torontonian university, have not expressed themselves more copiously, he should not simply blame it on apathy. He should also blame it on ignorance. And ignorant people only get excited when something threatens their selfish interests. The present issues raging on this campus do not threaten their selfish interests, so why should they bother to write letters or do anything?

Finally, I would like to draw to the attention of my right-wing friend that this "vociferous minority" comprises students chiefly in the social sciences. If they have left-wing views, I wonder if their study of the social, political and economic problems of our society could have anything to do with it.

—ALLAN A. PATZ,
IV Pol. Sci. & Econ.

Fairweather
on Yonge

For Gifts

DON'T DELAY
BUY ONE TO-DAY!

A Gift

For Your Room-Mate - -

Quilted Housecoat

Snugly warm . . . beautifully festive! Pastel sprigged florals on gleaming rayon satin. Wide range of sizes . . . From

Second Floor

12.95

"GALLIVANTING"
By VITA RAY

Delicate fragrant cologne with a springlike whiff of flowers

Main Floor

1.50

HAND-WOVEN SQUARES

Soft angora wool, hand-woven in Canada. Range of colors

Main Floor

2.98

WHITE FUR
MITTS

Soft white fur backs, practical leather palms. A sporting or campus gift

Main Floor

3.98

HOURS: 9:30 to 6:00

FAIRWEATHER Limited * 88-90 Yonge Street

VARSLITY POST-TERM DANCE

AT THE BEAUTIFUL LIDO DECK OF THE BRANT INN, BURLINGTON — DANCE TO LEN SALCI AND HIS ORCHESTRA

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20th

This dance to be held in the form of a Christmas Party — Don't wait till the last minute, Make Your Reservations Early.

Admission: $5.00 Per Couple.
This includes Bus Fare.

Buses to leave Bay Street Terminal at 8:00 p.m., December 20

TICKETS ON SALE IN U.C. ROTUNDA
Starting 1:00 p.m., Thursday, December 13

Ski Club Meeting Planned Today Fledglings Will be Shown the Way

By John Rankin

Everybody is interested in skiing these days as it becomes one of the fastest growing sports in the world. Skiing is a sport that does not require great skill to produce fun. Around the campus the University Ski Club has already laid plans to make the sport enjoyable for all.

To this end, arrangements have been made to provide special transportation to Ski Club property, to polish up the clubhouse rendezvous and to provide instructors for organized classes as well as give general instruction and to prepare new maps to guide newcomers. Skiing has at last been recognized as a major sport on the campus and competitive skiers can now earn points for their college towards the Reed trophy. Bigger and better than ever before is the oft-heard expression but the Ski Club hopes to make it a reality this year. In line with this is the big meeting that is to be held today in Room 43 of the Physics Building.

There you will find seats for all to view something new—skiing as it can be done, in technicolor movies of "Skiing at Sun Valley". At this meeting you will find all the guys and pals with whom you will be sliding this coming winter when white is the color of the day. You will hear the latest on competitive skiing and regulations regarding the Intercollegiate team.

Come one and all as this is your club. Remember that everyone is a member of this club, the biggest in the world and it costs you nothing.

The Students' Choice:
BLOOR TAXI
LIMITED
Sub-station at
HARBORD AND ST. GEORGE
R.A. 5151
Switchboard connecting
all branches
For Quick Service ... For Efficiency
CALL US!

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL
10 Avenue Road

MI 6361
WE DELIVER

VARSAITY

Christmas Dance
Saturday, December 22.

ROYAL YORK HOTEL — BANQUET HALL

HORACE LAPP and His Orchestra

Featuring PAT BERRY and RUDY HANSEN

DANCING, 9-12.

TICKETS, $1.00 per Person.

Tickets on sale:

Friday, December 14
Monday, December 18
Tuesday, December 19

12-2 p.m. in the
U.C. Rotunda.

Also on sale at the door the night of the dance.

Medical Service Extended to Vets

Students in receipt of educational benefits from the Department of Veterans' Affairs will have any necessary medical treatment facilitated by a recent arrangement between the Department and the University Health Service.

According to Dr. C. D. Gossage, Health Service Director, any ex-service student in need of medical attention should report to the Health Service rather than to a D.V.A. clinic. The Health Service will arrange for local treatment and hospitalization in the infirmaries in case of minor ailments or injuries.

In case of more serious ailments or injuries the Health Service will arrange with Christie St. Hospital for hospitalization or consultation with a specialist. By using the Health Service facilities eligible students will be able to get a priority for treatment at Christie St.

The Health Service is also in a position to arrange for dental treatment for student veterans.

Dr. Gossage emphasized that by working through the Health Service, treatment will be speeded up in all cases.

Many ex-servicemen are enrolled in courses where payment of a compulsory Health Service fee is not required. To avail themselves of the facilities of the Health Service they can arrange for payment of the fee by D.V.A. through the Bursar's office.

Varsity Tea

'Twas the week before Christmas
And all thru' the Press,
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a cub.

And do you know where they were? They were all up at Wymilwood having tea together and eating all sorts of cookies and sandwiches.

Seriously, all members of The Varsity staff, and all those interested in writing for the paper are invited to attend the tea, which will be at 4:30 next Friday. Members of the masthead will be on hand to welcome newcomers and introduce them to the staff and answer questions.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 1 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of
the Faculty

Correspondence (Continued from page 2)

who take upon themselves all of this extra-curricular activity must obtain the same standards in their studies like all Schoolmen with a 30-34 hour timetable. Yours sincerely,

—JOHN WARD,
S.P.S. 474.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Only the assurance, given earlier this week, that a vote among all the students at S.P.S. similar to the one taken about the School At Home would be taken prevented us from commenting sooner upon the stand of the Engineering Society regarding the Japanese "repatriation."

Apart from the question of right or wrong—and even the most avid advocates of expulsion admit that, morally, they are not in the right—we feel that the 13 to 3 vote of the executive grossly misrepresents student opinion at S.P.S. A quick check in 4th year Engineering Physics, covering three-quarters of the class, showed that all but one undecided man were in favour of the S.A.C. petition. As further evidence we may perhaps add that when Toke Oike in its School Dinner edition came out against sending the Japanese back, only a sprinkling of dissent was heard from all the Schoolmen attending.

The reason for this discrepancy of our findings of student opinion at S.P.S. and the executive's vote may perhaps be explained if one remembers that none of them is elected on any platform. In fact, if by any criterion other than the volume of publicity they command, it is on their ability to arrange dances, dinners and the finances of the society that they hold office.

This is not the place and time to suggest remedies for that situation, but what we want to emphasize is that in spite of our reputation, by no means all Schoolmen are "reactionaries" and that it is our belief that a majority at S.P.S. supports wholeheartedly the petition of the S.A.C. for a fair treatment of the Japanese-Canadians.

—NEIL I. HEENAN
PETER W. NEURATH
IV S.P.S.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I find I have an unpleasant duty to perform but nevertheless feel the present circumstances warrant it.

In upholding the stand taken by the Engineering faculty with regard to the Japanese situation as recorded in The Varsity of Friday, December 7, I do so with several distinct lines of reasoning.

(1) A goodly number of the students at S.P.S. are ex-servicemen and therefore able to give a decision in this matter without any "theoretical book reading" or "paper talk" to influence their ideas, but actual experiences.

(2) The 1,650 students at S.P.S. are male students and to my mind are better equipped to make a decision than several other colleges and faculties I could mention, made up of 50 percent women.

(3) Since when is it a black dastardly trick, a blot upon School to stand upon your hind legs and voice your true and weighted decision upon a matter such as this, instead of following the leader like a bunch of sheep.

As editor-in-chief you should have some control over the policy of your night editor. Referring to Mr. E. Simon's letter in the correspondence column of December 7, he used his position to take a crack at S.P.S. He had no right to place an article, written by himself, in this column. In addition, what does a graduate of 473 know about the conditions that exist? Is he in touch with campus life and thought? What right has a graduate to air his personal views in our undergraduate newspaper?

—DUNCAN A. WHITE,
IV Civil Engineering.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

As an Engineering student, I was deeply disgusted to read in Friday's Varsity that the student body of the Engineering Society had gone on record with the unenviable distinction of being the only such group on the campus which rejects the idea of supporting the S.A.C. petition and by implication favors the Government action in "railroading" Japanese-Canadians out of the country.

To my knowledge, no attempt was made by the executive of the Engineering Society to obtain representative samples of student opinion, before arbitrarily voting down the S.A.C. petition and committing themselves and their fellow-students to a vicious, reactionary, unchristian stand. Had a student vote been taken, it is certain that a substantial proportion of Engineering students would have declared themselves uncompromisingly opposed to any discrimination against Japanese-Canadians.

The moral principles involved in this

(Continued on page 4)

ALEXANDRA TONIGHT AT 8:20
Matinees Wed. and Sat. at 2:20
Box Office Open 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

THE SHOCKING TRUTH
EXTRA STRAIGHT FROM THE HEADLINES OF EVERY NEWSPAPER!!!
Pick-up Girl

CAST OF 25! DIRECT FROM SEASON ON BROADWAY!

EVGS: 50c, $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50. WED. MAT.: 50c, $1, $1.50 SAT. MAT.: 50c, $1, $1.50, $2. (Plus Tax.) No Phone Orders

smoke the mild
cigarette

Buckingham

Virginia Dare says: "They'll Be Warmly Appreciated Christmas Gifts"

HOUSECOATS—BEDJACKETS—PYJAMAS

1.98 to 10.98

Pick a glamorous gift from the big selection at Virginia Dare . . . almost as many to choose from as there are stars in the Christmas sky . . . and there'll be stars in her eyes, Christmas morning, when she sees any or all of these—

A—A HOUSECOAT in a dainty floral print with the color accent on blue, pink or mauve. Sizes 14 to 46 6.98

B—A CHENILLE BED CAPE, petal-soft, in her favorite pastel shade 2.98

C—A BEDJACKET—feather-light in quilted cotton, pink or blue, with dainty bows for an extra touch of allure—Small, Medium, Large 2.98

D—PYJAMAS—the kind that wear and wear. In blue 1.98

E—A GIFT HOUSECOAT—designed for fire-side evenings, in wine or royal blue, expressing the warmth of your greetings. Sizes 14 to 46—10.98

"Help a Veteran and his Family Find a Place to Live."

A STORE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Virginia Dare

New and Entrenous

Shuster And Wayne Talk

By Ross McLean

"Sure," said Johnny Wayne. "Fine," agreed Frank Shuster. Let the students, they had suggested, visit the CBC studios this Friday to see their "Johnny Home Show". "They can," said Johnny, "get free tickets at the S.A.C. office." "Sure," agreed Frank.

U.N.T.D.

All U.N.T.D. ratings, with the exception of those who have applied for discharge, will parade at 17:00 Thursday, December 13, 1945. Rear entrance to drill hall, 119 St. George Street, to be used.

Rig of the day, No. 3's with lanyards.

All ratings are to bring Seaman-ship manuals.

Ship's office will be closed from 16:30 Friday, December 21, until 09:00, January 3, 1946. Ratings are advised to watch the notice boards in Hart House in the event of any important announcements.

The following ratings who are to appear before the Preliminary Officer Candidates selection Boards are to report to Ship's Office prior to 12:00, Thursday, December 13, 1945, without fail (R) without fail.

Naylor, H. K.
Fraser, D. A.
McIntyre, L. B.
Johnston, William, V-75858.
Shubik, Martin.
Norris, D. K.

P.T. CREDITS

At the meeting of the Athletic Directorate held on November 27th it was agreed that for the current session only, full credit in Physical Training be given to students enrolled in the U. N. T. D. and the C. O. T. C., provided their work with these organizations is reported as satisfactory at the end of the session.

RETURN OF UNIFORMS

All members of COTC who are not taking training now are required to return all articles of clothing and equipment issued to them, to 119 St. George St., immediately. Q.M. Stores hours: Mon. to Fr. 0900 hrs to 1645 hrs Saturdays 0900 hrs to 1245 hrs Note: Q.M. Stores will be closed for the seven days 24 to 30 Dec. 45.

Brown, N. L.

(Signed) D. A. F. ROBINSON,
Lieutenant-Commander (SB) RCNVR,
Commanding Officer U.N.T.D.

Sports Calandar

LACROSSE	Final: 5:00	Med. I	PHE. Duncan, Sheppard
Thurs., Dec. 13:
SWIM LEAGUE	Final: 5:00		Moffat, Burt-Gerrans
VOLLEYBALL	Semifinals: 1:00	Knox A or PHE I or Swin, Lyon
	4:00	Jr. U.C. SPS. III
		U.C. V or PHE. II or Brishin, Lyon
		III SPS. For. B
Fri., Dec. 14	Final: 4:00

SKIERS — ATTENTION!

A GENERAL MEETING will be held today (Wednesday), December 13, 5:00 p.m. Room 43, Physics Building. VARSITY SKI CLUB BADGES will be on sale. MOVIES (3 reels): SUN VALLEY SKIING, in colour.

REFEREES — ATTENTION!

Fees for Rugby and Soccer can be collected in Athletic Office now! Fees for Lacrosse, Swim League and Volleyball will be paid on Tuesday, December 18. Referees are still wanted for Hockey, Basketball and Water Polo. Apply at Athletic Office.

JR. SWIM MEET

ALL SWIMMERS IN THE FOLLOWING EVENTS REPORT AT POOL FOR PRELIMINARY HEATS — THURSDAY, DECEMBER 13, 4:00 P.M.:
50 Free — 100 Free — 100 Back — 200 Breast — 300 Free
Finals: Friday, December 14th, 7:30 p.m.

THE VARSITY BASKETBALL GAME
SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT (WEDNESDAY)
HAS BEEN CANCELLED.

JR. BOXING AND WRESTLING TOURNAMENT

BOXING—Wednesday, Dec. 13	5:00 p.m.	All first round bouts in 135-145 lb. class. Also second round bouts in 155-165 lb. class.
Thurs., Dec. 13	5:00 p.m.	Semi-final bouts in all weights.
Fri., Dec. 14	8:00 p.m.	Final bouts in all weights in Main Gym.
WRESTLING—Thurs., Dec. 13	5:00 p.m.	Semi-final bouts in all weights.
Fri., Dec. 14	8:00 p.m.	Final bouts in all weights in Main Gym.

INTRAMURAL HOCKEY PRACTICES

Mon., Dec. 17	7:00-7:30	Dent
Wd., Dec. 19	4:00	Trin.
	4:30	Forestry

Athletic Fee Privileges

SKIING—

The U. of T. Ski cabin and trails are situated near Glendale, King Township, about 4 miles west of Newmarket. Secure trail maps at the Athletic Office, Hart House.

All men and women students entitled to Athletic fee privileges are automatically members of the U. of T. Ski Club. Badges can be secured at the Athletic Office on presentation of Registration Card with Athletic portion attached.

The Athletic Association has again made arrangements with the Toronto Ski Club making it possible for students to apply for senior membership in the Toronto Ski Club at a special reduced fee of $2.00. New members must pay an entrance fee of $5.00. These application forms can only be secured at the Athletic Office, Hart House, on presentation of Registration Card.

In order to insure receiving Toronto Ski Club badge for use during the holiday season your application should be completed immediately. January 6, 1946, is the deadline for all applicants.

Guest fees shall not be credited to any membership. Refunds shall not be made on guest tickets. Duplicate badges shall not be supplied.

SKATING—

Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and every afternoon, weather permitting, on presentation of registration card with Athletic Portion attached. Free checking.

IMPERIAL OPTICAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT

A Union Statement

The United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers and its Local 514 wholeheartedly thank the many supporters of the Imperial Optical strikers--the Clergy, the University Students, other Labor Unions and the Public generally, for their splendid contribution to the Settlement of this strike.

THE IMPERIAL OPTICAL WORKERS WENT ON STRIKE FOR A UNION AGREEMENT AND IMPROVEMENTS IN WAGES AND WORKING CONDITIONS

THE STRIKERS WON:

1. A SIGNED UNION AGREEMENT embodying a full procedure for grievance settlement and a recognized stewards' system, full seniority protection, check-off, etc., as set out in the unanimous recommendation of the Government Board of Conciliation.
2. WAGE INCREASES directed by the Ontario Regional War Labor Board embodying increases ranging from 5c per hour to 20c per hour, 5c per hour night shift bonus, improved vacation plan, time and a half for overtime, etc.
3. ALL STRIKERS RETURNED TO WORK WITHOUT DISCRIMINATION.

The Strike Was Won Because:

The justness of our cause was fully recognized by the public, the clergy, the university students and other labor unions.

The union thanks these groups for their supporting action and gives MAJOR credit to these groups for complete victory in this strike.

The union because of its full victory in this strike, on the company's insistence, agreed to the issuance of a joint press release. The contents of that release were dictated by the company's desire to re-establish its public position. The union, anxious to lay the basis for future harmonious relations in keeping with its established policy — while not admitting the allegations of the company — was prepared to assist the company publicly.

The company has stated publicly on many occasions that they would not sign an agreement with Local 514. The International Union always accepts full responsibility for all contracts signed by any of its Locals.

The union in the interests of good relations and because of satisfactory settlement of all the points at issue agreed that the collective bargaining agreement would be between the International Union and the company.

The Imperial Optical workers continue to be members of Local 514, which Local has a long record of good relations with many important companies in Toronto.

Responsibility for future harmonious relations rests fully with the company. The public at large has fully vindicated the position of the union and the strikers. The public will now sit in judgment on the good faith of the company.

United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America

DISTRICT FIVE COUNCIL—
C. S. JACKSON, President. GEO. HARRIS, Secretary.
Treasurer. ROSS RUSSELL, Director of Organization.

LOCAL UNION 514, U.E.R. & M.W.A.—
GEO. ALDRIDGE, President. H. KIRKPATRICK, Secretary. J. OSBORNE, Treasurer.

HURRA!

Der Weihnachts-mann Kommt

to the annual

German Club Christmas Party

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, AT 8:00 P.M.
ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE, Devonshire Place

1. Christmas Story.
2. Topical Debate on: "IS SANTA CLAUS HERE TO STAY"

In case of an affirmative decision:

DANCING 3 SANTA CLAUS
APFELWEIN

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

BE SMARTLY TURNED OUT!!

Now! Reserve your Formal Clothes for Holiday Festivities. Let Freeman's outfit you completely and correctly.

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, KI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near WELLESLEY, KI. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES OPEN EVENINGS

These Flying Co-eds Sing "Me Over Miami"

By Wally Belfry

Last week the girls spent $25 ("We don't know where all the money went!") and they only travelled the 3,100 miles from Toronto to Buffalo to Pensacola to Orlando to Miami to Washington to Detroit and home.

No particular destination in mind, Audrey "Toby" Tobias, II Trinity, and Marion Anglin, I O.C.E., set out knowing only that they had to be back for an exam a week away.

Wearing W.R.C.N.S. uniforms legally for 30 post-discharge days, the girls hitch-hiked to a Buffalo airport where the uniforms admitted them to free air-travel.

Four and a half hours later Toby and Marion landed in Pensacola, Florida, site of the greatest U.S. naval-air base. "We were belles of the ball in the U.S.O.," they say. They were instantly surrounded by servicepeople asking "Did you have to wear black stockings? and Say something else,—let's hear you talk!"

In Miami the girls spent three full days and late evenings. A sight-seeing tour taught them that "grapefruit grow in clusters of three!" They even saw a rubber-tree, but Toby weeps "I'm so mad. I think I looked at the wrong tree!"

Appalled to indignant action, the girls sat in the Negro section of street-cars—that is, until they found the Negroes couldn't sit there with them!

Adjusted to a cargo-plane's last few available inches, they were alarmed when a door swung open in their baggage space. What could be done except to hold breath (so it wouldn't fall through the open hatch)? Finally a timid suggestion that—um—well, the crew might lose their—er—cargo if they didn't close that hatch!

REVERSIBLE PARKAS... Red Wool Lined

Here are parkas that you, can change to suit the weather or the occasion. They're sand cotton gabardine on one side, backed by a bright red, heavy all wool material, with pockets inside and out, reversible, wolf trimmed detachable hood and snug fitting, elastic waist. Sizes 36 to 44 EACH.

26.50

PHONE TR. 5111.

MAIN STORE, SECOND FLOOR

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

JOINT RELEASE CONCERNING STRIKE AT Imperial Optical Co. Lens Plant

At 6.30 P.M., Wednesday, December 5th, the Following Release Was Authorized by United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America Through Its President, Mr. C. S. Jackson, Who Is Also an International Officer of the Said Union, and the Imperial Optical Company Through Its President, Mr. Percy Hermant.

1. TERMINATION OF STRIKE.

The Parties are pleased to announce that the strike at the Imperial Optical Company lens plant, Ontario and Dundas Streets, has been terminated and that all the Company employees at that plant will at once return to work.

2. GOODWILL AND CO-OPERATIVE SPIRIT.

Mr. C. S. Jackson, President of District 5 of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America, has had discussions recently with both Mr. Percy Hermant and Mr. Sydney Hermant and wishes to thank them for the goodwill and co-operative spirit in arriving at an operative agreement which is mutually satisfactory to both parties.

3. UNION REGRETS DEPLORABLE AND IRRESPONSIBLE STATEMENTS AND ALLEGATIONS.

Mr. Jackson, on behalf of the Union, wishes to publicly announce that he sincerely regrets that the negotiations between the Union and the Company were such that many statements and allegations made by some participants and supporters of the Union, both during negotiations and in the course of the strike, against the Imperial Optical Company, Mr. Percy Hermant and Mr. Sydney Hermant, were deplorable and in some cases unfounded and highly irresponsible.

4. NO CONTRACTUAL RELATIONS WITH LOCAL 514

The Parties have agreed that the undertakings and commitments shall in the future be between the International Union of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America and the Company with no contractual relations with Local 514.

5. REPORT OF CONCILIATION BOARD AND LAW

There is apparently some ambiguity in the minds of some people regarding the many statements made during the period of the strike. To clarify the same both parties wish to say, that the report of the Conciliation Board only recommended that certain suggestions be adopted, but there was no directive that they must be accepted either by the Union or the Company and that failure to accept the recommendations by either party is not contrary to law.

6. REMEDY INJUSTICES

The Union further wishes to say that it will do everything within its power to remedy any injustice that may have been done to the Imperial Optical Company, its personnel or to either Mr. Percy Hermant or Mr. Sydney Hermant, and is certain that harmonious labour relations will now prevail between the Union and the Company.

7. IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY STATEMENT.

The Company wishes to thank Mr. Jackson and Mr. George Harris, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, for their wholehearted co-operation in negotiating the settlement of this unfortunate strike and is pleased that the strike has been terminated, though it sincerely regrets the inconvenience, indignities and losses that were suffered by so many of its employees.

Imperial Optical Co.
TORONTO

A FEW GOOD SEATS LEFT FOR

"Les Femmes Savantes"

By Molière

TODAY, 8:30 p.m.
HART HOUSE THEATRE

Tickets 11-1, U.C. Rotunda.
75c 2-4, Hart House Box Office.

TRINITY COLLEGE CHAPEL

Sunday, December 16th

11 a.m.: NINE LESSON CAROL SERVICE

An ancient traditional Carol Service of Readings of the Christmas Story interspersed with Carols.

Solist: Mrs. John Smart.
The public are invited to attend.

NOTICE

Advance ticket sale for Varsity Christmas Dance, Royal York Hotel, in U.C. Rotunda, Dec. 14, 18, 19, 12-2 p.m.

HAMILTON STUDENTS

Ticket sale for Letterman's Christmas Dance is restricted this year. I have a few on hand till Dec. 16th. If you plan to attend, please call OL. 0465 for your ticket.

LOST

Large farm lantern from Informal Party, Nov. 24th, at 127 Bloor St. W. Please phone KI. 3957.

LOST

Onyx ring with three pearls, between Medical Bldg. Reading Room and Whitney Hall, Tues. afternoon. Reward. Mary Higley, MI. 2037.

LOST

15 minutes' studying time from 7:30-7:45 p.m. because I'm going to listen to S.S. from Dial 580.

FUR COAT

Raccoon coat for sale, excellent condition. Size 16. Very reasonable. GL. 7067.

LOST

Brown leather wallet containing a number of urgently needed papers, Monday night between Varsity Arena and Hoskin. Finder leave at S.A.C. office or phone KI. 1377.

LOST

Set of drafting instruments, vicinity S.P.S., Tuesday morning. Finder please leave at S.A.C. office, or phone JU. 9136.

FRESHETTES

You can have a comfortable vacation, winter sports, time to rest. Healthy, beautiful surroundings. Limited reservations. Phone immediately. MO. 4962.

WANTED URGENTLY

Copy of A SURVEY OF EUROPEAN CIVILIZATION by Ferguson and Bruun. Phone G. Scott, MO. 1459.

FOR SALE

Remington portable typewriter, best condition. Phone Wally Belfry, HY. 4608, or Varsity News Office.

LOST

Billfold containing registration card and $10.00 bill, Monday night, 6-8, between University Library and Wymilwood. HU. 1313.

WAXIE

EXTENDS TO ALL STUDENTS

The Warmest Season's Greetings and leaves you with the appropriate reminder that "Giving becomes Entertainment — when Entertainment is Given."

The Campus Record Bar

658 Spadina Avenue
at Harbord

RA. 3636

"Let Us Put Good Wax In Your Ears"

THE GOLD AND BLUE OF THE P.B.C. PRESENTS...

Thursday,
Dec. 20th

Ye Yuletide Yump

... At CASA LOMA

MUSIC STYLED BY BOBBY GIMBY $1.75 Per Couple

S.P.S. JIM SERVICE	4T8
S.P.S. GORD JOHNSTON	4T8
MED. TONY STANLEY	5T1
U.C. JOHN DOLL	4T9
VIC. ED GREEN	4T8
VIC. KEITH DAVEY	4T9

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

CHRISTMAS LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1945

First Prize, Short Story

It Isn't Forever

Harold Andrews

HE WAS putting an extended coda, soft and high in the treble, on "Sophisticated Lady", when he saw her come in and take a table near the piano. The man was one he hadn't seen before, but then he had never seen her with the same man twice. This one, like all the others, had the blank, well-tailored self-assurance, the bored, knowing expression that goes with too much money and a complete lack of anxiety.

While his fingers drew idle, Debussyan chord patterns on the keys, Paulie knew without looking at her or even thinking about it, really, that she was watching him and listening with that calm, intent way she had for the thing in his music that she wanted and needed, the thing only he could give her now. He knew that was why she came every night to hear him play.

Someone had introduced them at a society party where he had played. That had been two weeks ago. It was too dangerous, coming out into the open like that, but he had needed the extra money badly. At first, the instinctive mistrust that had become so natural a part of him now had made him misinterpret her friendliness completely. He had figured her for a bored debutante out for some fun, but he knew now that it wasn't that way. And it gave him a funny twist that he could not put into words because he knew, too, that if he let it matter too much, they would both lose, things being the way they were. So after a while he put her out of his mind and began to fill in the empty places with music, the way he had always done with the other things when he had lost them.

As the girl went slowly away from him, the music came back into it again and with it came a dull, un-punctuated buzz that became, little by little, louder, until it was like a harmonic overtone to the music itself; the noise of a cheap night-club; of the people who had no understanding of his music; of the people who tried too hard and too often to have a good time, and so missed the thing that might have helped them in their actual loneliness. Then he no longer heard this, either, and only the music remained.

He was aware now that his left hand was laying down a soft, deceptive, simple beat in D Flat and taking it up with his right he segued into Body and Soul. The first time through he played it like that, soft and steady, not doing much with it, just letting it get the feel of his hands. Going into the second chorus, he let the bass get a little more complicated, the beat growing in intensity by its perseverance. The right hand began to move restlessly into little discordant patterns that were whimsical answers to the austere statement of the bass, until the two themes emerged, each different and yet both of them held together and complemented by the other. But as he finished the chorus, his mood changed suddenly. His tall, thin body moved forward a little towards the keyboard. Then knocking it apart with a vicious right hand arpeggio, he rocked it for three choruses, riffed it, socked it with solid, altered chords, taking the key up a semi-tone on each chorus. He felt good now, free and loose and easy, and when he finished his set even the drunks were applauding.

He didn't look at the girl.

The spot's regular six-piece outfit went on the stand and began to tune up. Paulie was through for the night. He went over to the bar for a drink before going back to his room and he was trying to decide Scotch or Rye when he saw her coming toward him, tall and slim and very beautiful in that magazine cover way, with her hair piled on top of her head like that, and the Florida tan still smooth and warm over her pleasant, regular features. She was alone.

"Hello, Paulie."

"Hello kid. What'll it be?"

"Scotch and soda, please."

"Two Scotch with soda," he said to the bartender.

He tapped a cigarette out of the pack for her, took one himself. He fumbled in his pocket for a match, but she beat him to it, coaxing flame from a little silver lighter. He could tell at a glance that it cost more than he would earn in a month of playing music for drunks and their girl friends. He leaned down to light his cigarette and tried to keep it casual, but it didn't work. Her eyes held him for just a moment, but it was long enough. The hair-trigger sense of danger, the mistrust, were suddenly there again. His face was hard and masked. He said in a flat voice:

"How've you been?"

"I'm fine, Paulie. Just fine. And you?"

"I get by."

The girl said: "You played wonderfully tonight, Paulie. I've never heard you play less than good."

"I wasn't so hot a couple of weeks ago at Mrs. Anderson's."

"It wasn't right for you, was it?"

"No. I feel looser in a joint like this. I don't know why."

She said: "I think I can understand that."

The bartender set their drinks down in front of them. Neither of them said anything for a while. Without actually looking at her he was watching her, trying to think of a way to stop it before he got any more involved in it. Then she said:

"Did you ever do any concert work, Paulie?"

(Continued on page 7)

Psychoanalysis

E. F. Cooke

Opinion Polls, Better Wire Service, Fruits Of Campus Editors' Parley

London, Ont.,—(CUP)—A revamped system of wire communication between members of the Canadian University Press to provide speedier and more efficient coverage of student activities was agreed upon at the annual National Conference on Dec. 21, 22, and 23. The University of Western Ontario, London, was host to the delegates representing 17 university and college papers from all parts of Canada. This conference was the first at which all member papers have been represented.

According to initial plans the McGill Daily, Montreal, The Varsity, Toronto, and The Manitoban, Winnipeg, will operate as regional headquarters collecting, editing, and distributing daily news bulletins by wire to all member papers within their areas. It is hoped that this service will maintain constant communication between universities and colleges throughout Canada. Charles Wasserman, chairman of the meeting and editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, which is this year's president of CUP, announced the possibility of sending student news of national importance over CP wires. Negotiations with CP officials are now under way.

A CUP Institute of Student Opinion to conduct scientific polls on matters of student interest was established by the conference. Alan Gray, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal will be in charge. A separate poll is to be conducted by the University of Western Ontario which will be an exhaustive survey of student standards of living over the period of one month. This is intended to determine the cost of University attendance across Canada and is information which university officials concerned

(Continued on page 4)

Members of the Canadian University Press Conference in session at the University of Western Ontario yesterday afternoon. Seated, from left to right, are Lou Leonowens and Mary Goddes, representatives of the University of Western Ontario; Eleanor Hanna, of McGill, secretary of the conference; Charles Wasserman, editor-in-chief of The McGill Daily and president of C.U.P.; Al Brule, editor-in-chief of the U. of W.O. Gazette; Henry Durost, of the University of New Brunswick, and

Herman Leseur, of Mount Allison. Standing, left to right, are Donald McFarlane, of Saskatchewan; Paul Cr  peau, of Ottawa; Dave McQueen, of Winnipeg; Hershl Adlerstein, of Montreal; Owen Cauley, of Saint Francis Xavier; Mardee Dundas, of U. of British Columbia; Alex Farquhar, of Dalhousie University; Bill Clark, of the U. of Alberta; Hugh Kenner, of Varsity; Donald Tapley, of Acadia University; Walter Riese, of Bishop's University; Andr   Bissonnette, of the University of Montreal, and Alan Gray, of Queen's University.

Second Prize, Short Story

Lost

Eva Maguire

THE child institute had stressed no don't's so much but really, the child was always doing a don't... like this being late when she had said four-thirty distinctly. But she wasn't a child—the last lecturer had talked on the pre-adolescent and that was what ten-year-olds were. You had to be particularly careful with pre-adolescents because they were even more between the ages than all the other ages that were between the ages—or something like that—anyway she had it all down in point form in her notebook. And there had been something about cultivation of independence—that was meeting Susan downtown like this instead of calling for her at school... but fifteen minutes late, she was a dawdler though, always preoccupied. That was Susan's problem she supposed and all the pre-adolescents had similar problems, what had that man said—something about, yes, wanting to grow up, wear lipstick... (she herself hadn't dreamt of using a lipstick until she was sixteen)... and they mustn't be expected to... but you could surely expect them to be on time—or at least not more than twenty minutes late. She couldn't have been kept in at school, Susan was really a clever child... or should she be saying clever girl now that she was ten... really outstanding in her class. And usually so thoughtful, though forgetting about time like this was not... she would really say something quite severe this time. But then alienation was the danger in the mother-daughter relationship in pre-adolescence—that was the way the lecturer had put it. She had felt her nerves quiver when he said that because there had been Susan's birthday party the week before—and the way the child had looked at her when she had tried to quiet that wild screaming hide and seek... she had thought a nice sing-song... She had never felt any alienation from her mother, nothing but... well had she felt anything when she was only ten... she couldn't really remember.

Another street-car and still no sign of Susan—could anything have happened... she had said four thirty at Smiths... and this was... Bartlett's, not the right spot. She bunted her way through the crowd to the next street, down a block and across... there was Susan beside the big pillar, she had waited... she could see the little gray squirrel cape, she didn't know she had worn it to school, it was really for Sundays... she did love to look grown-up... just as she had said, pre-adolescence...

Mrs. Baxter descended upon her daughter with a torrent of half sentences and excuses. But she had forgotten her glasses and not until she was actually upon the fur-caped little girl did she see the great tears sliding down streaked cheeks, the panic-eyes of a lost child.

CHRISTMAS LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Published annually by the Students' Administrative Council as a supplement to the undergraduate daily.

Editor-in-chief.....W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Business Manager.....E. A. Macdonald, B.A.
Night Editors: Hugh Kenner, Peggy Bates

between the Union and the Company.

7. IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

The Company wishes to thank Mr. Jackson and Mr. George Harris, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, for their wholehearted co-operation in negotiating the settlement of this unfortunate strike and is pleased that the strike has been terminated, though it sincerely regrets the inconvenience, indignities and losses that were suffered by so many of its employees.

Imperial Optical Co.
TORONTO

The Winners

PROSE

Judge: Professor F. E. L. Priestley.

First prize short story: Harold Andrews.

Second Prize: Eva Maguire, Bob Endleman (equal).

Honorable Mention: Robert Weaver, Henry

Kreisel, A. G. McKay.

No non-fiction prize was awarded.

VERSE

Judge: Professor E. J. Pratt

First Prize Poetry: D. G. Lockhead.

Second Prize: Harold Andrews.

Honorable Mention: W. H. B. Robinson.

First Prize Light Verse: Pamela Skeete.

Second Prize Light Verse: Martin Shubik.

Honorable Mention: Percy James.

ART

Judge: Mr. John A. Hall

First Prize: E. F. Cooke.

Second Prize: William Fairley.

Honorable Mention: Isabel Goldberg.

(War Memorial Award to be announced.)

Second Prize, Short Story

Insomnia

Bob Endleman

TWISTING, turning. "And where's all this taking us—this college business?... the grad's a neurotic in a philistine society..."

"What, the hell, have another drink!..."

"... Look at the perversions of sex in our society... the thousand ways we're cramped and clamped down on—can't give expression—damn disjointed chaotic society! Natural impulses twisted... No! You can't do that! No one's stopping you, but if you do it—well, you'll feel all sick inside, afterwards... Bohemian! Ha! It's all superficial, a glaze over the mind!..."

Talk, talk, talk.

So much talking. Restaurants at midnight. Nearly every night. Intellectual stimulation? A bevy, a flux, of groping intellects, discussing—disgusting!

(Discussing — disgusting! Yes, words!)

Ruminating ideas in our intellectual cuds. Ideas. Disjointed thoughts, "tentative" (always tentative) analyses, wild generalizations, unintegrated and disintegrated integrations. Groping.

Mind, the Absolute — question mark?

Damn that draft! Gotta shut that window—a bit anyhow—but then'll be all groggy in the morning—better half freeze.

"... I don't get it at all. It's crazy... the way she half squealed in her usually hushed melodic voice. "University is making me doubt everything I ever believed in!"

Ha! Child! Only now discovering that! — But she's only eighteen... Snob that I am! Pinnacles I want! Yes, cynical pinnacles!"

"... But you can't expect everyone to be always mouthing pearls of wisdom! You're not always so intellectual yourself, you know."

Yes, foolish, Faustian. Wanting to devour the world—or at least your own narrow sectarian view of it.

Talking.

Talking with budding authors about the books they're going to write. Young idealists masking themselves with a cynicism about the chances of a young writer breaking into print, while all along each and every one of them is certain that his is the genius the world is looking for—like Wolfe, that he's just a step, a door, away from that glory, that fame, that in lip-service to "art-for-art" he scorns!

Talking.

Talking about curricular sectarianism—the vainglorious ludicrousness of "intellectuals" immersed in their private specialized fields, deaf and blind to the million other points of view...

What the hell's wrong with this sheet? Gets all twisted...

Can't go to sleep...

Nice the way she had her hair tonight. Different somehow. But disappointing when I touched it. Wonder why?

Talking about women's clothes and how they reflect position of women of the time... erotic significance of bare calves?... what's that got to do with it?... Go to sleep.

Count sheep. Na, crazy. Go to sleep.

Did I wind my watch—and set the alarm? Watches with alarms? Crazy... Go to sleep. Should be tired enough.

Talking. Never so much in all my life. They said I drone sometimes—most of the time—maybe even

(Continued on page 4)

The Waning Moon

Robert Hall

Glue Factory

Douglas Valleau

The cooking up of glue worse stinketh
Than any smell I've smelt, methinketh.
How do those who work herein
Ever stand the stench within
That seems so bad without?

I guess, when they've been here a while,
They come to like this odor vile
And, should they pass a bed of roses,
They would gasp and hold their noses
And pity us, no doubt.

OL. 0465 for your ticket.

GL. 7067.

MO. 1459.

LOST

Large farm lantern from Informal Party, Nov. 24th, at 127 Bloor St. W. Please phone KI. 3957.

LOST

Onyx ring with three pearls, between Medical Bldg. Reading Room and Whitney Hall, Tues. afternoon. Reward. Mary Higley, MI. 2037.

LOST

Brown leather wallet containing a number of urgently needed papers, Monday night between Varsity Arena and Hoskin. Finder leave at S.A.C. office or phone KI. 1377.

LOST

Set of drafting instruments, vicinity S.P.S., Tuesday morning. Finder please leave at S.A.C. office, or phone JU. 9136.

FOR SALE

Remington portable typewriter, best condition. Phone Wally Belfry, HY. 4608, or Varsity News Office.

LOST

Billfold containing registration card and $10.00 bill, Monday night, 6-8, between University Library and Wymilwood. HU. 1313.

THE GOLD AND BLUE OF THE P.B.C. PRESENTS...

Thursday,
Dec. 20th

Ye Yuletide Yump

... At CASA LOMA

... MUSIC STYLED BY BOBBY GIMBY $1.75 Per Couple

S.P.S. JIM SERVICE 4T8
S.P.S. GORD JOHNSTON 4T8
MED. TONY STANLEY 5T1
U.C. JOHN DOLL 4T9
VIC. ED GREEN 4T8
VIC. KEITH DAVEY 4T5

One Sunday

Henry Kreisel

HE had at last prevailed upon Paul to take her and Johnny for a ride in the car. She had a way of getting what she wanted, and sometimes he hated her for it.

It was a Sunday afternoon early in March, and the air was crisp and fresh and had a promise of spring in it. Paul went to the garage at the back of the house and drove the car to the front. She was waiting on the side-walk, and when the car came round she picked Johnny up and got in. Johnny was happy. He was four years old, and he loved the car. He immediately grabbed hold of the wheel and tried to turn it. Then he made a tremendous effort to blow the horn, and finally succeeded with the help of his father. He was delighted and repeated the process again and again, laughing and shrieking every time he heard the toot-toot, until Paul said: "Take him away, Eve, or we'll never get started."

The little boy looked very much like his mother. He had blond, curly hair, and large blue eyes. He had inherited her mischievous look, and her gay, easy laughter. He kept watching the road intently for a while, pointing out cats and dogs on the side-walk with a voice so filled with wonder that it seemed he had never seen such animals before, and his voice rose to an ecstatic shout whenever he saw a squirrel scamper across the road and take refuge high up in a leafless tree.

She sat bent forward in her seat, taking the keenest interest in the little boy's game, entering into it wholeheartedly, not in the condescending manner of adults, but like a child playing with a child.

Paul was feeling uncomfortable. He liked to idle around the house on Sunday afternoons, stretched out in a comfortable armchair, with the radio playing softly, and a newspaper spread out before him, which eventually dropped down on the floor when he fell asleep. He hated to drive around aimlessly at any time, but especially on a Sunday afternoon. Now and then he glanced at his wife and child, and he could not help smiling. They made a pretty picture. Eve is beautiful, he thought, she's like a child. That's why she can get away with murder; that's why she can make me raving mad and I can never be really angry at her. He let the window down, and the fresh March breeze slipped in and began to play with the child's golden curls. After a while Johnny got tired of playing with his mother, and rested passively in her lap. Only occasionally did he take the trouble to point out a particularly striking object, but his voice had lost its excitement and enthusiasm, and the sense of triumph was gone from it. Any new discoveries were registered merely by a resigned statement, accompanied by a hesitatingly stretched-out finger which was often withdrawn in mid-air. The monotonous motion of the car, moving swiftly and smoothly along the almost deserted streets of the city, put the child gently to sleep.

Paul drove on listlessly, avoiding a sidelong glance, because he did not feel like talking. He wanted to get home. After a while Eve said: "Close the window, please. Johnny'll catch a cold."

He did as she told him. Then he turned to her.

"Have we had enough fresh air now, dear? And if we have, can we go home again?"

"Oh, no. Don't let's go home yet. I love to drive in the car. You know I do. Johnny does, too."

"Johnny's sleeping. He wouldn't know the difference."

"Oh yes, he would. If you'd stop the car this minute, he'd wake up immediately." She paused and looked at him. His eyes were straight on the road, and he didn't say anything. "You're mad, aren't you? You're mad because I made you come out. You're so selfish, Paul." Her voice became very soft, and it took on a tinge of regret, and almost of sorrow, as though she were talking of something that was irrecoverably lost.

He laughed. It was a laughter compounded of irony and amusement, and dipped into sarcasm. "If I am selfish," he said, "then what are you? I don't think you've ever done anything for anybody unless you happened to like doing it."

"That's a dirty lie. When you were sick last year, who nursed you, and did everything for you?"

"You did, that's quite true, but then you just loved doing it. You liked to see yourself in the role of the martyred wife. In fact you loved it so much that you were positively sorry when I got better. And while I was sick you did your damndest to make yourself believe that I was almost dying, and what's more, you tried to make me believe it, too."

"Paul, that's - that's - that's - you're hateful. But if you do fall sick again, I swear I'll let you die without lifting a finger."

"Thank you for warning me so far in advance. I must say that's nice of you, and really extremely fair."

"You will fall sick if you insist on staying home on such a beautiful day instead of getting some fresh air. Oh, if you could only see yourself on a Sunday afternoon, sprawled out all over the place, your arms dangling down over the sides of your chair as though they didn't belong to you at all. And that's what you call enjoying yourself."

"What if I do? I'm getting a kick out of it."

"You are getting a kick out of it! And what about me? I'm to be your slave and do everything you want without saying a word, I s'pose? It's like being shut up in prison with you being the warden. And if I ask you to take me out, you screw up your face as though I'd asked you. God knows what. And I haven't asked you in months."

"You couldn't very well expect me to drive you round when the roads were all blocked with snow, could you?"

"No, I couldn't. And I wouldn't have asked you to-day either. I'd just have stayed in my little prison. And I'm not going to ask you again. And when you ask me to go out with you, I'll not go with you, so you'd better not ask me."

Inscrutable

Isabel Goldberg

"Don't work yourself into such a furor, dear, or you're going to wake Johnny up, even without my stopping the car." He was amused by the whole thing. Somehow he enjoyed making her mad.

"You can stop the car for all I care. And don't worry about Johnny," she said. She sat there sulking, looking down at the sleeping child, and gently caressing his hair. "Everybody says that Johnny is much more like me than like you," she said, suddenly changing her mind.

(Continued on page 4)

Second Prize, Poetry

I, Paul Tomaso

Harold Andrews

Burning fire
and blowing leaf,
both have brought me
too much grief.

Each has taken half my youth and left me ashes in my mouth.

But how shall he flee him from desire though he be thrice-burned by fire?

And how shall he lay him down to rest
with wild leaves blowing in his breast?

First Prize, Poetry

Survivors

D. G. Lochhead

We are like the bottles
White against the mirror
In the room
In the morning.

The long cold finger missed us,
We clung to the cracks
And watched the others
Dying in it, dull-eyed.

There is always one face
In the mirror
Like the bottles
And dead soldiers.

The finger will touch us
On the shoulder—we,
The glassy-eyed, will go
From all this gladly.

Opinion Polls, Better Wire Service, Fruits Of Campus Editors' Parley

London, Ont.,—(CUP)—A revamped system of wire communication between members of the Canadian University Press to provide speedier and more efficient coverage of student activities was agreed upon at the annual National Conference on Dec. 21, 22, and 23. The University of Western Ontario, London, was host to the delegates representing 17 university and college papers from all parts of Canada. This conference was the first at which all member papers have been represented.

According to initial plans the McGill Daily, Montreal, The Varsity, Toronto, and The Manitoban, Winnipeg, will operate as regional headquarters collecting, editing, and distributing daily news bulletins by wire to all member papers within their areas. It is hoped that this service will maintain constant communication between universities and colleges throughout Canada. Charles Wasserman, chairman of the meeting and editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, which is this year's president of CUP, announced the possibility of sending student news of national importance over CP wires. Negotiations with CP officials are now under way.

A CUP Institute of Student Opinion to conduct scientific polls on matters of student interest was established by the conference. Alan Gray, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal will be in charge. A separate poll is to be conducted by the University of Western Ontario which will be an exhaustive survey of student standards of living over the period of one month. This is intended to determine the cost of University attendance across Canada and is information which university officials concerned

(Continued on page 4)

Members of the Canadian University Press Conference in session at the University of Western Ontario yesterday afternoon. Seated, from left to right, are Lou Leonowens and Mary Geddes, representatives of the University of Western Ontario; Eleanor Hanna, of McGill, secretary of the conference; Charles Wasserman, editor-in-chief of The McGill Daily and president of C.U.P.; Al Brule, editor-in-chief of the U. of W.O. Gazette; Henry Durost, of the University of New Brunswick, and

Herman Leseur, of Mount Allison. Standing, left to right, are Donald McFarlane, of Saskatchewan; Paul Cr peau, of Ottawa; Dave McQueen, of Winnipeg; Hersh Adlerstein, of Montreal; Owen Cauley, of Saint Francis Xavier; Mardee Dundas, of U. of British Columbia; Alex Farquhar, of Dalhousie University; Bill Clark, of the U. of Alberta; Hugh Kenner, of Varsity; Donald Tapley, of Acadia University; Walter Riese, of Bishop's University; Andr  Bissonnette, of the University of Montreal, and Alan Gray, of Queen's University.

First Prize Light Verse

If

Pamela Skeete

If you can keep your feet when all about you
Are losing theirs and trampling over you,
And keep your balance when conductors jerk you
And make allowance for their jerking too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting
For endless hours on ice-cold windy streets,
And finally end by crawling to your lecture
Because the car is minus several seats.

If you can ride on street-cars and survive
To make a lecture forty minutes late,
If neither feet nor bony elbows hurt you,
And motormen you only mildly hate,
If you can do this morning after morning,
And still think college worth it in the end,
Yours are the benefits of education,
And what is more, you are unique, my friend!

Insomnia

(Continued from page 2)

bored with myself. . . .

Sleep, hell, sleep!

What's all that racket outside? Two o'clock, God!
No, she wouldn't. Don't be ridiculous. "There's them 'at do an' them 'at don't. That's all there is to it." Ha. Shallow. But true maybe.

Thinking

"... People don't realize what a hard thing it really is, to think. They substitute reading for thinking. Much easier. . ."

Yeah, he's right about that. But what about discussing, talking, overtly ruminating?

Ideas. World of ideas! We're so superior because we have ideas! 'Wonder!

Ivory tower—or marble tower? So what? Necessary to escape the world to think?

... A sophomore psychology... iconoclasm.
How many get it, and then so what? Those who don't probably better off afterwards, anyway—not so dissatisfied and scornful. So much easier, status-quo-ism.

Status-quo-ism! Always coining isms.

Is, is, is, is.

Drone, drone, drone.

Go to sleep.

Zz-zz-zz-zzzzzz.

One Sunday

(Continued from page 3)

ing the theme, and dropping her voice to a confidential whisper.

"What brought this on?" he asked,
looking her full in the face.

"Nothing. Nothing really. I just looked at Johnny, and then I looked at you, and... well..."

He knew that this was her peculiar way of retaliation, intended to sting him sharply. "You spoil him too much," he said. "He'll be mama's baby when he grows up."

"He'll be nothing of the sort," she said. "You're just saying these things because you want to hurt me. But I don't care. I'm not hurt at all. Now then." She was almost crying now.
She was the most capricious of women, yet she had a charm about her that covered up her whims and threw people off their balance. Like a child she could change her moods a hundred times, and somehow these changes seemed natural and sincere, and not at all sophisticated.

He could see that she was hurt by the way she looked at him, and he tried to take her hand, but she drew away from him and would not let herself be touched. And when he insisted, she told him to keep his hands on the wheel.

He smiled. "You're such a child," he said.

"I'm not a child," she snapped back, "and I wish you'd stop telling me all the time that I am."

"Oh, but you are," he insisted. "You are a child."
"I'm not. I'm almost twenty three, and I have a child of four, and a husband who is a boor and thinks that because he is ten years older than I he can call me a child. If I'm not grown up now, then when will I be grown up?"

"Never," he said quietly. Don't you see, it's not a matter of years at all. Some people always remain children. I remember a time when you used to love being called a child. I once picked up a little jingle which I used to recite to you, and it used to drive you mad, but you loved it. It went like this: 'Little girl. . .'

"Stop it," she interrupted him sharply, "Please stop it now. I don't want to hear it."

He went on as though he had not heard her "Little girl, little girl, little girl. . ."

"Stop it. Stop it, or I'll throw something at you."

"Little girl, little girl, little girl, you're a pearl, you're a pearl, you're a pearl." He was laughing, enjoying himself tremendously.

She sat quiet for a little while, gathering her forces, and her voice seemed composed when she said:
"All right, perhaps I am a little girl." She paused a moment, and there was a triumphant twinkle in her eyes. "But that's one of the reasons why you love me so much, and you know it."

This came as a surprise to him because he had thought she would do something drastic, but instead she had told him the truth, and there was nothing he could say really, and he was a little angry, too, because she had gotten the better of him after all this quibbling. He had to give her some sort of an answer, but he couldn't for the world of him think of something good, and so he finally said: "You always have an answer ready, haven't you?"

This was a very meek and humble retort, and he knew it. What was more, she knew it too, and she let him know it by smiling a shy and superior sort of smile without saying anything. He tried to put his arms around her in an effort to patch things up, but she wriggled out of his arm and woke up Johnny up.
The child was grumpy, and she could see that he was going to start crying, and she began to tell him a story. But Johnny was in no mood for stories, and he didn't listen to her, but started crying in protest.

"Where the hell are we?" asked Paul suddenly.
"Don't swear in front of the child," she said it crossly.

Second Prize, Art

Interrupted Rhythm

William Fairley

Beer

Percy Jones

Gentle and slow
Like the hands of tenderness,
Poignant and rich
As the dreams of old lovers,
It steals through my body
Filling all emptiness,
Drowning nerve-tension,
Dissolving all care.

It mounts to my brain,
Then I scorn hesitation;
Self-doubt is no more,
What rot is self-consciousness!
My mind is lured outward,
Expanding self joyously,
As a spring flower unfolds
In new beauty and rare.

Strange—that a mind, ready slave to all chains,
Can be freed by a quantum of water and malt!

7. IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

The Company wishes to thank Mr. Jackson and Mr. George Harris, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, for their wholehearted co-operation in negotiating the settlement of this unfortunate strike and is pleased that the strike has been terminated, though it sincerely regrets the inconvenience, indignities and losses that were suffered by so many of its employees.

Imperial Optical Co.

TORONTO

OL. 0465 for your ticket.

LOST

Large farm lantern from Informal
Party, Nov. 24th, at 127 Bloor St.
W. Please phone KI. 3957.

LOST

Onyx ring with three pearls, between Medical Bldg. Reading Room and Whitney Hall, Tues. afternoon. Reward. Mary Higley, MI. 2037.

GL. 7067.

LOST

Brown leather wallet containing a number of urgently needed papers,
Monday night between Varsity Arena and Hoskin. Finder leave at
S.A.C. office or phone KI. 1377.

LOST

Set of drafting instruments, vicinity
S.P.S., Tuesday morning. Finder please leave at S.A.C. office, or phone
JU. 9136.

MO. 1459.

FOR SALE

Remington portable typewriter, best condition. Phone Wally Belfry,
HY. 4608, or Varsity News Office.

LOST

Billfold containing registration card and $10.00 bill, Monday night, 6-8, between University Library and Wynilwood. HU. 1313.

THE GOLD AND BLUE OF THE P.B.C. PRESENTS . . .

Thursday,
Dec. 20th

Ye Yuletide Yump

... At CASA LOMA

... MUSIC STYLED BY BOBBY GIMBY $1.75 Per Couple

S.P.S. JIM SERVICE 4T8
S.P.S. GORD JOHNSTON 4T8
MED. TONY STANLEY 5T1
U.C. JOHN DOLL 4T9
VIC. ED GREEN 4T0
VIC. KEITH DAVEY 4T9

The Lonely Road

W. H. B. Robinson

I am lonely, I am lonely,
And my heart cries out in pain:
"Is there no-one, not one only,
Who can make me whole again?"

For I'm growing weary, weary
Of the narrow lonely road,
Of the self becoming dreary,
Of the egoistic load.

And I yearn for keen companions
Who would share the same delights,
Who would bridge with me the canyons,
And defy the days and nights.

Yet within my inner being
I've my own lone life to lead,
And my soul remains unseeing
While my heart begins to bleed.

Honorable Mention, Short Story

Capriccio

Alexander G. McKay

THE last conductor for the Summer concert series had laid the ivory baton to rest a week ago, and the first concert of the regular series was to be given tonight. The return of the permanent conductor occasioned an outbreak of critical weighings among the orchestra members. Some even considered it a mild form of amusement to get Mr. Rhodenbaugh, their prize flautist, started on the subject of the Maestro, as the resident conductor was widely termed. As the musicians were gathering in the tuning room, the bassoonist was heard to remark, "Well, the old timer will stage another grand come-back tonight."

Mr. Rhodenbaugh's only reaction at first was to clasp his hands more tightly about his instrument. The assembled musicians winked and grinned at one another.

"But my dear friends," said Rhodenbaugh, "were this buffoon anywhere but in America he would be thrown out. But really, gentlemen, it is impossible for a man without a grain of musicianship to conduct such a formidable orchestra. This creature has fallen in love with his ivory stick, when he can't read an orchestral score without Steiner to play it un hundred times on the piano till he should memorize it."

Meanwhile all the orchestra had convened and were tuning their instruments. This was a busy, friendly moment, and everyone shouted above the squeals and blares of their fiddles and horns.

Unexpectedly, Steiner, the Maestro's assistant, thrust his way into the room and held up his hands to command attention.

"Boys," he was obviously ill at ease, "I thought maybe tonight when the Maestro comes out we might all rise. I think maybe it would be nice. The Maestro says such demonstrations displease him, but I think he might inwardly appreciate it. If we get up then, when he comes out—when Mr. Perckhammer taps on his rack for attention, if we all rise? You know the Maestro has been away from us for four months now."

Minutes later, on the stage, with the house lights enhancing the beauty of the auditorium, coloured now with a capacity audience, Mr. Rhodenbaugh resolved then and there that he would not rise with the others at the Maestro's advent.

Suddenly the house fell silent as Mr. Perckhammer, the concert-master, went tick-tick with his bow against the music-rack.

The Maestro stood preening himself in the wings, massaging one pink hand with the other and poising now on his left foot, now on his right. The orchestra rose to a man, and Mr. Rhodenbaugh found himself standing with the rest. His rofud face went red with fury, but now that he was up he had to stay, though he couldn't imagine how he had happened to rise. He eyed the Maestro hatefully as he and several thousand witnessed the pontifical march from the proscenium to the dais; thrice the Maestro paused to embrace the house with stately regard and meanly tendered bow, shaking his white hair in a manner as false as his musicianship, thought the flautist.

When he had reached the dais, the Maestro extended his lean arms to the orchestra, shaking with emotion, and seated them. Defiantly Rhodenbaugh slapped his flute on his lap and folded his arms. The blood pulsed in great beats through his fists. He eyed the conductor from head to toe, loathing him, and inciting his hatred to its maddest fury.

"Look at the wretch," he said to himself, "he's had his valet brush his hair up straight above his ears, so that it will stand out soft and lovely. He's told the electrician to put that light over his head so it will look like seraphims. He's got his collar too tight so he will look young and healthy. I'll bet his valetine comes from corsets. His valet-coat has pearl buttons, and his pants are pleated specially so he can bend in three-quarter time, and not look like a tramp afterward. Now he is looking us over to see if he can begin, like a butler examines his servants before the banquet. Ach . . . If only Sheckell or Klopfenstein would break a string, then we should have to wait and give the Maestro an awkward minute or two. So, we seem to be ready. His arms are up—now comes the downbeat. Away we go. Now he shuts his eyes and smiles blindly to show us how he loves to hear music and doesn't have to follow the score.

Boogie-Woogie

William Fairley

What good is a score to him? He couldn't read it anyway."

Unconsciously, though, even in his savage mood of rage, Mr. Rhodenbaugh was counting the bars till his entrance.

"Even if he gives me the cue, it will be a beat too late—but he will smile at me, as if he knew it all the while."

(Continued on page 8)

A Winter's Death

Gloria Shreeve

What does the soldier think upon, when, in the heat of battle, the smell Of sweet spruce comes to his blood-stained face? As to the guts of some unknown and undesired foe, he fixes bayonet And watches spurting blood?

What does the soldier think upon? Rich blood of a man Mingles with the skin-white snow of nature and the soldier sees A now-deserted sleigh, a lovely sleigh of cherry-red, against a bank Of virgin snow. And as the guns in volleys pour their noisy death Upon a thousand men, he hears the faint, far-off tune Of churchbells, mingled with the soft chant of the midnight mass, The fairy tinkle of sleigh bell, and soft laughter. And as the men about him fall, upon the cold snow, and as the flakes Drift slowly earthward, there to settle upon the red, raw bodies, He hears the happy laughter of his childhood and sees the tree In splendor stand upon the heap of merry presents. And then his father's voice Reminding him of time's passing—and again he has forgotten. Upstairs to bed with the inward thrill of to-morrow, then gentle sleep. The soft white flakes of ever-falling snow descended as in reverence On the bodies lying there, and one face looked upward, smiling As in his dreams he saw to-morrow, his to-morrow, and as he dreamed There came a vision of a cross all white with snow, and to the cross He went, and climbed upon it. The snow in daybreak, falling gently still, enshrouded a soldier From whose hand there fell a chain, and on the chain A cross.

Opinion Polls, Better Wire Service, Fruits Of Campus Editors' Parley

London, Ont.—(CUP)—A revamped system of wire communication between members of the Canadian University Press to provide speedier and more efficient coverage of student activities was agreed upon at the annual National Conference on Dec. 21, 22, and 23. The University of Western Ontario, London, was host to the delegates representing 17 university and college papers from 11 parts of Canada. This conference was the first at which all member papers have been represented.

According to initial plans the McGill Daily, Montreal, The Varsity, Toronto, and The Manitoban, Winnipeg, will operate as regional headquarters collecting, editing, and distributing daily news bulletins by wire to all member papers within their areas. It is hoped that this service will maintain constant communication between universities and colleges throughout Canada. Charles Wasserman, chairman of the meeting and editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, which is this year's president of CUP, announced the possibility of sending student news of national importance over CP wires. Negotiations with CP officials are now under way.

A CUP Institute of Student Opinion to conduct scientific polls on matters of student interest was established by the conference. Alan Gray, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal will be in charge. A separate poll is to be conducted by the University of Western Ontario which will be an exhaustive survey of student standards of living over the period of one month. This is intended to determine the cost of University attendance across Canada and is information which university officials concerned

(Continued on page 4)

Members of the Canadian University Press Conference in session at the University of Western Ontario yesterday afternoon. Seated, from left to right, are Lou Leonowens and Mary Geddes, representatives of the University of Western Ontario; Eleanor Hanna, of McGill, secretary of the conference; Charles Wasserman, editor-in-chief of The McGill Daily and president of C.U.P.; Al Brule, editor-in-chief of the U. of W.O. Gazette; Henry Durost, of the University of New Brunswick, and

Herman Leseur, of Mount Allison. Standing, left to right, are Donald McFarlane, of Saskatchewan; Paul Crépeau, of Ottawa; Dave McQueen, of Winnipeg; Hersh Adlerstein, of Montreal; Owen Cauley, of Saint Francis Xavier; Mardee Dundas, of U. of British Columbia; Alex Farquhar, of Dalhousie University; Bill Clark, of the U. of Alberta; Hugh Kenner, of Varsity; Donald Tapley, of Acadia University; Walter Riese, of Bishop's University; André Bissonnette, of the University of Montreal, and Alan Gray, of Queen's University.

Not All May Die

Robert Weaver

WHEN he woke that morning Captain Foster could see fog moving softly against the window. He lay quietly in bed for a few minutes, without feeling any of the pleasure lying in bed used to bring, simply unwilling to face the day's problems and routine. Winter is coming again, he thought; now there is no possibility of a transfer until next spring. He reached for a cigarette, but the package on the table beside him was empty. The ashtray was filled with butts, most of them only partly smoked. He lit the longest he could find, wondering vaguely how long he could postpone a complete breakdown with liquor and tobacco.

After breakfast, crossing the camp to the medical office, Captain Foster saw the fog, motionless and with a cold look of death about it, still clinging to the low fields to the east where the land sloped away to the river. This morning the camp was almost deserted. Gray tarpaper-roofed barracks huddled in lonely rows around the vast wind-blown parade square. A group of men shuffled by dressed in soiled baggy fatigue clothes, moving along wearily with strained cold faces, driven like cattle by the raucous commands of a sergeant. And over the entire camp brooded the lonely mechanical feeling of a life dedicated all too simply to death.

The waiting room was crowded with men on sick parade. They coughed and choked in the smoke from the dirty pot-bellied stove and cigarettes lighted in defiance of no smoking signs on the walls. Some were sleeping, balanced on the narrow benches with their heads twisted awkwardly against the wall and their heels braced on the rough unpainted floor. They breathed heavily, snoring fitfully; and their faces, cruelly exposed by the naked bulbs in the ceiling, were desperately tired and suddenly much too young. As Captain Foster passed, those who were awake looked up, uneasily palming cigarettes and watching him with blank eyes and faces that somehow still contrived an effect of hostility and defiance. He quickened his pace. This unspoken but clearly recognizable hatred mocked any aid he offered his patients.

In the inner office Sergeant Smith was standing by the window looking out at the camp. Turning abruptly, he came stiffly to attention and said, "good morning, sir." His voice was both mocking and subservient.

"Good morning, sergeant," Captain Foster replied. He fumbled with the papers on his desk, unwilling to face any action or decision, no matter how trivial.

The room had no character. For months Captain Foster had struggled to impose something of his own personality on at least this phase of army life. Papers and forms and a few instruments were scattered on the desk. There were two plain chairs and a heavy ugly table, all army issue. Official notices and medical charts decorated the walls. Only the faint beginnings of a medical odour gave the office a single unique touch.

Sergeant Smith waited silently. No shadow of emotion showed in his eyes. It was a cultivated trick. The coarse features and blank eyes hid a mind clever, unscrupulous and as brutal as his physical strength.

From the beginning they were enemies. Under a lazy medical officer Sergeant Smith had built a private tyranny. Captain Foster began to limit the Sergeant's authority. Given impetus by the scarcely disguised contempt Sergeant Smith showed for a man he considered too old and weak and sensitive, the struggle continued until at last Captain Foster had won. But he used authority too late; the sergeant was not afraid to fight him secretly in every possible way. Now, watching Captain Foster's sensitivity dull beneath routine, seeing his face age and nerves jump in his hands and cheeks, Sergeant Smith felt that the end was near.

"Well, sergeant," Captain Foster said at last, dropping the papers on the desk, "we have a big sick parade this morning. What is it? Colds again?"

"Yes, sir. Colds. And the usual leadswingers talking about stomach trouble."

"Sergeant!" Captain Foster spoke more sharply than he had intended. These petty arguments were with layers of red unhealthy-looking flesh. His body gave off a sour odour of dirt and sweat. Men still lived in tents and now, late in the year, they slept in their clothes, rarely taking a bath. Captain Foster resolved to insist once again that the colonel have them moved inside. He thought of the warm pleasant officers' mess and then of the hatred he had felt in the outer office.

Sick parade continued through the morning. Captain Foster examined the men and then he sent them to the dispensary for tablets and sprays and chest salves. But he knew that he had failed to do his job thoroughly: warm quarters were the only solution. And as the men came and left, sullen, hostile, answering him as briefly as possible, he knew that they realized he was responsible. The room grew full of their silent hatred and he was unable to escape it.

At noon Captain Foster walked back across the camp to the officers' mess. Fog still lay in ragged patches on the low land. Weak sunlight crept through the clouds, making everything appear tired and intangible. It was like a dream; but there was not even a dream's connection with some reality.

In winter the snow blew in great clouds between the rows of barracks, destroying the outlines of the land and buildings as a painter angrily smears a faulty picture. Even indoors it was impossible to escape the damp from the river and ocean. There was not even danger to make it all seem worthwhile. Neither tragedy nor heroism to give their lives meaning—even the bloody meaning of death.

Nights the officers played poker, the stakes rising in ratio to their boredom. They listened to the static-riddled radio. Or they went along to the canteen where, crowded together in a smell of damp cloth and dirty bodies, most of the men stood for two hours watching old movies, peering around the men in front, throwing black headshadows on the makeshift screen, groaning and stamping their feet at the almost inevitable breakdowns. And everyone drank and smoked too much, trying to forget the gray nervous sea and that there are things as endless as death.

After lunch Captain Foster met Captain Davies, the assistant medical officer. They went into the lounge to smoke. Davies was a young man with broad face. He was a competent doctor, but his interests were narrow. Usually he talked only about medicine, and today Captain Foster felt that he could not stand a minute's discussion of Davies' cases of that morning. But Davies was silent for a few moments. He smoked his cigarette nervously, suddenly butting it when it was only partly finished.

"I really must talk to you, John," he said quickly. "I've been trying to think of what to say for a long time." He paused, moving nervously in his chair. But Captain Foster refused to help him, and finally Davies began to speak again.

"I hope you won't be angry if I speak about something personal, John. You have been a doctor for years and I only graduated a few months ago, of course. But . . . well, to be perfectly frank," he said, speaking quickly and leaning forward as if to forestall any interruption, "I have been worrying about you. Some of the others have, too. You don't look at all well. You look . . . that is, you seem to be running on nerves alone. And I thought that I might be able to help you."

"I have been working hard, you know," Captain Foster said mildly. But he was growing very angry. Davies was too certain about everything; he thought useless. But, still angry, he continued, "I've told you before, sergeant, that I decide whether or not a man is really ill. You haven't the training, you know that."

(Continued on page 8)

N. Kelemen

"Yes, sir. Of course." The sergeant smiled. "Shall I start to send the men in now, sir?"

"All right, sergeant. Whenever you wish."

I should have had him transferred, Captain Foster thought. But the sergeant understood the office routine. And long ago he had become a part of Captain Foster's struggle with army life.

A private soldier entered the room. He stopped just inside the door, standing there silently with a sullen expression on his face. Captain Foster motioned him over to the desk. "I have a cold," he muttered, coughing loudly.

"Open your mouth, please . . . wider now . . . there . . . now, strip to the waist."

The man's chest and shoulders were overlaid

7. IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

The Company wishes to thank Mr. Jackson and Mr. George Harris, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, for their wholehearted co-operation in negotiating the settlement of this unfortunate strike and is pleased that the strike has been terminated, though it sincerely regrets the inconvenience, indignities and losses that were suffered by so many of its employees.

Imperial Optical Co.

TORONTO

OL. 0465 for your ticket.

LOST

Large farm lantern from Informal Party, Nov. 24th, at 127 Bloor St. W. Please phone KI. 3957.

LOST

Onyx ring with three pearls, between Medical Bldg. Reading Room and Whitney Hall, Tues. afternoon. Reward. Mary Higley, MI. 2037.

GL. 7067.

LOST

Brown leather wallet containing a number of urgently needed papers, Monday night between Varsity Arena and Hoskdn. Finder leave at S.A.C. office or phone KI. 1377.

LOST

Set of drafting instruments, vicinity S.P.S., Tuesday morning. Finder, please leave at S.A.C. office, or phone JU. 9136.

MO. 1459.

FOR SALE

Remington portable typewriter, best condition. Phone Wally Belfry, HY. 4608, or Varsity News Office.

LOST

Billfold containing registration card and $10.00 bill, Monday night, 6-8, between University Library and Wymilwood. HU. 1313.

THE GOLD AND BLUE OF THE P.B.C. PRESENTS . . .

Thursday,
Dec. 20th

Ye Yuletide Yump

... At CASA LOMA

MUSIC STYLED BY BOBBY GIMBY $1.75 Per Couple

S.P.S. JIM SERVICE	478
S.P.S. GORD JOHNSTON	478
MED. TONY STANLEY	571
U.C. JOHN DOLL	479
VIC. ED GREEN	478
VIC. KEITH DAVEY	479

It Isn't Forever

(Continued from Page 1)

"No. I wanted to once. But I found out I liked it better with a beat." He inhaled and blew out a thin line of smoke sideways along the bar. "It was a long time ago."

The girl sipped her drink. She said:

"Do you mind my talking about it? Say so if you do."

"It's all right with me. I've got nothing else to do."

He saw her wince and he hated himself. He was sick with himself and with all of it, the running away, the never being able to give himself to anyone or anything, even to his music completely, because nothing could have any permanency of meaning any longer. He stated the fear in him that made him mean and cruel and vicious. He tilted his glass in his thin fingers and watched the liquid slide up to the edge and back again. He stubbed out his cigarette and said:

"What happened to your boy friend?"

"Ken? He got drunk. I told him he made me sick, so he got mad and left."

"Wasn't that a little rude on your side?"

She laughed drily: "If I wasn't rude to my friends they'd think I was getting old."

"That would be bad," Paulie said.

The girl put her drink down and looked away from him. She said: "Why do you have to be like that, Paulie?" Why do you have to be mean about things that don't matter one way or another?"

He said: "I'm sorry, kid. Let's skip it, shall we?"

She turned towards him then, smiling that beautiful, clean smile, that smile that had decorated so many rotogravure and society and fashion pages. Her eyes were suddenly happy at something. She's really beautiful, Paulie thought. She said:

"Paulie, I've got some new Hindemuth and a couple of new Tatum records and some other stuff you might like. If you're not doing anything we could go up to my place and hear them. Will you, Paulie?"

Paulie finished his drink. The band was playing some pop tune that he hadn't heard before. He looked down at his glass, then at the girl. He smiled at her.

"That would be nice," he said.

Her apartment was big and expensive in a quiet sort of way. The Scotch was very expensive, he knew. Paulie sat on the sofa and sipped his drink and watched the girl. She was sitting on the floor with a big pile of records beside her and when she came across one she thought he would like she would hand it to him and he would put it on the turntable beside him. The girl was very happy and sometimes she would look at him, then smile happily to herself, as if she was thinking of some beautiful secret and was going to make him wait awhile before she shared it with him. Neither of them said much. Paulie didn't care for the Hindemuth, although The Temptation of Saint Anthony had a sort of mystical violence that he liked. He preferred the Tatum. Classical music was something he had always been able to take or leave. He had studied it for a long time when he was a kid, and then he had suddenly gotten tired of it. Later he had found in hot music the stimulation and simple emotional warmth that he needed. His own playing was a hybrid.

"That's a fine collection you've got," he said.

"Did you get all of them here?"

"Most of them. I picked some of them up in Europe." So she had been rich and famous in Europe, too. She had been rich and famous in Paris and London and Monte Carlo and Bucharest as well as in New York and Florida and San Francisco. If you were rich and famous in one place you were rich and famous anywhere you went. But if you were lonely in one place, the chances were you would be lonely in another place, even with all that. Even more, with all that, if that's the way you were. Her parents had died when she was still quite young. They had left her the money and the name. Her beauty was her own. These things had made it possible for her to go anywhere and wherever she went she was rich and famous and lonely. She told him all about it.

"I suppose it sounds silly," she said.

"No, I think I can understand that," Paulie said.

He leaned over and turned off the phonograph. He was sick of music, sick of everything. What was it to him, anyway? We were all of us alone, weren't we? Was it worse for you if you had money? He finished his drink and got up.

"It's been nice, but I'm afraid I'll have to go now. I want to get up early tomorrow and do some work on a couple of ideas I've been fooling around with."

She got up and pushed a whorl of hair back from her forehead. She smiled crookedly. She said:

"Sorry to go so early on you, Paulie. You're the first person I've done that with in a long time."

She said, "I'm sorry we couldn't be friends. Good bye, Paulie."

He looked at her standing there, very beautiful, trying hard to hold it in, trying very hard to be brave about it, good-bye, good-bye, good-bye, Paulie . . . He put his hands on her shoulders and gently pulled her into his arms. Her hair felt warm and soft against his cheek, and he could feel her body trembling against him. He felt the tautness go out of his mind and body. He had kept himself hard and taut for so long and now—it was like coming home. He wanted to tell her then why it couldn't work, couldn't be any good for her, for either of them, but it wouldn't come. He had lost too many things already and if this went too it might break him. He couldn't pretend it didn't matter because it was too late and if one part of him went away from her the other part would stay and it would be the same, but worse, if she went away from him. Even his music couldn't kill it, because it was all one thing now. He said against her hair:

"We'll be friends, kid. Don't worry about it. Don't think about it any more."

Paulie fixed it with the manager of the place where he played so the girl could have the table nearest the piano. Every night she came to the cheap nightclub and sat at the table near the piano and listened to him play and afterwards they would go up to her apartment and listen to records or dance to radio music. She was very happy for the first time in her life. When there was some passage on a record that she liked Paulie would play the record over a few times until his ear had it and the next night he would play it for her on the piano. Paulie had stopped thinking about the other thing. If it's going to happen, it's going to and there's nothing to do about it. Even if it only lasts a while it's more than either of us expected. She should know that.

The night they came, he was feeling good. He was playing delicate, hot, improvisation around the blues. He looked over at the girl and smiled, and then he looked away and saw them standing there by the piano. There were two of them. One was fat and gross-looking. The other had a thin, cold face and wore a dark, pin-stripe suit. Paulie looked at them for a moment, then at the keyboard. His hands slowly made a pattern of delicate soft augmented chords on the keys. The fat man said:

"Hello, Paulie."

"Hello," Paulie said. He didn't look up or take his hands away from the keys.

"It's been a long time, Paulie," said the fat man. "We were beginning to think we were never going to see you any more, weren't we Roger?"

"Why do we waste time gabbing?" said the other man. "Why don't we just take him and get the hell out of here. You know these noisy joints give me a headache."

"Take it easy, Roger," said the fat man. "Paulie'll finish up first, then we'll all go. You just take your time, boy," he said to Paulie, "and when you're ready we'll all go, eh?"

"Sure," said Paulie. "I'm ready now." He was still looking at the keyboard, at his hands, that moved slowly on the keys as if they were divorced from the rest of his body. As if they were someone else's hands and not his at all. So this is how it happens, he was thinking. You think you've got something and then you find out you haven't got anything at all. This is how it always happens, he thought angrily.

"He's ready. Let's get the hell out of here," said Roger.

"Take it easy, Roger," said the fat man. "This boy is no cheap pickpocket. He's a smart boy, an artist. He just got in a little trouble, that's all."

"If he's so smart," said Roger, "why did he come out in the open like this and get caught. That ain't being so smart."

"You don't understand these things, Roger," said the fat man patiently. "This boy is no cheap crook. He's gotta live, this boy, just like any of us. So he makes a living the best way he knows how, playing music." He turned to Paulie and said: "Ain't that right, Paulie?"

"Yeah," said Paulie, "I guess so." He looked over at the girl. Her face was white and strained and she was staring at him with mute helplessness. Well, what did she expect, he was thinking. And what did I expect? What made me think that this wouldn't add up to loss like all the rest of it. He looked at his hands and slowly lifted them off the keys. He got up.

"All right," he said.

The three men came out the front door, Roger and the fat man on either side, Paulie between them. The door man smiled at Paulie and said:

"Quitting early tonight, Mr. Leslie?"

"Yeah," said Paulie.

The doorman sighed. "Well, it's a nice night for a walk."

"Uh-huh," Paulie said.

Roger said: "Leslie? Say, that ain't his name —"

"Shut up, Roger," the fat man said. "The car's just down the street there, boy."

The night air felt cool and clean. A little breeze ruffled Paulie's hair and he automatically ran his hand through it, to smooth it down. His face was expressionless. His hands hung loosely at his sides as he walked.

"All right, boy, let's get in, eh?" he heard someone saying. He stopped. The fat man was standing beside the car, his hand on the door handle. It was then that he heard the click-click of her high heels on the pavement. He turned and saw her running towards him. She came into his arms.

"Paulie, Oh, darling, who are they? Where are they taking you?"

He had to keep himself numb because if he kept himself numb then this thing couldn't break him. He pushed her away, almost roughly.

"They're police," he said dully. "I've got to go with them."

"Police? But why, Paulie? —" She was bewildered, desperate.

He said in the same dull monotone: "I wanted to tell you. I tried, but it was no good. I was afraid." He looked away from her: "I'm sorry."

The fat man said, in a kindly voice: "It's nothing, boy. At the most it'll be five years. You got into some trouble, that's all. That ain't nothing."

"You hear what he says? Paulie said. His mouth was dry. "I've got to go back and do five years. I got into trouble and I ran away and now I've got to go with them."

The girl didn't say anything for a moment. When she spoke her voice was quiet, under control. She said, "All right, Paulie, we've waited this long, so we'll wait a little longer. Do you think it's going to make any difference? The most we've lost is time, Paulie. They're not taking anything away from us that we can't have back, darling."

He looked at her and didn't say anything.

She said: "Will you write me as soon as things get settled and tell me when I can come and see you?"

He nodded. The fat man opened the door of the car. "All right, boy. Let's go, eh?" he said. The fat man got into the car. Paulie followed him in. Then Roger got in and slammed the door after him. The fat man said to the driver: "O.K., Sam." The car pulled away. Paulie didn't look back. He was thinking, five years isn't for ever. As long as you're still alive, nothing is forever. She's a beautiful girl, he thought. I wonder if they'll have a good piano where I'm going.

"I'm glad the dame didn't pull a faint," said Roger.

"I hate that."

The fat man said: "I'm getting a headache from you, Roger. Why don't you shut up?" He said to Paulie: "How do you feel, boy?"

"All right," said Paulie. "I feel all right."

Opinion Polls, Better Wire Service, Fruits Of Campus Editors' Parley

London, Ont.—(CUP)—A revamped system of wire communication between members of the Canadian University Press to provide speedier and more efficient coverage of student activities was agreed upon at the annual National Conference on Dec. 21, 22, and 23. The University of Western Ontario, London, was host to the delegates representing 17 university and college papers from all parts of Canada. This conference was the first at which all member papers have been represented.

According to initial plans the McGill Daily, Montreal, The Varsity, Toronto, and The Manitoban, Winnipeg, will operate as regional headquarters collecting, editing, and distributing daily news bulletins by wire to all member papers within their areas. It is hoped that this service will maintain constant communication between universities and colleges throughout Canada. Charles Wasserman, chairman of the meeting and editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, which is this year's president of CUP, announced the possibility of sending student news of national importance over CP wires. Negotiations with CP officials are now under way.

A CUP Institute of Student Opinion to conduct scientific polls on matters of student interest was established by the conference. Alan Gray, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal will be in charge. A separate poll is to be conducted by the University of Western Ontario which will be an exhaustive survey of student standards of living over the period of one month. This is intended to determine the cost of University attendance across Canada and is information which university officials concerned

(Continued on page 4)

Members of the Canadian University Press Conference in session at the University of Western Ontario yesterday afternoon. Seated, from left to right, are Lou Leonowens and Mary Geddes, representatives of the University of Western Ontario; Eleanor Hanna, of McGill, secretary of the conference; Charles Wasserman, editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily and president of C.U.P.; Al Brule, editor-in-chief of the U. of W.O. Gazette; Henry Durost, of the University of New Brunswick, and

Herman Leseur, of Mount Allison. Standing, left to right, are Donald McFarlane, of Saskatchewan; Paul Cr peau, of Ottawa; Dave McQueen, of Winnipeg; Hersh Adlerstein, of Montreal; Owen Cauley, of Saint Francis Xavier; Mardee Dundas, of U. of British Columbia; Alex Farquhar, of Dalhousie University; Bill Clark, of the U. of Alberta; Hugh Kenner, of Varsity; Donald Tapley, of Acadia University; Walter Riese, of Bishop's University; Andr  Bissonnette, of the University of Montreal, and Alan Gray, of Queen's University.

Not All May Die

(Continued from page 6)

of people only as receptacles for symptoms to be labelled and studied. Why, Captain Foster thought, he is probably watching me now, wondering if I am going mad. He has probably been watching me for weeks.

"I know you work hard," Davies was saying. "Too hard. And this is a bad camp. Or perhaps it is something at home, something wrong with your wife?"

"Probably I am too old. But I really am quite healthy. This life bores me but I assure you that I am quite able to take care of myself." Captain Foster let the anger into his voice. Davies flushed and moved uneasily in his chair.

"Well," he said, lighting a cigarette and throwing the match carefully in the fireplace, "if you're certain I can't help you . . ." He stood up, hesitated a moment, then walked quickly away across the room.

Captain Foster pushed his cigarette into the ash-tray and worked it around among the ashes until the paper fell apart. He spread his fingers wide on his thighs and sat looking at his hands. Long and slender and fine, his hands had been trained to be skillful at birth. It was something Davies could never do well. But there was no birth here—not even death.

Davies' curiosity made him think of his wife. He noticed again how difficult it was becoming to remember her exactly. He was able to visualize her features correctly: the long smooth hair falling carelessly around her small face, the whole creating an appearance of monkey-like intelligence and a strange loveliness that seemed almost to rise from her complete lack of classical beauty. But all this was dead, like a picture of a famous person glimpsed for a moment in a magazine, with all the features and their relationships realized but with nothing shown of the character and life so necessary for complete meaning. He was unable to fit things together to produce a living vision of his wife. He loved her as much as ever. But the slow growing away from her memory troubled him deeply.

Late in the afternoon no patients entered the office for a few minutes. Captain Foster sat at his desk fighting the temptation to smoke. He had just stretched his hand toward the package when Sergeant Smith entered.

"Yes, sergeant?" he asked, letting the cigarettes lie where they were.

"Sir, Stephens is outside. Do you want to see him now?"

"Stephens?"

"Yes, sir," the sergeant replied, smiling. "The man who's crazy," he continued bluntly. "The one you are sending to headquarters hospital. He has his papers for you to sign." The sergeant waited by the door. There was an expression of triumph on his face. The medical clerks laughed about Stephens; they thought that Captain Foster had been fooled by a clever trick.

"Send him in, sergeant." Captain Foster sat waiting, frowning and uncertain. He was not sure if Stephens had told the truth. But there was no doubt that the boy's nerves were bad. And it was for cases like this one that there were specialists at headquarters. He had no right to pay attention to untrained prejudice.

A private entered the room. He was thin and young, with tired eyes. "Sit down, Stephens," Captain Foster said quietly. "Have a cigarette?"

"No thank you, sir," Stephens replied. He spoke quite calmly. Captain Foster sighed and gave up his own struggle with the cigarettes. He got up and walked over to the window. The camp looked lonely and cold. There was no help there. He sighed again and turned back to the boy.

"How do you feel today, Stephens?"

"I'm alright now, sir."

"Well, I'll just sign these papers for you. You're going along to headquarters. They can help you more than I can." He laughed. "I envy you the chance of leaving this camp. They may even discharge you. How would you like that?"

"It really makes no difference." Stephens shrugged. He was staring with a sort of weary hostility at the papers in Captain Foster's hand.

Second Prize, Light Verse

Ode to Critics

Martin Shubik

No, I'm not an A. I. poet,
And I say it, an' I know it,
And my poems go to show it
Though I praise them to the skies;
For the reason that I write 'em
Is that critics all may bite 'em
And then scrawl ad infinitum
On wherein their weakness lies,
With: criticism, witticism,
Myticism, stoicism, syllogism,
Mannerism, Spoonerism trite.
And then they add psychology
Or throw in etymology
And add another-ology
To show us that they're bright.
And thus they fill more pages
Than the poets through the ages
And they all earn fatter wages
On their viciousness of bite.
And hence the poorer poet
Keeps the critics and they know it
For without our meagre poems
What on earth would critics write?
For thus to help employment
I resort to this enjoyment
Hence attack without deployment
Bite on YOU CRITICS, BITE!!

Captain Foster began to sign the papers. He was worrying about the boy, and feeling his own limitations more completely than he could ever remember. Two days before, when he first came to the office, Stephens was controlled by fits of frightening excitement and sudden lapses into moodiness. He had told an almost incoherent story of a repressed childhood and an early broken marriage. He talked about nightmares. And about the sea.

Now he was quiet. Captain Foster remembered the gossip of the clerks. But this calm seemed too unnatural and somehow too far removed from peace. Captain Foster blamed himself bitterly for not studying the latest medical information more thoroughly.

He passed the papers to Stephens. The boy turned to the door without saying anything. Suddenly Captain Foster felt old.

"Stephens?"

"Sir?"

"You do feel alright now?"

"Yes, sir. Thank you." Stephens looked tired and there was a withdrawn expression on his face. His hands plucked nervously at his tunic. Then he realized Captain Foster was watching. He placed his hands behind his back, drawing his shoulders in as he clutched his fingers tightly together. He dropped his head sullenly. "Is there anything else?" he asked nervously.

Night Train

James Reaney

Night

A Guy Fawkes hesitation
Shall will shall it go?
The wheels have chillblains.
Will the trees let the train pass?
Will the pond reflect the yellow light?
There is a dead caterpillar of smoke
Sidewise, stalactite. . .
And the first part of Annie Laurie
(Minor key) at Sebbs' crossing.

"No . . . nothing more, Stephens, I suppose." Stephens opened the door. Suddenly Captain Foster cried, "boy . . . Stephens . . . don't do anything foolish."

Then Stephens was gone. Captain Foster walked over to the window. There was nothing to fasten on as a reason for action. And he knew that he had been hoping that there would be nothing.

He saw Stephens come out and wait by a car in front of the building. Soon the driver and a sergeant appeared and the three stood talking together. Captain Foster felt that he should warn them, but he had nothing definite to tell them. And no one could watch the boy all the time. The three men got in and the car went off along the road to headquarters.

Captain Foster stood watching the place where the car had disappeared. The fog was gone and weak sunlight drifted over the camp. He could see the river in the distance, partly hidden by the trees along its low banks. But it did not matter any longer. He sighed heavily and walked back to the desk for a cigarette.

Sergeant Smith opened the door. "Do you want the next patient now, sir?" he asked.

Captain Foster sat down slowly. I must forget Stephens, he thought; there was nothing more I could do. At least I must outlast this man. It was a pretty ambition, he knew, and from the very pettiness he gained a certain satisfaction. The sergeant shuffled his feet.

Captain Foster looked up. "Oh yes, sergeant. Send the next man in," he said quite calmly.

Capriccio

(Continued from page 5)

The orchestra meanwhile was devouring the bars with dainty precision, fed by the Maestro's fleshy hands, and the sounds that answered his beckonings quite satisfied the Maestro. He was convinced now that he was the Dean of composers artistically, as well as by seniority. Rhodenbaugh watched him teetering to and fro on the dais with his head thrown back in pure ecstasy—and for the second time that night, Rhodenbaugh made a stern resolve.

"I won't play for him. He will miss my cue. I will have my excuse after the concert. Ha . . ."

Carried away by the delirium of riding the waves of sound rising from beneath him, the Maestro by an unfortunate oversight, did miss the cue. But the poor old flautist, given away by the innate sense of decency he preserved at all times, entered his passage of music at the right moment.

"What is this?" he said mentally. "I am playing. But no . . ."

The pent up emotions within the flautist nearly strangled him—his scornful lips that usually blew off his rage were straddled across the flute openings. He was virtually kissing the air over his flute, and, to his utter amazement, the most exquisite threads of melody seemed to float from him. Such shocking intensity he had never before attained, and the idle players about him, leaned back and listened in amazement to this marvel of taste and technical virtuosity.

"Why," he thought again, blowing out simultaneously the most sublime morsels of beauty into the breathless hall, "I am not only playing, but I am playing like an angel for that creature, that cow, with the pink face and the tight collar."

It was a long cadenza that Rhodenbaugh had fallen heir to, and the more he thought about the whole thing, the more exquisitely he played. After twelve bars of divine sound, the Maestro opened his eyes, and beamed happily as he noticed this novel music, and vouchsafed a gracious nod to the flautist, whereupon Mr. Rhodenbaugh tried his utmost to keep his instrument from exploding under him. The result was a concluding phrase so remarkably feathery in its rise and fall, that the players sighed and a gasp of delight escaped from the audience—and, for a tiny minute, the full orchestra that had picked up his dying phrase, seemed to be playing without any sound. . . .

7. IMPERIAL OPTICAL COME

The Company wishes to thank Mr. Jack tary-Treasurer of the Union, for their wholehearted co-operation in negotiating the settlement of this unfortunate strike and is pleased that the strike has been terminated, though it sincerely regrets the inconvenience, indignities and losses that were suffered by so many of its employees.

Imperial Optical Co.

TORONTO

THE GOLD AND BLUE OF THE P.B.C. PRESENTS . . .

Thursday,
Dec. 20th

... At CASA LOMA

Ye Yuletide Yump

MUSIC STYLED BY BOBBY GIMBY $1.75 Per Couple

S.P.S. JIM SERVICE	4T8
S.P.S. GORD JOHNSTON	4T8
MED. TONY STANLEY	5T1
U.C. JOHN DOLL	4T9
VIC. ED GREEN	4T8
VIC. KEITH DAVEY	4T9

LOST		LOST		FOR SALE
Large farm lantern from Informal Party, Nov. 24th, at 127 Bloor St. W. Please phone KI. 3957.		Brown leather wallet containing a number of urgently needed papers, Monday night between Varsity Arena and Hoskin. Finder leave at S.A.C. office or phone KI. 1377.		Remington portable typewriter, best condition. Phone Wally Belfry, HY. 4608, or Varsity News Office.
LOST		LOST		LOST
Onyx ring with three pearls, between Medical Bldg. Reading Room and Whitney Hall, Tues. afternoon. Reward. Mary Higley, MI. 2037.		Set of drafting instruments, vicinity S.P.S., Tuesday morning. Finder please leave at S.A.C. office, or phone JU. 9136.		Billfold containing registration card and $10.00 bill, Monday night, 6-8, between University Library and Wymilwood. HU. 1313.

Student Veteran's Group Works on Rehab Worries

CONFERENCE REPORT TABLED

Formation of a student committee to help deal with the peculiar problems of the student veteran was announced yesterday evening by the Students' Administrative Council. Formation of the committee followed on the report of Toronto delegates to a Montreal conference, Dec. 27 to 29, at which 63 delegates from 28 universities, colleges, and schools prepared briefs on Dominion-wide student veteran problems.

The Toronto committee is composed of five representative ex-service students, nominated last fall by the governing bodies of the various faculties to represent the student veterans on the campus on the S.A.C.

Student veterans are invited to bring their problems to committee members, or to the Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House.

Members of the committee are: J. A. Weir (Medicine); R. D. Leuty (Dentistry); Dalton Stubby (S.P.S.); Paul Johnson (Arts, St. Michael's College); and Claire Rutherford (U.C., representing the ex-service women of the campus).

Weir and Miss Rutherford represented the University of Toronto at the Montreal conference, purpose of which was to consolidate problems confronting student veterans throughout the Dominion rather than at any specific university. Analyses and recommendations were embodied in briefs on Housing, Finances, and Education, which an implementation committee will bring to the attention of the Dominion Government. Condensed text of the briefs appears on page 2 of this issue.

Twenty-eight delegates representing 18 Canadian colleges and universities at the recent N.F.C.U.S. conference are shown above. Top row: Dave Jackson, Western; John Hayman, Western; Len Gerty, Queen's; Lloyd Dickie, Acadia; Lynn Watt, Manitoba; Eric Bergenstein, Manitoba; Ed Chisholm, St. Mary's; R. Balfour, McGill; Allan Woolver, Western; Dick Wilbur, Mount Allison. Middle row: Allan Ainsworth, U.B.C.; Florian

Carrière, Ottawa; W. Orr, Saskatchewan; Ted Owens, U.N.B.; Frank Wallace, St. Mary's; Larry Sutherland, Dalhousie; Mike Galvin, Ottawa; Hugh Banfill, Bishop's; Garry Miller, U.B.C.; George Doner, Toronto. Front row: Dick Harris, Mount Allison; William MacVean, Bishop's; W. Fanjoy, Acadia; Jack Pye, McGill; Ron Helmer, Alberta; Ken Baker, McMaster; Fred McGuinness, Manitoba.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 4, 1946

No. 54

HART HOUSE GIVEN LEE COLLECTION

Showroom Being Readied For Priceless Works of Art

ANTIQUE METALWORK AND JEWELLERY

The incomparable collection of silversmiths' and metal-craftsmen's work assembled by Viscount and Viscountess Lee of Fareham has been given to Hart House and will shortly go on permanent display there, Warden J. B. Bickersteth announced last night.

Work is now under way to transform the west end of the West Common Room into a show-room where these treasures may be displayed and "become part and parcel of the daily life of Hart House."

Text of the statement released by Hart House follows:

NFCUS Assembly Delegates Urge Student Exchange

An international plan of exchange scholarships was advocated by the National Federation of Canadian University Students at its annual conference held at McGill University December 27-29.

The Federation recommended liaison with foreign counterparts of the N.F.C.U.S. especially in the United States, Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand in order to work out the plan. They also plan to promote further exchanges between Canadian universities.

Twenty-nine delegates from 18 Canadian universities attended the conference. William MacVean of the University of Bishop's College was elected president of the Federation for 1946. The University of Toronto was represented by George Doner, Vice-President of the Students' Administrative Council.

The conference decided to take steps to obtain the return of pre-war student railway fares and to investigate the possibilities of reduced fare for travelling college teams.

The Federation will also investigate the establishment of a national student health insurance scheme. Several universities already have health and accident insurance plans but a national plan may be effected.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

"Viscount and Viscountess Lee of Fareham have presented to Hart House their famous collection of antique gold, silver, and bronze metalwork, enamels, jewelry, and illuminated manuscripts. The gift was made through Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Massey in 1940 and the collection itself was sent to Canada at that time for safe-keeping. A room is now being prepared in Hart House to house it permanently. The Massey Foundation has assumed responsibility for preparing the rooms for the collection and is also sending to Toronto an expert, formerly on the staff of the British Museum, to catalogue the 200-odd articles in the collection.

"Lord Lee, in speaking about the collection, said that one of his motives has been to stimulate interest in practical craftsmanship and to preserve for the education of workers selected examples of the achievements of the great masters of the past.

"In referring to Hart House, Lord Lee said: 'The ideals there expressed breathe such a lofty spirit of faith in the future of the Empire and its sons, and so much constructive imagination, that the donors of the Lee collection have been moved by a desire to respond, in kind, to the appeal of Hart House and contribute what they can to its embellishment and enhancement of its cultural mission.

"There are also personal and sentimental reasons why they have welcomed an opportunity to repay a longstanding debt to Canada, where they first came together over 50 years ago."

The objects included in the collection are of various kinds, both ecclesiastical and secular: chalices and patens, crucifixes, plaques, paxes, mazer bowls, tankards, jugs, cups, goblets, tazzas, and beakers.

Though relatively small, the collection displays a wide variety of objects chosen because of their individual character or

(Continued on page 4)

Yule Campaign Raises $1,960; Parcels Packed For Holland

More than 150 Christmas boxes are on their way to students of the University of Amsterdam, as a result of the Amsterdam Christmas Drive held on the front campus on Wednesday, Dec. 19th. In addition to the material to fill these boxes, $1,960.00 was collected to finance the purchase of more boxes which will be sent soon.

Among other things 150 pounds of sugar, 75 pounds of coffee, 300 spoons of thread and 1,800 buttons have been sent. Each box contains 1 pound of fruit cake, 1/2 pound of coffee, 1/2 pound of tea, four chocolate bars, one pound of sugar, one cake of soap, one package of needles, safety pins, two spoons of thread, 12 buttons, one handkerchief and one or two books, and a package of salt.

With lists supplied by the University of Amsterdam, the boxes were addressed and sent to individual students in Holland. The list of necessities was supplied by the Dutch consulate. A list of 300 names of Dutch students who will receive boxes was sent here by the University of Amsterdam.

Packing parties organized by Walter Kohn, Graduate Studies, packed the material which was donated. The rest of the boxes will be sent to Holland by a Toronto firm and paid for with the funds collected during the campaign.

A letter sent by the Student Librarian of the University of Amsterdam was

Tale of a Truck

Linked, perhaps, with Operations Musko, there slinks through northern ice-fields today a truck in quest of a Christmas tree 25 feet high.

The tree, "the largest available," was ordered for Amsterdam Day last December 12; and the tree-dealer's truck set off.

Campus interest was led by hand and band to the little island south of the front campus to see the tree and watch the program. But disappointment met the mob when they found a substitute tree of peanut proportions.

The reason? To this day, the truck has not appeared.

We ask subscribers to turn any found trucks in to the S.A.C. office for possible identification.

received by the I.S.S. requesting that if possible the University of Toronto assist in replenishing the University of Amsterdam library. The Germans took or destroyed most of the library and the request was for as many periodicals as possible to help the students find out what is happening in the outside world.

The I.S.S. is sending subscriptions for 9 periodicals.

General Ike Comes To Receive Degree Liquid Air Course For Public At RCI

President Sidney Smith announced early this week that General Dwight Eisenhower, Chief of the U.S. Army staff and former Commander in Chief of the Allied Armies in Europe has accepted an invitation to receive an honorary degree from the University of Toronto.

"As it stands now," Dr. Smith said, "General Eisenhower will be in Toronto on Saturday, January 12, and we will have a special convocation during that afternoon." The convocation will be held at 3:00 p.m. and tentative plans are being made for a dinner at Hart House following the ceremony.

Dr. Smith will present General Eisenhower at the convocation, and the degree will be conferred by Chancellor Cady.

The invitation by the University was extended three weeks before it was accepted by Eisenhower on December 31.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced that General and Mrs. Eisenhower would arrive in Ottawa January 9 for a few days' visit before proceeding to this city.

Ten gallons of liquid air will be consumed during Dr. John Satterly's hour and a half illustrated lecture before the Royal Canadian Institute tomorrow night.

Although the title of Dr. Satterly's lecture is officially "The Uses and Misuses of Liquid Air" Dr. Satterly admits that he will deal mainly with its misuses. Many of the experiments are scheduled to take place simultaneously Dr. Satterly revealed. For example, he said that a balloon would be inflated by the evaporation of liquid air, all during the lecture the balloon will continue to expand until finally when the attention of the audience is captured by some other attraction the balloon will explode.

Among the equipment which will be used is a gun which is to be fired into the audience using liquid air as an explosive and a goldfish which will be used to illustrate frozen animation.

This will be the first time that Dr. Satterly's demonstration will be given for the benefit of non-University students; and because of this, students are asked to wait to see the regular first year liquid air lecture.

Opinion Polls, Better Wire Service, Fruits Of Campus Editors' Parley

London, Ont.,—(CUP)—A revamped system of wire communication between members of the Canadian University Press to provide speedier and more efficient coverage of student activities was agreed upon at the annual National Conference on Dec. 21, 22, and 23. The University of Western Ontario, London, was host to the delegates representing 17 university and college papers from 11 parts of Canada. This conference was the first at which all member papers have been represented.

According to initial plans the McGill Daily, Montreal, The Varsity, Toronto, and The Manitoban, Winnipeg, will operate as regional headquarters collecting, editing, and distributing daily news bulletins by wire to all member papers within their areas. It is hoped that this service will maintain constant communication between universities and colleges throughout Canada. Charles Wasserman, chairman of the meeting and editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, which is this year's president of CUP, announced the possibility of sending student news of national importance over CP wires. Negotiations with CP officials are now under way.

A CUP Institute of Student Opinion to conduct scientific polls on matters of student interest was established by the conference. Alan Gray, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal will be in charge. A separate poll is to be conducted by the University of Western Ontario which will be an exhaustive survey of student standards of living over the period of one month. This is intended to determine the cost of University attendance across Canada and is information which university officials concerned

(Continued on page 4)

Members of the Canadian University Press Conference in session at the University of Western Ontario yesterday afternoon. Seated, from left to right, are Lou Leonowens and Mary Geddes, representatives of the University of Western Ontario; Eleanor Hanna, of McGill, secretary of the conference; Charles Wasserman, editor-in-chief of The McGill Daily and president of C.U.P.; Al Brule, editor-in-chief of The U. of W.O. Gazette; Henry Durost, of the University of New Brunswick, and

Herman Lessor, of Mount Allison. Standing, left to right, are Donald McFarlane, of Saskatchewan; Paul Crépau, of Ottawa; Dave McQueen, of Winnipeg; Hersh Adlerstein, of Montreal; Owen Cauley, of Saint Francis Xavier; Mardee Dundas, of U. of British Columbia; Alex Farquhar, of Dalhousie University; Bill Clark, of the U. of Alberta; Hugh Kenner, of Varsity; Donald Tapley, of Acadia University; Walter Riese, of Bishop's University; André Bissonnette, of the University of Montreal, and Alan Gray, of Queen's University.

Veterans' Conference Briefs Summarized

From the report presented by representatives Al Weir, I Meds, on the National Student Veterans' Conference held in Montreal December 27 to 29, The Varsity presents condensations of the three briefs embodying the conclusions of the delegates.

Work of the conference involved a survey of conditions facing student veterans in universities, colleges, and rehabilitation and technical schools across Canada. Recommendations arising out of this survey are being urged on the Dominion Government by an Implementation Committee.

Education Panel

The Educational Panel advise that the following resolutions be made:

1. That in all cases the Department of Veterans' Affairs give great weight to the recommendation of the school or university concerned as to whether or not a student veteran be allowed to continue his course, so that a student veteran will not be placed in a more disadvantageous position than a non veteran student.

2. That when a student veteran's time credits have elapsed an average mark of 65% (or a standing among the first 50% of the class, where the average mark of the class is below 65%) be the sole condition in determining whether the student veteran shall continue to carry on with his studies under the Rehabilitation training plan.

3. That the time allowed for veterans to apply for all types of rehabilitation training be extended to 36 months.

4. That upon the recommendation of the university concerned, a graduate student veteran be allowed to complete post graduate studies at whatever institution is suggested by the university.

5. That where practicable the Department of Veterans' Affairs appoint representatives with offices in the educational institutions to act as liaison officers between the Department of Veterans' Affairs and the student veterans.

6. That a student veteran who is qualified under the act and who fails the first year and subsequently successfully repeats that year at his own expense, be reinstated by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and allowed to continue his course under the rehabilitation training plan.

7. That a graduate student veteran should not be required to pay an additional fee in order to practice his profession in any province, provided that he passes the necessary examinations of the province concerned.

8. That veterans taking vocational training be permitted to purchase instruments or tools for their trades or professions direct from War Assets Corporation on a Vet priority basis.

Financial Panel

Preamble

"In examining the structure of the rehabilitation programme of the Canadian Government, the panel agreed that the programme is equal in scope to that of any government and highly commend the spirit of the programme. We realize the terms of this programme were drawn up by men of good-will and seriously interested in rehabilitating the servicemen.

"The fact remains, however, that despite the very real merits of the present rehabilitation system, there seems little question that present grants are inadequate to meet present-day conditions. Adjustments are required to meet transportation costs, provision of books and technical equipment, pension costs, and costs peculiar to different regions."

Recommendations

"We felt that the maintenance grant should be clarified as to what it entails, and therefore recommend that, in view of the fact that the Government supported us during the service (and did not merely assist us) that the Canadian government underwrite our Rehabilitation as they underwrote the War Effort.

"Specifically, we recommend that the Government of Canada underwrite the education of veterans in that allowances be increased as follows:

$20.00 per month for single veterans.

$40.00 per month for married veterans.

and that this apply equally to university students and those receiving Vocational Training."

In support of the demand for increased allowances, it was stated that questionnaires answered by 500 student veterans now enrolled will be unable to complete their courses on present income.

"Our Committee felt a definite need of some loan scheme whereby a student-veteran might obtain funds to purchase technical equipment which will be used during and beyond the conclusion of his academic career in the picture of his profession.

"It is strongly recommended to D.V.A. that regional needs and exceptional cases be studied, and regional increases in form of cost of living bonuses be made where necessary to particular colleges or centres."

Housing Report

Recognizing that the housing problem is not peculiar to student veterans and can only be solved by low-cost building throughout Canada of houses to be offered at low rentals to all citizens, the Housing Panel recommended both Emergency measures and a long-term policy.

Emergency Measures

"This conference strongly urges, through the Department of Veterans' Affairs, that the Federal Government at once comply with the requests of universities and vocational training schools for the renovation and use of government owned buildings for the living accommodation of both married and unmarried veteran students.

"Further, when such buildings are ready for occupancy it is recommended that educational institution authorities and the student organizations concerned work out co-operative plans, appropriate to localized needs, that will enable the student veterans to be housed therein in the most economical manner possible.

"Whereas student veterans' co-operative houses have proven one solution to the housing problem for single veterans, this conference recommends that student veterans' co-operative houses be set up where possible, with the assistance of the Department of Veterans' Affairs to obtain such houses and the assistance of educational institution authorities to organize them."

The conference forwarded a proposal to the Federal Government urging that the present rental control policy be made effective in respect to board-rates and room rentals.

Long Term Policy

"Be it resolved that this conference forward a proposal to the Federal Government urging that the present rental control policy be revised with a view to reducing rentals to come within reach of the income of low wage earners.

"Be it resolved that this conference call upon the Federal Government to undertake immediately a long term programme of building low-rental permanent houses, as a solution to the present very urgent housing problem."

Sponsored by the Board of Stewards in co-operation with the Athletic Directorate in a piquant attempt to increase the sporting element in tackling a Great Hall meal, a Find-the-Pea Competition was announced yesterday by Comptroller W. R. Cowcatcher.

"A small prize will be awarded every day to the diner who finds the pea soup," Mr. Cowcatcher stated. "We have not definitely decided the nature of the prize, but in all probability it will be a free bowl of soup."

Imported from Texas in 1931, the Hart House Pea has been a feature of Great Hall soup for 14 years. Each night it is carefully strained from the kitchen tureen and taken to the safe in the Warden's Office. The evening procession, consisting of the chef bearing the pea on a silver, flanked by Hall Porters with Squash Rackets reversed, is one of the most picturesque traditions of the House.

"Obviously, we are taking a chance in allowing an object of such value to stray daily into the soup-plates of the multitude," Mr. Cowcatcher stated. "However, we felt that the advantages of the competition made the risk worth taking."

"For one thing, diners in search of the prize will drain their soup-bowls to the very bottom. Also, we have added a valuable tradition to a House that cannot have too many."

"Think of the scene," he went on, his eyes aflame with mediaeval light: "long rows of diners decorously paddling about in their bowls in search of that elusive pea; the smile lighting up the victor's face; his sudden cry of 'Tally-Ho!'; the rush of judges to the spot; the surrender of the pea to its guardians, and the awarding of the prize!"

"The judges, incidentally, will be uniformed in purple capes embroidered with gilded peas. They will be piped into the Hall every day at 12:45 by the Gentleman Piper of the Split Pea."

Last-minute questions were raised as to whether the proposed contest did not perilously resemble a Bingo Game. Pointing out that the cry of victory was not "Bingo" but "Tally-Ho!", Mr. Cowcatcher repudiated this suggestion indignantly. Attorney-General Blackwater could not be reached for comment.

—Woo.

How right they were when they said Picobac was every man's tobacco - its so cool and mild!

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO

Listen to

"Canada in the Modern World"

By Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph. D.

Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB -- Every Sunday -- 2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

University Symphony Orchestra

GEORGE COUTTS, Conductor

HANS GRUBER, Associate Conductor

Rehearsal for full orchestra, Saturday, January 5th, 2 p.m. sharp

West Hall, University College

Complete and prompt attendance required.

Anyone unable to attend must notify at MAYfair 4977 beforehand.

Again . . .
THRILL TO THE SATISFACTION OF COMPLETE "UP-TO-THE-MINUTE" FORMAL ATTIRE.

AT
FREEMAN'S FORMAL
256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, K1. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near WELLESLEY, K1. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES OPEN EVENINGS

Art, Music and Drama

A Critic Bites A Critic

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

It has been requested so strongly and so persistently that I give you my opinion of Philip Freedman's musical comments, (e. g. Toronto Symphony Orchestra, December 11th), that I finally agreed to waste valuable time so doing. I have never written to an editor before and must admit that my ability to handle newspaper reporters is as wanting as Freedman's knowledge of music. It may be of interest to you, however, to know how we at the Conservatory react to his would-be sensational outbursts.

We all believe in the expression of honest opinion. It would be beneficial, however, if we had some background of knowledge in the topic we intended to discuss. There is already a superfluity of "critics" with little but a bare "gramophone" knowledge of music. If these reserve their opinions for their intimate friends, very well; but when, like Freedman, their blaring incongruities are expounded at large, the reaction is hilarious on the one hand, and sympathetic on the other.

It seems a shame that such a commendable paper as The Varsity should be marred in one department by an associate with such ill-conceived ideas. For instance, you can be sure that the Dean of the Faculty is much too big a person to fail to realize his own shortcomings, but remarks such as Freedman's simply incite amusement. Surely this is not the object of intelligent criticism, regardless of whether or not it is favourable! Nor are direct insults in keeping with this formula.

As a matter of fact we'd rather like to know who Mr. Freedman is anyway. And in closing may we suggest that if he is sincere, he would do us greater justice, and the public better service were he to apply himself to the study of music more diligently.

G. G. HURST.

Mr. Hurst's letter printed elsewhere on this page is typical of a large number of musicians who believe that only the professional is justified in criticizing. This belief we hold to be fallacious,

Ties of Friendship

Amsterdam, December 13th, 1945.

Mr. E. A. Macdonald,
University of Toronto,
Toronto (Canada).

Dear Sir,

I have the pleasure of sending you inclosed a list of three hundred names and addresses of students of our University to whom students of your University wish to send Christmas gifts.

The generous gesture of your students has deeply moved us. We have to thank your country and your compatriots for our liberation, for much help to save us from starvation, for the hospitality given to our Crown-Princess and her children. We have had the opportunity of getting well acquainted with the Canadians, encamped in Holland. All this has led to knitting many ties of friendship between your people and our own. The demonstration of amity which your students and University show us will certainly contribute to increase the cordial relations which have originated during and after our common effort to destroy German barbarism.

On behalf of the teaching staff of our University I beg you to be so kind as to express to your students our gratitude for their delicate sign of camaraderie and to accept with Mr. Kohn our heartfelt thanks for your mediation.

With my kind regards I am, dear Sir, most respectfully yours.

(Signed) PROF. M. W. WOERDEMAN, M.D.,
Rector of the University of Amsterdam.

for the reasons given below.

We cannot see that a "gramophone" knowledge of music is to be sneered at. For the many who were denied the opportunity of learning to play in youth and even for the professional musician, records provide a storehouse of knowledge of music and of the interpretation of music. Take Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, for example. Locally three recordings with Weingartner, Toscanini, and Koussevitzky are available. By listening to these recordings while following the score one can easily determine what is authentic and what is not in a performance of the work; and by listening often, one can develop a familiarity with the work thorough enough to justify criticisms of any performance. The same reasoning applies to other works as well. Who is going to say that the person who has taken at a bad performance yet still feels free to be arrogant toward the critic.

We take this opportunity to point out that the A. M. & D. column will not willingly adopt a dual standard of criticism. Perfection is admittedly too much to ask from the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, say. Yet perfection is not, the performer is falling to fill his duty to the public. Should the learned the Mozart symphonies from Beecham's and Toscanini's recordings does not know how they should be performed?

We hold with Mr. Hurst that the attributes of the critic with regard to personal resources of mind and emotion and in sensitiveness to the medium must be of the same professional calibre as the composer and the performing artist. But we consider it axiomatic that these attributes are not exclusively the property of professional musicians. We cannot understand, therefore, why Mr. Hurst is shocked at the critic's indigna-most always be arrived for. When it critic fail to point this out both to the performer and the public he too would be guilty of negligence. P.F.

LITERARY WINNERS

Prize-winning contributors to The Varsity Christmas Literary Supplement may pick up their cheques at the Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House. Unpublished material will be returned to contributors on request.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College, MT. 6611
Business Office, MT. 6221
Night Office, MT. 8745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor: Vally Delfry, 478
Make-up Editor: Ted Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor: Barbara Hood, B.A.
News Editor: George Porter, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant: Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Dredin Stapella, 476
Assistant: Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor: Polly Mott, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476

Art, Music, and Drama
Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477

Night Editor: Hugh Kenner.
Assistant: George Legria.

BLUE PUCKTERS TRIUMPH IN AMERICAN TOUR

Blues Tounce Colorado Tigers Twice In Two Successive Nights

The Varsity Blues came home triumphant from Colorado Springs after touncing the Colorado Springs Tigers in two successive nights. On Friday Dec. 28 the Blues defeated the Tigers 11-2 in a rousing game which thrilled the fans with two fights. Saturday night the Varsity pucksters again romped home with an 8-2 victory.

The expedition almost ended in disaster as the team's equipment was misplaced, and arrived just in time for the second game. The day was saved by the home team's good sportsmanship, as they lent "our boys" enough non-descript equipment to take to the ice.

The first encounter in the fabulous Ice Palace, on Friday night, proved that the Blues were in fine shape. Dressed in borrowed skates and Colorado U. football sweaters, they proceeded to show the Colorado fans that Canada is still the home of hockey.

The Blues were held scoreless for nine minutes of the first period, but soon showed their opponents how to flash the red light, as Gord Ball scored twice followed in quick succession by Dave Bauer, Wally Halder and Bill Kosick. The score at the end of the first period was 5-0.

In the second frame, Bromley and Kosick ran the score up to 7-2, as Colorado came through with their only goals of the game. In the third, it was Kosick, Halder, and Don Bark who managed to elude Scarlett, the Tigers' net-minder, to make the final score 11-2.

Although the Tigers provided tougher opposition in the Saturday night game, the Blues, led by Gordie Ball with four goals and an assist, outplayed their American rivals in all three periods.

The Tigers, showing the good neighbour policy to excess, scored the first goal on themselves, with Bill Kosick being given credit for it. The count at the end of the first twenty minutes of play was 2-0, as Halder banged home an unassisted goal. Gord Ball and Bob Henry doubled the score in the second stanza, before Howie Hushion, a Montreal product, netted the first Tiger tally.

This herculean effort was followed by two more Halder-produced goals with assists by Kryzanowski and Henry.

A long shot by Stewart in the opening seconds of the third period gave the south of the border boys their second and last tally. Ball and Halder, the latter assisted by Henry, scored the final two Varsity goals.

TORONTO—Ball, Wade, Bain, Kosick, Bromley, Bauer.
Subs—Doyle, Kryzanowski, Henry, G. Ball, Halder, Bark.
COLORADO—Scarlett, Ross, Eddolls, Chamney, Ewonos, Hushion.
Subs—Stewart, Meier, Turner, Newson, Bayless.

Hockey Groupings Set By Athletic Office

The Athletic Office yesterday released the intramural hockey groupings as follows:

- Group 1: Sr. S.P.S., Vic. I, Meds. I, U.C. I.
- Group 2: Jr. S.P.S., Vic. II, U.C. II, Meds. II.
- Group 3: Dents. A., Trinity A., S.P.S. III, St. Mikes A.
- Group 4: S.P.S. IV, Forestry A., U.C. III, Knox A.
- Group 5: Meds. III, Vic. III, Dents. B., Pharmacy.
- Group 6: St. Mikes B., S.P.S. V, Emmanuel, Wycliffe.
- Group 7: Forestry B., Trinity B., Knox B.

New Dance Class

MONDAY, 8:30

Instruction by Cecil DeCosta

Enrol now for this new course in FOX-TROT, WALTZ, RHUMBA, JIVE, TANGO.

A Complete Brush-up Course

Da Costa

STUDIOS OF DANCING
1139 Bay St., Cor. Charles
MI. 524

The Sportswoman

By Polly Muiz

So the new year was received with much joy and the aid of Haig & Haig,* amidst the patter of rain drops (ah but the snow was deep up North). And many erstwhile revellers, after quaffing alka-seltzers, bethought themselves of the quaint custom of resolutions starting the new year right. Another sun rose and fell, finding all holidayers bent over books, and with a golden opportunity to test their new made vows. Which calls to mind . . . back to the subject at hand, women's sports.

Basketball Champs

During the interval when The Varsity took a breathing space, the basketball finals were played off. Championships are never "old stuff", so we whip back into '45 and take a look at the last intramural game of the season.

The scene of action was the Hart House gym. Close to a hundred spectators crowded around the floor, providing ample cheering support. The game proved to be a tug of war between well matched and skilled artists, P.H.E. II and P.H.E. Seniors. At the end of the third quarter the Seniors were in the lead by the ever-so-slim majority of 18-17. In the final quarter P.H.E. II arose to the occasion, achieving a total of 21 points to the Seniors' 20.

As the playing was of a singularly spectacular and speedy quality, the referees must needs sharpen their perceptions accordingly. Joan Davis and Lois Dowson did a laudable job as the referees. The Barnett twins, Grace and Mickey, proved to be sharp-shooters . . . their aim for the basket was deadly, not shooting often, but making each shot count for P.H.E. II. The Seniors' forward line, headed by Kay McMillan, worked as an integrated whole . . . their team work deserves high praise. As one bystander summed up the game so aptly, "It was terrific . . . anybody's game!"

A final dozen roses should be cast at the feet of those patient people in the background who supplied oranges, time-clocks and enthusiasm . . . the girls who manage to focus the spotlight on the players, the managers.

New Horizons

With the P.H.E. II basketball team safely established as the inter-faculty winners, attention now turns towards greener fields, intercollegiate basketball. March 8 and 9 will see the Varsity team in Montreal, and sooner still, the W.R.C.N.S. from H.M.C.S. Bytown in Ottawa have challenged Varsity to a game on February 2.

Practices for the intercollegiate team will start immediately, from 5:30 to 6:30 on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The heads of basketball hope to see a majority of players turn out whose ability equals their ambition rather than those who go for the "fun". The list from the coaches of most promising players is still in the negative quantity . . . and may we add that this seemingly useless bit of information is in reality essential. It allows the coach of the intercollegiate team to concentrate attention on a picked few, building a crack team around them.

(The means by which Amsterdam achieves credit from Great Britain.)

Wayne, Assumption Conquer Cagers In Pre-Christmas Exhibition Matches

The Varsity Senior hoopsters, not faring as well as their puck-chasing comrades, came off second best in two pre-holiday exhibition encounters. On Friday, Dec. 15th, the Blue squad was downed 50-25 by Wayne University, and the following night, a smooth-functioning Assumption College quintet squelched the homesters, 57-39.

In the first encounter, played at MacKenzie High School, in Detroit, the Blues were the victims of a prodigious amount of misfortune, as Roy Dillworth and Capt. Gord Wallace missed the game on account of a snowbound plane, and hard-playing Murray Thompson was absent—but excused.

Wayne set the 2,000 fans cheering as they netted three quick baskets in the opening minutes of the game, but the short-handed Varsity team began functioning in a smoother fashion, and managed to keep in sight of their rival's score, the half ending 22-14 for the Yankee cagers.

The Varsity defense, based on a comparatively narrow playing floor, collapsed before the Wayne's onslaughts in the last half. Avery Jackson, flashy Negro forward, crashed through for 15 of his team's total of 50 points, and established himself as the star of the hard-fought encounter. Clayton, Himmel, Zeton and Mayzel all showed up well for Varsity.

The following night, Assumption College played hosts to our favoured sons, and in a short space of time, proceeded to show the Varsity quintet and 1,500 fans why they are rated as the very best in Canadian hoop circles.

The Varsity defense was much tighter than it had been on the previous night, but this did not prevent the fast, quick-breaking Windsor team from building up a formidable number of points. The half-time score of 26-15 testifies to the close play, as Wallace, Zeton, Cranman and Thompson bore the brunt of the Assumption attack. The Windsorites displayed terrific speed in the second half, and did not find it too difficult to keep a safe scoring margin between themselves and their opponents.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells and Don Mason

With the coming of 1946, we have a special FLASH: The sports world of Canada was thrilled and over-awed (and amused) by the announcement that R. B. Stapells and D. R. Mason have been appointed by Editor Kenner as Sports Editor and Ass. (and we ain't kidding) of this sports page of ye olde Varsity. These two notorious characters were heard to say, on receiving the news, and we quote: "Good gad", in the best of sports tradition. Also with the new year's arrival, the undergraduate should be full of spirits (if not so already) for the first post-war season of intercollegiate sports is at hand. There will be intercollegiate hockey, basketball, swimming, boxing, wrestling, and gym teams all in the field this term. They will expect, and we hope, will receive, every possible support from enthusiastic Varsity rooters.

Intramural track starts on Monday and Tuesday with all best wishes from "Hec" Phillips. This broad program covers a ten-week period ending March 12. The first event will be three-man relay teams running two laps. Let's go tracksters—up and at 'em.

The Junior Blues start off their schedule in the Junior B O.H.A. today at Richmond Hill against Chapmans returning to home ice on Monday for a return engagement. We wish them all the best for their opening show.

The hearts of the Varsity players were gladdened by the sound of a lone, brave Toronto rooter, in the midst of the shebang at Colorado Springs—Congratulations, mister, it must have taken a lot of nerve!

Basketball

Tickets for the Varsity vs. Western Basketball Game on January 16th, at Maple Leaf Gardens, are now on sale at the Athletic Office. Prices are $1.50, centre blues section; $1.00 centre greens section.

These tickets must be returned to the Maple Leaf Gardens on January 9th, so purchase them now. The game is under the auspices of the Toronto Rotary Club.

Referees Wanted

Referees are urgently needed for hockey, basketball and water polo.

Apply at the Athletic Office, Hart House. Remuneration is paid.

REFEREES OF FALL SPORTS

Will the following referees kindly call at Athletic Office, without delay, and pick up their pay for lacrosse, soccer, rugby, swim league and volleyball. R. T. Sheppard, S. A. Cooke, K. A. Firman, I. Strathman, N. Hassanali, J. C. McDonald, E. D. Roberts, E. R. Mather, M. Beer, M. Sugar, P. S. Welch, B. Morrow, C. V. Williams, J. F. Seunarine, N. Campbell, R. Schaffer, G. E. Geary, S. M. Kaiman, T. Cossitt, D. Ferguson, C. J. McNulty.

INDOOR TRACK

The season commences on Monday, January 7th, 5:00 p.m., and Tuesday, January 8th, 5:00 p.m. The first event is the relay, 3-man teams, 1 lap each. Competitors must sign the eligibility certificate in the Athletic Office before participation. Get your teams out in good time. See Mr. Phillips for full details. Consult Athletic Wing notice boards for full schedule of events.

MEETINGS

Mon., Jan. 7th—5:00 p.m. Intramural Meeting.
Tues., Jan. 8th—1:00 p.m. Basketball Meeting.

S K I

Undergraduates who have been members of the Toronto Ski Club in 1944-45, and wish to renew their membership at the reduced rate of $2.00, must do so by January 6th, 1946. After that date, no reduction will be allowed and the entrance fee of $5.00 will have to be paid.

University of Toronto Ski Club pins have been promised delivery on January 11th.

It has been found impossible to make arrangements for a Ski Bus this week-end. Watch The Varsity for next week's announcement.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Week of Monday, January 7th

Tues., Jan. 8	1:00-2:00	Vic. I	U.C. I	Andison, Fyfe
	4:00-5:00	U.C. II	Med. II	Hart, Farrell
Wed., Jan. 9	1:00-2:00	Dent B	Pharm.	Street, Weedon
Thur., Jan. 10	4:00-5:00	For A	U.C. III	Andison, Street
	5:00-6:00	Dent A	Trin. A	Andison, Street
	6:00-7:00	SPS. III	St.M. A	Andison, Street
Fri., Jan. 11	4:30-5:30	Sr. SPS.	Med. I	Andison, Hart
	5:30-6:30	Jr. SPS.	Vic. II	Andison, Hart

Intercollegiate Swimming & Water Polo Club

Meeting on Monday, January 7th, at 5:00 p.m. in Intramural Office, to make arrangements for Intercollegiate teams.

FOR SALE

Gabardine raincoat, medium size.
Apply J. W. Gibson, KI. 4018.

DISAPPEARED

New Year's Day: 2½ foot metal rod-plug for hole in tub. Return to rightful owners. No reward. Pfalzner, Lauriston, or Serson, MI. 2700.

LOST

Brown striped Parker pen, before holidays, between Chemistry and Medical Bldgs. Phone GR. 9370. Reward.

RACQUETS REPAIRED

Badminton and Squash Racquets repaired, restrung. Work guaranteed. 24-hour service. Phone KI. 7989, (Jack) between 5-8.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

NOT EVERYBODY LIKES VANILLA

...that's why we try to satisfy every taste with as varied a menu as possible. Every item a treat—expertly prepared—efficiently served—in appetite-stimulating surroundings. Breakfast, lunch or dinner, you're bound to pick a winner.

HONEY DEW
COFFEE SHOPS

mart kenney
currently appearing at the
Royal York Hotel

art hallman
currently appearing at Casa Loma, Toronto

stan patton
currently appearing at
Brant Inn, Burlington

These and other very well-known orchestras available

Exclusive Management
Office of MART KENNEY
"HEC" McCALLUM, Manager
125 Dupont St., Toronto
KI. 3147—Nights: GR. 4894

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLO 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

ATTENTION ALL VIC. STUDENTS — —

VIC AT-HOME TICKET SALE

COMMENCES TUESDAY, JANUARY 8TH, V.C.U. OFFICE

FOR PIPE SMOKERS OF DISCRIMINATING TASTE

GOLDSTEIN'S PERIQUE MIXTURE

The Same Old Formula Since 1883

A high-grade blend of Turkish, Perique, Virginia and Latakia Tobacco, approximating those excellent brands made in Scotland and England.

Every user of it is an ardent advocate of its merits.

Its popularity is growing fast. You cannot pay less and get as good; you cannot buy better if you pay more.

For the present it is packed in a heavy waxed paper, in a cardboard container. It keeps in excellent condition.

It is put up in half pounds and sells at $1.50, plus tax; and also in a pocket package containing 1/10 lb. at 30 cents, plus tax.

WM. GOLDSTEIN & COMPANY

152 YONGE STREET
Toronto

52 SPARKS STREET
Ottawa

New and Entrenous

Happy New Calendar

By Ross McLean

W. Blank, who assures me of sheet metal work that satisfies, has sent a handsome 1946 calendar which, I suppose, will now replace the Rolph-Clark-Stone affair that has kept me date-conscious throughout the past year. I may leave the Rolph-Clark-Stone calendar up, at that. It has a picture of a peach-complexioned young man on it, symbolizing, as the text explains, Youth. Youth looks like someone who once sold me a pair of shoes; I might keep it.

Certainly the designers of the present Gregorian calendar displayed uncannily foresighted sympathy for insurance companies and corner groceries when they produced a calendar that varied from year to year. It's doubtful if I should ever have heard of W. Blank's sheet-metal prowess in a month-of-Sundays unless 1946 had been different from 1945. I would merely have kept the shoe salesman Youth around for another year, or two or three.

All calendar-senders, however, had better prepare for 1950 when, as the Journal of Calendar Reform predicts, we switch to the proposed world calendar. In 1950, if I understand it correctly, we will receive our last calendar from them. We will tack it up conspicuously and use it until eternity or the day after. Until, at any rate, we have memorized it.

For the reformed version of the calendar maker every year the same. It will have 12 months as the Gregorian, but each quarter will be of equal length. Each quarter will furthermore begin on Sunday and end on Saturday, contain three months, 13 weeks and 91 days which certainly sounds sound or, shall we say, sensible.

Month-dates will always fall on the same weekdays. Each month will have 26 which is fair enough; plus Sundays. Each year will begin on Sunday. New Year's Eve celebrations, if such foolishness is to be retained, will always have a midnight curfew in this case. Unless people choose to use the World Holiday which is scheduled annually for December W or 31 Leap-Year-Day will be spotted in an untroublesome niche between year-halves. It will be a world holiday every fourth year, I think, and will be on June W or 31.

This is getting obscure. But the out-moded and confusing Gregorian job is obsolescent today.

You might not have noticed the Gregorian does have flaws. As the Journal points out, it is always different from year to year, its quarters are unequal in length which is a more appalling condition than you may realize. In leap years the first half-year has 182 days; the second, 184 days. Imagine!

Each quarter begins and ends on a different day of the week, each month ditto. Each year begins on a different weekday. It's irregularity," the Journal frowns. "precludes comparison of periods and necessitates continued and never ceasing changes in matters routine in character." It is unbalanced, unstable and irregular. The revised one is balanced in structure, perpetual in form, harmonious in arrangement and will, presumably, impoverish none but the calendar manufacturer.

Among manifold benefits, the new calendar would fix a date for Easter. Rev. F. W. Adams of Boston who died last year is quoted in the Journal as having advocated the change on these grounds. "The plan," he had declared, "to secure a fixed date for Easter deserves support... It seems a lack of wisdom not to change now. It would be easy by vote or decree to rectify this error of a wandering Easter."

That, somewhat fogged, is the case for a calendar reform.

Happy New Calendar!

To Carry for Beauty's Sake!

Big and little --- flat and bulky --- all kinds of sparkling, glamorous compacts! The season's new colours --- in the season's new styles!

You'll find a lavish selection at EATON'S.

Main Store—Main Floor

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Priceless Collection Of Art Works To Be Displayed In Hart House

(Continued from Page 1)

beauty. The aim of the collectors was to acquire work of high quality both in design and in craftsmanship.

Miss Yvonne Hackenbroch, one of the world's greatest experts in this particular field of art, will come to Canada to unpack the treasures and set them up.

She will also be available for a while to lecture on the actual exhibit.

Reasons for sending the collection to Hart House include the desirability of making such works of art available in the distant parts of the Empire rather than concentrating them in London, which already has a wealth of art treasures; and the high regard felt by Lord and Lady Lee for Hart House and its ideals as set forth in the Founders' Prayer.

While a museum might permit safer and more adequate display, it was felt that the collection should be displayed in a building used daily by young men, where the treasures could become part of their permanent surroundings, rather than in a museum which is visited only at intervals.

The collection will be housed in the room used during the war by the C.O. of the 2nd Bn., C.O.T.C. A permanent steel-lined wall has been erected to replace the former temporary partition.

The permanent walls and the stone fireplace will probably be screened, and show-cases with special lighting be built into the walls. The Victoria and Albert Museum, London, has recently carried out experiments with such showcases, and Brig. Eric Haldenby, representing the architects of Hart House, visited it before his return to Canada.

It was stipulated that the collection be open to the public one afternoon weekly.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

You are represented on the University Advisory Committee and on the Committee of the University Advisory Bureau by four Ex-Service Students. They are: Engineering Mr. F. Huntsley Medicine Mr. A. H. Stevens Victoria College Mr. H. Lacey University College-Mr. J. Duggan They will be glad to pass on any suggestions that you may wish to make.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY
BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE
STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3781
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

C.U.P. Conference

(Continued from Page 1)

with the adequacy of veteran grants are anxious to obtain.

The elections for the national executive for the coming year were held on Dec. 22, and the results announced immediately after. The Ubyssery, University of British Columbia, was elected president and The McGill Daily, McGill University, the runner-up, will handle Canadian Campus, as provided in the CUP constitution.

The Campus, Bishop's University, and La Rotonde, the University of Ottawa monthly newspaper, already affiliate members were admitted into full membership, and The Carleton, Ottawa's Carleton College newspaper was made an affiliate member. Amendments were made in the constitution that any college newspaper may be admitted to affiliate membership (without voting powers) by a vote of the National CUP Conference and after one year's affiliation may be raised to full membership by a two thirds majority vote of the conference. Membership was formerly restricted to newspapers publishing weekly or often.

Plans were also laid for a Canada-wide C.U.P. day to stimulate interest on Canadian camps in other University papers and according to the plans, as yet tentative, special issues of all University papers would be released simultaneously on all Canadian camps.

Delegates to the conference from The Varsity included Hugh Kenner, Peggy Bates, Dorothy Harley, Barbara Jones, E. Ross McLean, Wally Belfry and Bob Robinson.

National finances, relationship with The National Federation of Canadian University Students, and advertising problems were among the other subjects discussed at the conference. The possibilities of establishing a uniform news standard through CUP were also considered.

C.O.T.C.

1. Training—Spring Term

Trg will be resumed on 7 Jan., 1946, as follows:

(i) Monday and Tuesday gpx (Fall term) will be combined. First parade, Monday, 7 Jan., 1946, 1900 hours.

(ii) Wednesday gp. First parade, Wednesday, 9 Jan., 1946, 1510 hours.

2. Return of Clothing and Equipment

All members who are not undergoing trg during the current session will return all articles of army clothing and equipment to QM stores without further delay.

(Signed) H. C. H. MILLER,
Major,
for Officer Commanding,
U. of T. Cont., C.O.T.C.

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY

Trinity Square
(ON Yonge, 2 below Dundas)
Invites students to join with us in services that combine beauty of worship with progressive Christian action

Regular Sunday services at
8, 9.30, and 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m.

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE

Bathurst Street at Ave Road
at 11 a.m.
RABBI ABRAHAM L. FEINBERG
will speak on

"GERMANY IS OUR PROBLEM"

Public Cordially Invited
Free bus service from Bathurst and St. Clair every 15 minutes, commencing at 10.40 a.m. until 11.20 a.m. and leaving the Temple at 12.30 p.m. and 12.50 p.m.

GO TO YOUR CHURCH ON SUNDAY

THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)

MEETING FOR WORSHIP
on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.
AT THE
Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.
YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"Walk cheerfully over the world, answering that of God in every one."
GEORGE FOX.

KNOX CHURCH

SPADINA AND HARBOR

11 a.m.: "Faith's Repose."
By REV. ROBT. LENNOX,
M.A., Th.B.
Professor, Presbyterian College,
Montreal.

7 p.m.: Sermon
By REV. R. A. FORREST, D.D. of Toccoa Falls, Ga.

8:15 p.m.: Fellowship Hour.
Farewell to Mr. JOHN POSNO,
Missionary under appointment to China.
Students Specially Invited

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Bloor Street East
Rector:

REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

8 a.m.—Holy Communion

11 a.m.—Holy Communion

Preacher—The Rector

3 p.m.—Bible Classes

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer

Preacher—The Rector

Organist:

Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University Students Welcome at
All Services

St. Andrew's

King and Simcoe Sts.

Minister

Very Rev. Stuart C. Parker,
D.D.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

DR. PARKER

Students specially invited.

Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter

DD., LL.D.

Fireside hour at close of

Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist
St. George St. at Lowther Ave.

Branch of The Mother Church
The First Church of Christ,
Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

11 a.m.

Sunday, January 6th

"GOD"

Wed. Evening Meeting

at 8.00 o'clock

including Testimonies of Healing
through Christian Science.

Free Public Reading Room where
the Bible and Authorized Christian
Science Literature may be read,
borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

smoke the mild
cigarette

DON'T FORGET THE . . .

SCHOOL AT HOME

Wednesday, January 16th, 1946

THE BEST DANCE ON THE CAMPUS

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Ajax Opens Next Week; Students Register Today

VARSITY SEEKS AJAX NEWSMEN

A week from today, 1,500 first year students will begin the first session of engineering courses at Ajax division of the University of Toronto. Unless enrollment is greatly increased, it is expected that the freshman and sophomore classes of the '46-'47 session will continue there for the next three years.

Mindful of another war's outbreak, C.O.T.C. headquarters at 119 St. George will be the head of a line of 1,700 potential Ajax students today at 5:00 p.m. Registration will be begun then. The Varsity is anxious to record Ajax campus life, but will require the aid of students on the spot. Those interested should mention the fact when registering.

Despite necessity for a separate teaching staff at this remote campus, 10 members of the senior faculty of Engineering will lecture at Ajax. Dean Young himself will give a series of lectures during the course. All courses in engineering are offered at Ajax, and all are identical to those given in Toronto.

Ajax will have a Hart House with full recreational facilities including music, art, billiard and common rooms, a tuck shop, and an auditorium accommodating 750. There will be "browsing", general circulating, and technical libraries in the academic quarters.

Hockey rinks have been built and playing fields for rugby and baseball are under construction for use next spring and fall. Athletic meetings will be held and sports such as hockey, boxing, wrestling, fencing, rugby and baseball will be organized. Mr. J. Esery under Mr. A. E. MacDonald will be in charge of the Students' Council, which will operate and have an office in Ajax just as it does in Toronto.

The faculty, for the most part, will live at Arbor Lodge, and the students, with the exception of commuters, will live in residences, each outfitted with common rooms and study rooms for the benefit of those who are unable to study in their own rooms.

The students at Ajax won't suffer from lack of medical attention according to Dr. W. MacKenzie who has been appointed Health Service Director. Dr. MacKenzie will be assisted by Dr. R. M. Rogers and two graduate nurses.

The Ajax Health Service will function in the same way as the one on the Toronto campus does. The 35-bed infirmary and the Health Service offices are all in the same building. In addition there is an X-ray plant, an isolation wing and a laboratory service.

An ambulance will be on duty at all times to rush serious cases to Christie St. Hospital. Any student veteran requiring hospitalization will receive assistance in the normal way from the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

"No Deceleration" States Dean Mason

A decision made last year, "The Dental courses will not be decelerated this year," was repeated recently to The Varsity by Dean Arnold Mason of the Faculty of Dentistry. In response to a sophomore petition of last year deploring the possible deceleration, the faculty decided that courses would definitely not be eased.

Without foundation are the rumors which originated from the government's edict to decelerate courses speeded up due to war. The courses will proceed as planned with the third year of the five-year course graduating in 1947.

Bursar Publishes D.V.A. Rules Governing Servicemen's Cheques

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in the past by D.V.A. in clearing cheques for students who fail to report to the Bursar's Office to draw same.

1. In the case of the student who has drawn a cheque. Irrespective of what date the first cheque was received, all future cheques should arrive the first of the month.

2. In the case of the student who has not received his first cheque. Provided the student has signed an Acceptance letter and returned same to D.V.A., a cheque should arrive at the Bursar's Office approximately 3 weeks after

Financial Critic

Financial Critic for His Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Mr. J. M. MacDonnell, K.C., M.P., will address an open meeting Tuesday night of the campus Progressive Conservative Club. He will speak at 8:30 in the Women's Union theatre on "Stock-taking of the Progressive Conservative Party."

Officers Elected For Newest Course

The 235 ex-service students taking the certificate course in Business Administration have organized in order to take a fuller part in campus activities. This is being achieved by electing officers and seeking affiliation with an arts college.

"The course will have a full athletic and social program," said Joe Barnick, newly-elected class president. Catherine Wallace was elected secretary-treasurer in last week's class elections. Also elected were an athletic committee consisting of H. Con Caverhill, Al Harris, Ray Moss, and a social committee comprised of Allison Foster and Charles Rathgeb.

Many and varied ambitions are represented in this course, more perhaps than are usual in any other course where ambitions are similar. Several have degrees and are now preparing themselves to practice their degree courses in the business world. Others intend to enter business at the end of their one-year course. Many intend to take advantage of the offer to enter second year Commerce and Finance with their certificate.

D.V.A. receives this letter. This means that the first cheque for a student can arrive any time during a month, and it is essential that a student awaiting the first cheque contact the Bursar's Office frequently and make enquiries.

D.V.A. cheques arrive at the Bursar's Office, Simcoe Hall, approximately the 3rd of each month. Cheques can be held a maximum of 14 days after which they must be returned to D.V.A. and re-deposited to the student's account. In the event a cheque is re-deposited, the student concerned must report to D.V.A. (55 York St.) for payment.

It is the responsibility of the student to draw cheques on time.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1946

No. 55

Liquid Air Demonstration Like Magician's Madness

Satterley night was not the loneliest night last week, as hundreds of would-be spectators were turned away from Professor John Satterley's liquid air lecture at the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall Saturday.

Between spectacular experiments demonstrating the properties of liquid air, with fountains of gray vapor pouring from the worktable, balloons exploding vehemently, and rockets zooming into the audience, the professor gave a brief outline of the historical development of liquid air and an explanation of the phenomena which were being displayed, through slides which had been made for the benefit of Sir Robert Falconer.

"I'm thirsty," declared Prof. Satterley, taking some of the fluid into his mouth. The vapor spewed in all directions, and the audience gasped. Explaining the dangers which he had risked, he said, "If I had swallowed some of it, it would have expanded 778 times its volume, and then where would I have been?"

Liquid air, he explained, had a temperature of about -350 degrees Fahrenheit, and consequently could be boiled by the atmosphere, or any other object with a comparatively high temperature. This was the reason for the clouds of steam-like vapor which geysered from the spout of a kettle "boiling" on a cake of ice on the platform. Hoar-frost was produced on the outside of an iron ball which had been suspended in the liquid, then cooked by the flame of a spirit lamp.

To demonstrate the expanding qualities of liquid air during evaporation, the professor poured some into a brass tube, plugged the top with a wide cork and pointed it at the audience. "Where's Professor London?" he demanded. The cork exploded out of the tube with a roar. Several other corks followed the first, on demand of the delighted crowd. Only one failed its duty, due to an unforeseen leak.

With the liquid air, the professor made a hammer out of frozen mercury, and hammered a notice of the next RCI lecture with it to the front of the table. A hook made of the same substance

(Continued on page 4)

International Youth Conference Attended By Canadian Delegates

Students of Canadian Universities were represented at International Youth Conference held in London, England, and in Prague last November. The London conference was attended by delegates from 63 countries, and the Prague conference held on the anniversary of the German massacre of Czech students, was attended by 500 delegates from 21 countries.

Jessie Storrie, a graduate from the University of Toronto and Leo Ustasz a Toronto member of the Slavic Youth Council were Toronto representatives who travelled with the Canadian delegation in a B-24 Liberator Bomber to the Prague Conference.

At this conference the delegates passed a resolution to the effect that concerted attempts should be made to improve the condition of students and educational institutions throughout the devastated countries of Europe.

Ernest Nix, II Theological student from the University of Alberta was one of the eight delegates chosen to represent thirty-two youth organizations throughout Canada at the London Conference; at this meeting a world Federation of Democratic Youth was established aiming to affiliate all national and international youth organizations

DIRECTORY

The 1945-1946 edition of the University Directory of Staff and Students is now available. Copies may be purchased by members of the staff and students in the Book Department of the University of Toronto Press.

Argentinian Student Enrolls At University

Two weeks ago Carla van Lente arrived in Toronto, and, incidentally, in University College. Carla lives in Comodoro Rivadavia, four days by boat south of Buenos Aires, in the Argentine.

A few days ago Carla was still rather vague about how she got to Toronto, and why she is enrolled in U.C. By now everything is more or less cleared up, and Carla has settled down to lectures, which, she says, she enjoys very much. She knows no one in either the United States or Canada, but Mr. K. P. Kirkland, a graduate of the University of Toronto, who is living in Buenos Aires where Carla went to school, suggested this university, and here she is.

The ship Carla travelled on took 35 days to go to New York, but "I enjoyed the trip very much. We stopped over at Rio de Janeiro, and stayed four days in Colon, in Panama, which is known as The City of Uniforms." The weather was too hot to sunbathe, but two days out of New York the weather changed. "It was cold enough to freeze the whiskers on Santa Claus," was the expression they used, said Carla.

The Argentine is not the only place in which Carla has lived. Her parents were born in Holland, and she was born in Curacao, a Dutch possession off the coast of Venezuela, where her father was working for the Dutch oil company, which has now taken him down to the oil district of the Argentine. According to Carla, the saying goes, "Join Shell and see the world", and that is what she has done.

She has lived in Bogota, in Colombia, where she says, "It rains from five to eleven every day"; she has touched Africa, passed through Europe, and spent some time in Holland and England. She would have liked to have gone to an English University, because she has friends in that country, but they are taking no overseas students. This is her first trip to Canada.

Carla went to grammar and high school in Buenos Aires, an English school, at that. "It was a little confusing, because in grammar school we had to take each subject in both Spanish and English. In high school, however, we were allowed to choose the language." In Toronto Carla is studying languages, which is not surprising, since she can speak Dutch, Spanish, English, French and German fluently. And that all by the time she is nineteen.

According to Carla, the first time she brought out her fur coat in Toronto she was besieged by questions of "Where did you get your coat? Surely you wouldn't wear one down in the Argentine?" To each she replied that Comodoro Rivadavia was situated on the 45th parallel, and had a climate much the same as that in Toronto. "It gets really hot in summer, but quite cold in the winter," she said.

Carla will be staying in Canada this summer, but her parents will visit her on the way over to their homeland, Holland, where she has many relations, some of whom she has heard from during the war, and others from whom no word has been received.

Ten Selected Students Will Meet The General

EISENHOWER'S ITINERARY

Ten undergraduates who have served in the armed services will be presented to General Dwight D. Eisenhower next Saturday in the course of his visit to the University, Registrar A. B. Fennell told The Varsity last night.

The presentation will take place immediately before the General lunches in the Great Hall, Hart House, as guest of the University. About 40 other people will be presented at the same time.

The ten undergraduates will represent 50 other ex-service students, men and women of all ranks, commissioned and non-commissioned, and from all branches of

Convocation * Tickets

Five hundred undergraduates, including 300 from the armed services, will see General Dwight D. Eisenhower receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at a special Convocation at 3 p.m.

At 11 a.m., Mr. Fennell stated, a University delegation composed of President Smith, Chancellor Cody, and the Chairman and Vice-chairman of the Board of Governors will call on General Eisenhower at the Royal York Hotel.

At noon the General will visit the City Hall. It is expected that he will lay a wreath on the cenotaph, and be received by Mayor Saunders and the Board of Control.

Leaving the City Hall, the party will drive to Hart House, arriving at 12:45. About 50 persons will then be presented to General Eisenhower, after which luncheon will be served in the Great Hall.

The luncheon will be attended by the Board of Governors, the Senate of the University, the Board of Directors of the Alumni Federation, and the Students' Administrative Council representing the undergraduate body of the University.

At 2:45 the General will be driven to Convocation Hall, and the ceremony of conferring the degree will commence promptly at 3:00. General Eisenhower will deliver an address.

From 4:00 to 5:00 the General will attend a reception given in his honor by the Honorable Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. At 6:05 he will board his train for Washington.

"Several University organizations are still innocently delaying work on Torontonensis by their failure to sign for space in the yearbook," said Editor Ross McLean today.

"It is embarrassing to confess," he continued, "that we have already established two hollowly-hailed final deadlines for the signing of all space contracts. We have been forced once to leniency in stretching the space contract deadline and shall do it once more."

Delinquent contractors are to have only until Tuesday to negotiate at the S.A.C. office for space in the 1946 book, he announced. Until all contracts have been signed, the size of the book is still in doubt and actual work on the dummy is impeded.

Campus Capsules

Around and About

"818," the CUP conference delegate groggily announced to the switchboard operator of the Hotel London as he put the receiver to his ear.

"815," she insisted, her voice containing the rhinestone sparkle of all switchboard operators.

"No," the delegate declared vigorously. "818! Room 818!"

"But," pleaded the operator. "You asked to be called at 815!"

"Oh, yes," meekly recollected the delegate.

In at least one small course the ages of demonstrators are down and the ages of students are up. Ex-servicemen registration has forced the department heads to recruit third year students as lab assistants.

One such recently received a lab report from one of her ex-service students. At its bottom he had proposed: "How about discussing this point further at the Royal York Saturday night?"

The President of the U.C. Men's Residence at 73 St. George Street is currently facing a bathless new year.

New Year's Eve celebrants made off with the antique pipe stopper in his bathtub and Paul Seron is, at least temporarily, in involuntary drydock.

The pair of married ex-servicemen sat in the Tuck Shop a month or more ago and discussed the reconversion of the Lady Nelson and the Lady Rodney. The vessels were then being refitted to transport war brides and children.

Shrewd suggestion of one of the pair was to start a company to manufacture paper diapers.

"Because," he explained soberly to his companion, "there isn't enough water aboard ship to wash the other kind."

Editorial

"It's Undemocratic"

The air has been filled lately with a great deal of talk about "democracy"; a word which we studiously avoid using because misuse has rendered it so nearly meaningless. Most political catch-words, for that matter, are meaningless; the most implicit Tory, for example, can argue endlessly that "socialism" is a good thing, if by socialism he means such examples of public ownership as the T.T.C. The most rabid socialist will shout to the death that "socialism" is a bad thing, if he finds the principle of communal ownership being applied to his pocket-handkerchief.

It is mainly, we suspect, because of a certain illogical sanctity attaching to the word that one does not often find it argued that "democracy" is a bad thing. We think, however, that what many people call democracy is emphatically a bad thing, and we wish they did not call it democracy, because the word is an opiate dissipating almost any evil into shimmering idealistic clouds.

The People Are Drowsy

What we think is bad, and what we constantly hear dignified by the label of democracy, is the practice of voting a committee into office and then going to sleep.

During the furor last fall about the deportation of the Japanese-Canadians, far too many wrote to us defending the action of the government on the grounds that the government, having been elected by the people, represented the will of the people and was therefore by definition sacrosanct.

We readily grant that the popular will constitutes the only workable political right. We will even grant for purposes of the present argument the more wildly improbable contention that a given government, notwithstanding campaigns and electioneering, really represents the wishes of the people in the sense that the people wanted those men and not other men to make their laws. We will not grant that these men, merely because the people wanted them to make the laws, are incapable of making any laws but popular ones. They Must Be Democrats

The wisest and most searching words of all that have been spoken about self-government and the nature of sovereignty are those of Jowett, the late great Master of Balliol: "You cannot have a republic without republicans."

You can not. You can talk about democracy, you can shed ink about it voluminously, you can persuade yourself that you are democratically governed because you have made marks opposite the names of forward and frequently self-seeking men on voting-slips. You may proclaim that the ballot-box is of all our possessions the chiefest to be prized, because it magically and by its mere presence confers democracy. It does not. You cannot have democracy without democrats.

Our age by its nature tends to oligarchy—that is, the rule of the few, and those not often even the best. It is one of the most disillusioning lessons to be learned from University life, that the campaign determines the election, and that committee-government is generally a labor-saving device for the apathetic mob. The committee governs securely from the top, imposing its will on those too sleepy to care. It is a farce to pretend that a given committee necessarily represents its constituents, any more than a dead fish washed up on the beach represents the sea.

Let no one accuse us of calling representative government intrinsically bad. You can be extremely well-governed by a good committee, or even a good monarch. It can make its decisions wisely, and keep you very happy. But you must not empower an assembly to govern you for a year, and then fall asleep and pretend that you are governing yourself.

The public will maintain under persecution that it governs itself. Yet having made its "x" in the voting-machine, it will in the years that follow be acutely critical of its government: critical, but powerless. Eventually, still thinking that it governs itself, it will blame the political machinery. It is not the machinery that needs overhauling, but the public mood.

"Democracy", if it means anything at all, means government consonant with the popular will: government for the people. It is no mere matter of majorities; for by proper selection one can exhibit a majority in favor of anything.

THE VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper
Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College, M.L. 6611
Business Office, M.L. 6221
Night Office, M.L. 8743

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor: Wally Belfry, 478
Makeup Editor: Peg Wallace, B.A.
Reviews Editor: Barbara Hood, B.A.
News Editor: George Foster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant: Reg Herman, 478
Sports Editor: Bredin Staples, 476
Assistant: Don Hanson, 478
Women's Sports Editor: Polly Muir, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor:
Assistant: Dorothy Jones, B.A.
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, 476
Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477
Night Editor: Peg Wallace.
Assistant: Emmett Mulvaney.

Finnegans Wake
Instalment 2

The scene is the same as in the first instalment. They (the cast) are all sitting around listening to the radio which is playing selections from John McCormack and the racing Forum.

Mary Cassidy: (timidly) We're going to have a visitor this afternoon.

Mrs. Cassidy: (smelling a rat) I don't want this house cluttered up with your boyfriends and their cribbage boards. (She puts the rat back in the refrigerator).

Mary: He's going to ask for my hand in marriage.

Mr. Cassidy: (thunders) What! Mary: We've been going together for the last fifteen years.

Mr. Cassidy: He's an O' Shaughnessy and a wine drinker to the boot. I won't hear of it. (He turns down the volume control of his Sonotone).

Mary: (In tears) O'll niver be married O'll be an old maid for the rest of my life. (The door opens and Captain Brandy and his dog Bouaboul enter. Bouboul enter. Bouaboul is carrying his little satchel of books and is eating a popolate chersicle).

Captain Brandy: (in dismay) Now, what's me little girl cryin for? Let me dry those pretty eyes. (Mary hands him her eyes and he holds them on a toasting fork in front of the peat fire for a couple of minutes).

Mary: (apprehensively) Don't burn them.

Captain Brandy: Niver fear me dear O've done this millions of times before. I think these are about done (he hands them back to her).

Mary: Me boy friend's comin' to see me this afternoon.

(O'Shaughnessy who has just arrived outside, overhears this and comes in through the window).

Mr. Cassidy: Git back to your fishing nets you no good beachcomber.

O'Shaughnessy: O've come to claim yer daughter Mary for my very own.

Captain Brandy: Bravely spoken me lad. (O'Shaughnessy seizes her by the arm and drags her out of the door).

Mr. Cassidy: Stop or I'll shoot (he shoots but misses the open net. The score is now 4-5 in favour of the Leafs but the game is not over yet).

Bouaboul: (Barking with alce jumps on to the ice, seizes the puck, trots out the front door with it, and gives it to Mary Cassidy).

A wedding present for you from myself and the Captain. (She accepts it with a little curtsy).

Finnegan: (Sitting up in his coffin) Me cigarette's gone out.

(Exeunt all to the sound of the Irish Washerwoman and the mutter of distant war drums).

JAKE.

introducing our
I. S. S.
reporter
"IGNATZ"

TRINITY COLLEGE PLAY

For obvious reasons we are late getting around to it, but we feel bound to record in this space that the day the Literary Supplement ended our 1945 publishing year yet another artistic event took place on the campus. The Trinity College Dramatic Society began a two-night stand in Hart House Theatre with Julius and Philip Epstein's Chicken Every Sunday, and did a bang-up job with it.

We have never seen a better collection of light comedy types in an undergraduate show. Almost plotless and usually semi-farical, the chronicle of a week in Mrs. Blackman's boarding-house in Tucson, Arizona, depends for its laughs on an unbelievable assortment of characters and on the rapid-fire delivery of sophisticated lines. The characters were superbly caricatured, and the lines knowingly delivered.

If we must select from a cast of such uniform excellence, we nominate as especially rib-tickling Sandy McKay as the ribald, crackle-voiced prospector, Mollie Armour, who as Mrs. Blackman dominated the production throughout. Drew Thompson as her harassed husband, and Grant Jeffrey, as the beaming, uncensored Rev. Wilson, who stopped the show by referring the question of guilt in the matter of stolen surpluses to a Higher Power. Director Earle Grey kept the timing fast and the touch light throughout.

Well done, Trinity! —W. H. K.

CorrespondenceNeither Art Nor PrettyThe Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

It's a couple of weeks since the Literary Supplement rolled off the press, but I can't resist wondering aloud what kind of art work would have won laurels in a "progressive" daily if the samples of art in the Supplement have the approbation of a hidebound "reactionary" press (so-called!)

Maybe I'm what our pink friends would call a reactionary Reactionary, but it's my happy guess that even the surrealist Dalisists would have curled at the sight of the monstrosity which won second prize.

But everyone laughed at Edison too, so I guess that's some consolation for the perpetrators of all such profound works. Besides, we'd be a pretty glum lot if we didn't take time out for a laugh, and that art display in the Supplement drew more guffaws than Dagwood and Blondie!

—JACK MCNE.

I Vic.

Player's Please

MILD OR MEDIUM

The famous "sailor" trademark is recognized as a guarantee of unfailing quality.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT CIGARETTES

Dr. R. A. FORREST

President of Toccoa Falls Bible Institute and Canadian Keswick speaker

IN ROOM III, ANATOMY BLDG.

Tuesday, January 8th at 1 p.m.

Sponsored by Varsity Christian Fellowship

All Students Welcome

Lunches Available

Open Meeting

of The University of Toronto
Progressive Conservative Club

SPEAKER

J. M. MacDONNELL, K.C., M.P.'A Stocktaking of the Conservative Party'

WOMEN'S UNION, 8 P.M., TUESDAY, JANUARY 8TH

STUDENTS!

When post war Ring Covers are available,
DOMINION will have them.

For the present we will do our best to look after as many orders as possible. Materials for the manufacture of Ring Covers are still very limited.

Ask your bookstore. He will keep you posted.

Dominion Blank Book Company

Beautiful Reproductions of etchings from

TORONTONENSIS

are available in the S.A.C. Office, Hart House

These include:

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

MEDICAL BUILDING

BURWASH HALL

TRINITY COLLEGE

MEMORIAL TOWER

KNOX COLLEGE

Price 75c each

Hart House Bulletin BoardGlee Club

The first rehearsal of the Glee Club will take place in the Music Room tomorrow night at 5:00 p.m. Although a maximum enrolment has been reached a few additional tenors are desirable.

Informal Recital

Ross Johnson (II Medicine), pianist, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, 8th January.

B. W. C. Downs Varsity In Hard-Fought Cage Tilt

On Saturday night, 5,000 fans saw the Varsity Senior basketball squad go down before a powerful Baldwin-Wallace College quintet, to a score of 57-37. The game played as an opener to a Canisius College-Scranton, Pa. scrap, saw the fast-breaking B.W. team prove too much for the hard-fighting Varsityites. The American five-some, rated by Buffalo sports critics as one of the top 20 U. S. College teams, featured an airtight defense, that the Blues found nothing impenetrable.

The B-W. quintet, fresh from a fifteen point victory over Western U, scored eleven quick points in the first five minutes of play, before the shaky Toronto defense settled down to good basketball. In the same five opening minutes, Varsity, running up against a tight four-man defensive system, managed to score only two points. The score-board, at the end of the frame, showed the homesters on the very short end of a 19-8 score.

The Varsity defense, due either to a short quarter-time pep-talk, or to their previous intensive practice, began to click in the second stanza, and the rival forwards found themselves run off the floor whenever they came near the Varsity end of the floor. The Blues managed to close up the gap in this quarter, as the 31-20 quarter-end score testified.

The B. W. coach must have pulled out his Ouija-board at the half-time conference, as the Ohio State team seemed to have solved the Blues' defense when they again put in an appearance on the playing floor. The Blues' defense was split open for four quick baskets, before Manager Morrison had time to say "pshaw," as the fans began to notice signs of tiring in the ranks of the home team. The boys from the Buckeye State showed amazing sharp-shooting tactics, as they ran the court up to 43-30 at the end of the third quarter.

The air-tight defensive system of the Baldwin-Wallace crew was very much in evidence in the final frame, as the Blues managed to score only seven points, exactly half as many as their rivals, to make the final count read 57-37.

Mayzel, with 8 points, was the high-scorer for Varsity, while Oberst, with 16 points, was the top marksman for Baldwin-Wallace. For B-W., Oberst, Carlo and Cain were stand-outs, while Mayzel and Zliahon showed well for the Blues.

Observers agreed that it was the excellent defensive work, coupled with a decided edge in speed that gave the American cagers their victory. The Varsity defense was disappointing at times, and the homesters' foul-shooting was definitely not what it should be. Canisius overwhelmed Scranton, 51-30, in the second feature of the double billing.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

The Toronto hoopers entered the big time on Saturday night in their Baldwin-Wallace exhibition game. The American team was given very heavy support by the 5,000 fans who witnessed the exhibition encounter, but it was the Blues' loose defensive play, coupled with an inability to find the hoop on foul shots, that caused their downfall. . . . The highly-polished B-W. hoopers were pre-game favourites because of the Blues' record of 3 wins and 2 losses. . . . readers must forgive the lack of player-mention in the basketball write-up, as expense-accounts necessitate the garnering of second-hand information by the blood-houndish sports staff. . . . Our Junior Blues put on a very fine showing in this opening test of strength. The Monday night game slated for 8 p.m. promises well worth while seeing, and any non-scratchers should make a real effort to attend. . . . We have it on inside information that the second line of Pelow, Brankston, and Davidson is really worth watching. Their passing is HOT. . . . Having strayed into the Hart House pool gallery the other day we saw a sight which no student of this U. ought to miss. If you ever saw over a 100 human forms in that body of water at one time, you would know what we mean. They tell me that fellows actually learn to swim in this bedlam. For further detail, just ask the man on the spot, Mr. Winterburn. . . . P.S.: Mr. Winterburn can really swim. . . . we saw him, ourselves, performing a 50-yard plunge. . . . a two-cigar bet will bring a repeat anytime.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Passing the Puck!

The weatherman and the calendar don't agree at all. . . . what with balmy spring breezes sweeping over the campus when deep snow drifts should be banking the buildings. The hockey club prefers to believe the calendar, and are consequently working out a schedule to start January 14. The Varsity Arena will be the scene of action for the majority of games, but due to a crowded time-table will not be able to accommodate all of the teams. The minority will play their games in the outdoor rinks south of the Arena.

The women students of Varsity have exhibited profuse enthusiasm for the sport under discussion. . . . from two groups they have expanded into three. Thus it is that the new third group. . . . U.C. II, Vic. II, St. Hilda's II and P.H.E. III. . . . will be slanted out of the Arena. The first group is made up of the top teams—U.C., Vic., St. Hilda's, and P.H.E. They are chosen on the record of past years' performances. The remaining teams in the league are relegated to the second group. . . . Meds., P.H.E. II and St. Mike's. The third group is a collection of extra teams.

Leona Eunson, president of the hockey club, has high hopes that there might be more students interested in hockey that have not as yet volunteered. In order that they might be accorded space in the schedule Leona would like them to contact her as soon as possible. . . . which means this week.

Each College represented in the League sends in one referee for duty. But not all Colleges have fulfilled this small onus as yet, which adds to the difficulty of arranging games. Thus Leona would greatly appreciate full co-operation from those who have not sent in their referee.

Which brings up the subject of practices. They are held outside, when there is any ice on which to skate, and the members of the teams can all manage to congregate together at specified hours. Up to date some of the top teams have had but one practice. . . . whether or not this is due to exams, the net result is the same. . . . poor exhibitions of hockey. We have noted with interest that many are good speedy skaters, and just a little more energy would breed a high grade of hockey worthy of Intercollegiate games. Is there a dissenting voice in the crowd?

Ski Notes

This holiday season, many made their Christmas merry, and their New Year's happy, by braving the rocks, grass and Professionals at Ski Resorts near and far.

From latest flashes it would appear that the Laurentians were not as good as usual. Judy Rowe reports that Camp Fortune at Ottawa would have been much better if the snow had been more abundant. Sportsed. Stappells (plug) was heard to say that the bar at Ste. Marguerite's was more crowded than usual, and that Bacchus-seeking customers had very little snow on their feet.

At the Collingwood stampin' grounds there were numerous Campus caperings with the local hills and belles. Future Sundays should see the local "Hot Hickies" out in all their enthusiastic fury, in an attempt to convince the coach that their weight is on the correct foot. After Christmas, two very fast days and a couple of rainy ones afforded the opportunity for the skiing fraternity to demonstrate enthusiasm and skill, on occasion with the old barrel staves. There were lots of promising talent seen sliding down the very tricky schuss. From the swing of her shoulders (?) we predict that Sue McFaul, fugitive from P. & H. E., will be well worth watching.

Ted Hill, II S.P.S., was also showing fine form. However, he is still complaining about the thirty feet of crust that he personally cut with his nose during a power dive.

Some of the boys took textbooks along to pass the time at the end of the day. However, a few gay parties sponsored by the local talent softened the "k" in skiing, and the sport was carried on into the night to the tune of the square dancer's call.

Moving closer to home, we might inform our readers (or are we being optimistic?) that, weather permitting a bus will meet the North Toronto Trolley at Richmond Hill, on Saturday and Sundays. Bus schedule is as follows:—Leaves Toronto 9:40; 10:20; 11:00; 1:00; 1:40. Returns from Summit:—4:00; 4:40; 5:20.

Bear in mind that the bus will run only when skiing conditions at Summit are favourable.

SPORTS NOTICE

All those interested in writing sports for the Varsity please get in contact with Bredin Stapells K1. 2996.

Juniors Tie Series Opener In Rough-and-Tumble Scrap

The Junior Blues opened their schedule Friday night at Richmond Hill against Chapmans Jewellers with a tie score of 4-4. Both teams showed up very well in their first game in the Junior B.O.H.A. season.

The first period saw Davidson net the opening goal for Varsity on a rebound from Pelow. The Juniors followed this up with another by Barron on a nice play from Morrison and Boyd. Chapmans brought the tally to 2-1 on a play by Howson.

The Toronto men monopolized the play in the first 20 minutes despite the soft ice condition. Mills for the Jewellers looked very good, and Boyd for Varsity. Foran warmed up as the play progressed in the left wing position of the blue squad.

A major penalty livened up the game, when Foran was slightly roughed by a couple of their players. One of them insisted on cutting off his wind pipe with his hickory beam. Needless to say, Foran was slightly peeved, and a wee skirmish ensued ending with the bad boys going to the penalty box for five minutes' detention.

Major scoring of the scrap was in the second stanza with five tallies on the board. King for Chapmans started the red light flickering, followed by Brankston for the home team from Pelow on a neat shot from the corner. Again the teams alternated in bulging the twine, when Bailey banged in another for the city sextet, and Brankston came through for Toronto again on a pass from Barron.

The Jewellers polished off the count for the evening when right winger King bounced the puck high over goalie Hutzalak's head. The big question was whether he banged it down with his stick when it was in the air, or not. The referee finally claimed that Hutzalak had not touched it which ended the argument.

Defenceman Morrison received a penalty for easing one of the opposing men into the boards.

The closing third was played in a gushy slush which vaguely resembled the Hart House pool. Water wings should have been the order of the day. Brankston got clipped across the chin and lip by one of the hard hitting Chapmans lads. Three stitches and a chipped tooth was the final outcome of the whole shebang. Howson showed his stuff in

(Continued on page 4)

Intramural Sports Committee Meeting Today, 5:00 p.m.
Swimming & Water Polo Club Meeting Today, 5:00 p.m.

SPORTS CALENDAR

Indoor Track, 5:00 p.m.—Relay, 3-man teams, 1 lap each Don't forget to sign the eligibility certificate in Athletic Office before participation.

SWIMMING AND WATER POLO CLUB

Swimming team practices will be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 5:00 p.m. All swimmers wishing to try out for the Senior and Intermediate teams are requested to be out Monday, January 7th, at 5:00 p.m. (sharp).

The Water Polo Club will hold practices Tuesdays and Thursdays at 5:00 p.m. and Saturdays at 1:00 p.m. All players wishing to try out for the team must be out to the first practice Tuesday, January 8th, at 5:00 p.m. The Intercollegiate Championships are February 1st, so there is not much time!

Referees Wanted

Referees are urgently needed for hockey, basketball and water polo.
Apply at the Athletic Office, Hart House. Remuneration is paid.

REFEREES OF FALL SPORTS

Will the following referees kindly call at Athletic Office, without delay, and pick up their pay for lacrosse, soccer, rugby, swim league and volleyball. R. T. Sheppard, S. A. Cooke, K. A. Firman, I. Strathman, N. Hassanali, J. C. McDonald, E. D. Roberts, E. R. Mather, M. Beer, M. Sugar, P. S. Welch, B. Morrow, C. V. Williams, J. F. Seunarine, N. Campbell, R. Schaffer, G. E. Geary, S. M. Kalman, T. Cossitt, D. Ferguson, C. J. McNulty.

Varsity Notices:

FIGURE SKATING — INSTRUCTION

Instruction in Figure Skating will be offered by the Athletic Association starting Monday, January 7th, weather permitting. This activity may be taken by either men or women to partially fulfil P.T. requirements. Classes will be held daily, except Saturday, from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. on the outdoor rink at Varsity Stadium. Men register for classes in the Athletic Office, Hart House; women with Miss Forster, Household Science Building.

VOLUNTEER INSTRUCTORS — FIGURE SKATING ASSIGNMENTS

Time: 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. on the days indicated below:

Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday
Stephens	Opie	McLaughlin	McLaughlin	Stephens
Opie	deNance	deNance	Bowden	Bowden

Staff Member in Charge: C. Zwygand.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Make Better Marks

WITH THESE COLLEGE FAVORITES YOU'LL PASS ALL YOUR TESTS WITH HONOURS!

EAGLE

MIRADO WRITING PENCIL

VERITHIN COLORED PENCIL

TURQUOISE DRAWING PENCIL

BUY ALL 3 FROM YOUR favorite SCHOOL SUPPLY DEALER

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

UNDERGRADUATE LOAN FUND

Operated by the Students' Administrative Council

This fund is open to students who pay the S.A.C. fee and are in either of the final two years of their courses. The maximum loan is $100.00. Interest is charged at 5% from date of leaving the University. Applicants will be interviewed and loans granted in January. Those receiving loans must sign a note, and a satisfactory endorser is necessary. Application forms are now available in the S.A.C. Office, Hart House.

University Symphony Orchestra

GEORGE COUTTS, Conductor

HANS GRUBER, Associate Conductor

Rehearsal for full orchestra, Wednesday, January 9th, 8 p.m. sharp

CONVOCATION HALL

Complete and prompt attendance required.

Anyone unable to attend must notify at MAYfair 4977 beforehand.

SCHOOL AT HOME Presents

JERRY WALD and His Great American Orchestra

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK

$3.00 PER COUPLE
DANCING 9 - 2

ROYAL YORK HOTEL
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 16, 1946

ALSO ELLIS McLINTOCK AND BOBBY GIMBY

Satterley's Liquid Air . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Keeper up a running flow of commentary, Prof. Satterley moved nimbly up and down the length of his long table which was littered with complicated apparatus, setting in motion several experiments at once. While liquid oxygen was being collected through evaporation of the nitrogen, vegetables were being frozen stiff in liquid air, red mercury di-iodide was turning yellow, yellow sulphur was turning white, and a balloon hooked to the outlet of a flask of liquid air was rapidly increasing in size. It later exploded while slides were being shown.

Homemade rockets stuffed with cotton wool saturated with liquid air were placed on a ramp. "These will, I hope, land 'way out there among you," he stated calmly. "Of course, they will be on fire. Please put them out as soon as you can." Then he lit the first. Something new was added to staid Convocation Hall that night.

One banana, a bunch of parsley, two daffodils, a bunch of grapes, a tomato, a mutilated orange identified as a tangerine, and a rubber ball, were pulled out of liquid air baths, and tapped lightly with a hammer. Brittle pieces flew into the air in all directions, tinkling on the ground like broken glass.

A goldfish, immersed for a short time in liquid air, revived when placed in water. Two uncluttered companions plunged into the liquid for a longer period shattered like the vegetables. Members in the front row picked up the pieces, sniffed them, and hastily threw them away.

The letters RCI spelled out with 27 feet of glass tubing glowed eerily in the dark when liquid air, condensing carbon dioxide, was poured into the tube and the switch closed.

Two near-accidents occurred during the lecture, once when a lighted taper fell into a jar of liquid oxygen, and once when some spun lucite soaked with liquid air volumed suddenly into flame when ignited. Falls of water quenched the flames, at the same time rendering the lecturer's notes useless. "Oh well," commented the professor.

As an encore Prof. Satterley washed his hands in cold flame in the dark, and traced in flame on top of his head a temporary halo.

Connaught Labs Damaged By Fire

A two alarm fire Friday night at the Connaught Laboratories caused damage to the building estimated at $5,000 and additional unestimated damage to the contents.

The fire broke out in a basement storeroom filled with seed and sawdust. The blaze was small but gave off clouds of heavy yellow smoke which forced firemen to fight the fire in relays from a window at the rear of the building. Electric cables were burned through, plunging the entire structure into total darkness.

All animals kept for experimental purposes were killed. One fireman received minor lacerations from flying glass.

Laboratory officials stated that the insulin manufacturing plant and instruction rooms were not affected by the blaze, damage being confined to the feed room. Production will not be affected, they said.

WOMEN STUDENTS

Students are reminded that they must have a Medical Examination each year. Will any who have not done so please make their appointment at 44 Hoskin Ave. immediately.

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that . . .

You are represented on the University Advisory Committee and on the Committee of the University Advisory Bureau by four Ex-Service Students. They are: Engineering . . . Mr. F. Huntsley Medicine . . . Mr. A. H. Stevens Victoria College . . . Mr. H. Lacey University College . . . Mr. J. Duggan They will be glad to pass on any suggestions that you may wish to make.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. M.L. 3781
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

New and Entrenous

" - - - and Gay"

By next Monday the editor-in-chief will be back at the reins of The Ubsysey.

The editor-in-chief will sit at her Remington and resume her editorial writing chores.

But she will write from a new, national viewpoint. For the lady editor of the University of British Columbia's tri-weekly newspaper will have just returned from a three-week trans-Canada tour with stopovers at London, Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

She is Mardee Dundas, placid pilot of The Ubsysey, who together with her senior editor, Marian Ball, will by that time have completed a 6,000 mile trip across Canada.

The editorial pair will probably rest for a week upon their arrival home. They will then be more than occupied for several strenuous days in remembering British Columbia people in the east to British Columbia people in the west. Wherever the girls visited they were assailed by deluges of "Do-you-knows." "None of whom," explained Marian Ball, "we could ever recall. We could only murmur vague 'Umhmms' and promise to say 'hello' to their friends when we got back. It will certainly keep us busy."

They will probably be asked to recite the differences between Toronto and Vancouver on their return to the U. of B. C. campus. "There are," they can be expected to observe, "no bells at Toronto traffic intersections." The girls may recount their saga in greater detail. Possibly they will refer to the well-intentioned fellow traveller on their trip east who was armed with a pair of binoculars.

These binoculars he would thoughtfully thrust into their hands and through them they would be required to look whenever a rare sight appeared. After a polite glance through the glasses at dirt specks on the lens, the girls would hand them back to the kind passenger by which time the sight had passed. "We missed more herds of mountain goats that way," the girls lamented.

If the girls are required to explain their budget they may be embarrassed to confess that at least one taxi fare in Montreal was twice what is needed to because their driver was mono-lingual.

Their directions to the French-speaking cabbie took them in endless circles about Montreal.

Purpose of their mission east was to attend the CUP national conference at London where they spent five days. Their jaunt then took them to Montreal for the NFCUS conference (as spectators) and a fatiguing New Year's Eve a la Quebec. They visited Toronto for three days last week.

Senate Member Dies at Age of 71

A member of the Senate of the University of Toronto since 1943, Major William Mowbray, 71, died on Friday after a long illness.

Born in Kent County, Major Mowbray graduated from University College in 1895 winning the English Essay Prize. He taught at various high schools in Western Ontario and was appointed to the staff of Upper College in 1902.

He was Past President of the University College Alumni Association. Major Mowbray served in the First Great War with the 70th Battalion.

University Awards

The Senate of the University announces the following awards:

The Ontario Forest Industries Scholarship in Forest Entomology	J. J. F. P. Fettes
The Canadian Lumbermen's Association Timber Research Fellowship	Wm. Thorner
(a special award)
The J. J. Mackenzie Fellowship in Pathology	J. G. Watt
The Ramsay Scholarship in Physics	J. L. Locke
(Fourth Year Math. & Phys. (III))
The Urwick Bursaries	Miss M. E. Budd
(First Year Social & Philosophical Studies)
Miss L. R. Rackham
(Second Year Sociology)
The Jay J. Allen Award	E. B. Fish
(First Medical Year)
The Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co., Ltd., Bursary	John R. Shemilt
(First Year Forestry)
The Robert Bruce (Admission) Scholarship	Adam Glass
(First Year Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry)
School of Social Work:
The Big Sister Association Scholarship	Miss Gwyneth Smith
The Edward Johns Urwick Memorial Scholarship	Miss Ruth Johnston
The Ontario Community Chests Bursaries	John McKnight
	Miss Frances Castor

Blues vs. Jewellers . . .

(Continued from page 3)

Overtime was considered, but the decision went against it, leaving the game a tie.

Varsity Juniors

HUTZALAK
IRWIN
HARTNEY
BOYD
FORAN
SMYTHE
PELOW
BRANKSTON
DAVIDSON
MORRISON (D)
BARRON (W)
McGUIRE
STAFF SMYTHE

GOAL
DEFENSE
DEFENSE
CENTRE
LEFT WING RIGHT WING
ALTERNATES
ALTERNATES
ALTERNATES
ALTERNATES
SPARE GOAL
COACH

Chapman's Jewellers

MILLS
MacDOUGAL
PUE
BAILEY
AIR
KING
HOWSON
McKENNEL
HOPPER
CAMPBELL (D)
HOGG (D)
SPRAG
BRUCE McLEAN

Additional Members Appointed To Vets' Requirement Committee

Four new members have been appointed to the Committee on University Requirements, Veterans Minister MacKenzie announced recently. The new members are: Dr. R. D. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University; L. J. Mills, financial advisor to the Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs; Rev. P. Cornillier, Rector, University of Ottawa; and R. B. Bryce, financial investigator Finance Department.

This committee was formed some time ago to manage the training of veterans and to meet their pressing needs. Consequently all problems such as the current one of allowances, housing, etc., are included in the committee's duties. The plan gets underway at Varsity with the opening of Ajax on the 14th of January. Although Ajax attendance consists entirely of student veterans, it will have not only a Students' Administrative Council but also a Veterans' Advisory Board.

COMING EVENTS

Mr. J. M. McDonnell, K.C., M.P. for Muskoka, is the first of a series of guest speakers to address the campus Progressive Conservative Club. Mr. McDonnell will speak to the open meeting Tuesday night at the Women's Union.

PHOTOGRAPHY EXHIBIT

The annual exhibition of photographs sponsored by the Camera Committee of Hart House will be held in the art gallery for two weeks beginning Tuesday, 15th January. Any members of Hart House are invited to contribute. Entries should be handed in to the Hall Porter not later than 6 p.m. on Wednesday January 9th. Entry forms may be obtained at the hall porter's desk.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service.
321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

Alumni Get Together --

For All GRADS

Wed., Jan. 9th
7:45 P.M.

LAWRENCE
PARK AUDITORIUM

Alumni Dance to be Feb. 22

smoke the mild
cigarette

FELT CRESTS

Official University felt crests are sold only at the S.A.C. office, Hart House.

Price 50¢

To be worn only on University Blue.
Suitable for sweater, gym suit or blazer.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

FOR SALE

Gabardine raincoat, medium size.
Apply J. W. Gibson, KI. 4018.

LOST

Brown striped Parker pen, before holidays, between Chemistry and Medical Bldgs. Phone GR. 9370. Reward.

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

FOR SALE

Tails, medium size (125 lbs.), 57". Excellent condition. Very reasonable. Apply W. H. Pearson, HY. 5762.

ATTENTION ALL VIC. STUDENTS —

VIC AT-HOME TICKET SALE

COMMENCES TUESDAY, JANUARY 8TH, V.C.U. OFFICE

National Financial Critic Quizzed At Meeting

ENDEAVOR TO EFFECT EDUCATION POLICY

Financial Critic for His Majesty's Loyal Opposition, J. M. MacDonnell, K.C., M.P., has been announced as first of a series of guest speakers to be introduced by the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club.

Prophesying a possible attendance of 200 to hear this speaker, who caught public attention with a series of addresses near the end of the last session of the House of Commons, spokesman Jack Chipman gave reasons for introducing the guest-speaker series. "It is an educational policy," he said, "that we are trying to effect. We feel that a political club can do much good in this aim."

The member for Muskoka, Mr. MacDonnell will speak on "Stock-taking of the Progressive Conservative Party" at 8:00 tonight in the Women's Union. It is an open meeting.

Ontario-born Mr. MacDonnell was educated at the Universities of Queen's and Oxford, called to the bar by Osgoode in 1911. Having earned the presidency of the National Trust Co., by 1939, he retired in 1942 to enter politics. Lieut. MacDonnell went overseas in 1914. Major MacDonnell returned in 1918 with the Military Cross and the Croix de Guerre.

A King's Counsel since 1937, Mr. MacDonnell is chairman of the Board of Trustees of Queen's University and Trustee of Toronto General Hospital.

Tentative plans of the Progressive Conservative Club are a minimum of two guest-speakers, prominent public figures whenever possible, each month. These open meetings will be interceded by meetings to complete club business. The greater percentage of the predicted future speakers are actually members of the Provincial Government.

Mr. MacDonnell has requested that tonight's open meeting feature a question-and-answer period.

Modern Drama Topic For Club

Contemporary dramatists, including the Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw, will be under discussion by undergraduate members of the University College Modern Letters Club, at tomorrow night's meeting, scheduled for 8:00 p.m. in the Women's Union.

Henry Kreisler IV, English Language and Literature, will discuss the writings of Eugene O'Neill, whom he described in an interview with The Varsity yesterday as "perhaps the greatest realistic dramatist of all time".

Winifred Vincent will read a paper on Shaw, and Eva Maguire will survey the work of European playwrights whose work she believes shows tendencies "repeated in less intensity in the British and American theatres of our day".

Following the reading there will be an informal discussion by members of the club.

BASKETBALL NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the Basketball committee at 1 p.m. today to arrange the groupings. Faculties make sure your representative is there.

Social Works Awards Go To 36% Of Students

President Sidney Smith announced last week that the University of Toronto School of Social Work has made its awards of scholarships and bursaries to students in residence for the academic year 1945-46. Twenty-three of the 64 full-time students enrolled in the school's two-year graduate program of professional training have received awards.

The Big Sister Association Scholarship has been awarded to Miss Gwyneth Smith, the Edward John Urwick Memorial Scholarship to Miss Ruth Johnson, the School of Social Work Alumni Scholarship to Mr. John McKnight, the M. M. Cohen Scholarship to Miss Rose Potasky, the Bernard Vise Memorial Scholarship to Miss Frances Glassman, and the Rabbi Brickner Scholarship to Miss Marion Glassman.

EISENHOWER

Permission has been obtained for ex-service students to wear uniforms in Convocation Hall on the occasion of Saturday's convocation in honor of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, it was announced yesterday.

The 300 seats in the three centre sections of the hall have been set aside for ex-service students, and tickets will be issued for these seats on the understanding that the recipients be in uniform at the Convocation.

Married ex-service students will receive two tickets, and their wives will be admitted to these specially reserved sections.

The remaining 200 undergraduate tickets will admit students to the galleries in Convocation Hall.

All 500 undergraduate tickets will be distributed today in the Students' Administrative Council Office, Hart House. Basis of distribution will be "first come first served." Admission to Convocation Hall will be by ticket only.

Canada Year Book Ready For Public

"Now available for distribution by authorization of the Hon James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce" is the 1945 edition of the Canada Yearbook, reads a dispatch from Ottawa to The Varsity. The book, containing all facts imaginable about Canada, will be supplied to teachers, and ministers of religion at half the regular price.

The number set aside for these selected people is restricted, and early application is urged. All applications should be addressed to: The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa. Well, you Politicians, etc.?

Victoria Graduate Now Ajax Bursar

Mr. G. L. Court, B. Comm., C.A., has been appointed Deputy Bursar at the Ajax division, it was announced yesterday by C. E. Higginbottom, the University Bursar.

A graduate of Victoria College in Commerce and Finance, Mr. Court joined the staff of the university in 1938. During the war he served with the R.C.A.F. and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. Prior to this appointment he was accountant in charge of trust funds in the Bursar's office.

Mr. Higginbottom said that there would be complete facilities at Ajax for payment of fees, wages, salaries and distribution of D.V.A. cheques.

The Benjamin Sadowski Bursaries have been awarded to Miss Dorothy Boggs and Miss Frances Castorfi, the Caroline MacDonald Bursary to Miss Ruth Campbell, the Max Mueller Bursary to Miss Anne Port, the Ontario Community Chest Bursaries to Mr. John McKnight and Miss Frances Castorfi, the Toronto United Welfare Bursaries to Mrs. Doris Gunning, Miss Eva Newell, Mrs. Catherine Campbell, Mrs. Thelma Rosen, Miss Alice Watson, Miss Ida Spivak, Mrs. Marie Berris, Mrs. Hazel Coburn, Mrs. Mary Giovannetti, Miss Barbara Greene, Mr. Bernard Lappin, Mrs. Pauline Jolliffe, Miss Hannah Brownstone, Miss Ruth Campbell, Miss Frances Glassman, Miss Marion Glassman, Miss Rose Potasky and Miss Anne Port.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1946

No. 56

Newman Club Hear Member Pax Romana

Lieut. E. J. Kirchner, U.S. Navy, International vice-president of Pax Romana will lead a discussion group Sat. Jan. 12 at Newman Hall on "The Overall Picture of Higher Education for Catholic students in Canada."

Pax Romana, drawing its name from the old Roman Peace which lasted for 300 years in Augustan times, is an international federation of various Roman Catholic national student groups throughout the world. It is closely allied with the National Federation of Canadian University Students and the International Students' Service.

Founded in 1921 to promote international peace and understanding by non-political means, Pax Romana spread rapidly through the neutral countries of Switzerland, Holland and Spain, and thence to North and South America. Its international office is now in Washington D.C. where a permanent secretariat elected by the member universities has been active during the war in relief work in the devastated countries.

Although its student activities have been curtailed during the war, the international council plans to hold a convention in Spain in April 1946, and an American convention in South America later on during the summer.

Alumni Hall Plays Start Tomorrow

In accordance with a "workshop" approach to the Drama, the Vic Dramatic Society is producing another evening of "Alumni Hall plays" on Wednesday, Jan. 9. Produced and acted by students, these plays are primarily to give the student scope to experiment and to discover the intricacies of theatrical production for himself, since there is no one to teach him, according to Vernon Chapman, president of the Society. "This is part of the Dramatic Society's activities, inadequate as they may be, to fill the gap in the education of some interested young people created by the absence of a genuine course in Drama," Chapman said. "Also, these plays coincide with a long range policy of all the Dramatic groups on the campus to make the generations which pass through these halls of higher learning more Drama conscious in a critical sense, so that they will not be continually defrauded at the box offices."

The plays are chosen by the student directors, with an eye to the facilities which they have to work at best meagre, there being no proper stage—merely a platform. Nevertheless, the talent is considered good and usually the plays selected are of high artistic standard. Tomorrow night the plays to be presented are George Bernard Shaw's Oceanic, Sir James Barrie's The Twelve Pound Look, and Marie Baumer's It's an Ill Wind. These efforts will be directed by David Knight, David Parsons and Helen Scott respectively.

The plays will be staged in Alumni Hall Victoria College, and the curtain will rise at 7:45.

What's on Today

Christian Fellowship Address

1:00 p.m.—Dr. R. A. Forrest of Georgia is speaking to the Varsity Christian Fellowship in an All-University meeting in Room 11, Anatomy Building. All students are welcome; lunches available.

H.H. Glee Club Rehearsal

5:00 p.m.—The Hart House Glee Club will have its first rehearsal of this term this afternoon in the Music Room. Although the maximum enrolment has been reached a few additional tenors are still needed.

Power Nerve Centre Keeps Varsity Going

By John McRae

In a cavernous region below the ground, just beyond the Anatomy Building, is controlled all light and heat on this campus from the University Power House.

From here every building in the University, from the Household Science Building on Bloor to the Medical Building on College, with the exception of Trinity and part of the Museum, is heated. All the Direct Current which soothes the eyes of those not immune to Toronto's flickering 25-cycle torture comes from here. All the heat for the Hart House showers and the Whitney Hall co-eds emanates from this wonderful building. Every motor in every lab is run by the power from its mighty generators. As long as the Power House functions so too does the University.

An efficient staff stands by the plant night and day. The Chief Engineer, Mr. Mosley, who arrived with the power plant in 1912, is still in charge and knows the whole works inside out. A permanent mechanic, Mr. McMaster, is always checking up on the machines, with loving care. A maximum staff of 21 is on the job to keep students warm and lighting it.

The Power House has no height, but extends deep into the ground. On entering, a blast of cold air and a roar of confused sound, greets the visitor. A narrow steel stair case leads down to the floor of the first room, which looks a little like the engine room of a huge ocean liner. Great generators purring softly, pistons plunging up and down, a big red girder with black chains hanging from it across the ceiling, long white pipes, countless levers, dials, meters, switches and miscellaneous gadgets lining one wall; fire-extinguishers more meters, and machines lining the other. The second great subterranean room has more complicated machines, a coal elevator, and five monster furnaces. These furnaces are in a row; a thick black pipe leads into each one, and the round ends of the boilers show out from their insulation of brick above all this. The thick pipes automatically feed coal into the furnaces from a 600 ton bunker under the street above. A fanning system sucks the white hot flames up under the boilers where a pressure of 160 pounds per square inch is generated. The fans are always working and probably cause the minor gale which is continually whipping around the plant.

Group To Hear Prof. Cass-Beggs

Peace-time problems facing scientists as a result of the development of the atomic bomb will be the topic under discussion at tomorrow's meeting of the University section of the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers.

The meeting, which will begin with a discussion by Professor D. N. Cass-Beggs of the department of Mechanical Engineering on "The Scientist's Job Today", will take place in the Women's Union theatre tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

According to Professor Cass-Beggs, the possibility that scientific knowledge might be used for the destruction rather than the construction of human society has thrown a tremendous responsibility on the individual scientist so that this discussion should be of paramount interest to science students on the campus.

Informal Recital

Mr. Ross Johnson (II Medicine), pianist, will play the following programme at the informal recital at 1:30 p.m. today in the east common room of Hart House:

Prelude and Fugue in G Minor..... Bach
Preludes Opus 28
No. 20, 21, 16..... Chopin
Waltz in A Major..... Rachmaninoff
Concert Etude
(By the Sea Shore) Smetana
Shreiner's Waltzes E. A. Johnston

The heat is carried to the various buildings by pipes directed through long tunnels under the campus. The longest extends from College Street to Bloor at Avenue Road. There are lateral extensions from this main tunnel so that there must be well over two miles of tunnels. Anyone can easily trace the course of these tunnels after a light snowfall, as the heat in the tunnels, sometimes as high as 195 degrees Fahrenheit, melts the snow on the ground above and creates a regular pattern over the campus. The most obvious place where this occurs is the spot where the tunnel crosses under the walk from the Economics Building by Trinity College.

Sometimes an employee can get into quite a bit of trouble in these tunnels. Mr. McMaster tells a story of an experience of his a few years ago. The entrance to the tunnels is hidden half

(Continued on page 4)

Prof. Eric Havelock, head of the C.C.F. Educational Committee, will address an open dinner meeting of the campus C.C.F. Club at the Diet Kitchen, 72 Bloor Street West, at 5:30 on Wednesday, January 9. Prof. Havelock will speak on "Russia and the West."

RECORD HOUR

The record program held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. in the Women's Common Room at U.C. is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:
Wagner..... Tannhäuser Overture
Chopin..... Waltzes in A Flat, and C Sharp Minor.
Beethoven..... Symphony No. 7

Varsity Branch Staff Now Planned For Ajax

Plans for expansion of the undergraduate newspaper to take care of the Ajax Division of the University of Toronto were revealed yesterday by Editor Hugh Kenner.

Adopted yesterday by the Publications Committee of the Students' Administrative Council, the scheme calls for a three-man Varsity masthead of Ajax students and a corps of volunteer reporters to collect news from the lakeside campus.

"We hope to find News, Sports, and Feature editors or the Ajax division," Kenner said, "and if by some stroke of luck we can find included in the Ajax enrolment three or more men with some kind of newspaper experience, our problems will be largely solved. Otherwise we shall have to make continual trips to Ajax to train the staff there and achieve co-ordination between the two branches of The Varsity."

Ajax students will receive The Varsity exactly as it appears on the home

History Club To Trace Labor Issues

Considered an authority on the subject, Professor Bora Laskin will trace the development of labor relations in Canada before Wednesday's meeting of the Modern History Club.

At the Wymilwood meeting, Professor Laskin, one of the government-appointed members of the Ford strike conciliation board, will approach the question both historically and in terms of problems current now in Canadian labor relations.

A graduate of the University College in 1933, Professor Laskin, during his undergraduate career was speaker of the University College Parliament, registrar of the Moot Court, and a member of the University Law Club. In his second year at Osgoode Hall he won the Wallace Nesbitt prize for an essay on "Law Relating to Collective Bargaining Agreements in Canada."

After acquiring an M.A. and LL.B. Professor Laskin joined the staff of the University of Toronto. In 1945 he left the University to become a member of the staff at Osgoode Hall, where he specializes in labor law.

Queen's Medico Heads New Centre

Dr. R. F. Vivian, Ontario Health Minister has announced that there will be a new cancer centre established at Kingston General Hospital, for treatment and clinical research, and that it will be under the direction of Dr. R. C. Burr, radiologist at Queen's University.

The centre will be located on the ground floor of the new Victory Wing of Kingston General Hospital, and it will be equipped and administered by the Ontario Department of Health. The wing at present is under construction.

Patients will receive surgical and radiological treatment, and there will be a fixed fee for student veteran patients who will pay half and for whom the foundation will pay the other half.

If the centre is successful, it will provide a model for similar establishments throughout the province.

"It is a branch of the University of Toronto, separated from the Queen's Park campus by a geographical accident. Ajax students are entitled to the same newspaper Toronto students receive. The Varsity is one of the very few factors that can really make vivid for them their connection with a parent campus 24 miles away. We shall try to make it for Ajax students the very embodiment of University."

Mushrooming expansion of The Varsity's field has created new vacancies on the editorial staff, the editor pointed out. "The Directory lists over 11,000 students here, and Ajax should add another 1,700. It is obviously futile for a staff of customary proportions to attempt coverage of a campus with double the population of last year's," he said. Anyone interested in improving The Varsity's news coverage is invited to visit the News Office, Room 42-a, University College.

Editorial

What? - - You Here?

Cessation of publication in mid-December forced us to miss reporting an address by U.C.'s Principal W. R. Taylor which we would judge on the basis of press reports to have been of unusual significance to undergraduates. We hope to have more to say on this subject when we have had time to turn around and collect material; what follows is a series of interim comments on one of Dr. Taylor's most challenging remarks.

What Dr. Taylor said in substance (and we trust he will excuse us if he was misquoted) was that attendance at University is not a universal right; but that too many people are acting and talking as though it were.

We are not necessarily saying that there are people currently attending University who have no business here; the point we are making is that people who have no business attending University do exist, and should not talk as though higher education were their right.

Unqualified

Our friends assure us that we would have no business whatever in a school of voice culture.

Our Women's Editor authorizes us to disclose that her qualifications for enrolling in a school of wrestling and weight-lifting are negligible.

Similarly, there are plenty of people who have no shadow of an excuse for taking up the time of an institution of higher learning.

We never could follow the reasoning of people who assume that university is the final educational step for anybody who wishes to attend; although their contention is more the product of evolution than thought, and the only thing we know of that can indisputably evolve is a fog.

Evolution of a Fallacy

There was a time, we believe, when no one went to school unless he had what may be called an intellectual vocation. There was a later time when elementary schooling became at first customary and then compulsory; more recently secondary schooling has followed, until now the law recognizes High School education as a right, and until the age of 16, as a duty.

We are highly critical of the compulsory laws being carried even as far as they are: leading as they do to the incredible intellectual snobbery whereby any lounging tout eyeing his Racing Form feels superior by virtue of his literacy to the Spanish peasant who knows no letters but can carve angels in singing stone.

Lately the intellectual atmosphere (it can be called by no more precise name) which insists on at least secondary schooling as a social desideratum (now enforced by law, for it is now a major job of the law to enforce on the community the social desiderata of the wealthy) has followed its mists into the university uplands. To have a university degree, preferably in Arts, is now a social desideratum. The drive, or rather drift, of the times is towards a society in which the barrier which is now raised between those who have finished high school and those who have not will be raised between those who have graduated from university and those who have not.

The Dangers

Either barrier is illogical; but the one now evolving is downright dangerous, because it brings with it the implication that the university should be capable of graduating most of those who enter, no matter what their qualifications. Turned thus into a factory for producing B.A.'s, the university will lose its soul, which is scholarship.

We do not suggest at the moment any sort of intellectual means test: the Departmental Examinations are probably sufficient. But we are inclined to think that a higher entrance standard should be insisted on, and we doubt the wisdom, except in exceptional circumstances, of allowing Honor Course failures to repeat the year.

There is certainly for too many students an insurmountable barrier to university; but it is an economic barrier. Every possible step should be taken to remove it; but an intellectual barrier should take its place; or in a few years the scholar will have no refuge but Graduate Studies.

—W. H. K.

Books

Incidental Notes

Apparently exchange is not robbery. This year Parition Review, one of the better American literary quarterlies, has disappeared from the Hart House magazine room. However, it has been replaced by Common Sense, which is also a good magazine. How long the latter will last is another question; but possibly it is not being cynical to suggest that Life and the Reader's Digest have stronger life lines.

University of Toronto girl students have another valid complaint—the magazine situation. The display in the University College Women's Union is disgraceful. Victoria has a better, though scarcely adequate, supply; I know nothing of the situation at Trinity. Isn't it time the authorities recognized that women have intellects too?

These are really only isolated phases of a generally bad arrangement. Some interesting magazines go to the faculty reading room; many students presumably do not even know that they are obtainable on the campus. Then a number of important magazines—whose appeal is unfortunately limited—are not purchased. Among the magazines which should appeal to students are Horizon and Polemia (English), Northern Review and Contemporary Verse (Canadian), and Story, Politics and a number of university quarterlies (American).

Later in the year I hope to see a complete column on the Canadian "little" magazines in this space.

Preview and First Statement have recently been combined. The result is Northern Review, published, like its predecessors, in Montreal. Its chief merit: some very interesting poetry; its chief defect: an apparent tendency to harden into a clique. But among its contributors are such important writers as F. R. Scott, A. M. Klein, Irving Layton, Patrick Anderson, P. K. Page, and Dorothy Livesay.

The first issue of a new monthly, Reading, is scheduled for January. Among contributors to this issue will be Ronald Hambleton, Morley Callaghan, and P. K. Page. It is a Toronto publication.

Contemporary Verse is published in British Columbia. The few copies I have seen have been impressive: good poetry, balanced criticism, a hint of a broad and tolerant outlook.

Parnassus is a Toronto magazine which has advertised its insistence on "Rationality in Art." Campus enemies of all obscure poetry should glance at its contributions to see where their tendencies may finally lead. But the editor of one college magazine has recently publicly confessed his interest in Parnassus, which suggests that not all literary Philistines work for the daily and weedy newspapers.

Sherwood Anderson wrote Winesburg, Ohio just after the First World War. While he was not always a very certain stylist and philosopher, Anderson's intuitions and wonderings sometimes drove him to achievements missed by more logical writers. And in this one book he wrote something our dogmatic age might well remember:

"...in the beginning when the world was young there were a great many thoughts but no such thing as a truth. Man made the truths himself and each truth was a composite of a great many vague thoughts. All about in the world were the truths and they were all beautiful... (but) the moment one of the people took one of the truths to himself, called it his truth, and tried to live his life by it, he became a grotesque and the truth he embraced became a falsehood."

ROBERT WEAVER

Ex-Service Students

Do you know that...

You are represented on the University Advisory Committee and on the Committee of the University Advisory Bureau by four Ex-Service Students. They are: Engineering Mr. F. H. Stevens Medicine Mr. A. H. Stevens Victoria College Mr. H. Lacey University College Mr. J. Duggan They will be glad to pass on any suggestions that you may wish to make.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. M.L. 7791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

LIGAMENTARY, MY DEAR DUPIN!

By Edgar Allan Poe

I cannot remember when, where, how, or even why I first met the languorously lissome Ligeia. Sad and sombre were her dark, deep eyes, like shimmering pools of crankcase oil. I always had the melancholy feeling that there was something sadly beautiful and strange behind those orbs. Perhaps eyeballs. Her dark, ebony, raven, jet black tresses trickled tidily over her marble shoulders like some gay rivulet of molasses. In keeping with the statement that a curved line is the most beautiful distance between two points, she had her points well joined.

How can I express the fiery passion that smoulders in my bosom—yea, even unto heartburn. Sweet Ligeia. Dear Ligeia. Oh woe! She is with me no more. Nevermore. (shaddap, you old blackbird!) Where are you now, my Ligeia? In heaven, perhaps? In some secluded rendezvous? (Yahoo!) Sweet Ligeia. Sweet Beauty. Sweet Caporal. How well I recollect the last time I saw Ligeia. I opened the door, and out rushed a welter of murky gore. Icy fingers played tidily—winks with my spine as I recognized Ligeia's familiar Musk! I followed the scent like a bloodhound, from room to room, each more bespattered with blood than the last. And me there without a straw.

At last, I entered a dark, dark den, small, and noisome, with rustling tapestries hanging from the wall. And there, oh horror! in the centre of the room sat a colossal black gorilla who had sen his master pluck the petals from a daisy, and in emulation of his beloved hor, muttering, "She loves me, she loves me not," he was plucking her apart, tossing ragged members into various corners of the room.

Enter the Hero

Photo by Krash.

A dismembered ear hung from the crystal chandelier. An eyeball lay staring glassily up at me from the floor. "Here's looking at you," I remarked. Her teeth were embedded in the walls in a dainty mosaic pattern on the once virgin wall paper, and those beautiful long tresses were torn from her cranium with bits of her pretty brains hanging, wormlike.

Exhibit A

Another Photo by Krash.

SWEET LIGEIA!

I rushed upon the titanic monster to seek unalloyed revenge. The gorilla cringed. I smote at him lustily with a banana skin, striking him squarely on his ugly maw. With one powerful swipe of his tremendous paw he ripped off my right arm. I have since learned to use my left.

—LIRD, TIDYWE.

May Examinations

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

LIGHT UP AND Play

When it's time out for fun and games Sweet Caps just naturally join the party for smoking enjoyment.

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction — anywhere... anytime! And when you tune in "LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES STATION CKEY—CJBC 9:30 p.m. every Thursday Night

Open Meeting

of The University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club

SPEAKER

J. M. MacDONNELL, K.C., M.P.

"A Stocktaking of the Progressive Conservative Party"

WOMEN'S UNION, TONIGHT, 8 P.M.

TODAY... at 1 p.m.

Dr. R. A. FORREST

President of Toccoa Falls Bible Institute and Canadian Keswick speaker

IN ROOM III, ANATOMY BLDG.

Sponsored by Varsity Christian Fellowship

All Students Welcome

Lunches Available

Hart House Bulletin Board

Informal Recital

Ross Johnson (II Medicine), pianist, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. today.

Annual Photographic Exhibition

Entries for the annual exhibition of photographs sponsored by the Camera Committee should be handed in to the hall porter by 6 p.m. on Friday, 11th January. Entry forms may be obtained at the hall porter's desk. The exhibition opens in the art gallery on 15th January.

Glee Club

The first rehearsal of the Glee Club will take place today in the music room. Although a maximum enrolment has been reached a few additional tenors are desirable.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION BY MEMBERS OF HART HOUSE

As a result of special arrangements with the Camera Committee of Hart House prints for the annual exhibition of photographs may be left with the Hall Porter up to 6 p.m. on Friday, 11th January, instead of 6 p.m. on Wednesday, 9th January. Any member of Hart House may submit up to 12 prints and 12 Kodachrome transparencies for this exhibition, using entry forms obtainable at the Hall Porter's desk. There is no entry fee.

There will be senior and junior divisions for exhibitors—senior exhibitors being those who have been awarded prizes at previous Hart House photographic exhibitions. Classification of prints according to subject matter will be made by the committee while hanging the exhibition. Prizes will be awarded under a new system this year with the object of encouraging excellence in salon photography. An outstanding feature of this new system will be the presentation of the A. F. Coventry award for the best senior print. The K. B. Jackson cup will be awarded as usual for the best junior print.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 424 M.L. 6611
Business Office M.L. 6221
Night Office M.L. 8745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kemner, B.A.
Managing Editor: Peggy Bates, 476
Make-up Editor: Peg Wallace, B.A.
News Editor: Barbara Hood, B.A.
Review Editor: George Foster, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 478
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant: Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor: Bredin Spadella, 476
Assistant: Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor: Polly Mait, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama: Philip Freedman, 474

Co-editors: Peggy Bates
John Rooke

(Continued on page 4)

Varsity Junior Pucksters Swamp Jewelers 6 To 0

Varsity Juniors inaugurated their home season in great style last night, as they whipped Chapmans Jewelers 6-0. The Jewellery boys were definitely outclassed, but their enthusiasm was not affected by the score, and they were still fighting when the final whistle went. For more entertainment per square customer, brother, you'd look a long way.

The first period was scoreless, with neither team having any decided edge on the play. Chapmans' Frank King provided the only real threat to Hutzaluk in the Varsity goal, but the latter handled his hard shot nicely. Russ Brankston with his rushing, and Doug Hartrey's bodychecks were the only stand-out features of the period from the standpoint of the Blues' supporters.

Two goals were scored in the second period by the Smythmen (no insult intended, boys), coming at 26:07 and 37:50. Don Barron scored the first, assisted by Boyd and Morrison, and Pelow combined with the first two mentioned boys to produce the second marker. Both goals came after sustained Varsity offensives which at times had the puck in the opposing end of the rink for minutes on end.

Pelow of the Blues took a penalty midway through the period, for giving Rich Howson a free ride into the boards.

He was joined a few seconds later by Bailey of the Jewelers, who was thumbed off by referee Henderson for tripping Harry Boyd. Harry seemed to resent this rough treatment, and showed it by playing inspired hockey for the rest of the night.

Howson of Chapmans also started throughout.

The third period was ushered in appropriately by Paul Pelow, who dunked the rubber behind Mills at exactly 40:11. His low shot hit the left post and caromed in. Davidson was credited with an assist on this play. Immediately after, Doug went in all alone on the Chapman goalie, who did the splits in the best Bibeault tradition to rob him of a sure goal.

Hughie Smythe won the crowd's approval for his energetic play in this period—the guy could make certain to his pop's hirelings look extremely foolish. Sixteen-year-old Frank King of the Jewelers also played heads-up hockey, and seemed to be enjoying himself hugely at the same time.

Scoring was resumed at 52:24, Morrison doing the honors from Davidson. After Paul "the Iceman" Hutzaluk robbed Howson of a sure goal, Arn Irwin scored unassisted for the Blues. Arn certainly deserved that one, he absorbed enough punishment for the whole team. A fluky goal by Davidson, on which Hartrey somehow finagled an assist, ended the scoring with only 18 seconds of playing time remaining.

On Friday night, the Juniors play Oshawa—let's give them a little more support—they deserve it!

The line-ups

Varsity Juniors — Hutzaluk, Irwin, Hartrey, Boyd, Foran, Smythe, Pelow, Brankston, Davidson, Morrison, Barron. Coach: Staff Smythe.

Chapmans Jewelers—Mills, MacDougall, Pue, Bailey, Air, King, Howson, McKennel, Hopper, Campbell. Coach: Bern. McLean.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

Referees Needed

The interfaculty program at this University is one of the many things we, as members of this institution, have every right to be proud. Believe it or not, sports experts and enthusiasts from all over have come to study our set-up. Most of us, at one time or another, have either participated or have observed this machine in action. The fitting in of schedules to the time and accommodation available is a tremendous task which entails many hours of hard brainwork.

But there is another element which must go into this effort. Officials, many officials, are the mainstay of these varied sports. There are undoubtedly quite a number of qualified men on the campus who, as yet, have not registered with the athletic office. You men are urgently needed, so let's turn out and continue to make our interfaculty program a success!

Tickets for Basketball

The big show at Maple Leaf Gardens, when Varsity plays host to Western, will be Wednesday, January 16. There are a few centre greens still left at the athletic office. These liquid gold mines may be obtained for the modest price of one greenback tomorrow only. Don't miss this last chance, sports fans.

Buffalo Week-end

Talking about tickets and things, there are actually 15 places on the team bus which leaves Saturday noon. Our ball bouncing squad is playing the Buffalo men, which team received quite a mauling the last time they tangled. These coveted seats will be given to the first come at a cost of $4.00. Note—the train fare is well over $6.00. Reservations may be obtained at the athletic office.

Interfaculty Regulation Changes

Interfaculty competition will be bolstered in water polo and basketball with their teams strengthened by intercollegiate swimmers and intermediate hoopers. This move is to be applauded, as previously many good men were kept inactive by the regulation and a short schedule.

Reed Trophy

Next week should bring forth the long awaited standings for that award. There seems to be a considerable revision of the point system which, we think, will be welcomed when announced.

Boxing and wrestling are two of the best in the sports field, although they are often sadly neglected, and the revision will definitely give these an extra push. This is especially timely as intercollegiate teams in these sports will be competing this year. Any advantage given to faculty games is bound to benefit Varsity teams, as these are the training grounds for the Toronto squads.

Hockey Shutout

Cool and collected, goalie Paul Hutzaluk, the Junior Blues ice man without nerves, calmly steered away all attacks from the opposition. Our defense didn't let the netminder in for a heavy workout, but a shutout is a shutout. The Juniors are really starting out on the right foot, and if they keep up the record they're in for a mighty fine season.

The Sportswoman

By Hugh Kenner

For two long years we have been trying to lure the Sportswoman out of this office for a night—just a night, so we could give you that story. Because there were things about that hopscoth tournament. . .

We don't think, readers, we don't think you're ever even suspected what we have to reveal. That hopscoth tournament has been whitewashed in our toadying capitalistic press for far too long.

All that time our conscience has been boiling. All that time we have been stung by scorpions of remorse, pricked on by our love of all that is fine and fair to climb atop the nearest soapbox and tell you girls the facts you deserve to know.

Well, the time has come. Polly is sick, and our great opportunity is at hand. Pull up a chair, girls, and get ready to have your ears curled. . .

Interruption, Please

Well, back in April, 1941. . . But before we begin, here's a flash that's just come through from Lyn Fellowes, subbing for Polly. Lyn says we should tell you about how badminton started yesterday.

Why, with this awful revelation impending, we should worry about badminton—anyway, it says here "Badminton started Monday, January 7, and courts will be available every Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday from now on at St. Paul's Church on Bloor St. East. The time is from 2:00 till 4:30 and it is for all the girls in the University."

So remember, all you girls, get out there, as Polly would say, and, lor' luv you, swing that mean ol' racket. Badminton lightens those eyeballs and toughens those rolling-pin muscles.

How About Hopscoth

But we were saying. Back in April, 1941, the Hopscoth Committee held one of its secret sessions in the basement of the old Observatory. They always held them there, because that was where they kept the hops and the scotch—before the janitor found the key to the cupboard, that is.

And it's the hops we want to tell you about. We can't mention names, of course, because these people are all Pillars of Society and Rockers of the Cradle now, but it seems that the President. . .

Oh oh—here comes Lyn again waving another dispatch. Well, suppose we get it over with too, and then we can take all evening for our tale. Because it's a long story, girls.

This hockey handout breezes along about there being a great deal of hockey enthusiasm but no ice on which to put it into action.

"Women's hockey," it says, "is still suffering from lack of natural ice, a great drawback as the teams do most of their practicing out of doors. Only a few practicing times are available to them indoors at Varsity Arena."

"U.C. is going to have two teams in the league. As yet they have not had any practices with their coach though they had one without him." Pretty foxy, those girls. "A few of last year's players are back—McMillan in goal and Cameron and Hicks. . .

"Vic had a good turnout and will also put two teams in the league. St. Hilda's team has already had four practices and so is about three practices ahead of most of the other teams." That's the trouble with these Saints,

Powers That Be Confer On Intramural Sports

Yesterday afternoon, the intramural sports moguls of the University foregathered in the sanctum sanctorum of the Hart House Athletic Offices to discuss several varied aspects of intramural sports.

The first topic on the agenda was the resumption of the long-remembered Athletic Nights. January 26th was set as a tentative date for the first of these Saturday night features. It was agreed that these affairs should continue as intercollegiate attractions, as they were last year, with every college being given a chance to display its showmanship talents.

It was emphasized that this does not in any way restrict individual student participation. Due to Saturday night basketball and hockey fixtures throughout the winter, there is a distinct possibility that Athletic nights will not be held on consecutive Saturday evenings.

Teams and groupings for the intramural basketball set-up were next discussed. After much discussion and talk-around, it was found that there were 27 major, 65 minor teams seeking competition in the intramural basketball league.

The major teams were divided into seven groups, while the extraordinarily large number of minor teams were organized into 23 groupings. The possibility of several other teams' entries was expressed by members of the Committee.

Of interest to all intercollegiate water polo players, and to all intermediate intercollegiate basketball players, was the committee decision to make these players eligible for intramural competition, notwithstanding the fact that they are competing in intercollegiate sports.

This decision means that the coaches of the intramural teams in these two sports will now be able to draw from intercollegiate playing material. This will undoubtedly add considerably to the strength of the intramural water polo and basketball teams. Senior intercollegiate basketballers are not affected by this decision, and are not eligible for participation in intramural basketball.

It was suggested by "Mac" MacCutecheon that the groupings and point-allocation system for tournament types of athletics in the T. A. Reed trophy race, be re-adjusted.

He suggested that the point-allocation for boxing and wrestling be increased with respect to other sports in the tournament group, so as to foster an increased interest in these two sports. The tournament group includes such sports as boxing, wrestling, fencing, skiing, water polo, squash, golf, and tennis.

It was agreed to hold over discussion

(Continued on page 4)

The Students' Choice:

BLOOR TAXI LIMITED

Sub-station at
HARBORD and ST. GEORGE

R.A. 5151

Switchboard connecting
all branches
For Quick Service ... For Efficiency
CALL US!

Neilson's

Neilson's
JERSEY
MILK
CHOCOLATE

The Quality Chocolate

'CLOTHES for the Occasion'
TAILS, TUXEDOS, ACCESSORIES,
GOWNS AND WRAPS
For Rent

AT
FREEMAN'S FORMAL

250 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, KI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near WILLESLEY, KI. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES OPEN EVENINGS

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY 1:00 Vic. I U.C. I Andison, Fyfe
4:00 U.C. II Med. II Hart, Farrell
INDOOR TRACK 5:00 Relay, 3-man teams, 1 lap each.

U. of T. C. C. F. CLUB

OPEN DINNER MEETING

PROF. ERIC A. HAVELOCK

"Russia and the West"

DIET KITCHEN, 72 BLOOR ST. WEST

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 5:30 P.M.

"All Intelligent Students are Cordially Invited to Attend"

"This outdoor sport is all very well, but I can't help wishing we'd attended to those Torontonensis space contracts before we left."

CRYSTAL BALLROOM, ROYAL YORK HOTEL

FRANK BOGART'S ORCHESTRA

NEWMAN BALL

DANCING 9 - 1

DRESS OPTIONAL

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11TH

$3.50 PER COUPLE

U.N.T.D.

All U.N.T.D. ratings will parade in C.O.T.C. Drill Hall Thursday, January 10th, 1946, at 1900.

Second and third year ratings are to supply themselves with pencils and dividers. All ratings are to bring seamanship manuals.

Rig-of-the-day, No. 3's with lanyards. All ratings are to be in rig-of-the-day.

All ratings who have applied for discharge and have not yet set a date for their discharge routine are to report to the Ship's Office, 119 St. George Street, on or before January 25th, 1946.

(Signed) D. A. F. ROBINSON,
Lieutenant-Commander (SB) RCNVR,
Commanding Officer U.N.T.D.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service
321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

Urgently Required--

DAWSON:
Constitutional Issues in Canada

PLEASE TURN IN FOR CASH YOUR USED COPY — YOU WILL PROFIT AND SO WILL STUDENTS WHO ARE JUST BEGINNING THIS COURSE.

The University of Toronto Press
BOOK DEPT.

New and Entrenous

"Pretty Wizard"

Excitedly Bob Aldwinckle dropped the coins in the South House pay phone. He listened as the Toronto operator cleared his call through to his farm home near Varna.

"Go ahead please," the operator announced briskly.

"Hello mater," he greeted his mother who had answered the 8 a. m. call, "This is Bob."

"Bob!" his mother exclaimed disbelievingly.

"Yes," he said. "I guess you've had some excitement out there this morning, eh?"

Twenty-five year old Robert Morrison Aldwinckle referred to the announcement that he had been named a Rhodes Scholar. An anonymous telephone call the day before (Sunday) had informed him of this but he had scoffed. "I don't believe it," he had told his informant. "That's the truth," the caller had insisted.

But this morning the announcement had been carried on the early newscast and now he was to get the home reaction to the announcement.

"Some excitement?" his mother repeated. "Why yes, Bob, but how did you know?"

"How did I know?" The Rhodes Scholar was stumped.

"Yes, how did you know—the cow calved this morning?"

Casualty, young Aldwinckle ignored the bovine blessed event to make then his own revelation.

...

The Aldwinckle farm routine was thus rather thoroughly interrupted that Monday morning—December 17.

His mother was especially surprised. Just a few days before Bob had written her to say that the scholarship was out of the question. "It's all over," he had written after his first interview.

...

Despite an unusual affection for a pair of grey flannels with "enough holes in them to sink a battleship" and Dr. Scholl arch supports which he began to wear last summer to cure flat feet and which he now wears just to see if they will outlast their guarantee, the Scholar is a normal student. At the moment he suspects a dislocated shoulder. To get back to his squash game speedily he is nursing it with an impromptu hot water bottle that is a bottle.

Athletically he claims in unusual off-hand manner to be "practically dormant." Just tidleywinks, a little chess and pool occasionally. He failed to mention his track prowess.

Aldwinckle, dubbed "Wink" by intimates, returned to the campus last spring to begin his course.

"Engineering and Business—or, rather, Physics, Engineering and Physics. That's it!"

He had completed a year of Chemical Engineering in 1939 before enlisting in the R.C.A.F. He graduated at Carberry, Manitoba.

"With commission?"

"With commission? Yes, I reckon I did."

Wink has a fondness for the farm. But, he apologizes, "It's too hard work." "When the Committee awarding the Rhodes asked him what field he would take up he replied "the back fifty". The family acreage stretches along the Bannockburn River in Western Ontario. His father emigrated to Canada when his farm in England was transformed into an airfield in 1931.

How does one cop a Rhodes Scholarship?

"Well," he replies. "You have to apply for it. That seems to be the main thing. Other than that I don't know what you have to do."

"But it's pretty wizard, anyway."

Powerhouse . . .

(Continued from page 1)

way up in the south wall of the generating room. Mr. McMaster had crawled up a ladder through a maze of pipes and eventually reached the main tunnel. He had gone far down the tunnel when suddenly there was a loud hissing sound behind him. He looked back and saw that a plug had blown from a low pressure pipe. The tunnel was rapidly filling with scalding steam.

"Well I was pretty scared for a minute," he admitted, "but I knew my way around, and started to run back. I had to throw my coat over my head as I passed the break and it was a close thing till I reached the valve and turned it off. If it had been the high pressure pipe," he went on "It might have been really bad. With steam coming out at 60 pounds pressure instead of three or four I would never have been able to get back. I guess the only thing to do there would be to run to a man-hole and get out fast!"

The plant uses about 16,000 tons of coal. The coal really has a double use, the steam pressure of 160 pounds is reduced by directing it through some of the generators. In this way a great deal of electricity is generated and the exhaust from the generators is directed through the heating system. On mild days this alone will keep the University heated, on colder days a booster system is put to work; the pressure reduced by a special valve and thus there is sufficient heat for all the buildings.

Intramural . . .

(Continued from page 3)

on this proposal until the next meeting, when the complete Reed Trophy grouping and standing is to be thoroughly aired.

The S.P.S. representative put forth the proposal that Senior and Junior School teams be allowed to draw their players from any year, and not restrict Senior School to drawing their team participants from third and fourth year, Junior School from first and second years.

It was further pointed out that this proposal did not set a precedent, as Victoria and U.C. were allowed this freedom in choosing their teams. This motion was voted down, and the Committee members went on to discuss the advisability of allowing Victoria and U.C. to continue under this system, which was introduced solely to aid the numerically weakened Arts Colleges.

The matter was put to a vote, and it was subsequently decided that these two Colleges must revert to the system whereby senior intramural teams are drawn from third and fourth years, junior teams from the ranks of the first two years.

The next Intramural Committee meeting is slated for Monday, January 14th.

Have You Lost Anything?

Have You Anything For Sale?

For quick results
put a Classified Ad.
in "The Varsity"

Phone MI. 6221

Edders "A" Track Team Carry Off Meet Laurels

The P.H. and E. "A" track team took a decisive win yesterday, as "Hec" Phillip's relay activities got under way. Kemson, Phelan and Dzespinia paced the course for the winners, as this team showed promise of finalist qualities.

The hotly contested second spot fell to the McFarland-Barbour-Life trio, by a tenth of a second margin. A fast sprint by B. Life gave Musclemen's "E" team the decision.

Trinity's three-man squad turned in an impressive performance as Currie crossed the line a split second after Life. Lippert and Young completed the Trinity line-up.

A total of 14 teams, comprising 42

Art, Music, Drama

(Continued from page 2)

brief moments, but are quickly extinguished by the combined efforts of the rest of the cast and the writers who seem determined to make the evening as dull as possible.

Not content with a feeble story and comedy lines to match, someone, presumably the authors, sought to heighten the effects with some insipid songs which no member of the cast could sing, chiefly because none of them had the ability, including Miss Rainer. But there was an enlarged orchestra, which enhanced things a little.

The sets and costumes were colourful and too expensive for so barren a comedy. Moreover, they were an uncertain compromise between stylization and realism, which did not quite jell. But it would seem that the Messrs. Shubert do not care about that nor do they care about throwing away good money.

If it is delicate charm you like in your comedy, and if you are interested in the personality of Miss Rainer, then "A Gift for the Bride" might appeal. We would, however, advise the males to take plenty of cigarettes to smoke in the lobby during the acts since the play is designed to appeal to a more feminine audience.

VERNON CHAPMAN.

men, competed, and an even greater number is expected when the three-man, one-lap competitions are completed this afternoon.

It is expected that future team entries from School, Dents and Meds will enliven the proceedings, and possibly change the team standings. The Vic. team is expected to make an especially impressive showing in future meets.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

MOORE'S LUNCH

Cor. Huron and Harbord
Good Meals at Low Prices

"What's Ahead?" THE CALENDAR BOOKLET

PUBLISHED—on the 1st of the month—
October to May.

CONTAINS—valuable information as to dates and particulars of concerts, lectures, plays, etc., in Toronto.

REVISED CALENDAR
SECTION—appears in each new issue extending over a period of seven to eight weeks. No charge for calendar insertions.

GOES TO PRESS—
on the 15th of the month
previous to issue.

SUBSCRIPTION—
ONE DOLLAR for eight issues, dating from receipt of subscription.

DOROTHY PARNUM
96 Spadina Road
Toronto Ontario
Telephone RA. 8191

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

REWARD

For large black loose-leaf note-book, containing notes and Spanish Grammar, lost on Friday. KI. 2462.

LOST

Gold Bulova wrist watch, brown leather strap, sweep second hand. Wed., Dec. 19, between Medical Bldg. and St. George St. Reward. RA. 5502.

EL. 6649

That's the number to call for all your typing, mimeographing. Harry Shift, after 5:30 p.m., 909 Dundas St. West.

LOST

Tortoise-shell rimmed glasses in brown leather case, between Trinity and Economics Bldg., Saturday. MI. 8854.

TYPING

I'd be very glad to do your typing! "Evelyn", Box A, The Varsity.

••• COMMERCE CLUB

ANNUAL DANCE

:: Thursday, January 10th ::

MAIN BALLROOM, ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Dancing to Ellis McLintock--His Orchestra

$2.50 (TO MEMBERS)

REFRESHMENTS

INFORMAL

DIRECT FROM NEW YORK

JERRY WALD AND HIS GREAT AMERICAN ORCHESTRA SCHOOL AT-HOME

ROYAL YORK HOTEL
WEDNESDAY
JANUARY 16, 1946

$3.00 PER COUPLE
DANCING 9-2
DRESS, INFORMAL

Also ELLIS McLINTOCK and BOBBY GIMBY

TICKETS ON SALE STARTING WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9TH. ENGINEERING SOCIETY OFFICE

Manitoban Representative For Canada In England

DESCRIBE PRAGUE HARDSHIPS

Winnipeg, Jan. 8—(CUP)—Abe Simpkin, treasurer of the University of Manitoba Students' Union, represented the Canadian Jewish Youth Council at the World Youth Conference, held in England from October 31 to November 9.

Although he felt that an attempt should have been made to achieve unity negative basis of anti-fascism, Abe was very enthusiastic about future possibilities, and full of impressions of the conference. A new international organization, The World Federation of Democratic Youth, was formed and the discussions followed three main points: (1) Youth's Fight For Freedom and a Better World; (2) The Post-War Needs of Youth; (3) Work For International Co-operation.

The young delegates were impressed with the hardships encountered by university students in Prague. After six years the universities there are free again and students are reported overjoyed at this. Text-books, however are next to unobtainable. One Law book had to be shared among 100 students and there are no Maths texts at all. Students managed by an exaggerated staggering of study hours in these cases. The preliminary Prague conference commemorated one in Nov., 1939, when Czech students rose against the Nazi invaders.

Londoners, Abe recalls, were for the most part shabbily dressed and the food there was uninteresting, but in spite of this the people remained uncomplaining and showed a willingness to share.

Canadian delegates made a faux pas when they arrived at a very swank formal reception given for them by President Benes—in sport clothes.

In Brussels Abe was amazed to hear American jazz at one of the night-clubs.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4.00 to 5.30 p.m. in the Women's Common Room, University College, is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:

Mozart Overture to Così fan Tutte
Bach Prelude and Fugue in C Minor
Bach Prelude and Fugue in C Major
Bach Two Chorale Preludes
Brahms Piano Concerto No. 2 in B Minor.

Ajax Pioneers Must Create Own Traditions As Campus Absorbs Former Munitions Plant

There will be no predecessors to describe the Ajax division of the University of Toronto to the 1700 potential engineering students registering this week. The 1700, who take up studies Monday, are the first to enter the Ajax premises in search of higher learning.

VE-Day saw the last shell roll from the racks of this shell-filling plant. VJ-Day broke the story that the University was adding an Ajax annex to its already-great campus.

Ajax, the name of which now brings to mind an engineering school with lecture-rooms, labs, and residences, once comprised a small village and a network of assembly lines.

In adding this plant-area to the University, it was stipulated that the University would henceforth maintain for the village of 600 people certain essential services such as the provision of water, power, fire protection, etc.

Situated 24 miles by highway from the Queen's Park campus, the Ajax enterprise formerly stretched from the Queen Elizabeth Highway clear to the lake. Of this an L-shaped lease, each arm a mile long, embracing the heart of the community, has been turned over to the University. The remainder of the property is being used by War Assets Corp. for storage of surplus war equipment.

The university's L-shaped lease is nearly four times the area of the home campus. Across the north arm of the "L" stretch the administrative and recreational buildings, the playing fields, and the residences. At the hub of the "L" stands Ajax Hart House, formerly the Gate House guarding the sabotage-vulnerable assembly lines. Of the lines themselves, two lie in the University's lease, and one of these has been converted for laboratory use this year.

With the expected doubling of Ajax population next fall, the second line will also be converted.

Comfortable residences with a probable ceiling intake of 3,000 students, will house the Ajax engineers. For staff there are available a Staff House of 85 rooms, a half-dozen houses, and three buildings each containing four apartment-apartments. A number of the Ajax staff will commute from Toronto.

Everything necessary for the smooth functioning of a self-contained community is available at Ajax: a cafeteria seating 1,600, bank, post-office, fire-hall, laundry, Hydro power, and maintenance shops, are all included.

Cultural and athletic programs will be administered, as on the home campus, from Hart House Ajax. The loan fund, placement service and other services of the Students' Administrative Council will be available through a special branch office.

The Council has prepared a special Ajax Handbook similar to the Students' Handbook distributed here in the fall; and The Parsity, containing special Ajax news, will be delivered daily.

Gymnasium, theatre, dance-hall, library, eight tennis courts, baseball diamond, skating rink, and soccer field are among the available extra-curricular resources.

In fact, everything is ready for the vigorous functioning of a complete town. And now it's up to the pioneers themselves.

Intercollegiate Swim Meet

Will all students interested in trying out for a group to swim at the intercollegiate meet come to a meeting Friday, January 11, at 1:30 p.m. in the gym of the Household Science Building.

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel

in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

"We feel this meeting is particularly important because the resolutions passed by the National Convention receive considerable attention from the government," said President George Ness of the Liberal Association. "This is our chance to observe and participate in democracy at work."

"The Liberal Association," Ness added, "seeks to promote not only the policies of the Liberal Party, but also to awaken political interest in this campus."

A graduate of the University of Ottawa, the Senator holds the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and LL.D. After graduating from Osgoode Hall he was called to the bar and was made Kings' Counsel in 1934. He was appointed to the Senate in 1940.

Editorial

A Voice From Quebec

Published below is an exchange editorial specially written for The Varsity by Paul Vaillancourt Jr. of the University of Montreal's Le Quartier Latin, and translated from the French by another U. of M. student, Marcel Reid.

In the interests of better inter-provincial relationships, we hope to arrange shortly exchange editorials with university papers in other parts of Canada.

A question to the forefront in our University at the present time is the formation of relationships with other universities. Furthermore, we have decided to establish at U. of M. a foreign relationship department, to make our university known and to exchange opinions on questions of the day. We are convinced that these relationships should not be kept at a half-sincere hand-shaking level.

To make these contacts profitable, we should discuss not the ideas on which we are united, but those on which we are divided. And we shall not be surprised if there are many that fall in the latter category.

Unity Is Crucial

Surely one of the first problems to be discussed will be the problem of National Unity; and on this subject we at Montreal have ideas of our own. We have heard of it ever since we were old enough to read the Star, without asking ourselves what it signified.

There live beside one another in Canada two great nations, each with its own religion, culture, language, and aspirations. We believe that, with all the good will in the world, a single nation cannot be mashed out of these heterogeneous elements. Nor would such a feat be of any advantage, either for the one culture or for the other; for the personality of each would suffer in proportion as unity was achieved.

What is the use of talking perpetually about achieving National Unity by this old, unprofitable and impossible formula? Let us leave the politicians to wrangle over that method of meaningless compromise.

In our relationships with other universities, we shall look less for unanimity than for good friendship and mutual understanding. For without agreeing with the thoughts and actions of another person, one can understand and even sympathize with his motives. We intend that these exchanges of ideas shall be sincere, and free from racial or religious prejudices. We shall not try to convince our friends that Quebec is the centre of the world, nor shall we in turn be ready to believe that Toronto is.

No Melting-Pot

We do not believe, for example, that the only way towards a good solution involves a basic handbook of Canadian History designed not to hurt anyone's feelings and directed by an exclusively Canadian ideal. We do not want to forget our past, because to forget our past would be to deny our history. Those who have died and have suffered to obtain our rights shall not receive this insult. Meanwhile, we are ready to face the future with confidence, because we see among the younger generation some unambiguous wishes for good friendship. May those wishes of good friendship become concrete and real.

Thanks to these exchanges of ideas among students of Canadian universities, we hope to see some day our two distinct nationalities, each saving its own character, both inspired by the same strictly Canadian ideal, having the same flag and working together to the expansion of Canada.

PAUL VAILLANCOURT JR.

Correspondence

Yet More Deprecation

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

Your editorial on "Scientific Method" dismayed me; it seemed to be little more than clear thinking, especially as applied to the social sciences. I hope your attitude is not representative of the students of this university.

Now I am not a graduate of Columbia University in philosophy, but I might humbly call to your attention the article in the Encyclopaedia Britannica on this subject, with its many references to other sources of information. If "Scientific Method" is a mere myth, it abounds in folklore.

Joseph Ratner, in his introduction to

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42e — MI. 6611
Business Office — MI. 6221
Night Office — MI. 8745

Editor-in-Chief — W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor — Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor — Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor — Peg Wallace, B.A.
News Editor — Barbara Hood, B.A.
Assistant — George Foster, 477
Feature Editor — E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant — Reg Ferman, 476
Sports Editor — Bredin Stapella, 476
Assistant — Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor — Polly Muts, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor — Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant — Dorothy Hafer, 476

Art, Music and Drama — Philip Freedman, 476
Editor — Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer — Ralph Jones, 477

Night Editor: Wally Belfry
Assistant: Eleanor Dickson

Movies

We Tour The Town

There's two plots and a song in one Week-end at the Waldorf (at Loew's). In one plot Van Johnson is nearly dead but Lana Turner brings him back to life. If you think it isn't possible then you've forgotten what La Lana looks like.

In the second plot, which is JUST barely connected, Walter Pidgeon is a superforeign correspondent and all-round B.T.O. (Big Time Operator), who makes gorgeous movie actress Ginger Rogers fall madly in love with him.

The Pidgeon-Rogers combination is more successful, mainly because of a great deal of racy dialogue in a boudoir setting. She lures him into her bedroom because she thinks he's a jewel thief, and he takes it from there.

Whether it's the idea of getting two plots for the price of one movie, or the romantic background of the Waldorf and Xavier Cugat's orchestra, the picture definitely makes a hit.

Have you ever watched along ping-pong rally? After my eyes had darted back and forth from Betty Grable to June Haver for an hour and a half I realized that ping-pong was never like this. The vast majority of the male audience in the Imperial walked out of the theatre cross-eyed.

The Dolly Sisters doesn't need a plot. It's a thoroughly enjoyable movie without one. Which is a lucky thing, because the plot is older than both the Dolly Sisters put together, if they're still kicking around.

The music is the kind that you like to hear over and over again, the really good classics of the vaudeville age. The sets are sensational, even for a Hollywood musical. And June Haver and Betty Grable, or Betty Grable and June Haver will make you think your head's on a swivel. Actually, after careful and weighed deliberation I came to the conclusion that June Haver was prettier, but Mrs. James has cuter knees.

Frontier Gal, at the Uptown, is worth seeing, if only to take a lingering leer at Yvonne De Carlo's long left leg, which is draped over a brass rail whenever the hero stops trying to put her pub out of business by throwing the villain across the bar.

In between alterations, a winsome wench who plays Yvonne's daughter is busy stealing men from her mother. Her technique is already well-nigh perfect and when she reaches her mother's stature will be just as adept at the art as her very adept mother.

The plot has one serious shortcoming. Rod Cameron, the hero, rides into a strange town and in a very short space of time acquires more than a nodding acquaintance. The next thing he knows he and she are standing before a Justice of the Peace with matrimonial intent. The ridiculous part of the whole thing

(Continued on page 4)

Art, Music and Drama

Working Hard And Getting There

Last night's symphony concert was good. The main feature, to this reviewer's mind, was Sir Ernest MacMillan's sudden departure from the apathy that has marked his other performances this year. He worked hard and produced results which, while leaving room for improvement, were of sufficiently high calibre to force a retraction of my allegation of incompetence on the conductors' part.

Tosky Spivakovsky, soloist in the Sibelius Violin Concerto, displayed a marvelous technique and, generally, an understanding of the fine points of the music. I disagreed with the interpretation of parts of the first movement, where the soloist slurred some phrases in the manner common (but improper) in the performance of Tchaikovsky's music. But there is no denying the excellence of the performance, quite a remarkable accomplishment considering that Spivakovsky maintained a forte tone throughout in order to make himself heard above the orchestra. The accompaniment was the best Sir Ernest has achieved this year, although the texture of the orchestra was coarse in loud passages.

(The orchestral parts of the program were of varying quality. Schubert's

BAKTU BAK IS BACK

Enrolled as an Exchange Student this term is Miss Baktu Bak, noted Egyptian mummy, the Registrar's Office disclosed yesterday. With her, it was added, is her notorious younger sister, Miss Cheektu Cheek.

Both mummies are enrolled in University College, in deference to a ruling whereby the other Arts faculties exclude sun-worshippers.

The sisters are exchange students from the University of Mummies on the Nile, where they have been studying Honor Tomb-Tampering for several centuries. Fulfilling the exchange provisions, the U. of T. is represented in Egypt by two Household Ec. students who felt that curriculum of the University of Mummies must be valuable to the future aims of House Ec girls.

The cosmopolitan arms of Miss Marylyn' Bee Gersfoun, Dean of Woman, have once more opened to accept the mummies into the ranks of the Whitney Molls. They live in a double suite christened "The Tomb Room," and have spread the legend that all who enter fall under an ancient tomb-openers' curse.

Informed circles claim that this curse is merely a ruse of Miss Cheek's to keep snoopers from detecting her promiscuous drinking of embalming fluid, which she considers a necessary addition to the Whitney Hall diet of dates, maize, and olive oil.

The mummies' room (popularly known, on account of its size, as "Cleopatra's Closet") has been equipped with a specially-designed double-decker sarcophagus. Miss Bak occupies the upper, from which she descends in the morning by making fast one end of her night-shroud and unrolling herself to the floor. This provides a convenient screen for Miss Cheek to dress behind.

To make the exchange mummies feel at home, a temporary temple has been set up in the dome of the Astronomy Building. Here, during the day, Miss Bak worships the sun; the more nocturnal Miss Cheek parks her camel here nightly while she attends moon-vespers.

The mummies are trying to adapt themselves to the ways of the campus, although they continue to wear their shrouds (fur-lined for winter) and in taking notes on stray bricks fallen from the school building.

Evenings they spend rehearsing a duet designed to be sung in the sultry Sahara style at the forthcoming Arts Ball, entitled "Don't go Gettin' Chummy with

(Continued on page 4)

Dr. JOHN A. MacKAY

PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

will address an All-University meeting

Thursday, Jan. 10th at 1 p.m.

IN ROOM III, ANATOMY BLDG.

Sponsored by Varsity Christian Fellowship

All Students Welcome

Lunches Available

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL
10 Avenue RoadMI. 6361
WE DELIVER

CANADIANS CONDEMMED

WITHOUT TRIAL

WITHOUT JUSTICE

- 23,000 — Have been forced from their homes. Have had their property seized and sold. Are refused their right to rent or buy land, houses or businesses.
- Are refused the right to travel where they wish.
- 74% are Canadian citizens. Many more would be but citizenship has been refused them.
- They are accused of no crime—have committed none.
- Yet 10,000 of these Canadians are being forced by our government to move to Japan, a country over half of them have never seen.

PUBLIC MEETING FOR ACTION

Jarvis Collegiate—Jarvis and Wellesley

Thursday, January 10., 8 p.m.

Speakers:

Senator Arthur Roebuck, K.C.

Senator Cairine Wilson

Rabbi Abraham Feinberg

Chairman: B. K. SANDWELL

Sponsored jointly by the Civil Liberties Association and Co-operative Committee on the Japanese-Canadians.

JOAN RIGBY

DRESSES COATS
TWEEDS
SUITS SWEATERS

54 BLOOR W.

MI. 4969

THE MEDICAL ARTS AND LETTERS CLUB

Presents in Recital

ROBERT GRAHAM

VIOLINIST

AT WYMILWOOD

Thursday, January 10 -- 6.45-8 p.m.

ALL FACULTIES WELCOME

University Symphony Orchestra

GEORGE COUTTS, Conductor

HANS GRUBER, Associate Conductor

Rehearsal for full orchestra Tonight, 8 p.m. sharp.

CONVOCATION HALL

Complete and prompt attendance required.

Anyone unable to attend must notify at MAYfair 4977 beforehand.

Please be sure to return all borrowed music.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Warden's Gift at Christmas Dinner

Several members had to leave the Warden's Christmas dinner before the end and so did not receive the gift presented to the others. These men are requested to call at the Warden's office as soon as possible.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Now Intercollegiate Hockey Has Completed Reconversion

By "Red" Mackan

Come Friday night, "Ace" Bailey will lead his Varsity pucksters into the Montreal Forum and the first game of the post-war intercollegiate hockey schedule will begin.

The Blue Bladesters have been giving the ice lanes a hard going over and are in top shape for this, the first game of the league schedule. In five pre-season exhibition matches the team boasts four victories against one defeat, and has scored a total of 50 goals.

Coach "Ace" Bailey has a powerful first line in Halder, Grod. Ball and Henry. Halder is the team captain, with previous playing experience with Tip Tops. While playing with the Tip Top team, Halder received pro offers, but declined in favour of the student life.

Ball received his experience with Tip Tops also, and is a consistent player. Henry confined his hockey to the "U" during the war years.

The second line is made up by Bauer, Kasick and Bromley, and many observers rate them to be as good as the first line. Bauer hails from the double-blue St. Mike's junior "A" team, and in 1943 played with the Oshawa Generals' Memorial Cup team, after they had knocked St. Mike's out of the race.

Jim Bromley played with Mercantile teams throughout Toronto, while Kasick played with Tip Tops and Peoples. The latter has had three pro offers and rates Don Bark, who played on championship hie best and hardest shot on the team. Teams of U.T.S., alternates on the second line.

The defence consists of Doyle, Kryzanowski, Wade, Bain, and Putock. Doyle, while in the armed forces, played with Newmarket Army, and shows up very well back there on the defence. Ed. Kryzanowski hails from Fort Frances, and really knocks those forwards around.

Bill Wade played for U.C., and was on the band wagon for the Jennings Cup, while Bain received previous experience from Ed. Wiley's Young Rangers, and is plenty potent. Putock played for Tip Tops earlier in the year, but left them for the U. of T., and the Blues team.

Dick Ball, the youngest member of the squad, is the man between the posts, and he is sensational when it comes to rubbing goal-happy forwards. Jack Murphy is sub-goalie and his ability at goal-tending is only overshadowed by the great work of Ball. Thanks to S.P.S., we have a hard-working manager in Harvey Spence, the man who keeps the team rolling.

Down U. of M. way, coach Bernard (Continued on page 4)

Speaking of Sport

By Don Mason

Important Basketball Practice

Senior "A" and Intermediate Collegiate teams last night started a week's strenuous practice after the Christmas lay-off. Coaching duties are in the capable hands of "Mac" MacCutchin and Tommy Waldon of Varsity Basketball and Argonaut football fame. There will be 5:00 p.m. practices for the balance of the week, as "Mac" and Tommy are very anxious to whip the two teams into top shape for the approaching schedules.

The following players, who were not out for last night's practices, are urgently requested to show up at tonight's work-out: Sturgess, McReynolds, Choate, Cheyetz, Glat, Hennesy, Dewar, Starr, Long, Skimizu, King, Fitch, McLaren, Marshall, Blair, McComisky, Jagelnik, Phillips, Smith, Tredgett, Meschino

More Hockey

Dents B vs. Pharmacy is the intramural dish-out for today. The game, which promises to be a good one, will commence at 1:00 p.m., which gives all enthusiasts oodles of time to grab a rubbery doughnut and quaff a quick double time before heading in the direction of the Varsity Ice Palace.

Come Friday night, the Varsity Hockey team will carry the Toronto colours into the home of the Canadiens—Montreal to you. With shaking hand and furtive eye we go out on our first—yes, our very first limb, and predict a smashing victory for the Blues over their U. of M. rivals. (Pardon us while we run out and down a draught of molten inotype lead to ease the tension).

And Other Activities

A stroll through the perspiring corridors of the Athletic Wing really gives the innocent trespasser an eyefull—and we're not talking about women this time. The Upper Gym. is a veritable hive of activity, what with basketball practices going full blast, and flushed, young tracksters (all future Gunder Haags) being pushed on faster and faster by "Hec"torion exhortations. Down in the lower regions a peek into the fencing room shows several enthusiastic duellers in weird stances, which we are told, are the mainstays of the fencing profession.

And the boxing room!... well!!... being of a naturally retiring and shy nature, this humble reporter was positively shaken to the roots of his typewriter by the varied pugilistic activities. The boxing enthusiasts are very well coached, and even a quick glance makes it apparent that these boys are gaining invaluable experience in the sport of the muscular.

The Sportswoman

By Blanche Stanley

Get in the Swim

For a change, January weather corresponds with the spirit of the swim meet; it least it is damp. However, don't jump into the nearest puddle, because the swimming pools at both the Lillian Massey Building and at U.T.S. will be available. Since the semi-finals are on January 21, and all contestants must get in five practices before then, our advice is to get in there and swim. After all, we may have winter yet.

Hart House will be the scene of both the semi-finals and the finals of the intramural swimming meet, on January 21 and January 29, respectively. The semi-finals will specialize in ornamental, style and the plunge, while the finals will include all types of swimming.

Before going any further, the schedule for swimming practice should be made clear. U.T.S. pool is available on January 9, 14, 15, and 16, from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. The Lillian Massey pool will be open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, from 5:15 to 6:00 p.m.

U.C. is giving the meet four stars, Margaret Dale, Ann Spence, Ann Levine, and Diana Lowe: St. Hilda's has Pat Patterson and Carol Manning to contribute; St. Michael's presents Helen Malcolm; Vic. will be represented by Claire Hutton, Jackie Manser and Barb Hinchcliffe. According to Elizabeth Holmes, "U.C. will be in the swim with quite a strong team."

In Case You Don't Know

Times have changed, and the advent of an increased enrolment of women has called for women's sports. This has shown that in the case of necessity even warring parties can get together and show the good old team spirit that friendly parties show.

Sally McDonald, who graduated from S.P.S. last year, is the real power behind the sports situation that now exists. Women in School may form a very small percentage of the population down south, but they are really in there fighting. They have done quite well on basketball teams, and have played their part in hockey, volleyball, tennis and swimming.

Apologia pro Polly

This is just to say that Polly Mutz should return in the near future to take her column out of the hands of amateurs such as those in which it rests today. Unfortunately, she has been confined to her bed with the flu, as the saying goes, but she is recovering rapidly. It will be good to see her back in the saddle.

Women's Hockey Managers

INTRAMURAL

1. Attendance Reports—obtained in room 82 U.C. and returned there at the end of each week.
2. Game reports—obtained in room 82 U.C., to be returned within two days after the game.
3. Provide puck, and if a home game—oranges for both teams. She must pay the referee $1.00 for every game at the game.
4. Present an itemized account of expenses to the treasurer of your athletic association at the end of the season.
5. Keep a record of time and place of every practice and game.
6. See that you have a timer and scorer at every game.
7. Be sure that your coach and team know time and place of game.
8. Make sure that all the players are in Category A. The medical cards are in room 82 U.C.

Victoria Gains Hockey Victory In Close 3-2 Decision Over U.C.

Through 40 minutes of bang-up hockey, Victoria and U.C. today got the 1946 Interfaculty hockey season off to a flying start.

The 3-2 decision which crowned Vic's efforts was well-earned, although at no time in the game was it certain.

Vic. took advantage of their early first period edge in play to score the opening counter; Fullerton banging front of the U.C. goal at the six-minute home the rubber from a scramble in mark. The equalizer came late in the period, Deerlove of U.C. passing from behind the net to Daniels, who was standing around unnoticed by the Vic. defence.

Midway through the second and final period, Hill took advantage of a rather scarily session around the U.C. net to make it 2-1 after Firstbrook's pass.

Play opened up considerably at this point, and at times threatened to become somewhat rough. U.C. evened Garfunkel passing to Whitley for the score again at the 17-minute mark, score. Their hopes were short-lived, however, Hill scoring the deciding goal on a breakaway from center ice. Firstbrook was credited with the assist.

Throughout the contest, the work of the goalies on both sides was outstanding—Jones for Vic. and Davidson for U.C. Hill, Firstbrook and London of Victoria were further sparkplugs, while Cooper and Daniels stood out for the Red and White.

Teams Warm Up As Vic Scores

This afternoon saw the finish of the first round of the ten week track series. Forty teams comprising of 120 men competed in a three-man relay one-lap contest. An enthusiastic crowd turned out to cheer the teams, although some of the best tracksters were missing.

Vic. floor pounders placed first with 53.4", Hickie, Hart, and Kingdon making up this winning squad. Tying for second place at 55.4" were P.H.E. S.P.S. "A" (Punnett, Gates, Armstrong) (Curtis, Phelan, Dampuna, and strong). Meds cornered third niche with 55.7", followed closely by U.C. (55.8")

This is just a warm-up according to "Hec" cause next week two laps will test the wind of the lads. Moreover, he hopes that the same men will turn out again, improved with practice.

Major Groupings Recorded Below

Along with the release of this week's major and minor intramural basketball schedules, to be seen elsewhere on this page, the Athletic Office has released the major intramural groupings, as follows:

- Group 1: Jr. U.C. "A"; Sr. S.P.S.; Sr. Meds; Sr. Vic.; P.H.E. 1.
Group 2: Jr. S.P.S.; Jr. Meds.; Sr. U.C.; Jr. Vic.
Group 3: Dents A; Pre-Med. A; S.P.S. 3; Bus. Admin.
Group 4: St. Mike's A; Trin. 1; Jr. U.C. "B"; P.H.E. 2.
Group 5: Forestry "A"; Pharm. "A"; Meds. Servicemen "A"; S.P.S. 4.
Group 6: Trin. 2; Vic. 3; Dents "B"; St. Mike's "B".
Group 7: Emman. "A"; Wycliffe "A"; Knox "A"; S.P.S. 5.
In Group 1, three teams enter the play-offs; two from Groups 2, 3, 4, and one each from Groups 5, 6, 7, make the grade.

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY 1:00 Dent. B Pharm. Street, Weedon

INTERFACULTY HOCKEY

Attention all Referees and Managers—A rules interpretation meeting will be held Friday, January 11th, at 5:00 p.m., in the Athletic Directorate Room, Hart House. Managers as well as referees are asked to attend.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

MAJOR LEAGUE

Thur., Jan. 10	1:00 Jr. U.C. A	Sr. SPS.	McPhedran
	4:00 Jr. U.C. B	P.H.E. II	Lye
	6:30 Sr. Med.	Sr. Vic.	Swan
	7:30 Emman	Wyc.	Swan
	8:30 St.M. A	Trin. A	Swan
Fri., Jan. 11	1:00 Jr. SPS.	Jr. Med.	Lye
	4:00 Trin. B	Vic. III	Kerrison

MINOR LEAGUE

Thur., Jan. 10	1:00 II Med. A	P.H.E. III	Mott
	4:30 U.C. VI	II Dent.	Duncan
	5:30 III Med. A	U.C. III	Duncan
	6:30 U.C. Econ.	For. B	Holman
	7:30 St.M. E	Knox B	Holman
	8:30 U.C. St. George	St.M. C	Holman
Fri., Jan. 11	1:00 III Med. B	I Dent.	Grappo
	4:00 Vic. VI	Trin. III	Jackson
	6:30 For. D	II Med. B	Bond
	7:30 Trin. V	Wyc. B	Bond

'CLOTHES for the Occasion'
TAILS, TUXEDOS, ACCESSORIES,
GOWNS AND WRAPS

AT
For Rent
FREEMAN'S FORMAL
256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, KI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near WELLESLEY, KI. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES OPEN EVENINGS

NEWMAN BALL

DANCING 9 - 1

DRESS OPTIONAL

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11TH

$3.50 PER COUPLE

CRYSTAL BALLROOM, ROYAL YORK HOTEL

FRANK BOGART'S ORCHESTRA

Make Better Marks

WITH THESE COLLEGE
FAVORITES
YOU'LL PASS ALL
YOUR TESTS
WITH HONOURS!

MIRADO
WRITING PENCIL

VERITHIN
COLORED PENCIL

TURQUOISE
DRAWING PENCIL

BUY ALL 3

FROM YOUR favorite
SCHOOL SUPPLY DEALER

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
BAY ST. UNIVERSITY AVE.
BLOOR ST. CLOSEST TO YOU!

WELL DONE!
"INFORMATION PLEASE"

Today, January 9, 1946 is the closing day for Information Please. To those whose duties held them home during wartime, it will mean little—to countless thousands whose visits to Toronto were aided by these girls it will mean the passing of a friendly hand.

The girls with the LSA (Landscar Club) on their hats, over 400 strong, staffed the Information Please circle in the rotunda of the Union Station every day for 3 years. Chief Supervisor and Landscar member Mrs. J. A. R. Mason helped thousands of the hour. Toronto can well be proud of the girls who served the public so well and the record of her loyal war service group.

published by b. a. stevenson, c.l.u. and associates of the university branch.
57 bloor street, west.
kl 4136.

UNDERGRADUATE LOAN FUND

Operated by the Students' Administrative Council

This fund is open to students who pay the S.A.C. fee and are in either of the final two years of their courses. The maximum loan is $100.00. Interest is charged at 5% from date of leaving the University. Applicants will be interviewed and loans granted in January. Those receiving loans must sign a note, and a satisfactory endorser is necessary. Application forms are now available in the S.A.C. Office, Hart House.

Campus Capsules

Cats And Acrobats

The lady is not an acrobatic but it was worth a flyer.

It began a week before Christmas. In the subterranean depths of a Bloor Street hotel the reporter was introduced to a young co-ed who was identified as an acrobatic. Naively, the reporter jotted down the information and took the student's telephone number.

Yesterday, in copy-quest, he came across the scribbled note, somewhat tattered from three weeks' pocket-to-pocket transfer.

Still unsuspecting, he called the young lady and inquired about her acrobatic.

No, the lady laughed. No, she was not an acrobatic. She was very sorry.

She promises, however, to contact the reporter if and when she ever meets an acrobatic.

It is time that The Varsity took steps to expose a small and satirical band of Schoolmen who have by fiendish practices been tormenting fellow students during classes in draughting.

Procedure of the group is to wait until an especially painstaking student has completed a drawing. They wait for him to finish the three-hours labor and, when he is not looking, strategically place a portable ink blot upon the drawing, upturn an ink bottle beside the blot to add realism, and revel in the draughtsman's horror as he reacts.

Figures were not immediately available last night revealing to what extent victim's lifespans had been curtailed by this fiendish prank.

Occasionally the stunt miscarries, ink actually spills from the upturned bottle and the drawing is ruined.

Unorthodox, perhaps, but still a model pupil.

For the full hour he sat absorbing the principles of Political Science in Great Hall of the Economics Building.

The unorthodox factor? Why, this pupil was feline rather than human.

The hour ended, the class changed, but the cat stayed in the same seat. Next period, as the Economics professor mounted the platform, the cat was seen to be fast asleep.

Well, why should a cat take Ec?

What's on Today

V. C. F.

1:10 p.m.—Med's V.C.F. Group will meet in Room 410, Banting Institute. Mr. Berthold Tuz, formerly headmaster of an Austrian school, and ex-prisoner-of-war, will speak.

Modern History Club

8:00 p.m.—Prof. Bora Laskin will address the Modern History Club on "The Development of Labor Problems in Canada", in Wymilwood.

Vic. S. C. M.

1:30 p.m.—Rev. James Finlay of Carlton United Church will begin his noon hour series in Vic Chapel, speaking on "Practical Christianity".

Ex-Service Students

You know that...

You are represented on the University Advisory Committee and on the Committee of the University Advisory Bureau by four Ex-Service Students. They are: Engineering Mr. F. Huntley Medicine Mr. A. H. Stevens Victoria College Mr. H. Lacey University College Mr. J. Duggan They will be glad to pass on any suggestions that you may wish to make.

UNIVERSITY ADVISORY BUREAU FOR EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

67 St. George St. ML 3791
Hours: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bishop's U. Ex-Service Student Elected As 1946 NFCUS President

Lennoxville, P. Q., Jan. 8—(CUP)—William MacVean elected new president of NFCUS at the recent convention, is Secretary-Treasurer of the Student's Council and President of the Historical Club here at Bishop's University. He took his first year at Bishop's in 1940-41. Enlisting in the R.C.A.F. in 1941, William MacVean spent two years overseas as a radar mechanic and navigator. Discharged 1944 he returned to Bishop's University to Honor in History.

Referring to the conference, William MacVean stated that, "Despite differences of opinion there is a broad basis of agreement among university students. It is the function of NFCUS to build on this foundation for the good of every student."

Speaking of the future of NFCUS he continued, "After the preliminary organization is completed, closer integration of student activities throughout the dominion should be possible. Federated scholarships, international student liaison, reduced travelling fares and national student health insurance schemes are means to the greater end of national and international co-operation, which, if continued after university days, must assist in the preservation of peace and the advancement of mankind."

MOVIE REVIEWS...

(Continued from page 2)

is that our hero—who obviously isn't very smart—is being forced into wedlock with the aid of a six-gun which is being jammed into his ribs by our heroine.

After seeing Stork Club at Shea's we ran around and interviewed several female life-guards. They told us that they had rescued several people from drowning. Some of the rescued even had to pay income-tax in copious quantities. But the female life-guard which was presented with an unlimited charge account as a result of the rescue.

Nevertheless, when Betty Hutton does it it looks possible.

Comes the pay-off when she rushes into the department store to look at mink coats. It is the middle of August. Comes the model wearing a lily number priced at several thousand skins.

"I'll take two!" she gulps.

Eddie Bracken is holding Veronica Lake for a second week (in Hold that Blonde at the Eglinton and Tivoli), just a little less humorously than he might have done. Maybe I've seen too many people hanging from flagpoles that slooowly beeced ooooo, but even exuberant Eddie can't improve on Harold Lloyd. There were a lot of other scenes that were much too familiar to be excessively funny, but Bracken does as well with them as possible.

The funniest parts are strictly Bracken (minus situations underneath tables or hanging from window ledges) as a kleptomaniac. Incidentally, there are crooks in the picture too. They don't help, except as a reason why Veronica Lake should fall in love with Eddie Bracken.

The picture was definitely planned for lower-grade audiences for people who feel in the mood to laugh at anything. Laugh? I thought she'd fall off my lap. It's a good picture.

President John Mackay Speaks To V.C.F. Today

Dr. John A. Mackay, President of the Princeton Theological Seminary and President of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions of the United States will address an all-university meeting of the Varsity Christian Fellowship on Thursday.

Born in Scotland, Dr. Mackay was engaged in educational work while a missionary in South America, particularly Peru, and worked with the International Y.M.C.A. He spoke in most South American capitals.

On his return to the United States, Dr. Mackay spoke at many student conferences all across the continent. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society and author of several books.

At present, he is giving a series of lectures on "The World and the Gospel" at the Canadian School of Missions in Toronto.

He will speak to the V.C.F. at 1 p.m. in Room 111 of the Anatomy Building.

Profs. Brown & Spinks Receive Promotions

President Sidney Smith has announced that Col. Milton H. Brown has been promoted to Professor in the Department of Hygiene and Preventive Medicine and Dr. Gordon W. Spinks has been appointed Professor of Dental Anatomy.

Dr. Brown joined the Canadian Army in December 1939. He was overseas as Director of Hygiene and received the O.B.E. in 1943. He will also resume his appointment in the Connaught Laboratories.

Born in Manitoba, Dr. Spinks graduated from Varsity in 1933. He joined the R.C.A.F. in October 1942.

Deputy Superintendent Appointed For Ajax

Mr. J. Shortreed B.A.Sc. has been appointed Deputy Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds at Ajax, according to an announcement from Col. A. Lapan, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, Mr. Shortreed joined the staff of the University in 1930. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1941 and was discharged in 1945 with the rank of Squadron Leader.

He will be in charge of a staff of more than 100 carpenters, maintenance men and cleaners.

The Champus Cat

(Continued from page 2)

This Here Mummy." We quote in part:

"We like to woo in Cleo's style Within a barge upon the Nile, Or set our tender little bases On love-seats in a dark oasis. And in the night we love to slink Between the fore-paws of the Spink, Or go and drink our beer amidst The lone, secluded pyramid. So, when you visit the Sahara, We're the gals you should beware!" —Bro.

Light Up... Smartly

Three efficient lighters from a selection at Eaton's... all models of simplicity and clever designing with few wearing parts and ample fuel capacity.

- A. DUNHILL in sterling silver Each 7.50
- B. AJAX ROYAL ... cast aluminum Each 5.00
- C. BULLET sterling silver case Each 2.75

Phone Tr. 5111

Eaton's Main Store - Main Floor

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Correspondence...

(Continued from page 2)

posed to have been given over to art? What can the future hold in store for the mind that will produce and accept this moronic intrusion into the world of art? Achill of three years, armed with a crayon, would be capable of producing a series of lines and incoherent shapes that would be more representative of thought and creative art.

Something the same may be said of the poetic endeavours. If this portrays modern advancement, knowledge, and learning, we can only conclude that the sole salvation of man's literary mind would be in his return to what we have come to call the dark ages.

Beyond all this, my principal emotion after reading the Literary Supplement was one of profound disappointment.

—H. C. J. MURRELL.

Intercollegiate...

(Continued from page 3)

Planchard has rounded together a hard-hitting, speedy team to throw against our Blue and Whites. From Montreal Royals, of the Q.S.H.L., comes Gignac, a defence-cracking artist, and a powerful shot to boot. Dion and Laperriere combine with Gignac on the first line, and unless Montreal sources are wrong, these boys will make it plenty tough for the visiting Varsity team.

Other forwards of the Montreal team are the Pénin brothers, Dalbec of Shawinigan Falls in the Q.S.H.L., and Champagne of the Montreal Army team.

So on to Montreal, boys, and may the pea soup be good!

MOORE'S LUNCH

Cor. Huron and Harbord

Good Meals at Low Prices

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service (Ground Floor St. George Apartments) OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

Our stock of earrings is especially interesting just now, ... also bracelets, bangles and brooches. Come in and see for yourself.

32 Bloor St. East (Near Red Cross Headquarters) ML 5975

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

FOUND

All over Toronto — the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

WANTED

Trevelyan "History of England." Phone Isabel, HU. 2677.

LOST

Saturday night, gold bracelet, costume jewelry, in or near Convocation Hall. Reward. Contact S.A.C. office.

TYPING

Essays, typed neatly and efficiently. Call HU. 9520, after 7 p.m.

DIRECT FROM THE HOTEL LINCOLN, NEW YORK

JERRY WALD AND HIS GREAT AMERICAN ORCHESTRA

SCHOOL AT-HOME

ROYAL YORK HOTEL
WEDNESDAY
JANUARY 16, 1946

$3.00 PER COUPLE
DANCING 9-2
DRESS, INFORMAL

Also ELLIS McLINTOCK and BOBBY GIMBY

TICKETS ON SALE STARTING TODAY, ENGINEERING SOCIETY OFFICE

Explain Jap.-Can. Problem By Public Meeting Series

S. P. S. WANTS THE FACTS

"If S.P.S. complains that we don't give them the facts, we'll give them an educational program!" said Shelagh Kennedy, vice-chairman of the Japanese-Canadian Committee.

The reference was derived from a series of complaints that the members of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering failed to support a proposed protest of the government's intention to deport some 10,300 Canadians of Japanese origin because of ignorance of the circumstance.

The Students' Administrative Council, the only group able to represent the whole student body, had earlier decided not to protest the government action (as requested by the Japanese-Canadian Committee) unless a representative majority of student opinion expressed such a desire. There are enough members in the Engineering faculty to prevent such a majority.

Commenting upon statements that the S.P.S. reaction was apathetic and that engineers were leaving all action to Arts students, Miss Kennedy said: "Japanese don't walk the halls exclusively of U.C. and Vic."

"The petitions we have already issued were individual," she added. "Now we want to do something definite, some formal protest—something to catch the eye of the government and the public."

For this purpose, and to "inform School of the facts", Miss Kennedy stated that plans were under consideration to present a regular series of public meetings with prominent speakers.

Acting-chairman Don Franco is calling a meeting of this all-university committee for Tuesday afternoon to discuss these plans in full.

"It is imperative," said Miss Kennedy, "that all committee members or a representative be present at this meeting."

S.A.C. Rep. at Ajax To Be J. B. Essery

J. B. Essery has been appointed Administrative Representative of the Students' Administrative Council, Ajax Division according to an announcement from E. A. Macdonald, Secretary Treasurer of the S.A.C.

Mr. Essery, a graduate of University College, is a student at Osgoode Hall and his job at Ajax will be on part-time basis. He served in the Canadian Armoured Corps and was recently discharged with the rank of Captain.

Two representatives from Ajax will sit on the S.A.C. according to Mr. Macdonald. One will be president of the student body at Ajax, the other will represent the ex-servicemen.

Due to it's great percentage of student veterans, Ajax may have both an S.A.C. and a Veteran's Advisory Bureau. The S.A.C. will be located in Ajax's Hart House.

Mr. Essery is in charge of enrolling those anxious to work for The Varsity from Ajax. It is imperative that Ajax students volunteer to aid Mr. Essery in this report before Ajax can be represented in The Varsity.

Uniform Allowed At Convocation

Permission has been obtained from regional authorities of the three branches of the armed services for all ex-service students attending Saturday's Convocation in honor of General Dwight D. Eisenhower to wear uniform for the occasion.

Ex-service students occupying specially reserved seats at the Convocation, and those invited to the luncheon Saturday noon, must wear uniform, it was emphasized by university officials.

A letter received by the University Registrar from Lt.-Col. M.H.A. Drury of M.D. No. 2 says in part, "The District Officer Commanding Military District No. 2 is pleased to grant to ex-service students in attendance at the University of Toronto permission to wear military uniform on January 12, on the occasion of the visit of General Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Similar letters were obtained from Sqn.-Ldr. W. M. Anderson, for Air Officer Commanding No. 1 Air Command, Trenton, and from Commander G. F. McCrimmon, Commanding Officer of H.M.C.S. York.

U.N.T.D.

The following U.N.T.D. ratings and applicants are to report to Ship's Office, 119 St. George Street, as soon as possible:

Prendergast, Joseph B.
Farmer, J. F.
Hutchinson, D. A.
Reiter, Walter
Charendoff, Morris
Forgie, D. J.
Leson, K. S.
Markow, G. R.
Finley, W. C.
Eays, J. G.

(Signed) D. A. F. ROBINSON,
Lieutenant-Commander (SB) RCNVR,
Commanding Officer, U.N.T.D.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1946

No. 58

Russian's Inferiority Complex Urges Demand For Expansion

"We must be willing to go a little more than half way to meet Russia in building a stable world," said Professor E. A. Havelock, chairman of the Ontario CCF educational Committee, speaking to the University CCF Club at a dinner meeting last night.

"So far," he continued, "our attitude has been that we are one-quarter willing to go one-third of the way."

"We must remember that the Russians take their history seriously, particularly between 1917 and 1939, when the Western Democracies suffered from the myopia that Russia should be treated as a pariah nation. If you exclude Russia from the councils of Europe you cannot have a stable Europe."

Prof. Havelock charged that we have paid for the stupidity of our diplomats and must continue to pay. "Munich," he said, "was just a continuation of this folly which enabled Germany to stabilize her eastern front."

He pointed out that Russia has an historical inferiority complex, caused by the fact that she had been regarded as a semi-barbarous state prior to the revolution. The means by which she compensates for this in order to be regarded as the peer of Great Britain and the United States is to develop an indigenous culture which will penetrate the west. The territorial demands of Russia are a part of her pride since they are regions which were unjustly wrested from her when she was treated as an outlaw.

"These demands may be annoying to us," he continued, "but they must be regarded realistically, for Russia has seen dependant countries taken from her and used as advance posts against her."

There will be no quarrel between Russia and the West on economic terms, Professor Havelock stated, for they are getting closer together with governments inevitably assuming control of investment. The quarrel which must be avoided at all costs is one between political systems and there is no reason why various systems cannot exist side by side provided there is mutual understanding.

"If we have a third war," he concluded, "our society will not survive."

Ex-Service Students Selected To Lunch With The General

Published below is the roster of representative ex-service students who have been invited to Saturday's luncheon in honor of General Dwight D. Eisenhower. The ten marked with an asterisk are to be presented to the General before the luncheon.

Medicine
Army: Lieut. A. C. Hardman, Lieut. A. H. Stephen, Capt. J. D. Spohn, *Capt. C. S. Ross.

Navy: Lieut. W. M. Little, Lieut. R. B. Telford.
Air Force: S/L. S. R. Frankling, S/L. I. F. Kennedy.

Dentistry
Army: Lieut. J. B. Brick.
Navy: *Lieut. Ian Pottinger.
Air Force: F/O. R. Finlayson.

Forestry
Army: *Lieut. R. Shand.
Navy: Lieut.-Com. J. D. Osborne.

Trinity
Army: *Capt. Ellis M. Evans, M.C.
Navy: Lieut. C. I. P. Tate.

Engineering
Army: Sgt. R. J. Beaudro, Cpl. P. B. Brodribb, Lieut. D. A. McDonald, Major G. C. Baker, M.B.E.
Navy: Lieut. J. G. Walker, Lieut. H. H. Mullinger.
Air Force: *S/L. R. M. Aldwinckle,

Flt.-Lt. F. J. Huntley, Flt.-Lt. N. Brown, D.F.C.

Pharmacy
Army: Cpl. W. A. Murray.
Air Force: *Flt./Sgt. L. C. Spilsbury.

Victoria
Army: *Pte. J. L. Wagar.
Navy: Lieut. C. Lindsay Mitchell.
Air Force: F/O. Lorne Watson.
Army and Air Force: Flt./Lt. Harvey Hay.

St. Michael's
Army: *Lieut. John Francis Wallace
Navy: Lieut. Herbert C. J. Murrell
Air Force: Lieut. Wm. J. Grupp (American Air Corps).

University College
Army: Lieut. John H. Edwards, A/Capt. John Sullivan Hayes, Lieut. David Wm. Elliott, Capt. Carl John Christie.
Navy: Lieut. Alan Alexander Macdonald.
Air Force: *S/L. Donald Aikins MacFadyen, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar.

Ex-Service Women
Army: Lieut. C. Harber, *Lieut. (Nursing Sister) M. G. Kennedy.
Navy: Wren A. Mills, Wren S. Dymond, Wren J. F. Day.
Air Force: Sgt. E. Hare, L.A.W. A. D. A. Taylor, L.A.W. M. H. Lick.

Vets To Attend Luncheon In Honor Of Eisenhower

LUCKY TEN WILL MEET GENERAL

Method of selection of the 48 ex-service students who have been invited to Saturday's luncheon in honor of General Dwight D. Eisenhower was outlined for The Varsity yesterday by E. A. Macdonald, General Secretary-Treasurer of the S.A.C. and a member of the committee on convocation arrangements.

Names of the 48, including ten who will be presented to the General, are published elsewhere on this page. They will occupy tables at the luncheon immediately below the head table.

The number 48 was dictated in the first place by the size of the Great Hall in Hart House, where the luncheon is to be held, Mr. Macdonald explained. It was necessary

Officials At Ajax Announced Today

The complete list of appointments to the administrative posts at the Ajax Division has been released by J. R. Gilley, Director of Ajax. The appointments are as follows:

Director: J. R. Gilley.
Director of Studies: Prof. W. J. T. Wright.

Deputy Bursar: Mr. G. L. Court.
Deputy Superintendent: Mr. J. Shortreed.

Librarian, Circulation Library: C. A. C. Gray.

Operator, Ajax Division, University Press: C. W. Senton.

Senior Resident Physician, University Health Service: Dr. W. MacKenzie.

Assistant Superintendent, Athletics and Recreation: F. E. Horton.
Superintendent, Hart House Ajax: D. L. Emond.

Administrative Assistant, S.A.C., Ajax: J. B. Essery.

Supervisor of Residences: R. H. Purry.

Manager, Food Services Department: Mrs. V. T. Ignatieff.
Padre, Ajax: Rev. Carl Swan.

BAND PRACTICE

There will be a practice of the University of Toronto Band tonight at 5 p.m. in the C.O.T.C. Drill Hall 119 St. George St.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's program:

Wagner—Siegfried Idyll
Mozart—Selections from the Mass in C Minor
Saint-Saens—My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice
Beethoven—Concerto for Violin and Orchestra.

Distribution of the 40 male representatives was then worked out mathematically, he said. Basis of calculation was the actual registration of ex-service students by colleges and faculties, so that each group of student veterans was proportionately represented. Bearing in mind that General Eisenhower is a General of the Army, the army was allotted 20 men, and the air force and navy ten each.

Invitations to nominate the allotted number of representatives were then sent to the various colleges and faculties, who carried out the actual nomination.

In addition to the 40 men, eight ex-service women students were selected from the colleges and faculties where ex-service women are registered. Representation of army, navy, and air force was again secured. The selection of the eight women was done by the representative of the ex-service women on the Students' Administrative Council, in consultation with the various colleges and faculties.

The ten students who are to be presented to the General by President Smith were nominated by the colleges and faculties to which they belong.

Innis Of Toronto To Visit Queen's

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 9.—(CUP)—Dr. Harold A. Innis head of the Department of Political Economy of the University of Toronto will be one of the guest speakers at a weekly public lecture series to be given in Queen's University's Convocation Hall Dr. Innis will lecture on Russia.

Other speakers and their topics are: Principal R. C. Wallace, London Educational Conference; Dr. B.W. Sargent, Atomic Power; Dr. G. K. Wharton, Allergy; and Dr. Stanley, The Story of the Atomic Bomb.

Less Distraction at Ajax; Engineers Quite Satisfied

All this week, a steady trickle of prospective engineering students has been tracking a flood of mud and molten January snow into the COTC Headquarters at 119 St. George St. They are registering to commence their studies at Ajax.

With the Ajax Division opening on Monday, registration so far has proceeded at a pace far below expectations. Officials, however, have little fear that the expected 1,700 will dwindle to a few hundred.

"Most of the students who have registered up to now are Toronto residents," one official stated. "We expect a week-end rush to start Friday afternoon that will probably keep us going day and night."

"Veterans, who comprise the majority of the new students, have enough trouble living off their allowances without blowing cash on a few extra days in the city," he said. "Probably most of them will appear Friday."

An estimated 35% of the students currently registering are high school graduates of last spring who were unable to enter School in September and have since been awaiting the opening of the Ajax division. Only ex-service men with 29 or more months of service were permitted to register in first year Engineering on the home campus last fall.

"We accepted all the first year students we could," Dean C. R. Young told The Varsity during fall registration. "We can look after only 400 freshmen here, and we had to draw the line somewhere. So we accepted only applicants with 29 months of service and upwards. The Ajax division will accommodate civilian applicants, and veterans with fewer than 29 months of service."

Questioning of the line of registering students indicates little dissatisfaction with the prospect of living at Ajax, 24 miles from the home campus.

Bill Moroz, a 1945 high school graduate, said that he was looking forward happily to living in Ajax, because it would give him an excellent chance to resume his studies. "After all," said Bill, "this engineering course isn't going to be any cinch."

Another student said with a gleam in his eye that he was "just as glad to be away from home."

"It will probably be a lot more peaceful at Ajax," he added.

Most of the new students do not seem to be worried about conditions at Ajax, as long as they get some of the extra-curricular activities to be found on the main campus.

Development Of Labor Problems Result Of Union Security Demand

Union Security is the cause of the main controversies which have arisen during the last few months, was the theme of Prof. Bora Laskin's address to the Modern History Club last night in Wymilwood.

Both the Ford Strike, and the Imperial Optical Strike were caused by the desire to consolidate the position of the union in the plant, according to Prof. Laskin.

The chief problem in this postwar period is, how far should the government intervene in labor troubles. Neither side wants dictated agreement, but they are prepared to accept the rulings of a Conciliation Board, such as has been set up in many of the provinces in Canada. This conciliation board is referred to when the employers and the employees, after discussing the dispute in good faith, cannot come to an independent agreement.

During this war, compulsory arbitration was successful, but the worker will generally resist this in peace time, because it would involve compulsory submission to arbitration or compulsory acceptance of the arbitrary award, or both.

At present time Administration Board exist in both the federal and the provincial system, Prof. Laskin said. In the case of a dispute, the union can petition to the board for certification, but this would mean that the union must be established and must have the support of 51 percent of the workers in the plant. These workers do not have to be members of the union, but the agreement, when made, covers all workers in the unit.

After the lecture, Prof. Laskin answered questions on problems that arose from discussion of recent strikes. The Imperial Optical strike outcome was a little hazy, he said, but he believed that they had reached an agreement, after a considerable amount of give and take. The legal attitude towards picketing was defined: strictly it is illegal, and is only allowed if it is merely for the purpose of conveying information or for using "peaceful persuasion." "However, any picketing that is likely to be effective is illegal," Prof. Laskin concluded.

Want A Seat In May? Then Register Now!

Do you want to write your final exams, son? (Exams, that is.) Or do you want to be like the little girl who walked into her exam room last May and screamed "But sir, there's no place for me to sit." (Sit, that is, son.)

Every year since the University of Toronto was the county nut house there have been at least a few well-informed characters who didn't bother applying for their final arts examinations. This is NOT a joke, son.

This year the deadline to sign the application forms in the Registrar's Office in Simcoe Hall is February first.

Why do you have to register? Don't they know that you're at the University? In the first place this year there are two thousand more University students in existence than last year. Certain things have to be checked, such as whether there is any enrolment in Honor Afghanistan. If there are only two or three students taking the course, and they don't bother registering—then there isn't an exam set!

Furthermore, the Registrar's office clerks have to arrange the exam timetable and seating accommodation for five thousand students. Say a dozen or so in your course don't register. When you arrive you might find no room to write, or not enough papers!

In past years the deadline for signing the sheets in the registrar's office was March 1st. According to statistics usual-ly all of 25 per cent neglected to sign on time. In the resultant confusion, extra reminder cards had to be sent out, students had to take valuable time off to travel to Simcoe Hall and little mistakes cropped up in the examination time-tables.

The huge enrolment this year is going to make it difficult to arrange seating accommodation, so they've moved the deadline ahead one month. If you want to save yourself a lot of agitation, son, run over to Simcoe Hall or your college office and collect your exam application form.

Editorial

The Winged Donkey

Dr. Jones—Dr. Hamilcar Q. Jones, the greatest authority of them all—cleared his throat discreetly and brought the class to order.

In an air-conditioned room, beneath flickering fluorescent lights, 300 students shifted about in their seats and adjusted the dials of their recording apparatuses. The rumbling bombs of the permanent war half a mile above barely penetrated the classroom; the gas alarm was silent; and the sentries posted in the outer tunnels and shafts could be depended upon to give warning of an atomic attack. Sociology 3-a could continue undismayed.

What Fools . . .

"We have brought our survey", Professor Jones was saying, as the attention of students drifted to the lecture, "we have brought our survey, I was saying, up to the mid-twentieth century. I need scarcely remind you that very few records of the period survived the War of 1970, and the subsequent 60 years' anarchy.

"Lately, however, three brown paper envelopes have been recovered near the site of the ancient University of Toronto, which contain material invaluable to the sociological student: as indeed that other kind of student can there be? It is true that our science is relatively new and growing. As late as 1963 there lingered certain courses on that campus known, ironically, as the "liberal arts"; they were abolished by the conference of that year, which further arranged amalgamation of the departments of sociology and applied science, and inaugurated the rapid technological and cultural advance whose fruits we enjoy to-day.

"I was speaking, however, of brown paper envelopes. They contained a mass of clippings from The Varsity, an undergraduate sheet which flourished on that campus before the revolutionary discovery of Dr. Glotz, proving that students have no selves to express, put an end to the archaic nonsense of student self-expression.

. . . Were Our Ancestors!

"A careful study of these letters has allowed us to recover with indisputable success the weaknesses which riddled that civilization, but which have been largely shed in our slow advance towards that Dawn so long deferred to the embarrassment of our ancestors but now confidently expected within the next 40 years.

"It is evident on the face of it that these ignorant and unlettered ancestors of ours were, notwithstanding the opening of the atomic age, still making an unbelievable fuss over matters which scientific method has so conclusively relegated to the rubbish-heap of priest-craft and superstition.

"I have here, for example, masses of clippings from that paper to prove that the existence of truth was then still subject of discussion. In one editorial alone, the word "truth" is used 14 times. With what iron dogma did men then enslave their minds, pursuing that spectral "truth" which for the infinitely open mind can never exist!

How Enlightened . . .

"They apparently did not know, as we now know, that there is nothing to know; although there is a great deal to do. They were not aware that all things are relative; confronted with that statement, in fact, by an apostle of the dawn which we enjoy so secure from bombs without, the editor of The Varsity asked, 'Relative to what?' and quibbled that things could not be relative to something that wasn't there.

"Let us not smile at his naïveté; remember, he lived 200 years ago. Archaeological evidence suggests that he was a rough, hairy fellow from whom little more could be expected.

"It need not surprise us that he launched an ignorant, boorish, and reactionary attack on that Scientific Method which has been the salvation of us all. The names of Aristotle and St. Paul, evidently necromancers of that superstitious period, recur constantly in his writing.

. . . Are We!

"There did not lack champions of the New World of Freedom from Dogma to impale this upstart who would have dragged us all down with him into the cave. I need not say that, unable to meet their arguments, he fell back constantly on silence and on ridicule.

"We may thank God—to use a cant phrase of the time—that we have so far . . . but I perceive the gas signal is ringing. The lecture will be resumed in the emergency shelter in 20 minutes."

—W. H. K.

Correspondence

Attack On Pass

Editor, The Varsity,

Dear Sir:

May I commend your editorial of Jan. 8, in which it was lamented that to have a university degree, preferably in Arts, "is now a social desideratum." I would complain only that your phrases were perhaps too delicate, your touch too light.

You envisaged the day when the university might lose its soul, scholarship, in an effort to turn out B. A.'s on production line scale. You went on to speak of entrance standards, and you did question the wisdom of permitting Honor Course failures to repeat a year. Your editorial failed, however, to mention a major point among those imperilling the university's reputation and that of its graduates today, namely the Pass Course B.A. Mayhap you were reserving this for a full-length dressing-down at some later date. God knows—and Dr. Smith must suspect—it deserves rough treatment.

I would venture that to put an end to these bargain basement B. A.'s with their insultingly low standards of scholarship—if, indeed, that be not a travesty upon the word—would be to take a major step toward the redemption of this institution's soul. It would, doubtless, also help to remove many of those students here today for the sole purpose of acquiring their passport to polite society.

Yours for the removal of the economic barrier to higher education and the erection of a reasonable intellectual substitute.

—ROBERT R. ROBINSON.

The Editor, The Varsity,

Dear Sir:

Messrs. Fitzgerald and Cappadocia have congratulated you on your editorials on "The Open Mind" and "The Scientific Method."

Mr. Goodman has been kind enough to explain to you what "Scientific Method" means. He deserves credit, not for knowing the meaning of the term, but for having been the first to recover from the shock of your ignorance. I sincerely hope that you and the above-mentioned gentlemen will benefit from his condescending to explain the obvious.

The main point of this letter, however, is to point out the very important connection between Scientific Method and the Open Mind. You quote from the Harvard Presidential Committee Report, "conviction . . . criticism . . . each must have something of the other." Thus the problem is not whether to have a closed mind or an open mind, but to attain a proper balance between the mind's powers of assimilation and rejection.

Or, if you prefer literary quippery to plain statement: the mouth must be closed in order to chew, but in case of starvation or sea-sickness it is highly desirable to be able to open it again. This of course is merely an analogy, and I do not pretend to use it to lend weight to my argument.

I claim that there is no more enlightening example of a solution to the problem of "The Open Mind" than that of science. The scientist is a builder. He does things. He is intellectual, but far from sterile. At the same time, as Mr. Goodman has pointed out, he draws deduction from an inductive generalization (i.e. from his theory), subjects to empirical testing.

Thus, scientific theories are always open for alterations, but there is no neurotic hysteria or depression created by a lack of perfection or completeness.

(Continued on page 4)

is incapable of conceiving further improvement in his artistry.

In listening to these youthful artists one is prone to forget their extreme youth. Each has the advantage of years before him, for study. We eagerly anticipate the outcome.

—DAPHNE BYERS

The outstanding musical event of the season will be the appearance of the Budapest String Quartet at Eaton Auditorium on Friday night. The Quartet is universally recognized as the finest ensemble of its kind. Critics have written of their concerts as being on a higher musical level than those of other groups and have described them as musical experiences not to be missed. Students should not miss this opportunity of hearing this world-famous group.

COEDUCATIONAL HOME SUITE
ESTABLISHED BY HOUSE. EC.
DEPT.—

The Lifting Trembling Massive Building (located opposite the museum) will now hear the heavy tread of male feet echoing through its tiled corridors, as bright-eyed new workers gallop about their culinary duties. This innovation was allowed to absorb the overwhelming influx of servicemen, returning to take up their courses in homecraft. "How I dreamed of those foods lectures when I was far from home," sighed one of the hearty recruits.

Dr. Maybe Bogy, head of the Household Economics Dept. has also approved the setting up of a coeducational home suite, as a New Year's resolution. "We do all we can to make our victims in this course happy," she murmured, as she bustled about the sumptuous apartments in that graceful structure at Bloor and Avenue Road.

Miss Eatup Dart, who was recently consulted about the revolutionary action, observed that there would be a danger of lower standards in the work, as the new male students might be less deft or diligent in their classes. She even voiced the fear that the time-established methods for boiling water might be disregarded. (See Volume XIII, Journal of Dietary Procedure, Pages 169-1999).

One new recruit has a flair for arranging flower centrepieces for Dr. Bogy's table. "This is the perfect outlet for my frustrated artistic tendencies," he chorled, deftly slipping an orange lily beside a pink carnation. Another applicant was a former army oculist, who proposes to experiment with spectacles on potato eyes, and finds the Dooley an excellent specimen. Suitable duties for these students have been suggested: as stuffing olives, deseeding raisins, making celery curls, and blowing up popovers. Their larger hands may also enable them to transfer salad greens from slicing boards to bowls more rapidly, it was observed.

The main failing among the boys, however, is whistling at the stained glass windows facing the front door. Other small faults appear in their products. "Our soup was the slightest bit thick this evening, don't YOU think?" complained Miss Dart, scooping a spoonful of unhappy looking substance from her bowl, "and the tea biscuits were NOT up to standard!" she cried, pounding one angrily with her knife (to no avail). Lucy from U.C. gave a more favorable comment on her new assistant. "His pies are out of this world," she crooned.

The course that the Home Suite applicants took to prepare them for this supreme ordeal was held under the instruction of Mrs. Smitten and Miss MacKiller who assured us that it was a SPLENDID class, but that they were too inclined to become embedded in the more profound aspects of the subject.

The press interview closed with a grateful toast to Dr. Bogy, given in alcoholic extracts of denatured protein, served with hoarse doves.

—DISHEPAN HANDS.

MOORE'S LUNCH
Cor. Huron and Harbord
Good Meals at Low PricesU.T.S.
Old Boys!
"AT HOME"
Jan. 25th

ELLIS MCINTOCK ORCH.

$3.00 Couple — Semi-formal

Tickets at School or

Phone John Evans, RA. 3986

"I thought you invited me to see your etchings."
"Nonsense! We're here to Light Up and Listen!"

Station CJBC-CKEY

*"Light - Up - and - Listen"
With SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES
Every Thursday 9.30 p.m.

CANADIANS
CONDEMMED

WITHOUT TRIAL

WITHOUT JUSTICE

- 23,000 — Have been forced from their homes. Have had their property seized and sold. Are refused their right to rent or buy land, houses or businesses. Are refused the right to travel where they wish.
- 74% are Canadian citizens. Many more would be but citizenship has been refused them.
- They are accused of no crime—have committed none.
- Yet 10,000 of these Canadians are being forced by our government to move to Japan, a country over half of them have never seen.

PUBLIC MEETING FOR ACTION

Jarvis Collegiate—Jarvis and Wellesley

TONIGHT at 8 p. m.

Speakers:

Senator Arthur Roebuck, K.C.

Senator Cairine Wilson

Rabbi Abraham Feinberg

Chairman: B. K. SANDWELL

Sponsored jointly by the Civil Liberties Association and Co-operative Committee on the Japanese-Canadians.

Neilson's

DELICIOUS DARK CHOCOLATE
with ROASTED ALMONDS

B245U

Hart House Bulletin Board

Friday Afternoon Recital

Agnes Butcher, pianist, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5:00 p.m. on Friday, 11th January. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

Quiet Room

The new tuck shop in Hart House is used as a quiet room for study after 3:00 p.m. daily. In order to avoid being disturbed members are requested to study in this room rather than in the music room or the common rooms.

Hart House Elections

Members are requested to bear in mind that the date for the election of members to the various Hart House committees has been set for 6th March.

Art, Music and Drama

The Promise Of Youth

One cannot criticize destructively without first considering the future. A girl, age fifteen, of "local" talent, who has not yet studied farther afield creates a mild commotion, amongst musicians, with the potential of her musical powers; of what avail is destructive criticism?

Hardly has any other composer's music been equally exploited and rendered "popular" so much as that of Chopin. But Phyllis Knight's exploitation of Chopin compositions was rather the fullest exploitation of their brilliance. Her much-lauded technique is most Chopinesque, and the presence of that subtle ethereal quality may yield an artist with a musical magnitude equal to Chopin. The Chopin Preludes opus 28 which come from the precious group exemplifying all moods of mankind were her finest pieces.

Since the program was all request, one excuses its lack of originality. The too-frequently played Beethoven Sonata opus 27, No. 2, the Chopin Fantasia Impromptu and the less-familiar but light Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11 show the "popular" trend in music. Liszt's Etude in D flat, a bit of pseudo-technical display, was performed with all the necessary tunidity.

The youthful Andrew Benac, assistant violinist, did some surprising things with the Chopin Nocturne E flat major a superficial but charming solo-piece. At times his ecstasy knew no bounds, and this excitement was communicated to the audience. After hearing his performance of Sarasate's Gypsy Airs one

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1886

Member Canadian University Press

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
Business Office
Night Office
Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Bates, 474
Managing Editor: Wally Belfry, 474
Make-up Editor: Peg Wallace, B.A.
Reprint Editor: Barbara Reed, B.A.
News Editor: George Forster, 474
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 474
Feature Editor: K. Ross McLean, 474
Assistant: Reg Herman, 474
Sports Editor: Breglin Siopla, 474
Assistant: Don Mason, 474
Women's Sports Editor: Polly Mute, 474
C.U.P. & Exchange Editor: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant: Dorothy Harley, 474
Art, Music and Drama: Phillip Friedman, 474
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 474

Night Editor: Blanche Stanley.
Assistant: Frances Fulton.

Dents Extract 5-1 Ice Victory

When the Dents, B. and Pharmacy intramural hockey teams swung into action yesterday afternoon, at the Varsity Arena, the Dentists emerged with a decisive 5-1 win.

Dents kept the losers tied up in their own end of the rink throughout the three periods, and it was only the sensational work of the Pharmacy goalie, Labowitz, that kept the Druggists in the game.

Wyse opened the scoring for Dents on a solo rush, and his goal was followed by one Hart, then Murphy.

Somehow the puck got up in the Dents' end of the ice, and Pickvinn quickly potted Pharmacy's only tally. Shortly afterwards, Hart came back for Dents with his second goal, and McDonough hit the twine for the last tally of the game.

Businessmen To Play As Unit

It was officially announced today that Business Administration would be allowed to compete in interfaculty sports as a unit. This move has been under way for some time, and will definitely be welcomed by this ex-servicemen's group.

The present course is made up of approximately 125 students. This is a small group, but should offer some good competition to the established squads.

The curriculum leads to a certificate which prepares the boys in the space of ten weeks for smooth Bay Street operations.

Interfaculty regulations state that only students proceeding to a degree may participate in the schedule. This, therefore, is quite an exception, and shows a realistic attitude on the part of the directorate.

Championship Plunger Teams Can Use More Mermen Still

By Craig Cringan

The Varsity Swimming team is in the midst of its most active season of competition since before the war.

Bill Moffat is swimming coach again this year, assisted by Al Marshall, breast stroke specialist. Bill has unofficially broken the Dominion record in the 40 yd. free event with a time of 18.1 seconds.

To keep our swimmers active throughout the whole winter the team has become affiliated with the C.A.S.A. which sponsors competitions between the provinces leading swimming clubs almost every week.

Then there is the big Intercollegiate Meet to be held at Kingston in March. Last year due to the shortage of transportation the intercollegiate championship was determined in a telegraphic meet with teams of four universities swimming simultaneously in their own pools. Toronto placed first with 29 points, just ahead of McGill with 27 followed by Queens and Western respectively.

Beer, Teskey, Granfield, Turnbull and Martin from last years successful team are swimming for Varsity again this year. Besides these men, Marshall, Prudhomme and MacDonald have earned themselves places on the team.

This year Varsity is having a senior team and an intermediate team in the Intercollegiate competition. As each team will carry ten men there are still a lot of positions not yet filled.

In the Interfaculty team competitions held last fall there were some really fast races. U.C. I topped the championship by defeating Jr. S.P.S. 22-11 in the finals. In the prelims quite a few modest souls surprised themselves by winning their races in near-record time. Coach Moffat has his eye on them as possible material for the Varsity Blues team.

These are the boys he wants to see turn up at the practices held every Mon., Wed., and Friday at 5.00.

Back Stroke—Abram (Tr), MacDonald (SPS), Prudhomme (SPS), Sawyer (UC), Lindgren (UC), Morrison (Vic), Wabashyashi (Meds), Forrester (SPS), Beverly (Meds).

Breast Stroke—Marshall (UC), Zuckermann (UC), Gilbert (SPS), Bowden (SPS), Hall (SPS), Beer (UC), Huyck (Tr).

Free Style—Turnbull, Granfield, Martin, Wilson, and Orr of SPS.

Forsythe, Warrick Sabiston, and Welsh of UC; Prudhomme and Hubbard of Meds; Woolidge and Cline of Dents; Irwin (Tr); Clayton (PHE); Nagata (Vic)

Varsity's swimming record so far this year is good. On Dec. 8 Varsity placed second in the Hamilton Aquatic Club Meet, beaten only by H.A.C., Canada's leading swimming club.

In that meet Marshall's time of 1:08.4 in the 100 yd. breast stroke event beat the Intercollegiate record. Marshall is holder of the Canadian Sr. Men's Record for the 200 yd. breast stroke with the time of 2:32.4

The Varsity 200 yd. Free Style relay team of Teskey, Moffat, Granfield, and Turnbull placed second with a time of 1:41.1. That beats their winning time in last year's telegraphic meet by 39 secs.

In a meet organized by the Mermaid Swimming Club and held at Central "Y" on Dec. 12 Varsity's team put on an exhibition 300 yd. Medley Relay. In the 100 yd. open Doug Brown of Central won in 59.2 followed by Teskey and Turnbull of Varsity.

Future swimming events will be announced from time to time on these pages. Anybody who can stay up in the water is still eligible to try out for swimming and water polo teams. Just turn out to 5.00 o'clock practices (swimming Mon., Wed., Fri., water polo Tues. and Thurs). Just think fellows, Weissmuller was a skinny runt until he took up swimming.

May Examinations

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

Athletic Night Brief

Square dancing is a sport. Some of our readers may not agree with this dogmatic statement, but any enthusiasts in this rigorous exercise undoubtedly will give us their unqualified support. The ingredients for the sport seem to be a screeching violin, wide band braces, and complete abandonment on the part of the participants.

Doug Sloan, III Vic., who played in Jack Patterson's orchestra last year, will present his violin and his all-student musicians. This band has had numerous offers from all over the States, but has turned down all advances to play the big time at Hart House.

The only thing missing in this organization is a caller. For the benefit of any of our readers who do not know what a caller is, we will endeavour to supply a definition. A caller stands in front of the board and calls in a loud voice. What he utters has always been a bone of contention among experts of the sport.

It has been suggested that he tells the squads what to do, something like a baseball coach to his players on base. But we hold the opinion that the caller is merely an addition to the atmosphere, which consists of much foot-stomping, hand-banging, screams, and low guttural noises. But aside from all this foolery, a caller is really needed, so all those who feel they can qualify, check in at the Athletic Office.

More Good News

You know how amongst sports fans the urge to kill the ref. is constantly surging in the human breast. Well, apparently the Athletic Office must keep its ear to the ground, because all of their officials are to go through a rules interpretation quiz with special emphasis on penalties. Your reporter has had a peek at these, and they really look comprehensive, complete, and airtight. Uniformity should be the outcome which will aid morale in the interfaculty tilts.

The Sportswoman

By Janice Murray

Volleyball et al . . .

Volleyball is starting its merry way this week. Ruth Pakenham, head of the Volleyball club, has organized the game with old features and new. The old features are that the game is still here, and is starting early and in a well organized way. The new feature is the training-class and exam for volleyball referees, to be held by Miss Forster of L.M.

Sometime this week, probably on Friday, the practice schedule will be out in The Varsity while the games should start early in February. The various college reps. will be notified by Ruth of new developments and meetings.

The refereeing class (and exam) should come about the last week of this month, and all girls who have refereed the game and all who are interested in doing so are asked to come out when that afternoon rolls around.

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	4:00 For. A	U.C. III	Anderson, Street
	5:00 Dent. A	Trin. A	Anderson, Street
	6:00 S.P.S. III	St.M. A	Anderson, Street
BASKETBALL
Major	1:00 Jr. U.C. A	Sr. SPS	McPhedran
	4:00 Jr. U.C. B	PHE. II	Lye
	6:30 Sr. Med.	Sr. Vic.	Swan
	7:30 Emman.	Wyc.	Swan
	8:30 St.M. A	Trin. A	Swan
Minor	1:00 III Med. A	PHF. III	Mott
	4:30 U.C. VI	II Dent.	Duncan
	5:30 III Med. A	U.C. III	Duncan
	6:30 U.C. Econ.	For. B	Holman (Postponed)
	7:30 St.M. E	Knox B	Holman
	8:30 U.C. St. George	St.M. C	Holman

HOCKEY SCHEDULE--Week of Jan 14th

Mon., Jan. 14	1:00 Knox A	Bus. Adm.	Street, Weedon
	8:00 St.M. B	Trin. B	Lawler, Mosher
	9:00 Emman.	Vic. III	Lawler, Mosher
Tues., Jan. 15	4:00 Med. III	SPS. IV	Farrell, Horkins
Wed., Jan. 16	12:00 Vic. II	U.C. II	Anderson, Street
Thurs., Jan. 17	1:00 Med. II	Jr. SPS	V. Hart, Horkins
	4:00 U.C. I	Sr. SPS	Doyle, Smith
	6:00 For. B	SPS. V	Lawler, Jamieson
Fri., Jan. 18	6:00 Vic. I	Med. I	Anderson, McClelland

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE WILL APPEAR TOMORROW

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

BIOLOGY CLUB MEETING

TONIGHT 8:15 WYMLWOOD

Mr. JAMES L. BAILLIE, Jr.

The Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology

will speak on

"PIONEER NATURALISTS IN ONTARIO"

also, Two Films will be shown:

"SEA BIRDS AT BONAVENTURE ISLAND"

and "SOME ONTARIO BIRDS"

Everyone welcome

Refreshments

Members free

Non-members 15c

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

TODAY... at 1 p.m.

Dr. JOHN A. MacKAY
PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
will address an All-University meeting
IN ROOM III, ANATOMY BLDG.
Sponsored by Varsity Christian Fellowship

All Students Welcome Lunches Available

OPEN MEETING
OF THE
University of Toronto Liberal Association
Senator SALTER HAYDEN, K.C.
speaking on
"THE LIBERAL PARTY"
CARTWRIGHT HALL, ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE
TONIGHT, 8 P.M.

WITH PLENTY OF RHYTHM AND Vaughn Monroe
LET IT SNOW! LET IT SNOW! LET IT SNOW!

Here's a cute number to start off the New Year with lots of bounce and melody. Vaughn Monroe and the popular Norton Sisters sing the catchy lyrics. Don't miss this new Victor Record hit!

Also WHEN THE SANDMAN RIDES THE TRAIL
Vaughn Monroe and His Orchestra
Both on VICTOR RECORD 20-1759 . . . 75c

LOOK TO VICTOR RECORDS for the Newest Hits . . . Here are Just a Few

I CAN'T BEGIN TO TELL YOU WHAT MAKES THE SUNSET? Swing and Sway with Sammy Kaye VICTOR RECORD 20-1720 . . . 75c	IT MIGHT AS WELL BE SPRING GIVE ME THE SIMPLE LIFE Swing and Sway with Sammy Kaye VICTOR RECORD 20-1738 . . . 75c
SYMPHONY IN THE MIDDLE OF MAY Freddy Martin and His Orchestra VICTOR RECORD 20-1747 . . . 75c	THE "C" JAM BLUES IF I COULD BE WITH YOU ONE HOUR TONIGHT Oscar Peterson VICTOR RECORD 56-0010 . . . 75c

VICTOR RCA Records

Coming Soon!
RCA VICTOR RECORD PLAYER
Your RCA Victor dealer will soon be displaying this compact, precision built RCA Victor Record Player. Playing records through your radio it doubles the enjoyment of home entertainment for a small investment. Watch for it at your RCA Victor dealer's . . . better still place your order with him now.

CRYSTAL BALLROOM, ROYAL YORK HOTEL

FRANK BOGART'S ORCHESTRA

NEWMAN BALL

DANCING 9-1

DRESS OPTIONAL

FRIDAY, JANUARY 11TH

$3.50 PER COUPLE

TALKING SHOP

FOR A CULTIVATED LINE... go to Joan Rigby's. That's where you'll find fashion conversation at its suavest. Fashioned to be original and without a "dated" look, Joan Rigby clothes are designed with the future in mind, clothes that will be worn as "bests" to the last thread. We like to suggest that if you have visiting relatives in town who are in search of something superlative, you personally escort them to "Joan's" with an air of never dress-shopping in any less exacting environment yourself. Surprising how they'll be impressed.

SAY WHAT YOU LIKE but there's no food like Chinese food... take a dish of chop suey, chicken, for instance. It's more nourishing than a salad, more filling than a three course meal, more delicious than anything you can cook yourself. Which is why no doubt that many a student from the University walks all the way down to the International, at 60A Elizabeth Street, when he's in the mood for good eating. People from newspapers, people from the theatre, people from the University, the hospitals, and from downtown offices all meet at the International. The reason... better food and more of it!

THIS IS THE TIME OF YEAR when a good new pair of gloves will do wonders to square off the fashion debt you owe yourself. Go hatless if you like, wear wheezy tweeds if you must, but lady be careful to wear the best gloves your allowance will buy even if you have to cut down on a few sodas. The Evangeline Shops are proud of their glove department, rounding up the best assortment available and keeping stock always replenished. When you think of brightening up the winter clothes picture think of good gloves, and when you think of good gloves... think of the Evangeline Shops. Your nearest, 751 Yonge Street, just above Bloor.

HERE WE ARE BACK after the holiday season to give you more information on the ways of Fashionland at Northway's. There's a number that you'll dote on if you're the exotic type and don't care who says so... it's a black and pink striped jersey with attractive cape sleeves, a bow neckline and plain peasant skirt, easy to wear, (and) easy to look at, and easy to buy. Another one that took our eye was a "joan marrus" creation in rayon gabardine, comes in various shades, and is a class-room natural. Has new wide sleeves, plain patch pockets and full skirt.

WINTER IS THE TIME OF YEAR when a wise girl remembers Summertime, and is subtle enough to know that a soft enveloping fragrance gentle as the promise of a Spring garden is armor against the dullness of bleak days. Fragrance GEMEY by Richard Hudnut captures the memory of growing petals in the sunshine and keeps that memory close and personal and lovely. Fragrance GEMEY is made from a scientific formula which has been perfected to hold its surprise of freshness after less exquisite perfumes have wilted.

IF IT'S BACK AGAIN... that old recurring pain which seems to hit you about the same time every year, try patting on some Sloan's and wait for the instantaneous easing up of the discomfort. Perhaps it's an old rugby bruise or a nuisance-memory of the time someone cracked you on the shin with a hockey stick; Sloan's will take care of it indiscriminately, and no back talk. Sloan's works by the simple theory of cause and effect, producing a quick counter-irritant which brings up circulation to affected areas, driving out congested poisons.

A FUR COAT is every girl's idea of a wardrobe stabilizer, and Gillespie's, the home of better fur coats, invite the University girl to make a trip to their upstairs showrooms at 70 Wellington Street West and look over a selection of fur coats which they are proud to show as examples of why the name of Gillespie's in furs has become synonymous with quality. Gillespie's have always specialized in better quality furs for the woman who shops for more than a couple of seasons, featuring coats with that subtle quality of prestige which comes from a "leader" house, the soft, flexible styling that is the secret of a master designer.

DOUBLE TALK in blouses... Lady Ellis has a selection of blouses to sparkle the eye of any campus girl in search of a suit-brightener. Glamour blouses in various shades, colours, fabrics and styles as well as the class-room classics which just ask for top marks in psychology. How about a crisp lettuce green blouse to heighten the attractiveness of the new grey suit? Or an evening blouse to wear with that taffeta peasant skirt, or a long black skirt? You'll like the low draw-string neckline and draw-string sleeves. For girls with a high blouse I.Q. there's material to inspire many a good new outfit at your nearest Lady Ellis, 723 Yonge Street, just below Bloor.

IF YOUR HAIR lacks its usual sparkle, drop in to Holt Renfrew's and ask Mrs. Head to give you some advice. Perhaps it's a few treatments for re-conditioning you need, or a clever new Antoine styling to perk it up. A good cut and a cleverly adapted hair styling can actually put sparkle back in a head of hair for the simple reason that once

Serve Mankind Aim Of Science

"We can't hide our light under a bushel," said Professor D. N. Cass-Beggs, at the meeting of the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers last night.

"We can't suppress the discoveries of science," he continued, "but some form of control must be exerted so that their potentialities are used to the best advantage."

In a speech preceding a round-table discussion, Professor Cass-Beggs outlined methods by which the work of scientists might be put to the best use, by which it might better serve mankind.

"We must overcome the emotional taboo which prevents scientists from entering fields outside of what is their recognized scope, such as politics," he said. "Who indeed is more competent to apply a discovery than the man who discovered it?"

Other ways in which science should work to increase man's welfare, according to Professor Cass-Beggs, are in deciding the value of a discovery and the extent to which it should be used. But always, he emphasized, scientists should be responsible for preventing the misuse of a discovery so that its ability for destruction is prevented.

CLASSIFIED ADS

PRIVATE room and bath, and meals, for girl, in exchange for help with evening meals and dishes. Near business running to University. Please phone MA. 5175.

PERSONAL—Maude: please listen to Mickey Lester, CKEY at 2:05. He has a message for you. Joe.

LOST—Small size striped green Parker vacuumatic pen before holidays, between Vic. and Economics Bldg. Reward. MA. 1608.

WATCH REPAIRS—Expertly done by a student for the students. R. C. Hook, 553 Huron St. MI. 5516.

TAKEN BY MISTAKE—From the Great Hall, Hart House, beige raincoat, noon Wednesday. Phone HY. 7531.

LOST—In Room 101, Zoology Bldg., Mon, 11 a.m., paper bag containing 2 new pairs lady's rubbers and one loafer. Please leave at least the loafer at S.A.C. Office, or phone KI. 3837.

LOST—Gold bracelet, 2 1/2" wide, flexible, Wed. afternoon on Hoskin. Please phone GL. 6259.

you begin to take an interest in your hair-do the chances are you'll begin to brush and comb it more vigorously which is exactly what the Antoine operators want you to do. They give you a hair-do that's proof against lots of hard brushing, and it's in brushing that the sparkle returns.

Ornamental Swimming

If you are still interested in having classes in ornamental swimming on Thursday evening, turn out this Thursday, January 10, at the regular time. Otherwise classes will be discontinued.

Correspondence . . .

(Continued from page 2)

It is the inability to bear uncertainty which creates both disillusioned sceptics and bigoted dogmatists; and indicates in addition a fundamental lack of faith.

The question now arises as to what extent scientific method may be applied outside of the physical sciences. The only honest answer is to "try it and see." Social scientists are now trying it, and if we have the sense to co-operate, we shall see.

Before passing premature judgments, let us remember that science has already absorbed fields of study that were originally considered as being out of its realm. The same arguments that were used to "show" the impossibility of organic synthesis (chemistry) are being used to "show" that the methods of science are of no use in dealing with problems of morality.

Let us remember that a scientific theory is an inductive generalization. Let us remember that the cheapest criticism of all is that based on what can not be done.

Let us remember that man's most spectacular successes have been in scientific achievement, and that his most terrifying failures have been in activities where scientific method has been conspicuously absent—namely, in the application of his scientific knowledge. (With characteristic madness, many criticize the scientist for the misuse of his knowledge!)

Let us also remember that Man's most difficult problem is himself.

But, above all, let us try it and see. Summing up the point of this letter: you have written two editorials on vital questions. In "The Closed Mind" you included a quotation stating a problem. You have used a crucially incomplete analogy which points out in a rather charming way one side of the argument which is often neglected. But the real problem has not been touched, namely "... how much of each?"

In "The Scientific Method" you reached the conclusion that we should "hear no more about scientific method." Mr. Goodman has corrected your misinformation on Scientific Method, and I hope that I have shown that in doing so he has also provided a possible solution to the problem of "The Open Mind."

—R.A. STEAL.

University Section, C.A. Sc. W.

Come One and All To Newman Ball

Frank Bogart and his orchestra will provide the music on Friday night for the 33rd Annual Newman Ball at the Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel.

Convened by Kay McLean, the Committee for the dance includes undergraduates Bill Lyon, Joyce Predhomme, Ruth O'Shaughnessy, Walter Hirschfeld, Anne Smith, Helen Teoli, Marion Sirdevan, Vincent McNamara, as well as graduates Lt. Col. William McMullen, Frank Lysaght, Madeleine Weir, and Dr. F. McInnis.

Five hundred couples are expected to attend.

WHAT'S ON TODAY

Liberal Association

8:00 p.m.—Senator Salter Hayden, K.C., will speak on "The Liberal Party" in Cartwright Hall.

U.C. Players' Guild

4:15 p.m.—Further auditioning for the Greek Play will take place in the Women's Union Theatre. All interested please attend.

V. C. F.

1:00 p.m.—Dr. John Mackay will address the V.C.F. in Room 111, of the Anatomy Building.

Christian Science Organization

8:00 p.m.—The Christian Science Organization will hold its monthly meeting at the Women's Union.

Renaissance Art Centred In Spain

"There are more national paintings in Spain than anywhere else," said Dr. R. Cook, director of Fine Art Studies at New York University, yesterday in the Museum. He went on to discuss several Spanish artists of the past few centuries, and their distinctive types of art.

El Greco, he explained, painted for the Chapel in Toledo, specializing in reproductions of the Madonna and of the Holy Family, and such pictures as St. Martin and the Beggar, which has been imitated by other equally famous artists, according to Dr. Cook.

A disciple of the realist school of art is Velasquez, continued Dr. Cook, who is known for his unlimited resources in technique. There are copies of his work in England, Holland, Germany and France.

The first of the moderns, was the name given to Goya, whose aristocratic paintings influenced French 19th Century painting.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service.

321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762 (Ground Floor St. George Apartments) OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

THE MEDICAL ARTS AND LETTERS CLUB

Presents in Recital

ROBERT GRAHAM
VIOLINIST

AT WYMLWOOD

Thursday, January 10 -- 6.45-8 p.m.

ALL FACULTIES WELCOME

FOR THE OUTSTANDING EVENT OF '46

PLAN TO ATTEND:

"The BARRISTER'S BALL"

FEATURING:

U. of T.'s SUPERLATIVE
COMEDY TEAM
The 2 F's and 2 S's

Paul Simmons

-- And His Big New Band

COMEDY, NOVELTY, MYSTERY, THRILLS (?)

PLACE: The Balmy Beach Canoe Club

TIME: Thursday, January 17th, 1946

PRICE: $1.50 Per Couple

Tickets from Law School Reps. or at Door.

DANCING 9-1

smoke the mild
cigarette

TALENT GALORE AT THE SCHOOL AT-HOME

Wednesday, January 16th :: :: Royal York Hotel

3 CONVENTION BALLROOMS — — 3 BIG BANDS

JERRY WALD, His CLARINET --- And His GREAT AMERICAN ORCHESTRA

ELLIS McLINTOCK AND BOBBY GIMBY AND THEIR FINE CANADIAN BANDS

3.00 PER COUPLE
DANCING, 9-2

DRESS
INFORMAL

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY OFFICE

Some Tickets Available for Outside Faculties

Three Libraries Available For Use Of Ajax Engineers

Three separate libraries will be available to students at Ajax Division, U of T under the management of ex-navigator C.A.C. Grey, graduate of Trinity College, a circulating library, a technical department and a browsing room will furnish all necessary reading-matter to Engineering students who start their lectures on Jan. 14.

The main circulating library, which will operate without fines, has been stocked with volumes gathered together from all over, W. S. Wallace, chief librarian of the University told "The Varsity" yesterday.

According to Dr. Wallace, books have been found to a large extent by intensive advertising, by canvassing of second-hand book stores and by gifts from various graduates and faculty members.

"A great number of books" Dr. Wallace said, "were donated to us by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. They have a central committee which during war years has been collecting and donating a great number of books and magazines to the armed services. Our staff of librarians has also been giving the I.O.D.E. some help in their local branch libraries during their off-duty hours. As a gesture of thanks, we now have a library which is complete in many fields outside of engineering."

The circulating library has a good stock of books in English literature, Canadian history, religion, and a corner filled with the latest in detective fiction.

The technical library which is housed in the laboratory section of the former shell-filling plant of Ajax has recently acquired a collection of volumes covering all the technical fields of interest to engineering students. Most of these texts have been moved to Ajax campus in the last two days. The technical library, unlike its big brother, the circulating section is to be under the full control of the Director of studies, Prof. W. J. T. Wright.

The University Library will control the Gate Library which is to be the browsing room. Like the library of Hart House, this reading room will be filled with books for recreation only and none of the volumes will be allowed to leave the room. A special section will contain the latest periodicals of general interest, and these magazines may be on loan to all students.

Dr. Wallace added that the Libraries were all financed by grants given by the Board of Governors of The University. "It is hoped," said he, "that these communal reading facilities will help to bring about a strong spirit of friendship and co-operation between all students, their wives and the administrative staff."

Photographic Exhibition

Hart House members are reminded that this is the last day for entries for the annual photographic exhibition. Entries must be left at the hall porter's desk before 6 p.m.

Student Politics Vic Debate Topic

On Monday evening the Victoria College Debating Parliament will endeavor to discover whether or not university students are suffering from an overdose of politics.

The topic is regarded timely by the executive because of the keen interest shown by many students in recent strikes and the Japanese-Canadian problem. It is believed that some people outside the university do not approve of the emotional attitude exemplified in some students in public demonstrations and picket lines.

The executive also feels that there is an increased tendency towards political feeling which has previously been lacking in Canadian universities.

The resolution "resolv'd that students of this university are suffering from an overdose of politics" will be upheld by John Meisel and Beryl Rutherford, and will be opposed by Harry Hodder and Marie Bond.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 11, 1946

No. 59

VETERANS' QUESTIONNAIRE PLANNED

Ike's Solution For Peace Co-Operation And Strength

Proudly tomorrow the University of Toronto will greet as its guest of honor one of the foremost peacemakers of the world.

"Peace," he told a New York audience six months ago, "is an absolute necessity to this world."

It was, paradoxically, General Dwight D. Eisenhower's thirst for peace that put him ultimately at the head of the greatest military enterprise in history. On the eve of June 6, 1944 Eisenhower, as Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, took the lonely decision that sent thousands of men across the English Channel into desperate combat and ultimately plunged the Allied dagger into the heart of Berlin.

For to General Eisenhower there is no paradox in fighting for peace. "It is enough," he says, "that we devise every kind of international machinery to keep the peace—we must also be strong ourselves. Weakness cannot co-operate with anything. Only strength can co-operate."

He reminded his American audience that "from New York City to my headquarters in Frankfurt it is exactly 16 hours by air. You are that close to trouble all the time, if trouble starts in Europe."

It had been "Ike" Eisenhower's lot to end Europe's latest outbreak of trouble.

He became a professional soldier almost by accident. In 1911, when he applied for admission to the Naval Academy, he was turned down for being a few months over age. So instead he took the West Point examinations.

Graduating 61st in a class of 164 after a routine West Point career that included letters in baseball and football and a 30-day gating from the dance hall for dancing ragtime, Dwight David Eisenhower sweated out World War I as captain commander of a tank training school at Gettysburg.

After routine assignments at army posts in Panama and the U.S., he became in 1933 aide to General Douglas MacArthur, then U.S. Chief of Staff. In 1940, with the outbreak of war in Europe quickening U.S. military pulses, he became Chief of War Plans Division of the U.S. General Staff.

Three years later he was commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in North Africa, and leader of the force which in a single year snatched North Africa from the Axis, exterminated Marshal Erwin Rommel's once-dreaded Africa Corps, conquered Sicily and squeezed Italy out of the war, re-opened the Mediterranean to United Nations shipping.

(Continued on page 4)

SAC Office Splits Women Back in UC

Separation of the men's and women's offices of the Students' Administrative Council following a five-year wartime merger was announced yesterday. Room 82, University College, located in the basement of the East Wing, has been re-opened as the S.A.C. and Athletic office for women students, and Miss A. E. M. Parkes, Associate Secretary of the Council, will again make this her headquarters. The telephone is Ml. 8226.

All services handled for women students by the Council, such as employment, housing, loans, orders for jewelry and blazers, Torontonensis, Varsity, and Handbook contracts, will be dealt with in this office.

Separation of the men's and women's offices is enforced by a Hart House regulation forbidding the use of the House by women undergraduates. Lifted because of war conditions, this provision has again been enforced.

For the present the Women's Office will be open daily except Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The secretary will be available at other hours by appointment, Ml. 8226.

Representation And Briefs, Next Week's Vote Topics

BALLOTS AT FACULTY OFFICES

Ex-service students across the campus will go to ballot-boxes next week in a questionnaire vote designed to sound out opinion on affairs of immediate concern to student veterans, the Veterans' Committee of the Students' Administrative Council announced yesterday.

Purpose of the referendum will be to secure for the five members of the committee a mandate from their 4,000 ex-service constituents, and to sound out student veteran opinion on the newly-organized National Conference of Student Veterans.

Questionnaire forms will be available in all faculty offices Monday, and ballot boxes will be available in the same offices Monday to Friday, the last day for recording a vote.

Liberal Meeting Hears Sen. Hayden

"We in Canada can only be prosperous and maintain our present standards of living if we recognize that we must have an international outlook," said Senator Salter A. Hayden, K.C. to the Liberal Association in last night's open meeting.

With a plea for the abandonment of "selfish national interests" the Senator pointed out that whether we like it or not, no nation can remain in isolation. An economic disaster or a war in another part of the world is soon reflected here.

The consequence is, according to the speaker, that creditor nations must provide purchasing power for nations which have been impoverished as a result of the war. Canada must help to rebuild the economies of the devastated countries of Europe if she is to keep her own economy functioning.

He cited the government's approval of the Bretton Woods Agreements as a contrast to the policies after the last war when depreciating currencies to increase exports, lowering of living standards to decrease costs, and bilateral agreements "built the foundation for the next war."

The Liberal philosophy of government, said Senator Hayden, is to explore the international field in order to provide for greater employment at home. The role of the present government is to preserve private—as opposed to free—enterprise, subject to regulation and provide programs to take up the slack in seasonal unemployment.

Increased Allowances And Housing Asked In Veteran's Council Brief

Approval of briefs submitted by the National Conference of Student Veterans at its meeting in Montreal last December 27, 28, and 29 is one of the topics to be voted on by ex-service students on this campus next week. Summary of the Conference recommendations follows:

—Government action to underwrite and not merely assist education of student veterans, by increase of D.V.A. allowances from $60 to $80 for single veterans, and from $80 to $120 for married men.

—Pensioners to receive the full amount of pension plus the full amount of the maintenance allowance, instead of the pension being deducted from the allowance as at present.

—Renovation and use of federally-owned buildings for student accommodation.

—Assistance from D.V.A. in obtaining buildings suitable for co-operative housing.

—Making the present rent control policy effective in regard to board-rooms and room rentals.

—Recommendation of the university to be of greater weight with D.V.A.

in determining whether a student is to be allowed to finish his course.

—Average mark of 65 or standing in the top half of a class to be the sole condition for continuance of studies under the D.V.A. plan.

—The time-limit for applying for education to be 36 months from date of discharge instead of 15 months.

—Graduate students to be allowed to choose their university for post-graduate work, with the recommendation and approval of the university formerly attended.

—D.V.A. officers to be appointed on every possible campus to act as liaison officers for student veterans' problems.

—Reinstatement on D.V.A. terms of a student veteran who fails in his first year but successfully repeats at his own expense.

—Abolition of provincial fees for practice of law, medicine, etc.

—Permission for veterans taking vocational training to buy tools and instruments direct from War Assets Corp. on a priority basis.

—Extension of vocational courses from six months to one year.

In announcing the vote, the Veterans' Committee recalled that they had been added to the Council at the beginning of the fall term in exactly the same way as ex-service representatives had been secured for the Hart House Committees.

With 4,000 veterans suddenly added to campus registration, most of them strangers to one another, a veteran's election of Council Representatives would have been impracticable at that time. The various colleges and faculties were therefore asked to nominate representatives directly.

The representatives, recently organized into a Standing Committee of the Council, are J. A. Weir (medicine); R. D. Leuty (dentistry); Dalton Stubley (S.P.S.); Paul Johnson (St. Michael's College, representing the Faculty of Arts); and Claire Rutherford (U.C., representing the ex-service women of the campus).

"We feel that the time has now come for us to hear from the 4,000 student veterans whom we were chosen to represent," a committee spokesman said.

Questions to be voted on will include a mandate for the committee members, approval of the setting-up and actions of the National Conference of Student Veterans, and the question of campus liaison with N.C.S.V.

Background material on these questions appears elsewhere on this page. Student veteran voters are advised to save this issue for reference.

Council Of Seven NCSV. Executive

A seven-man council to represent student veterans across the Dominion was set up at the recent Montreal conference of ex-service students from 28 universities, colleges, and rehabilitation schools. Two members each represent Ontario, Quebec, and the West, and one represents the East.

Liaison between the student veterans on this campus and the N.C.S.V. by way of the Ex-Service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council is one of the topics of next week's questionnaire vote.

Purpose of the council is to act as executive instrument of the National Conference of Student Veterans when the conference is not in session. Its term of office ends when in the course of the next conference a new one is elected. The council is bound to call a second National Conference within 14 months.

The Veterans' Council is charged with implementing the final report of the Montreal conference, as summarized elsewhere on this page, and more fully reported in The Varsity of January 4. In the event of further policy directives being required, it is to institute a national poll of student veterans; plans for an organization for cross-country polling are being drawn up to be submitted for ratification to the institutions concerned.

Editorial

A Man Of Peace

There is not the smallest doubt that in conferring an honorary degree on General Dwight D. Eisenhower tomorrow the University of Toronto is welcoming a man whose name will live in history forever.

Entrusted with the supreme command of the greatest military operation in history, General Eisenhower directed the massed armies that ultimately smashed the Nazi war machine and brought to a close the major phase of the most destructive and dangerous war of all time. However small his actual achievement, association with such a combination of superlatives would alone confer immortality on any man.

His actual achievement, nevertheless, has been far from small. It would be a mistake to call Eisenhower a figurehead at the top of the tree. It would be false to brand him as a mere conciliator, or as a mere referee, or as the man who implemented the decisions of the general staff. The whole is greater than the sum of its parts; he was in some measure all those things; yet his importance to history and to our time is something for which no one of those aspects, nor all of them, can properly account.

The greatness of Eisenhower, the quality which places him with Caesar and Napoleon on the highest level of generalship, consists in one simple fact: although a great warrior, perhaps a warrior of genius, he is not a man of war. Neither were Caesar and Napoleon men of war; by war, they pursued peaceful aims against what they considered intolerable pressure. Both left a legend of war, but enduring works of peace.

The Works of Peace

In the same way, and even in a greater way, General Eisenhower has dedicated his life to peace. The key to his paradoxically warlike fame is contained in his maxim that "Only the strong can co-operate"; the key to his greatness is that he seeks strength as a means to co-operation rather than to conquest.

His philosophy contains a special example for university students, preparing as they are for a life of the intellect which must inevitably be a life of conflict: for truth comes by conflict, as surely as Eisenhower has demonstrated that peace comes out of war.

Truth does not evolve; neither does peace evolve; truth must be fought for, and when secured, must be held; so must peace be fought for and held.

It is heartening that the principal military figure in a war which statesmen allowed to become progressively less idealistic should possess almost uniquely the statesmanlike quality of idealism.

It will be heartening for the future of thought if university students can wed a comparable intellectual idealism with a comparable instinct for intellectual combat.

A. M. and D

India In Ink

It seems that the current exhibition by Anthony Gross in the Hart House Gallery created an immense stir when shown in England, and gave a great reputation to an artist all but unknown before the war. A famous English critic termed his show "absolutely brilliant." At the risk of incurring this gentleman's disfavor I should say more mildly that the show is as good, perhaps somewhat better, than any war art I have seen.

Gross works in a great tradition of English illustration, the same that produced, for example, Sir John Tenniel's illustrations for Alice in Wonderland—a multitude of very thin pen lines which delineate forms with careful attention to correctness and detail, producing a finished product which closely resembles an etching in general appearance. The influence of twentieth century trends appears in Gross' application of color; paying little attention to the boundary lines of his forms, patches of color melt into one another behind the pen lines in a pattern which has only an abstract relation to subject matter.

The style, however, is uniquely suited to war artistry; Gross' accurate pen drawing provides that definiteness of illustration without which a war artist cannot merit that name, while his coloring gives the stamp of aestheticism to what could be a pseudo-photographic chronicle. Gross' figures seem a bit stiff and posed at times, but his delineation of character, both of men and of terrain, is masterful; he has a knack of grasping the essential features, and leaving irrelevant detail to a sort of illustrative impressionism.

We leave Gross' record of the Indian Army, as we should any war artist's work, with a feeling that we really learned something about the type of men the artists saw, and the type of war they were fighting—witness the 3 scented Officers of the 4th Indian Division, a great piece of portraiture, to my mind, or the Chius in the Hills, a clear-cut representation of the men and their country... We also feel that we have been looking at some great works of art as well; Advance Brigade, for instance, is a work worthy to hang on any gallery wall, and there are others of that quality, as well as some that are inferior, of course.

This show is well worth seeing by everybody.

ALAN GOWANS

Marian Anderson

There are certain aspects of Marian Anderson's singing which mark her as a great vocalist. The most striking of these is her perfect volume control. Her crescendos are quite literal, that is, gradual increases in volume instead of the sharp changes ordinarily produced by vocalists. This faculty combines with the surprising array of qualities that Miss Anderson obtains in different registers to produce results that are always artistic.

The remarkable thing is that these attributes make themselves felt above her austerity. Her work last night at Eaton Auditorium was marked with a coldness unusual in an artist so favoured by the public. Were it not for the fact that the program also was austere and needed to be put over, this manner of performing might be considered preferable to the more common demonstrative type.

The program, while stern, was interesting. Three songs sung by Hugo Wolf were particularly well performed, as were the Negro Spirituals.

Franz Rupp deserves more than the passing mention usually given accompanists. If many of the songs had more than ordinary effect, it was due in no small measure to his sensitive and sensible handling of the music.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN.

entific viewpoint to the anonymous "I. C. & R. of Jan. 9 and to Mr. Stahl, for his letter of Jan. 10.

—W. D. GOODMAN.

There's a reason for everything, and the reason for this story is that for some obscure reason there is an empty space at the top of the second page of The Varsity and the night editors have just got to find something to put in it.

They could put in a picture of the opening ceremonies of the Toronto Island Ferry service, but unfortunately the picture has been lost although the Ferry service is still in existence. Another alternative was to reprint the crossword puzzle from the Manchester Guardian, but at the last moment it was discovered that there were certain copyright formalities that had to be attended to by transatlantic telephone, and the Editor-in-Chief put his foot down about making calls at the rate of $30 per minute.

An unfortunate aspect of all this is that the entire staff of the Varsity who usually hang around the press all night looking for something to do, had disappeared and although a cordon was thrown around Raskolnikov's Ronette Rendezvous where it was suspected that they were hanging out, the only person captured was the man who collects all the rejected proofs from the graduation photographers and makes wallpaper pulp out of them.

In desperation the night editors decided to create a story by burning down the press. This was done, but in the course of the excitement the copy was burned too and they had to start all over again and make up something scandalous about the things that go on in ward three, but this was not passed by the censor, and so it goes.

It's all very sad but there you are.

—JAKE.

CAMERA CLUB

The Annual Show of the Hart House Camera Club, to be held in the Art Gallery, will be opened Monday night at 7:45 by a special private showing for members of the club. The show will be open to members of Hart House beginning Tuesday.

At the private showing the winners of the various awards, including the K. B. Jackson Trophy for the best print submitted in the Junior group, will be announced.

That's you in the sketch... how do you like yourself in your new 1946 College Classic? It's bold in sleeve, belittling in the waist... it's all the sparkle you need, all the down-to-earth usefulness. It's from Simpson's Campus Shop.

Simpson's

FASHION FLOOR, THE THIRD

ABSOLUTELY

NO TICKETS

TO THE

Vic At Home

SORRY!

Correspondence

Qualified Agreement

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

You will no doubt be surprised to receive from me, the writer of a letter strongly condemnatory, if not abusive, of your notorious dictum on "Scientific Method," even a qualified approval of your editorial of Jan. 10, entitled, "The Winged Donkey." First, may I be allowed, as an admirer of good prose, to compliment you upon the artistic merit of the article. Secondly, may I be permitted to approve most heartily of a sentiment which I perceive, perhaps in error, running through the editorial; I refer to the recognition that the ultimate tests of any course of action are moral rather than scientific. No matter how careful the analysis, the judgment reached as to action to be taken will, in the end, be a value judgment. This is the conclusion which must be reached from observation of the prostitution of science to immoral ends which is such a feature of contemporary society.

However, to ridicule scientific method for its examination of philosophic concepts is, I believe, unwarranted. It is the business of the scientist to examine in order to understand. Where value judgments are made, based upon inadequate or inaccurate analyses, the result is confusion and chaos; from the tenor of your article, I am tempted to conclude that you may acquiesce to such faulty analysis to justify situations you believe desirable. Your remarks about the next world war stress the fact that scientific thought is not in itself humanistic in content; nevertheless, coupled with a humanistic concept of society it can prove the greatest tool for building the good society, our common aim. It must be recognized, however, that the use of a scientific technique in examining social phenomena itself influences the values by which we judge those phenomena. Likewise, it is important to realize that social conditions affecting the observer bear some relation to his judgments. It is not enough to quip, "Relative to What?" as a reply to this verifiable conclusion, one must attempt, given those conditions, to create a working scale of values, being ready at all times to revise that scale, if scientific analysis shows that it has anti-humanistic implications or is in danger of acquiring such implications through changing conditions.

While I agree with a considerable portion of your editorial, I must, in answer to your more extravagant claims for the philosophic approach quote Francis Bacon. "It cannot be," wrote Bacon about 1620, "that axioms established by argumentation can suffice for the discovery of new works, since the subtlety of nature is greater many times over than the subtlety of argument." Finally, heartiest commendations for clear exposition of the sci-

THE VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42a

University College

Business Office

Night Office

Editor-in-Chief

Women's Editor

Managing Editor

Make-up Editor

Rewrite Editor

News Editor

Assistant

Feature Editor

Assistant

Sports Editor

Assistant

Women's Sports Editor

C.U.P. & Exchange Editor

Assistant

Art, Music, and Drama

Editor

Staff Photographer

Night Editor: Bob Marjoribanks.

Assistant: Beverley Echlin.

HOW MANY?

Whether there are two in your party — or twelve or more — take them to HONEY DEW and get a unanimous vote of thanks.

HONEY DEW quality, service, comfort and variety appeal to every taste.

HONEY DEW COFFEE SHOPS

BE SMART—LOOK SMART USE BRYLCREEM

THE PERFECT HAIR DRESSING

● Applied every morning, BRYLCREEM will keep your hair looking smart and well-groomed all day long. The natural oils in BRYLCREEM overcome dandruff and dry scalp, give the hair a healthy, natural lustre without that greasy appearance. All druggists sell BRYLCREEM in the handy, convenient tube. Buy today.

NO GUM · NO SOAP · NO ALCOHOL · NO STARCH

Hart House Bulletin Board

Monday Sing Song

There will be a Sing Song in the East Common Room today at 1:30 p.m.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Agnes Butcher, pianist, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5:00 p.m. on Friday, 11th January. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

CRYSTAL BALLROOM, KING EDWARD HOTEL — SATURDAY, JANUARY 12

Pi Lambda Phi Charity Ball

DRESS OPTIONAL

Tickets Available at the Door

$3.50 COUPLE

ELLIS McLINTOCK

VOLKOFF BALLE

Experience And Cash Opened To Instructors

By Joe Taylor

How many students know what Volunteer Instructors are? In fact, how many students have even heard of Volunteer Instructors?

For the edification and perhaps assistance of both sets, we will endeavour to give clear, if somewhat muddled, explanation of the facts of the case. It

I've taken to pipe smoking like a prof to knowledge
since I've discovered sweet, cool,
mild Picobac.

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO

New Dance Class

MONDAY, 8:30

Instruction by Cecil DeCosta

Enrol now for this new course in FOX-TROT, WALTZ, RHUMBA, JIVE, TANGO.

A Complete Brush-up Course

Da Costa
STUDIOS OF DANCING
1139 Bay St., Cor. Charles
MI. 5624

mart kenney
currently appearing at the
Royal York Hotel

art hallman
currently appearing at Casa Loma, Toronto

stan patton
currently appearing at
Brant Inn, Burlington

These and other very well-known
orchestras available

Exclusive Management
Office of MART KENNEY
'HEC' McCALLUM, Manager
125 Dupont St., Toronto
KI. 3147—Nights: GR. 4894

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

Magician's Tricks

Mysteriously popping up at Western, Jack Parry, Queen's ace running half, has enrolled in Meds at that rival institution. This stroke of luck should make a powerful addition to Johnny Metras' already potent squad. Whether or not Metras will be able to sneak him into the lineup under the intercollegiate regulations is open to conjecture. The most peculiar thing about the whole affair is the claim by Metras that he didn't know anything about the enrolment. We wonder!

And Now It's Spring

Our travelling Blues will be waiting anxiously tonight for a go-ahead signal from Dartmouth. As it is up here, so it is down there — no ice. Apparently there is no artificial ice on our host's campus. In the meantime, the boys will be sitting in Montreal waiting for a cold front and a warm reception.

Shuffle Off To Buffalo

Roy Dilworth's gang are off to Buffalo tomorrow with all our best wishes for a successful trip. We did it before and we can do it again, is the slogan, as the bus pulls out Saturday afternoon.

O.H.A. News

The Junior Blues play Oshawa tonight at 8:00 p.m. This should be a fast-moving game, as it is rumored that our visitors have, as usual, a strong sextet. It's a Friday night, lads, so lay down the scholastic burden and watch a good hockey match. Support and enthusiasm is what the boys need, so rise and shine you sports fans.

Note to Managers

"It is the duty of managers to provide a goal judge for each game. The managers of the home team must provide a timer and the manager of the visiting team an assistant timer. The manager of the home team shall also supply an official scorer." This is an excerpt from the Intramural regulations. Some of the managers have been lax in this matter which makes the playing of a game rather difficult, we understand.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Taint So . . .

The hopscootch scandal has not a fragment of veracity to it . . . we hasten to assure the horror-stricken women of this campus . . . so everyone can come out from behind those inkwells now, and carry on. Also, swimming enthusiasts must be set right on the dates for the semi-finals and finals of the meets . . . they were publicized as coming off on the 21st and 29th, whereas the real dates are: the semi-finals, 29th; the finals, 30th of January.

Where We Left Off

Another misapprehension running riot on the campus is the idea that the winners of the intramural swimming meet will automatically become members of the intercollegiate team. As a matter of fact, the team will be chosen from the good kids who turn out to practices. To be eligible for intercollegiate swimming, a student must be an undergraduate proceeding to a degree, and must have passed in her last annual examinations.

Those with high ambitions and abilities to match, who qualify, will be interested in a meeting to be held on Monday, January 14, at 1:30 p.m. in the office in the gallery of the Household Science gymnasium. Miss Baxter will then organize the intercollegiate team, in a short but important session. If there chances to be any student unable to make this meeting, Miss Baxter suggests that they contact her during one of the recreational swimming periods before January 16.

Here is a flash concerning students with swimming classes on Thursday and Friday, January 17 and 18 . . . there are to be no classes these two days, but the pool will be open for recreational swimming from 4:00 to 5:00.

Indian Culture To Be R.C.I. Talk

Among the Six Nations Indians the chief is chosen by the matron of the clan from among the eligible males.

This custom, and other aspects of the Six Nations culture will be described to the Royal Canadian Institute Saturday night by Dr. William N. Fenton, Senior Ethnologist of the Bureau of Ethnology, Smithsonian Institute.

Dr. Fenton is a graduate of Dartmouth College who received his Ph.D. from Yale in 1937. He joined the staff of the Smithsonian Institute in 1939, after several years of field work and teaching.

He will speak in Convocation Hall at 8:00 p.m.

Pharmacy Course Relieves Crowds

An accelerated course will be introduced to 150 student veterans at the Ontario College of Pharmacy on April 15 in order to relieve the overcrowding at the college.

According to Dean R. O. Hurst, the college will now be able to graduate three courses in two years. The courses will be in session continually with the exception of July and August.

Regular courses will be resumed in 1948. At that time, in addition to the normal three-year course, a four-year course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science (Pharmacy) will be introduced. Holders of this degree will be able to do post-graduate work denied to present Bachelors of Pharmacy.

This is the first line of the Varsity Blues who will do us proud tonight at Montreal. Left to right: Bob Henry, Wally Halder and Gord. Ball.

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	4:30	Sr. SPS.	Med. I	I. Hart, V. Hart
BASKETBALL	5:30	Jr. SPS.	Vic. II	Anderson, V. Hart
Major	1:00	Jr. SPS.	Jr. Med.	Lye
Minor	4:00	Trin. B	Vic. III	Kerrison
	1:00	III Med. B	I Dent.	Grapko
	4:00	Vic. VI	Trin. III	Jackson
	6:30	For. D	II Med. B	Bond
	7:30	Trin. V	Wyc. B	Bond

HOCKEY — Rules Interpretation Meeting — Today, 5:00 p.m.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Week of January 14

MAJOR LEAGUE

Mon., Jan. 14	1:00	Dent. A	Pre-Med A	Mott
	4:00	Sr. Vic.	PHE. I	Lye
	6:30	Jr. U.C. A	Sr. Med.	Hamun
Tues., Jan. 15	1:00	Med. Ser. A	SPS. IV	Duncan
	4:00	Sr. U.C.	Jr. Vic.	McPhedran
	6:30	For. A	Pharm. A	Cheifetz
Wed., Jan. 16	1:00	Knox A	SPS. V	Drupino
	4:00	Dent. B	St.M. B	Johnson
	6:30	PHE. II	St.M. A	Strathern
Thurs., Jan. 17	1:00	Jr. Vic.	Jr. SPS.	Lye
	4:00	Jr. U.C. A	Sr. Vic.	Hamun
	6:30	SPS. III	Bus. Adm. A	Rotman
	7:30	Trin. A	Jr. U.C. B	Rotman
Fri., Jan. 18	1:00	Sr. SPS.	PHE. I	Lye
	4:00	Jr. Med.	Sr. U.C.	Holman
	6:30	Pharm. A	Med. Ser. A	Swan
Sat., Jan. 19	1:00	SPS. IV	For. A	Stone

MINOR LEAGUE

Mon., Jan. 14	1:00	U.C. III	IV Mech.	Cochrane
	4:00	IV Elec.	II Med. A	Babcock
	6:30	II Civil	I Med.	Bond
Tues., Jan. 15	1:00	IV Metal.	Pre-Med. B	Charendoff
	4:00	IV Chem.	PHE. IV	Cheifetz
	5:00	IV Civil	Med. Ser. B	Cheifetz
	6:00	III Mech.	U.C. VI	Ewins
	7:00	Trin. IV	For. E	Ewins
Wed., Jan. 16	1:00	II Elec.	U.C. Econ.	Bernstein
	4:00	III Chem.	Vic. V	Kennedy
	6:30	IV Mech.	Bus. Adm. B	Farrell
	7:30	III Elec.	III Med. B	Farrell
	8:30	Vic. XI	Trin. V	Farrell
Thurs., Jan. 17	1:00	I Civil	For. D	Jackson
	4:30	III Mining	Vic. VI	Geary
	5:30	II Eng. Bus.	Vic. VII	Geary
	6:30	II Chem.	Vic. VIII	Duncan
	7:30	III Civil	U.C. St. George	Duncan
Fri., Jan. 18	1:00	Emman. B	U.C. Holwood	Grapko
	4:00	U.C. Arts	Vic. IX	McAdam
	6:30	PHE. VI	Trin. VI	Mackay
Sat., Jan. 19	1:00	Bus. Adm. B	III Med. A	Smith

startling dazzling electrifying

ARTS BALL

ANNOUNCEMENT MONDAY

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses
filled with quality spectacle-
ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLC 1 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of
the Faculty

BUFFALO TRIP

TEN BUS TICKETS AVAILABLE FOR THOSE WHO WISH TO GO TO BUFFALO WITH THE BASKETBALL TEAM ON SATURDAY. APPLY AT ATHLETIC OFFICE. $4.00 RETURN.

In spite of all rumors to the contrary . . .
there will be no

BULLFIGHT

at the Next Meeting
of the

University of Toronto
Spanish Club
TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 8 P.M.

WOMEN'S UNION

BUT WE DO OFFER

THE Dancing of Conchita
TRIANA

Year's Biggest Attraction

ALSO:
GUITAR RECITAL
REFRESHMENTS
DANCING

CITY CHURCHES

BLOOR STREET
UNITED CHURCH

Corner Bloor and Huron Streets
11 a.m.

Rev. Geo. C. Pidgeon,
D.D.

7 p.m.
Rev. Preston MacLeod

M.A.
Sermon:

"WHEN YOU DON'T SUCCEED"

6:45 p.m.—ORGAN RECITAL
8:15 p.m.—Friendship Hour.

FREDERICK C. SILVESTER
Organist and Choirmaster
STUDENTS SPECIALLY
WELCOME

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Bloor Street East
Rector:

REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

8 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION
Preacher—

The REV. R. S. K. SEELEY,
M.A., D.D.

Provost of Trinity College.
3 p.m.—BIBLE CLASSES

7 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER
Preacher: THE RECTOR

"THE FIGHTING FAITH OF CHRISTIANITY"

Organist:

Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University students are invited to join in the Corporate Communion, and in the Communion Breakfast following the 8 a.m. service.

Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter

D.D., LL.D.

Fireside hour at close of
Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

St. Andrew's

King and Simcoe Sts.

Minister

Very Rev. Stuart C. Parker,
D.D.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

DR. PARKER

Students specially invited.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

Huron Street—Just South of Bloor

7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist

11 a.m.—Procession and Solemn
Eucharist

Introt. "O Jesu Most Kind"—Bach
Festival Service in A Flat—Harwood

Preacher:

Rev. Canon C. J. S. STUART, M.A.

Motet, "Panis Angelicus"—Franck

7 p.m.—Solemn Evensong and Procession

Festival Service in B Flat—Stamford

Anthem, "Praise"—Rowley

Preacher:

Rev. Canon C. J. S. STUART, M.A.

Motet, "O Sacred Feast"—Willan

Cordial Welcome to All University
Students

KNOX CHURCH

SPADINA AND HARBOR

11 a.m.—"A NEEDLESSLY LONG JOURNEY"

7 p.m.—"LIFE THAT IS LIFE INDEED"

REV. ROBT. LENNOX, M.A.,
Th.B.

Professor, Presbyterian College,
Montreal.

8:15 p.m.: Fellowship Hour.

Guest Soloist:

Mr. HARVEY SHANK

Formerly with U.S. Army.

Guest Speaker:

Mrs. HARVEY SHANK

Former student of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Illinois.

Students Specially Invited

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist

St. George St. at Lowther Ave.

Branch of The Mother Church
The First Church of Christ,
Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

11 a.m.

Sunday, January 13th

"SACRAMENT"

Wed. Evening Meeting

at 8:00 o'clock

including Testimonies of Healing
through Christian Science.

Free Public Reading Room where
the Bible and Authorized Christian
Science Literature may be read,
borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

Canadian Campus

University Influx Causes Growth

By Barbara Jones

The 1945-6 population is almost double that of 1944-5!

No, the above is not a quotation from the recently issued Canada Year Book, and it isn't an estimate on the total Canadian population. It is the university population of Canada that has soared in such a startling manner.

Last fall Canadian Campus discussed the end of the campus manpower and the beginning of the campus housing shortage, now we come to the cause of it all. Canadians released from the armed services and from high schools have decided in favor of the student life in greater numbers than ever before. Army huts and temporary lecture rooms of all kinds have sprung up beside the ivy covered "sacred halls" in an effort to meet the emergency. And in some cases, notably McGill and the University of Toronto, auxiliary college at Dawson and Ajax have been opened.

From coast to coast the story is the same: college by college more students are in search of knowledge. Enrollment at the University of New Brunswick has jumped from 325 to 740, more than double normal registration.
Two hundred and eighty-five of these are veterans, and 200 more are preparing to enter Alexander College, another on the list of post-war extensions.

McGill registration is also over double last year; leaping from 2,710 to 5,744, which includes 1,948 veterans.
The increase has been felt in all faculties; especially in the faculty of arts, newly emerged from under the six-year war cloud.

The figures from the University of
Ottawa tell a similar story; from 2, 300 to 4,300 is close enough to call it double. Two hundred and twenty-five veterans have helped to swell the number here and raise the ratio to two men per woman.

Registration at Queen's is one exception to the double trouble. An increase of 823 over last year, contributed to by 1,032 ex-service personnel, has raised the total to 2,291. The proportion of civilian men to women is two to one, but among ex-service students it is 2.45 to 1.

The University of Manitoba boasts a total of 5,100, a 2,800 increase on the figures for last year. Eighteen hundred and forty-two of these are veterans.
Exact figures are not yet available for the University of British Columbia, but estimates place the increase at 1,500, raising the total registration from 5,
800 to 7,300.

Eisenhower . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

ping, and dealt the German Luftwaffe a smashing defeat.

In the North African command he manifested his talent for securing cooperation between jealous nations and prima-donna commanders that led in part to his selection in 1944 as leader of the mighty invasion of France.

His efforts to secure co-ordination were untiring. Once he proclaimed that any American officer heard disparaging a British associate would be sent back to the U.S. in the slowest ship available, without convoy.

Perhaps apocryphal is the legend that one such officer was actually so sent home for calling a British colleague an unprintable name. "It was not that he called him a so-and-so," Eisenhower is said to have explained, "but that he called him a British so-and-so."

On June 5, 1945, General Eisenhower was the loneliest man in England.
Against the advice of associates who were deterred by reports of increasing bad weather, he ordered the launching of the assault on France. As it turned out, postponement of the attack to the next possible date would have meant probable disaster in the worst storm in 40 years.

"In a decision like that, of course, there is one thing a commander faces," Eisenhower commented. "Sooner or later you have got to make it, and you know it. You have got to say yes or no. That does something, I think, to prepare your mind for the thing."

Eleven months later, Germany was crushed. Heaping the credit on the field commanders, Montgomery, Bradley, and Patton, although he himself had taken the big strategic and many of the most important tactical decisions, Eisenhower returned to the wildest welcome the U.S. ever gave a victorious general.

The four million who lined the New York sidewalks outdid the welcome accorded to earlier heroes, Lindbergh and Pershing.

Back home in Abilene, Kansas, to which he had been brought as a baby in 1890 to grow up with his five brothers, General Eisenhower objected to huge "Welcome Our Hero" banners.

"I am not a hero," he told the crowds.
"I am only the symbol of the heroism men you people sent to war."

Allurement!

FOR A LADY

Black witchery! At EATON'S . . . circular evening veils from New York! Sparkling with sequins or bordered with lace . . . they're the exciting new adventure in fashion for evening wear! From $2.75 to $4.00 each. Accessories Dept.

Main Store—Main Floor

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Classified Advertisements

TAKEN BY MISTAKE—From the Great Hall, Hart House, beige raincoat, noon Wednesday. Phone HY.
7531.

LOST—In Room 101, Zoology Bldg.,
Mon., 11 a.m., paper bag containing 2 new pairs lady's rubbers and one loafer. Please leave at least the loafer at S.A.C. Office, or phone KI. 3837.

LOST—Small size striped green Parker vacuumatic pen before holidays, between Vic. and Economics Bldg.
Reward. MA. 1608.

EXCHANGE—Anyone wanting to exchange a Feb. 22nd for a Feb. 1st
Vic-At-Home ticket, please contact
MA. 7132.

LOST—Gold bracelet, 2½" wide, flexible, Wed. afternoon on Hoskin.
Please phone GL. 6259.

LOST—Gold signet ring with large oval bloodstone. Possibly lost in or between U.C. and Trinity, or on St.
George St., near Knox College.
Phone HU. 0796 or contact S.A.C.
Office. Reward.

WANTED — Serviceman's ticket for Eisenhower's Convocation. MI. 1041.

TYPING—Essays, typed neatly and efficiently. Call HU. 9520, after 7 p.m.

PERSONAL — Joe: Heard Mickey
Lester, CKEY, 2:05. He stinks.
Maude.

S. C. M.

SUNDAY EVENING

Coffee Party

WOMEN'S UNION

8:30 to 10:30

Come and Go as You Please —
A Regular Sunday Evening Feature.

EVERYONE WELCOME

THE CHURCH OF THE
HOLY TRINITY

Trinity Square

(ON Yonge, 2 below Dundas)

Invites students to join with us
in services that combine beauty
of worship with progressive
Christian action

Regular Sunday services at
8, 9:30, and 11 a.m., and at 7 p.m.

THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY
OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)

MEETING FOR WORSHIP
on Sunday morning at 11 a.m.

AT THE

Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED
TO WORSHIP WITH US.

"A good end cannot sanctify evil means."
—WILLIAM PENN

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE

Bathurst Street at Ava Road

at 11 a.m.

RABBI ABRAHAM L. FEINBERG

will speak on

"TORONTO'S CRIME WAVE!
ACCENT ON YOUTH—?
CAUSE AND CURE—WHERE?"

Public Cordially Invited

Free bus service from Bathurst and
St. Clair every 15 minutes, commencing at 10:40 a.m. until 11:20 a.m.
and leaving the Temple at 12:30 p.m.
and 12:50 p.m.

RADIO BROADCAST

RABBI FEINBERG

CKEY, SUNDAY, 9:45 A.M.

Listen to

"Canada in the Modern World"

By Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph. D.

Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB -- Every Sunday -- 2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

Jerry Wald

JERRY WALD

HIS CLARINET AND ORCHESTRA. FEATURING KAY ALLEN AND DICK MERRICK

ELLIS McLINTOCK

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

WITH

BOBBY GIMBY

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

3 BIG BALLROOMS ON THE CONVENTION FLOOR OF THE ROYAL YORK HOTEL

All For Only $3.00 Per Couple

DANCING 9 - 2

DRESS, INFORMAL

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY STORE IN THE ENGINEERING BUILDING

Some Tickets Available to Outside Faculties

GREETED by their hosts, Warden J. B. Bickersteth and President Sidney Smith, General Eisenhower and his wife (left) begin their visit to the University. In his red and pink Doctor's gown (center) he is briefed by the President and Chancellor Cody minutes before the Convocation ceremonies. Col. W. E. Phillips, Chairman of the Board of Governors, (right) escorts the Eisenhowers to lunch.

—STAFF PHOTOS BY RALPH JONES AND ISRAEL SHOPSOWITZ.

Peace By Education Is Eisenhower Theme

WORLD A SMALL NEIGHBORHOOD

The soldier is on peace work. The world's greatest warrior has become, rightfully, its most devout salesman of peace.

Saturday afternoon the University of Toronto conferred an honorary Doctorate of Laws on this man whom Chancellor H. J. Cody described as "one of the earth's great ones" who has today become an energetic "apostle and propagandist of peace."

But the soldier spoke with profound diffidence to the capacity Convocation gathering. There were thousands, he said, who could express his ideas and his convictions more forcibly than he. His only excuse for speaking of them, he offered, was that he believed them implicitly.

His audience listened. It must be a universal aim, General Dwight David Eisenhower declared, to "live tolerantly together in this shrunken world" which has today become "a small neighborhood."

For this reason, he said, "we do not dare delay. We can not complacently assume the absence of danger. We must marshal our forces into one mighty effort. We must have the patience to endure countless setbacks. But we must keep our eyes on the ultimate objective."

That objective, the General defined, was "unlimited co-operation in the field of international endeavor." Illustration of the type of "workable co-operation" he meant, the General said, was the example to the world of Canada and the United States who are "neighbors in more than a geographical sense." Those countries' 3,000 miles of common boundary measure a secure border "defended by mutual friendship . . . more powerful even than the atomic bomb."

The world's sole hope, he stated, was to allow "the cleansing spring of knowledge" to flow over "the dark ground of prejudice, fear and hysteria, the soil in which the evil seeds of war flourish."

Shares Delight

One alumnus of the University of Toronto wired his pleasure at the General's visit to this campus.

"I am sharing your delight at having General Eisenhower as a guest of the University of Toronto today," said Prime Minister W. L. M. King in a telegram to the President of his alma mater. The message was read by Dr. Smith after the luncheon in Great Hall.

There must be "a clear-eyed view of war's bestiality" and realization that "force can never substitute for justice in adjustment of life."

Education, he asserted, must accept a broad responsibility for nurturing a better understanding of the complexities of international co-operation. It must be prepared to provide on a world basis those advantages of mutual respect and understanding which are the happy property of the U.S. and Canada.

"We have seen the ugliness, the suffering, the terrible cost of war. Our civilization has reached a brink from which the prospect is a thousand times more terrifying than anything we have seen."

To avert this prospect was education's job, he said. Education, to which he had earlier expressed his debt for its part in winning the war through its scientific contributions and its trained men, must "carry on its rightful role in this glorious, universal crusade."

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, JANUARY 14, 1946

No. 60

IKE AMONG THE MIKES affixes his signature to the Golden Book, supervised by Registrar A. B. Fennell and President Smith. For fully ten seconds the General has been a University of Toronto Doctor of Laws.
—STAFF PHOTO BY RALPH JONES.

"Just A Frustrated Angler", Confesses Busy General

By George Forster

General Eisenhower smiled wistfully. "I haven't had a leave since 1938," he sighed. "I would like to go fishing."

He had just been asked about his personal rehabilitation problems. The General's joviality could not mask his deep-rooted abhorrence of war. "We must all realize," he said, "that war is the worst tragedy which can befall the human race. It presents untold possibilities for horror—it could even lead to the destruction of the whole world." "Each individual must insist that his leaders develop an international viewpoint," he went on. "Nationalism no longer answers all our questions. If you are a patriot, you must be prepared to help other nations."

After questions had been fired at him for fifteen minutes by a score of press representatives, the General smiled around the room. "I expected you people would ask me questions about the achievements of your own Canadian troops and so far nobody has. But there are many instances where the full story of their exploits has never been revealed. Canadians should be very proud of their battle record."

"If it's modesty, it's a very nice kind of modesty. It has been most gratifying to see that we haven't started to ask 'who won the war?' We all won the war. All were indispensable."

He was told that American troops in Europe had been protesting the delay in repatriation and had demonstrated with shouts of "We want Ike!"

"Maybe they think I can work miracles," he grinned.

"Many of them do not understand the importance of the work they are doing, if they did they would not be so impatient."

He was asked to comment on a recent statement of Herbert Morrison's that it might take from 50 to 100 years before Germany could be entrusted with democracy.

"Sometimes the academic view comes into conflict with the realistic world," he said.

Chancellor Cody, President Smith, and Colonel Phillips of the Board of Governors were standing in the corner. They blushed.

Convocation Mingles Splendor, Informality

TWO THOUSAND CROWD HALL

Splendor and informality mingled in the traditional ceremonies by which General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower became an honorary Doctor of Laws of the University of Toronto Saturday afternoon amidst the pageantry of Convocation Hall.

Wearing the red and pink academic gown of his degree over a beribboned battle dress, Convocation's central figure stood before the colorfully-robed dignitaries on the platform as a legend in the flesh to the two thousand faculty members and students who filled the hall.

Throughout the afternoon, while listening intently to the president's remarks, while making his fervent plea for world-wide understanding and perpetual peace, while repeating excerpts from his address for the benefit of the motion picture cameras, while shaking hands with the throngs that clustered before Hart House and Simcoe Hall for his entrances, this hero who refuses to be a hero constantly displayed the unaffected simplicity and humility of the genuinely great.

Instructors Too
The veteran on the University of Toronto campus is more than just a student, said General Dwight Eisenhower speaking informally to the luncheon gathering in Hart House Saturday afternoon.

"I should like to point out the value of thinking of him as an instructor—an instructor to those who have escaped an immediate knowledge of war." Those unable to know the emotional impact of war, said the General, are those unable to appreciate the peace. The veteran, he proposed, could help foster this appreciation of peace.

1066 And All That Ike Was A Taillefer

"To say that Mrs. Eisenhower and myself are overwhelmed is to be guilty of the rankiest kind of British understatement," said General "Ike."

They were overwhelmed by the widest demonstration of enthusiasm the staid Great Hall had ever seen. For fully a minute after the General rose to his feet, the 300 guests at Saturday's luncheon cheered.

Conspicuously vociferous were professors and senators. The 48 ex-service students, a little sobered by resumption of uniform, demonstrated more mildly. It was they, however, who gave the General his theme.

"The students in the four front tables," he said, "can be valuable instructors to those of us who have escaped immediate knowledge of war. We must get into ourselves some of the emotional impact of war, to appreciate peace."

Those 48, President Smith had told the General, represented the 5,000 student veterans on the campus, as well as the 10,000 who enlisted from the University and the 456 who died.

Translating "Eisenhower" as "Hewer of Iron", Chancellor Cody traced his name to the "Taillefer" who crossed the channel in 1066 at the head of the Norman army, bearing the standard of hope "General Eisenhower," he said, "crossed the same channel in reverse, to break the bonds of iniquity."

"We present to the General," Chancellor Cody concluded, "a parchment and a hope."

This Eisenhower, this "iron cutter", this supreme commander of World War Two, showed awed interest in all pro-

(Continued on page 3)

THE EISENHOWER grin flashes forth as General Ike chats with Mayor Robert H. Saunders and Chancellor Cody in the Hart House Map Room before the Great Hall luncheon.
—STAFF PHOTO

Ike: "I Assure You—I Have"

By Ross McLean

The sting of humiliation had been salved and soothed.

That the canary-raising tank general had not heard of the University of Toronto no longer mattered. His boss had.

With that impish five-star smile that is his trademark of geniality, General Dwight D. Eisenhower told Saturday's luncheon party in Hart House:

"Again I express my gratitude for the great distinction awarded me by this University which, I assure you, I have heard about before!"

"I thank you," beamed Dr. Sidney Smith. "Particularly for that last sentence so fittingly expressed."

Generally speaking, the case for recognition of the University of Toronto was probably closed.

What do you say, err, what's-your-name? Uhuhh—Montgomery?

"If you know anything about the mathematics of meeting people," observed Squadron Leader Donald A. MacFadyen, D.S.O. D.F.C. and Bar, who was U.C.'s veteran representative among the ten ex-service students to meet the General before the luncheon, "then you'll know that the fourth in line always get shaken hands with."

MacFadyen was fourth in line.

Squadron Leader Bob Aldwinckle, Rhodes Scholarship winner and Engineering representative, was luckier. At the head of the line, Aldwinckle was asked how long he had been in the European theatre. Nursing Sister M. G. Kennedy (No. 3) was urged to give the General's best regards to the other members of her service on the campus.

Six-footer Capt. C.S. Ross confessed surprise at discovering himself taller than his former supreme commander.

"What unit?" the General asked him. "Twenty-ninth Canadian Armored Reconnaissance," Capt. Ross, now a medical student, replied.

"We gave you boys a lot of work over there," the General remarked. Ross agreed. "Glad to see you're back and looking so well," the General commented as he moved on to the next introduction.

In order to permit the newsreel cameras to record a portion of the Convocation address of General Dwight Eisenhower, Chancellor Cody requested the capacity audience to remain seated after convocation had been dismissed.

"Convocatio demissa est," Canon Cody intoned.

"Now," he added, "stay where you are!"

"I can assure you ladies and gentlemen," said the General as he stepped to the rostrum to re-deliver three excerpts from his speech, "this is not a try-out for Hollywood."

A better-covered Convocation would be hard to find.

Three radio commentators described the proceedings to CKEY, CFRB and CJBK listeners. Newsreels recorded portions of General Eisenhower's address. More than a score of still photographers were admitted to the Hall to photograph highlight points in the ceremonies. In the press box downtown and campus reporters took notes of the goings-on.

Educators Must Accept Responsibility--Ike

Following is a condensed text of the address delivered by General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Convocation Hall Saturday afternoon.

Man's instinctive and traditional respect for knowledge, reason and truth is reflected in the regard, amounting almost to veneration, in which educational systems are held throughout the civilized world. Inevitably the award of an honorary degree by a Great University inspires in the recipient a sense of special pride and gratification. In this instance my natural reactions are rendered the more acute by circumstances of peculiar significance.

First of all, no one could emerge from the experience of leading a great collaborative endeavor among nations—as I have—without acquiring the most profound respect for the contribution of education to our mutual success. Not only in the field of science itself, but in devising courses of instruction in the many complicated weapons, machines and techniques of modern war, education has played a decisive part in preparing men for battle.

The enlightened programs of education which both our nations have followed for many years paid rich dividends in speeding our preparation for the critical campaigns. Knowledge and sound habits of study acquired in the classroom gave us intelligent troops, quick to grasp each new lesson. It gives me particular satisfaction to acknowledge here the great debt which I feel to the educators of our two nations.

Lauds Canadians

In the late war, I was privileged to associate with large contingents of Canadian fighting men, who braved every terror to uphold principles of humanity which are implicit as well in our concept of free education. Many of those men are here today, heroic sons of Canada and of Toronto University. So I have the additional privilege of testifying again to the gallantry, the fortitude and the devotion that they displayed in such high degree at Dioppe, in Sicily, Normandy, on the Scheldt and on the Rhine and beyond. I pay to them my humble tribute of continuing admiration, affection and gratitude.

I have another reason for unusual personal gratification in today's ceremony. There is universal recognition of the fact that to attain victory on the Western Front it was necessary for many peoples, both in the field and in their homelands, to submerge nationalistic differences in the advancement of a common cause. That lesson, I hold, has a broad and profitable application in other circumstances. I like to think that the signal honor today accorded me as former Commander and a representative of the Allied Expeditionary Force, symbolizes the profound respect of Toronto University for the unlimited possibilities of cooperation in the field of international endeavor.

Again, I am particularly happy to visit a great educational institution in a country with which my own has been neighbor in more than mere geographical sense. For many years the absence of military protective works and formations on either side of our great length of common border has been a source of amazement to other countries.

Undefended Boundary

The peoples of the United States and Canada are imbued, respectively, with the same fierce and justifiable pride in their independence and national pursuits as are other countries of the world. Yet, such is the relationship between these two truly good neighbors that neither is compelled to provide in its plans and in its expenditures for physical defense against the other.

In that security, that confidence, each of us has a national asset of incalculable value, physical and moral. It is a mighty river of common blessing fed by tributaries that are plain to see.

Of these the primary one is mutual understanding. This, in turn, is fed by such things as unimpeded exchange across the border of ideas, literature, correspondence and visits by individuals.

A second principal feeder of the main river is a common basic concept of political life. In each country there is respect for the dignity and rights of the individual, with the citizens themselves providing the ultimate source of all political power. Instinctive trust and friendship flourish between peoples where their governments exist to serve rather than to exploit them.

Place of Education

A third important tributary is the determination in both Canada and the United States to raise constantly the educational level of all the people. As the fruits of education are widely spread, the cleansing spring of knowledge, logic and reason is made to flow over the dark ground of prejudice, fear, hysteria—the soil in which the evil seeds of war forever flourish.

When called upon to combat definite threat to their free way of life, the citizens of your country and mine have utterly destroyed the mightiest military machines that boastful dictatorship could design. But even these successes could not delude our people into believing that armies should be trusted above friendship for security, that reliance upon military power can give civilization as firm a foundation as can orderly, legal procedures.

I think it would be arguing the obvious to dwell at length upon the desirability of spreading to the rest of the world the opportunity to live in the same spirit of neighborliness that we have so long enjoyed. Some of our more fortunate circumstances cannot immediately be theirs. Other ways must be found to provide, between ourselves and other nations, and between themselves, the great end result that has come to us so naturally and easily.

Here then, it seems to me, is found one of the great challenges to the educational systems of the world, particularly to those institutions to which we have the right to look for leadership.

To state the proposition in a concrete—possibly over-simplified form: is the educational system prepared, as a part of its mission in carrying cultural levels ever upward, to provide on a world basis a substitute for those advantages of accident and of natural growth that your country and mine have exploited to our mutual profit?

Objective Is Understanding

The objective is to promote mutual respect and understanding! The effect would be profound, but the development is not easy since there is implied simultaneous desire and effort in many independent countries. We can, however, start with our own part. We can abstain from prejudicing others, we can strive to understand their viewpoints and problems, we can tear from our eyes the blindness of prejudice and hatred.

The factual, honest teaching of history is important. For example, you and ourselves are relatively young nations and it is frequently difficult for us to understand that in certain problems of life, the legends and traditions of two thousand years ago may be fully as important as the cold logic of today. Yet among other peoples these age-old values are considered a part of the spirit as opposed to materialism. If we can truly grasp and analyze the roots of the aspirations, of the hopes and the fears of others, we will generate not only a needed tolerance in ourselves but will encourage hope in others and ally their fear.

The world has done much toward this end in the field of medicine, where research and study have substituted science for witchcraft in the treatment of the sick. Here we have a shining example for other lines of endeavor. Medical knowledge is disseminated through all countries. Through explorations in universities and our laboratories have come results that have tightened up the world into a small neighborhood. Now we must develop the spiritual values and mutual understanding that will permit us to live tolerantly together in this shrunken world.

Must Stress Humanities

We may visualize the achievements of learned men during past centuries as falling along two parallel channels which at times have been closely related and at other times have borne only slight relationship to each other. We look upon the ancient Greeks as leaders primarily in the field of social, cultural and political progress. Their understanding of human values surpassed their scientific progress. In the centuries that have followed, scientific advancements have caught up with and in some senses far out-distanced the development of those social forms which enable man to live in peace. To my mind, the tremendous challenge now is to direct our efforts in such a manner that human relationships may be kept abreast of scientific achievements.

The task is formidable but it can be mastered. Much of its success may well depend on the knowledge which farsighted individuals everywhere—and particularly in our institutions of higher learning—can give to the people, increasing their understanding of the problems to be met and providing an example of patience and tolerance in their judgment of the factors involved in these historic discussions.

A Soldier's Maxims

All these things you gentlemen are better equipped than I to think through, to develop into definite objects and to plan for their fulfillment. A soldier cannot escape a feeling of profound diffidence when venturing, before such a body as this, to discuss such subjects. My excuse is the same as would be offered by any of the other war veterans present today. We have seen the ugliness, the suffering, the terrible cost of war. There is no legitimate road toward the goal of permanent peace that we will not attempt to travel. Our civilization has reached a brink from which the prospect—if we turn not into sure paths to peace—is a thousand times more terrifying than anything yet witnessed.

So, applying some of the maxims of the soldier, I urge that we do not delay—that we do not complacently assume the absence of mortal danger—that we marshal our forces into one mighty effort—that we have the patience to endure inevitable setbacks—that we keep our eyes on the final objective and strive unceasingly toward its attainment. Where are we to find the leadership? Where else but in the university—traditional symbol of truth, integrity, tolerance, knowledge and understanding.

As I accept, with great pride, the Honorary Doctorate of Toronto University, I pledge every support possible in my poor power to education everywhere, as it carries on its rightful role in this glorious, universal, crusade.

Art, Music and Drama

A Matter Of Insight

ST. MICHAEL'S CONCERT

Last night's St. Michael's music and Drama Society concert seems to have finally reached a fairly high artistic point after long effort. The main soloists, Harry Adaskin, and his able accompanist, Frances Marr, worked exceedingly well as a team despite several setbacks. Mr. Adaskin played with great spirit the Sibelius "Violin Concerto" with piano accompaniment.

Unfortunately Miss Marr's piano playing was handicapped by the fact that the only available piano seemed to have been built for giants and supermen and not for mere women. The acoustic of the hall also deadened the music and destroyed many of the fine overtones. Mr. Adaskin completed his share of the program with several light selections ranging from Debussy and Diniou to Brahms in which he displayed his marvelous technical ability.

The third guest of the evening, Dr. Arnold Walter, played some of his own compositions for piano, three light and pleasant etudes.

The entire program was generally pleasing and reflects credit on the organizers of this series of concerts. Starting practically from scratch a year ago, they have managed to bring their concerts up to par with the well-known Wymilwood series. Let's hope that they keep up the good work.

—GEORGE LEGRIS.

Budapest String Quartet

B. H. Haggis, writing in The Nation, says of the performances of the Budapest String Quartet that "they are not just great performances, or the greatest one has heard but in their province they are something on a different level of functioning from the best of other good performers and musicians, a product of a different order of powers of musical insight and execution." That this judgement is sound and unexaggerated was amply illustrated by the famous group in their concert here last Friday.

This greater insight is the only explanation of the incredibly wonderful performances that the group conveys. They possess the power of conveying to the audience aspects of the music which are inaccessible to other groups. They possess this power in spite of the fact that they are imperfectly balanced, the robust and dark-toned viola and cello being unmatched by the light-toned violins.

The program, in accordance with the policy of the Friends of Great Music, consisted of three classical quartets, Haydn's Op. 76 No. 5 Mozart's E flat, K428, and Beethoven's great C sharp minor, Op. 131. In the simplicity of the Haydn, the Quartet found subtleties of shading and tonal variations which go by unnoticed in a perusal of the score.

Even the Budapest's sensitive playing confirmed this reviewer's opinion that the Mozart quartet is one of the composer's dullest compositions. At the playing of the Beethoven quartet, however, one can only gape open-mouthed and wonder how it was possible for these men to reach so high a degree of perfection. Throughout the program every point of interpretation was handled with completely satisfying sound musicianship.

Having heard the group in person, I was interested in confirming whether or not the characteristics of their playing were reproduced on records. While many of their performances have been imperfectly recorded, the "superior insight" has been successfully transcribed. Their records provide a convenient means of obtaining an understanding of chamber works which might not be obtained through years of playing and concert going.

—PHILLIP FREEDMAN.

POPS' CONCERT

Only one valid criticism may be legitimately levelled at Pops night last Friday, Sir Ernest MacMillan conducting, with James Pease guest baritone. There is absolutely no point in inviting artists to participate in joint performances when the orchestra is allowed to obscure and dominate completely. Thus the superb air of Varlaam, In the Town of Kazan from Mussorgsky's Boris became an orchestral tour de force with incidental voice.

Otherwise all went well. Young Mr. Pease is just as much the actor as the vocalist, but his shennigans are more akin to the John Charles Thomas type than to those of the opera house. Due to the orchestral raucousness not much could be heard of the arias; his song group included the familiar Tchaikovsky Pilgrim Song, but he was heard to best advantage in an encore, Richard Strauss' Zueignung. The voice is fine and youthful, and is wanting thereby in some musical sophistications; but most important, he has vocal resources which with proper care will develop into an excellent maturity.

Best on the orchestral program—Morton Gould! With an appreciative rapture the orchestra romped through the lush Latin-American Symphonette. This tre-

U. C. ANNOUNCES

SONNY DUNHAM

ARTS B-A-L-L

JANUARY 31st

TICKETS, WED. 16th
U.C. ROTUNDA — ALL FACULTIES

Formal Attire for the "TRINITY CONVERSAT"

LADIES' AND MEN'S COMPLETE OUTFITS AND ACCESSORIES FOR RENT

AT . . . FREEMAN'S FORMAL

571 YONGE STREET
Near Wellesley—KI. 3270
OPEN EVENINGS

256 COLLEGE STREET
At Spadina — KI. 0991
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

U. C. LIT.

SMOKER

- LIT. BUSINESS
- SKITS
- SONGS
- GAGS
- CORN COBS

TUES., JAN. 15th, 8p.m.

JUNIOR COMMON ROOM

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 5 p.m. today.

Debates

The next Hart House debate will be held on Wednesday, 23rd January, at 8 p.m., in the debates room. The resolution will be, "That this House while approving of collective bargaining deplores the attempts of the unions to usurp the rights of management."

RECORD HOUR

Today's program:

Mozart.....Quintet in G Minor
Brahms.....Quartet for Piano and Strings.

PATRONIZE
OUR ADVERTISERS

THE VARSITY

Established 1889
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Student Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Student Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 410
University College
Business Office
Night Office

MT. 6411
MT. 6211
MT. 8745

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor: Peggy Raine, 476
Managing Editor: Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor: Peg Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor: Barbara Hood, B.A.
News Editor: George Fowler, 477
Assistant: Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor: E. Ross McLean, 477
Sports Editor: Reg Herman, 476
Assistant: Brenda Stapella, 476
C.U.E. & Exchange Editor: Polly Moss, 476
Assistant: Barbara Jones, B.A.
Art, Music, and Drama: Dorothy Harter, 476
Editor: Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer: Ralph Jones, 477

Night Editor: Al Cringan.
Assistant: Kay Tipping.

HOCKEY BLUES SWAMP MONTREAL 16-5

Ball's Goaling Is Tops In First League Game

HALDER, KOSICK, NET 4 APIECE

The Varsity Senior Intercollegiate Hockey Blues trounced the University of Montreal, at Montreal, 16-5, on Friday evening, in their first scheduled league game since 1939. The game was highlighted by the sensational goaling of Dick Ball in the Blues' net, who played shut-out hockey for the first two periods, while his team-mates ran up a total of eleven goals.

The Habitants started play with fifteen men, but were forced to whittle their squad down to eleven for the last two periods, due to intercollegiate ruling. The only addition to the Blues' line-up from pre-season exhibition games, was Grant Puttock.

Gordie Ball started the ball rolling for Toronto shortly after one minute's play in the first period, and the Blues ran unchecked for the rest of the stanza to run up a count of 5-0. There was action on the sidelines, after Puttock got beamed by an old hickory which came down out of nowhere, and tangled with Benoit of the Montreal team. The tussle spread through the whole players' bench, and ended when minor penalties were imposed on Puttock and Benoit.

Six goals by Toronto in the second period gave Ball his two-thirds time 11-0 shut-out. In chalking up the imposing score, two players, Gord. Ball and Kosick pulled the hat-trick. Varsity played one man short for two two-minute stretches during the session, Ball

-: Sport in Short -:

Following are the results of intramural basketball and hockey tilts played on Thursday and Friday. The Thursday basketball results are:

Major	Minor
Sr. S.P.S., 31; Jr. U.C. "A", 21. P.H.E. II, 24; Jr. U.C. "B", 17. Sr. Meds., 28; Sr. Vic., 17. Wyc. "A", 20; Emm. "A", 19. Trin. "A", 36; St. Mikes "A", 16.	P.H.E. III, 49; II Meds. "A", 20. II Dents., 46; U.C. VI, 20. U.C. III, 50; III Meds. "A", 7. Knox "B", 24; St. Mikes "E", 10. St. Mikes "C", 16; U.C. "73", 27.

Friday's intramural basketball results:

Major
Jr. S.P.S., 19; Jr. Meds., 15. Vic. III, 26; Trin. "B", 10.

Minor
I Dents., 31; III Meds. "B", 8. Trin. III, 28; Vic. VI, 12. For. "D", 25; II Meds. "B", 17. Wyc. "B", 25; Trin. V, 9.

Intramural hockey results for Thursday

For. "A", 1; U.C. III, 1. Trin. "A", 4; Dents. "A", 1. St. Mikes "A", 2; S.P.S. III, 1.

Intramural hockey results for Friday

Sr. S.P.S., 4; Meds. I, 1. Jr. S.P.S., 8; Vic. II, 3.
--

5-4 Overtime Win To Varsity Juniors

An overtime goal by Paul Pelow salted another game away for the Varsity Juniors in their hockey tilt with Oshawa Friday night at the Varsity Palais de Puck. The 5-4 decision leaves the Blues undefeated in their scheduled games to date.

The winning counter came at the 3:19 mark of the extra session. Immediately after a face-off in the corner, the rubber was knocked in front of the Oshawa net. Several players took a cut at it but Pelow's stick sliced it past Batten, the redmen's cager.

Eugene Wales robbed the homesters of a victory in regulation time. With only a minute remaining in the third canto he steered a pass from McNabby into the Varsity twine.

Until that last minute tally it looked like the Blues had the game sewed up. Midway through the third period, Davidson got a breakaway at his own blue line. Reg Smith of the visitors managed to get close enough to bother him. But Davidson skidded a shot which dribbled past Batten.

And then along came Wales with the upset goal.

It was a see-saw battle all the way. The teams were tied at the end of each period, 2-2 at first, 3-3 at the second, and 4-4 at the third.

Harry Boyd opened the scoring for the Blues at the 3:55 mark of the first frame, with Smith tying the count a few minutes later on a clear breakaway, when Myles of his own team was serving a tripping sentence in the bastille. Two minutes later Clare Morrison pushed Varsity into the lead with a long shot. Myles knotted the count at 2-2 by shoving a loose puck into the net in a mad six man scramble.

Midway through the second period McNabby put the visitors ahead after a concerted Oshawa attack. A minute later, the hard working Boyd evened the count with a shot from an almost impossible angle.

This Boyd was one of the stand-outs of the game. He was very fast on the offensive, tricky, and always in there back-checking.

His wing-mate Hughie Smythe gave an equally spirited puck manipulating

Bisons Lose To Blues In Return Hoop Match

The Varsity Blues defeated the University of Buffalo Saturday night 55-31 on the Bisons' home floor. A crowd of 2,500 saw the visitors break a 3-game winning streak of the much-improved U. of B. squad.

The Buffalo quintet, strengthened by the addition of five men to their roster, scored two quick baskets in the opening minutes of the game. The Blues' 14-8 lead at the end of the first quarter does not give a fair indication of the play, as the Varsity defence was slipshod and poor shooting, and careless play were evident throughout.

Second quarter play was very scrubby, and checking was very close on the part of both teams, with the result that fouls were frequent. As has happened in previous games, the Toronto defence after a first quarter lapse, settled down, and their close checking near the basket forced the opposing forwards to shoot from some distance out. The increased accuracy of the Blue squad brought the score up to 29-14, when the bell sounded to end the second quarter.

Both teams returned to a loose form of play in the third frame, and a definite relaxation in the officiating gave the U. of B. team several foul shots, that were not justified.

Coach Dilworth provided the benchers with some side-line entertainment throughout the period, as he stormed back and forth in front of the players' bench in silent protest against the apparent inefficiency of the officials.

Buffalo's zone defence was noticeably weakened in the fourth quarter, when Turner, diminutive 'S', '4' star was sent out of the game because of the five fouls chalked up against him.

Due to the fine defensive system of display. The Blue's mesh-minder Huzalak continued his Blackstone-like manoeuvres at the goal mouth.

Wales who scored the tying goal for the redmen was twice robbed of other goals. One shot hit the goal post, and another missed an open net by a few inches. McNabby picked up a goal and an assist and sparked his team each time out on the crystal carpet.

The Blues in the final stanza, the American forwards could not get into scoring position, while the Blue forwards neatly capitalized on several break-aways, to lengthen their lead. Three quick baskets in the final minute of play testified to the accuracy of the Toronto forwards, when around the hoop.

Although the Varsity offensive display was not as smooth as it might have been, especially in the passing department, the final score of 55-31 fairly accurately shows the edge that the Blues had over their south-of-the-border rivals.

For the Buffalo squad, Turner, with his great offensive and defensive work, Burke, Bison high-scorer, with 15 points, and fast-moving Gaines were stand-outs.

In the Varsity limelight were Scott, who led his team-mates with 9 points, and Wally Zeaton, who was the most outstanding defensive player on the floor. Murray Thomson and Mayzel also turned in fine performances, although both had trouble in dropping the ball through the hoop at times.

Buffalo:

Forwards: Burke, Gaines, Turner.
Guards: Keller, Hamilton.
Alternates: Hess, Weiss, Grossman, Boron, Fertels, Alper, Fadum.

Toronto:

Forwards: Scott, Mayzel, Thomson.
Guards: Zeaton, Clayton.
Alternates: Cranham, Fountain, Gibson, Glat, Hennessy, Himel, Spry, Wallace.

Convocation . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

ceedings and an obvious sense of high honor as he received the degree.

"I like to think," he said in the rich, warm tones so familiar now, "that the signal honor accorded me as former Commander and a representative of the Allied Expeditionary Force symbolizes the profound respect of the University of Toronto for the unlimited possibilities of co-operation in the field of international endeavor."

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	1:00 Med. II	Jr. S.P.S.	Street, Weedon
	8:00 St. M. B	Trin. B	Lawler, Mosher
	9:00 Emman.	Vic. III	Lawler, Mosher
BASKETBALL
Major	1:00 Dent. A	Pre-Med. A	Mott
	4:00 Sr. Vic.	P.H.E. I	Hamm
	6:30 Jr. U.C. A	Sr. Med.	Hamm
Minor	1:00 U.C. III	IV Mech.	Cochrane
	4:00 IV Elec.	II Med. A	Babcock
	6:30 II Civil	I Med.	Bond
Indoor TRACK	5:00 RELAY	3-Man Teams	2 Laps Each

Formal Attire for the DENTS AT-HOME

Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits AT and Accessories for Rent

FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, KL 0091
571 YONGE STREET, Near WELLESLEY, KL 3370
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES OPEN EVENINGS

FOR THE OUTSTANDING EVENT OF '46

PLAN TO ATTEND:

"The BARRISTER'S BALL"

FEATURING:

U. of T's. SUPERLATIVE COMEDY TEAM

The 2 F's and 2 S's

COMEDY, NOVELTY, MYSTERY, THRILLS (?)

PLACE: The Balmy Beach Canoe Club

TIME: Thursday, January 17th, 1946

PRICE: $1.50 Per Couple

Tickets from Law School Reps. or at Door.

DANCING 9 - 1

Paul Simmons

-- And His Big New Band

School At-Home PRESENTS JERRY WALD

HIS CLARINET AND ORCHESTRA. FEATURING KAY ALLEN AND DICK MERRICK

ELLIS McLINTOCK

HIS TRUMPET AND ORCHESTRA

WITH

BOBBY GIMBY

HIS TRUMPET AND ORCHESTRA

3 BIG BALLROOMS ON THE CONVENTION FLOOR OF THE ROYAL YORK HOTEL

All For Only $3.00 Per Couple

DANCING 9 - 2

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY STORE IN THE ENGINEERING BUILDING
Some Tickets Available to Outside Faculties

DRESS, INFORMAL

Jerry Wald

New and Entrenous

Voice Of 4T6

By Ross McLean

The Graduating Class in Household Science says she hasn't been lonely.

Mary Broadley, one-girl class of 4T6 in the University of Toronto's tiniest course, has been able to take classes throughout her Varsity stay with girls registered in Household Economics.

Absence of Middle School Latin standing directed Miss Broadley into Household Science in 1938. Otherwise she might have wandered into House Ec. and become "one of the mob."

"In a way," she reflects today, "it's nicer to be connected with a college."

Miss Broadley's first year found her among a class of eight, but she took three-year intermission between her second and third years to take a business course, work for a trust company and in a United Church office.

When she returned the registration had dwindled and she alone comprised her year.

Currently negotiating with the Editor of Torontonensis for a berth in the year-book, the Graduating Class intends to proceed en masse to O.C.E.

Art, Music, Drama

(Continued from page 2)

preter in the jocose Eighth. At points the conductor did not seem to follow the master's thematic thought with any ease. I wonder if Debussy forgot his Petite Suite as easily as the listener forgets it?

—D. GORDON ROSS.

HART HOUSE CONCERT

A pin could have been heard to drop in the Great Hall of Hart House last night, where Alberto Guerrero displayed his immaculate execution and infinite musicianship in a varied program of both romantic and classical piano music. The romantic school was represented by Liszt, Chopin, and notably, César Franck, in his beautiful Prelude, Choral and Fugue.

In contrast to these comparatively modern works were four short sonatas by Bach's great contemporary, Domenico Scarlatti, and Mr. Guerrero's own arrangement of three pieces from the harpsichord works of François Couperin. Especially interesting among these was the last piece a Passepaille, in which the pianist simulated very effectively the harpsichord in both manner and tone.

Mr. Guerrero is one of the few Toronto artists who can play ornaments in the strict, classical way in which they should be played. He also hit the happy medium, usually missed, between under-expression, which makes for woodenness and apparent unmusicality, and over-expression, which tends to make the performance trite and mediocre. In all, Mr. Guerrero's concert was very pleasing, both to the critical musician, and to the appreciative layman.

—JOHN GARTSHORE.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS—

WATCH REPAIRS—Expertly done by a student for the students. R. C. Hook, 553 Huron St. MI. 5516.

LOST—Black zippered notebook, containing important notes, in Women's Union cloakroom, Wd., Jan. 9. Reward. Please return notes to Women's Union cloakroom.

LOST — Parker mechanical pencil, green bottom, gold top. Reward. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

LOST—Blue striped Parker pen, between Vic. Library and Wymilwood, Wednesday. Reward. HY. 1227.

MEN'S TAILS—For sale, men's tails, size 38, 5' 7"; 3 pieces. Almost new. Price $35. LL. 2463.

LOST—Key case containing 2 Yale keys and one small key Thursday, on campus. Please return to Hutton House, Maxine Edighoffer.

LOST—Gold signet ring with large oval bloodstone. Possibly lost in or between U.C. and Trinity, or on St. George St., near Knox College. Phone HU. 0796 or contact S.A.C. Office. Reward.

LOST—Dark green striped Sheaffer's vacuumatic pen, morning between Mining Bldg. and Hart House. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

PERSONAL—Maude: Listen to Mickey Lester again. This time he'll read my message with his teeth in. Joe.

Today is MURRAY'S
21st BIRTHDAY

21 Years Ago—a small sandwich shop. Today—16 restaurants which served 7,422,134 meals in 1945.

Murray's
LUNCH LIMITED

What About Politics? Students Too Active?

FALSE IDEAS PREVALENT

The government of the Victoria College debating Parliament went down to defeat last night, conceding victory to the opposition before the final vote was presented to the speaker of the House.

Defending the resolution "that students are suffering from an overdose of politics" were John Meisel and Beryl Rutherford, in opposition to Harry Hodder and Marie Bond.

"The science of state organization," was the definition for politics proffered by the first representative of the government, John Meisel. With this definition as a basis, he decried the false ideas prevalent among students today, which reduce this science to narrow sectarianism.

Thus, he explained, that the exaggerated interest which this type of thinking breeds ultimately leads to unreasonable passion which actually hinders the cause which it is intended to help.

Leader of the opposition Harry Hodder, deplored the lag which has been allowed to develop between scientific and political achievement recently, and declared that students must take an interest in politics while in University or they never would. He concluded that with the study of politics should be intermingled many other phases of life, including among them religion, sociology and even such seemingly unrelated aspects as art, music, and drama.

Beryl Rutherford, of the government, stressed the fact that according to reliable authorities a student is one who digests what he hears by the process of reflection; which process is impeded or stultified by active participation in political strife.

"When every day there is a revolution on the campus, and when the press of The Varsity are thrown into the Humber, then the students of this University will have had an overdose of politics," asserted Marie Bond, speaking for the opposition. She pointed to the comparatively small attendance at last night's Parliament as an example of lack of student interest in politics.

WOMEN'S S.A.C. OFFICE

The Students' Administrative Council and Athletic Office for Women Students is now located in Room 82, University College Basement, East Wing, M1. 8226.

Women students are now requested to use this office for all Council services such as employment, housing, loans, orientation, jewellery and blazers, Torontonensis, Varsity and Handbook space, etc., and for general athletic business.

For the present, the Women's Office will be open daily except Saturday from 9:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. The Secretary, Miss A. E. M. Parkes, will be available at other hours by appointment, M1. 8226.

U. BAND PRACTICE

University of Toronto Band practice tonight at Drill Hall, 119 St. George Street, 5:00 p.m. sharp.

Major Varsities Will Broadcast

Montreal, Jan. 12 (CUP).—Plans have been announced for a series of student broadcasts to originate from major Canadian universities for the benefit of Caribbean and South American listeners.

This international short wave service has been organized following a Christmas broadcast for the CBC by McGill students. Royal Samphay, a former McGill student, will arrange and produce these programs, which are to originate in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto and Manitoba.

Additions to the Canadian Spotlight and Caribbean Spotlight programs are now under production in Montreal. The producer is planning visits to other Canadian camps in the immediate future to undertake similar productions.

According to a report from the McGill Daily, it is hoped that this will lead to an interchange of intellectual and cultural activities between countries.

Amateur Artists Display Talents

Water-colors, oils, pencil, pen—through all mediums beginners, as well as experienced artists, will contribute to the Annual Undergraduate Exhibition of Art.

The Exhibition will be on display the fortnight of Feb. 13-27, and is temporarily awaiting contributions from undergraduate members of the House. All entries should be framed and handed in to the Warden's office by 5:00 p.m., Monday, Feb. 11.

There will be a Visitor's Day on Sunday, Feb. 24, when members may bring their friends to see the exhibition from 2-4 o'clock.

If contributors are unable to get frames for their pictures they should get in touch with the Warden's office to arrange for the use of frames belonging to the House.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1946

No. 61

LECTURES BEGIN TOMORROW AT AJAX

Editorial

Welcome Ajax!

To-day's Varsity goes to 1,500 more students than ever before. To-day we begin circulation of an expanded paper on two camps, 24 miles apart but offspring alike of a parent University that knows no boundaries.

To-day we welcome to the University the 1,500 Engineering students at the Ajax Division. Theirs is no makeshift annex to the central campus; because there is no central campus. There is one University with two camps.

A mere geographical accident prevents us who have been here since fall from welcoming the Ajax engineers personally into our midst. Despite that accident, our welcome is none the less warm.

There is no reason whatever for sympathizing with the students at the Ajax division, separated from us as they are by 24 miles of snow-covered highway, lodged in a reconverted shell-filling plant on which carpenters' hammers are still echoing in frantic efforts to ready room after room for impending deadlines. If anything, they should sympathize with us.

It is we whose traditions are set almost beyond changing. It is we who are cramped for space wherever we turn. It is we, under the grey pall of smoke and remote from the lake and from those windy plains, who are deprived of the chance to make our campus over as we would.

Ajax this week begins a great adventure: the creation of a college town. That exhilarating creative experience can never be ours.

For all that, we are not fossilized. The years of reconstruction lie ahead. Thwarted as we in Toronto are from taking full advantage of those years by the pressure of space and time and by the stultifying effect of the present upon the imagination, we may turn more and more to the Ajax pioneers for example and for guidance.

May they build soundly and well.

New Course Opened by Extension Called Institutional Management

One hundred students have enrolled in Institutional Management—a new course which the Department of University Extension opened yesterday.

The length of the course will normally be two academic years, of eight months each, with at least three months' practical experience and a month's vacation between the two sessions. Students who enroll before the first of February will be required to attend only until the end of April, 1946, in the first session, and will have four months' practical experience and a month's vacation, if desired, before returning to the University in the first week of October, 1946. On successful completion of the second session, a certificate will be awarded each student by the University.

The course will include the following subjects: English Literature and Composition, the History of Ontario, Economics, Accounting, Law, Psychology, Advertising, Operating, Research, and General Science. This course has been established at the request of the Department of Planning and Development and the Travel Bureau of the Government of Ontario in order to provide qualified men and women to operate tourist resorts and summer hotels in the vacation area of the Province. While the course is designed primarily for ex-service personnel, a few civilians may, under special circumstances, be admitted. This course should also qualify men and women for positions in clubs, hotels and hospitals.

Admission requirements will be based on academic standing, maturity, experience, courses taken in the services, and apparent ability to succeed in studies of this kind. Ex-service men and women wishing to take this course should make the necessary arrangements with the Department of Veterans' Affairs, and then write to Dr. W. J. Dunlop, Director of University Extension, Simcoe Hall, for an application form.

word 'dem' is not a demonstrative adjective. "Took it well too," he claims.

Overseas they entertained the front-line troops with their production which they hailed as "just like 'Oklahoma'—only louder!" In gypsy fashion they toured the foxhole circuits rarely hitting an audience that wouldn't provide one fervent "Dirty U.C." from a Schoolman in the audience.

Their Johnny Home Show, aired Friday evenings over CBC, would improve with a faster audience, they say. The present radio audience demands slapstick and hubba-hubba humor. For this reason they have provided the S.A.C. office with free tickets to "pack the house with the good, old student types."

Shuster and Wayne took the show, actually, to get back their CBC-legs, after the wartime intermission. Next fall they plan to launch in a straight cigarette company again in a straight comedy show which they are more suited.

"But," decided Frank, "I gotta run. Gotta meet my wife—at our rendezvous." "Simonize watches," ordered Wayne.

Hammers Still Pounding, Everybody Is Hurrying

MUST LEARN TOIKE OIKE

Amidst the year's first blinding snowstorm, the Great Adventure began yesterday for 1,400 students registered at the Ajax Division. Last night, for the first of many times, the rafters of the Recreation Hall rang with The Blue and White. Today is get-acquainted day. Tomorrow at 9 lectures begin, and the Ajax Project will be securely launched.

Over 1,200 students are now living in residence on the Ajax campus; some 80 per cent of them ex-service personnel. Corridor-choking queues slouched around corners of the Administration Building until late at night, en route to the Bursar's Office and room allotment at the Residence Director's.

U. C. or School Which Will Win?

The much-hailed School-U.C. rivalry, ever-present at athletic encounters, is not absent from the dance floor.

Witness the feverish competition that has sparked the activities of the committees in charge of the School At-Home and the U.C. Arts Ball as the social directors of each faculty sought to "beat the band" of the other.

Although two-weeks separate the two functions neither group has made a move without considering what the other body was contemplating.

Leading the way in booking name bands for campus affairs was the Engineering Society whose Whitley Belshaw triumphantly announced last week that Jerry Wald, crown prince of clarinet, had been engaged.

Today comes from the U.C. I.L.'s Carman Guild the counter announcement that the orchestra of trumpet-famed Sonny Dunham has been secured for the Arts Ball.

Of toss-up importance to the campus is the question: which of the two American bands has the greater name. Acclaimed is the University's return to its pre-war practices in planning dance programs.

Housemasters scurried, tracing lost baggage, directing hungry hordes to the cafeteria. In room after room of the Staff's labyrinthine Arbor Lodge, extempore conferences thrashed out last-minute administrative details.

Throughout the Ajax campus, saws droned and hammers pounded, readying Hart House, the laundry, and other campus corners for immediate use. Hart House at the moment exists as a palatial furnished common-room occupying the centre of a carpenters' shambles of beams and paint. Completion of the remainder within two weeks is expected.

One classroom is called for at 9 a.m. on Thursday's timetable. The Superintendent's staff expect to have it ready by Wednesday midnight.

First mass get-together of the Ajax students was a sing-song last night sponsored by the Engineering Society. Five Society members went down to teach Ajaxians the immortal Toike Oike.

Abetted by S.P.S. Dean C. R. Young, Director J. R. Gilley, and Hart House Superintendent D. L. Emond, the visiting experts raised the roof. Haltingly but with gathering confidence, the thousand Ajaxians responded.

Coffee and sandwiches rounded out the evening. Ajax had begun.

Can You Discuss Art in Chinese? Extension Dept. Can Teach All

In 50 years Toronto's University Extension has expanded from an occasional itinerant professor to a vast number of courses for everybody from prospectors to firemen about everything from Chinese to Accident Prevention.

The University of Toronto was the pioneer in University Extension in Canada as far back as 1894, when professors were sent, on request, to deliver racy lectures in Ontario's backwoods. Since then the objective of the University Extension has been "to do everything that the people of Ontario require so far as it comes within the scope of a University's function," in the words of the President of the University a quarter of a century ago.

The Department was formally organized and Dr. W. J. Dunlop assumed the directorship in 1920, when the Extension amounted to a Teachers' Course and an Evening Class in English Literature. The former had an enrolment of 30 and the latter enrolled 20.

Today there is a peace-time enrolment of 1,000 in the Pass Course for Teachers and the Evening Classes are packed to capacity with 8,000 enrolled in a wide variety of subjects.

The Pass Course for Teachers attracts bankers, doctors, business men and even teachers. During the last 25 years more than 800 have graduated with a B.A. degree that they could not have obtained except through this course.

Other activities of the Extension include an average of 500 local lectures per session, correspondence courses, short courses, and certificate courses in business for ex-servicemen and civilians.

The short courses offer variety. They last from two days to a week, and there seems to be no limit on the number that may be offered. Last spring 125 engineers spent a week studying Soil Mechanics. Several times a year Ontario fire-chiefs take a three-day course in how even hot water puts out a fire.

The evening tutorial classes, which offer no degrees, cover a range of subjects dealing with Heating and Ventilation, Authorship, Russian, Public Speaking, Statistical Quality Control, Advertising, and some 55 other subjects. Knowledge for its own sake!

An interesting sidelight of the University Extension is the fact that Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy are operated by the department because when they were first considered, authorities weren't sure they would be permanent courses and thought they could be more easily discontinued if they were not in one of the Faculties. However, both courses have grown beyond expectations and provide attractive careers for many frustrated young women.

Nuts To You! Says Ex-Varsity Comedy Team

By E. Ross McLean

Humor began as their hobby. To-day it's their profession.

Fourteen years ago an enthusiastic audience of fellow Boy Scouts and parents witnessed the first collaborative effort of Frank Shuster and Johnny Wayne. The same pair are today peddling entertainment each Friday evening on the Johnny Home Show.

Since that early teen-age tryout the Shuster-Wayne blending of wit has produced countless laugh-loaded scripts. The trouping twosome has lasted through Harbord High School, University College Follies, The Varsity and its humor columns, a stint as Wife Preservers on the air, a Buckingham comedy show, the Canadian Army Show and today's network undertaking about Johnny Home.

Canada's ace comedy team admit that they haven't done anything they haven't enjoyed themselves.

Apparently that includes even that Boy Scout skit that brought the intime team together. "It was an adolescent version of the U.C. Follies," Shuster describes it. "That's a little redundant," suggests Wayne.

The comics seem compatible.

"We beat each other over the head but we manage to get along," says Shuster of the relationship.

"We hand each other aspirins," comments Shuster.

The pair arrived on this campus in 1936, wrote music and sketches for the Follies of that year. The following year—bridgehead established—they took over the show and ran it for the subsequent three years.

They had infiltrated into The Varsity staff too and began to manufacture Campus Cats. Under their supervision this column reached an all-time high calibre of humor. In one year Wayne alone wrote 90 cats.

"We did everything on The Varsity," recalls Wayne. Exchange, news, features. But came our final year and someone else became editor. We must have been too frivolous. That's what drove us into radio."

Their first on-air offering presented them as Wife Preservers.

Each morning they cooed household hints to housewives in pseudo-serious style which no listener was ever completely sure was sincere. Wayne's wife was the most amused listener and the least deluded. A graduate in household economics, she richly enjoyed her husband's stabs at alien culinary instruction.

"We didn't even know what 'fold in an egg' meant," confesses Shuster.

"We still don't," admits Wayne.

If they couldn't be relied upon to fold in an egg, neither for that matter could they ever be accused of laying one.

From preserving who knows how many persevering wives, Frankie and Johnny tripped into the Buckingham cigar program where they made their reputation as gag-men on a larger scale.

When the Canadian Army Show began recruiting, Frank Shuster entered at "the amazingly high rank of private—with pay." Soon, he reports, came a deserved promotion to acting blank file.

Johnny at that time was instructing at Camp Borden. Corporal Wayne was kept busy, it seems with his underlings' abuse of grammar.

He didn't hesitate either to correct his co-n.c.o.'s grammatical shortcomings. To those whom he would hear bellowing "Pick up dem feet!" he would point out in a soothing lecture that the

Editorial

School via Screen

"Moving pictures, a brand new branch of higher learning, have invaded the sequestered academic world . . . now courses in movie making are offered by colleges and universities in every part of the United States." This statement from the latest issue of Popular Photography, leaves rather a blank in our minds. The suggestion of movies having any connection with the University of Toronto has so far eluded us. And yet when one looks over the achievement record of the "thin ribbon of celluloid" the following questions become apparent.

"Why haven't the potentialities of movies been recognized by Canadian Universities?"

"Is anything being done by the universities of Canada that indicates that movies are recognized as a field with both artistic and educational possibilities?"

"Will anything be done about the deficiency at present apparent in our syllabus?"

The war record of the movies indicates their potentialities and gives a concrete example of their success in education. The thoroughness with which American soldiers were trained before going into action and the speed with which an army was created out of farmers, salesmen and mechanics both depended to a great extent on training movies. The men learned their work better and quicker and enjoyed it when it was presented in the form of movies. The British Army also used training movies to a large extent and produced films on such a variety of subjects as map reading, gas training and first aid.

In still another way movies were used during the war. They were used to educate the public, to explain shortages, to combat such dangers as inflation. Much work of this kind was and is being done by the National Film Board in Ottawa.

This war has shown much about the possibilities of movies in the fields of both education and, for lack of a better term, social service. Now it seems that those possibilities are being ignored. For a better understanding of those possibilities it might be well to consider what is being done by the universities in the United States and to study the way movies could be used to supplement our present system of university studies.

In the American universities the students receive instruction in the techniques of movie making and they, themselves, produce documentary films on such topics as the black market. Their training prepares them for work such as is done by the National Film Board of Canada and for the production of such advertising movies as are produced by General Electric, the Toronto Transportation Commission and the Canadian Pacific Railway, to mention only a few.

It seems strange that the only places for these films, with their definite educational possibilities, to be shown are clubs such as the Electrical Club. If movies were shown as a part of a university course they would offer certain outstanding advantages over lectures and the projection of slides.

In the preparation of movies some of the most eminent men in the field could be asked to co-operate and thus a much better course could be organized than is given in a series of lectures. Then, too, it would be possible to show things in class that would not be possible during a normal lecture. The engineers could watch a locomotive travelling at high speed, or perhaps the process of extracting metal from an ore. Medical students could watch an operation being performed. And the artist's brush could be called in to show what no human eye can see: the firing of a shell or the action of electrons in the formation of a chemical compound.

There are other uses to which movies could be put by a university, but in any application the fundamental advantages remain. In the fraction of a second during which a scene changes a movie could take the spectator to any part of the infinitesimally small world in which bacteria, atoms, and the theory of the calculus exist.

Cries of ridicule, cries of protest assail us. We can imagine the thoughts that these suggestions arouse in the minds of students and staff alike. "It won't work," says one. Ask the American Army about that. "It would cost too much," cries another. It just depends on the way the process is approached. If several universities were to co-operate, sharing the cost and benefits of educational movies, and the change was made slowly, it might not cost any more than the present system.

The use of movies in education is an unexplored field on this campus. We'd like to hear what the students think about movies as something other than a Monday date.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the Sports staff of The Varsity in Room 37, University College, at 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday. All sports staff writers, and anyone interested in writing sports for The Varsity are urgently asked to attend.

THE VARSITY
The Undergraduate Newspaper

Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 424
University College, M1. 6611
Business Office, M1. 6221
Night Office, M1. 8745

Editor-in-Chief, W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Managing Editor, Peggy Bates, 476
Sports Editor, Wally Reilly, 476
Make-up Editor, Peg Wallace, B.A.
Recruiter Editor, Barbara Hood, B.A.
News Editor, George Forster, 476
Assistant, Blanche Staples, 476
Feature Editor, E. Res McLean, 476
Sports Editor, Bredin Staples, 476
Assistant, Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor, Polly Jones, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange, Barbara Janet, D.A.
Assistant, Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama, Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer, Ralph Jones, 476

Night Editor: Martha Schober.
Assistant: Dorothy Greenberg.

Books

Ethics Of The Slick

"In America," James Farrell writes (in an essay in his recently published book, The League of Frightened Philistines), "a tremendous commercial culture has developed as a kind of substitute for a genuinely popular, a genuinely democratic culture, which would create and thus communicate how the mass of the people live, how they feel about working, loving, enjoying, suffering, and dying." This synthetic commercialized culture may reasonably be termed slick culture. And it constitutes the most powerful enemy of those who hope that men may eventually learn to live complete and reasonably happy lives; that they may die in the full realization of the meaning of their individual and social destinies.

Possibly certain general attributes of this slick culture may be briefly suggested. Its purely technical aspects are frequently on a fairly high level; for young artists with real potential abilities are continually being tempted into this field by the easier life and the greater financial returns which it offers; and the very simplification of content allows greater emphasis on technique. (Notice, for example, the movies, where brilliant technical devices are frequently introduced and where original and intelligent ideas are only occasionally allowed.) The immediate end of all slick culture is entertainment, for it is assumed that this leads directly to the all-important final end—money.

Explicit in slick culture is the drastic simplification of social and individual problems, a simplification which is generally based on extremely questionable interpretations of such abstractions as "the American (read also Canadian) Dream," "Individual Enterprise," and even (for apparently nothing is sacred) "Democracy." Life is filled with surprise-endings; the poor must remember that poverty also has its

The Champus Cat regrets that he cannot meet his classes to-day.

On a visit to Ajax late yesterday afternoon, he wandered into an unconverted section of the shell-filling plant, inadvertently stepped on a concealed push-button, and after 20 whirring minutes emerged loaded, capped, and with detonator attached.

Decontamination squads are being recruited.

compensations; and if nothing lasting is ever added to the ethical and social aspects of life, at least the mores of slick culture require from its followers neither intensity nor integrity.

Recently implicit in this culture is a subtle attempt to head off honest and intelligent examination of fundamental problems by creating in readers, listeners and watchers a sense of vicarious participation in life. In one of his essays Farrell emphasizes this new trend, quoting speeches of those Hollywood tycoons who are apparently mainly responsible for the idea. They are already suggesting to those artists and intellectuals who, like Farrell, have attempted to maintain their integrity by sacrificing some potential financial returns, that Hollywood's new crusade be joined. But these producers insist that their fundamental theory must be adopted: that the social comments of slick culture must be sweetened by entertainment; and that, incidentally, financial returns can therefore be continued at their present level. It may be assumed that other branches of the popular culture industry will be eager to offer similar terms.

—Robert Weaver.

Art, Music and Drama

Records in Review

At the moment, the superior sound equipment which I normally use for listening to records which are to be reviewed in this column is unavailable. The records were listened to on a rather poor machine and consequently, the comments on the recorded sound are not as complete as they might be.

The albums ostensibly released in December and January have not yet arrived, but the remainder of Victor's November records are here. Of these, the Schumann Piano Concerto, played by Claudio Arrau and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under Karl Kreuger, is the only one which should replace the old recording. This is partly because the older performance is very poorly recorded with an entirely inadequate orchestral part. On the other hand, the sound of the new records is clear and strident even on a poor machine. Arrau's playing of the concerto, however, is replete with the same effeminacy that marked his playing here recently. Unlike the rest of the piece, the last movement, as recorded, is both virile and vigorous and is a definite improvement over previous recordings.

The other album which has arrived is Strauss' Death and Transfiguration. It is adequately recorded by the New York City Symphony but contains many examples of Stokowski's genius falsification by distorting tempo.

The new releases include several single discs. The most unusual of these is a performance of excerpts from Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf by the violinist Richard Odnoposoff. While we do not adopt a puritan view with regard to transcriptions, we do object to lifting pieces from mediums to which they are perfectly suited and adapting them to instruments on which they sound utterly incongruous. Such association with the "other ranks." He wouldn't have been offended when I introduced to them. In the moving pictures, The True Glory, he tells who fought the war for us. It was the enlisted man.

Again, it may be noticed that the ranking service-student of each group was to be presented. The only exception is Victoria. So again let us give "Orchids" to the college across the park.

—K. FITZGERALD LT.
I MEDS.

Correspondence

Orchids To Vic

The Editor, The Varsity,

Dear Sir:

"Orchids" are in order for Victoria College. They alone, of all the faculties and colleges across the campus pulled a "wing-ding" in their choice of the serviceman to be presented to "Ike."

In the recent issue of The Varsity, there was published the list of names of those "selected to lunch with the General." Who had the brainstorm of nominating 90% officers and then selecting only one—I say again—one private—over! Evidently the powers-that-be forgot that this was the enlisted man's war.

Decorations were also noticed in the list. But what about "matelots" who chipped ice off the guns in zero weather, the corporal who sat up all night in a water-filled slit-trench, and the I.A.C. armoured who loaded the air-planes. We have service types from paratroopers to Radar mechanics on the campus.

General "Ike" is renowned for his

LIGHT UP AND Relax

Yes sir, there's nothing like a Sweet Cap to put you in a relaxed mood when the 'cram' session's over!

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction—anywhere . . . anytime! And when you tune in "LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES
STATION CKEY-CJBC
9:30 p.m. Every Thursday Night

Is it true that South Americans are upside down?

No, but it is very hot there in winter.

HOT Is also the Dancing of Conchita Triana

Biggest Attraction of the Year

TONIGHT 8 p.m. Women's Union

ALSO: ANNE ALCROFT AND HER GUITAR

DANCING REFRESHMENTS

University of Toronto SPANISH Club

• REMEMBER •

CLOSED MEETING OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO TO ELECT OFFICERS FOR 1946

Progressive-Conservative Club

WOMEN'S UNION, 8 P.M., TUESDAY, JAN. 15TH

Refreshments will be served

J. OLIVER BUSWELL, Jr.

President of National Bible Institute, New York

Will discuss in an Open Forum

"A Christian Looks at the U. N. O."

at 8:00 P.M. in WYCLIFFE LIBRARY

Saturday, January 19th, 1946

Sponsored by the V.C.F.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 9 p.m. today.

Chess Club

The University of Toronto Chess Club has now been included in the Hart House system of committees and has its quarters in Room C. The members of the committee are: Prof. C. F. Morrison, Chairman; J. B. Bickert, Vice-Chairman; J. W. Storey, House Committee representative; R. Orlando, President; M. Dobier; R. F. Rodgers; and J. Paterson-Smyth, Secretary.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

The Students' Choice: BLOOR TAXI LIMITED

Sub-station at HARBORD and ST. GEORGE

RA. 5151

Switchboard Connecting all branches

For Quick Service — For Efficiency CALL US!

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

All Grades Join in Singsongs Heartily As Hart House Male Chorus Carries On EVERY VOICE WELCOME

By G. E. BETTSON

Led by genial, frank, Ross Workman, an old Skuleman, lusty males sing not for their suppers, but after lunch on Tuesday afternoons from 1:30 p.m. to 1:55 p.m. in the common room, East Wing of Hart House.

Freshmen, sophs and profs find a common enjoyment in singing the grand old songs and ballads. Warden Bickersteth has been an enthusiastic singer since way back when. . . . Lads who would be too shy to sing break down in the dark and sing with a will—Men of Harlech, Annie Laurie, etc.

Conductor Ross Workman has his own dynamic style. With head thrown back and arched back, his upraised arm points the beats on the curtain and keeps the boys together. He modestly disclaims any pretensions to be a musician. He just loves music and singing and has been associated with the singsongs since the first year after their inception, which was about 1923, he thinks. The singsongs used to be held in the drafting room of the School of Science. Some of the slides still used were made then. Each year a few are added to the repertory. At one time The Varsity used to print the songs to be sung.

Year after year, with changing personnel, Hart House's male chorus carries on, as individualistic in their own way as Jaroff and the Don Cosacks. Some of the lads are now singing as their fathers did before them. All bathroom tenors, would be Crosby's, or Sinatras are welcome. The more the merrier. So watch your Varsity for the next singsong.

Whence Toike?

Wherever Engineers are found, their yell is around.

Be is at a football match, an election parade downtown, a coast-to-coast broadcast of their At-Home or a Vic class party, there is the yell.

But where the yell came from, most people haven't the slightest idea.

A supreme effort was made, in 1935, to track it down. The faculty member conducting the search finally received one version in a letter from Walter H. Boyd, then of the Dominion Department of Mines. In part it read:

"I remember quite well the birth of the Skule 'Yell'—Toike Oike. It came about in this way: A group of us, Shovel, Burnside, Carter, Piper, thought that the School should have a catchy yell that could be used on all occasions such as football matches, etc., and a triumphant yell of victory when we succeeded in stealing the bicycle racks from the Arts Building and for other such stirring occasions."

Apparently each one of the group above mentioned was to forget about books, slide-rules, results, and formulae, and was to concentrate all mental effort on the faint-hearted, spur the tired to victory, and ring out as a triumphant battle-cry.

In due time the fruits of each one's labors were examined. Each yell was practiced; each yell was judged.

The choice was Piper's "Toike Oike." Apparently the words were coined by the yell's author especially for that purpose.

The other part, starting with "We are! We are . . ." and stretching on down to all those naughty words was imported from some unknown engineering campus, and together the two came down to the present day after echoing across Canada and around the world since the turn of the century.

NEW FLAG? Reply Is "Yes"

Kingston, Jan. 12 (CUP).—A large majority of the students at Queen's University favor the adoption of a distinctive Canadian flag containing the Union Jack, according to a survey with regard to the Canadian flag conducted by the Queen's Journal Institute of Public Opinion.

The question presented to the students was, "In your opinion should Canada have a distinctive flag?" Affirmative votes numbered 71 per cent, negative votes 29 per cent.

Inclusion of the Union Jack in any distinctive flag was desired by 62 per cent of the students.

EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

Be sure to get the Questionnaire at your Faculty office and Engineering Society. Read it carefully; fill it out and place in ballot box outside your office.

Four Name Bands Play for School Hallman's Band the New Addition

Whitey Belshaw, convener of the School-At-Home, announced last night that the services of Art Hallman and his orchestra will be added to the program of three big bands already scheduled. This last minute addition was necessitated by the large volume of ticket sales which indicated that all three of the ball rooms at the Royal York Hotel Convention floor would be filled.

It was announced that there are still a few tickets available to all students at the Engineering Society Store.

Four Orchestras Will Entertain At Royal York

Tickets are still available for the annual School-at-Home this Wednesday night at the Royal York Hotel, an interview with Whitey Belshaw revealed. The Ajax tickets are being sold by Jim Hayman and several other laboratory demonstrators, and possibly by the Engineering Society store.

Belshaw stated that he wanted the lads to "get away to a good start in their social life, as well as in their studies and the At-Home is a perfect opportunity.

Transportation for Ajax students can be arranged by contacting the Engineering Society (at Ajax) regarding numbers requiring transportation and other particulars.

Jerry Wald and his orchestra, direct from the Ice Terrace of the Hotel New Yorker, New York, will be handling a major part of the night's music, with the bands of Ellis McLintock, Bob Gimby, and possibly Art Hallman playing in the other ballrooms. The entire convention floor of the Royal York Hotel has been taken for the expected 1,500 couples. By popular vote, dress will be informal, and dancing will be from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m.

Warbles with Wald.

"VARSITY" DELIVERY

Copies of this and succeeding issues of The Varsity, the undergraduate daily, are ready for distribution at 5 p.m. daily in the main lounge, Hart House, and in the Cafeteria. The Ajax edition of The Varsity contains six pages. Be sure to get both sections.

STUDENTS' HANDBOOK

A hundred-page blue-covered handbook containing all essential information for Ajax students, including a map of the grounds, information on the services provided by the various organizations, athletic data, and a diary section, has been prepared for free distribution to all Ajax students by the Students' Administrative Council.

Copies from J. B. Essery, S.A.C. Office, Administrative Building. Bring your registration card.

Ike: "I Assure You--I Have"

The world's greatest warrior had become rightfully its most devout salesman of peace.

On Saturday last this man of unaffected simplicity and humility paid his first visit to Toronto and received from the University of Toronto the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. To the Convocation Hall audience of students and faculty members General Dwight David Eisenhower appeared as a legend in the flesh.

The legend had a human side.

The sting of humiliation had been salved and soothed.

That the canary-raising tank general had not heard of the University of Toronto no longer mattered. His boss had.

With that impish five-star smile that is his trademark of geniality, General Dwight D. Eisenhower told Saturday's luncheon party in Hart House:

"Again I express my gratitude for the great distinction awarded me by this University which, I assure you, I have heard about before!"

"I thank you," beamed Dr. Sidney Smith. "Particularly for that last sentence so fittingly expressed."

Generally speaking, the case for recognition of the University of Toronto was probably closed.

What do you say, err, what's your name? Uh-huh—Montgomery!

* * *

"If you know anything about the mathematics of meeting people," observed Squadron Leader Donald A. MacFadyen, D.S.O., D.F.C., and Bar, who was U.C.'s veteran representative among the ten ex-service students to meet the General before the luncheon, "then you'll know that the fourth in line always gets shaken hands with."

MacFadyen was fourth in line.

Squadron Leader Bob Aldwinckle, Rhodes Scholarship winner and Engineering representative, was luckier. At the head of the line, Aldwinckle was asked how long he had been in the European theatre. Nursing Sister M. G. Kennedy (No. 3) was urged to give the General's best regards to the other members of her service on the campus.

Six-footer Captain C. S. Ross confessed surprise at discovering himself taller than his former supreme commander.

"What unit?" the General asked him. "Twenty-ninth Canadian Armored Reconnaissance," Captain Ross, now a medical student, replied.

"We gave you boys a lot of work over there," the General remarked. Ross agreed "Glad to see you're back and looking so well," the General commented as he moved on to the next introduction.

* * *

In order to permit the newsreel cameras to record a portion of the Convocation address of General Dwight Eisenhower, Chancellor Cody requested the capacity audience to remain seated after convocation had been dismissed.

"Convocatio demissa est," Canon Cody intoned.

"Now," he added, "stay where you are!"

"I can assure you, ladies and gentlemen," said the General as he stepped to the rostrum to re-deliver three excerpts from his speech, "this is not a try-out for Hollywood."

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO PRESS

BIDS YOU

WELCOME TO AJAX

WHERE YOU MAY PURCHASE ALL

TEXT and REFERENCE BOOKS

AND INVITES YOU TO VISIT

THE BOOK DEPARTMENT

CONVENIENTLY LOCATED IN ROOM 4 - BUILDING 313-B

Gilley, Wright Head Ajax

Well-Known S.P.S. Alumni Direct New Ajax Division

Long and well-trained for their new posts at Ajax are the two men who serve as Director of the Ajax Division and Director of Studies for the Division—J. Roy Gilley, B.A.Sc., and Professor W. J. T. Wright, B.A.Sc., B.A., M.B.E.

Mr. Gilley, who graduated from the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering of the University of Toronto in 1921, was born in British Columbia and received his elementary and secondary education there. One year after entering the University of Toronto he received his T for soccer.

His university course was interrupted by overseas service from 1916 to 1919 with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, first with the infantry and then with the machine gun corps and by hospitalization for war disabilities.

Mr. Gilley is well known to students of the University as Comptroller of Hart House since 1932 and Acting Warden for the last five years.

Born in Clinton, Ont., Professor W. J. T. Wright was brought to Toronto at an early age when his father became professor of Architecture at this University. He was educated in Lansdowne Public School, Harbord Collegiate and the University of Toronto. After obtaining the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science (with honors), he proceeded, while holding the position of Professor of Engineering Drawing, to work for a B.A. in the evenings, receiving his Arts degree a few years ago.

Professor Wright served overseas from 1914 to 1918 in command of a battery and later, in command of railway troops. He was awarded the M.B.E. for distinguished service.

Professor Wright has had professional experience as an Engineer in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Ontario. He is a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada; of the Ontario Association of Professional Engineers; and of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education.

Rapid Growth of S.P.S. Nearly Doubled Again

Almost half the graduate engineers of the Dominion of Canada are alumni of the University of Toronto. But Canada alone is not the home of Varsity-educated engineers; every country in the civilized world finds graduates of the University of Toronto within its borders.

Beginning with the first graduate from the School of Practical Science in 1881, the ranks of Schoolmen have swelled to include approximately 6,500, of whom 5,000 are living.

Engineers from the University of Toronto permeate the life and activities of this whole country. From the time Canadians leave their beds in the morning until they turn off the light at night, they are continually coming in contact with the works of their hands and their intellects.

From tap waters to street cars, from dishes to power plants, from metal money to newspapers, from the buildings along the streets, the streets themselves, railways and canals to planes overhead, one continually comes in contact with their deeds and realizes to what extent they have become so much a part of our daily lives.

Many of the recent graduates placed themselves at the service of their country, and are now in, or just out of, uniform. Although no figures are yet available for the last war, World War I saw 144 die of the 640 who served.

Many of the alumni have added to the world's knowledge by either going on the staffs of various technical schools and engineering colleges or by going into fields of research and invention.

To list the graduates who deserve mention for conspicuous contributions to human welfare and happiness in whatever field they found themselves would require much more space than is available.

Not only have engineering graduates from this university won recognition among laymen, but also among their contemporaries and colleagues. Of the 52 presidents of the Engineering Institute of Canada, 11 of the 21 college graduates were alumni of the University of Toronto, Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

In almost every field of human endeavor engineers have found their places, and it is the fond dream of those who guide the destinies of Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering that its graduates will continue to help mould and fashion Canada into one of the truly great nations of the future.

This is the tradition into which Ajax division fits—this is the manner in which it is expected that Ajax will carry on.

Engineering Society Plans Much For Ajax

A complete store with $40,000 worth of equipment will be merely one of the activities of the Engineering Society at Ajax. The society plans to have a branch at Ajax which will be very much like the society in Toronto.

"There will be regular meetings of the society at Ajax, at which prominent speakers will describe various aspects of engineering," explains M. D. McCullough, President of the Engineering Society. "Speakers for these meetings will be obtained through the auspices of the various clubs that form the society under the auspices of the Engineering Institute of Canada."

The store which will be run by the society will supply the students with the multitude of things that only engineers use. Being run like the store in the school building in Toronto, it will sell drafting supplies, ink and refills, while right next door a branch of the University of Toronto Press will carry a stock of the necessary text books.

The Ajax branch of the society will hold elections for officers toward the end of this month, and it is in these elections that the first differences from the Toronto society will be noticed. There will be none of the clubs at Ajax such as there are in Toronto, no Electrical Club, no Civil Club, and no Debates Club. These clubs will not be started until the second year of studies. On the other hand, there will be house executives consisting of about six members acting as a part of the Engineering Society, which will act in co-operation with Hart House and the Athletic Association.

The elections for the house executives will take place first, and shortly after, on Jan. 30, the executive officers: President, first and second vice-presidents, secretary-treasurer, and athletic representative will be elected by student vote. These officers and the house chairman will function as the Engineering Society Executive.

This executive will act as closely as possible in co-operation with the main executive in Toronto. To help in this objective the Ajax executive will make several trips to Engineering Society meetings in Toronto, while various members of the Toronto executive will make trips to Ajax. The first of the visits from the Toronto executive will be made just before the elections, when the members of the Toronto society will explain to the Ajax students the aims of the Engineering Society.

With 1,800 students to serve, the Engineering Society is in for a tough assignment. The students are asked to help as much as possible, and to not make a rush on the store. There are only two girls operating it, and it is a small store.

Later in the year the Literary Issue of the Toke Olive will be distributed, and still later the Year Book and Transactions, giving a review of the year's activities, but for the present the students are asked to help get "the ball rolling."

Hail Delivery Mail On Time! What Is Doing? Write to the Ed.

Come hail, snow, or thunderclap the mail will come to Ajax, according to the plans of postmaster J. Shortreed. The post office at Pickering will be the clearing house between Ajax and points beyond, and carrier service will bridge the three-mile gap.

Incoming mail will be sorted and ready for delivery at the Ajax Post Office by 11 a.m. daily, having left Pickering by carrier at 8.30.

An Ajax luxury is residence delivery. Unregistered mail addressed to students in residence will be delivered to each house before noon.

Outgoing mail leaves once daily, at 5.20 p.m. "Office mail," the postmaster warns, "must be in the Post Office by 5 p.m., and individual letters might catch the mail if posted before 5.15 p.m."

"The Varsity is the sole unifying force on a sadly sprawling campus," said the Editor-in-Chief in an early editorial.

Not unlike Tokyo and Times Square, miles separate the miles separate the main campus from the suburban addition but still—Toronto wants to know what is happening in Ajax! It is imperative that they know what is happening.

All Ajax news, sports and feature coverage must be done at Ajax, by Ajax. The Varsity needs reporters everywhere at all times. Two of the six pages are for you, must be filled by you.

Contact, by word or note, with Mr. J. B. Essery of the Student's Administrative Council, Administrative Building, Ajax, will put you in touch with The Varsity's talent-scouts.

SIX PAGES TODAY

CALLING ALL CUBS!!

The Engineering student who doubles as reporter for The Varsity is gathering training of inestimable value for the future. By covering Ajax assignments, writing his news, sports or feature report for the enlarged six-page edition of the University of Toronto's long established undergraduate newspaper, the Schoolman at Ajax is equipping himself with an extra talent.

Students interested in the sideline vocation of journalism are requested to contact the offices of the Students' Administrative Council.

Do You Need Advice? Ask New Committee

As soon as it became apparent that the end of the War was in sight and that large numbers of Ex-Service students would likely attend the University of Toronto, the Board of Governors gave authority for the formation of the University Advisory Committee on Ex-Service Students. This committee appointed a group of twenty associates, four student representatives and two full time secretaries to form the University Advisory Bureau for Ex-Service Students. The associates have all seen service in World War II and are members of the University staff.

The Bureau's head office is at 67 St. George Street, Toronto, and the Ajax Office is at present in York Hall, Building 2001. As soon as Hart House Ajax is ready for use the Bureau's Ajax Office will be located there. The secretary at Ajax is Miss Jean Martin.

The Bureau provides many services for Ex-Service students. It maintains a close liaison with D.V.A. and with the three armed services. Because of this it has been possible to aid students in hastening of overdue D.V.A. monthly cheques and service back pay and in clearing up other outstanding matters with these services.

The Bureau has attempted to keep students up to date on changes and modifications in D.V.A. regulations and benefits, and to interpret for them any regulations regarding which they have doubt.

Without attempting to duplicate any of the existing services, it provides a central agency where they find prompt direction, where appropriate by appointment, to the proper place that the information or assistance they require in various matters is available.

At any time there is at the Bureau, or on ready call, an experienced, capable and friendly advisor who is available to discuss in strictest confidence any matter of a vocational, financial or personal nature.

The desire of the Bureau is to be of such service to the student that he may more fully enjoy and contribute to the University life. It is a service for you. You are invited to use it and to make suggestions as to how it may serve you more fully.

Varsity Engineering Alumni Spread All Over The World

By SHIRLEY NOTRUM

Meet "Bill" Clark, doorguard at the Royal Ontario Museum!

Perhaps the introduction is unnecessary since so many students in the university are already acquainted with the short little Englishman with the bushy white moustache and the twinkling eyes. However, Mr. Clark is the type of man you would like to meet again and again—in a revolving door, say. He is the kind of man you would like to have as a grandfather—and 12 lucky kids have!

Bill was born in London, England, from whence he immediately enlisted in the 127th Railroad Troops in World War I—he has the ribbons on his uniform to prove it! After the war he came to America and was employed in Chicago, New York, and finally Toronto at the Royal Ontario Museum, where he has now served a total of 22 years. Mr. Clark was chosen from the entire museum staff 20 years ago as the best person to "man the gates," and he has done so ever since, kindly but efficiently.

Although the drafty doorway is bad for his chest, Mr. Clark loves his job, and has never once been bored, at least for longer than two or three years. "Yes, indeed," phil-osophized Mr. Clark, "never an idle decade."

He says he loves to meet new people and greet the "regulars," as they enter his gates, and he is delighted over and over again to be waved and nodded at in the streets by people who remember his too charming manner for a long time after visiting the museum. It is not irregular for over a thousand people to enter the museum in one morning.

Mr. Clark is proud of his five married daughters and 12 grandchildren. Perhaps his own personal experiences account for the kindly but firm manner with which he beats up visiting public school brats.

He reads widely and calls himself "a man of facts." His own library, of which he is very proud, contains 400 books, mostly dictionaries.

Mr. Clark likes to see the return of the servicemen to his doorstep. He says that university students are "outstandingly intelligent, very bright and cheery, and a great joy to my declining years," or words to that effect. And we are sure that the students themselves would be the first to return the compliment.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Above a trio of zealous spare-time journalists huddle over one aspect of the production of THE VARSITY—make-up.

Welcome To Ajax Students

HOTEL GENOSHA

Oshawa

SKATE ON THREE RINKS

Ajax Promises To Be Sportsmen's Paradise

Ajax sports enthusiasts need have no fear that there will be a lack of sports activities at Ajax, according to Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics for the University. In discussing the well rounded-out athletic program, "Steve" pointed out that students attending the latest University addition will be given every opportunity and encouragement to participate in the Queen's Park sporting agenda. Although, for practical reasons, they will not be able to enter into the T.A. Reed Trophy race, Ajax teams, representing every sport, will be represented in championship play-offs.

Students will find nothing lacking in the way of muscle-building activities, as the Athletic Office has provided the best in personnel, equipment, and facilities, in this the latest of institutions of higher learning (learning, that is, son).

Supervisor of Athletics, will be F. E. Horton, an ex-R.C.A.F. man, with 4½ years service to his credit. While in the Air Force, Mr. Horton was attached to the P. T. branch, and there gained much valuable experience and training.

The Ajax sports mentor served in this capacity at Trenton, was in charge of physical training for No. 2 Training Command, and then moved on to R.C.A.F. Headquarters in Ottawa, where he was in charge of P.T. and Recreation for all Air Force personnel in Canada.

Jim Follwell has been named as assistant to Mr. Horton. While in the Air Force, Jim spent 20 months in Iceland, assisting the Y.M.C.A. in their athletic program. Having spent the first semester garnering experience via the Hart House Athletic Offices, Jim brings with him a fund of knowledge concerning student athletics, which he hopes to apply in his new hunting grounds.

Another ex-R.C.A.F. man, Tom Davey forms the third part of the Ajax Athletic triumvirate. Tom gained his experience in the realm of body-build-

-: Sport in Short -:

HOCKEY
St. Mikes B...	5	Trin. B	...
Emman.	3	Vic. III	0
BASKETBALL
Major:
Pre-Med. A...	28	Dent. A	...
Minor:
U.C. III	19	IV Mech	18
II Med. A	22	IV Elect	10
13II Civil	29	I Med.	7

ing, from his 4½ year stint as P.T.I., and from his work with Warren Stevens in a Convalescent Base Hospital.

Centre of all sports activities will be the huge Recreation Hall. Students will here find complete facilities for participation in basketball, volley ball and bowling.

The Change House, situated nearby, will be the focal point for boxing, wrestling, and gymnastics, as well as containing locker room, and shower facilities. Complete equipment for all these sports is available for participating students. Inter-year bowling games will be staged on the two excellent bowling alleys situated in the Rec. Hall.

And what about hockey rinks, someone asks. The answer is three. Yes, there are three full-size rinks, on the Ajax campus. For those who like their skating (and hockey) under the lights (and who doesn't), two of the rinks have been equipped with flood-lighting. So that hockey games and practices will not interfere with the gentler art of just plain skating, general skating areas have been set aside in all three rinks. Hockey teams on the larger campus are looking forward to some keen competition from Ajax pucksters in the not too distant future.

In adding the final touch to their program, the Athletic Office intends to run ski buses to Dagmar, week-end weather conditions permitting.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

This being the first edition of The Varsity on our extended campus, we wish to formally welcome all the Ajax lads to our institution. The function of the S.O.S. is to comment on sports, seriously, and also with a slice of wit. Therefore, we personally welcome all correspondence, whatever its nature, and we especially solicit your interest, and your co-operation.

This campus-a-way-from-the-campus could very easily develop into two separate bodies. Links must be found whereby the two may be fused as far as possible. One of these links, we feel, will be athletic competition.

The distance between the two institutions makes commuting difficult, but not at all impossible. Arrangements will be made for the maximum intercampus sport competition.

Varsity spirit and morale can find a great outlet in athletic rivalry. Moreover, our intercollegiate teams will merit our interest and our pride. All the squads are playing high quality games in this first year of competition since before the war.

And Why Sports?

The matter of morale in the field of sport brings us to another problem which is prevalent here, and may possibly arise at Ajax. There seems to be an unhealthy attitude towards activities other than scholastic on the campus. "Studies are not everything" may appear trite to many, but is actually very true. The mean is a goal in life too often neglected. This is as true in studies as in anything else.

The body and general health of the individual should never be neglected at any time. Recognition of this fact is seen in the extensive athletic program divided by the University for its students. No faculty expects a man to study his books all his active day. Some of our best athletes, combined with scholarship, have been drawn from the courses with the heaviest time tables.

And this brings us back to our previous assertion. A strong college spirit cannot possibly prevail where the pursuit of learning is the end all be all of endeavour. Morale must exist in a University if that University is to survive, and competitive sports is an integral part by which that morale can be maintained.

Orchids to Blues

In a lighter vein, we wish to congratulate our three Blue teams for an exceptionally successful week-end. Particularly the Senior Hockey squad and Coach Ace Bailey deserve special mention in their first scheduled game of this season.

The Trophy Again

This evening the Reed Trophy was again discussed at the intramural meeting. The object of this trophy is to encourage interfaculty sport activity in all fields of athletic endeavour. Therefore, the amount of effort put forth by a faculty should be the standard of its success. Consequently, changes in faculty enrolment of necessity gives rise to a review of the weighting system. We only hope that the forthcoming realignment proves just and equitable.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Meetings

With the strains of a melodious Sibelius concerto still happily singing in our memory, we awake to the realization that the A. M. & D. department takes care of music meetings, and this page looks after athletics along with advertising. The women's Athletic Directorate gathered together of late, in the noble halls of Trinity. In point form, here are the most important of their business transactions:

... vote of thanks passed to the men's Athletic Directorate for co-operation re: Hart House, Varsity Arena and finances.

... if entries into the hockey league increase, due to the necessity of playing games out of doors, P.H.E. will be confined to two teams rather than three.

... students may play hockey or volleyball and still try out for intercollegiate basketball.

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	4:00	Med. III	SPS. IV	Farrell, Horkins
BASKETBALL
Major	1:00	Med. Ser. A	SPS. IV	Duncan
	4:00	Sr. U.C.	Jr. Vic.	McPhedran
	6:30	For. A	Pharm. A	Cheifetz
Minor	1:00	IV Metal.	Pre-Med. B	Charendoff
	4:00	IV Chem.	P.H.E. IV	Cheifetz
	5:00	IV Civil	Med. Ser. B	Cheifetz
	6:00	III Mech.	U.C. VI	Ewins
	7:00	Trin. IV	For. E	Ewins
Indoor TRACK	5:00	RELAY:	3-Man Teams	2 Laps Each

WOMEN'S HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Week of January 14

Tues., Jan. 15	1:00 - 2:00	P.H.E. I vs. Vic. I	Ball
Wed., Jan. 16	1:00 - 2:00	Vic. II vs. U.C. II	Gibson
Thurs., Jan. 17	12:00 - 1:00	Meds. vs. St. Mikes	Fullerton

All games are at Varsity Arena.

MODERN BALLROOM DANCING
FROM FOX-TROT AND WALTZ TO JIVE, RHUMBA AND TANGO.
You get them all in our popular DANCE CLASSES Now forming.
Phone Now For Prices.
Da Costa
STUDIOS OF DANCING
1139 Bay Street, Corner Charles
MT. 3824

MOORE'S LUNCH
Cor. Huron and Harbord
Good Meals at Low Prices

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.
Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service
321 BLC 7 ST. W. Phone MT. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

3--BIG BANDS--3

SONNY DUNHAM

GREAT AMERICAN TRUMPET AND TROMBONE STYLIST
AND HIS ORCHESTRA

ART
• HALLMAN

BOBBY • GIMBY

THURSDAY, JAN. 31st

AT THE

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

ARTS BALL

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

CONVENTION FLOOR

INFORMAL

$3.00 PER COUPLE

Tickets Tomorrow in U.C. Rotunda---All Faculties

Give All Vets Free Dental Care Let D.V.A. Take Care of Any Bills

All veterans who have to get immediate dental care may go to any dentist and then send the bill to the D.V.A. Dental Authority, AD. 5611, Local 13. This was announced yesterday by the harassed staff of the University Health Service who have been lately swamped with calls demanding information.

Veterans discharged after September 1945 have not been allowed to choose their dentist because of the large number of men overcharging available facilities. They will be advised where to go and cannot normally receive treatment until their applications have been approved.

All ex-service students who have not completed this task are asked to get in touch with the D.V.A. Dental Authority, in order to make sure whether their applications have been sent from Ottawa. If not, they will be attended to promptly.

AVUKAH
STUDENT ZIONIST ORGANIZATION

The next meeting will be a Symposium and Discussion on:
THE VIEWPOINTS AND PLATFORMS OF THE POLITICAL PARTIES IN THE ZIONIST MOVEMENT

ON
WEDNESDAY, Jan. 16th, 8:15 p.m.
AT WYMLWOOD

smoke the mild
cigarette

Care of Yourself and Be Healthy, Is Statement of Dr. E. Stanley Ryerson

"How to preserve the Youth, Strength, and Beauty of the Body and Senses and all the Faculties of both Body and Mind," is the title of a book by Roger Bacon, written over 600 years ago. To tell you know this can be achieved is the object of three lectures to be given by Dr. E. Stanley Ryerson, assistant Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and Director of the School of Physical and Health Education. As part of a series of lectures not given in any course at this University, and open to the whole campus, Dr. Ryerson will explain how to live so as to maintain personal health, if it is good, and how to promote it if it is poor.

The first lecture will be held in Room 138, the North Lecture Room of the Medical Building, on Tuesday, Jan. 15, at 5:10 p.m. The other two lectures will be on the following Tuesdays, same place, same time.

"Health only exists in living things," said Dr. Ryerson, "and all living things are made up of cells. These tiny cells, of which we have over 50 kinds, must be of good quality and perform the four main functions common to all living organisms. They must be capable of moving or we would have no more life than a marble statue. Secondly, they must be capable of taking food in to live. Thirdly, they must have the power of reproduction and growth," as Dr. Ryerson will illustrate by a movie at his lecture. "Lastly, they must have the capacity to respond to stimuli. That is why we see, hear, and are aware of our environment."

Our health depends on the maintenance of the quality of our structures and the degree of efficiency with which they perform their functions in harmony with one another. The satisfactoriness with which we adjust ourselves to environment also plays an important role in preserving our mental as well as physical health. The best definition of health is that given by Carlyle, "Health is harmony."

Dr. Ryerson is the grandson of Egerton Ryerson, founder of the educational system in Ontario, and of Dr. John Beatty, who was a professor of Natural Science at Victoria College when it was in Cobourg, Ont.

To Unify Groups Pax Romana's Aim

A Communion Breakfast concluded Newman Club's "reunion weekend," attended by McGill, Western and Toronto Newman Club delegates last weekend, at the University of Toronto Newman Club.

In his talk, Lieutenant Kirchner, pointed out that the responsibility for the promotion of unity of thought among nations lies primarily with University students. He outlined the organization of Pax Romana and described its purpose as "the dissemination of information among federations of Catholic students in all countries."

Lieutenant Kirchner described the relief work done by Pax Romana during the two wars and cited an example of it in the case of the 500 Polish refugees who were able to obtain degrees from a Swiss University with the aid of Pax Romana.

Zionist Parties To Be Presented

A symposium on present-day parties of Zionism will be presented at the Avukah meeting at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, 16th, at Wymilwood. It will consist of six student speakers, and the major Zionist parties from right to left will be represented.

Anne Browne will speak on General Zionism; E. Granatstein will speak on the Hashomer Hatzair Movement; Aubrey Rotenberg on the Revisionists. The Mizrahi-Agudah group will be discussed by W. Kelman, and the labor Poalei Zion and its extreme left, Poalei Zion branch, by A. Eisenberg and Zaida Mann, respectively. "This symposium should prove of interest to both Zionist and non-Zionist students in giving detailed information on the complex party structure of Zionism," Max Day, president of the Avukah Society, commented in an interview.

The Amplidyne Is New Discovery

"The short-circuit which moved mountains" is the term used to describe the Amplidyne machine which was developed during the war. It is an electric generator or motor used extensively in large aircraft to magnify a small amount of controlling energy up to 10,000 times, if necessary.

The amplidyne machine was explained in a talk given by Mr. J. L. Keefer, an engineer of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., at a meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, last Friday, in the Electrical Building.

A contest, open to all student members of the A.I.E.E., was announced. Prizes will be awarded for the four best scientific papers submitted before Dec. 30, 1946. Further details may be obtained from Prof. V. G. Smith of the Electrical Engineering Department.

Prior to the meeting a discussion was held in Hart House on the topic, "Why Research Councils should be maintained in Canada." It was felt that adequate facilities for all types of research were needed urgently, coupled with sufficient funds to encourage scientists to remain in Canada.

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., MI. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation
OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty — Have Your Date Wear One to the School At-Home, Denis' At-Home, Trinity Conversat.

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

Formal Attire for the
TRINITY CONVERSAT
Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits and Accessories for Rent

AT
FREEMAN'S FORMAL
256 COLLEGE STREET, AT SPADINA, KI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near Wellesley, KI. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES, OPEN EVENINGS

U. C. LIT.

SMOKER

- LIT. BUSINESS
- SKITS
- SONGS
- GAGS
- CORN COBS

TONIGHT at 8 p.m.

JUNIOR COMMON ROOM

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

EXCHANGE—Will exchange house in Ajax for accommodation in Toronto. Must be ex-service student with family. Apply Box B, The Varsity.

WANTED—For an exam, "Republic of Plato". Len Stewart, Phi Kappa Pi, KI. 1790.

TYPING of any description done accurately and promptly. Reasonable. Charlotte, WA. 9477.

WANTED URGENTLY — Pascal's "Pensées", preferably Classique Larousse edition. KI. 4611.

JOE: Tired of listening to Mickey Lester. Take me to the Arts Ball. Maude.

EXCHANGE — Anyone wanting to exchange a Feb. 22nd for Feb. 1st Vic-At-Home ticket, please phone GR. 4727.

WANTED—Recent model portable typewriter. HY. 4090.

LOST—Medium size black leather notebook. Blue index tabs; containing all-important notes of five subjects; Dec. 12; possibly in Victoria College. Finder please mail notes to S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE — Noyes' "Qualitative Analysis"; Constitutional Issues in Canada"; drafting instruments and equipment; also girl's speed skates, size 8. Excellent condition. Call after seven. Jean, LO. 2820.

PERSONAL — Joe: Heard Mickey Lester, CKEY, 2:05. Isn't Oscar funny? Maude.

MEN'S TAILS — For sale, men's tails, size 38, 5' 7"; 3 pieces. Almost new. Price $35. LL. 2463.

LOST—Blue striped Parker pen, between Vic. Library and Wymilwood, Wednesday. Reward. HY. 1227.

LOST—Black zippered notebook, containing important notes, in Women's Union cloakroom, Wed., Jan. 9. Reward. Please return notes to Women's Union cloakroom.

LOST—Gold signet ring with large oval bloodstone. In or between U.C. and Trinity, or on St. George St., near Knox College. Phone HU. 0796 or contact S.A.C. office. Reward.

TYPING—I'd be very glad to do your typing. "Evelyn", Box A, The Varsity.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

There are A FEW TICKETS AVAILABLE YET for the School At-Home (featuring) JERRY WALD

HIS CLARINET AND ORCHESTRA, FEATURING KAY ALLEN AND DICK MERRICK

ELLIS McLINTOCK

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

WITH

BOBBY GIMBY

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

3 BIG BALLROOMS ON THE CONVENTION FLOOR OF THE ROYAL YORK HOTEL

All For Only $3.00 Per Couple

DANCING 9 - 2

DRESS, INFORMAL

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY STORE IN THE ENGINEERING BUILDING

Some Tickets Available to Outside Faculties

Jerry Wald

Office of Comptroller Held by Arnold Gaine

NEWLY-CREATED POST

First holder of the newly-created post of Comptroller of the University of Toronto, involving co-ordination of the administrative work of the University, is Mr. Arnold Gaine, formerly a president of Research Enterprises Limited, President Sidney Smith announced yesterday.

Doubling of the University's enrolment (from 6,738 last year to over 13,000 for the present session) and the consequent disproportionate increase of financial and technical problems was given as the reason for the creation of the new post by the Board of Governors.

"Mr. Gaine will be responsible for the general supervision of the executive and administrative functions of the University in other than academic matters, and he will assist the President in the business aspects of administration," Dr. Smith stated.

Mr. Gaine served overseas in the war of 1914-1918. His first business experience was obtained in Western Canada and in Ontario with the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Subsequently he held executive positions in industrial companies in Canada and the United States. Since 1940 he has been on the staff of Research Enterprises Ltd., first as Comptroller and latterly as Vice-President in charge of administration.

Mr. Gaine took over his duties in the University on January 2.

Award New Prize For Photography

Last night at the private showing of the Twenty-Third Annual Show of the Hart House Camera Club held in the Art Gallery a new award was announced. This new prize, the Professor A. F. Coventry Plaque, was presented to Dr. P. W. Arkle whose Contemplation, a portrait of an old Indian woman, was the winner of the Senior Section of the Show.

At the same time the K.B. Jackson Cup for the best print in the Junior Section of the Show was presented to Ray Heinbecker in recognition of his Assiniboine, a photograph of a mountain. In reviewing this print the judge, Mr. J. C. Eaton of the Toronto Camera Club, commented that "the foreground built up to a tremendous majesty in the mountain itself."

Honorable awards were made to three prints in the Junior Section: a portrait of a child by Ray Wolf, Onions, a still life by Mack Brown, and Wood and Stone, a photograph of the back of the library which according to the judge "gave a tremendous feeling of sunlight."

Two prints in the Senior Section were granted honourable mention. So That's Daddy by C. D. Woodley won the comment "its a very good story telling print, but we leave to the imagination what the parents are doing" while White Fantasy by J. H. Tripp was mentioned as being "a piece of artistic effort which completely ignored the facts in its production."

After the review of the black and white prints by Mr. Eaton, about forty Kodachromes were projected and reviewed by Mr. W. J. Blackhall, a member of the Toronto Camera Club and a senior member of the Hart House Camera Club. In this section there were no awards made.

International Students' Club To Establish House on Campus

The aim: an International House on this campus.

Modelled on the House at Columbia University in New York City, this House would be used as a meeting place for all foreign students as well as Canadian students interested in international affairs.

Frances Zwick, secretary of the International Student's Club, said that several such Houses in the United States had been contacted, and arrangements discussed. Resulting from this correspondence, a meeting was held between the club executive and

ARNOLD GAINE, newly-appointed Comptroller of the University of Toronto and entrusted with co-ordination of the administrative work of the University. Mr. Gaine was formerly a vice-president of Research Enterprises Ltd.

Special Busses To Serve Ajax

A Commuter Service between Ajax and Toronto to supplement the regular hourly run of the Grey Coach Lines bus was announced yesterday by the Superintendent's Office. The regular bus passes the intersection of the Ajax Road and Highway No. 2 but does not turn south to the University property.

The Commuter Service busses, labelled "UNIVERSITY-AJAX," will leave the Toronto terminal, Bay and Dundas Sts. at 7:45 a.m. Mondays through Fridays. The return trip leaves the Academic Area Bus Station, Ajax, at 5:10 p.m. Trips take just over an hour, and busses may be boarded at intermediate points.

Commuter tickets between Toronto and Ajax cost $8.95 for 25 single fares. Books of tickets are good for 18 days, exclusive of date of issue. They may be purchased only at the Grey Coach Terminal, Toronto, or from the Tuck Shop, Hart House, Ajax. Pending completion of Hart House, Ajax, tickets will be for sale in the Ajax Bursar's Office.

Busses stopping at the Bus Station and then proceeding to the Academic Area may be boarded without charge, if there is room, by U. of T. students or employees.

Three Appointed As Commissioners

Appointment of three commissioners for the taking of oaths to facilitate student dealings with the Department of Veterans' Affairs, has been announced by the Bursar's office.

J. R. Gilley, director of Ajax Division, Mrs. Marjorie King, Secretary of the Veteran's Advisory Bureau, and G. L. Court, deputy bursar, are the three so appointed.

the alumni of American international organizations now living in Toronto.

The result of the meeting was the determination to attempt to unify the international organizations on the campus for the purpose of establishing an International House.

This afternoon at 4 p.m., the question will be discussed by members of the International Student's Club at Wymilwood. A special invitation is proffered to students from all international organizations at the University.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1946

No. 62

Long-Lost Friends at Ajax Cause Supervisor's Headache

At Ajax, it seems, everybody at one time or another during service years knew everybody else.

That fact is making dawn-to-dusk headaches for Mr. Ronald H. Perry, Supervisor of Residences. Mr. Perry, we have it on eye-witness authority, carries aspirin in his pocket. Mr. Perry's job of the moment is allocating residence rooms on the basis of keeping as many old friends as close together as possible.

"It was fine when we started out," Mr. Perry said. "Lads came to me and said they'd heard of old service pals also registering at Ajax. So I put them together as room-mates, or at least in the same building."

"If they hadn't any special preferences, I grouped room-mates by age, course, and service background and hoped they'd make a go of it."

But in the last few days, it seems, just about everybody who arrived on the Ajax campus was discovering long-lost friends. "The requests for transfers choked our records completely. So for a week we have frozen all movement. At the end of that time people can move again—if they still want to."

Mr. Perry pointed out that every change of rooms involved changes on eight separate sets of records. "We have three sets of forms to look after, and the Bursar has five. With very many removals, the work of keeping track becomes staggering."

Sixteen houses accommodating some 75 students each had been completely filled by Monday night, with three more available and two in reserve.

A constitution based on that set-up by the Residence Committee for the U. of T. residences on the Toronto campus provides for residence self-government via House Committees, a joint House Committee, and a Housemasters' Committee. Elections to these bodies will take place shortly.

The U-shaped buildings consist of two wings of double rooms connected by a common room, and boast study rooms and a kitchenette in each wing. Originally women's residences constructed by Defense Industries Ltd., former proprietors of Ajax, the houses were transferred to the University in excellent condition and have been still further improved.

"They are just different enough to require separate floor-plans for the supervising staff," Mr. Perry commented. "For example, some of the earlier ones to be constructed went up so quickly that fire exits were forgotten: so later two rooms had to be chopped out."

The seven women students have one end of one wing in House 21 to themselves, complete with a separate entrance and common room. The remainder of the building is filled by girls on the secretarial staff of the U. of T., Defense Industries Ltd., and War Assets Corp.

C. U. P. Scenery

Kingston

Kingston, Jan. 15—(C.U.P.)—Professor R. C. Wallace of Queen's University, discussing the United Nations Conference in an address on Monday evening, outlined the UNESCO policy, which is briefly, "education must be universally shared."

Forty-four nations were represented at the conference, which discussed the proposed relief measures to restore and equip schools.

The first functional meeting will take place next summer. Its first object will be to elect a staff and a secretary-general. Headquarters are to be located and organized at Paris. Canada was offered the chairmanship of the sub-committee to investigate devastated countries' problems.

Halifax

Halifax, Jan. 15 (CUP)—Mr. C. E. Henderson, Toronto publisher of university texts, has commended Dalhousie University on their steadfast refusal to accept financial aid from outside influences. He feels that this has been the outstanding factor in enabling them to preserve their strong tradition of liberal education.

"Industry and its financial interests have already asserted an influence on many institutions on this continent, leading in almost every case to a disintegration of educational standards," he explained.

The modern idea of education, he says, seems to be that "a subject must be presented so as to produce a minimum of effort and pain for the student. This philosophy naturally makes for the disregard of logical thought and intellectual reasoning on the high-road to learning."

Mr. Henderson has noticed an increasing inclination on the part of the students to snub the Liberal Arts courses because they appear to deal with intangibles.

He concluded, however, that Canadians were becoming more and more conscious of "the need for revision in our approach to world problems. We are coming to realize our debt to the historic processes which are only preserved in the Liberal Arts. A reconnaissance in liberal education will come with the realization that there alone stands the salvation of our age and generation," he concluded.

Vancouver

Vancouver, Jan. 15—(CUP)—A brief compiled by three medical students to forward the establishment of a medical school at the University of British Columbia has received the sanction of President MacKenzie. Survey of medical schools in Canada and the United States is to begin soon. A representative of the Department of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine will visit the leading medical institutions.

Sackville

Sackville, Jan. 15—(CUP.)—Mount Allison University will adopt a three-term year if the scheme for a summer term, as proposed by the Faculty, is accepted by the senate.

More than 100 new students have enrolled to commence studies at the beginning of the spring term Jan. 28. These are for the most part recently-discharged veterans, and they are desirous of completing a year's work in time to take up regular second year studies in September.

The summer term will start a week after the completion of the spring term, and the second half of the summer term will coincide with Summer School which opens on July 6. Both will end together on Aug. 15.

Although primarily designed for the convenience of ex-servicemen, any other students wishing to take advantage of the extra term may do so. Almost all the subjects on the regular curriculum will be taught and the staff will consist mostly of the regular faculty. The summer school session will have different teachers.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

Three Government Men To Come to Open Forum

JAPANESE-CANADIAN QUESTION

Plans to invite three government members connected with the Japanese-Canadian question to a campus open forum in early February were discussed at a meeting of the U. of T. Japanese-Canadian Committee yesterday.

Time, place, and names of speakers will be announced in a later issue of The Varsity.

Purpose of the February forum is to hear a report from the speakers on the result of a test case, due to be heard by the Supreme Court January 24, on the legality of the Orders-in-Council covering deportation of aliens. The defendants in the case hold that the reasons alleged for passage of these orders are invalid, since the war emergency no longer exists.

"The forum will be part of our educational program," said Shelagh Kennedy, vice-chairman of the committee. "We hope that after the facts have been presented, students will be able to decide their policy on the issue."

The committee decided that it was impossible to ask for further action from the Students' Administrative Council until students have been made aware of the facts in the case.

(Requested by the Committee last fall to wire immediate protest to Ottawa on the impending deportation of 10,300 Japanese-Canadians, the S.A.C. on October 31 protested the sweeping powers of the War Emergency Act, but withheld action of the specific Japanese-Canadian issue until more had been heard from the student body.)

The Council decided it could not take controversial action without a clear-cut expression of student opinion. S.A.C. action was balked December 6 by a vote of the Engineering Society to deny support to the protest.)

Orders-in-Council to which the Japanese-Canadian Co-operative Committee objects are:

No. 7355: The Minister of Labor may make an order for the deportation of (1) nationals who signed to go, (2) naturalized British subjects of the Japanese race who signed and had not revoked their decisions before September 1, 1945, (3) Canadian-born subjects who signed and have not revoked their decision before the minister makes an order for their deportation, (4) wives, and children under 16.

No. 7356: Naturalized Canadians who have been deported lose their citizenship on the day of deportation. No. 7357: Setting up of a Loyalty Commission to enquire into cases of naturalized citizens and nationals to determine the extent of their co-operation with the government. This commission also has the power to recommend deportation.

No. 7358: Setting up of a Loyalty Commission to enquire into cases of naturalized citizens and nationals to determine the extent of their co-operation with the government. This commission also has the power to recommend deportation.

D.V.A. ARRANGEMENTS

All ex-service students who have not completed their full arrangements with D.V.A. should do so immediately in order to avoid any complications when registering for their annual examinations.

PAYMENT OF FEES

The second instalment of University fees is now due and all students who have not attended to this matter should get in touch with the Bursar's office at once.

VOTE!!

Ex-service students have until Friday to vote on the S.A.C. Representation and National Conference referendum.

Show your registration card at your faculty or college office to secure voting paper.

Dents, Between Appointments, Make Plans For Annual Dance

Gordon Jinks, publicity director of the annual Dentistry At-Home scheduled for this Friday evening, had a problem.

Sure the Dents were going to have a dance. Certainly it was to be "the biggest at-home since before the war." But how was he to do justice to this affair when he had to dash back to the Dental Clinic to keep an appointment?

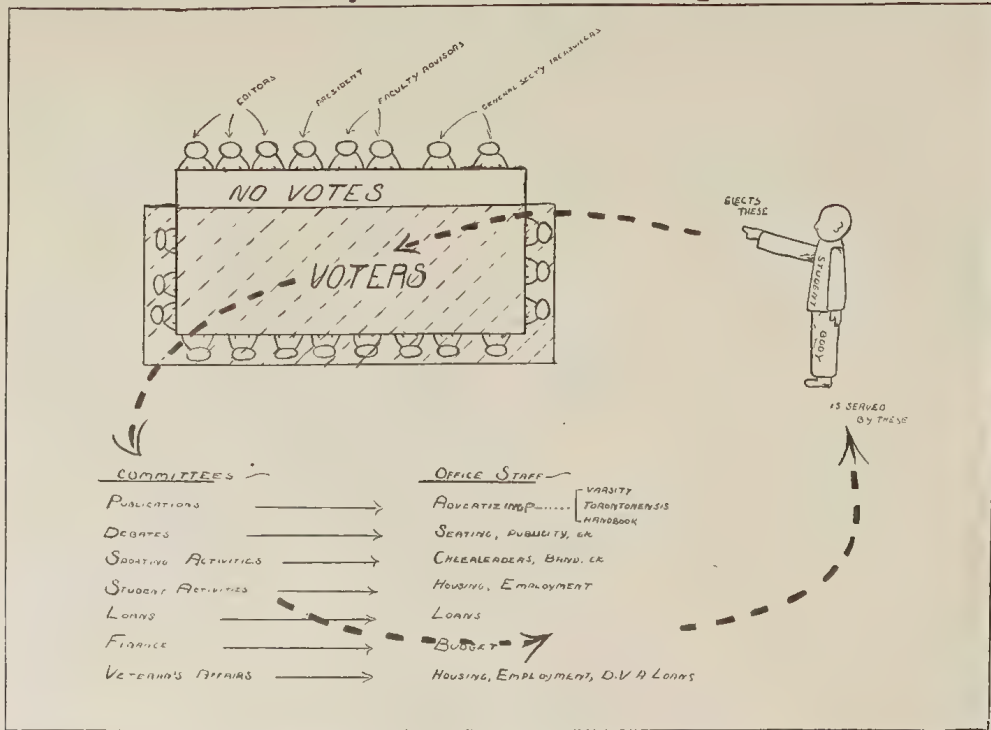

Dress was to be optional. Dancing was to be to the music of Ellis McClinton. The Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel was to be the place. There would be a reception line and corsages would be supplied the dentists' ladies.

That was the information, he had. The evening would provide alumni and undergraduate a chance for reunion.

There was more. Had he mentioned that "it was to be the biggest at-home since before the war?" Would The Varsity take note of such detail for the enlightenment of the second and third year dentistry students who were in mid-exam? And now: excuse him, he had to go to make an extraction.

S.A.C. Machinery Shown in Diagrammatic Form

Seldom set before the public in graphic form is the complex machinery by which the S.A.C. combines student representation with countless services to the student body. As the arrow shows, the line of action is circular. The student elects representatives who elect committees who instruct an office staff which serves the student.

The members elected directly by the students are the only S.A.C. members with votes. Representing all colleges and faculties, they appoint the editors of The Varsity and Torontonsis, and the president of the Council, a graduate student.

Only permanent members are two faculty advisors; and the General Secretary-Treasurer and Associated Secretary, who look after the office business.

Committees selected by and from S.A.C. members make decisions which are reported to the Council, and carried out in detail by the office staff. All matters affecting the student body can be reported to S.A.C. representatives, setting this chain of action in motion.

The Council has been criticized for years by students who claim that its machinery is undemocratic. Critics generally forget (1) that it is not and is not intended to be a governing body but an administrative body, the business of student government being the concern of the college and faculty governing organizations; (2) that, contrary to charges, the voting members of the Council are every one elected by the student body. A Victoria student who votes for V.C.U. President, for example, simultaneously votes for his Council representative.

The elective system is deemed fairer than that employed in securing for example, Hart House Committeemen, since voting is by faculties for faculty representatives. Every faculty is thus guaranteed representation, with no danger of the larger bodies swamping the elections.

Weakness of the system lies in the ignorance of the average voter that in electing a college head he is electing a council representative. Few voters have bothered to acquaint themselves with the Council set-up, and candidates for election are apt to confine themselves to local politics and neglect adequate publicity of their Council candidature.

Art, Music and Drama With Keyboard and Camera

With the impressive backdrop and acoustics of Eaton Auditorium for support, and a group of piano works ranging in scope from Bach to Aaron Copland, young Syrian-Canadian George Haddad was a natural for success last night. Proof of this youthful player's steady growth in stature was his recall four times by a demanding audience.

Executively, his approach is very close to perfect; he possesses power in abundance, but his volume is firmly controlled always. Interpretatively, the picture is not quite so bright. To say that the artist is all display and no poetry would be unjust—but that element of inward glow and feeling which is an invariable characteristic of a Rubinstein or a Schnabel is occasionally slighted. In these days a pianist must imbue his work with life; and despite infinite earnestness and painstaking effort on the part of Mr. Haddad, it became obvious, above all in the Debussy group (which was excessively percussive), that he has not achieved this at present.

Slight blurring of passage work marred an otherwise highly estimable performance of the Bach Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue. In the late Sonata Opus 101 of Beethoven, the performer was not able to energize a work inherently uninteresting. Only in the final allegro does the true restless soul that was Beethoven shine forth. The heavy-handed Brahms Waltzes Opus 139 were smoothly done; but in the brilliant Ravel Alborado Del Gracioso Mr. Haddad transcended all his previous efforts in sheer flawlessness and effortless technique. Most exciting among the encores was De Falla's Danza Rituelle Del Fuego from the ballet El Amor Brujo. The artist, in the achievement of the proper exotic, pagan atmosphere, neglected the needs of tempo completely and rushed the dance unmercifully to a breathless conclusion. It was nevertheless a stunning recreation.

—D. GORDON ROSS

To say the least, the Annual Show of the Hart House Camera Club (on display in the Art Gallery) is bumpy. While there are some extremely good prints on show there are as many equally bad, but in general it is one of the best shows that have been put on by the Club.

The main fault to be found with most of the prints in the show is that, although the photographer may have had a good idea, he failed to carry it out, perhaps due to his inexperience. In story-telling-pictures the story was rather muddled or confused by distracting elements, by objects that draw the eyes of the observer away from the center of interest. An example of this failure was V.E. Day by C. D. Woodley which had a definite story to tell but had no centre of interest. In another print, Light, Wind and Water by J.E. Gillett the idea of light flashing on water was not quite caught on the film. In still other prints the composition was poor and a little selection in the taking of the picture and making of the print would have resulted in a much better enlargement.

Another group of pictures that didn't fit in with the show were a set of record shots which as such were good, but didn't belong in salon. In this class were the two shots of university buildings by Monty Simmonds and the picture of a trillium by J. H. Tripp. The latter print would have been a natural for a botany text but it wasn't quite in place in the Camera Club Show

—BOB COORE.

Your Member Is . . .

Listed below for the convenience of students are the members of the Students' Administrative Council, together with offices held on their college and faculty organizations.

- Voting Members
- Victoria College: George Donor, President V.C.U.
Ruth Izyth, Associate President V.C.U.
University College: Gordon McCaffrey, President U.C. Literary and Athletic Society.
Ruth Margeson, President W.U.A.
Trinity College: Graham Cotter, Head of Arts, elected to S.A.C.
Aileen Hughes, Head of College.
St. Michael's College: John Stephenson, President St. Michael's Student Administrative Council.
Claire M. Wall, President St. Joseph's S.A.C.
Engineering: Murray McCulloch, President Engineering Society
Frank Belshaw, Vice-President Engineering Society.
Medicine: John McBirnie, President Medical Society.
Pat Armstrong, President M.W.U.A.
Wycliffe: J. T. Conybeare, President W.C. Lit.
Physiotherapy: Phyllis Cox, President, Physio Students.
Dentistry: Doug Langmaid, President Dental Parliament.
Emmanuel: Ben Garret, President Emmanuel College Student Society.
Nursing: Phyllis Jones, President School of Nursing Undergrad. Association.
Occupational Therapy: Alice Heaslip, President of O.T. students.
Forestry: D. Naysmith, President Foresters' Club.
Knox: F. Norman Young, President Knox College Association.
Pharmacy: R. E. Everitt, elected S.A.C. representative.
Social Work: J. R. McKnight, President Social Work students.
O.C.E.: A. J. Smith, President O.C.E. students
- Voting Ex-service Student Representatives
- Alida Al Wein, President Ex-service Meds. Students.
Irene Paul Johnson, Appointed Ex-service Arts Representative.
Dents.: R. D. Leuty, Appointed by Dental Parliament.
Engineering: Dalton Stubley, Appointed by Engineering Society.
Ex-Service Women: Claire Rutherford, Elected by 1st year U.C. Ex-service Women.

- Without Vote
- President: E. S. Kirkland.
General Secretary-Treasurer: E. A. Macdonald.
Associate Secretary: Miss A. E. M. Parkes.
Faculty Advisors: Dr. F. R. Lorrman.
Prof. W. J. T. Wright.
Editor of The Varsity: W. Hugh Kenner.
Women's Editor, The Varsity: Peggy Bates.
Editor of Torontonsis: E. Ross McLean.

JOAN RIGBY

COATS
DRESSES
TWEEDS
SUITS
SWEATERS

54 BLOOR W. MI. 4969

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., MI. 2495
Special Attention to University Students
15% Discount Upon Presentation
OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty — Have Your Date Wear One to the School At-Home, Dents' At-Home, Trinity Conversat.
ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

UNIVERSITY BRANCH IMPERIAL LIFE

BAY ST. UNIVERSITY AVE. BLOOR ST.

CLOSEST TO YOU!

"But, Mr. Advertising Manager — Women Do So Read Annual Reports!"

And he really thinks they do, too, as the Imperial Life It is annual meeting day today — and we are proud of it. It began in 1897, when there were sixteen Canadian Companies already founded. I.L.A.C. is now 9th in size — and growing.

We are all to the meeting published by b. a. stevenson, c.l.u. and associates of the university branch. 57 bloor street, west. k1 4136.

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL MI. 6361
10 Avenue Road WE DELIVER

Formal Attire for the TRINITY CONVERSAT

Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits and Accessories for Rent

AT FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA. MI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near Wellesley. MI. 3270
SPECIAL STUDENT RATES. OPEN EVENINGS

University Symphony Orchestra

GEORGE COLTTS, Conductor
HANS GRUBER, Associate Conductor

Rehearsal for full orchestra, Tonight, 7:30 p.m. Sharp
CONVOCATION HALL

Complete and prompt attendance required.
Anyone unable to attend must notify at Mayfair 4977 beforehand.

FOR THE OUTSTANDING EVENT OF '46

PLAN TO ATTEND:

"The BARRISTER'S BALL"

FEATURING:
U. of T's. SUPERLATIVE COMEDY TEAM
The 2 F's and 2 S's
COMEDY, NOVELTY, MYSTERY, THRILLS (?)

Paul Simmons
-- And His Big New Band

PLACE: The Balmy Beach Canoe Club
TIME: Thursday, January 17th, 1946
PRICE: $1.50 Per Couple

Tickets from Law School Reps. or at Door.
DANCING 9 - 1

First Athletic Night To Be On January 26

Athletic nights will definitely begin Saturday January 26, and will continue through to March 2 every Saturday. As in previous years, the various faculties act as hosts for these famous evenings.

In case anybody is lost in the meaning of such a night: Each Saturday throughout the program Hart House is the meeting place of all those frivolously inclined, short of greenbacks, and with a taste for sporting amusement. The jamboree will include already scheduled intercollegiate events, which will encompass basketball, boxing and wrestling, and gym competitions. Intramural athletic features, water aquacades, novelties, and last but not least dancing, square and round will all add to the entertainment.

The entire organizational work will be the headache of the faculty host for the evening. Private competition among the faculties to outdo each other adds to the high quality of these wee gatherings.

U.C., working with Knox, will initiate the proceedings on the 26th, featuring Queen's senior basketball squad and the Hamilton Aquatic Club in the pool.

February 2 will witness Vic and Emmanuel doing the honours, Albion College will give the basketball team a work-out in an intercollegiate exhibition. In addition to this, it is rumored that H.M.C.S. Bytown (Wren division) and our own Varsity gals will be a drawing card.

Rolling out the welcome mat, Feb. 9, will be the professional boys of Meds and Dents. If anyone dares to go that night, they will be taking their lives in their own hands, so to speak. But if you brave this grave warning, the Senior "A" basketball lads will do their best to outdo Western.

For February 16, Trinity plus Wycliffe, being hosts, are darkly hinting that formal dress will simply have to be worn. Muscular action will be centred on intercollegiate hoopers once more as McGill meets the Blues in a return tilt.

On the receiving line for February 23 will be, not two, but three hosts—

St. Mike's P.H.E., and the latest addition to intramural activities, Business Administration.

Finishing off the big entertainment lineup March 2 will be S.P.S. and Forestry. The Blue cagers, feature of the night, will finish their long schedule against Western Mustangs. This should end the show successfully for both the Blues and another season of Athletic nights.

Sport Notices

MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

All undergraduates are reminded that they must have their health examinations before they will be allowed to register for annual spring examinations.

WOMEN'S SPORTS NOTICE—

For all those wishing to referee volleyball games there will be a special test concerning rules on Monday January 21 in the gymnasium in the Household Science Building at 5 p.m. Directions and rules will be found on the general notice board in the gymnasium dressing room.

SPORTS PHOTOS

Pictures of the Soccer, Senior Track, and Harrier teams, are now available at the Athletic Office.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the sports staff of The Varsity in Room 37, U.C., at 5:00 p.m. today. All sports staff writers and anyone interested in writing sports for The Varsity are urgently asked to attend.

RECORD HOUR

Today's program:
Mendelssohn—Symphony No. 4 in A Major. ("Italian")
Beethoven—Piano Concerto No. 4.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Don Mason

Week-end Feature: Wrestling

Now that the Junior Interfaculty Boxing and Wrestling competitions are past-history, the mat spotlight shifts to the Upper Gym in Hart House. This Friday, at 8:00 p.m., Varsity will tackle the Y.M.H.A. in a series of bouts that should send the most muscular of us home feeling like Mr. Milquetoast. Some ten tussles are listed, ranging in weight from the 130-lb. to the heavyweight class.

And then there's Saturday night, and another "must see" in the realm of the muscular arts. Put in plain language that even the odd Skuleman can read, what we mean is that on said Saturday night, at 8:00 p.m., there will be a wrestling and boxing exhibition between the Varsity teams and West End Y. This sterling show will also take place in the Upper Gym. Again, the price of admission is the square root of nothing.

Speaking of the Upper Gym and such things, brings us to . . .

Week-end Feature: Basketball

All Varsity should turn out for Saturday night's basketball dish-out, which will see the Blue's Senior Cagers pitted against Assumption College, in what promises to be one of the finest fights this year.

Harry Mayzel, 5' 9" Blues forward.

And while on the subject of basketball, we might mention that the lad in the cut above is appearing in tonight's attraction at . . .

Maple Leaf Gardens

. . . when Toronto fans will be treated to one of the best double-features they could possibly want. Of course, we are speaking about the Rochester-Port Wayne Zollners, and Western-Varsity games. The Zollners are rated as the best basketball team in the world—and need we mention the ancient Mustang-Varsity rivalry! There are a few tickets left at the Gardens, but very few. See you there.

Track Results Sport in Short

HOCKEY

S.P.S. IV, 6; Med. III, 1.

BASKETBALL

Major:

S.P.S. IV, 13; Med. Sr. "A", 12.
Jr. Vic, 27; Sr. U.C., 26.
For. "A", 36; Pharm. "A", 11

Minor:

IV Metal, 48; Pre-Med. "B", 6.
P.H.E. IV, 24; IV Chem., 23.
IV Civil, 17; Med. Ser. "B", 8
U.C. VI, 38; III Mech, 14.
For "F", 29, Frn IV 11.

Ornamental Swimming

Ornamental swimming classes, ordinarily held every Thursday, have now been permanently discontinued.

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Intercollegiate Organization

The organization of the intercollegiate swimmers is well under way. Ten potential ribbon-winners conferred with Winifred Baxter, and learned the training rules. Each swimmer must put in two practices a week, and concentrate on the type of swimming in which she intends to excel at the big meet. Those entering the style, ornamental and long plunge events will attend separate practice hours from the other categories, so that these technical perfectionists will not become entangled with the speed artists. The first work-outs will take place this Thursday, at 8:30.

The star team will be chosen first on the basis of excellence. The next factor is seniority, as the first- and second-year students will have other opportunities of competing, other things being equal. Last, the item of hard work is to be considered. There are 23 possible places on the team proper, though it is expected that there will be many swimmers entering more than one event. These are: one person for each of style, ornamental and long-plunge swimming; two each for the 50 yard free-style, 100 yard free-style, 50 yard backstroke, and 50 yard breaststroke; three for the medley relay of 150 yards; one each for breaststroke style, free-style and back style of 50 yards; four for the 200 yard free style; two for the diving competition. A break in the meet will be provided by a routine, purely exhibition, for which more volunteers are needed, who will not be necessarily considered as members of the team . . . practice for this is on Thursday at 7:30.

Some top-drawer competitors reported for training, among them Barbara Hinchcliffe shines brightly. Besides being the president of the swimming club, Barbara is the '45 winner of the intramural ornamental and breast stroke events. Jackie Manser was awarded second place in last year's backstroke competition, and is pronounced by those who know to be "one of the best". Other possibilities are Elizabeth Holmes, excelling in the backstroke, Lois Lloyd, a champion diver, and Clara Matton one of the best free-style swimmers of which the campus can boast.

The number ten, sum total of volunteers so far, does not balance very well with the possible 23, as any one can plainly see without being another Einstein. So all you potential champions, come out of retirement and help the Blue and White to victory.

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	12:00	Vic. II	U.C. II	Anderson, Street
	4:00	Dent. A	SPS. III	Doyle, Brownridge
BASKETBALL
Major	1:00	Knox A	SPS. V	Drupino
	4:00	Dent. B	St.M. B	Johnson
Minor	6:30	Trin. A	Jr. U.C. B	Strathern
	1:00	II Elec.	U.C. Econ.	Bernstein
	4:00	III Chem.	Vic. V	Kennedy
	6:30	IV Mech.	Bus. Adm. B	Cancelled
	7:30	III Elec.	III Med. B	Stone
	8:30	Vic. XI	Trin. V	Stone

Basketball Referees—True and False Test Today—5:00 p.m.
Athletic Office, Hart House

If you can't make it today, see Miss Boyd rearranging another time.

SKIERS ATTENTION

The Athletic Association has chartered a bus to run to the Varsity Ski Club on Sunday, January 20th. This bus will leave Hart House at 9 a.m. Sunday (weather permitting) and return from Mulock's corner and Yonge Street at 4 p.m. Return tickets are 85 cents and must be purchased in the Athletic Office by Friday, January 18th.

There will be a meeting of the Ski Club Executive on Wednesday, January 16th, in the games room of St. Hilda's College, at 5 p.m.

BASKETBALL

SATURDAY, JANUARY 19th

Preliminary

West End Y vs. Varsity Seconds
7:00 p.m.

Assumption College vs Varsity Blues
8:30 p.m.

Boxing and Wrestling — West End and Central Y

FIGURE SKATING — INSTRUCTION

Instruction in Figure Skating will be offered by the Athletic Association starting Monday, January 7th, weather permitting. This activity may be taken by either men or women to partially fulfil P.T. requirements. Classes will be held daily, except Saturday, from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. on the outdoor rink at Varsity Stadium. Men register for classes in the Athletic Office, Hart House; women with Miss Foster, Household Science Building.

SONNY DUNHAM

GREAT AMERICAN TRUMPET AND TROMBONE STYLIST
AND HIS ORCHESTRA

ART • HALLMAN • BOBBY • GIMBY

THURSDAY, JAN. 31st

AT THE
UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

ARTS BALL

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

CONVENTION FLOOR

INFORMAL

$3.00 PER COUPLE

TICKET SALE STARTS TO-DAY - - U.C. ROTUNDA
ALL FACULTIES

Vic Team Wins Meet

The starter's cry of "Go!" has rung loud and long throughout the Athletic Wing of Hart House for the past two days, as faculty teams competed in the latest of "Hec" Phillip's running events—the 3-man, 2-lap event.

Enthusiasm ran high, as 14 teams on Monday, 28 on Tuesday competed for top honors. The Vic. I team, with a time of 1:55.3 were the winners of the meet. Kingdon, Hicki, and Hart, who ran yesterday, made up this top trio.

Kerrison, Phelan and Dzipina, representing P.H.E.'s first-string squad, placed second, with a time of 1:57.4, while close behind them (1:58) was the School team of Yates, Gregory and Armstrong.

Skule's traditional rivals, U.C., were only .8 seconds behind, Deacon, Taylor and Harris running for the Artsmen. Knocking off fifth spot (1:59) was the Trinity trio of Hamley, Hickman, and Goering, while the S.P.S. II's, .1 seconds behind, placed sixth.

The senior 880-yard dash, a 50-yard dash, and an 880-yard novice run, will highlight next Monday's and Tuesday's running events. The results of the past two meets have shown that all faculties are being well represented, to "Hec" Phillip's great delight, and very keen competition is expected in next week's dashes.

PATRONIZE
OUR ADVERTISERS

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.
Quick, accurate repair service
321 BLO 7 ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

New and Entrenous

From Hubba To Tazza

People You Meet On A Meatless Tuesday: Paul Serson back to Lux-lathered cleanliness with the sudden and strange return of the much-publicized missing bathtub plug...the pipe vanished from Serson's suite at 73 St. George Street "somewhere in New Year's Eve"...The U.C. Follies Music Director advertised and apparently aroused the sympathies of someone close to the culprit who gave Serson the telephone tip of the stopper's whereabouts...The unnamed M. & P. student who reportedly asked a sales clerk recently if "she had French curves?"...the M.-&P'ster reports a taut moment until he was able to explain that a French curve was a well, you know!

This journal's blithe report that the Lee Collection soon to repose in Hart House comprised: chalices, paten, paxes, mazer bowls, tazzas, etc...Tazzast! Paxes! Can any reader, as they say, help? ...The heated discussion between the Literary Director and the Athletic Director of a certain undergraduate society as to which of the two should organize a ping pong tournament..."Ping pong?" the athletic head snorted disdainfully. "That, athletic?" ...Quip of the two: From a co-ed came a letter to a friend explaining her delay in returning to the campus. Involved a broken leg. The damsel had taken to skis over the Christmas respite and had attempted an especially treacherous trail. "Thought I could ski," she wrote. "Oh fallacy of fall-icy!"

George "Virtuous" Forster, Varsity's exuberant News Editor still talking of his press conference with Ike the other morning...Most memorable feature of the press huddle with the General seems to have been the presence of a U.S. Army Captain whose prime function during the interview

Story of Engineering Faculty Is One of Great Expansion

The history of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering goes back to 1871, when the faculty was founded. In the last 65 years it has grown through successive stages from one of the smallest schools to one of the foremost ranking engineering colleges on the continent.

It was only after the greatest difficulty and many years of effort on the part of those interested, that the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario could be persuaded to sanction the founding of a School of Practical Science. From 1878 until the turn of the century it remained such, then in 1900 it became known by its present name; six years later, by the University Act of 1905, it became the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering in the University of Toronto.

The first public recognition given to the need of technical training in Ontario was in 1871 when a bill was introduced in the legislature to provide for the establishment of a College of Technology where mathematics, chemistry, mechanical engineering and drawing, and modern languages might be taught. In due time a building at the corner of Church and Adelaide Streets was bought and fitted up with laboratories and lecture rooms; night classes were conducted by three instructors, one of whom was James Loudoun who later became president of this University.

In 1877 legislation resulted in the change to the School of Practical Science, and steps were taken towards the construction of a building on the university grounds. The following year, the present Engineering Building was partially ready for classes. By '91, increase in the enrolment forced completion of the building.

It was just about this time that School began to expand by leaps and bounds. From an enrolment of five at its founding, it increased to 151 in 1892; in 1901 there were only 33 graduating, but at the same time there were 151 in the first year alone. Ten years later the total number of students had pyramided to 7,993. The total registration for 1945-46 is 1,638 at Toronto alone.

Further expansion had begun in 1901 when work was started on the Mining Building; in 1910 the Mechanical Building was complete; in 1930 the corner-stone of the Mill Building was laid. In 1945 Ajax was acquired, almost doubling the current conditions.

was to profer, light and butt the General's cigarettes...probably a "Cigs" officer.

Somehow comforting is word that the undergraduate of 1946 is not supressing a single boisterous impulse. Witness the report that a party of pyromania-inclined pranksters loaded their prof's pipe bowl recently with match heads...Details are wanting...Denouement has the students presenting same prof with a long-stemmed substitute for the other charred favorite...In your pipe and smoke it, put that!

Enjoyed the mordant observation of a Maritime delegate to the Canadian University Press conference as he waited between trains in Toronto the Sunday on which the conference closed. The Queen's Journal's Yarga overheard the Bluenose, disgusted because not a restaurant was open, mutter: "About the only thing you can do in this blasted city is board a train for Montreal!"

Chess players of Hart House have become tidier housekeepers since the House's pre-Christmas inspired object lesson...The Chess Room was abruptly closed and displayed for several days in the state in which it had been left at the end of one day's use...The littered tables and floors and askew furniture were mute testimony to the mental and physical turmoil demanded by the pensive pastime...with promises of reform, the Room was shortly reopened...Wanted: More specific information on the functions of the newly-organized, little-publicized Hubba Hubba Club.

Sight of the week: School's most austere dignitaries letting down their hair (where possible) and demonstrating to the Ajax freshmen class the intricacies of an acceptable Toike Oike yell...The cherished ritual of Toike Oike! Toike Oike! had not lately known such a decorous performance. The University of Toronto has yet

MODERN BALLROOM DANCING

FROM FOX-TROT AND WALTZ TO JIVE, RHUMBA AND TANGO.

You get them all in our popular DANCE CLASSES

Now forming.

Phone Now For Prices.

Da Costa
STUDIOS OF DANCING

1139 Bay Street, Corner Charles
MI. 5824

Choose Your New Hat

this quick, easy way

Our sales staff is specially trained to type your face... long, narrow or round... and your head shape... long oval or oval... and in a very few minutes, pick out the hat that looks best and feels best on you.

And your favourite brands are here in fine fur felts... STETSON, BILTMORE, BIRKDALE and EATONIA... to assure you of the smartest and best, in authentically styled, richly coloured headwear. Sizes 6 7/8 to 7 1/8 in the lot. Each

$5.00 to $15.00

MAIN STORE, MAIN FLOOR
THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

DIRECT TO AJAX

BUSES LEAVE TORONTO BUS TERMINAL

a 6:25 a.m. a 2:30 p.m.
b 7:45 a.m. b 3:55 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)
(b—except Sat., Sun. and Hol.)

TO AJAX ROAD AND NO. 2 HIGHWAY

a 6:30 a.m. 8:40 a.m.
7:30 a.m. 9:30 a.m.
and every hour.
on the half hour
until 10:30 p.m.
Also 11:40 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

GRAY COACH LINES

Bay at Dundas—Adelaide 4221

MOORE'S LUNCH

Cor. Huron and Harbord
Good Meals at Low Prices

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

NECKACES,
EARRINGS
BANGLES and BROOCHES

32 Bloor St. East
(Near Red Cross Headquarters)
ML 5975

They all want Coke

The Coca Cola Company of Canada Limited
Toronto, Canada

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

EXCHANGE—Will exchange house in Ajax for accommodation in Toronto. Must be ex-service student with family. Apply Box B, The Varsity.

LOST—Copy of Bradley's "Shakespearean Tragedy", property of Peterborough Public Library. Contact Al Marshall, MI. 8719, or leave at S.A.C. office.

ROOM AND BOARD in exchange for duties as a sifter. MO. 2701.

WOULD the girl who found my watch kindly get in touch with me at RA. 5502, or the S.A.C. office. Reward.

FOUND—The best dance on the campus. U.C. Arts Ball, Thurs., Jan. 31st.

LOST—Medium size black leather notebook. Blue index tabs; containing all-important notes of five subjects; Dec. 12; possibly in Victoria College. Finder please mail notes to S.A.C. office.

WATCH REPAIRS—Expertly done by a student for the students. R. C. Hook, 553 Huron St. MI. 5516.

LOST—Plastic-rimmed glasses. Trinity field or Bloor St. Please leave at S.A.C. office, Room 82, U.C. Reward.

LOST—Polyphase slide rule in black case, Saturday, near Hart House. John White, MI. 7072.

PERSONAL—Maude: To blazes with Oscar. What about my message? Joe.

TONITE

In Order to Accommodate Everyone, We Now Have ART HALLMAN, Former Vocalist With Mart Kenney, and His Fine Band to Assist.

TONITE

Jerry Wald

JERRY WALD

HIS CLARINET AND ORCHESTRA, FEATURING KAY ALLEN AND DICK MERRICK

ELLIS McLINTOCK

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

WITH

BOBBY GIMBY

HIS TRUMPET
AND ORCHESTRA

AT THE SCHOOL-AT-HOME

3 BIG BALLROOMS ON THE CONVENTION FLOOR OF THE ROYAL YORK HOTEL

All For Only $3.00 Per Couple

DANCING 9 - 2

DRESS, INFORMAL

TICKETS ON SALE AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY STORE IN THE ENGINEERING BUILDING AND AT THE DOOR.

Some Tickets Available to Outside Faculties

TONITE

TONITE

Owing to the fact that no compositor reported for work at the Press Tuesday night, only 1,500 copies of yesterday's paper reached the Toronto campus public. Distribution at Ajax went forward as usual.

In view of yesterday's limited circulation, the bulk of the material in yesterday's issue has been repeated today.

The Varsity staff publish this explanation out of fairness to the readers who got no paper yesterday, and to those to whom most of today's issue is old stuff. We regret that our readers are being inconvenienced by the insufferable mechanical troubles encountered in producing the paper, and assure them that steps are being taken to prevent any further fiasco.

Blues Edge Mustangs In Close Cage Contest

LAST SHOT DECIDES GAME

By Don Mason

One second remained in the game. The 12,000 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens stood on masse and tensely watched as Westerner Curtis' foul shot rimmed the basket, and dropped out, giving the game to Senior Blues by a 47-46 score.

Last night's encounter was a battle throughout. Both teams put forth all they had, and the most skeptical of fans must have come away agreeing that basketball was here to stay.

Western forced the pace in the opening minutes of play, and the score was 9-2 before the homesters got over their stage-fright. The Mustang offense, headed by McNair and Curry potted basket after basket, as the Toronto defense ran around in circles. But this state of affairs did not last long. The Dilworth-coached quintet settled down, and although heavily penalized, succeeded in forcing the play into the Western zone. The lads from London led by a 14-10 count at the end of the quarter.

The Blues went wild in the first five minutes of the second frame, Don Gibson, rangy Toronto forward, potted 4 quick baskets to lead the dazzling offensive display. Varsity now led 20-16. The game now developed into a see-saw battle, with neither team having any decided advantage.

Both displayed long passing-plays, both countered with heavy-checking defensive systems. It was Western, 21-20, then it was Toronto 22-21. It was speedy McNair and Curry, then it was Gibson and Mayzel, who led the attacks up and down the floor. Half-time ended, with the Blues holding a one-point advantage, 26-25.

Varsity took an early 33-20 lead in the third quarter, as Don Gibson, who just couldn't miss, added 4 more points on to his total. Mustang's Gauld, with two beautiful baskets, put his team right back in the running, as the Westerners showed a very slight edge in speed, the quarter ending with the score tied 37-37.

Tension increased in the fourth quarter, as the fans realized it would be a fight to the final gong. Himel, then Colin Cranham cashed in to give the Blues a 42-37 lead. Then Captain (Continued on page 3)

Women's S.A.C. Opened In U.C.

The Students' Administrative Council and Athletic Office for Women Students is now located in Room 82, University College (Basement, East Wing), M1.8226.

Women students are now requested to use this office for all Council services such as employment, housing, loans, orders for jewellery and blazers, Torontonensis, Varsity and Handbook space, etc., and for general athletic business.

For the present, the Women's Office will be open daily except Saturday from 9:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. The Secretary, Miss A. E. M. Parkes, will be available at other hours by appointment, M1. 8226.

International Students' Club To Establish House on Campus

The aim: an International House on this campus.

Modelled on the House at Columbia University in New York City, this House would be used as a meeting-place for all foreign students as well as Canadian students interested in international affairs.

Frances Zwick, secretary of the International Student's Club, said that several such Houses in the United States had been contacted, and arrangements discussed. Resulting from this correspondence, a meeting was held between the club executive and

Gain Appointed "U" Comptroller

First holder of the newly-created post of Comptroller of the University of Toronto, involving co-ordination of the administrative work of the University, is Arnold Gain, formerly a president of Research Enterprises Limited, President Sidney Smith announced Tuesday.

Doubling of the University's enrolment (from 6,738 last year to over 13,000 for the present session) and the consequent disproportionate increase of financial and technical problems was given as the reason for the creation of the new post by the Board of Governors.

"Mr. Gain will be responsible for the general supervision of the executive and administrative functions of the University in other than academic matters, and he will assist the President in the business aspects of administration," Dr. Smith stated.

Mr. Gain served overseas in the war of 1914-1918. His first business experience was obtained in Western Canada and in Ontario with the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Subsequently he held executive positions in industrial companies in Canada and the United States.

the alumni of American international organizations now living in Toronto.

The result of the meeting was the determination to attempt to unify the international organizations on the campus for the purpose of establishing an International House.

This afternoon at 4 p.m., the question will be discussed by members of the International Student's Club at Wymilwood. A special invitation is proffered to students from all international organizations at the University.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 17, 1946

No. 63

Conservatives Consolidate In Special Session Tuesday

Officers of the University of Toronto Progressive-Conservative Club were elected last Tuesday evening at a special session held in the U.C. Women's Union. They were: President, Arnold Rowe-Sleman, III Trinity; 1st Vice-President, Jack McNee, I Vic.; 2nd Vice-President, Phyllis Smith, III Trinity; Secretary, W. Gord Lawson, II U.C.; Treasurer, Dick Walker, II Trinity; Publicity Director, Jack Chipman, I U.C.

At the request of the Debates Commission, it was decided to send a representative from the club, Jack McNee, to the forthcoming Hart House Debate on Jan. 23.

The tentative constitution based on that used by other Conservative clubs, which had been adopted temporarily by the club at its initial meeting Dec. 5, was retained. A tentative list of speakers was drawn up. It is hoped that Leslie Blackwell, Kelso Roberts, Premier George Drew, Donald Fleming, and others will address later meetings.

Present at the meeting was Mrs. Mayer, Secretary of the Young Progressive Conservative Clubs of Ont. She outlined the organization of the clubs, and expressed the hope that the new club would flourish.

Spokesman Jack Chipman stressed that the aim of the club was education in politics. "We hope to have meetings at which everyone can have a chance to speak with an open mind," he said. Current events of national and international interest would provoke discussion, he hoped, and encourage public-speaking tendencies in members, providing a training "which might well be of great use to those interested in a political career."

FRIDAY RECITAL

Hart House will again be the scene for a recital on Friday featuring Cyril Glyde, viola, and Miss Sylvia Kamin, at the piano. They have been selected for their program: Concerto in F

minor Pietro Nardini
Sonata in E flat Johannes Brahms
Rondo Mozart-Kryslar
Foggy Dew Old Irish Melody
Concert Piece Georges Enesco

Lose Eyelashes Wait For Cells

"A new set of eyelashes every 3 months, is the result of the production of new cells by subdivision," said Dr. Stanley Ryerson at his Health lecture on Tuesday. As part of a series of lectures on "Health, what it is, its Preservation and Promotion," he explained the structure of living cells within the body.

"From a single cell, we become a highly organized structure of millions of cells, all derived from the first by reproduction, he said. "In the healing of a wound, the formation of new cells is rapidly accelerated. By the same process we get a new skin every seven weeks, (with or without beauty soaps) and a new head of hair every 3 to 6 years."

Moving pictures were shown of the division of the cells as seen under a microscope, at about 100 times normal speed. "These cells, about 1/200" of an inch in size, cause cancer when they multiply too quickly," commented Dr. Ryerson.

The next lecture, also to be given by Dr. Ryerson, will deal with "Relationship of Physical Recreation to Health." He promises that it will be of personal interest to all students, athletes or not. It will be given in the North Lecture Room of the Medical Building at 5:10 p.m. on Tuesday, January 22nd.

Foresters' Club Hears B.F. Avery

"To be true to those whose first interest lies in forest administration: bushmen, mill employes, and all dependent upon forest industries" was seen last night by B. F. Avery as the prime responsibility of the Forestry graduate.

Speaking before the Foresters' Club in Hart House, Mr. Avery, at present employed with the Great Lakes Paper Company, defined Forestry as a profession rather than a trade. If alterations were to be made in Forestry curricula, the speaker stated, they should include the addition of cultural subjects.

The graduate capable of reaching a position worthy of his fullest responsibility is the one who will not refuse advancement for fear of a few initial mistakes, he said. For any man in forestry work, he asserted, the main responsibility was to his subordinates.

D.V.A. Asks Vets' Co-operation: Wait Awhile For Dental Exams

Accidental deletion of the phrase: "in case of extreme emergency" in a story published in Tuesday's issue regarding dental care for ex-service students has created the false impression that any work done by any dentist may be charged to D.V.A.

Complete text of the official statement on dental care for student veterans is published below:

Owing to the rapid repatriation and discharge of the Canadian Army. It is impossible for the Dental Profession in Canada to cope with the volume of work indicated at the Discharge Dental Examinations.

All ex-service personnel are, therefore, counselled that rarely is this work an emergency, that no very serious condition will result from its postponement, that they must be patient and co-operate with the Dental authorities who are doing all in their power to expedite the work and hope to have all in hand in the near future.

The following information is given for your guidance:

1. Those who were discharged up until about September 1945 were allowed to nominate their own Dentist. This they were instructed to do and send in their slip before ninety days.

This does not mean that the work must be done within ninety days. Those discharged since September 1945 were not allowed to nominate their Dentist, but they will be advised to whom they are to go. They cannot normally receive treatment until they are advised that their nomination has been approved, in the former case, or who has been appointed the Dentist, in the latter case. It is further pointed out that D.V.A. will be responsible for any further work which has shown up between your discharge examination and your receipt of treatment.

2. Emergency Treatment—In the event of an emergency, such as the breaking of a tooth or denture, severe toothache, etc., which requires treatment immediately, you may go to any dentist and have the essential work done and D.V.A. will be responsible for the bill.

3. You are eligible for Dental Treatment as long as you are in receipt of Rehabilitation Grants but only the initial treatment as indicated at the time of discharge is given by the Dentist, as indicated in paragraph one. All further treatment must be given by the D.V.A. Dentist at Christie Street Hospital or York Street.

Forum To Hear Facts Of Court Test Case

GOVERNMENT MEN MAY ATTEND

Plans to invite three government members connected with the Japanese-Canadian question to a campus open forum in early February were discussed at a meeting of the U. of T. Japanese-Canadian Committee Tuesday.

Time, place, and names of speakers will be announced in a later issue of The Varsity.

Purpose of the February forum is to hear a report from the speakers on the result of a test case, due to be heard by the Supreme Court January 24, on the legality of the Orders-in-Council covering deportation of aliens. The defendants in the case hold that the reasons alleged for passage of these orders are invalid, since the war emergency no longer exists.

"The forum will be part of our educational program," said Shelagh Kennedy, vice-chairman of the committee. "We hope that after the facts have been presented, students will be able to decide their policy on the issue."

The committee decided that it was impossible to ask for further action from the Students' Administrative Council until students have been made aware of the facts in the case. (Requested by the Committee last fall to wire immediate protest to Ottawa on the impending deportation of 10,300 Japanese-Canadians, the S.A.C. on October 31 protested the sweeping powers of the War Emergency Act, but withheld action of the specific Japanese-Canadian issue until more had been heard from the student body. The Council decided it could not take controversial action without a clear-cut expression of student opinion. S.A.C. action was balked December 6 by a vote of the Engineering Society to deny support to the protest.)

Orders-in-Council to which the Japanese-Canadian Co-operative Committee objects are: No. 7355: The Minister of Labor may make an order for the deportation of (1) nationals who signed to go, (2) naturalized British subjects of the Japanese race who signed and had not revoked their decisions before September 1, 1945, (3) Canadian-born subjects who signed and have not revoked their decision before the minister makes an order for their deportation, (4) wives, and children under 16.

No. 7356: Naturalized Canadians who have been deported lose their citizenship on the day of deportation.

No. 7357: Setting up of a Loyalty Commission to enquire into cases of naturalized citizens and nationals to determine the extent of their co-operation with the government. This commission also has the power to recommend deportation.

Further action implementing decisions of the December conference will be taken when executives of all the student veterans' societies of the Montreal universities and vocational establishments meet at McGill University Tuesday, January 22.

Announcement of the Montreal meeting follows similar action in Winnipeg, where the Manitoba delegation returned from the National conference have organized a meeting, scheduled to take place shortly, with 17 Manitoba members of parliament.

AJAX STUDENTS

Students in the Ajax division interested in furthering the news, sports, and feature coverage of The Varsity are urged to contact Mr. J. B. Essery, Students' Administrative Council Office, Administration Building, at once. Openings for photographers are also available.

A meeting to organize the Ajax staff will be held Monday, Jan. 21.

VOTE!!

Ex-service students have until Friday to vote on the S.A.C. Representation and National Conference referendum.

Show your registration card at your faculty or college office to secure voting paper.

Dents, Between Appointments, Make Plans For Annual Dance

Gordon Jinks, publicity director of the annual Dentistry At-Home scheduled for this Friday evening, had a problem.

Sure the Dents were going to have a dance. Certainly it was to be "the biggest at-home since before the war." But how was he to do justice to this affair when he had to dash back to the Dental Clinic to keep an appointment?

Dress was to be optional. Dancing was to be to the music of Ellis McLintock. The Crystal Ballroom of the Royal York Hotel was to be the place. There would be a reception line and corsages would be supplied the dentists' ladies.

That was the information, he had. The evening would provide alumni and undergraduate a chance for reunion.

There was more. Had he mentioned that "it was to be the biggest at-home since before the war?" Would The Varsity take note of such detail for the enlightenment of the second and third year dentistry students who were in mid-exam? And now: excuse him, he had to go to make an extraction.

S.A.C. Machinery Shown in Diagrammatic Form

Seldom set before the public in graphic form is the complex machinery by which the S.A.C. combines student representation with countless services to the student body. As the arrow shows, the line of action is circular. The student elects representatives who elect committees who instruct an office staff which serves the student.

The members elected directed by the students are the only S.A.C. members with votes. Representing all colleges and faculties, they appoint the editors of The Varsity and Torontonensis, and the president of the Council, a graduate student.

Only permanent members are two faculty advisors; and the General Secretary-Treasurer and Associated Secretary, who look after the office business.

Committees selected by and from S.A.C. members make decisions which are reported to the Council, and carried out in detail by the office staff. All matters affecting the student body can be reported to S.A.C. representatives, setting this chain of action in motion.

The Council has been criticized for years by students who claim that its machinery is undemocratic. Critics generally forget (1) that it is not and is not intended to be a governing body but an administrative body, the business of student government being the concern of the college and faculty governing organizations; (2) that, contrary to charges, the voting members of the Council are every one elected by the student body. A Victoria student who votes for V.C.U. President, for example, simultaneously votes for his Council representative.

The elective system is deemed fairer than that employed in securing for example, Hart House Committeeen, since voting is by faculties for faculty representatives. Every faculty is thus guaranteed representation, with no danger of the larger bodies swamping the elections.

Weakness of the system lies in the ignorance of the average voter that in electing a college head he is electing a council representative. Few voters have bothered to acquaint themselves with the Council set-up, and candidates for election are apt to confine themselves to local politics and neglect adequate publicity of their Council candidature.

Your Member Is . . .

Listed below for the convenience of students are the members of the Students' Administrative Council, together with offices held on their college and faculty organizations.

Voting Members

- Victoria College: George Donor, President V.C.U.
Ruth Irwin, Associate President V.C.U.
University College: Gordon McCaffrey, President U.C. Literary and Athletic Society.
Ruth Margeson, President W.U.A.
Trinity College: Graham Cotter, Head of Arts, elected to S.A.C.
Aileen Hughes, Head of College.
St. Michael's College: John Stephenson, President St. Michael's Student Administrative Council.
Claire M. Wall, President St. Joseph's S.A.C.
Engineering: Murray McCulloch, President Engineering Society.
Frank Belshaw, Vice-President Engineering Society.
Medicine: John McBirnie, President Medical Society.
Pat Armstrong, President M.W.U.A.
Wycliffe: J. T. Conybeare, President W.C. Lit.
Physiotherapy: Phyllis Cox, President, Physio Students.
Dentistry: Doug. Langmaid, President Dental Parliament.
Emmanuel: Ben Garret, President Emmanuel College Student Society.
Nursing: Phyllis Jones, President School of Nursing Undergrad. Association.
Occupational Therapy: Alice Heaslip, President of O.T. students.
Forestry: D. Naysmith, President Foresters' Club.
Knox: F. Norman Young, President Knox College Association.
Pharmacy: R. E. Everitt, elected S.A.C. representative.
Social Work: J. R. McKnight, President Social Work students.
O.C.E.: A. J. Smith, President O.C.E. students

Voting Ex-service Student Representatives

- Meds.: Al Weir, President Ex-service Meds. Students.
Arts: Paul Johnson, Appointed Ex-service Arts Representative.
Dents.: R. D. Leuty, Appointed by Dental Parliament.
Engineering: Dalton Stuble, Appointed by Engineering Society.
Ex-Service Women: Claire Rutherford, Elected by 1st year U.C. Ex-service Women.

Without Vote

- President: E. S. Kirkland.
General Secretary-Treasurer: E. A. Macdonald.
Associate Secretary: Miss A. E. M. Parkes.
Faculty Advisors: Dr. F. R. Lorrain.
Prof. W. J. T. Wright.
Editor of The Varsity: W. Hugh Kenner.
Women's Editor, The Varsity: Peggy Bates.
Editor of Torontonensis: E. Ross McLean.

THE VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

Editor-in-Chief: W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.

Night Editor: Henry Westcott.

Assistants: Hugh Kenner
E. Ross McLean
Peggy Bates
Assistant: Rudy (part-time).

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Fidelio Overture.....Beethoven
Piano Concerto in B flat
Major.....Mozart
Symphony No. 5
(New World).....Dvorak

Art, Music and Drama

'One Expects More'

A chamber orchestra is not just a small symphony orchestra. Its very name suggests a difference in kind as well as degree. The chamber orchestra, while it preserves some of the scope and range of a symphony orchestra, must not sacrifice, as a result, the intimacy and sensitive line which belong to chamber music.

At yesterday's concert, with an orchestra of approximately twenty-five strings, Ettore Mazzoleni attempted this difficult union of genres. The symphonic side won out, which may explain why the concert, for all its interest, was only a partial success. The tone was fat rather than full, while the continuity (or line) had more drive than flexibility. The final allegro of the Purcell suite, which opened the program, built up an overwhelming sonority, as did the allegro assai of the Sammartini concerto, but one expects more than this from a chamber orchestra.

The Concerto Grosso Opus II No. 4 of Sammartini occasionally rises above the level of good eighteenth century craftsmanship. Its excellent continuity and well-moulded periods formed an interesting contrast to the Holberg Suite of Grieg, which followed it. Grieg is trying to recall the style of Sammartini's age, and his suite illustrates with devastating clarity how little style one can appropriate by recalling mannerisms. "Excellent continuity and well-moulded periods" are no part of Grieg's method. Armed with the piecemeal methods of which Schumann was the great master, Grieg constructs his piece, to which the crust of eighteenth century mannerisms give a charming if incongruous flavour.

MILTON WILSON.

With the impressive backdrop and acoustics of Eaton Auditorium for support, and a group of piano works ranging in scope from Bach to Aaron Copland, young Syrian-Canadian George Haddad was a natural for success Tuesday night.

LIGHT UP AND Work

It's amazing how the smoking of a Sweet Cap. gives pleasure to the task and makes those study hours fly.

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction—anywhere... anytime! And when you tune in "LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

STATION CJBC-CKEY
9:30 P.M. Every Thursday Night.

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Store: 31 Bloor W., M1. 2495
Special Attention to University Students
15% Discount Upon Presentation OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD
Corsages are a Specialty — Have Your Date Wear One to the Dents' At-Home, Trinity Conversat.
ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

Hart House Bulletin Board

Friday Afternoon Recital

Cyril Glyde, viola player of the Hart House Quartet, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. on Friday, 18th January. Sylvia Kamin will be at the piano. Members of Hart House are invited.

Hart House Debate

The next Hart House debate will be held on Wednesday, 23rd January, at 8 p.m., in the debates room. The resolution will be, "That this House while approving of collective bargaining deplores the attempt of the unions to usurp the rights of management."

the picture is not quite so bright. To say that the artist is all display and no poetry would be unjust—but that element of inward glow and feeling which is an invariable characteristic of a Rubinstein or a Schnabel is occasionally slighted. In these days a pianist must imbue his work with life; and despite infinite earnestness and painstaking effort on the part of Mr. Haddad, it became obvious, above all in the Debussy group (which was excessively percussive), that he has not achieved such heights at present.

—D. GORDON ROSS.

MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

All undergraduates are reminded that they must have their health examinations before they will be allowed to register for annual spring examinations.

CANADIAN NATIONAL TELEGRAPHS

(At Present)
Telegrams will be Received at
14 BROCK STREET
Ajax Village

SONNY

DUNHAM

At The

ARTS BALL

Also

HALLMAN ART GIMBY BOBBY

JAN. 31
ROYAL YORK

DANCING 9-2
INFORMAL

TICKETS U.C. ROTUNDA

10 A.M. to 4 P.M.

$3.00 PER COUPLE ALL FACULTIES

The Sportswoman

By Polly Mutz

Training Ground

The Lillian Massey gym begins a new chapter this Monday. Up to this date it has been the scene of training for competition in sports . . . now the volleyball referees are to undergo a period of learning their trade with the help of Miss Forster. The purpose is to ensure unanimity of opinion . . . last year there existed a sad rift in decisions. Besides, as the gym is smaller than regular gyms for volleyball, regulations must be altered somewhat. This laudable project is to take place in the form of a competition on Monday at 5:00, on rules and regulations.

As for the sport of volleyball proper, the practices began last Monday. Next Monday, St. Hilda's take over the floor at 5:00, P.H.E. at 6:00. These two teams look promising, and getting out on the old limb again, we see in our crystal ball an energetic battle between them for first place.

Although P.H.E. will have four teams in the series, and Vic. and St. Hilda's both can boast of two, the smaller faculties have to be coaxed. To us, this is an enigma, as the equipment called for is negligible, as are the funds, contrasted with the great amount of paraphernalia and high expense of hockey . . . to which cold outdoor sport most students flock.

MOORE'S LUNCH

Cor. Huron and Harbord
Good Meals at Low Prices

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service.
321 BLC ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

MODERN BALLROOM DANCING

FROM FOX-TROT AND WALTZ TO JIVE, RHUMBA AND TANGO.

You get them all in our popular DANCE CLASSES Now forming.

Phone Now For Prices.

Da Costa

STUDIOS OF DANCING

1139 Bay Street, Corner Charles
MI. 5624

Speaking OF SPORT

By Don Mason

Week-end Feature: Wrestling

Now that the Junior Interfaculty Boxing and Wrestling competitions are past-history, the mat spotlight shifts to the Upper Gym. In Hart House. This Friday, at 8:00 p.m., Varsity will tackle the Y.M.H.A. in a series of bouts that should send the most muscular of us home feeling like Mr. Milquetoast. Some ten tussles are listed, ranging in weight from the 130-lb. to the heavyweight class.

And then there's Saturday night, and another "must see" in the realm of the muscular arts. Put in plain language that even the odd Skuleman can read, what we mean is that on said Saturday night, at 8:00 p.m., there will be a wrestling and boxing exhibition between the Varsity teams and West End Y. This sterling show will also take place in the Upper Gym. Again, the price of admission is the square root of nothing.

Speaking of the Upper Gym and such things, brings us to . . .

Week-end Feature: Basketball

All Varsity should turn out for Saturday night's basketball dish-out, which will see the Blue's Senior Cagers pitted against Assumption College, in what promises to be one of the finest fights this year.

The Assumption team, rated as one of the very best in Canada, will be going all-out to pin a second defeat on the U. of T. quintet, after their 57-39 win in Windsor, in a game played on December 15th.

The Blues, under the excellent coaching of Roy Dilworth, have shown steady improvement in the New Year, and with the advantage of a home-floor, are expected to make things very hot for the Windsorites. Spectators are urged to get there well before 8:30, as a capacity audience is expected. The thing to do, men, is to drag your bag over to Hart House at 8:00, so as to take in the aforementioned mat and ring features, thus also assuring yourself of a ring-side seat.

Harry Mayzel, 5' 9" Blues forward

DIRECT TO AJAX

BUSES LEAVE TORONTO BUS TERMINAL

a 6:25 a.m. a 2:30 p.m.
b 7:45 a.m. b 3:55 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)
(b—except Sat., Sun. and Hol.)

TO AJAX ROAD AND NO. 2 HIGHWAY

a 6:30 a.m. 8:40 a.m.
7:30 a.m. 9:30 a.m.
and every hour on the half hour until 10:30 p.m.
Also 11:40 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

GRAY COACH LINES

Bay at Dundas—Adelaide 4221

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

One Week Beginning Mon. Eve. Jan. 31

LIFE WITH FATHER

Made into a play by HOWARD LINDSAY AND RUSSEL CROUSE with Carl Benton Reid & Betty Linsley

Box Office Open 10 a.m.—10 p.m. Evgs. 8:20 Mats., Wed. Sat. 2:20 MATS., WED., SAT.: 50c, $1.20, $1.60 All Tax Included.

Blues Win . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Stu Scott netted a beauty to give his team their largest lead of the game—7 points.

The Westerners, displaying their slight edge in speed to best advantage, made it 44-44 with only two minutes left to play. Both teams began playing a very careful, close-checking type of game. Steve Himel broke the tie with a shot from nearly half-way out. Then Gordie Wallace netted a foul shot, to make it 47-44.

It looked like Toronto's game until Phibbs netted a floor-length pass to put the Mustang machine on its feet again. With only sixty seconds to be counted off, McNair, Western star, was put out of the game for five fouls.

Varsity, trying desperately to protect their single point lead, took two foul shots out of bounds so as to keep the ball out of rival hands. Gord Wallace and Murray Thomson, with one eye on the clock, effectively ragged the ball at centre, until Western got the break that might have decided the game. With one second remaining, Curtis was awarded a shot on a foul by Gord Wallace. As the two teams tensely watched, Curtis looped the ball at the basket, and 12,000 people held their breath as it slowly rimmed the basket, then fell off to the floor. It was Varsity's victory, 47-46.

Outstanding for Toronto, were Don Gibson, with 15 points, Colin Cranham, who played an excellent offensive and defensive game, and Doug Spry.

SPORTS CALENDAR

Week of January 21

BASKETBALL

Major League:

Mon., Jan. 21	1:00 Pre-Med. A SPS. III Maxwell Kennedy
	4:00 Vic. III Dent B Robson
	6:30 Bus. Adm. A Dent A Robson
Tues., Jan. 22	1:00 Sr. SPS. Sr. Med. Farrell
	4:00 SPS. V Enman. A Zeldin
	6:30 Jr. U.C. A PHE. I Swan
	7:30 Wyc. A Knox A Swan
	8:30 St.M. B Trin. B Swan
Wed., Jan. 23	1:00 Jr. SPS. Sr. U.C. Lye
	4:00 Jr. Med. Jr. Vic. Hamm
	6:30 For. A Med. Ser. A Strathairn
Thurs., Jan. 24	1:00 Dent. A SPS. III Johnson
	4:00 PHE. II Trin. A Stone
	6:30 Pharm. A SPS. IV Cochran
Fri., Jan. 25	1:00 Sr. Med. PHE. I Mott
	4:00 Jr. U.C. B St.M. A Lye
	6:30 Pre-Med. A Bus. Adm. A Rotman
Sat., Jan. 26	1:00 Sr. SPS. Sr. Vic. Rotman

Minor League:

Mon., Jan. 21	1:00 U.C. V IV Civil Zeldin
	4:00 I Dent. III Med. B Bockner
	6:30 U.C. IV IV Metal Sansone
Tues., Jan. 22	1:00 Vic. IV IX Chem. Smith
	4:00 St.M. D III Eng. Bus. Garry
	5:00 V Dent. III Chem. Geary
	6:00 U.C. Econ. For. B Sansone
	7:00 Vic. X Enman. B Sansone
Wed., Jan. 23	1:00 For. C III Aero Bernstein
	4:00 Vic. XII PHE. VI Babcock
	6:30 I Elec. Trin. IV Bond
	7:30 PHE. V U.C. Arts Bond
	8:30 Knox B Trin. VII Bond
Thurs., Jan. 24	1:00 PHE. III IV Elec. Voight
	4:30 II Dent. III Mech. Peacock
	5:30 III Med. A IV Mech. Peacock
	6:30 I Dent. III Elec. Mackan
	7:30 Wyc. B Wyc. XI Mackan
Fri., Jan. 25	1:00 II Med. B I Civil Dzugino
	4:00 Trin. III III Mining Stone
	6:30 St.M. C III Eng. Phys Maxwell
Sat., Jan. 26	1:00 For. B II Elec. Jones

HOCKEY

Mon., Jan. 21	1:00 Trin. A SPS. III Anderson, Horkins
	4:00 Vic. II Med. II Mosher, McClelland
	8:00 St.M. A Dent. A Brownridge, Fyfe
	9:00 Vic. III St.M. B Brownridge, Fyfe
Tues., Jan. 22	12:00 Knox B Wyc. V Hart, Morrison
	4:00 U.C. III Knox A Anderson, Sinclair
	5:00 Bus. Adm. For. A Anderson, Sinclair
Wed., Jan. 23	4:30 Pharm. Med. III Doyle, Garfunkel
Thurs., Jan. 24	1:00 Med. I U.C. I Street, Crawford
	4:00 Trin. B Enman. Lawler, Patterson
	6:00 SPS. IV Dent. B Smith, Brownridge
Fri., Jan. 25	4:30 SPS. I Vic. I Lawler, McClelland
	5:30 SPS. II U.C. II Lawler, McClelland

SPORTS CALENDAR

HOCKEY	1:00 Knox A Bus. Adm. V. Hart, Horkins
	4:00 U.C. I SPS. I Doyle, Jamieson
	6:00 For. B SPS. V Lawler, Smith
BASKETBALL
Major	1:00 Jr. Vic. Jr. SPS. Lye
	4:00 Jr. U.C. A Sr. Vic. Hamm
	6:30 SPS. III Bus. Adm. A Kerrison
	7:30 PHE. II St.M. A Kerrison
Minor	1:00 I Civil For. D Jackson
	4:30 III Mining Vic. VI Geary
	5:30 II Eng. Bus. Vic. VII Geary
	6:30 III Aero Vic. VIII Robson
	7:30 III Eng. Phys. U.C. St. George Robson

Hockey Referees — True and False Test Today — 5:00 p.m. Athletic Office, Hart House

If you can't make it today, see Miss Boyd re arranging another time.

SKIERS ATTENTION

The Athletic Association has chartered a bus to run to the Varsity Ski Club on Sunday, January 20th. This bus will leave Hart House at 9 a.m. Sunday (weather permitting) and return from Mulock's corner and Yonge Street at 4 p.m. Return tickets are 85 cents and must be purchased in the Athletic Office by Friday, January 18th.

There will be a meeting of the Ski Club Executive on Wednesday, January 16th, in the games room of St. Hilda's College, at 5 p.m.

Harbingers of Spring!

Just as the first robin sets your heart to singing, so too do these pretty suits of pastel wool.

Jackets and skirts are designed to face the future together . . . slim and trim as an exclamation mark and just as attention-getting . . . in colours that defy description.

You'll love these early messengers . . . they tell the fashion story for Spring and are veritable life-savers for tired Winter wardrobes. Sizes 14 to 20.

$11.95 to $19.95

Evangeline

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 751 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pope
- In Hamilton—King and John Sts.

THE DENTS AT-HOME

TOMORROW - - Royal York Hotel

THE BEST WELCOME HOME SINCE 1918

TALKING SHOP

which with a large red belt around the DIAL $80! You hear that command pretty often these days and as usual there's a reason. CKEY has put us in its debt by the sanity of their "Block Programming" and you may have noticed that a good many stations are following suit. Take the "Make Believe Ballroom" from five-thirty to seven-thirty, there's solid listening where you can honestly relax after a day's work knowing that no one's going to leave you hanging over a cliff. It's a fact that at least one of the big time U.S. stations offered the management of CKEY five figure moneys to work out the same set-up south of the border. According to a recent fact survey nearly as many Toronto listeners tune in to CKEY's Parity Band No. 4, from 6:15 to 6:30 as to all the other Toronto stations put together.

* * *

ARE YOU A MIRROR MANIAC?

Do you stop in front of every mirror and primp and pat and try to coax your hair because it just doesn't do right by your face? Are you so rushed for time that you keep putting off going to a hairdresser for the simple reason that there are not enough minutes in the day to get through classes, a minimum of study and the social essentials? Then cut out this phone number and cherish it. LA. 2671. Miss Cleiman can fix you up with an over-all cold wave (12.50) or a machineless (6.50 up), the kind that stays perky correct, well-shaped to the head, one of those "no worry" permanents, and guaranteed to last 6-8 months, right in your own room while you work. Miss Cleiman is a conscientious young hairdresser with an eye to today's styling.

* * *

JOAN RIGBY likes the things we like... she has a canny eye for the turn to a shoulder or a tricky new closing, is quick to capitalize on any right new fashion-fancy as dreamed up by a good designer which is why we can tell you with a good deal of satisfaction that in our opinion "Joan" clothes win an order of merit because they point the way to greater sophistication in Canadian wearables. Joan Rigby definitely gives the lie to the defeatist theory that good clothes are a monopoly of the Americans or the French or of Bond Street. Her things belong in smart company the world over.

* * *

A DAINTY NEW BLOUSE does wonders toward perking up a suit which obvious fact is known to one and all, but what we want to stress is that the Evangeline Shops are showing a superior collection of blouses and they are well supplied with classics in blouses and those fascinating numbers which give the wearer that appealing look designed to arouse the protective instinct in the unsophisticated male. Your nearest Evangeline Shop (don't crowd, girls) is at 751 Yonge.

* * *

THOSE SWEATER NECKS AT NORTHWAYS, a most attractive idea for lectures or an informal date, styled on wing-sleeve dresses, skirts with pressed pleats, large slit pockets, covered buttons down to waist at back, all add up to jocular little numbers

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

LOST—Medium size black leather notebook. Blue index tabs; containing all important notes of five subjects; Dec. 12; possibly in Victoria College. Finder please mail notes to S.A.C. office.

LOST—Plastic-rimmed glasses. Trinity field or Bloor St. Please leave at S.A.C. office, Room 82, U.C. Reward.

LOST—Polyphase slide rule in black case, Saturday, near Hart House. John White, MI. 7072.

FOR SALE—$18.00. Laminated hickory racing skis—lignestone edges. Complete with racing boots and harness with superdiagonal attachment for downhill skiing. Phone RA. 7511.

PERSONAL—Joe: Heard Mickey Lester again. Did he forget? Maude.

WANTED—Girl student desires daily transportation from Toronto to Ajax return North Toronto district.

EXCHANGE—Would the person who took wrong galoshes Tuesday night, Women's Union, please call HY. 8714 and receive own.

waist as positively a joy to put on. And don't overlook the 16.95 wools for which Northways are so popular, they come in a wide variety of ideas and are "detectable datemakers" in anybody's language.

* * *

THE ANTOINE HAIR STYLISTS are essentially artists, trained in the craft of hairdressing. They are especially delighted to do a "job" with hair that seems to have no future. They like to take a head of hair that is poorly shaped and by means of cleverly tapering give it that moulded look of excellent and permanent good grooming. A frousy head of hair can be cleverly prevented if you simply give yourself time enough to have a chat with Mrs. Head of the Antoine Hair salon at Holt Renfrew.

* * *

COMFORT... the warm glow of pleasant relief from pain which follows an application of Sloan's Liniment to an area which has been painful or uncomfortably tense. The result of an acceleration of circulation which follows an application of Sloan's is the driving out of accumulated poisons in the blood, creating vitality and a new feeling of healthful stimulation. Which is why a bottle of Sloan's in the medicine cabinet is taken for granted in more and more Canadian homes, because Sloan's is still leader among the liniments.

* * *

BRACELETS FROM PERU... are among the exotic and interesting jewellery which is yours for the buying at Mr. Carpenter's INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP just east of Yonge, at 32 Bloor East, almost next to the Canadian Red Cross headquarters. You'll be tempted to make excuses to remain and examine each of those precious ideas which have been collected for some particular quality of individuality and charm that has not escaped the searching eye of Mr. Carpenter. We wish some of our visiting American theatrical people could be led to these items, because after looking over the field in the U.S.A. we don't mind admitting that the galaxy of ear-rings, chokers, lapel pins et al., as shown at the Interesting Jewellery Shop have the American offerings nicely covered.

* * *

WINTER IS THE TIME OF YEAR when a wise woman remembers Springtime... and is subtle enough to know that a soft enveloping fragrance gentle as the promise of a summer garden is armour against the dullness of bleak days and chilly evenings. Fragrance GEMMY by Richard Hudnut captures the memory of growing petals in the sunshine and keeps that memory in winter close and personal and lovely. Fragrance GEMMY is made from a scientific formula which has been perfected to hold its breathless surprise of freshness after less exquisite perfumes have wilted.

* * *

STANDARD EQUIPMENT for a Canadian winter is a good fur coat, and Gillespie's are a standard of quality which Torontonians have been pleased to O.K. these many years. Gillespie's have never "spared the pelt to spoil the coat" as the saying is: into their styling has gone the generosity of cutting and finishing which results in a coat with that swing which is the nonchalant quality of belonging to the elect of fashioning.

New and Entrenous

From Hubba To Tazza

By E. Ross McLean

People You Meet On A Meatless Tuesday: Paul Serson back to Lux-lathered cleanliness with the sudden and strange return of the much-publicized missing bathtub plug... the pipe vanished from Serson's suite at 73 St. George Street "somewhere in New Year's Eve"... The U.C. Follies Music Director advertised and apparently aroused the sympathies of someone close to the culprit who gave Serson the telephone tip of the stopper's whereabouts... The unnamed M. & P. student who reportedly asked a sales clerk recently if "she had French curves"... the M.-&-P'ster reports a taut moment until he was able to explain that a French curve was a—well, you know!

This journal's blithe report that the Lee Collection soon to repose in Hart House comprised: chalices, paten, paxes, mazer bowls, tazzas, etc... Tazzas! Paxes! Can any reader, as they say, help? ... The heated discussion between the Literary Director and the Athletic Director of a certain undergraduate society as to which of the two should organize a ping pong tournament... "Ping pong?" the athletic head snorted disdainfully. "That, athletic!"... Quip of the week: From a co-ed came a letter to a friend explaining her delay in returning to the campus. Involved a broken leg. The damsel had taken to skis over the Christmas respite and had attempted an especially treacherous trail. "Thought I could ski," she wrote. "Oh fallacy of fall-icy!"

George "Virtuous" Forster, Varsity's exuberant News Editor still talking of his press conference with Ike the other morning... Most memorable feature of the press huddle with the General seems to have been the presence of a U.S. Army Captain whose prime function during the interview was to proffer, light and butt the General's cigarettes... probably a "Cigs" officer.

Somehow comforting is word that the undergraduate of 1946 is not suppressing a single boisterous impulse. Witness the report that a party of pyromania-inclined pranksters loaded their prof's pipe bowl recently with match heads... Details are wanting... Denouement has the students presenting same prof with a long-stemmed substitute for the other charred favorite... In your pipe and smoke it, put that!

Enjoyed the mordant observation of a Maritime delegate to the Canadian University Press conference as he waited between trains in Toronto on the Sunday on which the conference closed. The Queen's Journal's Yarga overheard the Bluenose, disgusted because not a restaurant was open, mutter: "About the only thing you can do in this blasted city is board a train for Montreal!"

Chess players of Hart House have become tidier housekeepers since the House's pre-Christmas inspired object lesson... The Chess Room was abruptly closed and displayed for several days in the state in which it had been left at the end of one day's use... the littered tables and floors and askew furniture were mute testimony to the mental and physical turmoil demanded by the physical pastime... with promises of reform, the Room was shortly re-

What's on Today

V. C. F.

1:00 p.m.—Christie Wilson, Missionary Secretary of the I.V.C.F. for North America, will speak in Room 211 of the Anatomy Building. Lunches available.

* * *

U. of T. Liberal Association
4:00 p.m.—The U. of T. Liberal Association will hold a business meeting in Wymilwood at 4:00 p.m.

* * *

U.C.-Trinity Classics Club
8:15 p.m.—Dr. G. Bagnani will speak on "Papyri Hunting" at a meeting of the U.C.-Trinity Classics Club in the Women's Union.

PERSONAL—Hey Mabel, who are you talking to the second Whitney Hall Formal, February 15th? Beulah.

SORRY!

TICKETS SOLD OUT

FOR

Trinity College Conversazione

Featuring ANNA RUSSELL

FRIDAY, JANUARY 18, 1946

STRACHAN HALL — 9 P.M. to 2 A.M.

Music by BOBBY GIMBY

FORMAL DRESS

Sight of the week: School's most austere dignitaries letting down their hair (where possible) and demonstrating to the Ajax freshmen class the intricacies of an acceptable Toike Oike yell... The cherished ritual of Toike Oike! Toike Oike! had not lately known such a decorous performance.

BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Virginia Dare

BOW PEEP BLOUSES — $2.98 each

Sizes 14 to 20

Bows peep alluringly from beneath your favorite suit — carefree little bows on smoothly styled blouses that will be the pride and joy of your wardrobe.

The short-sleeved blouse comes in Rose, Turquoise and Blue. $2.98 each.

The long-sleeved blouse with the tucking comes in Red, Green, Yellow, Turquoise and Lime. $2.98 each.

A Store in Your Neighborhood.

MAIL ORDERS

With money order send 10c to cover cost of mailing. Send to Head Office, Kent Building, Toronto.

Virginia Dare
LIMITED

Establish Fellowship Tribute To Dean Brett

AVAILABLE TO ANY GRADUATE

Friends, colleagues and former students of the late Professor George S. Brett, head of the Department of Philosophy and Dean of the School of Graduate Studies of the University of Toronto, have formed a committee to establish a Brett Memorial Fellowship to be open to graduate students of universities throughout the world.

Felt to be the most fitting tribute to Dean Brett's memory as philosopher, teacher and man, the fellowship will "enable the aspiring and deserving student, in whom his interest was unfailing to pursue studies such as those which under his direction became a discipline and a way of life," the committee has announced.

Designed to strengthen the School of Graduate Studies, already one of the largest on the continent, the fellowship will probably be valued at $1,200. It would also serve to keep within the country students who until now have had to go to the United States for graduate work. "While it is to our advantage to draw more graduates of Canadian universities together for post-graduate work, it will do us much good to have our best minds meet in classroom discussion as well as in their leisure moments. At the same time we hope to give recognition to others who have helped us."

Works in history of science and psychology by Dr. Brett brought international renown to the university and to Canada. Before coming here in 1911 he taught in England and India. Member of various publication boards under the auspices of international societies, he headed a section of the Royal Society of Canada.

The School of Graduate Studies of which he was dean has had a steadily increasing enrollment since it came into

Dear John:

Twenty-five men are wanted. Well, preferably men. They are wanted by the girls of the Cheshire County Training College, Crew, England. The girls want pen-pals.

Addressed to a former secretary of the International Student Service and written in a neat, disciplined hand on blue-crested stationery, a plea from the Cheshire County girls has come to this office. It is signed, "(Miss) Ellen Scott (Secretary)."

"Some of us," it begins without preamble, "are anxious to correspond with Canadian students between the ages of 18 and 21, please. Is it possible to find 25 students to write to us here?"

"We should," Miss Scott adds coyly, "prefer men students."

Not even a letter as pledge of good faith is needed. Twenty-five men have only to leave their names and addresses at the I. S. S. Office, Hart House, to make the Cheshire County girls happy.

"UNDERGRAD" AWARDS

Those who submitted work for the Art and Photography Competition sponsored by The Undergrad, may now collect it by calling at the office of The Undergrad, Room 10 University College, between 2 and 4:30 P.M. Tuesday the 22nd.

Weekly 'Campus' Is New Tabloid

Self-described as "A Journal of Student Opinion," another periodical distributed its initial issue on the campus Thursday. Christened "Campus," the new publication stated in a front-page editorial that it was "not in competition with Varsity, but merely a supplement to it."

Planning to appear every Thursday, Campus is a four-page tabloid. Its Editor-in-chief is Phil Shackleton, former Make-up Editor of The Varsity. From The Varsity's reportorial staff, to become Campus Associate Editors, went Bob Marjoribanks and Jack Shapiro.

Vending of Ale Is School Issue

Advocates of temperance will be indirectly involved Monday when Skule starts to criticize systems of releasing beverages to the public, Monday night.

More swinging doors, more licenced distributors,—many angles of contention may be used in the Engineering Debate "Resolved that the beverage rooms should be replaced by open bars," at 5:00 Room 25 in the Engineering Building.

The case for the bars will be upheld by Bob Sims and Eric Dafeo, opposed by Boris Stoitcheff and Ted Garson. Speaker will be Bob Singer of the University Debate Club.

FEES

Mr. A. B. Fennell, Registrar of the University, announced today that all fees must be paid within the next few days. Fees for the Faculty of Arts are due on January 20, as are University College residence fees.

Lash To Reduce Crime Conclude U.C. Debaters

The University College Parliament decided, by two-thirds majority, that the lash will reduce crime, in the first meeting of the spring term last Friday in the U.C. Junior Common Room.

Telford Georges, first speaker for the government, said that the lash was not advocated as something brutal, but as the best measure to deal with the present wave of crime that is sweeping the community. "What is needed is not idealism but fact," he said. "It cannot be denied that punishment is a deterrent to crime, and by increasing punishment and by providing swift detection the crime wave could be considerably lessened."

"Any one would commit a crime if only education would result—it would be an incentive for free education," said S.A. Rieder, second speaker for the government. He believed that it was regrettable that social reform is impossible in the near future, and that the use of the lash in a few isolated cases would be less brutal than allowing the present outrages against innocent people to continue.

Eric Preston, first opposition speaker, asked if modern society should revert to the Mosaic Law of an eye for an eye, admitting, however, that it was useful, but the end does not justify the means said Preston. If the lash is used the prisoner will see society as a monster, and will convey this idea to others, with the result that crime will not be lessened, but the criminal will invent new methods for avoiding detection.

"We must show him his error through his eyes and ears, not through his hide. We must put him in an asylum and teach him, with gentle firmness, of course," concluded Preston.

Virginia Smith asserted that the potential criminal rarely considers the result of his crime, and thus the punishment is not as important in detecting crime as the government believes. She feared that use of the lash in penal institutions would lead to its use in places such as schools and orphanages, or that it would make martyrs of the criminals.

"The anti-social attitude of the criminal must be removed by social work and education; men who have been whipped become worse, they are neither humanized nor socialized," Miss Smith said.

Preceding the opening of the Parliament, Gordon McCaffrey, president of the U. C. Literary and Athletic Society, knighted 13 members of the college in the New Year's Honor list.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, MONDAY, JANUARY 21, 1946

No. 64

DOUBLE TRIUMPH FOR BLUE ICEMEN

Canadian Campus

LET IT SNOW

By Dorothy Harley

"Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow!" is the refrain on all camp this January for, according to Canadian Campus information this week, skiing is far and away the favourite winter sport of university students from east to west of the country. Skating and hockey run near seconds and various indoor sports are popular, but when conditions are right rinks, pools, badminton and squash courts are neglected as people pack themselves into trains and buses and head for neighbouring ski runs.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

Weather conditions cause opportunities for the sport to vary across Canada, but everywhere right now a snowflake is as welcome as the first sign of spring. The Laurentian area is, of course, the skiers' paradise and the facilities this "little piece of Switzerland" offers are made full use of by universities in the district. On all camp reporting this week the sport is organized by clubs which arrange expeditions, competition, and, although they take their skiing seriously, social activities.

At McGill a general weekly exodus begins Friday when ski slacks are worn to classes. On Monday, weary athletes return on early-morning trains and, still wearing ski slacks, go back to classes. Sun and wind burn is prevalent. Competitive races are the highlight of the sport for all Quebec universities and McGill has two ski teams of high calibre. The club ski house at Shawbridge is a centre for cross country runs while right in Montreal is Mount Royal where floodlights permit after-school skiing.

Bishop's University, which has lots of good skiing country all around it, competes regularly with other organizations in the vicinity and an annual cross-country run fosters a large amount of interest in the college. Probably the most important event of the season however is the Eastern Championship. Bishop's enter every year and this necessitates much training on the part of the team.

In the east skating seems to have a slight edge in popularity over skiing since good skating conditions can usually be depended on. With the temperature dropping well below zero

H.H. Sunday Evening Concert

Kathleen Busby, soprano, and Jean Létourneau, tenor, with Marjorie Lea at the piano, will give the Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House at 9 p.m. On Sunday next, 2nd January. Representatives of the various colleges and faculties are requested to call at the Warden's office today for their allotments of tickets.

Spry for all its 65 years of service to the students of The University of Toronto, THE VARSITY has with today's issue reached a milestone.

Tomorrow's edition of The Undergraduate Newspaper will present a streamlined publication of increased size and circulation to its readers.

With tomorrow's issue THE VARSITY steps into the front ranks of campus newspapers on this continent.

Its format revamped, its volume increased, its circulation figures raised to 11,000 to serve adequately the unprecedented U. of T. registration at Queen's Park and Ajax camp, THE VARSITY triumphantly advises readers to "watch their daily newspaper."

Mount Allison students now have perfect ice on which to work off that excess energy but fingers are still being kept crossed for a good snowfall. Skiers work under a handicap because as well as the snow, the number of close hills is limited. The ski club, however, was formed last year and is headed by an enthusiastic executive which is planning an over-night trip the first weekend the weather makes it possible.

There's lots of snow in Manitoba this year and Sunday ski expeditions to Sun Valley, Lockport, and La Riviere are organized by an energetic club. In addition two buses visit good skiing territory in the province every week. Manitoba also reports a vigorous movement which is under way to rebuild Varsity hockey, neglected for the last six years.

Ottawa University has a newly organized ski club and plans this year to corral novice and expert alike into the fold. Competent instructors are holding ski schools to develop promising talent.

The ski club is the best known and most popular winter organization on Queen's campus. It has, as yet, no facilities for regular Sunday trips but instructional movies and club get-togethers are held frequently. Queen's has all types of skating and the last two years have seen successful carnivals presented. This year, unfortunately, because of the lack of time, there will be no performance.

The University of Toronto staff also has a very active 'skiing set'. The club owns a ski hut in Newmarket which is surrounded by excellent skiing territory. Special buses to Dagmar are run for the students at Ajax.

Seek Newshawks To Cover Ajax

This afternoon, in the S.A.C. office in the Ajax Administrative Building, several senior members of The Varsity masthead will be on hand to meet any and all Schoolmen with journalistic aspirations.

Ajax correspondents are needed to help cover the already-oversize campus. Sportswriters, photographers, news reporters, feature writers, and editors can all find a place on The Varsity.

"Experience," stated Editor-in-Chief Hugh Kenner, "is not essential, though helpful. Anyone intending a future newspaper career can gain a valuable background in nosing out the news around the campus, and learning how to write in an interesting concise manner."

While expertly finished work is not demanded, men interested in this sort of work are urged not to be reticent, and be there this afternoon to discuss the serious problem of Ajax coverage with the editors of the paper. The editor-in-chief stated that he was "on the lookout" for an Ajax masthead. Arrangements have been made for an office for The Varsity on the Ajax campus, he said.

Queen's, Clarkson Topple In Week-End Encounters

KRYZANOWSKI STARS

By Al Cringan

The Bailey-coached Varsity Blues made a clean sweep on their week-end tour, with a 6-1 victory over Queen's University at Kingston on Friday evening, and a 7-2 win over Clarkson College at Potsdam, N.Y., on the following night.

Led by centremen Wally Halder and defenceman Ed Kryzanowski, and solidly backed up by Dick Ball in goal, the Blues gained their five goal margin over the hard-checking Scots in the third period, to retain top position in their C.I.A.U. Senior group. In Saturday's exhibition game, Jack Murphy in goal was the only change in the line-up, when Varsity invaded the small American college town to take on the Clarkson engineers.

Sociology Club To Hear Ketchum

"Propaganda and Morale in Post-War Retrospect" will be the topic of discussion by Prof. Ketchum of the Psychology Department, at the next meeting of the Sociology Club, it was announced today. The meeting will take place at Wymilwood at 8:15 p.m. next Wednesday, January 23rd.

Prof. Ketchum has returned this term to the university after wartime leave of absence, during which he was one of the directors of the Wartime Information Board of the Dominion Government in Ottawa. His talk will deal with his own researches and applications in the field of civilian wartime morale and propaganda, in his government work.

The meeting is open to all, with a special invitation to ex-servicemen and Soc. & Phil. students. Refreshments will be served.

Lawyers Frolic Features Skit

Selection of the Queen of the Ball, and a skit entitled "Station WY" provided entertainment for the dancing couples during intermission at the "Barristers" Ball, held at the Balm Beach rowing club at the end of last week.

Gordon Stulberg, master of ceremonies, asked everyone to remember that "Barristers" must be said in quotation marks, otherwise he would be sued by the Bar for misrepresentation.

Paul Simmons, aided by Hugh Graham, IV U.C. at the piano played for dancing.

APOLOGY

The editorial staff of The Varsity apologizes to its readers and to all Physiotherapy students for the ill-considered and flippant use of the word "frustrated" in the issue of Tuesday, Jan. 15.

1400 Fans at Queen's

Some 1400 hockey fans, most of them Queen's students, packed the Jock Hartly Arena, official ice-centre of Queen's University. The old collegiate spirit ran high in the stands, with frequent "Cha Gaels" conducted by three male cheer-laders, a yell for the visitors, and whiz-bombs on the ice at intermission.

Ace Bailey sent out his Kosick-Bauer-Bromley line to start against the Queen's ace forward line of Ohlke-Morrow-Hood, with Wade and Putlock on the Blues' defence against Hamilton and Elliott for the Tricolours. Dick Ball was untested in the Varsity nets for the first few minutes of the game, and the fine defence work of Elliott kept the attacking Beavers from making any good shots on the home-club's goalkeeper "Weed" Wood.

The game threatened to open up after six minutes of play, when Queen's broke away, but Ed Kryzanowski got back and flattened Kent with the hardest check of the night, breaking up the attack, and putting him out for the rest of the period.

For the balance of the first stanza, the game featured scoreless end-to-end rushes by both teams, but Varsity showed their superiority both coming and going, carrying their rushes further than the Gaels, and their defence being just a little smoother.

Score Tied, Second Period

Opening the second stanza with the same line-ups, the Scots took the play from the face-off, and centremen Morrow took a shot on Ball which stopped and stayed on the goal-line. The day (Continued on page 3)

AJAX STUDENTS

Students in the Ajax division interested in furthering the news, sports, and feature coverage of The Varsity are urged to contact Mr. J. B. Essery, Students' Administrative Council Office, Administration Building, at once. Openings for photographers are also available.

A meeting to organize the Ajax staff will be held Monday, Jan. 21.

U.C. Seeks T.G.W.W.M. R.S.A.L.I.H.A.C.D.W.

Hollywood in rotating seasons can have its candidates for the sundry oomph, zing and mmmmm titles. It can label its beauties The Face, The Legs, The Look or The Eyebrows.

But University College is seeking something special.

University College, its student executive announces today, is shopping for "The Girl We Would Really Skip A Lecture To Have A Coke-Date With."

This Coke-Date Coed of The Campus is at present in the ranks of some 24 contenders for the cherished title. Contents to choose her will begin at this afternoon in the Junior Common Room. Preliminary eliminations will take place then, prior to a Red and White Night tomorrow evening in the Women's Union.

A dozen will be selected to appear before a four-man panel of judges at the R. & W. Night and a quartet of finalists narrowed down for the Arts Ball.

Ultimate choice of T. G. W. W. M. R. S. A. L. I. H. A. C. D. W.—or Coke-Date Coed—will be made by U. S. Bandleader Sonny Dunham, featured artist at the dance.

Hoping to strike a mean, U.C. has appointed its tallest and its shortest male students—John Palmer and Wes Knowlton—as two of the judges at the preliminaries Tuesday night. Fittingly, the quartet of Coke-Date finalists will be selected by a straw vote.

Editorial

No Place To Go

We are perpetually getting letters from readers who accuse us, on one pretext or another, of trying to drag back the Dark Ages. The idea is not altogether unpleasant: provided that, bricked up in Dark Age dungeons, our critics availed themselves of the leisure so furnished to get a little thinking done.

Thinking, they might then discover, goes somewhat past the caressing of comforting words; and true controversy is more than merely hurling catch-words at one who refuses to be impressed by them. The key of this epoch, insofar as it has a key, is the rejection of the Word Incarnate in favor of the Word Inchaote. Man must worship something. What is worshipped today is an array of words: "Education"; "Progress"; "Liberty"; "Scientific Method"; and the rest. The century which so prides itself on being above witchcraft is ensnared by the witchword, an even more blindly superstitious totem. For the witch clear-sightedly cast her spells on another, while the modern thinker unwittingly enmeshes even himself.

Ways, Not Goals

The most interesting thing about these witch-words is that none of them is a goal: they are all ways of reaching a goal. The preacher of "Education" is like a man who says that the Promised Land may be better reached by subway than by canal. He has not located the Promised Land. What is emphatically needed first of all is a map showing the location of the Promised Land. What we must do first of all is decide where we want to go, before we debate the different ways of going there. What is supremely necessary is to decide what is good.

"Every one of the popular modern phrases and ideals," wrote Chesterton 40 years ago, "is a dodge to shirk the problem of what is good. . . . The modern man says, 'Let us leave all these arbitrary standards and embrace liberty.' This is, logically rendered, 'Let us not decide what is good, but let it be considered good not to decide it.' He says, 'Away with your old moral formulae; I am for progress.' This, logically stated, means, 'Let us not settle what is good, but whether we are getting more of it.' He says, 'Neither in religion nor in morality lie the hopes of the race, but in education.' This, clearly expressed, means, 'We cannot decide what is good, but let us give it to our children.'"

Education Not An End

We objected in these columns some days ago to the claim that a college degree was a universal prerogative; and were not surprised to receive the usual deluge of letters. What was—we will not say surprising—a little saddening about the run of the mail was its insistence on more and more education, education to the nth power, as the sole possible alleviator of social, spiritual, and even physical ills. Our point in the first place was that not everybody was fitted for book-teaching, especially book-teaching of an advanced and abstract sort. We were, to tell the truth, a little surprised that anybody argued that point. But we are rather stunned by the way nobody seems to care what is taught — or learned.

We should have expected some intelligent correspondent at least to propose a minimum of things that should be taught to everyone: reading and writing, for example, or the multiplication table. We should have expected someone to delimit a broad and simple basis of culture, on top of which, for those with the requisite aptitudes, more and more learning, abstract or technical, could be piled. No one did this. No one proposed a hierarchy of values. Everyone assumed that simply "education" was what mattered.

If we are not mistaken, the education of Nazi youth was long and painstaking; though to our taste it was the wrong kind of education. It might have been to the world's advantage had German boys, during the past 15 years, received not more education but less. It would have been better still, of course, if what education they got had been directed in the right direction; but if they were going to walk along the road they did, they might better not have gone twenty paces.

That is the trouble with roads: if one does not know where they lead, they may be taken irrevocably out of the way. That is the trouble with the Modern Mind.

—W. B. K.

THE VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper
Established 1880
Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editor-in-Chief.....W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor.....Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor.....Peg Wallace, B.A.
Reprint Editor.....Barbara Hood, B.A.
News Editor.....George Forster, 477
Assistant.....Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor.....Bredin Stappels, 476
Assistant.....Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor.....Polly Muz, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange
Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama
Editor.....Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer.....Ralph Jones, 476
Night Editor: John Rooke
Assistant: Marg Bowes

Correspondence

A Protest From Pass

The Editor, The Varsity
Dear Sir:

This letter will undoubtedly be one of a flood to reach you after the publication of a letter by Robert R. Robinson on January 10.

Mr. Robinson apparently is one of those who believes a course to be worth the degree it offers, and not its educational value. He erroneously (I'm afraid I can't match him in big words) believes that the Pass Arts course is entered upon solely for the letter which it allows one to place after one's name, thereby providing one with a passport to "polite society."

May I point out to this either ignorant or misled person that a string of letters a foot long does not make a man or woman a member of "polite society," nor does the lack of them brand a person as being inferior. A man's character, integrity and intelligence are entirely uninfluenced by the (Continued on page 4)

Art, Music and Drama

Post-War Fireworks

Clifford Poole, young Canadian pianist, presented one of the most successful recitals of the season in Eaton Auditorium Wednesday night. Recently discharged from the R.C.A.F., Mr. Poole is continuing a concert career interrupted by the war. Last evening's performance proves him to be a pianist of growing significance and rare intelligence.

Outstanding qualities of Mr. Poole's performance are fluency, finely-controlled tone, and an abundance of good musicianship. A most valuable asset is his apparent freedom of manner and spontaneity of performance.

A highlight of the programme was the Bach-Busoni Chaconne, an exacting composition demanding both technical precision and tremendous power. Mr. Poole's interpretation was superb. He achieved that effect of religious magnificence inherent in Bach, but so seldom attained on the concert stage.

Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11 was brilliant according to the Liszt tradition. However, this reviewer felt that its musical impact became lost in an excess of technical display. It is open to question which is more important, the music itself or an artist's mastery over music.

—COURT STONE.

Revolution On Principle

There are certain young Canadian painters who are apparently determined to paint in a "revolutionary" manner. It seems to me that the results, as embodied in the exhibition of their work which has been showing at Eaton's College Street for the past ten days or so, could be more nearly described as "revolting."

Maybe I'm already too old to appreciate these young bloods born five years or so after me, but the general impression the show gave me was one of overwhelming ugliness, and—should I stick my neck out?—incompetence (that forbidden word!). You can tell, I believe, when an artist has attained a complete mastery over his medium, and then deliberately renounces a display of his technical skill in the interests of greater expression. . . . You can also tell when a person who has a merely elementary ability to control pigment picks up the tricks, the little peculiarities of people like Roualt or Matisse, that to him constitute the essence of expressionism, and incorporates them into canvases that are as essentially empty and meaningless as those of his direct spiritual ancestors, the sixteenth century Mannerists. Just add to this the sophisticated "back to the primitive" revolt of Gauguin, and you get the worst of electric modernism featured in this exhibition.

Personally, I can see no need for the extravagant revolutionary spirit here displayed. The grip of academism on artistic life has been so weakened, in the places where it counts, that there is no longer much point to

Editorial Encores

Practical? Phooey!

From The Dalhousie Gazette comes this excerpt from an editorial occasioned by the demand in a local paper for "More attention to practicalities in a university education."

Though a knowledge of the cause of depressions and wars does not by any means place these phenomena under our control, it is only after we have learned something of the rules, the risks, and the mistakes of our fore-runners that we even get into the game, let alone a chance of winning.

As the product of current education, we would think the world perfect once we had financial and social security, and hence we blindly scratch about collectively and individually for some nice comfortable niche in the grand mechanism, apparently oblivious of the record of its performance during the last 20 years, too stunned by habit and up-bringing to realize that there yet exist no good reasons why it will not happen again—and on a scale that will blast the torch of culture and human achievement far from our eager clutch.

...The very word "liberal" implies that the knowledge acquired during the experience is a pleasure to the intellect, thus constituting an end in itself, and there lies the distinction between the "more useful" types of instruction: the latter... are actually no more than a means to an end.

For the individual personally, the perusal of the story of his predecessors... tends to round out his own character and personality, in that it broadens his general view towards life, develops his special talent and abilities, expands and raises his standards of taste, and, most of all, constructs for him a standard of values to indicate the solid ground along his way. He has then some equipment for making the most of his life, and, able to see the forest for the trees, retains some human qualities in the struggle that now endeavours to transform him into a mere mechanical part.

D.V.A. ARRANGEMENTS

All ex-service students who have not completed their full arrangements with D.V.A. should do so immediately in order to avoid any complications when registering for their annual examinations.

THIS IS ALL OVER OUR HEAD

Player's Please

MILD OR MEDIUM

"IT'S THE TOBACCO THAT COUNTS"

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT CIGARETTES

Come One - Come All to Simpson's

JUNIOR VOGUE FABRIC FASHION SHOW

Simpson's Fabric Department—Second Floor... Tuesday, Thursday, Friday at 4:30... January 22nd to 25th.

"What's the Answer?"... Saturday morning, January 26th at 10:15 a.m.... Simpson's Arcadian Court.

See Simpson's Collegiate Club girls model the "absolute latest" in fashions.

Marion Blackington, Vogue Fashionist from New York will tell you all about these junior styles.

So don't forget... it's Simpson's Fabric Department... it's "What's the Answer?"... to see the Collegiate Club girls model the new Junior fashions!

Simpson's

Make Better Marks

WITH THESE COLLEGE FAVORITES

YOU'LL PASS ALL YOUR TESTS WITH HONOURS!

MIRADO WRITING PENCIL

VERITHIN COLORED PENCIL

TURQUOISE DRAWING PENCIL

BUY ALL 3 FROM YOUR favorite

SCHOOL SUPPLY DEALER

U. of T. L.P.P. CLUB

Controller Stewart Smith
"THE HOUSING PROBLEM"

Cartwright Hall Tuesday, Jan. 22
8.00 p.m.

VIC 4T9

The Class Picture for Vic 4T9 will be taken on the steps of the Museum

Tuesday, Jan. 22 -- 1.20 p.m.

Everybody be there on time

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 5 p.m. today.

Informal Recital

Bill Hossack (II Victoria), 'cellist, with George Crum at the piano, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Talk in Art Gallery

Professor A. F. Coventry, past Chairman of the Camera Committee, will review the Annual Exhibition of Photographs in the art gallery at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday. This is primarily for those who are not members of the Camera Club.

VARSITY SHATTERS MYTH OF ASSUMPTION SUPREMACY

Six Goal Margin Does It

By Bob Morrison

They said it couldn't be done. They said Assumption had the finest basketball team in Canada. But on Saturday night, by a 57-51 score, the Varsity seniors proved that it could be done.

In the feature attraction of "Review Nite" in the big gym at Hart House the "big blues" took their hometown rivals into camp. In this colorful contest, the locals showed that they may now be considered as one of Canada's top senior basketball squads.

The purple of Assumption served early notice of their offensive intentions as Ralt Wade chalked up the initial basket within the first minute of play. The visiting quintet continued to press the blues strongly with Coulthard, Ado Rorai, Hank Biasatti, and Freddy Thomas all counting to give them a commanding lead of 17-4.

The only Varsity men to find the mark were Doug Spry and Harry Mayzell. Play evened up considerably following this start, and the quarter ended with the locals trailing 19-9.

Headed by the starry Thompson and Cranham the Blues returned to the attack in the second quarter to astound their rivals by scoring six consecutive field goals and two foul shots, thus gaining the lead for the first time during the game. To stem the onrushing Varsity tide, coach Red Nantis signaled for several time-outs. These breathers appeared to aid the visitors during the rough play which followed.

In an effort to check dusky Freddy Thomas, a smooth acquisition from the R.C.A.F. Uplands team of 1945, Toronto incurred several penalties. Murry Thompson and Gord Wallace popped up from nowhere on a number of occasions to halt the coloured star before he could work the ball into the Varsity zone.

The Assumption defence settled down to stop the fast-breaking Blues, and held them till the half-way mark. Half-time score: Toronto, 29; Assumption, 25.

Returning to their early-game form the Windsorites broke through the Toronto defence to recapture the lead at about the five-minute mark of the third quarter. The locals again were penalized heavily for their over-anxious checking tactics, and Assumption made most of their foul shots count.

Coach Dilworth retaliated with a fresh string, and the game developed into a thrilling see-saw, as both teams fought hard for the lead. The Toronto team-play was well co-ordinated, and their roving zone, or floating defense system, proved highly effective.

The visitors' attacks were crowded off, so that the teams almost divided the scoring. The Blues finished the third frame on the top end of a 41-40 count.

The play lived as the Blues paced their ambitious rivals through the opening minutes of the final session. As the players ranged up and down the floor, the home team matched the visitors basket for basket. With about five minutes remaining Toronto increased their two-point margin on pay-able scores by Whitey Clayton, Mayzell, and Spry.

Assumption continued to fight with fervour, and Biasatti and Thomas capitalized to maintain hope for the purple and white.

However, with a minute and fifteen seconds remaining, veteran Don Gibson waived a free throw when fouled by Ado Rorai. Amid the roars of the

:- Sport in Short :-

HOCKEY

Wednesday, Jan. 15:
S.P.S. IV 6 Med. III
Thursday, Jan. 16:
Dent. A 3 S.P.S. III
U.C. II 5 Vic. II

Friday, Jan. 17:
S.P.S. V 4 For. B
U.C. I 6 S.P.S. I
Bus. Admin. 1 Knox A

BASKETBALL

MAJOR

Wednesday, Jan. 15:
For. A 36 Pharm. 11
Fr. Vic. 29 Sr. U.C. 28
S.P.S. IV 13 Med. Ser. A 12
Thursday, Jan. 16:
S.P.S. V 36 Knox A 10

over-excited crowd, Varsity froze the ball with some spectacular, if nerve-wracking, ball-handling till the final horn.

Line-ups:

Assumption—Biasatti (8); Lipsky (2); Thomas (10); Rorai (13); Coulthard (14); Williams; Wade (4); White.

Toronto—Mayzell (9); Fountain (2); Scott (2); Thomson (9); Gibson (8); Cranham (7); Wallace; Clayton (10); Spry (8); Zeaton (2).
Officials: Rogin and Mitchell.

WEEK-END TOUR

(Continued from Page 1)

was saved when Grant Puttock stepped in to knock it out with a quick back-sand shot. After two minutes of centre-zone play, the Blues changed their lines, and Bob Henry took advantage of an opening to sift through, steal the puck from Peat, and score on Wood from directly in front.

Queen's nearly tied it up when McKenzie broke away, and with only the goalie to beat, he was outguessed. Following up, the Bauer-centred line really drove for the Blues, and Bromley was all but robbed when his shot was stopped.

The homesters' equalizer came after eight minutes of play, on top of a nicely co-ordinated power-play, when Kent picked the puck up and passed to Elliott for the goal. Midway through the frame Referee Billy Watts gave Bromley and Ohlke the nod for roughing, when the two players collided on the boards.

Varsity had a one-man advantage late in the period, when George Elliott was banished for tripping, but could not score before the play was evened up again when Bill Kosick was given a cheap penalty for boarding. Morrow was on the crest of a goalward drive when the banshee siren of the Harty Arena called time over for the second frame.

Halder Gets Three

With Kosick's penalty running twenty seconds into the last stanza, Queen's tried everything but carrying the puck into the Varsity net in their last effort of organized drive of the game. When the Blues had six men on again, their five-goal nightcap drive began. Ed Kryznowski set up the play for Henry to count the clincher, after four minutes of play.

Jim Bromley nearly made it 3-1 when Wood was drawn out of the Queen's net, but George Elliott stepped in to fill the breach and made an all-

(Continued on page 4)

Friday, Jan. 17:
P.H.E. II 34 St. Mikes A 18
S.P.S. III 12 Bus. Admin. A 10
Jr. U.C. A 22 Sr. Vic. 9
Jr. S.P.S. 22 Jr. Vic. 12

MINOR

Wednesday, Jan. 15:
For. E 29 Trin. IV 11
U.C. VI 38 III Mech. 14
IV Civil 17 Med. Ser. B 8
P.H.E. IV 24 IV Chem. 23
IV Metal 48 Pre. Med. B 6
Thursday, Jan. 16:
II Elec. 39 U.C. Econ. 3
Friday, Jan. 17:
U.C. "73" 28 III Civil 18
III Aero 28 Vic. VIII 26
Vic. VI 19 III Mining 17
I Civil 33 For. D 8

Home Water Polo Team Triumphs Over Central "Y"

In the third of a series of exhibition games against Central "Y", the Varsity water polo team flared forth with a 6-1 victory. The game, played at Central Saturday afternoon, gives the "U" two straight wins against the "Y" boys.

The fighting spirit of Sid Bossin and Bill Moffat who accounted for two goals each gave Varsity the game all the way. Nevertheless, two of Central men kept the Blues on their toes. These were Jerry Bryars and Herb Bince who slipped in the home team's single point. Credit for the other two Varsity tallies goes to Eddie Lindgren and Harry Kohl.

This puts U. of T. in a position of uncontested supremacy in Toronto water polo circles. The position will be assailed next Saturday night at Hart House by a "suburban" team from Hamilton. An interesting point about this team is the fact that they defeated Central 6-1 the last time the two teams met.

"Y" Hoopsters Edged by Blues

In the preliminary basketball game at Hart House on Saturday night, University of Toronto Senior "A" hoopsters defeated the West End "Y" team in a hard-fought battle, by a 35-33 count.

Play throughout the first half was rough and scramble, with the West Enders being the worst offenders in this respect. The visitors built up an early lead, due to the effective work of Murdoch, and showed the way at half time, as they lead by a 19-14 score.

Loose play continued after the rest period, with both teams coming through with several baskets. The Y men, however, managed to keep their slim lead up until the end of the third quarter, when the Steele-coached Blue boys began to penetrate their rival's defense more frequently, with first Andrews and then Swan going up the floor for several important baskets.

Scoring honours for Varsity were shared between Andrews, Swan, and Teitmar, with the first two players also supplying some valuable defensive work. Top marksmen for the West End boys, were Wynne and Murdoch, while Corrigan's aggressiveness was noticeable.

Unbeaten Blue Pucksters Down Scarboro by 4-3

BOYD SCORES LATE IN GAME

The Blues still undefeated advanced in the Junior B Hockey race Friday night with a 4-3 win over the Scarboro Rangers at the Varsity Ice Palace. The game-winning counter came in the last three minutes of play with Harry Boyd steering a pass from Hugh Smythe into the Ranger goal.

Midway through the second period the game threatened to become a pugilistic display on a par with the encounters at the sundry local fight-sites. The players became very boisterous indeed. First, Formica and Foran were caught glaring angrily at each other and were expelled for two minutes for 'fighting'.

Shortly after, Hartrey went a couple of rounds with Davis of the Rangers, both were banished for five minutes with Hartrey collecting an extra two for starting the proceedings. Then homester Morrison joined them in the misdemeanour bench on a tripping rap.

The boys carried their effervescence into the third period with Formica of the visitors going off for holding, and his team-mate Chard following for high sticking. At this point, with the Rangers short handed for four minutes, the Blues aimed a terrific barrage of pucks at Briley in the Ranger nets, but not a shot turned on the red light.

A few minutes later Morrison and De Latt produced an excellent wrestling out in the corner. They were apparently using illegal holds as the referee waved them both to the penalty for five minutes.

All this and hockey too. And brilliant hockey it was, especially in the first period. Both teams started as if they had ideas of helping the Leafs out of the slump. The Varsity squad had a slight edge over their rivals in this frame with their defence being almost impregnable. Davidson scored a quick one in the first half minute of play for Varsity with Pelow adding another seven minutes later.

Early in the second round Smythe took the puck at his own blue line, outskated his check, slid the puck past the lone Ranger defenceman, and drove a high shot past Briley for the nearest goal of the night.

Irwin opened the scoring for Scarboro at the 28.26 mark by banging the puck into the net in a wild scramble in front of the Varsity cage. Formica encored for Scarboro several minutes later with the home squad short handed.

Briley in the visitor's goal was the chief reason that the score was kept down to 3-2 at the end of this period. Time after time the Smythe-coached team bored in, only to be turned away by his brilliant efforts.

Redman Davis knotted the count at 3-3 with less than eight minutes to play in the third set. This seemed to supply the needed spark-plug to the Scarboro motor, and for several minutes they swarmed around the Varsity mesh. Then Hugh Smythe carried the puck down the ice; was upset at the defense, but managed to get a pass to Boyd who speared the disc into the Ranger twine.

Hartrey was one of the big reasons the Blues copped the contest. His defensive play was superb. Davidson and Pelow also came through with excellent puck pushing performances.

Briley in the Scarboro net was the stand-out of his team. Formica, Irwin, and Davis, each with a goal, looked

(Continued on page 4)

SO NICE TO COME INTO!

Every Honey Dew Coffee Shop is a hide away from the hustle and bustle of that everyday routine. Try it today at lunch or dinner time. Come in—relax—regale yourself with fine, fresh food that gives you a new lease on life.

HONEY DEW COFFEE SHOPS

HANDY FOR STUDENTS

TAILORS — 6 Harbord St.

All alterations, repairs and remodeling

LADIES' AND GENTS' SUITS

Also Fur Coats.

Workmanship Guaranteed

MI. 0618

SOLID!

Yes, that's the trend today, fellows! For those who appreciate the best in woollens, women, and song, it's SOLID 99 44/100 to 1. And speaking of cloth, you simply must see our fresh selection of solid shades in browns, grays, and blues. These fine serges, soft flannels, and beautiful English gabardines eagerly await the feel of your fingers. We'd love to meet you at

LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES

449 Spadina Avenue
Phones: RA. 8995-6

Showroom hours are nine to nine daily, Saturdays until 6. Handmade clothes made right on the premises.

P.S.: Have you seen our one-button roll? (double-breasted, of course). Ask the man who wears one!

P.P.S.: We have enlarged our staff and can now give 4 week service (sooner if necessary).

Jewish Student Fellowship

Cordially invites you to attend a meeting in regards to the coming of

"HILLEL"

on the University of Toronto Campus

Speakers:

RABBI GERSTON LEVY

Director Designate of the HILLEL FOUNDATION

MURRAY SACHS

President of the Jewish Student Fellowship

Wednesday, Jan. 23 — 8 p.m. sharp

WOMEN'S UNION

REFRESHMENTS

DANCING

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

LOST—Medium size black leather notebook. Blue index tabs; containing all-important notes of five subjects; Dec. 12; possibly in Victoria College. Finder please mail notes to S.A.C. office.

WANTED—Girl student desires daily transportation from Toronto to Ajax return North Toronto district.

TYPING of any description done accurately and promptly. Reasonable. Charlotte, WA 9477.

WANTED—Invitations to the Arts Ball, from Betty and Mary. Contact Bill or Bob. P.S.: Maude doesn't interest us. Hope you are not going with Joe.

WANTED—Steno to do several afternoons' work (Saturday not suitable). Time arranged to suit. Will pay well. Write Box D, The Varsity.

TORONTO BUSINESS FIRM which renders specialized service to students, wants representative on Ajax campus for very light duties, not interfering with regular studies. Apply Box C, The Varsity.

LOST—Yellow mitt with brown fur backing, Thurs., Jan. 10th. Please return to S.A.C. office, or phone RA. 2975.

PERSONAL—Maude: Please listen to Mickey Lester once more, CKEY, 2:05. This time for sure. Joe.

WATCH REPAIRS—Expertly done by a student for the students. R. C. Hook, 553 Huron St. MI. 5516.

TAKEN BY MISTAKE — Black loose-leaf notebook, containing year's notes of 1st year M.P. & C. student, from Chemistry Bldg., Thurs. afternoon. Sentimental value. Please return to S.A.C. office.

DIRECT TO AJAX

BUSES LEAVE TORONTO BUS TERMINAL

a 6:25 a.m. a 2:30 p.m.

b 7:45 a.m. b 3:55 p.m.

(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

(b—except Sat., Sun. and Hol.)

TO AJAX ROAD AND NO. 2 HIGHWAY

a 6:30 a.m. 8:40 a.m.

7:30 a.m. 9:30 a.m.

and every hour.

on the half hour

until 10:30 p.m.

Also 11:40 p.m.

(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

GRAY COACH LINES

Bay at Dundas—Adelaide 4221

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

ALL THIS WEEK

"PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT NO. 1"
— Walter Winchell
Oscar Serlin in Clarence Day's

LIFE WITH FATHER

Made into a play by HOWARD LINDSAY and RUSSEL CHOUSE with Carl Benton Reid & Betty Litalay

Box Office Open 10 a.m.-10 p.m.

Evgs. 8:20; Mats. Wed. Sat. 2:30

MATS. WED. SAT. 2:30. $1.20. $1.80. All Tax Included.

TALKING SHOP

DIAL 5801 You hear that command pretty often these days and as usual there's a reason. CKEY has put us in its debt by the sanity of their "Block Programming" and you may have noticed that a good many stations are following suit. Take the "Make Believe Ballroom" from five-thirty to seven-thirty, there's solid listening where you can honestly relax after a day's work knowing that no one's going to leave you hanging over a cliff. It's a fact that at least one of the big time U.S. stations offered the management of CKEY five figure moneys to work out the same set-up south of the border. According to a recent fact survey nearly as many Toronto listeners tune in to CKEY's Purity Bread Band No. 4, from 6:15 to 6:30 as to all the other Toronto stations put together.

ARE YOU A MIRROR MANIAC? Do you stop in front of every mirror and primp and pat and try to coax your hair because it just doesn't do right by your face? Are you so rushed for time that you keep putting off going to a hairdresser for the simple reason that there are not enough minutes in the day to get through classes, a minimum of study and the social essentials? Then cut out this phone number and cherish it. L.A. 2671. Miss Cleman can fix you up with an over-all cold wave (12.50) or a wachinless (6.50 up), the kind that stays perky correct, well-shaped to the head, one of those "no worry" permanents, and guaranteed to last 6-8 months, right in your own room while you work. Miss Cleman is a conscientious young hairdresser with an eye to today's styling.

JOAN RIGBY likes the things we like... she has a canny eye for the turn of a shoulder or a tricky new closing, is quick to capitalize on any right new fashion-fancy as dreamed up by a good designer which is why we can tell you with a good deal of satisfaction that in our opinion "Joan" clothes win an order of merit because they point the way to greater sophistication in Canadian wearables. Joan Rigby definitely gives the lie to the defeatist theory that good clothes are a monopoly of the Americans or the French or of Bond Street. Her things belong in smart company the world over.

A DAINY NEW BLOUSE does wonders toward perking up a suit which obvious fact is known to one and all, but what we want to stress is that the Evangeline Shops are showing a superior collection of blouses and they are well supplied with classics as well as those fascinating feminine numbers which give the wearer that appealing look designed to arouse the protective interest in the unsuspecting male.

Your nearest Evangeline Shop (don't crowd, girls) is at 751 Yonge.

THOSE SWEATER NECKS AT NORTHWAY'S, a most attractive idea for lectures or an informal date, styled on wing-sleeve dresses, skirts with pressed pleats, large slit pockets, covered buttons down to waist at back, all add up to jocular little numbers which with a large red belt around the waist are positively a joy to put on. And don't overlook the 16.95 wools for which Northway's are so popular, they come in a wide variety of ideas and are "delectable datemakers" in anybody's language.

THE ANTOINE HAIR STYLISTS are essentially artists, trained in the craft of hairdressing. They are especially delighted to do a "job" with hair that seems to have no future. They like to take a head of hair that is poorly shaped and by means of cleverly tapering give it that moulded look of excellent and permanent good grooming. A frizzy head of hair can be cleverly prevented if you simply give yourself time enough to have a chat with Mrs. Head of the Antoine Hair salon at Holt Renfrew.

COMFORT... the warm glow of pleasant relief from pain which follows an application of Sloan's Liniment to an area which has been painful or uncomfortably tense. The result of an acceleration of circulation which follows an application of Sloan's is the driving out of accumulated poisons in the blood, creating vitality and a new feeling of healthful stimulation. Which is why a bottle of Sloan's in the medicine cabinet is taken for granted in more and more Canadian homes, because Sloan's is still leader among the liniments.

BRACELETS FROM PERU... are among the exotic and interesting jewellery which is yours for the buying at Mr. Carpenter's INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP just east of Yonge, at 32 Bloor East, almost next to the Canadian Red Cross headquarters. You'll be tempted to make purchases to remain and examine each of those precious ideas which have been collected for some particular quality of individuality and charm that has not escaped the searching eye of Mr. Carpenter. We wish some of our visiting American theatrical people could be led to these items, because after looking over the field in the U.S.A. we don't mind admitting that the galaxy of ear-rings, chokers, lapel pins et al., as shown at the Interesting Jewellery Shop have the American offerings nicely covered.

WINTER IS THE TIME OF YEAR when a wise woman remembers Springtime... and is subtle enough to know like the other Rangers most likely to succeed.

JUNIOR HOCKEY

(Continued from page 3)

Line-ups:
Varsity: Hutzalak, Boyd, Smythe, Barron, Davidson, Foran, Pelow, Hurley, Hartrey, Morrison, Irwin, Petrocco.
Scarboro: Briley, Irwin, De Latt, Chard, Ward, Fembach, Formica, Davis, Cowell.
First Period:
00:35 Varsity, Davidson (Pelow)
8:11 Varsity, Pelow (Foran)
Second Period:
22:51 Varsity, Smythe
28:26 Scarboro, Irwin
33:05 Scarboro, Formica (De Latt, Irwin)
Penalties: Formica, Foran, Hartrey, Davis, Morrison.
Third Period:
52:56 Scarboro, Davis
5:37 Varsity, Boyd (Smythe)
Penalties: Formica, Chard, Morrison, De Latt.

WEEK-END TOUR

(Continued from page 3)

star save. Wally Halder notched the next one for the Blues, on a pass direct from Gord Ball, when the whole Varsity squad were playing in the Scots' end. Queen's again had an extra man on the ice, when Dave Bauer was sent to the cooler for playing with a cracked stick, but at that, had to fight to hold Toronto from scoring.

Soon after Bauer got back on the ice, he set Halder up for his second goal, and right after the face-off, Bob Henry passed to Halder for his third consecutive goal of the period. In the last minute of play, "Big Bill" Wade, who had been playing a fine game of defence all night, picked up a pass from Kosick in the deep Queen's defence, and notched the last goal of the game.

Ice Fast at Potsdam

Saturday night's contest at Potsdam was played on natural ice at the Clarkson College Arena. The sub-zero weather of the week-end gave the Toronto players their fastest ice of the current season.

Toronto took the lead early in the first period, when Bill Doyle counted on a pass from Halder, and Clarkson tied it up on a neat goal by Hewitson from Parslow and Blair. On goals by Henry from Gord Ball, and Wally Halder from Ball, the Blues were on top 3-1, when Jacot scored the second and last goal for "The Tech", to make the count 3-2 at the end of the stanza.

Early in the second frame Bromley and Dunn began a slugfest in the Clarkson zone, and were given major penalties. The only goal came late in the period, when Kryzanowski passed to Ball for the counter.

Varsity romped home in the third stanza with three goals. Halder got the first from Henry, and Jim Bromley followed up with a brace, the first from Dave Bauer and Grant Puttock, the second from Bill Kosick. Bromley starred in the third—he had a style that pleased the American fans, and at the same time showed fighting spirit that displeased them.

that a soft enveloping fragrance gentle as the promise of a summer garden is armour against the dullness of bleak days and chilly evenings. Fragrance GEMEY by Richard Hudnut captures the memory of growing petals in the sunshine and keeps that memory in winter close and personal and lovely. Fragrance GEMEY is made from a scientific formula which has been perfected to hold its breathless surprise of freshness after less exquisite perfumes have wilted.

STANDARD EQUIPMENT for a Canadian winter is a good fur coat, and Gillespie's are a standard of quality which Torontonians have been pleased to O.K. these many years. Gillespie's have never "spared the pelt to spoil the coat" as the saying is; into their styling has gone the generosity of cutting and finishing which results in a coat with that saving which is the nonchalant quality of belonging to the elect of fashioning.

Correspondence

(Continued from page 2)

lack of addition of a B. A. Too bad, Bob, that you attach such importance to a couple of letters.

That the reputation of this University is being imperilled by the Pass graduates, I flatly contradict; and that its soul is in need of redemption I doubt. A pass B.A. from Toronto far surpasses in value that from a comparable American college. The entrance requirements here are never lower and often higher than those of other universities in the Dominion.

Truly, a specialized course in medicine, science or classics prepares one for a life work more adequately than does a pass B. A. But if you are going to condemn students (and they are students, or they never would have reached university, much less entered it) for choosing a course which will broaden their education without directly preparing them for a position, condemn those who are seeking a general education rather than a specialized one, then all I can say is, "Mr. Robinson, you've had it." Helen Newson U.C. Pass I (So has Miss Newson. Mr. Robinson is ex-Pass III. —Ed.

The Shawl's the Thing!

Wrap yourself up in drifting clouds of heaven-soft mohair! Shawls charged with dreamy colour—and warm as drowsy kittens. In plain shades of rosewood or powder blue, as well as pastel mixtures. All mohair from Scotland. Size about 67" x 27". Each.....$5.50

MAIN STORE—MAIN FLOOR
EATON'S-COLLEGE STREET—MAIN FLOOR

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Toronto Conservatory of Music
Presents
PAUL HINDEMITH
in a Lecture on
The Craft of Musical Composition
Conservatory Concert Hall
January 24—8:15 p.m.
Admission $1.00

SONNY DUNHAM

At The
ARTS BALL
INFORMAL DANCING 9 - 2
JAN. 31
ROYAL YORK

Also
ART HALLMAN BOBBY GIMBY

TICKETS U.C. ROTUNDA

10 A.M. to 4 P.M.
$3.00 PER COUPLE
ALL FACULTIES

WAXIE SAYS:

For a variety of good listening the following Victor Records are suggested for your listening pleasure:

Brahms.....Symphony No. 1
in C Minor
Brahms.....Symphony No. 4
Beethoven.....Symphony No. 5
Beethoven.....Symphony No. 7
Chopin...Les Sylphides Ballet
Grieg...Concerto in A Minor
Tchaikovsky...Concerto in B Flat Minor
Tchaikovsky.....Nutcracker Suite

All available at the
HOUSE OF MUSIC

The Campus Record Bar

658 Spadina Ave. (at Harbord)

RA. 3636

"Let us put good wax in your ear"

"JANUARY NITE"

SPONSORED BY THE HOSPITAL AID OF THE WOMEN'S COLLEGE HOSPITAL

Saturday, January 26th

ELLIS McLINTOCK
STANLEY ST. JOHN

$1.25 PER PERSON

DRESS OPTIONAL

BRIDGE, DRAWS, AND
CRADLE CLUB HOPE CHEST

TICKETS AT DIANA SWEETS RESTAURANT, 88 BLOOR ST. WEST (AT AVENUE ROAD), OR ROHER BOOK STORE, 15 BLOOR ST. WEST (AT YONGE).

Probably the long-distance record among Ajax students is held by Robert Yamamoto, who came all the way from the Okanagan Valley, B.C., to study architecture at S.P.S. Grace Anderson tabulates his vital statistics.

Mosher And Murray To Attend Debate

A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and Gladstone Murray, former Director-General of Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, will be the guest speakers at Wednesday night's Hart House Debate when the resolution before the House will be "resolved that this House, while approving of collective bargaining, deplores the attempt of the unions to usurp the rights of management."

The resolution will be upheld by M. Lount, S.P.S., and J. Mc-Donough, St. Michael's, and opposed by A. Porter, U. C., and I. Owen, Trinity. A. E. Safarian, U.C. will be Speaker.

The resolution is considered extremely topical in view of the present American trade union policy, in particular the United Automobile Workers. The U.A.W. has called the present General Motors strike demanded the right to examine company books to determine the company's ability to pay wages. They claim that war-time wages must be maintained if a depression is to be averted and that most corporations can increase wages without increasing the retail cost of the product.

Management counters that it must obtain both labor and materials in the competitive market, and that after purchasing these and selling the product in the competitive market any surplus is the property of the shareholders.

Born in Nova Scotia, Mr. Mosher became president of the Canadian Federation of Labor in 1908. When the Canadian Congress of Labor was formed in 1940 he became its first president. He is also Chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Train Workers.

Rhodes Scholar and ace pilot in World War I, Mr. Murray has often been termed "Canada's spokesman for private enterprise". He helped establish the British Broadcasting Corporation in 1923 and was with the CBC for many years. He is now Policy Counsel for Responsible Enterprise.

All political clubs on the campus have been invited to send delegates to express the views of their clubs. Other notable guests are expected to attend.

Got A Notice? Send It Early!

New deadline schedules for the insertion of notices, announcements, etc., were announced last night by The Varsity.

Necessity of preparing the paper by remote control, 30 miles from the printers, makes it imperative that all possible copy be ready by 5 p.m. Coming Events, notices of meetings, etc., should be delivered to the day office, room 42-a University College, on the afternoon of the day preceding publication.

Material of this kind delivered to the night office cannot be guaranteed a place in the paper.

The

VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 65

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Tuesday, January 22, 1946

PAPER ENLARGED TO MATCH CAMPUS

Temporary Office Used In Evenings

Removal from the University of Toronto Press has necessitated search for a night office to be used by the staff of The Varsity between 5.30 p.m., when the University College news office closes, and 11.30 p.m., when the last bus leaves for Oshawa with late copy.

Temporarily commandeered for the purpose is the office of the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, where make-up is being prepared and evening copy written.

Stories breaking after 5.30 should be brought by reporters directly to the Avenue Road office. The telephone number is MI 8405.

Late newsbreaks should be given to a masthead member for telephoning direct to the Oshawa printing plant.

Produce 11,500 Copies On Fast Rotary Press

Let New Printing Contract

Jumping overnight to front rank among the university dailies of the world, The Varsity with today's issue appears in an expanded size, with a make-up and typography revamp, ready to serve the 12,000 students of the largest University in the British Empire.

Removal from the University of Toronto press to the Rotary Printing Company, Oshawa, has made possible a jump in circulation from 7,500 to 11,500 copies daily, and advancement of delivery time across the Toronto campus from late morning to 9.30 a.m. Ajax delivery is at 8 a.m., instead of 5 p.m. as previously.

Questionnaire Results Announced Tomorrow

Not yet tabulated are the complete results of the S.A.C.'s questionnaire on veteran's representation. Results have been promised for release in tomorrow's issue of The Varsity.

The questionnaire, distributed last week, asked student veterans to state their views on the continuation of the Ex-Service Committee of the S.A.C. for the duration of this term, on the condition that ex-service representatives will definitely be elected for the '47-'48 session. Also voted on: affiliation with the National Conference of Student Veterans.

George Milkan De Paul's basketball star, stands 6 feet 9 1/2 inches. His kid brother, Ed, stands 6 feet 7 1/2 inches, and is growing fast.

"With the enormous increase of University enrollment last fall, The Varsity outgrew available printing facilities overnight," Editor Hugh Kenner said. "On the available equipment, we were staying up all night to produce a four-page paper which reached only half the student body."

The rotary press pictured on pages 4 and 5 produces the 11,500 copies of the new 8-page paper in half an hour; on former equipment only half that number of copies could be produced by noon. Increased speed of the press-run makes possible campus-wide circulation early in the day.

Referring to the increase from four to eight pages, the editor said that The Varsity had been cramped for space all fall. "By ruthless cutting and frequent omission of material, we made do somehow until Christmas," he continued, "but the opening of Ajax, a whole new source of vital news involving an additional 1,500 students and a new campus larger than the Toronto one, swamped us completely. Our Ajax coverage this spring has been disgracefully meagre; but with eight pages now at our disposal we can properly perform the job of presenting each campus to the other."

Preparing copy in Toronto for printing in Oshawa has necessitated reorganization of The Varsity newsroom. Discarded last night after twenty years, was the night-editing system, which involved two students nightly putting in a 10-hour shift at the Press, proof-reading, writing headlines, and instructing the compositor.

The new set-up calls for preparation in Toronto of all copy, headlines, and a dummy, which is shipped to Oshawa for the guidance of the printer.

Grey Coach busses are used to transport copy.

"We gave up night-editing with some regret," Kenner said, "because it was valuable training for the staff to work with the printers in the print-shop. But it was being too much of a drain on the energies of the staff. Merely writing and editing a paper for a campus the size of this one is a full-time job."

"Actually, though, we haven't given up anything but the smell of ink. We are writing heads and planning pages exactly as before."

Temporary night offices are located in the offices of the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road. Night telephone number is MI 8405.

An added advantage for the staff (Continued on Page 3)

Brief Of Veteran's Needs Presented To Government

Montreal, Jan. 20.—(CUP)—Improved conditions of student veteran rehabilitation were suggested in a brief presented for government surveyance in Ottawa Thursday.

Presented to House of Commons representatives by four executives of the National Conference of Student Veterans, the following aims were included in the proposals:

- (1)—Increase of maintenance grants for single men from $60 to $80 per month.
- (2)—Increase for married men from $80 to $120 per month.
- (3)—Emergency and long term housing.

(4)—Improved educational facilities.

(5)—Full employment.

The remainder of the proposals will be announced at a later date.

Acting on decisions made at the National Conference of Student Veterans during the Christmas holidays, the delegates were President J. L. Starkey of McGill, J. Testart of Western, and G. P. Laganiere of the U. of Montreal.

Receiving the brief, Deputy Minister of Veterans' Affairs W. S. Woods said "We, as the federal government responsible for the rehabilitation of veterans,—should be their advocate."

Music is Fun For Settlement Children

Kneeling before The Muse are these five young and as yet unrecognized composers participating in one of Miss Barbara Pentland's creative music classes at the Music School of the University Settlement on Grange Road. Story on the Music School on Page Eight.

Staff Photo by Ralph Jones

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a

University CollegeM.L. 6611

Business OfficeM.L. 6221

Night OfficeM.L. 8405

Editor-in-Chief...W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
 Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
 Managing Editor.....Wally Belfry, 478
 Make-up Editor.....Peg Wallace, B.A.
 Rewrite Editor.....Barbara Hood, B.A.
 News Editor.....George Forster, 477
 Assistant.....Blanche Stanley, 476
 Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLeod, 477
 Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
 Sports Editor.....Bredin Stappels, 476
 Assistant.....Don Mason, 476
 Womens Sports Editor Polly Mutz, 476
 C.U.P. & Exchange
 Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
 Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 476
 Art, Music, and Drama
 Editor.....Phillip Freedman, 476
 Staff Photographer...Ralph Jones, 477
 Business and Advertising Manager—E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Tuesday, January 22, 1946

...and Better?

The Varsity to-day is a lot bigger. We have been dreaming of making it bigger for a long time now. For weeks the staff have been mulling over 8-page dummies, re-allocating space among departments, preparing display typography, planning a punchier, more readable paper that would really interpret to a small city-full of readers the life of a humming campus.

But merely because we are bigger, we are not necessarily one bit better. We have in our control at last facilities for producing the world's best college daily. But we may very easily produce the worst. More space may mean simply more space in which to be juvenile. Newer typography may become nothing but a megaphone for blasting about nothing of consequence. Our enormously-increased press run may simply mean the facility to flood more readers than ever before with trash.

We are going to try very hard to make the new Varsity worthy of a great university. We have always tried; and now we are going to try a lot harder. All too often power is abused, and the big thing becomes merely the worthless thing. It is our task now to put our giant's strength to enlightened uses.

Now more than ever before we need the help of our readers. In our first editorial last fall we assured you that our future lay in your hands. We pled for such a stream of letters, comments, and criticisms as might guide us toward the production of a paper not only for our satisfaction but for yours; for it is our job to produce the kind of paper we would both like to see. That invitation is now renewed, and if possible renewed more pressingly. We cannot function wisely without your guidance.

Most of our nearly 300 letters this year have criticized editorials. We want those who do us the honor of reading the editorial columns thoughtfully and critically to keep it up.

But editorials, as everyone knows, are written by crackpots in ivory towers, and need not be taken too seriously. What we appeal for now is comment on our handling of news and features. With all the fencing in the world, readers will have a hard time changing our editorial policy; for we have taken a firm line and mean to stick to it. But our news coverage is more flexible. We write editorials for your stimulation, and a blunted spike cannot stimulate. But we write news for your information, and if you are not informed as you should be, or are informed wrongly, a letter to us will set the wheels of change in motion.

The Mixture As Before

Mr. Robert R. Robinson seems to have started something. Since the publication of a week ago of his letter recommending abolition of the Pass Course in the name of the high academic standards to which the University is dedicated, every mail has brought its quota of high explosive.

When we have time to turn round, we shall take up the Pass Arts question at length. Today we confine ourselves to comment on the uniformity of protest. We have not published many of these letters, because they are pretty much alike in tenor and substance; only some are slightly better written than others.

It is a little disappointing that no one has yet agreed with Mr. Robinson. If he is a Pharisee, the campus could do with a few more; if only to make things interesting.

We have noticed this same phenomenon throughout the year, whenever (and it has been often) something in our columns has touched off a barrage of commentary. We do not object to the lack of approbation. But we are a bit suspicious of the similarity of the condemnation.

Surely there is more than one aspect of the case for Pass Arts; surely it is not necessary for its upholders to simply sneer at its detractors as snobs and suggest that learning needs to be spread even further (not to say thinner) than it is at present.

Surely there is more than one case for Scientific Method; surely it is not enough simply to accuse its critics of being

Finnegans Wake Instalment Three

Train No. 96755 will arrive at the Union Station in a few days bearing members of the cast of Finnegans Wake, James Joyce, Jonathan Cape and the directors of the Guinness brewing company. A reception committee of English professors will meet the train at the station and James Joyce will give readings of his book Finnegans Wake in the vestibule of the station. Accompanying the party will be Chief Detective Brandy and his assistant, Bouboul, who will be guarding the crown jewels that Mrs. Murphy filched from the Tower of London during their three weeks' run at the Beaver Club.

We take you now to "D" desk of the troop transport SS Lady Godiva which is at Lat. 53-22N Lon. 49-57W battling its way through through mountainous seas with the fresh water supply running low and the excitement running high.

Mary Cassidy: "I jess seen a porpoise."

O'Shaugnessy (in a superior manner): "Don't be silly that was a dolphin."

(Mary Cassidy starts to cry, pulls in her fishing line and runs below in a huff.)

O'Shaugnessy: "There's no understanding women". (He spits over the side of the boat and turns up the collar of his oilskin.)

Captain Brandy: (appearing as if by magic at his side) "Dirty night, isn't it?"

O'Shaugnessy (evasively): "It is and it isn't". (Before he has time to elaborate this statement there is a rending crash and the boat heels over to port and takes on a heavy list. There are cries of "Torpedo!" "Remember Pearl Harbour!" etc., and everyone runs as a man to the boats.)

Sir Patrick Spens: (sternly from the bridge): "Keep away from those boats, there's nothing to fear. That noise was just Finnegans falling out of his coffin. Everyone return to his post!"

(They go back to the post and line up again. Mrs. Murphy is showing signs of nervousness and breaks through the barrier a couple of times, but after a few moments they all got away to a good start and at the first bend it's Mrs. Mulligan leading with James Joyce a close second and Finnegans bringing up the rear in a howdah.)

And as we say good-bye to the Emerald Isle of banshees and shenanigans the wall of Irish pipes fades into the distance and the curtain goes down in instalment three of Finnegans Wake, the sun goes down in the west and the Flowers of the Forest fold their tents and silently unfold them again for the lack of something better to do.

—JAKE.

AJAX REPORTERS REGISTER

Seven potential Varsity staffers attended an organization meeting in the Administration Building, Ajax, yesterday, and were briefed by Editor Hugh Kenner, Sports Editors Bredin Stappels, Don Mason, and Polly Mutz, and Make-up Editor Peg Wallace on The Varsity's functioning.

A Varsity office has been allocated in Building 707, and should be functioning shortly. Flow of copy from the Ajax staff to Toronto and back to Oshawa began last night.

There is still room for more Ajax reporters and photographers, with or without experience. Those interested should contact Mr. J. B. Essery, Students' Administrative Council Office, Administration Building.

300 years behind the times. Surely there is something positive to be said, some philosophic justification of this crux in our contemporary thinking habits.

And so it goes. We get floods of letters presenting cases, often very strong cases. But they are always the same cases. And it makes us suspicious.

Confronted by so many duplicate arguments, we suspect the truth of the cause that is being argued. It is the essence of truth that it stands central; it can be attacked from all sides, and approached from all sides. If a thing can be approached by only one road, then it is built against a wall; and one may suspect that it has its back to the wall.

"I thought you invited me to see your etchings."
 "Nonsense! We're here to Light Up and Listen!"

*"Light - Up - and - Listen"
 With SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES
 Every Thursday 9.30 p.m.

CKEY - CJBC

Fairweather
 on Yonge

NO BRANCH STORES

SPORTSWEAR
 MAIN FLOOR

Casual
 Costumed

Turtle-Neck
 BLOUSE.

Nonchalant
 SUIT . . .

Kay Carter's little classic, with popular turtle neck...
 in sparkling white spun. 2.98
 Sizes 12 to 20..

A Lee Parker or Sportswear
 Originals . . . suede finished wool, plain shades or blue checked.
 Sizes 12 to 18, included . . . 22.50

HOURS: 9.30 TO 5.30, INCLUDING SATURDAY

FAIRWEATHER Limited 88-90 Yonge (At King)

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 5 p.m. today.

Informal Recital

Bill Hossack (II Victoria), cellist, with George Crum at the piano, will give an informal recital in the east common room at 1:30 p.m. today.

Talk in Art Gallery

Professor A. F. Coventry, past Chairman of the Camera Committee, will review the Annual Exhibition of Photographs in the art gallery at 1:30 p.m. today. This is primarily for those who are not members of the Camera Club.

The Students' Choice:

BLOOR TAXI

LIMITED

Sub-station at
 HARBORD AND ST. GEORGE

RA. 5151

Switchboard connecting
 all branches

For Quick Service—For Efficiency
 CALL US!

Library Work Said Growing

By Harold B. Atin

"Library work is a steadily growing field, and one in which the demand for trained specialists at the moment far exceeds the supply," said Miss W. G. Barnstead, director of the University of Toronto Library School, in an interview recently with The Varsity.

The Library School, founded in 1928 and located in the Ontario College of Education, is one of two accredited library schools in Canada, the other being at McGill University, and its graduates have found positions throughout Canada and the United States. University graduates of arts and science courses are eligible, and are trained in a one-year course, which earns them at graduation the degree of Bachelor of Library Science.

Professors teach such subjects as reference work, cataloguing, classification systems, library administration, bibliographical methods, history of books and printing, and for those who wish there are elective courses in college and university, special libraries, story-telling, and work with children. Graduates can thus qualify for any type of library—public, university, school, reference, and children's industrial hospital, governments, and even prison, depending upon the courses taken. Prospective applicants are advised to follow a broad course of study in their undergraduate work, if they are not specializing. Such subjects as economics, psychology, history, literature, foreign languages and the sciences are particularly useful.

Librarianship requires other qualifications as well. Librarians must understand a community and its library needs. An industrial city gives rise to different types of libraries from those in an educational, business, and cultural centre like Toronto, where such institutions as newspapers, insurance companies, and the Academy of Medicine, have specialized libraries suitable for their work.

"Ex-servicemen and women have recently shown great interest in librarianship, possibly because of their meeting with enthusiastic librarians and their realization of the need for, and usefulness of, libraries, while in the services," Miss Barnstead comments. Thus more men are coming into the course all the time. The war has also awakened an interest in libraries among the general public as they have realized their significance in industry and government.

"Library work is interesting, brings one in contact with many kinds of people, and offers reasonable security with an opportunity for advancement," Miss Barnstead summed up. "We are back to our pre-war figure of 43 in registration now, and I anticipate a higher registration next year."

Ugh! Dirty Meds! What Price M.D.?

By John Rooke

Despite the March of Science and the revelations of Professor Bird-whistler, Indians up Brantford way are still creeping around sick beds with false faces and rattles, exorcising the evil spirits that the white man fondly believes to be viruses filterable or unfilterable.

Two-Axe is a case in point. He is a Six Nations man and his clients languish around on the reservation where he is considered by many to have something on the ball in a medical sort of way. The only snag is that business has been falling off for some time now since the white man has been coming around with his little bottles with the pretty labels on them.

Dancing is a part of the curative treatment and with the dancing goes the singing and with the singing goes the shaking of the rattle, the beads, the feathers. It's all rather complicated and has been handed down to Two-Axe from a long line of shamans (shamans is a word that came out of an Anthropology text book one afternoon as we were idly turning over the pages).

The way some people talk you would think that there was something unusual about the way the white doctors carry on, but have you ever stood outside the medical building at midnight and looked through the windows at the strange ceremonies that are being conducted in the basement? Well we have, and it's not a pretty sight. No sir.

In the last ten years the Big Ten and Notre Dame have supplied 31 per cent of the nation's ten best football teams.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 65 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Tuesday, January 22, 1946

Ajax Cafeteria Is Model

Thirty men a minute pick up their tempting dinners at this counter, one of three in the giant Ajax cafeteria. About 700 men can be seated, and 2,000 served in an hour and a half. Mrs. V. P. Ignatieff, food service manager, is responsible for the system by which edibles flow in parallel lines from the back door of the building to the plates of the students. Prices are almost at cost.

65 Years Of Development Produces Varsity Tabloid

Never let it be said that The Varsity has remained the same during its 65 years as the newspaper for the University of Toronto. During this time it has passed through many stages of development to reach its present tabloid form, from a small size paper, to a six column issue, to an eight-pager.

The Varsity Stock Company launched the first issue of the paper in 1880-81 when 500 students picked it up weekly at "Mr. Wilkinson's, corner of Adelaide and Toronto Sts." for five cents each.

Having shown a profit in the previous year, the University of Toronto publication revamped its layout and organization in 1883 and raised its price to 10 cents. After two years of development, the "Weekly Review of Education University Politics and Events" began to be less a newspaper and more a literary magazine.

In 1888 the Joint Stock Company dropped its subscription rates from two dollars to one dollar annually, hoping to increase circulation, but it suffered loss by adopting this plan. Consequently, in 1890 the Joint Stock Company succumbed to financial stress and discontinued activities.

Next year the University College Literary and Scientific Society took over, making it an undergraduate newspaper. Trouble arose in 1895, however when The Varsity was forced to undergo a Royal Commission investigation which made its policy decidedly conservative for the following year.

The first women's copy went into The Varsity under the head "The College Girl," in 1897.

The Varsity first assumed newspaper status with a four-column format and screaming headlines when it was taken over by the University of Toronto Union in 1908, at the same time becoming a bi-weekly. In 1911 The Varsity became a tri-weekly and moved to the University of Toronto Press.

At last, in 1915, the paper grew to its final size, and two years later women students joined the Masthead. And still the paper grew. In 1938 a column called Campus Chat appeared on Page Two and became Champus Cat the next day. The Art, Music and Drama column also appeared for the first time that same year.

The Varsity finally hit the daily stage in 1923, published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council.

In 1931 The Varsity celebrated its fiftieth anniversary by picking fight with everyone in sight. It took on the S.A.C., the Board of Governors, the downtown press, the police, members of the staff, and students. An editorial which asserted that the majority of the staff were practical atheists finally brought action from the authorities. The S.A.C. suspended The Varsity and published their own news bulletins for several days until the harmless 20 pages of the Anniversary Issue appeared.

Perhaps the greatest step was taken this year, 1946, when it was decided to move publication to Oshawa, to a professional newspaper office. The great increase in student registration necessitated the move, because of the impossibility of printing enough copies of the paper at the University Press.

Frats Merged — It Says Here

Male members of the Pi Lambda Phi fraternity are considering amalgamation with the female fraternity Pi Beta Phi following a news story in last week's Toronto Star.

The story reported the phenomenon of rushing amidst which were all the girls' fraternities at that time. "During 'rushing,'" the Star quoted Betty MacMillan, graduating this year in home economics, as saying, "I lost 13 pounds."

The item continued: "Betty was rushed in early 1943 by several sororities and decided ultimately on the Pi Lambda Phi sorority whose famous motto is 'Pi-Phi's don't!'"

Scholarships Open Until First of March

The National Research Council is inviting applications for Post-Graduate Scholarships in Science, tenable during the academic session beginning October 1st, 1946, Mr. S. P. Eagleson, Secretary-Treasurer of the Council, has announced.

Bursaries of the value of $450, will be open to award to applicants who have graduated with high distinction in scientific study. Studentships of the value of $750, will be open to award to applicants who have had experience in research work in science for at least one year following graduation.

Fellowships of the value of $900 will be open to award to applicants who have given distinct evidence of capacity to conduct independent research in science.

The regulations governing these awards contain detailed information respecting the qualifications required, the departments of Science in which awards are granted, travelling grants, and all other requirements. Copies of these regulations, together with application forms, may be obtained from the University Registrar, or upon application to the Secretary-Treasurer, National Research Council, Ottawa.

The final date on which application may be made is March 1st, 1946.

Pres. Smith Ajax Speaker

"You are full members of the University of Toronto, separated only by a geographical accident from the rest of the student body," said President Sidney Smith in welcoming 1,300 students to the Ajax division yesterday.

Clad in the robes of his office, President Smith was forced to speak twice as the auditorium in the Ajax recreation hall is too small to accommodate the whole Ajax student body at one time.

Special mention was made of the ex-service students in attendance. "The staff," he said, "will do everything in its power to help you make up the years you have spent, I shall not say lost, in His Majesty's Forces. Nothing we can do is too much for you who have done so much for us."

In this connection he spoke of the standards of the University: "The degrees given to ex-service personnel will be of the same standard and quality as those given anyone else, but at the same time the standard will not be raised in order to eliminate students. On the contrary, it will be the duty of the staff to find accommodation for all students who can attain the prescribed standards."

Warden J. B. Bickersteth of Hart House welcomed Ajax students as members of Hart House. He spoke of the work being done at Ajax in this connection and urged students to use their privileges as members of Queen's Park Hart House when they are in Toronto, "so that when you move into the Queen's Park campus you will be familiar with the institution and with the ideals for which Hart House stands."

Editorial Encores

National Publicity

Following are extracts from the McGill Daily editorial of Thursday, Jan. 17th, entitled "All Attitude For National Publicity."

Today, with thousands of men returning after many an eventful year spent outside Canada, a surprisingly large number of them are turning to the fields of radio and journalism as a livelihood. After the fundamentals of these professions have been learnt, many of these men begin to realize how great a task the newspapers and radio have to fulfil in Canada, both for interior consumption and abroad.

With the war, Canada has suddenly become a far greater nation than she has ever been before. . . . The question now arises whether Canadians have acquired an intellectual outlook equal and proportional to the material advances of their country. It is quite natural in that no miracles can be expected, and that many a Canadian has only just begun to wake up to the realization that his country is a major force in world affairs.

It is now up to the newspapers and radio to help Canadians towards becoming aware of their country's change of status . . . and to the attention of the world the fact that both Canada and Canadians have undergone and are undergoing a great change. Many a Canadian radio and newspaperman has realized that this tremendous task lies before him.

Coming back from years spent overseas, his first reaction will be to compare Canada to Europe . . . But such a comparison is quite impossible . . . Canada has developed in a completely different sphere than Europe. There seems no reason on earth why we should be ashamed of that fact. Her national picture is built up on historical, geographical and cultural factors entirely different to those of any other nation.

When a radio program or a newspaper is attempting to paint a fair picture of Canada's development, it must point to the very absence of the usual types of media to which a change can ordinarily be attributed. It is not necessarily to our credit when our country has achieved something which is comparable to another nation; its very difference may be far more creditable.

The function of today's radio and newspaper in Canada is then, to point to the difference that makes Canada a nation. There is no future in apologizing for lack of similarities with other nations, or of capitalizing on a few inconsequential points of similarity.

The Rotary Press Which Is Printing

THE Varsity today appears in a new dress . . . because of needed facilities the management have secured a contract for the printing of The Varsity from the Rotary Printing Co., Oshawa which is well known in Toronto for the production of Rotary Press work.

The press which is now producing The Varsity is a high-speed Rotary press capable of producing 32 pages of the size of The Varsity at a maximum speed of 20,000 per hour. The new method provides the publisher with many facilities heretofore not available . . . gives us an opportunity of carrying late news and a complete stereotyping system is used unmounted plates and mats are some of the time-saving elements.

According to a news release by the printers at the time the installation was made, the entire equipment weighed nearly fifty tons.

The switch over to Rotary means a complete changing over from the former method of printing direct from type. Under the old system the type was set and assembled in Chases, as the steel frames which are made to hold the pages are called, and taken directly to the press and the paper printed from the type. Now the process of typesetting is exactly the same as before but instead of sending the pages to the press, now an impression is taken of each page on a previously prepared matrix, which resembles a damp piece of heavy soft cardboard. This is placed over the top of the type, and cuts and felt blankets are placed on it to provide a cushion and it is then rolled by the mat roller which gives it a pressure of thirty tons per square inch, so that a complete impression in every minutest detail of the type and illustrations is left in the Matrix.

The matrix, or "mat" as it is familiarly called around the printing office, is then placed in a scorch-er, which dries out every drop of moisture and hard-

This Rotary Type of Printing Press Is Responsible

ens the thick paper sheet so that it will retain the impression.

METAL HEATED TO 600 DEGREES

When the mat comes from the scorch-er it is adjusted in the "casting box" and from a huge furnace, which holds 5,000 lbs. of stereotype metal, the molten metal heated to 600 degrees is pumped into the casting box making cylindrical plate, on the outside of which the printing surface stands in relief where the metal has filled the depressions in the matrix. This plate is cooled quickly by the circulation of running water through the casting box and it can be removed from the casting box a few minutes after the molten metal is pumped into it.

PLATES ARE CYLINDRICAL

The plate as taken from the casting box is eight

Student Hotelkeepers Flock to New Course

To its lengthy list of widely-varied course the Department of Extension of this university has added yet another.

It is Institutional Management or, more clearly, the study of the science of hotelkeeping.

Of benefit to Ontario's important tourist industry, this course was inaugurated last week.

More than 100 students, all but a few war veterans, already have enrolled. The course was instituted at the request of the Ontario department of planning and development. Normally the course will comprise two academic years in each of which must be included three months of practical experience.

The course is designed to qualify men and women to operate summer hotels. It will also equip graduates for positions in clubs, hotels and hospitals.

Air Minister Colin Gibson said recently that the Canadian government planned to raise peacetime rates of pay in all three armed services to bring them in line with what permanent force personnel would make in civilian employment.

Goldberg's Delight Proximity Fuse Was Toronto Job

By BOB COOKE

During the Ardennes breakthrough last winter the Germans had one of the greatest Allied war secrets without knowing it. In their great push they overran an American supply dump where Artillery shells, (equipped with the "proximity fuse") were kept, but shortly after they withdrew without tampering with the supply dump.

The proximity fuse is a miniature radar set, about the size of a pop bottle, fitting into the nose of a shell. This radar set broadcasts radio messages and picks up the reflection of these messages from any object near the shell. If the shell comes within 100 feet of the object the shell is exploded. The object, be it a Buzz bomb, infantry platoon or Japanese suicide plane, is destroyed.

Last Saturday night at the Royal Canadian Institute Lecture Dr. C. J. Mackenzie of the National Research Council revealed that work on the development of this fuse was undertaken by scientists in the Physics Department of the University of Toronto. Further information about this work was obtained from Professor E. F. Burton of the Physics Department.

"The development of this fuse, an English idea, was undertaken by Canadian and American Scientists as a result of the Tizard Mission in 1940," said Professor Burton. The Tizard Mission he explained was a group of British scientists who came to Washington to reveal the scientific development of Britain to U.S. and British scientists.

"The proximity fuse was just one of the British ideas that were developed by Canadian and American scientists," continued Professor Burton, "and a great deal of work on it was carried out at Toronto by a group of scientists under the direction of Professor Arnold Pitt. Professor Pitt suggested the form of the battery to be used in little radar sets."

The main problem that the workers faced, explained Professor Burton, was to develop a battery that would not go "stale" as do dry cells. The battery had to retain its strength even if the shell was laid away for several months. The battery developed by Professor Pitt had the battery fluid, or electrolyte, sealed in a glass vial. When the shell was fired the phial broke and the fluid was forced into the battery elements by the spinning of the shell.

The development of the radio tubes was left in the hands of American scientists because of their experience in the manufacture of radio tubes. The tubes they developed are no bigger than a pencil-eraser yet they can stand the terrific shock of being fired from a gun. The whole proximity fuse is no bigger than the time fuse previously used on anti-aircraft shells.

The proximity fuse was first used in anti-aircraft shells, but later it was used in artillery shells by General Patton's 7th Army. When used in artillery shells the proximity fuse exploded them while the shell was still in the air thus doing much more damage.

Another piece of war work carried out at the Physics Department was first mentioned by Doctor Saterly in his Liquid Air Lecture given before the Royal Canadian Institute this month. This work, carried out by Professor H. G. Smith, has resulted in the development of a means of using liquid oxygen to supply aviators with oxygen in high altitude flight.

Although this equipment which, to quote Professor Smith "looks like a Rube Goldberg invention" was never used other than experimentally it is now being prepared for use by commercial airlines and the R.C.A.F. is reported following this work with great interest.

ROYAL ALEXANDRA
KING ST. WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE.

ALL THIS WEEK

"PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENT NO. 1"
—Walter Winchell
Gloria Swanson presents Clarence Darr
LIFE WITH FATHER

Made into a play by
HOWARD LINDSAY and RUSSEL CROUSE
with
Carl Benton Reid & Betty Lisle

Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Evs. 8:20; Mats., Wed. Sat. 2:20
MATS., WED., SAT.: 60c, $1.20, $1.80
All Tax Included.

Canadian Association of Scientific Workers
TORONTO BRANCH

Presents:

DR. GENE WELTFISH

of Columbia University—Co-Author of "Races of Mankind" who will speak on

"SCIENCE AND THE RACE PROBLEM"

TONIGHT AT 8.20 p. m.

CENTRAL TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOL

Tickets at the S.C.M. Hart House 50c

Neilson's

VERY SATISFYING
VERY NOURISHING

9445U

g 11,500 Copies of The Varsity Daily

le for the Enlarged Edition of The Varsity Today or ten inches longer than the width of the page. The plate is cast this way so that the top, or surface metal, which is usually porous and degraded, may be trimmed off, thus leaving a finished plate of the purest and finest grained metal. This excess metal is cut off, both ends of the plate beveled and the centre automatically bored to the exact required diameter in one operation on the "plate finishing machine." A few seconds suffice to turn the rough plate into a finished product, accurate to a few thousandths of an inch, so that the plate will fit perfectly, on the steel cylinder of the press designed to carry it.

The type plate now goes to the pressman, ready to reproduce the printed page of the newspaper. It is quickly fastened to the cylinder and becomes part of the big press until the edition is printed, when it goes back to the melting pot to be used again in the making of other pages.

The type plates on the Rotary press are perfectly cylindrical except for a slot 1 1/4 inches in width for its full length. Two plates are clamped on each of the cylinders and are locked into position securely. The cylinders carrying the page of metal come in contact with other cylinders covered with rubber blankets and tough cloth, so finely adjusted that the blank paper running between them receives just enough pressure to receive the impression of the plate. Ink is carried up to the plate cylinders by means of another set of rollers from the ink "fountains" or reservoirs below.

The press is divided into four units, with two plate cylinders, two impression cylinders and the necessary ink rollers to each one. Each unit prints four pages and is fed by a separate roll of paper. When sixteen pages are being printed each unit is in operation and four rolls of paper are being fed from the rear of the press. The press can be enlarged by adding another deck (two units) making it a 24-page machine.

600 POUND PAPER ROLLS

The paper, on rolls weighing between 600 and 700 pounds, is fed to its proper unit, pressed against one plate cylinder, and then reversed in direction so that the second set of cylinders of each unit may put the impression on the reverse side. From there the long ribbons of paper travel forward to the front of the press where other rollers gather them together and feed them into the folder over a paper or former which gives them the first or lengthwise fold.

The folder, which is the finest piece of machinery of its kind ever invented, cuts the sheets in the proper length, gives the paper a second fold and delivers the printed papers, neatly piled and counted in 25's if the press is being operated at full speed.

Dean Discusses Daily Dozen

"Physical activity is directly connected with preservation of the health of the whole body," said Dr. E. Stanley Ryerson, announcing the second of three weekly public lectures on the relation between physical and mental health. Dr. Ryerson, Assistant Dean of the Faculty of Medicine and Director of the School of Physical and Health Education will deliver his next lecture this afternoon at 6:10 p.m. in Room 138 of the Medical Building.

According to Dr. Ryerson, any sort of physical activity increases enormously the flow of blood through the affected muscles and thence through the whole system.

"The capillary blood flow may go up 750 times whenever a person takes part in any violent activity such as basketball," said Dr. Ryerson. Physical activity also improves the quality of the bones, the joints and the muscles of the body.

"Exercise must however not be overdone," he said, "because excess leads to abnormal formation of the connective tissue around the muscles. This is amply demonstrated in the toughness of the meat which is found on an old steer or an over-active hen."

"Finally," concluded Dr. Ryerson, "health is harmony. Exercise must not be over-emphasized or else it will lead to stiffness and pain in the muscles. The healthiest type of man is the one who knows how to balance correctly physical and mental exercise."

Senator Duncan McLean Marshall, former Ontario minister of agriculture, died in Toronto on Jan. 16.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir: Like the old arab physician in Browning's "An Epistle", we've had an itch, a sting to write, a tang! Ruthless honesty prompted us to ask ourselves whether it was worth while, not to ourselves, but to the other Pass Arts students. We decided it was worth while! We cannot be misunderstood . . . not in the mood we are in . . . although we may be disagreed with. But what of it if we are? That will not only be profitable, but necessary to promote right thinking.

It is not without some regret that we loosen our collars and ties and reply to the critic criticism being levelled at the staff and students of this university in the Pass Arts Course. Oh! Not the staff! But the staff who instruct the poor deluded members of Pass Course would, in any court of law, be considered as accessories to the crime. We never realized before that the largest university in the British Empire is being run by a group of men and women so incompetent that they have allowed it to become a factory for the mass production of assembly line B.A.'s. And further . . . this degree will make us automatically eligible to enter "polite" society. Heaven forbid! To the gentlemen who are spending sleepless nights because of this fear we are glad and proud to say that we want to have nothing to do with you or your "polite" society! So put the pills away and get a good night's rest!

What fools they are, those Pass Arts Students! They study at night, write essays, write up laboratory reports, etc., and cherish the opportunity to acquire, as they are being informed by enlightened gentlemen, a modicum of knowledge.

SOLID!

Yes, that's the trend today, fellows! For those who appreciate the best in woollens, women, and song, it's SOLID 99 44/100 to 1. And speaking of cloth, you simply must see our fresh selection of solid shades in browns, grays, and blues. These fine serges, soft, flannels, and beautiful English gabardines eagerly await the feel of your fingers. We'd love to meet you at

LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES

449 Spadina Avenue
Phones: RA. 8995-6

Showroom hours are nine to nine daily, Saturdays until 6. Handmade clothes made right on the premises.

P.S.: Have you seen our one-button roll? (double-breasted, of course). Ask the man who wears one!

P.P.S.: We have enlarged our staff and can now give 4 week service (sooner if necessary).

"You cannot but have observed what a violent run there is among . . . weak people against a university education" —Swift.

Oh, sure. Sure we won the war . . . but why? So we can go on hanging out our own "INTELLIGENTSIA ONLY!" signs on the door-posts of our universities instead of having the Nazis do it for us. After all, that's what's known as democracy, isn't it? A liberal education for the masses is dead. We must keep the attendance at the university at a minimum . . . only a select class must be allowed to find out the Truth . . . because that's what a liberal education is. It's a well known fact that the levels of intelligence are not equal. But who wants anyone but a superior adult test passed to attend this noble institution? Only a few socialistic democratic reds. As we leave we shall close the door silently. Farewell Democracy!

—F. J. SOPLET, I Pass Arts.
—SAMUEL CAMPBELL, B.A., School of Graduate Studies

Jewish Student Fellowship

Cordially invites you to attend a meeting in regard to the coming of

"HILLEL"

on the University of Toronto Campus

Speakers:

RABBI GERSHON LEVI

Director Designate of the HILLEL FOUNDATION

MURRAY SACHS

President of the Jewish Student Fellowship

Wednesday, Jan. 23—8 p.m. sharp

WOMEN'S UNION

REFRESHMENTS

DANCING

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

smoke the mild cigarette

Art, Music and Drama

Father Comes Back

Life with Father at the Royal Alexandra is one of the best products the American commercial theatre has turned out. Adapted by Messrs. Lindsay and Crouse from the novel of the same name by Clarence Day Jr., the play has captured all the atmosphere of the expanding and somewhat tasteless era of America—of the era when drawing rooms were cluttered with monstrous knickknacks of all shapes and sizes, hideous portraits of grandmama and cousin Albert, and ornate furniture with a solidity only equalled by the fathers of that age. Such a father is Clarence Day.

The prime attraction in this play is the charm that permeates the atmosphere. Although numerous clashes develop between father and mother, and father and his four sons, at no time is there any real disharmony in the family. It demonstrates how a pompous father believes he exercises the ruling power which is actually wielded by mother. The most accurate way to describe the play is that it is a series of tin-types in family album. Although it is somewhat episodic, the story is held together by the attempts of Mrs. Day to persuade her husband to be baptised, much against his will. The characters and circumstances so contrive that every moment draws a good hearty laugh.

Carl Benton Reid, as Mr. Day, displayed an amazing theatrical technique, unequalled by anything we have seen recently. Each gesture, grimace, and intonation of voice was calculated to enhance the character. Betty Linley, as Mrs. Day, although at times just a tinge too shrewish, handled her role with all the delicacy characteristic of a late Victoria mother, complete with tight waist and bustle. The supporting cast was on the whole quite competent, but there was obvious over-acting by Annie, the maid, who was squeezing as many laughs out of her few lines as possible. But this was the only weakness in the production, and may have been the result of direction intended to warm the audience to the play as soon as the curtain opened. However, this is being extremely hypocritical. What impressed the reviewer most was that no one acted a solo role. There was no "playing to the audience", as was the case the last time Life with Father appeared in Toronto. For commercial theatre, everyone co-operated remarkably well, which, of course, is a mark which distinguishes between great acting and "ham".

Credit should be extended to the stage-crew of the Royal Alec. Owing to a strike somewhere in the United States, the union evidently prevented the company from bringing their sets and props to Canada. In 48 hours the Royal Alexandra crew created the set being used this week as well as obtaining all the furniture.

Life with Father is an extraordinarily entertaining show.

—VERNON CHAPMAN.

Fiedler At The Pops

Whether Arthur Fiedler, perpetrator of the idea of "Pops" concerts, has done a service or a disservice to the cause of music is a moot point. It has been argued that he has done much in spreading music and has converted hundreds of uninitiated. It has also been argued, and I think more effectively, that he has played a big part in stunting the growth of the musical appreciation of his listeners. Certainly, the program through which he led the Toronto Symphony Orchestra last Friday lends weight to this latter argument.

Part of the program, typical of the sort of stuff Fiedler plays in Boston, was brazen in its appeal to poor taste. No local program-maker ever thought of playing Edouard Strauss' Fast Track Polka, even at the Prom concerts. But perhaps Mr. Fiedler did not expect us to listen to it. From the broadcasts of the Boston Pops concerts I gather that nobody ever stops clinking their bottles and talking long enough to really listen. And the reason for this is that there is nothing in the music that cannot be grasped above the din.

Fiedler's choice of program appears even more astonishing because of the fact that he is obviously a capable musician. On records, he has done some work of a very high calibre with a group called the Fiedler Sinfonetta. Last Friday I was impressed with his control over the orchestra in the last movement of Tchaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, which was well played. But what it is that allows a capable and serious musician to tear out a hunk of music from a well integrated whole, I cannot say.

The most effective argument put forth in defence of the Pops concerts is that they are money makers. Nobody will deny orchestras the right to raise money in any way they please. But we consider the idea that the audience must on no account be obliged to exert itself as one which defeats at least part of the purpose of Pops concerts. We feel that the concerts would be more popular than ever if the music were not consistently of so trivial a nature. We feel that Sir Ernest MacMillan had the right idea last week when he played Beethoven's Eighth Symphony on the program and we hope that the Fiedler type of program will make no headway here. The consolation we took from last Friday's concert was that henceforth all the Pops concerts are bound to be as such as to contribute to the musical advancement of the audience.

PHILIP FREEDMAN.

Hart House Committee Elections

Members proposing to stand for election to the Debates Committee are informed that in order to qualify for nomination they must have spoken from the floor of the House at one or more debates. There will be only two Hart House Debates before the elections on March 6th, one on Wednesday 23rd. January and one on Wednesday, 20th February.

Books

What of Taxes?

Do you want to know something about the taxes you will soon be paying? Canada's Burden of Taxation: Pre-war and Post-war (Oxford University Press. Twenty-five cents) is an exhaustive survey prepared by Gilbert Jackson and Associates. One of its chief contentions is that our taxes are likely to be high for some time to come.

The difficulty before the war was that "while the cost of civil administration had been very much increased (between 1930 and 1939), the taxable resources of the Dominion had been considerably lessened." Now that the war is over, we must expect a continuing high level of expenditure; there will be larger defence budgets than before the war, although naturally less than during the past six years, pensions, subsidies, increased social service costs, etc. And the problem of meeting these expenditures will also be the problem of increasing the resources of the country as a whole.

Full Employment has been suggested as a possible solution to this problem. But Full Employment apparently means different things to different people: to many of us it means everyone working who is able to work, and increased care for those physically or mentally unable to do so; but to certain business leaders it means an ever-present "pool" of unemployed workers who, we may perhaps cynically suggest, would soon be used to lower wages. To Mr. Jackson (and Associates) Full employment in this country depends on Great Britain and the United States. Glancing at the latter country, we may perhaps decide that this means Canada has little chance.

I have two major objections to Canada's Burden of Taxation. For one thing, why not find an Associate who has some idea of the social aspects of high taxation? Heavy taxes have really hit two groups: Those whose wages are so low that taxation deprives them of many of the necessities of life; and those whose wages were so low for many years that recent heavy taxation has kept them from attaining the standard their increased wages should have allowed. Certainly the wealthy are heavily taxed; but they are deprived of luxuries, which is an entirely different thing.

My other objection is that the book is dreary and dull. Perhaps such texts must always have a limited appeal, but interesting writing could still do something. Canada's Burden of Taxation is oppressed by commas as much as by statistics.

—Robert Weaver.

Controller Smith To Speak Today

Controller Stewart Smith, who is considered a leading figure in municipal affairs and an expert on the question of national housing, will address an open meeting of the Labor Progressive Club at 8:00 p.m. today, in Cartwright Hall.

The Housing Problem, topic of Mr. Smith's address, has become of great interest to everyone, including students, in the past few months. Its effect on students has been experienced since the beginning of the fall term, when the Students' Administrative Council was besieged with requests for any kind of a room.

Last week, the University College Parliament came to the conclusion that post-war adjustments, including the housing problem, were part of the cause of the present crime wave. Mr. Smith will explain the problem and suggest methods of reform.

VIC OPEN HOUSE

Four Victoria student-delegates to the recent Missionary Conference of University Students in Edmonton will conduct a panel on Federation in Vic. Alumni Hall tonight at 8:00 p.m.

CANADIAN NATIONAL TELEGRAPHS

(At Present)
Telegrams will be Received at
14 BROCK STREET
Ajax Village

Tenor Shortage Hampers Singers

Incouraged by a successful coast-to-coast carol broadcast before Christmas, the Hart House Glee Club are preparing for their major appearance: the Hart House Sunday Evening Concert on February 24.

Conducted by Dr. Charles Peaker, the club this year boasts a record membership of 130 students from all faculties.

Membership for basses is now closed. The committee, however, are making an urgent appeal for more first and second tenors, who can join between now and the five o'clock rehearsal Tuesday, January 22.

The Sunday Concert will feature chorales and drinking songs, Handel's Hallelujah from Judas Mac-cabeus, two little-known Schubert love songs, and the rollicking Swazi and Waltzing Matilda. Reluctant tenors, committee declare, cannot afford to miss the fun!

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

RED AND WHITE NIGHT

with

HUGH GRAHAM

and Orchestra

WOMEN'S UNION

TONIGHT 8.30 p.m.

ADMISSION BY ADMIT-TO-LECTURE CARD

COME SINGLE

GO HOME DOUBLE

University Symphony Orchestra

Rehearsal for full orchestra, Wednesday, Jan. 23rd.

7:30 p.m. Sharp

CONVOCATION HALL

Complete and prompt attendance required

PLEASE BE SURE TO BRING ALL BORROWED MUSIC

Classified Advertisements

LOST

Between Library and Hoskin Ave., late Friday afternoon: lady's black Parker pen. Write Box D, The Varsity.

FOUND

Slide-rule, found in the Biology Bldg., Monday, Jan. 21st. LL 5755.

EXCHANGE

Will exchange house in Ajax for accommodation in Toronto. Must be ex-service student with family. Apply Box B, The Varsity.

TYPING DONE

I'd be very glad to do your typing this year! "Evelyn", Box A, The Varsity.

FOR RENT

Sunny warm single room, overlooking the lake, grill, private entrance, five minutes from end of Queen east car-line. Man student preferred. $5.00 weekly. HO 7126.

PERSONAL

Joe: All is forgiven, come home. Mickey Lester fixed things up for us. P.S. I'll listen every day now. Maude.

WANTED

Invitations to the Arts Ball, from Betty and Mary. Contact Bill or Bob. P.S. Maude doesn't interest us. Hope you are not going with Joe.

WANTED

Two conservatory students wish someone to teach them French diction and interpretation. Please phone Miss R. Kameda, MO. 8961.

WANTED

2 tickets to Feb. 22nd, Vic-At-Home. Will trade 2 tickets for Feb. 1st, dance plus cash premium. KE. 5934, after 6.

VOLLEYBALL SCHEDULE

The girls' volleyball teams will commence their practices at Lillian Massey according to the following schedule: Tuesday 22, 4:00 Vic. I, 5:00 Vic. II, 6:00 P.H.E., 7:00 U.C.; Wed. 23, 5:00 St. Hilda's, 6:00 O.T., 7:00 U.C.; Thurs. 24, 5:00 P.H.E., 6:00 Vic. II, 7:00 P.H.E.; Fri. 25, 4:00 Vic. I, 5:00 P.H.E., 6:00 O.T. At the Margaret Eaton gym P.H.E. will practice on Fri. 25 at 4:30-6:00.

In China the classics were cut into tablets which were printed by hand in 175 A.D.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Bredin Stapells

EXCLUSIVE EH!

A whole page, sports fans, a whole page, is what we have now got. Sports has finally received the recognition it rightfully deserves. The battle of the ads is over, so leave us heave a sigh of relief.

And talking about space, you Ajax athletes, we want to give you your fair share of the swag. That means that we need reporters who know something about sports, and are willing to learn how to write and type. S.A.C. man Jack Essery, is waiting for your applications. So don't delay, get there today, and try the old hand right away.

ENTHUSIASTIC FANS.

Well, where are they? We've got a winning Junior Varsity hockey squad. Surprised. They're playing in the Jr. B. O.H.A. series. This is a good brand of hockey, what have we got against the lads? Or have we lost all our hockey fans of yesteryears. The boys are really supplying A-1 hockey, and they put their show on before a thriving crowd of several.

Saturday night was called a preview night. If that was a preview of future Athletic nights, we might as well pack up the schedule and go home. What was probably the outstanding basketball game in the intercollegiate year, was undoubtedly missed by many, whom we hope now regret it.

BLUES AT HOME

The Senior Varsity Blues will be receiving on their home ice for the first time Friday and Saturday of this weekend. You have read about their victories; now you may see these demons of the ice palaces in person. We've waited a long time for this treat, so we hope to see you there. Don't forget the pennants and a few volunteer cheer leaders.

WOMEN, AH, WOMEN

With our increased space, we hope to bring to our readers news of the gentler sex. These gals have a snappy sports series, which will be of interest to all, including even the male animal. Of this we will have more to say in the very near future. Watch next weeks' serial... watch it!

• Sportswoman •

By Polly Mutz

A WEEK OF HOCKEY—

The hockey league, under the able guidance of it's president, Leona Eunson, began as scheduled last Monday, just in time for the cold weather. St. Hilda's and U.C.I. were the first teams to hit the ice... the score was 2-2... even after playing overtime the tie was not broken... Marg Fletcher and Dorothy Jane Sanders scoring for St. Hilda's... Mary Hicks and Eileen Cameron for U.C.... Mary McMillan as goalie for U.C. was the most worthy of comment, the other players indulging in much checking and lone-star technique.

Vic. 1 was the first team to register a win... P.H.E.I. allowed but one puck to sneak past the goal, but didn't break the line of their opponents goal... Joan Chalk scored from an assist by Betty Fuller, making the sum of 1-0 in favor of Vic. In the next game, the sister group of Vic. 1, Vic. 11 was another winner... with a tally of 2 as compared to U.C. II's 1. The latter teams proved to be evenly matched, at least to the ratio of 2-1. Jean Hunt slid the puck off the end of her stick for the U.C. point, with Duncan doing the honors for Vic.... both of them. To the players, it seemed fast hockey, punctuated by frequent spills and much checking, with no penalties.

The last game of the week featured Meds and St. Mikes. The play centered mainly around the St. Mike's goal, with the goal keeper Therese Gallivan doing a noble job of fending off onslaughts, allowing only 2 pucks to sneak past her vigilant guard. In the first period Estelle Heakes scored a goal for Meds, the second was bounced in by Joan Fletcher in the third period. It was a one-sided but lively game, above the standard exhibited last year.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY:—

12:00	KNOX B vs. WYC	V. Hart, Mosher
4:00	U.C. III vs. KNOX A	Andison, Sinclair
5:00	BUS. ADM. vs. FOR A	Andison, Sinclair

BASKETBALL MAJOR:—

1:00	SR. SPS vs. SR. MED.	Farrell
4:00	PHE II vs. TRIN. A	Zeldin
6:30	JR. U.C. A. vs. PHE I	Swan
7:30	WYC A vs. KNOX A	Swan
8:30	ST. M. B vs. TRIN B	Swan

BASKETBALL MINOR:—

1:00	VIC IV vs. IV CHEM	Smith
4:00	ST. M. D vs. II ENG. BUS	Geary
5:00	V DENT vs. III CHEM	Geary
6:00	U.C. ECON vs. FOR B	Sansone
7:00	VIC X vs. EMMAN B	Sansone

INDOOR TRACK:—

5:00 880 YDS SENIOR—50 YDS DASH—880 YDS NOVICE.

Hi Stu! Camera-caught at last week's Varsity-Western cage tilt, Stu Scott, star of the Senior Basketball squad scores on a one-hand shot from the keyhole. Lensman George Zuckerman rates praise for a quick pic of the slick trick.

Discuss Fair Ducat Distribution In Intra-mural Athletic Agenda

The question of Athletic Nights, and of the ticket sale for these regular Saturday events was tops on the agenda at a meeting of the Intra-mural Athletic Committee in Hart House yesterday afternoon.

All the faculties on (and off) the campus were represented, Ajax affairs being of particular interest to the conferees.

The meeting, presided over by "Mac" MacCutcheon, passed unanimously on the resolution that (1) the price per single ticket be fifty cents, and (2) ticket distribution be by allocation to the various faculties and colleges.

Sale of these much sought after 'open sesame's is to be restricted to approximately twelve hundred, with no more than two per person.

The faculty representatives are expected to announce the place and time for the sale of their allotments.

Students in medicine may buy their tickets from their athletic year representatives, while the Vic sale will be handled through the S.A.C. office. The U.C. billets may be obtained in the Jr. Common Room. Frank Rocchi reports that Teffy Hall will be the headquarters for the distribution of the Gael allotment. All tickets are to go on sale at noon today.

Following is the allotment per faculty—Dents (60), Forestry (30), Emmanuel (15), Knox (10), Meds (120), Pharmacy (30), P.H.E. (15), Bus. Admin. (45), St. Mikes (55), Trinity (50), U.C. (150), Vic (135), Wycliffe (10), S.P.S. (240), Ajax (215).

The committee also dealt with the eligibility problem, defining its position re intermediate hockey and basketball.

It was announced that all undergraduates engaged in sports at the intermediate level of competition were to be considered eligible for intramural activities, without consulting with the director of athletics, as formerly.

Members of the Jr. B.O.H.A. team however, are not affected by this ruling, since they are Varsity players, and thus are automatically disqualified from participation in interfaculty games.

Due to the great amount of detail which had to be covered at yesterday's meeting, the committee did not accomplish all that it might have desired. Mr. MacCutcheon announced that a special session will be held on Thursday to discuss, and possibly to change the point system for the Reed Trophy competition. There has been more than a little criticism of the scoring set-up in this trophy race, which has tended to impose an unfair handicap on some of the larger faculties.

Thursday's meeting may go a long way towards a return to the prewar system, under which it was not impossible for a quality-rather-than quantity college to take all honors.

"Go Out For Falls, Boys!" Chesty Says; Tusslers Obey

Wrestling supervisor "Chesty" Martin has an eye on the Tom Gibson Cup, symbol of Intercollegiate Boxing and Wrestling supremacy. So he tells his boys "Go out for falls boys, go out for falls" Falls mean extra pointage toward copping this trophy.

So the Varsity tusslers, realizing 'Chesty' hasn't earned his position as supervisor because of his excellent poker game go out for falls.

They did right well last Friday and Saturday too. Friday night the Juniors took on the gentlemen from the Young Men's Hebrew Association in the upper gym of Hart House. Each club copped three bouts with two ending in a draw.

The next night the West End Y.M.C.A. came visiting and went home with three wins. The hosts took two bouts with one coming at a split decision.

The best exhibition of mat skill Friday night was the heavyweight battle between Varsity's Frank Campbell and Auden. Both boys looked as though they had designs on Whipper Billy Watson. Their tilt was a photo-finish.

The Peace-McDonough bout featured the Saturday night's proceedings. Peace, the coach of the 'Y' team, is the amateur lightweight of North America and displayed his skill to p.n. McDonough.

Earlier on the card, Heath lost to Spitchen of the 'Y' team. Heath hails from Saskatchewan and is the lightweight champ of the West.

Friday Night's Wrestling Card

1. Cassels (V) defeated Zigler.
2. Steiner (Y) defeated Dewan.
3. Drohan (V) defeated Grafstein.
4. Froicht (Y) defeated Druzhina.
5. Sinclair (V) defeated Jacobs.
6. Taylor (V) drew with Fink.
7. Deber (Y) defeated Altken.
8. Campbell (V) drew with Auden.

Saturday Night's Wrestling Card

1. Dewan (V) drew with Langley.
2. Spilchen (Y) defeated Heath.
3. Anderson (Y) defeated T. McDonough.
4. Taylor (V) defeated Bradley.
5. Peace (Y) defeated J. McDonough.
6. Amos (V) defeated Bailey.
- Saturday Night's Boxing Card
1. Murphy (V) defeated Shields.
2. Bonaparte (Y) defeated Frankel.
3. Masson (Y) defeated Livingstone.
4. Roberts (V) defeated Buffery.
5. McCuish (V) defeated Norie.
6. Marson (Y) defeated Crowhurst.
7. Sugar (V) defeated Desmoulins.

Children Enjoy "Stability" of Music

By Ross McLean

The young composers together had written more than 100 songs. Kathie Femia for instance, who might be seven or eight, it's hard to be sure, had written and was most proud of "The Four Crickets."

Miss Femia obligingly traced her inspiration. "I thought of the crickets in the field. The big empty lot behind the Jewish Synagogue where you catch crickets in the field."

Not a prodigy was this Kathie who had written her cricket song. Just another pupil among 130 youngsters of all nationalities enrolled in the Music School of the University Settlement. Kathie is one of the originals in an experimental creative music class begun among the children at the Settlement in 1943.

Kathie's crickets had been named Dewie, Pewie, Louie and Screwy. "I always read Donald Duck and I got that from him."

Under the supervision of Miss Barbara Pentland, prominent Canadian composer at the Conservatory, the children gather each Saturday morning to release young imaginations in music.

"They learn certain sounds," Miss Pentland explains, "and they learn symbols for those sounds. Thus they are able to compose."

"It is purely spontaneous—all children like to make up things. Here they are not hampered by conventions. But we have to get them young."

These classes of improvisation in music are just one phase of the Music School. Again the Music School is just one phase of the entire Settlement project begun in 1911 as an early experiment in community centres and concentrated welfare work.

In her creative classes Miss Pentland urges individuality. "All children," she observes, "are creative up to a certain point. We have no one of exceptional promise but many with individuality."

Exercise of individuality by the children of needy families is both healthy and helpful to the children, she feels.

Composition subjects range from "The Snow" to "My Teacher" ("I was very flattered," Miss Pentland confesses), and even include Kathie's crickets.

"My object," Miss Pentland says, "is to try to give some chance to anybody with any eagerness to compose."

Already a popular feature of the Music School is this special class. In charge of all work undertaken by the School is Barbara Cass-Beggs.

As director she oversees the activities of six volunteer teachers of piano and supervises the instruction given to children of this centre.

Music instruction, a comparatively recent addition to the Settlement's program, has proven the key to the problem of language and cultural barriers existing in the Settlement area. Its population a potpourri of nationalities, the Settlement has found in music, with its deep-seated emotional pull, the solution to race differences.

In Miss Pentland's class, as one example children of Jewish, Negro, Czechoslovakian, Italian and Hungarian ancestry mingle at ease.

Mrs. Cass-Beggs expressed her philosophy about the Music School:

C.U.P. Flashes

(By The Canadian University Press)

Halifax—The recently appointed housing committee of the Dalhousie Veterans' Association last week formulated plans which are expected to alleviate the housing situation for married veterans. The committee plans to investigate unoccupied service barracks with a view to possible acquisition and through a series of questionnaires and personal interviews to make an accurate survey of the situation for campus veterans. The committee will then approach civic authorities to obtain priority for married veterans.

Kingston—According to a poll held recently, students at Queen's University hold sentiments similar to Tennyson with regard to unrequited love. "Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all" is the opinion of 89% of those canvassed. Negative votes and dental facilities on the campus totalled eight percent.

Winnipeg—Winnipeg basketball players will officially welcome a bison to their campus Jan. 28. The team's mascot, named Kanna Keena, will be welcomed by the serving of bisonburgers at a university pow-wow the next day. Canada Packers, local meat packing concern, will supply buffalo meat to the campus snack shops.

Kingston—Eight graduate students arrived from India under the Indian government scholarship plan this month to enroll in Queen's Faculty of Applied Science. They will begin studying for their master's degree next fall.

Vancouver—The executive of the University of British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Legion is forming a committee to investigate the possibilities of full-time medicine for student veterans.

CHANGED ADDRESS?

All Ex-Service students who have applied for discharge dental treatment, and have not yet received authorization for this, should notify the Chief, Dental Services, D.V.A. Ottawa, of any change of address since application was made, in order that treatment will be arranged in your present district. Ajax students in residence at Ajax please note particularly.

Victoria Chancellor Back in Civies

Major-General A. C. Spencer, Chancellor of Victoria University and twice commander of Camp Borden, Canada's largest military camp in the Second World War, will vacate the post and return to civilian life today.

Gen. Spencer, executive of Imperial Oil at the outbreak of war, went overseas with the 1st Hussars of London, Ont. On his return he became commander of Borden with the rank of brigadier. Following a stay at National Defense Headquarters, he returned to Borden last March having been promoted in the meantime to the rank of major-general.

In Argentina small merchants joined industrial firms in a three day lockout protesting wage increases and year-end bonuses to labor decreed by the Argentine government. The government will invoke a wartime law to assure the population sufficient food, it was announced recently.

Teas, Tryouts End Rushing; Pledges Bid

Last Saturday saw the last limp end of the rushing season; tomorrow sees the latest crop of pledges being sworn in. Every year at this time, first-year co-eds of University College miss lectures, exams, essay-deadlines, and even dates in a mad round of teas, evening parties, and lunches in an attempt to find the sorority which would best suit them.

With the large number of 500 first-year women balanced off against the quota of some 20 new members set for each of the 11 Greek-letter organizations, the sorting-out process will be a more exhausting task than ever before, and not a few freshies will be disappointed with the results. Not infrequently, girls find that they get a bid for the sorority of their second choice, or that their best friend has been asked to join a different one from theirs.

Such occurrences make arguments against the system in the war of pro and controversy waged about fraternities. A different attitude is taken than in the States, and fraternities are banned from most Canadian camps, as in Queen's, as being a separating element in a small university. University College alone of the affiliated colleges here permits them, though unofficially. The other colleges do not allow them, complaining that they tend to split the girls up into groups in residences and within the college.

A healthy and organized life and the opportunity to make lasting friendships for those living away from home, is one argument put up by sorority members. Several couple with that an initiation requirement of a high academic standing, and regulated study hours.

"Snobbish" and "Exclusive" are epithets which have been levelled at sororities, whose main functions are social. They have also been accused of exercising racial discrimination.

Whatever their merits or demerits, the sorority rushing has come to a close for another year, leaving in its wake a trail of notes and loss of sleep to be made up by the freshies of University College.

Paper Enlarged

(Continued from Page 1.) of The Varsity is supervision of the paper each day by newspaper professionals. Make-up men and composers of the plant which produces the tri-weekly Oshawa Times-Gazette and nine other newspaper publications weekly take a hand in producing The Varsity every night.

Would-be reporters from all colleges and faculties are urged to visit The Varsity office and start aiding production of what is now probably the largest college daily in the world. Change-over of emphasis from night-editing to actual writing is expected to put new life into the staff-training program.

ALWAYS A FIRST TIME

No amateur golfer in 44 years could win the North and South at Pinehurst. But Lieut. Cary Middlecott did it recently, with 100 of the leading pros looking on.

Correction

The Engineering Parliament's debate "resolved that the beverage rooms should be replaced by open bars" will be held today at 5.00 p.m. in Room 25 in the Engineering Building.

It was erroneously announced in yesterday's issue of The Varsity that the debate would take place on Monday.

Dash Won By Dark Horses Individuals Feature Meet

The third week of the Indoor track program got up a full head of steam yesterday, and with the head of coach Hec Phillips at the throttle, covered a goodly amount of track during the afternoon. This was the first time that runners had had a chance to show themselves as individuals, since the two previous cuttings had been in the form of relays, and they made the most of their opportunity.

Running easily, J. Speers of Vic led his field all the way in the Novice 880-yard run, and finished well out in front in the excellent time of 2:09.3. Place and show were captured respectively by Bultynck of S.P.S. in 2:12.4, and Glen of Trinity in 2:13.4. Lawrence of S.P.S. came forth with a time of 2:16.

The Senior 880 was taken by D. Sloan of Vic, who came from second spot in the last two laps, to nose out Preston of Vic and Taylor of U.C. Sloan's time was 2:08, while Preston and Taylor were all tied up at 2:08.7. Phalen of P.H.E. was the fourth man to finish, clocked at 2:14.5.

Dark horses ran rampant in the 80-yard dash. Two men who have seemingly been in hibernation all year suddenly came violently to life. Perhaps Harry Kerrison, who gave starting instructions, scared them when he waved his "Scotch Starter" in their direction.

At any rate, Morelli of St. Mike's and Gardner of Victoria broke the tape with the identical times of 5.7 seconds. Skuleman Fordyce and Hikichi of Vic. were only 1/4 of a step behind, tying for third with 5.75. The concluding runs in these events will take place this afternoon from 5 until 6.

"Music with its universal language has much to offer. Through the children's activity the parents too get pulled into the community and in the homes where there is a piano family sing songs prove a source of mutual enjoyment to children and parents. Folk songs from the parent's country are played and sung and the children feel a new interest and respect for parents whom otherwise they tend to grow away from and look down on."

The majority of children enrolled at the Settlement School want to learn the piano or the violin. The workers try to interest them in other aspects of music such as eurythmics, free composition, an orchestra, choral groups, or attendance at the Symphony Pop Concerts.

Under the financial wing of the United Welfare Drive, the Settlement draws from University students and elsewhere for volunteer assistants at its many regular undertakings.

THURSDAY JAN. 31

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PRESENTS

SONNY

DUNHAM

at the

ARTS BALL

ART HALLMAN • BOBBY GIMBY

TICKETS UC ROTUNDA
10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Spirit And Speeches Feature Ajax Polls

Elections Heavily Contested

Presidential elections were heavily contested Monday night as Ajax students went to the polls for their premiere of university politics. A chairman elected to each house committee is automatically a member of the Engineering Society Executive and is assisted by a Vice-Chairman, Secretary-Treasurer, Social Convener, Athletic Director and a Member at Large, who assists in all endeavors and fills in for any member absent from committee meetings. Somewhat handicapped by limited associations with fellow students the lads nevertheless showed admirable ice-breaking technique, having speeches and all the trimmings as the following students rode to victory in their own residences.

House 722: Chair.—John Howes, Civil; Vice-Chair.—Ted Snider, Chem; Sec.-Treas.—John Church, Civil; Soc. Conv.—Frank Gowland, Civil; Athl. Dir.—Bill Brokenshire, Metal; Member-at-Large.—Boyd Ferris, Aeronautical.

House 723: Chairman.—Jim Vann, Mining; Vice-Chair.—Ted Hodgson, Mining; Sec.-Treas.—Jack McLean, Mechanical; Soc. Conv.—Gord Beatty, Chemical; Member-at-Large.—Pat Heenan, Mining & Geog; Athl. Dir.—Ron Hall, Chem.

House 724: Chair.—Verne Schneider, Min.; Vice-Chair.—Norm Troyer, Min.; Sec. Treas.—Jim Richmond, Chem.; Soc. Conv.—Dick Birch, Mech.; Athl. Dir.—Jim Craig, Architecture; Member-at-Large.—Gord Hunter, Civil.

House 725: Chair.—Ray Wakefield, Engineering & Business; Vice-Chair.—Gord Mitchell, Electrical; Sec.-Treas.—John Wastney, Arch.; Soc. Conv.—Ron McKinlay, Mech.; Athl. Dir.—Don Bell; Memb.-at-Large.—Al Turton.

House 726: Chair.—Don Brown, Aero.; Vice-Chair.—Allan Clews, Aero.; Sec.-Treas.—Graham Kemp; Soc. Conv.—Russ Rivers, Eng. Phys.; Athl. Dir.—Paul Schulte, Chem.; Member-at-Large.—Les Hudson, Mining & Engineering.

House 727: Chair.—John Rae, Mech.; Vice-Chair.—Don Owen, Chem.; Sec.-Treas.—Mac Campbell, Elec.; Soc. Conv.—Doug Haldarby, Arch.; Athl. Dir.—Bill Spence, Chem.; Memb.-at-Large.—Dunc

Marshall, Aero.

House 728: Chair.—Jack Garden, Aero.; Vice-Chair.—Paul Lawrence, Chem.; Sec.-Treas.—Cliff Dixon, Elec.; Soc. Conv.—Leeds Richardson, Civil; Athl. Dir.—Jerry Crossman, Chem.; Memb.-at-Large.—Paul Tuck, Chem.

House 729: Chair.—Al Heustis, Elec.; Vice-Chair.—Barry Hayes, Elec.; Sec.-Treas.—Jake Breithauff, Chem.; Soc. Conv.—Dave Philpott, Arch.; Athl. Dir.—Gord Lang, Elec.; Memb.-at-Large.—L. A. Riguero, Arch.

House 730: Chair.—John Profit, Chem.; Vice-Chair.—Bill Shaw, Civil; Sec.-Treas.—Don Mason, Mech.; Soc. Conv.—Mac Duff, Civil; Athl. Dir.—Harry Yone, Elec.; Memb.-at-Large.—Mac Lowe, Elec.

House 731: Chair.—Ken Miller, Elec.; Vice-Chair.—Mell Smith, Civil; Sec.-Treas.—Jim Pond, Elec.; Soc. Conv.—Hill Austin, Eng. & Geo.; Athl. Dir.—Eric Taylor, Chem.; Memb.-at-Large.—Keith Seroule, Mech.

House 732: Chair.—Peto Charest, Mech.; Vice-Chair.—Dave Proctor-Gregg, Aero.; Sec.-Treas.—Chris Flanagan, Aero.; Soc. Conv.—Tom Maxwell, Mech.; Athl. Dir.—Ken Mohum, Civil; Memb.-at-Large.—Bill McGeachie, Mech.

House 733: Chair.—G. D. Machum, Met.; Vice-Chair.—W. H. Inman, Civil; Sec.-Treas.—R. E. Cryler, Civil; Soc. Conv.—W. Armstrong, Aero.; Athl. Dir.—C. R. Gerald, Mining; Memb.-at-Large.—D. Hart, Mech.

House 734: Chair.—Lyon Sack, Civil; Vice-Chair.—Mike McAuliffe, Mech.; Sec.-Treas.—Joe Brigham, Mech.; Soc. Conv.—Ray Clarke, Mech.; Athl. Dir.—John Robson, Eng. & Phys.; Memb.-at-Large.—Jim Creighton, Civil.

House 735: Chair.—Bob Mussion, Eng. & Phys.; Vice Chair.—Jack Carry, Elec. Sec. Treas.—Don Jones, Eng. & Phys.; Soc. Conv.—Walt Gadzow, Aer.; Athl. Dir.—Herb Farnell, Metal; Memb.-at-Large.—Ross Chassels, Mining.

House 737: Chair.—M. Horton, Chem.; Vice-Chair.—W. H. Dingle, Eng. & Phys.; Sec. Treas.—W. Bateman, Aer.; Soc. Conv.—Johnny McCreedy, Min.; Athl. Dir.—W. R. Thomas, Mech.; Memb.-at-Large.—G. A. McCammon, Arch.

Pearl Harbor Attack Unknown To Japs?

"It is quite possible that the attack on Pearl Harbor took place without the knowledge of the Japanese Foreign Office," Dr. C. S. L. Bates told the International Affairs Society, Monday.

He attributed this possibility to the fact that the army and navy enjoyed special privileges of access to the emperor, and said that they might not have consulted him in this case until the attack had become a "fait accompli."

Dr. Bates explained that with only one party in Japan since 1940, the liberal parties were abolished and the Imperial Rule Assistants Association was set up. This party was similar in most respects to the Fascist Party of Italy. All education was state-controlled and the country in the grip of the militarists.

Of 30,000,000 Japanese, 3,000,000 belonged to the "samurai" class. They practised "bushido"—the "way of the knight," and were a hang-over from feudalism. The commercial development of the country had produced a capitalist class in whose hands the wealth was concentrated to such an extent that 8% of the families owned 75-90% of the wealth.

Speculating on the possibility of the Japanese being able to adopt the ways of democracy, Dr. Bates said that it would necessitate far-reaching changes in their culture before such a thing were brought into effect. He mentioned an experiment of self-government he had made with Japanese students and stated that the attempt had been quite successful despite the scepticism of older Japanese.

Half of the 8,000,000 in Japan were destroyed by American bombing, but he indicated that resentment of the Japanese had shifted from the Americans to their own military class.

Inter-Arts Drama Festival Prompted By Stage Rebirth

The rebirth of student efforts on the local stage, has suggested an inter-arts drama festival.

"Spurred on by the desire to use more student-directed activity in the dramatic field, we have formed a committee to look into the chances of putting on a drama festival in the next few weeks," said Vern Chapman, IV History, who will direct the joint efforts.

The proposed drama festival, gradually taking more definite shape, is sponsored and supported by the four colleges of the University. Under Chapman, who is also drama director of Victoria College, and assisted by Joy Sander-son of the U.C. Players' Guild, it is hoped that the University Drama Committee of prewar years may appear again in September. In the meantime, a temporary committee has been active making definite plans to put on the Drama-Festival on a reduced scale during the middle of February.

Under the protection of Prof. R. H. Hicks, Professor of French in Trinity College, the committee has decided to put on these plays during the evening's performance. "Hands across The Sea" and "Family Album," both by Noel Coward, will be presented by U.C. and Trinity students respectively. Vic. will put on "Riders To The Sea" by John Synge, famous Irish

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 66 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Wednesday, January 23, 1946

VETERANS ENDORSE S. A. C. COMMITTEE

C. C. F. Speaker

Mr. E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the Ontario C.C.F. Party, will address the University C.C.F. Club at 4:00 p.m. in the Women's Union this Thursday, on "The Fate of the Dominion-Provincial Conference".

President Roy Clark said that Dominion and Provincial attitudes held towards labor and employment, topics under discussion of the club, will also be discussed by Mr. Jolliffe.

Born in China, of missionary parents, he graduated in Political Science and Economics from Victoria, winning a Rhodes Scholarship. He practices law in Sudbury and Toronto, and was Leader of the Opposition in the last Ontario Legislature.

Pioneer Dentist's Son Appointed to Bench

Son of the first woman to graduate in dentistry in Canada has been appointed to the Bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

He is a Toronto lawyer, Dalton Wells, graduate of the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall, who has recently been acting as chief legal counsel to the enforcement branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Son of Dr. John Wells and Dr. Josephine Wells, both of whom were members of the dental profession, Mr. Wells is at 45 one of the youngest lawyers appointed to the Bench in Ontario.

In 1920 the first short Extension Course given by the University was attended by 279 farmers.

Present Spokesmen Upheld—Vote of 892-97

N. C. S. V. Affiliation Approved

The Ex-Service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council were endorsed by a vote of 892-97 on a questionnaire distributed last week to the student veterans. The endorsement is conditional on a full election next year.

The veterans also approved the formation of the National Conference of Student Veterans and the presentation of a brief to the government concerning maintenance grants, housing and educational problems. Only three veterans registered their opposition to the N. C. S. V. with 962 approving. By a count of 909-77 the Ex-Service Committee was empowered to represent Varsity ex-service students at the National Conference.

The questionnaire was conducted in order to clarify the position of the Ex-Service Committee. Last fall the S. A. C. empowered the large faculties to appoint veteran representatives to the S. A. C. Medicine, Engineering, Dentistry, and Arts all appointed representatives who have since felt the need of formal endorsement by the student veterans.

Falling approval of the S. A. C., veterans were asked for alternative suggestions. Some suggested immediate elections for next year's committee, others larger representation from the Faculty of Arts. A few veterans objected to any form of ex-service representation on the S. A. C., pointing out that they did not wish to be dissociated from the rest of the student body. Most dissenting veterans suggested a separate organization.

A minority objected to affiliation with N. C. S. V. feeling that they were not entitled to larger maintenance grants. Other veterans expressed the view that grants for married veterans were inadequate while single veterans were receiving a sufficiently large grant.

At last night's meeting of the S.A.C., J. A. Weir of Medicine was elected chairman of the Ex-Service Committee and the Committee was authorized to inform the N.C.S.V. of their endorsement.

"We would appreciate," said Weir, "hearing of the problems of any ex-servicemen but they should realize the Committee is not intended to act as a separate student government for veterans. It is only to handle the problems peculiar to them as veterans."

Women's Rep Urges Liaison Vets, Council

Viewing the just-released results of the S.A.C. veteran's questionnaire from the woman's point of view, Claire Rutherford, ex-servicewomen's representative on the S.A.C., recommended a stronger liaison between veterans and the council, between this Council and the National Council of Student Veterans, Montreal.

Miss Rutherford feels that the ex-service women on this campus have little idea of what the Veterans' Committee can do to aid their problems. "In the past," she said, "the Council has had meetings every second week to discuss vets' problems. If an ex-service woman has a problem or suggestion to help the Council she should contact a Council representative, her problem would be discussed at the meeting. After each meeting the results could be published in The Varsity and so passed along to the student body."

The recent questionnaire (story on page 1) brought votes from only 50, of the 300 ex-service women on the campus,—the majority of these were satisfied.

This seeming lack of interest, feels Miss Rutherford, is an indication that the women have managed to readjust themselves, are working hard, and have no complaints about their present representatives system.

Although not so acute, their problems are the same as the men's. Aided by loans and housing assistance from the S.A.C. a single girl has been able to live on $60 a month. Most of the women veterans are in University College with Victoria, Trinity and St. Michael's running a close second.

As women's representative Miss Rutherford has been active in the National Conference at McGill and also in the Amsterdam drive.

Manitoba Wins Debates Trophy

Winnipeg, Jan. 22 (CUP)—University of Manitoba is winner of the McGour trophy, symbolizing debating supremacy among western universities. The topic debated by an affirmative and negative team from each of the four western universities was "Resolved Government should guarantee employment for all persons at all times for all persons able and willing to work". The topic was debated simultaneously by all four universities.

Awards were made on a point basis. The Manitoba team taking the affirmative side defeated Alberta's negative team at Winnipeg; the decision was unanimous. At Vancouver when the Manitoba negative team defeated British Columbia's affirmative, the decision was split.

University of Saskatchewan defeated University of Alberta at Edmonton and Saskatchewan defeated British Columbia at Saskatoon. Both decisions were split.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a

University CollegeMI. 6611

Business OfficeMI. 6221

Night OfficeMI. 8405

Editor-In-Chief...W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
 Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
 Managing Editor.....Wally Beltry, 478
 Make-up Editor.....Feg Wallace, B.A.
 Rewrite Editor.....Barbara Hood, B.A.
 News Editor.....George Foster, 477
 Assistant.....Blanche Stanley, 476
 Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLean, 477
 Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
 Editor.....Philip Freedman, 478
 Staff Photographer.....Ralph Jones, 477
 Editor.....Bredin Stapells, 476
 Assistant.....Don Mason, 476
 Women's Sports Editor Polly Mutz, 476
 C.U.P. & Exchange
 Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
 Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 478
 Art, Music, and Drama
 Editor.....Philip Freedman, 478
 Staff Photographer.....Ralph Jones, 477
 Business and Advertising Manager—E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Wednesday, January 23, 1946

About Debates

A debate never settled anything that we know of, chiefly because the debaters on both sides are invariably special pleaders. The formal debate is a symbol of one of the root diseases of our age; the disease of advocacy.

Lawyers are paid to urge the views of their clients; politicians labor at inordinate length and with incredibly faded rhetoric the policies of the party bosses; writers, especially journalists, have almost invariably axes to grind; trade unionism or industrial capitalism or scepticism or pantheism or what have you.

What is wanted is balance, not bias; and balance is precisely what the modern intellectual world seems in conspiracy to prevent. It is taken for granted that a question should be fought out by spokesmen on either side. It is taken for granted either that one is right and one wrong, or that there is no right to the matter.

TRUTH LIES IN PROPORTION

Generally, both are right but one is more right than the other; for truth lies in proportion.

Now of all things, proportion is the most difficult to express; because words are clumsy and helpless before the many-sided subtlety of things. To say that the paper on which this page is printed is white demands some qualification; because other paper is whiter, and snow is whiter still.

Yet one must for practical purposes call it white, because one cannot be expanding vocabulary indefinitely through a thousand words for shades of whiteness.

There can be no argument, however, with one who would call this paper black; one can only tell him he does not see aright, and turn away. He cannot wriggle out by saying "it is all in the way you look at it." He is wrong.

START WITH THE OBJECT

Truth, then, is final; but because language is arbitrary there is, within limits, room for dispute. But one cannot fix the limits without having first seen the object. One cannot debate the whiteness of this paper without having first determined through the senses that it would be folly to call it black.

That should be the true order of thinking and of arguing. One must begin with perception, and fix limits. One may then argue about the least misleading terms to express the position of the object within those limits.

It is folly to start, as set debates are started, with a pair of conflicting propositions, out of which is beaten a compromise or a quarrel; because one should never start with propositions, but with things.

We shall be hearing tonight a Hart House Debate in which one side will deplore and the other will uphold the attempt of the unions to usurp the rights of management.

CRUSHING TRADITION

And we offer a small bet that no speaker will open with the necessary if somewhat dry business of determining what management is, whether it has rights, and whether the unions are in fact attempting to usurp them. If a man took that tack he would be sound, but he would lose the debate; so rooted is the tradition of advocacy.

We have not said that Hart House Debates or any debates are pernicious. They are not; because they are fun. At irregular intervals during the long history of the debates, groups of undergraduates appear to have achieved precisely this evaluation. The Warden's Debates scrap-book is punctuated with outrageous incidents like the pulling of rabbits from hats, or the apparition of Mr. Neville Chamberlain sitting McCarthy-like on the knee of Hitler.

LET US BE MERRY

We dare not suggest that the debates-room should be turned into a mad-house; the accumulated tradition of Hart House deters us. But we suggest to the speakers that since they are prevented by the set-up of debates from taking the truth seriously, they might as well treat it lightly. Since no binding conclusion can emerge, the emphasis might as well be on fun.

Those in whose eyes we seem to be belittling Hart House debates are certain (we can hear them priming their pens) to remind us that the Debates carry on the glorious traditions of the Parliamentary system by which this country and Britain have for so long been governed. Let them spare their pains. That is precisely what we are objecting to.

—W. H. K.

The Cold Shoulder Social Pun-ishment

Its cold-comparing season again January's fickle mercury certainly hasn't made either of the Bros. Smith to weep in their beards.

Wonder if that pair of pastille producers ever used their own product? With that jaw fallage how could they catch cold?

I have been chasing a cold for a week now. Finally caught it. Weak now!

In combat with an over-zealous 'flu germ I lost. What price sulfa when still I must sulfa?

So this virus and I are now living together. My new rheum-mate!

It happened yesterday morning. I had two people's tongues in my mouth when I awoke. My eyes looked like a display case in a leather goods store.

It's the same all over. Across the campus everywhere small undergraduate clusters assemble to focus conversations on the common cold, to trade sympathy, to swap sore-throat stories and to share sniffles. Everywhere the cold-plugged student is willing to discuss his affliction at the drop of a hat. Or if a hat looks a trifle insecure.

Of course there's nothing much wrong with me. Just a slight head cold. All I need are hot lemonade, more sleep and a clean decapitation.

I'm coughin' fit for a coffin.

But sneezin' in season.

EROS.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

In regard to your recent editorial entitled "School via Screen", I quite agree, it would be a definite advancement in our educational system.

During wartime movies were used extensively in the U.S.A., Great Britain and Canada for training purposes. This I know because from time to time I was shown movies for instructional purposes on theory of flight, dinghy drill, aircraft identification, navigation, and many other subjects. These films served a definite purpose; they taught us many things in a very short time. It was almost practical experience.

By the use of films we utilize not only our sense of hearing as we do in a lecture, but our sense of sight as well, by which we observe details of the demonstration that is being carried on.

The use of two of our faculties instead of one gives us two means of gaining knowledge. Furthermore, movies are a method for learning quickly, as more than one sense is being used, and a demonstration is always more impressive than an explanation.

It is true, some studies may not be totally adaptable to the film world, but nevertheless the added advantage in other subjects would more than make up for this, especially in any study where a demonstration can be of assistance.

Expense was suggested. This too I consider unimportant where education is concerned. Schools are the most important institutions in the state, and any expense no matter what it may be, when it is for the advancement of education which in turn benefits all mankind, is justified.

—KEN ROBINSON
II Arts.

NOTICE

Miss June Wong, Chairman of University of Toronto Committee of International Student Service, will be at Ajax Division, on Wednesday afternoon, January 23rd, for the purpose of meeting with any students interested in World Student Relief.

It is hoped to organize an I. S. S. Committee at Ajax at that time, which will work with the Toronto Committee in raising funds in the campaign in February.

Flowers for All Occasions

COOPER FLORIST

PARK PLAZA HOTEL
10 Avenue RoadMI. 6361
WE DELIVER

THE EDWARD KYLIE TRUST AWARD

Applications may be made to the Secretary of the Edward Kylie Trust on or before February 8th, 1946, by candidates for the Edward Kylie Trust Award for the year 1946-47. These applications should be made in writing and should give particulars of the qualifications and record of the applicant with a view to the following requirements. The Award will be made to a male student who is a British Subject, either a graduate or an undergraduate of Arts, preferably in the course of Modern History, at the University of Toronto, to enable him to pursue his studies in Great Britain. The Trustees shall make their award to that candidate who appears from his record at the University, to be most likely to occupy a position of leadership and influence in the Community.

The sum available is Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($850.00) for the year 1946-47 and the Trustees may renew the award for a second year if they are satisfied with the first year's record.

The Trustees, upon receiving applications, will arrange for the examination of the candidates and if the Trustees are not satisfied as to the suitability of any of the candidates they will have the right to withhold the award.

DATED this 21st. day of January A.D., 1946.

THE HONOURABLE DANA PORTER, K.C.

Parliament Buildings, Toronto.
Secretary, Edward Kylie Trust.

JOAN RIGBY

COATS
DRESSES TWEEDS SWEATERS
SUITS
54 BLOOR W. MI. 4969

TEXT BOOKS and SUPPLIES

FOR ALL COURSES

Save Money on Your Text Books

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(Block south of Bloor)

Hart House Bulletin Board

Hart House Debate

Tonight in the Debates Room at 8 p.m. the vital subject of labour versus management will be debated by undergraduates from S.P.S., U.C., Trinity and St. Michael's. Mr. A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labour and Mr. Gladstone Murray, a champion of Private Enterprise, will be present as Honorary Visitors and will participate in the debate.

FELT CRESTS

Official University felt crests are sold only at the S.A.C. office, Hart House

Price 50c

To be worn only on University Blue.

Suitable for sweater, gym suit or blazer.

Scientific Club To Hear Weltfish

Dr. Gene Weltfish, anthropologist from Columbia University, will speak on the subject "Science and the Race Problem", in a meeting held by the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers, Thursday at 8:20 p.m. at the Central Technical School Auditorium.

Since the appearance of Races of Mankind, in which she was co-author, the name of Dr. Weltfish has become familiar to Americans. The booklet, which has sold 700,000 copies to-date, makes use of the scientific method and anthropological facts to explode the myths of racial superiority.

Dr. Weltfish was born in New York City and obtained her Ph. D. at Columbia University, where she is an instructor in the department of Anthropology. At present she is working with the Public Affairs Committee, on methods by which material on race and anthropology may be made available to the public. She is also a member of the editorial board of the "Journal of Social Issues."

The Canadian Association of Scientific Workers, which is sponsoring this meeting as the first in a series titled: Science Forum, is a relatively new organization, but has been rapidly gaining influence in Canada. Its aims are to insure the fullest application of science to the welfare of society and to back the economic rights of scientists.

A University of Toronto section was formed this year, and student membership, which differs from full membership only by a limitation of voting power, is open to any student proceeding to a degree.

Associations of Scientific Workers have been formed throughout the British Empire. There is also one in the United States, which has been making itself heard in such international questions as Atomic Power, Food Control and Scientific Research.

Ajax Hospital Is 32-Bedder

Situated on the grounds opposite York Hall, Ajax boasts of a complete modern hospital.

Equipped with the latest instruments known to medical science, this 32-bed hospital can handle as many as 42 patients. It has two semi-private wards, a large eight-bed ward and six others of various sizes.

The two doctors in charge of the compact health centre, Dr. Rogers and Dr. McKenzie have watched it grow from the ground up. They entered the Ajax institution when it was first opened under Defense Industries Limited to serve munition workers and stuck with it during the transition period until now they are in charge of the medical examinations of all students.

The pride of the hospital is the small operating room which can take care of any emergencies. It has, as well, a laboratory, a modern X-ray machine, male and female surgery wards, two heat lamps that are in constant use and an isolation ward complete with kitchen. The hospital kitchen itself is completely equipped with modern electrical conveniences.

At the present time, there is but a lone patient within its confines and he is suffering from nothing more than a severe cold which gained for him the honor of being the first Ajax student to test the hospital's conveniences.

Have You Lost Anything?
Have You Anything
For Sale?

For quick results
put a Classified Ad.
in "The Varsity"

Phone MI. 6221

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 66 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Wednesday, January 23, 1946

Comforts of Home in Ajax Residences

Ajax residences have well furnished common rooms. Here John and Roy Evans, seated on couch, chat with C. A. C. Gray, Librarian, and J. R. Gilley, right, director at Ajax. The Evans brothers, both recently out of the air force, want to study aeronautical engineering.

Brighter Than Toronto

Seats designed to give the maximum of comfort feature the bright Ajax classrooms. Blackboards get special illumination and in demonstration rooms like this an emergency exit is provided in case of accident.

Beer For Bars —Thirsty School

By an overwhelming majority the Engineering Parliament voted in favor of better facilities for demolishing their traditional 40 beers and upheld the resolution, "Resolved that beverage rooms should be replaced by open bars".

"Prohibition does not make people temperate," said Prime Minister Bob Sims in opening yesterday's debate.

He claimed that open bars would decrease the consumption of liquor as the present restrictions merely decrease the demand. In condemning the beverage room system he cited insanitary conditions and venereal disease as prevalent in dingy rooms. Food served in open bars would reduce drunkenness, he said.

Opposition Leader Boris Stoicheff maintained that the open bar would result in noon-time drinking, lowering the business efficiency of business men. Again at the end of a day's work he would go out for a drink on an empty stomach. This prolonged drinking results in poor health and dangerous driving.

Eric Daele protested against the inconvenience and wasted time necessary to obtain a drink nowadays. He cited prevalent illegal habits such as carrying flasks to dances as a criticism of beverage rooms.

Open bars will not remove bootlegging according to Ted Gerson who maintained bootlegging is a game in which people indulge with or without open bars.

Speaker Bob Singer presided.

Some 1,600 famous people, including Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, have signed the Hart House Visitors' Book.

BIBLE STUDY SAID ONTARIO TRADITION

Dr. J. G. Althouse, Chief Director of Education for Ontario, lecturing Monday in the Education series, declared that Ontario has traditionally encouraged the study of the Bible and the humanities in order to prepare students for a rich life.

Outlining the development of Ontario's attitude towards education, the speaker went back to 1816, when the Province first legislated for province-wide education. Hoping to make better workers and producers within its boundaries, vocational training was proposed also.

Announce Terms For Cody Awards

Students interested in a fellowship for research in Canadian economic problems are eligible to apply for the Maurice Cody Research Fellowship and the Maurice Cody Scholarships for next year, it was announced today.

The Fellowship must be applied for by submitting an outline of the student's selection for the research project by March 1st, 1946, to the University Registrar, from whom application forms may be obtained. The Fellowship of $1,500 has not been awarded for several years because of the war.

The two scholarships, worth $300 and $200, are awarded annually on the basis of an examination to be held in the first week after the opening of the '46-'47 session. Application forms may be obtained from the Registrar of the University, and must be submitted by September 1st.

Further information regarding these awards may be found in the Arts Calendar.

Physical Activity Speeds the Heart

"Physical activity increases the rate of beating of the heart and thus brings benefit to every organ of the body," said Dr. E. Stanley Ryerson, Director of the Department of Physical and Health Education, discussing the "Relationship of Physical Activity to Health" yesterday.

In his lecture Dr. Ryerson stressed the importance of the capillary system to supply all the tissues, bone, muscle and nerve, with food; the heart and blood vessels in turn supply the blood to the capillaries. When the rate of blood-flow in the capillaries may increase as much as 700 times. Constant activity increases the capacity of these capillaries and thus improves the blood supply to the tissues.

Another way in which physical activity, or lack of it, affects the health is through the bones and cartilage disappears gradually and the limb is not used much, the arm becomes stiff, as if in a cast for several weeks. Likewise, if cartilage is not used the bones become smaller and waste away, as they do in the case of infantile paralysis.

At the end of the lecture Dr. Ryerson showed movie demonstrating the flow of blood through the capillaries. The most noticeable thing about these movies was that the capillaries are so small that the red corpuscles have to pass through them in single file.

How The Voting Went By Colleges

Questions and final results of the S.A.C.'s ex-service questionnaire are printed below:

Question No. 1: For this term are you satisfied to be represented by the present Ex-service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council, on the understanding that the special ex-service representatives on next year's Council will be duly elected by the ex-service students on the campus?

Question No. 2: If the answer to No. 1 is "no", what do you propose? Question No. 3: Do you approve of the National Conference of Student Veterans which was formed in Montreal at Christmas and the action which they propose in regard to approaching the Government concerning maintenance grants, housing and educational provisions for ex-service students?

Question No. 4: If you do approve the formation of the National Conference of Student Veterans, are you satisfied to have the Ex-Service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council act as liaison between the student veterans on this campus and the N.C.S.V.?

	Question No. 1		Question No. 3		Question No. 4
	Yes	No	Yes	No	Yes	No
Engineering	232	15	246	1	223	24
University College ...	159	8	189	6	108	30
Medicine	110	0	107	3	109	1
Victoria College	88	22	104	3	103	4
Trinity College	44	0	1	1	40	4
St. Michael's College ..	13	13	44	3	42	5
Business Administration	83	1	84	0	82	2
School of Nursing	80	0	30	0	30	0
Dentistry	53	3	56	0	54	2
Pharmacy	2	0	2	0	2	0
Forestry	47	0	43	4	45	2
P. & H.E.	1	2	1	2	1	2
Chinese Studies	2	0	2	0	2	0
Graduate Studies	1	2	1	0	2	1
Wycliffe College	5	0	5	0	5	0
O.C.E.	1	0	1	0	1	0
Totals	892	97	962	23	909	77

In addition to the results tabulated above, 15 students of the School of Social Work, wrote the S.A.C. expressing disapproval of the present representative system. Although they did not fill in questionnaires they were recorded as voting "no" to Question No. 1.

Efrim Panait in Defence of Hogtown (Alias Dollarville)

(We have not met the man whom Oscar Halina calls Efrim Panait. We suppose that "Efrim Panait" could be Mr. Halina who is not above talking to himself. Panait, at any rate, is a student at the University of Toronto and is, we presume, anything but typical in his generous acceptance of Toronto. Toronto endures but never endears, is the oft-heard complaint. Toronto is conservative, hostile and self-centred. Toronto is more than that for Mr. Halina's acquaintance. We are glad that Halina met Panait. We wish you'd let him introduce him to you.)

By OSCAR HALINA

Gopher Hill is a town in the west with six elevators. That, as towns are reckoned in the town, where everything is evaluated in terms of wheat, is not the smallest of burghs. They get as little as one grain elevator. Gopher Hill also has two theatres, one of which has been shut down for ages, a barber who cuts hair for thirty-five cents, or on credit, and operates a pool hall on the side, a hotel to which the elite go to dine on special occasions, and, since Canadian Utilities moved in, it's had electric power sufficient to operate more than three toasters at a time.

This is by way of introduction to Efrim Panait—for we shall call him that both for a name to answer to his character and to refrain from shedding upon him the publicity which his timid soul shuns with terror—Efrim who comes from Gopher Hill. I met Efrim in the discharge stream at No. 2 District Depot. A Sgt. growled, "Number?" and Efrim raced off a regimental number starting with "M" which, in military nomenclature, denotes a recruit from Alberta. I said, "You from Alberta?" "Yeah—You?" "Uh-huh." Then Efrim asked "Whadaya make of Toronto?" "I don't like it," I replied. That started it.

Efrim marched upon me with "Whadaya mean, you don't like it!"

"Now, now, old boy, you've heard of the Atlantic Charter!"

Efrim stirred, shifted, drew a breath. "Did you ever walk down University Avenue, or King or Queen? Ever admit a bit of awe and timidity into your soul and look at those things. The Star Building, the Globe and Mail, the Royal Alex, McLean's, Ryerson and all those rock piles on Bay. Ever stop to think that in these few avenues there is daily wrought the design the pattern, the lines of thought of the naked land you and I come from? This is the laboratory in which Canada's pulse rate is set. It's too big for you to take or leave, like or not like. You've gotta consider it . . ."

Efrim is a skinny weed of a man precipitately matured from a skinny weed of a boy—straight black hair, a brooding look, a limp. As we sat about the bottle-necks in terms of the process of getting discharged is graduated, I heard more from him. A boy from Gopher Hill who has adopted without hesitation the big city he denied me the right to dismiss with my incidental dislike—Who grew up on a windy western farm, trailed the dusty wake of a horse-drawn harrow, listened to the whistle of a train—who also got into the war a private, toled a gun and kit bag, got banged up in the Falaize gap last year and came out a private. He had to fight a war to get into a University, one of the many universities he had often passed in wistful silence and revering self-effacement, knowing, until now, they were beyond his station. He asks no questions in a class room for fear of the sound of his own voice and figures his problems out without help. His sole petition to destiny concerns neither fame nor fortune but merely that it let him be. All his life it has been checkmating him, planting him in the soil or freezing or starving or shooting him.

Repartee Line

Thou turn-quote!

With General Motors back in production the "dubious co-ed" will be assured that the age of Chevrolet is not dead.

Hear of the student recently up on the dean-trodden carpet? He was taken to the well-known Tsk.

The campus beanaterias . . . institutions . . . daily hungry hundreds head there for food, drink . . . only co-educational rendezvous . . . a meeting place for people with time to kill who don't want to let it get away alive . . .

Varsity Vignette.
And Nothing But the Booth: He

I walked into town the other day with him hoping to understand more of his gift of uncrusted mind. This stuck together into a paragraph, is the detached wisdom of his jerky sentences.

"You know . . ." he said. "The title of the book in the library calls it 'The Conquest of Civilization' and the radio calls it 'The March of Time' and a New York play calls it a 'Cavalcade'. But it isn't that at all. It isn't silvery trumpets blaring from a turret of galloping chargers, and thundering wheels. It's a Chinaman wading down a back lane and trotting three yards in every ten as if the expedition of progress were upon him. And it's Thorne Smith's man who elbows through a crowded thoroughfare, pushing, pulling, stumbling, abruptly discovering he has nowhere to go and halting to gaze at a show window full of Coke advertisement. And it's an old man, neck propped up in a starched collar, clutching a tattered oilcloth brief under his arm as if it contained the entire wreckage of his experience, and a housewife with dull, untidy hair going downtown in the rush hour to buy a pinch of salt. And its sound is the sound of tramping feet on concrete—disorganized, herd-like. It's a big thing that could get somewhere fast if its individual parts weren't colliding, reversing, shooting off at tangents and collaterally and perversely going the wrong way. What intrigues me is that neither the giants who direct, nor the mobs which are directed, are conscious of any declared plan or objective and yet operate in a terrifically integrated organism. Maybe I can figure it out by studying some books and gaping around, huh?"

I don't know what Efrim is going to turn out. I cannot tell what has been set for him to accomplish. But I kind of hope the world would "let Efrim be . . ."

Forerunner of Dorothy Dix, a Question Drawer column made its appearance in The Varsity in 1896.

and she—strangers still—sat facing one another on opposite sides of the restaurant . . . their eyes playing tag . . . "You're out!" hers told his . . .

Dramatic Personae: Two diners.

1st Diner: Small! I'll say that steak was small! I could have put it in my eye! (Lifting lid of left eye slightly.) See?

2nd Diner: Oh yes—an a-steak-matism!

P. & H. E. is so crowded this year, we hear, that the men have had to take push-ups in layers of three.

A stray wonder from observing countless safe crises: Why the cup mortality rate is lower than the saucer?

"Nurses' Night-Out" At Top Hat To-night

For the past month the inhabitants of the School of Nursing, tucked away in the south-east corner of the campus, have been preparing for their annual dance.

Arrangements for everything from posters and sandwiches to "Where can I find a man?" have monopolized the nurses' conversation for weeks and as a result of the committee's activity the "Nurses' Night-Out" will take place tonight in the Rainbow Room of the Club Top Hat.

Dancing to the music of Frank Bogart and his orchestra will take place from 9.30 to 1 a.m., with a 2 o'clock pass for all the girls.

AJAX DELIVERY

The Varsity is now available at two points on the Ajax campus before 9 a.m. daily. Distribution points are:

- 1: Hart House Common Room.
- 2: Inside the entrance to 313-R in the Academic Area.

Engines' Efforts Guaged By Slipstick Specialists

By BOB COOKE

Shiny brass, flashing rods, a maze of overhead pipes and the reek of oil are the first things noticed on entering the Heat Engines Lab. in the Mechanical Engineering Building. Closer inspection reveals students bending over these machines and still others writing, recording the results of their experiment.

Such is the lab where third year Mechanicals spend three hours a week, fourth year students spend six hours a week. There are many kinds of engines in this lab, steam engines and compressors, a turbine and the boilers, gas engines and diesel engines. There is a complete refrigeration system and many engines which although not used in experiments are of great historical interest.

"Those aeroplane engines," said a demonstrator pointing to a group of crates, will form a part of a museum of the development of modern engines when the addition is built to this building. Look at that engine," he continued, "it is one of the first successful internal combustion engines. It is meant to burn natural gas and uses a gas flame for ignition instead of a spark plug. It is too old and cranky to use now, but there is another natural gas engine in the lab," said he pointing to another natural gas engine in the lab," said he pointing to another corner of the room, "which we use. It burns gas from the city mains. It is a very slow engine, makes a slow thudding sound when it is running. On clear days you can hear it right across the street at the University Press."

With these engines the students study the performance and efficiency of engines and later, at home, they write reports of their experiment. Ten pages of diagrams, tabulated results and calculations keep the student busy far into the night, the day before the report is due. "Isn't this a honey," said one student showing a page which was covered with a huge diagram and complex calculations. Then he whipped out his slide-rule and did some more calculations.

"This steam engine is rated at fifty horse power," he continued pointing to the machine they were working with. "Some other engines are just as powerful," he said pointing to a diesel in the corner.

"A pretty bad accident could happen," replied a demonstrator who was standing supervising the experiment, "but we have only had two serious accidents in thirty years of experiments."

"See those engines," continued the demonstrator, "they're regular automobile engines, one a Ford and the other a Chev. We always have trouble testing them. They never give the power they're rated at and some chap in the party always has a Ford. He takes an awful ribbing about his Ford after this experiment. But these engines are just like the ones used in industry and the ones the students will be designing when they graduate."

"We'll get a gas-turbine eventually," he added, but the way they're made now one would take half the floor space. We'll just have to wait until they are made smaller."

Fire! Fire!

Ajax schoolmen returning from lunch yesterday, still aware of once RDX-producing surroundings, were startled to see smoke billowing from a nearby field. The fire burned all through the day and through better part of the night, causing consternation on all sides.

The fire? The cause? Just the decontamination squad burning unsalvageable cordite and gunpowder boxes. Keep your shirts on, boys.

Got A Notice? Send It Early!

New deadline schedules for the insertion of notices, announcements, etc., were announced last night by The Varsity.

Necessity of preparing the paper by remote control, 30 miles from the printers, makes it imperative that all possible copy be ready by 5 p.m. Coming events, notices of meetings, etc., should be delivered to the day office, Room 42-A, University College, on the afternoon of the day preceding publication.

Material of this kind delivered to the night office cannot be guaranteed a place in the paper.

Will Debate Union Policies

Tonight's Hart House Debate, "Resolved that this House, while approving of collective bargaining, deprecates the attempt of the unions to usurp the rights of management," will be attended by A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labor, and Gladstone Murray, former Director-General of Broadcasting for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Representatives from campus political clubs are also expected. The resolution will be upheld by M. Louis and J. McDonough of S.P.S. and St. Michael's respectively, opposed by A. Porter and I. Owen of U.C. and Trinity respectively.

INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP

NECKLACES,
EARRINGS
BANGLES AND BROOCHES.

32 Bloor St. East

(Near Red Cross Headquarters)
MI. 5875

University Symphony Orchestra

Hans Gruber — Conductor

Rehearsal for Full Orchestra

TONIGHT, 7.30 Sharp, at CONVOCATION HALL

Players are urgently requested to arrive at 7.20 in order to be all ready to begin by 7.30. Please use south-back entrance. Anyone unable to come must notify at MAfair 4977 beforehand.

PLEASE BE SURE TO BRING ALL BORROWED MUSIC

Mighty
welcome

Drink

Coca-Cola

DIRECT TO AJAX

BUSES LEAVE

TORONTO BUS TERMINAL

a 6:25 a.m. a 2:30 p.m.

b 7:45 a.m. b 3:55 p.m.

(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

(b—except Sat., Sun. and Hol.)

TO AJAX ROAD AND NO. 2 HIGHWAY

a 6:30 a.m. 8:40 a.m.

7:30 a.m. 9:30 a.m.

and every hour

on the half hour

until 10:30 p.m.

Also 11:40 p.m.

(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

GRAY COACH LINES

Bay at Dundas—Adelaide 4221

Kaye, Claghorn, Harron Vocally Versatile

As far from Santa as from Sanity was Don Harron's characterization of a Claghorn-modelled Santa Claus at the south campus Amsterdam Day program. Here Harron indulges in an impromptu tete-a-tete with a pair of Forestry representatives. Other Harron roles have been: Vic's best dressed man, the operation victim in Dentanties and the raw rah-rah Joe College in the 45 Bob. Touching Yule scene was photographed by Ralph Jones.

By ROSS MCLEAN

Master-mime Don Harron lives on other people's personalities.

This multi-voiced Philosophy and English student at Vic has been perfecting imitations all his life. Today, via radio and other media, he is making mimicry pay.

Today his range of vocal impersonations travels from the gale and Southern-friend gall of Kenny Dellmar's Senator Claghorn to the verbal velocity of vocatile Danny Kaye.

The Harron repertoire includes mischievous Barry Fitzgerald, Martin Hurt's jovial Beulah, a dynamic Durante and a Lionel Barrymore takeoff.

And Bugs Bunny! "Just a case of idealism," Harron explains. "I think he's the finest actor in the movies today." He did the "What's-up-doo?" routine at children's parties in the Georgian Room of Eaton's last Easter while on leave with the Air Force reserve and awaiting recall.

A commissioned bombardier in the air service, Harron's quick-fire Groucho-Marx-manship has put him at the head of current campus comics.

His Varsity debut was last winter when he appeared in the crimson undies of Vic's best-dressed man and copped the Warden Bickersteth vote for sartorial supremacy. In 1943 he had penned one Bob act. His pseudo-broadcast skit at the I.S.S. night paved the way to stardom in this year's Bob and the role of Santa Claus at the Amsterdam Drive program. Dentistry used him in the finale of Dentanties. At present he is preparing a thirty-minute night-club skit for the Vic At-Home after which he will tackle another I.S.S. program.

Meanwhile he has become involved in radio. Juvenile parts on "Stage 46" in "Soldier's Wife" and "John and Judy" occasionally.

Some day, Harron hopes, he will be able to create an original character.

Until then he will pattern his patter after his hilarious hero, Danny Kaye. "Everything I do has its basis in something else," he shrugs.

Luck—or perhaps, he suggested, "expediency"—is the key to crashing Toronto radio. Harron last spring chanced to call a producer the day that a new character had been written into "Penny's Diary". Harron was it.

He then plunged into amateur stage work. "Esthetically satisfying," he explains with a grimace, "but not so secure a medium as radio." In summer theatre he came to the attention of the fabulous Andrew Allen and thence "Stage 46".

Harron has a double dilemma: stage or radio; Canada or the United States. A compromise settled the first. And for the time being he'll stay in this country. "I don't want to get my pants kicked across the border," he observes realistically.

Harron's ultimate goal is obscure. He has found new humility since entering the ranks of radio artists. "When you start you think you can do anything — and you're wrong!"

Yet another outlet for his talent is cartooning. Here again Harron's forte is skillful production of ersatz. His artificial Thurburs, Arnos, Prices and Pettys have delighted "Acta Victoriana's" readers all fall.

Harron's laugh-getting formula before an audience is to gain momentum, to drive ahead ad libitum, extemporaneously, extraneously.

"If you write it down it's not so funny," he philosophizes. And that's Harron—one-man vox populi.

"I also do Porky Pig upon demand." It's the ham in him.

CANADIAN NATIONAL TELEGRAPHS

(At Present)
Telegrams will be Received at
14 BROCK STREET
Ajax Village

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

KING ST. WEST OF UNIVERSITY AVE.

ALL THIS WEEK

LIFE WITH FATHER

Made into a play by
HOWARD LINDSAY and RUSSEL CROUSE
with
Carl Benton Reid & Betty Linley

Box Office Open 10 a.m. - 10 p.m.
Evs. 8:20; Mats., Wed. Sat. 2:20
MATS., WED., SAT.: 60c, $1.20, $1.50
All Tax Included.

C.U.P. Flashes

Vancouver—UBC Forest Research Tract near Haney is to be used for training students in practical and technical forestry. The size, accessibility, and variety of types and ages of timber make it one of the finest school forests on the continent.

Winnipeg—There is a new cafeteria under construction at the University of Manitoba. The director of the food service of the U. of Minnesota made a special trip to Winnipeg to plan an ultra-modern building. Parts are now being built in Montreal. It is expected that the building will be completed around April 1.

Montreal—The University of Montreal is suffering from a mild flu epidemic. Very few students are affected, but professors are hard hit. Five have been laid up for some time. Of course all the students are hoping for their speedy recovery.

The government has proposed the continuation of the one-tax system adopted during the war. Under the new system the Federal government would continue to be responsible for the collection of the income tax, allotting to each province $12 per capita for the use of that province. Although some objections have been raised and alternative plans suggested, according to Mr. Claxton this plan has been considered the most workable of all. A three year trial has been recommended by the government to ascertain the merits of the plan.

Referring to the present housing shortage Mr. Claxton said, that of the 50,000 houses to be built under the new construction program 40,000 are expected to be completed by May. Of these 7,000 will be built by the government, 3,000 under the Veteran's Housing Plan and the remainder by private enterprise.

Kingston, Jan. 22.—The Honorable Paul Martin, Secretary of State and Canadian delegate to the UNO meeting in London, will address the students of Queen's University on March 13. Appearing as the annual Alma Mater Society lecturer, he will speak on "Canada, a leading middle power."

Goldfish Gulpers Beat Meat Rationing

Vancouver, Jan. 22.—(CUP)—The International Students' fund was so much the wealthier today as a result of the current meat shortage. One student at the University of British Columbia became a goldfish gulper for the benefit of the aforementioned fund, last week.

It was Paul Chutters first attempt at the art, when he demonstrated before more than 1,000 students of UBC who had gathered to witness the stunt, staged by the Joker Club. He is believed to be the first to have performed the feat in a Canadian university.

"I was so embarrassed at the time I didn't even notice what reaction it had on the witnesses, but I am told that several girls all but passed out," said Chutter. Dave Harward, another member of the Joker's Club, intimated that, "It may be a cod next time."

Correction

The meeting of the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers, at which Dr. Gene Wetfish is to speak, will be held on Thursday night at 8.20, at Central Technical High School, instead of Tuesday as announced in yesterday's Varsity.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

DON'T MISS THIS:-

All University Sleigh Ride

Including outdoor ice skating and lots of Refreshments at MAPLE CREEK PARK, West Hill on FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8th.

Transportation by Chartered Busses, leaving the Museum at 7.30 p.m.

Cost Per Person, $1.35 incl. Transportation Sponsored by V.C.F.

Lots of Dough But Still No Go

Lawrence, Kansas, Jan. 22 (Exchange)—A housing shortage, $390,000 to solve it, but no houses in sight as yet. This is the problem stated in a newspaper story of the university newspaper here.

All persons seriously interested in the university could be accommodated in February, said Raymond Nichols, executive secretary to the Chancellor. "This is presuming," said Nichols, "that the enrollment doesn't zoom above the anticipated 4,500." On the other hand the ever-increasing number of students applying for admission to the university is expected to reach an all-time enrollment by next year.

Married students have been having the most difficulty in finding suitable accommodation.

Four University-owned houses are being remodelled now to accommodate women students. Last week an emergency housing bureau was established to locate further student dwellings.

Meet the Torontonensis

DEAD LION!

We've been calling him "January 31." We hope you get to know him by that name too. He becomes indignant when confused with his brother "February 15."

All text and pictures for Torontonensis must be delivered to the S.A.C. office in Hart House or to Room 82 in University College before the end of this month. Organizations forced to miss this deadline date are requested to contact the Editorial Offices in Hart House at Mi 5840.

Art, Music and Drama

The Master's Touch

Hans Kindler displayed the master's touch in his role as guest conductor with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra last night. Mr. Kindler is the conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C.

Unlike some other conductors, he is not known especially for his performance of the works of any particular composer; but he brings the same insight to his interpretation of works of widely different character, as illustrated by his program last night.

The capabilities of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra have never been more fully exploited than in Kindler's reading of Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony. The "Haffner," though naturally light in character, contains some remarkably forceful passages.

This combination of power with delicacy makes it imperative that the conductor have full control of the orchestra if the proper balance is to be obtained. Last night these various aspects of the work were present each in perfect measure.

Under Kindler's direction the violin section of the orchestra attained new heights. This was especially noticeable in the flawless phrasing of the strings in the first and last movements of the symphony.

The performance of the Sibelius First Symphony did not hang together as well as the Mozart, and it may well be argued that this is because the music itself is rather sporadic. The work contains passages of rare lyric beauty, mixed with uneven development.

The Kindler performance revealed it as the work of a composer who has not yet arrived at mastery of the idiom in which he is later to express himself more fully. Especially commendable in the performance were the full tones and fine phrasing of Robert Rogers on the clarinet.

Mr. Kindler also played some excerpts from the Ballet Gayaneh by the Soviet composer Khachaturyan, a work which I found uninteresting. The young composer, it seems to me, is following in the footsteps of those peddlers of empty pretensions, Shostakovich and Villa Lobos, employing much to say little.

Viewed as a whole, last night's concert was excellent. The conductor demonstrated the ability and musicianship which great music demands. The response of the orchestra to Mr. Kindler's effort was both surprising and gratifying.

—PHILIP FREEDMAN

French Impressionists

It was many years ago that Maggie Teyte first performed the prima donna role in Debussy's opera Pelléas and Mélisande, but still she retains a master's perfection in presenting the irregular patterns and scale-browsing in which Debussy indulges. The major part of the program for her concert at Eaton Auditorium Monday evening, was composed of the works of the French impressionist group: Debussy, Faure, Duparc. Always Debussy's duets for piano and voice are affected by the words and the culture of the symbolist poets of his circle; thus his music progresses by elaborate intervals and harmonic groups, such as those of his most individual 'love-song', Trois Chansons de Bilitis, included in Monday evening's program. Mme. Teyte caught every nuance of the passionate La Chevalure, whose music most delicately follows the lyric, so that she was called upon to repeat it.

She frisked through the Mozart love-songs which, as a result, were most unconvincing. Her voice is much less suited to the long-breath phrases of Giordano's Caro Mio Ben than it is to the chanting presentation of the words of Debussy compositions. Nevertheless she quite enjoyed herself, and her informality, making up for what she lacked, pleased the audience immensely.

George Reeves, pianist, deserves great credit for his delicate technique which though lacking in power, was admirably suited to the light tone of the program. The airy beauty of his two Chopin solo selections was exceptionally graceful, and indicative of deep insight into the method of Chopin.

—DAPHNE BYERS

Hindemith To Speak

Paul Hindemith, world-famous composer, will speak tomorrow night at the Toronto Conservatory of Music on The Craft of Musical Composition. Hindemith arrived in Toronto this morning and this evening he will conduct the T.S.O. in a performance of his best known work, Matthias the Painter, over a CBC network.

"The visit of such an outstanding musical personality as Hindemith to Toronto is an event of great importance," Dr. Arnold Walter, vice-president of the Conservatory, told The Varsity. Dr. Walter pointed out that both the professional musician and the interested layman could benefit from Hindemith's lecture. Especially did he consider it a great opportunity for University students.

Hindemith was born in 1895 in Hanau, Germany. He received comprehensive training on the violin and voice, and in harmony, counterpoint and composition. With his early chamber works he began to establish himself as a composer of note. By 1925 he had developed a completely personalized style, and by his opera Cordellie in 1926, he won a foremost position among contemporary composers.

Musicologists look upon Hindemith's work as the modern development of the foundations of the classical school. His music developed into a combination of Bach's polyphonic principles with the harmonic and rhythmic innovations of the twentieth century.

Hindemith takes the view that there are still limits on what the composer may do, limits imposed by both the purpose and the history of the art.

In 1937 Hindemith went to the United States, having incurred the wrath of the Nazi government. Since that time, besides teaching and lecturing, he has produced many new works which attain wide acclaim.

Former Blues Griddler Heads Army Research

Former grid star of the Varsity blues, Ormand Solandt, has been appointed director general of the newly-organized department of research and development branch of the Defense Department.

This brilliant 36-year-old Toronto scientist has been serving in the Southeast Asia region as scientific advisor to Lord Louis Mountbatten with the rank of colonel. He will serve in a civilian capacity at his new post.

Graduate in biological and medical science in 1930, Col. Solandt then spent two years at this university under Dr. C. H. Best, co-discoverer of insulin. In 1936 he graduated in medicine.

The new department which he will head will be charged with the prompt military application of new scientific and engineering knowledge to defense planning, organization, training and personnel.

Two Concerts By "U" Symphony

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra will this year present two concerts "to answer the demand of University music lovers" according to Hans Gruber; who has succeeded George Coutts as conductor of the orchestra. Mr. Coutts recently announced his resignation from the post.

The twin concerts will feature two prominent Toronto guest artists. While there will be certain overlapping of program, Mr. Gruber explained that the "pieces will be arranged so as to give the programs a different character."

The first concert is on February 20 with George Crum, 20-year-old pianist, promising pupil of Mona Bates, as featured artist. Second concert will be held a week later in Convocation Hall. Name of the guest artist at this has not been announced.

In previous years the crowds have been turned away from the single concert. It is Mr. Gruber's belief that this situation will now be avoided.

Meanwhile the orchestra under Mr. Gruber's baton is feverishly preparing its program. With weekly rehearsals and an ever-accelerating practice schedule.

Course Announced For Civil Servants

One hundred and fifty adult students have registered for a course of lectures especially arranged for staff members of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. It was announced by President Smith, Toronto Branch. Commenting on the large enrollment, Dr. Harry Cassidy, Director of the School of Social Work, said he thought that the response signified a real need in certain Government services for training courses, which need the University of Toronto can meet. He welcomed the opportunity given the School of Social Work to assist the Government in this way.

During the Course Dr. Stuart K. Jaffary of the School of Social Work will deliver eight lectures on Social Security, and Miss Elizabeth Govan will give eight lectures on interviewing.

So great is the demand for social workers in this Province that the School of Social Work is arranging many special courses and short courses to meet the demand.

HART HOUSE SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT

Kathleen Busby, soprano, and Jean Lebourneau, tenor, will give the Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House at 9 p.m. on Sunday 27th January. Marjorie Lea will be at the piano. The programme will be as follows:

I Ye Gay and Painted Fair (from "The Seasons") Haydn

Happy Happy (from "Acis and Galatea") Handel

II Serenade de l'Amant Jaloux Gretzy

Adelaide Beethoven

III Sous la Fenetre Schumann

Vraiment les Belles sont Volages Fourdrain

It Was a Lover and His Lass German

IV Pastoral Hymn Sonnet

from "Serenade" Britten

V N'est-ce plus ma main (from "Manon") Massenet

Sport In Short

(Tues. Jan. 22)

HOCKEY

Wyc. 3, Knox B 1. BASKETBALL (Major)

Sr. S.P.S. 33, Sr. Med. 22; Trin. A 42, P.H.E. 11, 25.

(Minor)

Vic. IV 45, Chem. 18; II Eng. Bus. 35, St. M.D. 11; III Chem 26, V Dent 19.

U.C. STUDENTS

Copies of the Varsity are now available in University College outside Room 82, adjoining the basement cloak-room, as well as in the Rotunda.

Direct Current lines, so troublesome to students with radios, were installed originally because so much of the experimental apparatus required it. Additional power, both A. C. and D. C., is purchased to augment the production of the University's own power plant.

SOLID!

Yes, that's the trend today, fellows! For those who appreciate the best in woollens, women, and song, it's SOLID 99 44/100 to 1. And speaking of cloth, you simply must see our fresh selection of solid shades in browns, grays, and blues. These fine serges, soft flannels, and beautiful English gabardines eagerly await the feel of your fingers. We'd love to meet you at

LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES

449 Spadina Avenue

Phones: RA. 8995-6

Showroom hours are nine to nine daily, Saturdays until 6. Handmade clothes made right on the premises.

P.S.: Have you seen our one-button roll? (double-breasted, of course). Ask the man who wears one!

P.P.S.: We have enlarged our staff and can now give 4 week service (sooner if necessary).

McGill Puckmen Defeat Carabins

(Cup Delayed, Jan. 19)

McGill's Intercollegiate hockey crew opened their schedule at the Forum last Friday, winning over the University of Montreal Carabins ten to four. In a game marked by erratic puckwork, Johnny Peirson of the Redmen topped the scoring with five goals and two assists. The Carabins showed a definite improvement over their performance against the Blues, when they were beaten 16-5.

HANDY FOR STUDENTS

TAILORS — 6 Harbord St.

All alterations, repairs and remodelling

LADIES' AND GENTS' SUITS

Also Fur Coats

Workmanship Guaranteed

MI. 0618

CLOSEST TO YOU!

CANADIAN RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Directed by its 1938 founder R. SPENCER SOANES M.A. (U.C. '35) M.C.I.C., this group of scientists has expanded to new and larger premises at 46 St. George Street.

Ably assisted by Peter Kaye (S.P.S. '44) the Institute engages in all kinds of electrical, electronic, chemical, mechanical, optical and acoustical research and development. Under pressure of war many new types of testing apparatus were designed—in addition to providing a skilled consultant service for industry, Canada, and the University of Toronto can well be proud of these two young scientists, and the ever-growing Canadian Research Institute.

published by b. a. Stevenson, c.l.u. and associates of the university branch. 57 Bloor Street, West. KI 4136.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

WANTED

Ticket for Vic-At-Rome, February 1st. HY 7104.

LOST

Double strand of pearls, Monday, Bloor and Avenue Rd. district. Reward. KI 5768.

LOST

Grey Sheaffers pen, Monday afternoon, between St. George St. and Library. Please leave at room 82 U.C.

LOST

Rimless glasses, gold frame, without case, lost on Monday, possibly in one of the south campus buildings. Phone JU 3201, or leave at S.A.C. office.

TYPING

Call HY 7148 for typing done at home.

LOST

Between Library and Hoskin Ave., late Friday afternoon, lady's black Parker pen. Write Box E, The Varsity.

Toronto Business Firm, which renders specialized service to students wants representative on Ajax campus for very light duties, not interfering with regular studies. Apply Box C, The Varsity.

EXCHANGE

Will exchange house in Ajax for accommodation in Toronto. Must be ex-service student with family. Apply Box B, The Varsity.

Speaking OF SPORT

By DON MASON

PREVIEW:
Athletic Nighters will see the Senior Basketball opener with Queen's. McGill and Western comprise the rest of the league.
The Senior "A" squad will be matched against O. A. C. as their schedule opens Saturday night at Hart House. McMaster and Western "A" form the rest of the circuit.
Varsity, McMaster, Western and O. A. C. will battle during two months, things starting Saturday at 3:00 with a Varsity-O. A. C. Intermediate fixture scheduled.
Ace Bailey predicts a great year for the Big Blues hockey team, as they have won all but one of their eight starts this year.
Exhibition games include University of Michigan, Rye College and Westpoint. Ann Arbor Intermediate hockey machine will be here Friday and Saturday.

• Sportswoman •

By Polly Mutz

A BIG SPLASH
Here is a call to all those interested in feminine pulchritude to be at Hart House on Tuesday night at 7:00. That is the night, the ebony hour when co-eds will buff up their swim-suits for the interfaculty meet. The admission is free, and everyone, (that includes even Schoolmen) is welcome. The list of events, guaranteed to please connoisseurs, is . . . long plunge diving, style and ornamental swimming, 50 yards free style, back crawl and breast stroke races, 150 yard medley, 100 yard free style relay . . . what is more, Ken Tulley, a Canadian champion will give a diving exhibition. Persons of unknown identity will provide the comic element.
The winners of the interfaculty meet will not automatically become members of the intercollegiate team as is commonly supposed . . . though they stand an excellent chance of being included if they go through the prescribed channels. They must go through a period of intensive training headed by Winifred Baxter, who will choose a team first on the basis of excellence, then on seniority, and last, the ambition exhibited by the contestants. There are 23 possible openings for intercollegiate swimmers, with little more than ten volunteers to fill the spaces up to date. As this ratio is not very equal, even with most of the volunteers entering into more than one event, it would be gratifying to see all you potential champions come out of retirement to help the Blue and White exhibit first rate swimming ability.
A NOTE TO INTERFACULTY SWIMMERS
Students with aspirations re: the interfaculty swimming meet must have medical re-checks before they can swim. These re-checks can be attended to not earlier than two days before the semi-finals (Jan. 29) and finals at 44 Hoskins.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY:—

4:30 PHARM. vs. MED III. Doyle, Garfunkel

BASKETBALL MAJOR:—

1:00 JR. SPS vs. SR. U.C. Lye
4:00 PRE-MED A vs. BUS. ADM. Hamm
6:30 FOR A vs. MED. SER. A. Stratlearn

BASKETBALL MINOR:—

1:00 FOR C vs. III AERO. Jackson
4:00 VIC XII vs. PHE VI. Babcock
6:30 I ELEC vs. TRIN IV. Bond
7:30 PHE V vs. U.C. ARTS. Bond
8:30 KNOX B vs. TRIN VII. Bond

WOMEN'S HOCKEY COACHES

WOMEN'S HOCKEY COACHES are reminded that body-checking is absolutely against the rules of University women's hockey. Referees have been authorized by The Hockey Club to penalize any infraction of this regulation.

MANAGERS

WOMEN'S HOCKEY MANAGERS must bring in Attendance Reports and Game Reports promptly to Room 82, U.C. Attendance reports are essential for checking P.T. credits for First Year Students.

TIE GAMES

In the event of a Tie, no overtime will be played and one point will be awarded to each team.

Michigan's Threat to Varsity

VIC HEYLIGER
Michigan Hockey Coach

BILL JACOBSON
Saskatoon, Sask., Canada
Michigan Right Wing

CLEM COSSALTER
Eveleth, Minn.
Michigan Right Wing

The Varsity pucksters will meet Michigan this weekend. The two starry players above have been twining them regularly under the able guidance of Coach Vic Heyliger.

Points Soar For Victoria

Indoor track completed its third week last night. The spotlight was on individual effort. A total of 150 men competed, which really cluttered up the track with running forms.
The Senior half-mile was won by D. Sloan of Vic whose victory of yesterday went unchallenged. F. Fordyce of SPS displaced Preston and Taylor for second spot with 2:18.2.
G. Speer of Vic also held his place in Tuesday's repeat. But Fleck of Vic added to that college's lead by copping the second place with 2:11.1. Ballantine (SPS) and Glen (Trin) were pushed down to third and fourth spots by Fleck's win.
The 50-yard dash proved that dark horses are here to stay as no one managed to better the previous night's records.
Hamilton is playing host on the 20th of March to the biggest track meet in Canada. Hec Phillips will be taking down a large squad. This means that those who turn out now will be the ones who will sojourn at Hamilton on that date. "Conditioning is what counts," said Hec menacingly.

Anglican's Ice Finally Jells

With the arrival of sub zero weather at last, those two fenced in areas on the Trinity back campus have actually turned out to be hockey cushions. The weather-beaten boards were not piled there by mistake by some careless T.T.C. worker, as was commonly rumored, but by the U.T.A.A.
These are now available for use by both male and female students. Reservations may be made at the Athletic Office by faculty and other teams for practices. The flood lights will make night into day until 10:00 p.m.
These two rinks are in excellent shape, and are reserved exclusively for student teams WITHOUT CHARGE. Weather is, of course, unpredictable, and consequently, so will be the condition of the ice.

Name Bands Return To College Dances

Montreal, Jan. 22 (CUP)—McGill University is experiencing the same trend towards "name bands" at dances this year as is the University of Toronto.
Bob Chester and his orchestra, supplemented by a local band will play for the Arts-Science-Commerce Formal to be held Feb. 1 in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. The dance is being sponsored by the Arts and Science Undergraduate Society and the School of Commerce Undergraduate Society.
"Name bands" this year at Varsity include Jerry Wald who played last week at the School At-Home and Sonny Dunham who will be featured at the Arts Ball.
The Champus Cat was born in 1922, following an alleged typographical error with the heading of a column called "Campus Chat."

Ajax Sport Program Swings Out Monday

With the Dr. Sidney Smith Trophy, first athletic presentation of the President, and the Dean Young Pennant to provide the worthwhile goals for Ajax students, the vast intramural athletic program swings into action Monday evening.
Competition is to be between the 18 residences in basketball, hockey, softball, soccer, volleyball, lacrosse, harrier, outdoor track and field, bowling, boxing, wrestling, golf, tennis and football.
Points will be awarded for each individual or team entry, for wins, losses and draws, championships and other honors won.
Playoffs, tentative as yet, will most probably take place in Toronto where all will be offered the opportunity to see the efforts of Ajax best.
The residence attaining the highest number of points during the current month will be awarded possession of the Dean Young Pennant for the succeeding month. The Smith Trophy will be the proud possession of the residence that attains the highest standing during the year and will be awarded in a manner parallel to that enforced with the T. A. Reed Trophy on the Queen's Park campus.
The final meeting of the residence athletic directors, Thursday noon, will make last minute arrangements about schedules, entries and practices.
The basketball games Monday evening will inaugurate proceedings for the twenty teams in each of basketball, hockey and volleyball as each residence provides one team while the commuters provide two. Bowling promises to provide many more teams as the Ajax Alleys have been jammed nightly since opening.
Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights have been set aside for a dozen games of basketball. Volleyball will be confined to Saturday while hockey will be played nightly if weather, schedules and practices permit. Three lighted hockey cushions and one pleasure rink complete with heated dressing rooms provide the setting for the hockey schedule which commences next Tuesday evening.
The University has obtained considerable equipment, but all players are asked to provide their own wherever possible.
All athletic events for commuter's teams will be held Tuesday evenings and transportation is being arranged for these, the Ajax yo-yo boys.
Accompanying these teams sports is Building 213 on the second line, which has been equipped for boxing, wrestling and fencing. Tumbling and weight-lifting are also on the list of athletics to be encouraged.
Teams representing Ajax are being formed in hockey, and basketball. The latter team is practicing nightly for three exhibition games at Athletic Nights on February 2, February 16 and March 2.
Credit for this pyramid of arranging goes, not only to students who have willingly pitched in, but also to officials Buff Horton, Jimmy Polwell and Tom Davey. Their hard work is all for the lads and lasses at Ajax, and with the expected co-operation, plus the skule spirit should provide a complete functioning athletic program.

The Junior Blues Swamp Rangers 6-0

By RED MACKAN

Chalking up their fourth straight win by downing Scarborough Rangers on their home ice at Unionville, Varsity Junior B jumped into a first-place tie with Richmond Hill last night.
From the drop of the puck the Blues ran all around Briley in the Ranger net, but failed to capitalize. Then at the 10:40 mark Smythe grabbed a loose puck at center and passed to Boyd, who skated in on Briley, drew him out of position brilliantly, and rapped home the only goal of the first period.
In the second period Varsity continued to hurl rubber at Barley, who kicked them out from all angles. Then Davis of Rangers was sent to the cooler for interference. The first line of Boyd, Barron, and Smythe took over and put on a great passing exhibition. Don Barron romped in on Briley and fired home the goal that broke up the game. Rangers at this point took to roughing it, and this resulted in Boyd and Davis being sent to the penalty box for fighting.
Late in the third period Smythe set up Barron and Boyd for their second goals of the night.

The third period saw Rangers put up a desperate effort to get back in the game. Paul Hutzulak in the Blue cage was sensational as he repeatedly robbed Rangers forwards with his sprawling saves, and went on to get his second shutout of the season. Bud Fcran was moved back to the rearguard position for the first time in his hockey career, and his performance was outstanding.
Come Friday night, the Junior Blues move into Richmond Hill for the battle for first place, and Varsity's undefeated streak marks them as the favorite.
AJAX SPORTS STAFF
Sports writers for the "Varsity" are urgently needed at the Ajax division. An intensive athletic program will be commencing soon, and The Varsity requires writers to cover this. Will all those interested, please contact Mr. Essery, the Student's Administrative Council representative, in the Administration Building.

New and Entrenous

Filler Philosophy

By ROSS McLEAN

We have just finished reading the first issue of the revitalized Varsity and are now somewhat eagerly searching for some naive and ill-informed individual who won't know that not one amateur golfer in 44 years could win the North and South at Pinehurst. But Lieut. Gary Middlecoff did it recently. One hundred (100) of the leading pros were looking on, at that!

We'll tell our friend that—and watch his face.

We are also prepared to startle him with some intriguing data we acquired on page six of yesterday's tabloid. Don't suppose you knew that in China the classics were cut into tablets which were printed by by hand in 175 A.D. Now did you?

We happen to have also learned that in the last ten years the Big Ten and Notre Dame have supplied 31 per cent of the nation's ten best football teams. Surprised us a bit, must confess!

Source of this new knowledge is the four-line filler fascinating device employed by professional newspaper plants to eliminate small white gaps at the bottom of columns.

We may eventually provide the Oshawa people with some "filler" of our own. Meantime they're using what's handy and, personally, we wouldn't have it otherwise.

Oh by the way, Air Marshall Colin Gibson said recently that the Canadian government planned to raise peacetime rates of pay in all three armed services to bring them in line with what permanent force personnel would make in civilian employment.

So they printed them by hand, mmmmm!

Varsity Carries On;
Won't Stop in March

Announcing yet another break with tradition in the most hectic year of campus history, Mr. E. A. Macdonald, Business Manager of The Varsity, said recently that plans had been made to continue publication beyond the traditional hundredth issue. For the benefit of Ajax students, The Varsity will be published until mid-June this year.

Present plans call for dropping the size of the paper from the present eight pages to four after issue number 100, sometime in March. The four-page paper will be distributed on the Ajax campus only, and will carry on for 100 issues dating from the opening of Ajax on January 14.

Mr. Macdonald said that an expected influx of summer course students in Toronto might compel resumption of the large size in early summer, and continuation of publication through August.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY

The University Philosophical Society will meet tonight at Wymilwood at 8:15 p.m. Dr. W. Line of the Psychology Department will speak on "The Degradation of the Ego".

Sports Notices

Ski Meeting

The standing committee member from each college and faculty is asked to be present at a special meeting of the Ski Club, to be held Wednesday, January 23rd, in the Athletic Office, Hart House. This meeting is called to make arrangements for the Interfaculty Ski Meet.

Water Polo

On Thursday, January 24th, at 1:00, the Standing Committee will meet to arrange for the interfaculty series, grouping, and other questions.

Intramural Committee

The Intramural Sports Committee will have a special meeting on Thursday, January 24th, at 5:00 p.m. All faculty representatives should be there.

Ski Bus

A bus will run from Hart House at 9:00 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 27, weather permitting. It returns at 4:00 p.m. from Mulock's corner and Yonge. Return tickets are 85 cents and must be purchased in the Athletic Office by Friday, Jan. 25.

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY BAND

Full attendance needed at all rehearsals until end of February, when band dance will be held. Let's get out and support our hockey teams.

Director General

COL. O. McK. SOLANDT Of Toronto to present a member of the Canadian Army, who has been appointed Director General of a new sub-department of National Defence for Research and Development.

Missing Rad
A Mere Detail

People are liable to forget almost anything but an incident of yesterday seems to deserve a large award.

A skullduggery picked up his father's car from a local garage yesterday after an extensive post-accident repair job. The mechanics bade farewell after friendly assurances—"She's running beautifully now. . . . Yes, the job's done".

With the radio playing gay tunes he drove back to the campus and parked. The descent from the car revealed wisps of smoke drifting out from the hood. His immediate thought was "Fire". He fung open the hood to battle the flames. Inside, a lonely hose end stared up blankly from the engine block. Further examination revealed the startling payoff—no radiator!

He phoned the garage immediately. "Boys, I hate to bring this to your attention but you forgot something"

French Club Play

Two Canadian movies and a French play will compose the program of the January meeting of the University College French Club, next Thursday, in the Women's Union, at 8:00 p.m.

"Les Peuples du Canada" and "Les Projets du D.V.A." are both topical movies, presenting problems of current interest. The play, "Bonne à Tout Faire" is a one-act production written and staged by Professor Robert Finch of the University College French Department.

to give your trousers the proper lift

SUSPENDERS and BELTS

SUSPENDERS of easily adjusted elastic or "plasti-glass" that are cleverly designed and easy on the shoulders . . . and BELTS of sturdy, plain or tooled leather, with buckles that are novel in design and carefully finished. Choose belts and suspenders to contrast with your different suit and shirt combinations, from the splendid selection in our Men's Wear Departments. Suspenders—pair, 1.00 and 1.50; Belts—Each, 1.00 to 2.50.

Main Store—Main Floor

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Temporary Office
Used In Evenings

Removal from the University of Toronto Press has necessitated search for a night office to be used by the staff of The Varsity between 5:30 p.m., when the University College news office closes, and 11:30 p.m., when the last bus leaves for Oshawa with late copy.

Temporarily commandeered for the purpose is the office of the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, where make-up is being prepared and evening copy written.

Stories breaking after 5:30 should be brought by reporters directly to the Avenue Road office. The telephone is MI 8405.

Late newsbreaks should be given to a masthead member for telephoning direct to the Oshawa printing plant.

Briefs From Britain

Townyn, North Wales, (CP)—D. W. Ellis, who once walked 17 miles a day in the Merioneth hills for 17s ($3.75) a week as a postman, retired on Christmas.

London—(CP)—No flags are to drape coffins of dead German prisoners of war, according to the War Office. The swastika is barred, so Germany has no flag.

London—(CP)—Employees of the London Midland and Scottish Railway cultivate 21,150 allotments which extend for over 400 miles by the side of the railway tracks. These yielded a record harvest this year valued at £22,000 ($99,000).

Bristol, Eng. (Reuters)—Bristol's oldest inhabitant, Mrs. Martha Woolley, celebrated her 103rd birthday in Southmead Hospital. She is blind and almost totally deaf.

London—(CP)—After five years in exile, 100 happy people are going home to Alderney, Channel Islands. They were evacuated when the Germans arrived in June 1940.

Edinburgh, Scotland—(CP)—The Freedom of Edinburgh will be conferred on Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Governor-General designate of Canada, Admiral of the Fleet Lord Cunningham and Marshal of the Royal Air Force Sir Arthur Tedder, on Feb. 15.

Strathclyde, Scotland—(CP)—Strathclyde has no singing telegrams, but they are often shouted across the river which separates the post office from this Inverness village. When flood conditions prevail the stream is impassable.

Fyvie, Aberdeen, Scotland—(CP)—Elizabeth Chapman, who married Hector Reid, was the fourth of farmer Alex Chapman's daughters to marry a son of blacksmith Adam Reid.

About 100 of the original books used by King's College students in the 1830's are in the Trinity Library, transferred there when Bishop Strachan fell out with the U. of T. and founded Trinity.

drycleaning. Taking these expenses into consideration a basic figure of $100 rather than the $72 would be in order. The veterans themselves are asking for an increase to $80 a month single and $120 married.

Veterans' Expense
Poll to be Taken

Montreal, Jan. 22 — (C.U.P.)—Major-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Director General of Rehabilitation, announced a national survey of the cost of living of university and C.V. T. students today to be conducted under the supervision of a Dominion Bureau of Statistics officer. The survey is to be completed during the week of Jan. 21.

Survey will be conducted by means of a questionnaire which will attempt to ascertain an estimate of basic and personal expenses of the veteran. Students to fill in the questionnaire will be chosen by taking every tenth name on the University card index. This method will provide a "valid random selection."

Attached to the questionnaire is a table purporting to show the estimated cost for a single person attending a school across Canada for one term. These estimates are put out by the D.V.A. The basic figure given for a McGill term (7 months) adds up to $720. This figure includes cost of books, school socials, food and shelter, clothing and transportation, but does not include incidental and personal expenses as listed in the questionnaire. Under these headings come tobacco, casual lunches, beverages (tea, coffee, soft drinks), candy, ice-cream, outside dances (tickets, taxi, flowers), movies, Christmas, and other gifts, shaving necessities, laundry and

JANUARY 31.

ARTS BALL

INFORMAL

SONNY DUNHAM

ROYAL YORK

SONNY
DUNHAM

3.00 Per. COUPLE

also ART HALLMAN • BOBBY GIMBY • FLOOR SHOW

TICKETS U O ROTUNDA

Ajax Sitdown Strike Brings Prompt Action

Object to Slow Buses

Withdrawal of the wartime tractor-trailer from the Toronto-Ajax bus run has resulted from a sitdown strike staged yesterday morning by sixty engineering students protesting the slow transit service between the two points.

Refusing to board the tractor-trailer provided by the Gray Coach Lines as an Ajax special, the sixty commuting schoolmen claimed that they were "too slow." The group waited an hour and boarded the regular Oshawa bus.

"We are desperate for equipment," an official of the company told The Varsity last evening. "We're up against it. The tractor trailers had been used for Ajax war workers and we put them back on the run last week."

The company has now arranged to discontinue the tractor-trailer from the route and to "swing in some other vehicles," the official said. Pending delivery of 200 new vehicles ordered as far back as September 1944, the Coach Line had been forced to rent equipment from a Hamilton company.

The tractor trailer is an ordinary truck tractor attached to a trailer equipped with seating accommodation. Neither so speedy nor so comfortable as the regular Gray buses, these vehicles have been on the run since it began last week.

The 60 students who balked at boarding the trailer this morning are among those Ajax registrants who have chosen to live in Toronto and to commute the 26 miles daily to the new Division.

Company officials, admitting that the trailer was not so comfortable, explained that the buses might be underpowered for that run. Gray Coach drivers had reported difficulty in making the run in the usual time.

Arriving at the Gray Coach Lines terminal at 7.45 yesterday morning for the trip to Ajax the students objected to the bus provided and refused to board it. "It's the same bus they gave us Monday morning," one of them said. "It took two hours to reach Ajax and we missed two classes."

Main Library Inadequate, Swamped By Big Classes

Always embarrassingly inadequate, the University Library has been utterly swamped by the record registration this year, Librarian W. S. Wallace told The Varsity recently. Circulation has mushroomed 80% over last year, reading-rooms are jam-packed, and 10,000 books annually are being placed in storage to make room for the flood of accessions.

Total circulation of books to undergraduates in October, 1944 was 26,203 volumes, Mr. Wallace said. In the same month in 1945 47,149 books were circulated, representing an 80% increase.

A daily average of 1,800 volumes is circulated; since each is handled twice, when taken out and when returned, a total of 3,600 volumes cross the counters daily.

Space reserved for the card catalogue has been exhausted, Mr. Wallace said, and no more is available. The ordering department has outgrown its rooms, with no more space in which to expand.

Mr. Wallace pointed out that 350 students in the School of Graduate Studies have at their disposal only 10 study rooms and two seminars. Space for graduate students has been found at temporary tables in the Art Room.

He mentioned the case of a blind veteran who needed a study-room in which a companion could read to him. The only available space was in the basement.

In May, 1944, the space was adjudged inadequate, and a committee toured the United States inspecting other University libraries.

No announcement of detailed expansion plans has been made, however.

The space problem was acute even sixteen years ago, and plans for the addition of a northern wing to balance the present south wing, and enlargement of the stacks, were hopefully drawn up in 1932, but the project was postponed, and the faded blueprints are still pinned up on the door of the librarian's office.

If all the books listed on the library's catalogue were turned in at once there would be no place to put them, Mr. Wallace said. Even in the summer months, relaxed circulation rules keep several thousand books continually out on loan, and the stacks are still congested.

Main needs are more reading-room space where students can browse among the 150,000 periodicals.

(Continued on Page 6)

25,000 Torontonians Badly Housed

Cont. Smith Urges Subsidy

"More than 25,000 Torontonians live in sub-standard dwellings," Controller Stewart Smith told the LPP club Tuesday night. "Many more live in overcrowded quarters."

Speaking in Cartwright Hall, Controller Smith maintained that the housing shortage was not due to any shortage of labor or materials, but to a small group who feel that their interests would be threatened by any government-sponsored housing scheme. These interests, he said, have spread the false propaganda that government housing is an enormous expense to the taxpayer and would lead to socialism.

He suggested a federal housing subsidy similar to that in the United States, where every dollar spent on housing creates $40 worth of work. He cited a project in Buffalo, where at a cost of 6% on the capital outlay, poor families are provided with at a housing program involving construction by private speculative contractors, will result in houses being built for only the Canadians in the high income bracket. After this boom is over, the industry will slump badly and be a potent cause of unemployment.

The answer, Controller Smith felt, is a $1,000,000,000 housing program, which at only one-eighteenth the cost of the recent war, could provide decent homes for all Canadians and maintain full employment for a decade. These houses could be built more cheaply than the present individually-built units by modern mass production methods.

He suggested a federal housing subsidy similar to that in the United States, where every dollar spent on housing creates $40 worth of work. He cited a project in Buffalo, where at a cost of 6% on the capital outlay, poor families are provided with

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 67 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Thursday, January 24, 1946

DEBATERS UPHOLD UNION ACTIVITIES

Deplores Housing

Controller Stewart Smith, who urged a Federal Building Program at a Progressive Club meeting last night. (Story below).

X-Ray Examinations

All students who have been told by the Health Service that they would be advised when and where they would have their chest x-rayed will receive their appointments through the mail in the near future. Their x-rays will be taken 31st of January. If you have not received notification by 29th of January, please report to the Health Service.

Any first or final year student who missed or failed to make an appointment for x-ray examination of the chest during the survey in November, 1945, should contact the Health Service at once and arrange for this examination.

This examination is a part of the required Health examination which must be completed before you are allowed to sit for your examinations.

Ex-service personnel who have been x-rayed on discharge from the service within the past year are exempt from this x-ray examination but not from the Health Examination.

Attempt At Definition Bogs Down Discussion

Motion Wording Said Awkward

Overriding, 99-58, the motion under debate at Hart House last night, the members endorsed opposition to a resolution the exact meaning of which had been questioned all night.

Interpretation of the subject—"Resolved that this House, while approving of collective bargaining, deplores the attempt of the unions to usurp the rights of management"—was the major matter of discussion until the meeting was adjourned 10 minutes before the Hart House "lights out" limit.

Questioned by The Varsity after the debates, negative speakers felt that their victory had not been won within the stated terms of the motion. They felt that a more accurate picture of what the house endorsed would be gained by substituting the word "share" for the word "usurp."

Supporting the motion was Gladstone Murray, former Director of Broadcasting for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and opposing was A. R. Mosher, President of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Mover was Murray Lount, S.P.S., supported by Jack McDonough, St. Mike's. The opposition speakers were Alan Porter, U.C., and Ivan Owen, Trinity.

An editorial in The Varsity yesterday advising against "advocacy" and questioning the value of formal debating inspired comments from several speakers, both scheduled and from the floor.

Perhaps affected by an editorial challenge to "open with the necessary if somewhat dry business of determining what management is, whether it has rights, and whether the unions are in fact attempting to usurp them," several speakers began by summarizing their definitions of the terms used. In the resultant quarrel over definitions the debate virtually bogged down.

Only Mr. Mosher discussed the major point of whether or not unions were actually attempting to usurp the rights of management. Acknowledging that the wording of the motion was "difficult to vote on and difficult for the eyes to support," Mr. Mosher said that "no attempt has been made to show that the unions have tried to usurp the rights of management."

A motion to foreclose the meeting introduced a series of discussions from the floor and chair on points of procedure. Prominent in the discussion on procedure was Sidney Hermant of the Imperial Optical Co., a former speaker of the Vassar Campus For UNO Site?

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Jan. 23.—(Exchange)—Vassar may be the site of a meeting of the United Nations Organization, according to a story carried in the Vassar News.

The News quoted President MacCracken of Vassar as saying: "It is possible that a formal meeting of the United Nations Organization will be held in this vicinity. If this is true we would be delighted, with the consent of the student body and the trustees, to offer the Chapel, Students' Building and other facilities for the use of the delegates."

"At the time the League of Nations was meeting in Geneva, the University of Geneva offered its campus, and during the summer courses were offered in international government for those who came to the League. It is possible that there could be some summer work of this sort here at Vassar."

Poughkeepsie has already published a brochure which describes the available land around Hyde Park, home of the late President Roosevelt, and the Hudson River valley. It is felt at Vassar that the sentiment of Roosevelt's home may probably be the determining factor in deciding for or against Hyde Park. If Hyde Park is chosen, it is assumed the Vassar will play an important role.

House. Speaking from the right side of the house, Mr. Hermant relied on house procedure to bring the already-late meeting to a close.

Points of order and points of information were fired at Speaker Ed Safarian, so much that twice he had to rule questions out of order on the ground that three questions to the Chair one after another constituted an extreme.

Offer Cash Incentive For Four School Orators

One hundred dollars in prizes will be divided among four fourth year engineering students who will deliver speeches at 8 o'clock tonight in the Debates Room of Hart House. The four: Gord Rosenthal, N. Buchanan, J. R. Moore and W. Findley were chosen from ten entrants in a series of semi-finals held on Tuesday.

Before giving their speeches, the ten entrants will attend a dinner of the Engineering Institute of Canada to be held in the North Common Room at 4.45 p.m. from which they will go to the Debates Room. In the Debates Room the four finalists will each be allowed fifteen minutes to speak on some part of their thesis material.

After the speeches a movie on the failure of the Tacoma Narrows suspension bridge will be shown, followed by coffee and doughnuts in the Great Hall. Members of third and fourth year Engineering are welcome at the speeches and movies.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University CollegeMT. 6611
Business OfficeMT. 6221
Night OfficeMT. 8405

Editor-in-Chief...W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor.....Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor.....Peg Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor...John Rooks, 477
News Editor.....George Forster, 477
Assistant.....Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor.....Bredin Stapells, 476
Assistant.....Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor Polly Mutz, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange
Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama
Editor.....Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer.....Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager—E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Thursday, January 24, 1946

The following guest editorial comes to us from Peter Neurath, of the Editorial Staff of School's Inimitable Toike Olke.

Noise Reduction

Among the almost supernumerary courses to be found at SPS there are some in Acoustics and in these part of the time is devoted to a discussion of noise reduction.

At first such a discussion might be considered almost blasphemous in this Age of Noise—an age perhaps symbolized at the University by the student cramming to the accompaniment of a radio blaring forth, more than 25,000 loudness units strong.

Upon further examination, however, the contradiction apparently found above is easily resolved. We only have to distinguish three orders of silence, that of the mouth, that of the mind and at the highest rung of the ladder, that of the will. All three are necessary for the achievement of man's transcendental destiny. All three are all but drowned by, to mention but a few more recent paraphernalia, radios, juke boxes and those two ever-present schoolmen, announcing with their sound—"truck." But it is the silence of desire (for things of this world) whose absence modern civilization with its mass production for profit requires most. Only if in men's minds, through commercials on the radio, ads in the papers and colourful posters at every corner a constant craving for a multiplicity of objects can be maintained will the wheels be kept rolling faster and faster.

Now, if recollection is an aid in man's salvation, noise is surely harmful, and its reduction good. But this harm referred to may be only minor. The selfish desires so successfully intensified by that hero of North America, the salesman, are undoubtedly far greater obstacles to the attainment of man's end. Yet, if we read the signs right, the sound engineer is reducing the incidental noise of our age only to let in more efficiently the din of the advertisers. Thus his noise reduction, as we suspected, becomes but a substitution of a more vicious for a more natural kind of noise. We can only shudder at visions of listening by FM radio, undisturbed by outside interference and static, to an acoustically perfect version of the glories of "Super Suds".

However, the engineer accomplishes this result unintentionally; and we say this, not only in his defence, but in his justification. If philosophy (true wisdom) as the master and the guide had maintained its rightful place in the world today, yielding precedence only to theology, even sound engineers might provide humanity with more than improved channels for the stimulation of selfish desires.

Debates Again

A letter appearing elsewhere in this issue indicates the our editorial of yesterday, "About Debates," leaves room for misapprehension. We have not space to deal with the letter adequately tonight, but one at least of the points it raises ought to have been stated more explicitly in the original editorial.

Our correspondent suggests—and it is an obvious suggestion—that debates are valuable because they allow the audience to hear many shades of opinion expressed.

That is true—but it does not apply to the debate proper—to the affirmative and negative speeches. It applies to the later discussion from the floor.

The affirmative and negative speakers are prevented, as we suggested, from anything resembling a shade of opinion by the very nature of a formal debate. One is answering a question with a "yes," the other with a "no." One is saying that an institution is black, the other that it is white. Their purpose is to collect votes favorable to their positions—frequently false positions. Hence one will marshal all the "black" facts, the other all the "white" ones. Neither will attempt balance, because balance is not what is at issue. What is at issue is a vote of "yes" or "no."

It is true that the speeches from the floor, although as a rule they tend to support one side or the other, are not committed by any debating convention to make out a case. But we were not talking about speeches from the floor.

Finnegans Wake Instalment Four

The scene is laid in the Tecumseh Wigwam. Captain Brandy and Boubooul are seated in the mens' section waiting for Mary Cassidy to come in so that they can go into the other part of the Wigwam which is appointed in a superior manner and is also more spacious. There is a sudden commotion at the door and a moment later in walks the entire cast of Finnegans Wake headed by James Joyce and Jonathan Cape. Captain Brandy and Boubooul get up and follow the rest into the main room. Joyce (rising as Boubooul comes in). Didn't you attend Trinity College, Dublin?

Boubooul: I did and all (he puts his little satchel of books under the table). I now attend the University of Toronto where I am studying birdlore and the manufacture of decoy ducks under the tuition of the eminent professor Budwizzel.

Mary Cassidy (brightly): A most interesting man, Mr. Budwizzel. (O'Shaughnessy gives her a dark look. She examines it critically and puts it in her photograph album).

Cape: What's this I hear about you writing a new book Joyce?

Joyce: Yes, I am and all. It's going to be in three-quarter time.

Murphy: Am I going to be in it?

Joyce (expansively): You're all going to be in it. (They burst out cheering).

Mary Cassidy (jumping up on her seat): Here's Mr. Budwizzel now.

Budwizzel (plunking his bottle of corn liquor on the table): Ah'm sorry ah didn't get heah befoh but ah haid to attend the footwashin' ceremonies over at Victoria.

Boubooul: Tell us about the foot-washing Mr. Budwizzel.

Budwizzel (settling down to his topic): Well it's like this: During the recent soap shortage it was decided by the authorities of Victoria College that communal (at this point in the narrative he is interrupted by some smart alec who switches out the electric lights).

Finnegan (screaming with rage and disappointment): Somebody's stolen my peanuts.

(The lights go on again and everybody looks around and starts talking furiously, but they are interrupted by a soul-piercing scream coming from Mary Cassidy).

Mary Cassidy: Finnegans' coffin is empty (she faints).

Where is:
(A) FINNEGAN?
(B) THE SNOWS OF YESTER-YEAR?
(C) THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME?

Mail your answers to these questions to Chief Detective Inspector Brandy c/o The Circle Press, Paris (France). Don't forget to include a lock of your grandmother's hair with your solution.

Watch for next week's instalment entitled Anna Livia Plurabelle or Mary Cassidy and the dented Saxophone.

JAKE.

Mathematics Said Important

"Mathematics is important to those outside of mathematics," said Prof. David Savan in an address to the Maths. and Physics Society, yesterday. Mr. Savan, who is a lecturer in the U.C. Dept. of Philosophy, showed that changes in the conception of mathematics produce changes in the other sciences, and in philosophy in particular.

The characteristics of mathematics were compared with other cases of distinctly human knowledge. In mathematics, in common sense knowledge, and in the field of values, there is the element of what is the product of conventions and what is objective and irreducible fact.

Symbolism, which is so important to mathematics, is the common tool through which all knowledge is expressed, and is the key to knowledge itself.

The annual Vic Bob, climax of the fall initiations, originated over 70 years ago as a tribute to a janitor, Robert Beare.

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction — anywhere . . . anytime! And when you tune in

"LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

STATIONS:— CJBC — CKEY
9.30 p. m. Every Thursday Night

LIGHT UP AND Play

When it's time out for fun and games Sweet Caps just naturally join the party for smoking enjoyment.

THE EDWARD KYLIE TRUST AWARD

Applications may be made to the Secretary of the Edward Kylie Trust on or before February 8th, 1946, by candidates for the Edward Kylie Trust Award for the year 1946-47. These applications should be made in writing and should give particulars of the qualifications and record of the applicant with a view to the following requirements. The Award will be made to a male student who is a British Subject, either a graduate or an undergraduate of Arts, preferably in the course of Modern History, at the University of Toronto, to enable him to pursue his studies in Great Britain. The Trustees shall make their award to that candidate who appears from his record at the University, to be most likely to occupy a position of leadership and influence in the Community.

The sum available is Eight Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($850.00) for the year 1946-47 and the Trustees may renew the award for a second year if they are satisfied with the first year's record.

The Trustees, upon receiving applications, will arrange for the examination of the candidates and if the Trustees are not satisfied as to the suitability of any of the candidates they will have the right to withhold the award.

DATED this 21st. day of January A.D., 1946.

THE HONOURABLE DANA PORTER, K.C.,
Parliament Buildings, Toronto.
Secretary, Edward Kylie Trust.

STUDENTS!

When post war Ring Covers are available, DOMINION will have them.

For the present we will do our best to look after as many orders as possible. Materials for the manufacture of Ring Covers are still very limited.

Ask your bookstore. He will keep you posted.

DOMINION BLANK BOOK COMPANY

Hart House Bulletin Board

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mina Grant, soprano, with Henry Attack at the piano, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. on Friday. The programme will include both classical and modern songs and folk songs. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

Visitors' Sunday

Next Sunday will be a Visitors' Day at Hart House, when members may bring friends, including ladies, to see the building between 2 and 4 in the afternoon. The Annual Exhibition of Photographs will be on view in the art gallery. The whole building will be open for inspection. Members are asked to have their membership cards to show at the door.

Criticisms of Rejected Photographs

Tonight in the Camera Club Rooms at 7.15, M. M. Simmonds, II U.C., will criticize the prints rejected for hanging in the annual exhibition of photography.

The Library Fee paid by every undergraduate was raised in the hopes of financing the much-needed addition to the library; but the library never sees the fee. It goes directly to the bursar and accessions are financed by endowments and annual grants.

Voters' List Discrepancies Bring Students to Court

Magistrate's Court in City Hall Tuesday saw a parade of university students and officials to the witness stands as investigations continued into discrepancies in the voter's list compiled for the Dominion elections last June.

Charges had been laid last summer against Lyle Hynds and Phyllis Beatty, enumerators for the sub-division of St. Paul's District which contains St. George Street. Allegedly Hynds and Mrs. Beatty had "wilfully and without reasonable excuse" included in their preliminary list of electors "the names of persons whose names you had good reason to believe should not be included."

Testimony from a score of summoned witnesses from Knox, Trinity and University College residences attempted to show that the lists had included the names of people who were either not residents or who were minors.

Reserves Judgment

Judgment was reserved a week by presiding magistrate C. V. Linn after the court had heard four hours of testimony and summing up. The case was originally held over from last summer.

Miss M. B. Ferguson, Dean of Women of U.C., testified that a number of names included on the list as eligible voters living in Whitney Hall were the names of underage students.

In addition the list had contained, she reported, the names of a Mr. Garner and a Mr. Gentileore whom "I am quite sure do not live in Whitney Hall." (Contacted by The Varsity, Garner and Gentileore, in residence at 73 St. George Street again this year, confirmed Miss Ferguson's statement.) Miss Mary Linn, secretary to the dean, stated that she had prepared a proper list for the enumerator but that it had never been picked up.

Mr. Hynds declared that the people he approached while compiling the list last April had been "most unco-operative". He had just a week in which to get the names, he said, and he "had to do my best". He took the enumerators' job merely as a favor, he stated. He had been chosen because of the need for a "careful enumerator" in St. Paul's District, he said, "since this district is full of Communists". He paid 75 cents for a university directory and got some names from that source. In other cases he approached students for assistance.

Refuse Information

Jim Jennings, caretaker at "73", told court that the list contained many names of men whom he knew had never lived at that men's residence. He had refused to give the enumerator any information, he said, because he knew that all the men in the house would have been home at voting time. He would have known the ages of the men because of his intimate acquaintance with them.

At St. Hilda's, evidence given claimed Mr. Hynds had procured his list from a switchboard operator. At Knox he had gotten no list of students but just the staff with one incorrect addition.

HEALTH EXAMINATIONS

All students, except those in Graduate Studies, who have not paid the Health Service fee, must have had their annual health examination before being allowed to sit for their examinations.

Ex-service personnel are not exempt because of their recent discharge examination.

Any student who has not, as yet, had his examination should call on the Health Service either personally or by telephone. Men, MI. 9644; women MI. 2646, and arrange for an appointment. No special arrangements will be made for a rush at the end of the term.

Boulder Begins Student Relief

Boulder, Colorado, Jan. 23.—(CUP)—Students at the University of Colorado began a week long drive last week to aid students in war-ravaged countries.

The drive, organized by the Y.W.C.A. and supported by the Associated Students of the University of Colorado and other campus organizations, is to send supplies of food, clothing, books, and other items to students in countries all over the world which were dominated during the war.

Plans for the drive, the theme of which is Students of One World, have been submitted to other universities in the region and it is expected that they will join Colorado in carrying out the campaign.

Headed by President Anne Hylan of the campus Y.W.C.A., the drive will be extended to the city of Boulder and will last until Jan. 26.

The opening of the drive was featured by speeches by Dr. T. Z. Koo, secretary of the World Student Christian Federation, and Gaston Vandermeesche, a Belgian student who worked with the Dutch underground against the Nazis.

The Medical building was practically gutted by fire of unknown origin 18 years ago. Firemen were handicapped by being forced to use ice-covered apparatus with which they had been fighting a holocaust at Metropolitan Church.

Met. Service Balloon Used To Test Radio Equipment

By BOB COOKE

Students stopped yesterday afternoon to get a look at Varsity II, successor to the barrage balloon that acted as mascot during the intercollegiate rugby last term, and incidentally helped to sell War Bonds. A miniature version of its predecessor, only seven feet long, it rose to a height of 150 feet over the Hart House Tower.

"It was loaned to us by the Dominion Meteorological Department to make radio experiments", explained one of the ground crew, a member of the research staff at the Physics Building. "We are just testing it to make sure it will lift the little radio set we have built for it."

"There's no radio on it right now", he continued, "just dead weights hanging from it by cords. If those people standing under watching it knew how flimsy the chords are they wouldn't be staying around here."

When the sausage was brought down to earth students flocked around to examine it, one of them smoking a cigarette. "Here you!" roared the ground crew, "get away from there," and turning to us he explained, "It's filled with hydrogen and if that cigarette came too close, well . . ."

"It can lift two and a half pounds which is the weight of our radio, but we weren't sure that it could also lift the tow cord that keeps it in captivity. Because of its sausage shape it gets some lift from the movement of air past it, like a kite, and we figure that in a strong wind it could lift a pound and a half of tow rope and go up 150 feet. Contrary to what you may think we are not trying to make a stratosphere flight, although the Meteorological Department has sent up balloons with radios for recording weather. We are just planning to test radio equipment," he concluded.

Religious Book Talk By Bready

Dr. J. W. Bready, Ph.D., historian and lecturer, will discuss his own book, "This Freedom—Whence?", or "Hidden Hands in History," at the weekly missionary meeting of the Varsity Christian Fellowship at 1:00 p.m. in room 211 of the Anatomy Building, today.

His book was chosen as the religious book of the month in England, the only book by a Canadian author ever to be so privileged. Besides this book, Dr. Bready is the author of several recognized social history books which have been highly recommended by historians G. M. Trevelyan and Sir Charles Oman, as well as by such political figures as Winston Churchill, Jan Smuts, Lord Bennett, and Prime Minister King.

Dr. Bready has just returned from a tour of the United States, lecturing at more than 15 universities including New York, Princeton and Columbia.

House-Shy U.B.C.'ers Resorting to H-Huts

Vancouver, B.C. — The first Army huts to be turned into family dwellings will provide homes for eight veterans and their families at Acadia Camp after February 1. The huts were constructed through the efforts of the U.B.C. Canadian Legion Housing Committee and Lt.-Col. G. M. Shrum.

One hundred huts, split into three-room suites, were signed for by married student-veterans with families of small children. Located on the campus, the houses would be prefabricated portables, four rooms renting for about $20 a month.

The University of British Columbia is the only university in Canada assuming responsibility for providing room and board for returned students as at Acadia.

The Student Council plans to float a loan of 150,000 dollars for extension of the Brock Memorial Hall, the students' main recreational building. Construction will probably commence late next year on the proposed new building, which will be connected to the present one by a runway, forming a closed courtyard. Plans include a cabaret dance-floor, an amphitheatre 135 feet long and 75 feet wide, two salons, 16 club offices, games rooms, a small dance floor, and banquet-hall with catering facilities.

Psychology's "Bum Steers" Blamed on Philosophers

By JEFF WAITE

Last night Prof. W. Line of the Psychology Dept. delivered a short paper to the Philosophical Society entitled "The Degradation of the Ego", in which he lamented the present tendency to eliminate the personal entity or "self" in psychological considerations. The reasons he gave for his polemic were primarily ethical.

As a psychologist he declared the philosophers responsible for all the "bum steers" psychology has followed. This statement was of course questioned, but the historical considerations involved in its exposition or refutation became lost in the course of the argument; which at this point developed into a more analytic discussion of the respective areas of the various disciplines and their relation to psychology.

In this latter connection the relevance of ethical notions for psychology became the central topic. All psychology is applied, (and all knowledge, according to Prof. Line, is for some pragmatic or functional purpose). Psychological knowledge operates for the adjustment of individuals to the "status quo" in terms of traditional or ethical commonplaces.

Interpolated throughout the evening were discussions of epistemological criteria for determining the significance of empirically observed facts of human behaviour. These, however, were never followed up.

No revolutionary world-schematization was achieved; indeed, no systematic doctrine was promulgated, as at the last session of the Society. But Professor Line presented a beautifully-written paper without pedantry or unnecessary abstraction. Everyone, for once, understood what was going on.

Library, Radio Station, Common Room,

Following are the entries submitted in the War Memorial Contest sponsored by The Varsity last fall. Originally scheduled to be published in the Christmas Literary Supplement, they have been held over until now by pressure of space.

Contestants were asked to propose a suitable memorial to the University's dead in World War II, and back up their suggestion with a brief essay.

No announcement has been made by the committee at present working on the question of a University World Memorial. Meanwhile, the essays on these pages may provide food for discussion.

The Motive Counts

"The tumult and the shouting dies;" . . . and once again we are going to remember those valiant souls who gave their all that we might live, those who fought this war to end all wars and had their life cut off before it had really begun.

The egocentric executive scans his memo—"10 A.M.—meeting re war memorial"—just another little detail. Thousands have died—naturally we owe them something—so let's have a meeting, appropriate some money, and do something. Do what? Not another cenotaph—in a few years the country will be cluttered with them. A memorial arch? How could we? There isn't room on the other side of Hart House and it would look silly on the back campus. Murals on the library walls? But we may build a new library. How about a new wing on Hart House or a residence or a new school of science—something practical—kill two birds with one stone. And then next November the eleventh, and the next, and the next, a sparse crowd will stand in the drizzle—wearing pathetic little red poppies, shivering and hoping that the prayer won't be too long.

"lest we forget—lest we forget!" The cycle is once again complete. And they have died in vain. We fight at our peace tables; we strike for this motive and that; we even quarrel about war memorials. Who cares about them—the mangled flesh at Dieppe—the bloated, floating corpse in the North Sea, the ash remains of the Airman who crashed over Germany? Now that the victory is ours, at their cost—throw up a memorial—put on our silk hats and unveil it—and then wait for the next war.

Do you think they care whether we build a new arch or paint the walls of the library. They fought and died for a better world, to erase the mistakes we made after the last war, the mistakes which made that other generation die in vain. We finished Vimy as once again the cannon roar was heard from east and west. Are we going to do that again? Are we going to continue to line up and kill each new generation as it comes along? Now that they are dead, is that the end?

It does not matter what kind of a memorial we build. The symbol does not matter. What counts is the motive behind the symbol. A university should set an example for the world to follow. We should as individuals and as a group take on our shoulders the responsibility of making sure that their sacrifice was not in vain. Then and only then can a symbol of remembrance mean anything. It should be a symbol to remind us of our covenant with them—to uphold the ideals for which they died. Let us not put up a memorial with "lest we forget" inscribed on it when we have already forgotten. Let us rather make a covenant with them to live for that for which they died and then to remind us of that we may build to them a shrine at which we may give thanks that there were such men.

"Have you forgotten yet? Look down and swear by the slain of the War that you'll never forget."

—GORDON D. McLEOD,
III Victoria.

Memorial Library

It is my suggestion that the proposed war memorial take the form of a memorial library.

It is almost impossible to exaggerate the congestion in the library and its consequent inability to adequately attain its primary objectives, namely, providing the student body with space to work in and an adequate supply of easily accessible books.

The reading rooms are excessively crowded, and the same conditions apply to the graduate study facilities. As an unfortunate result of this congestion, the librarian recently had no space to offer a blind ex-serviceman and his reader other than a rather damp and uninviting room in the basement. At present there are some seven hundred students in the graduate school, half of these being enrolled in the humanities. Yet the library has only ten study rooms and two seminars to place at their disposal.

In the service departments of the building a similar congestion prevails. Several thousand volumes have been removed from circulation and placed in dead storage to make room for the annual accessions. And under present circumstances, the policy of annually removing some ten thousand volumes from circulation to make room for accessions will have to be continued indefinitely. The staff is seriously overworked. Lack of working space however, prevents the library from employing more assistants.

Under these circumstances, it is imperative that the present library be replaced by a new and more efficient building. There prevails a consensus of opinion that memorials should be useful. And since a library is possibly the only institution used by all colleges, and by students at all levels both male and female, it is in consequence most suitable as a memorial.

To keep before the student body the memorial idea embodied in the building, a fore-court could be provided with memorial tablets or some memorial architectural feature.

It is my suggestion that the Varsity interview the heads of all organizations connected with the university and the responsible university officials with a view to obtaining their opinions on the mentioned project, and submit a summary of their findings to the President.

For your consideration, please.
JAS. P. LOVEKIN,
4 Vic.

Memorial Foundation

Foremost in the minds of many people today is the question of finding a means whereby another global war may be prevented, and it seems to me that this consideration should guide us in choosing a fitting memorial for those who died in World War II.

It was announced recently that McMaster University had decided to erect a gymnasium and swimming pool as a war memorial; others at this university have suggested a library, an art gallery or a cen-taph. None of these, I feel, is adequate—especially in view of the purpose mentioned above, which it should serve. A gymnasium, though it is a useful piece of campus equipment, is used only by those whose interests take them to it. A library would be more fitting, but it, too, is unsatisfactory because it serves only a limited number of people and the same may be said of an art gallery, whereas a cenotaph would be noticed one day a year by those who attended a memorial service in front of it.

What, then, are the requirements of a suitable memorial? In the first place, it must be something that is going to reach beyond the limits of a single campus, or of a single university—even of a single country, if it is to exert any influence upon world thought and hence be a force for peace in the world. It must not be something that is of restricted interest; it must not be something that is thought about one day out of 365.

My suggestion for a war memorial is that visiting scholarships under a grant to be called the "War Memorial Foundation", be established at this university. On its scholarships graduate students or professors whose desire is to study among other peoples, and who, by training in their fields, would make a contribution to world thought by establishing a closer bond of sympathy among the people of different countries, could visit other universities or be invited to this university. The qualifications of such scholars would be a knowledge of the language, customs, history, etc., of the country they proposed to visit. From the World-wide publication given these scholarships and from the contact of these scholars with men and women in this and other countries, a definite and powerful force working for international peace, understanding and goodwill would in time result. Such a foundation would admirably serve the ends of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization as stated by Dr. Wallace: "to broadcast knowledge of the cultural development of the nations concerned in order to mold understanding" and would show that we are students of the world and not of one city.

—JOHN F. HATTON,
III P.E. or H., Victoria Col.

New Hart House

We all know that Hart House is sadly lacking in space for rest and recreation and for the services which it is supposed to supply. For this reason I propose that the House be augmented by the erection of an Athletics building as a war memorial. With such a building the physical training staff would have more room for their activities, and Hart House would have more space for its members to eat, to study, and to devote themselves to such recreational activities as they would like.

A building devoted to athletics need not be of expensive and artistic construction, such as is used in the present structure. Not that I advocate a shoddy and unsightly edifice as a memorial to those who, to use a hackneyed but apt phrase, made the supreme sacrifice. What we need is a trim functional building, well designed and constructed, but without the time-defying oak, stone and brass, of which Hart House is fabricated. Rather it should have the very best facilities and equipment, air-conditioning, adequate lighting, (both natural and artificial), dressing rooms which are spacious and convenient, and a larger and more effectively designed gymnasium, as well as a variety of smaller gymnasiums for instruction in boxing, wrestling, and other sports. It should have a new swimming pool incorporating the latest design features, such as ripple proofing.

As for Hart House itself, the extra space could easily be utilized without structural changes. The rooms vacated would, I believe, be as follows: the large gym, three smaller gyms, the Athletic offices, and the dressing room. The uses to which each could be put, as given below, are merely suggestions, but I hope they furnish an idea of how useful they would be.

The large gymnasium could be used as lunch room and study room, in the same manner as the billiard-room, except it should be open all day, and have permanent facilities, as in the Tuck Shop. The smaller gyms would be excellent for arts and crafts; music, writing, painting, modelling, or whatever strikes the fancy. The staff of the House could easily take over the Athletic offices for their own administrative use.

This leaves us with the swimming pool, and the squash courts. Both would be best left in their present capacities, the swimming pool because a place for recreational swimming is really needed, and the squash courts because of their unsuitability for anything else. Part of the present dressing room could be set aside for those who use them, while the remainder could serve as a more adequate check-room than the one with which we are now blessed.

We all know that Hart House suffers congenital overcrowding, and I have endeavored to give a solution to the problem, and at the same time suggest an appropriate and useful war memorial. I know that I have fallen short of my objective, but I hope that I have at least provided the germ of an idea for more fertile minds.

—J. W. H. WALLING,
II S.P.S.

Radio Station

I suggest that the living memorial to the Students of World War II take the form of a radio broadcasting station, with a studio, housed in a separate building, on the University campus.

In the years to follow, the youth in Canada must keep alive the democratic ideals of fallen comrades. A radio broadcasting station would be our most powerful ally in this heritage. Through the air waves would ply the popular views of the student body. Current topics, of greatest importance to Canadian citizens, would be debated, opinions given, and conclusions drawn. By this medium the public would know the thoughts and actions of the students—they would know that the campus is alive, a cauldron of diverse ideas—but whatever the ideas, it would show that the students are striving for solutions of the many problems of today.

Debates, table-talks, meetings and interviews would stimulate the mind. News reports, sports talks, and announcements of coming events would keep the students in touch with the busy life of the campus. And in lighter vein, for enjoyment by young and old, the campus would present dramas, musicals, humorous skits, horrors, and other radio novelties, fresh from the creative pens of the students. This station would be a gift to the general public and the students, and not a round-the-clock advertising machine.

The task of building the equipment could be taken care of by radio-minded students, led by an advisory staff of professors. When the mechanical work has been completed, the hard work and ingenuity of the student body would make a success of this project.

Of course, time would permit the use of the station during two or three evenings a week and perhaps a part of Sunday. Each faculty and organization would have a chance to sponsor the various programs. Thus we would have a union of ideas, with students working together for the betterment of life on the Toronto campus.

Do not think that the radio broadcasting station would in any way detract from the "Varsity". The station would be dependent on The Varsity and its staff for news items and student activities in the world. It would also be dependent on the student body and for complete success we would all work together.

—BORIS P. STOICHEFF,
III Eng. Physics, S.P.S.

Radio Again

Although we the men and women of the United Nations defeated world fascism on land, on sea and in the air, we have not completely silenced the voices of fascism. By raising the voices of democracy we can refute and nullify the effect of the preachings of reaction.

We are democratic citizens in a democratic city. We are students in one of the very great and famous universities of the world. Students and members of the staff died in the fight for freedom of speech, of assembly, and of action. Bullets stopped their bodies and their voices. They lie in the grounds of France, and in the waters of the North Sea, in the sands of the Desert, in the Downs of England. Our bodies and our voices are still with us. We must use our voices more frequently, more decisively, more fruitfully.

The democratic voice of the University of Toronto must be given the power of a radio station—to reach all Canadians, and all students the world over.

Yes, a radio station! A beautiful—
(Continued on Page 5)

SOLID!

Yes, that's the trend today, fellows! For those who appreciate the best in woollens, women, and song, it's SOLID 99 44/100 to 1. And speaking of cloth, you simply must see our fresh selection of solid shades in browns, grays, and blues. These fine serges, soft flannels, and beautiful English gabardines eagerly await the feel of your fingers. We'd love to meet you at

LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES

449 Spadina Avenue
Phones: RA. 8995-6

Showroom hours are nine to nine daily, Saturdays until 6. Handmade clothes made right on the premises.

P.S.: Have you seen our one-button roll? (double-breasted, of course). Ask the man who wears one!

P.P.S.: We have enlarged our staff and can now give 4 week service (sooner if necessary).

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

CANADIAN NATIONAL TELEGRAPHS

(At Present)
Telegrams will be Received at
14 BROCK STREET
Ajax Village

HANDY FOR STUDENTS

TAILORS — 6 Harbord St.
All alterations, repairs and remodelling
LADIES' AND GENTS' SUITS
Also Fur Coats
Workmanship Guaranteed
MI. 0618

, Are Among War Memorial Proposals

ly-designed radio station, one with murals on the walls painted by the best Canadian artists; a radio station with facilities for musical programs, interviews, round-table discussions, lectures, and perhaps facilities for future television programs. Think of chemistry and biology lessons via television. That would really bring learning into the home and farm and school.

Just imagine what we could do with such a voice! We could say—"We have eliminated race prejudice from our campus." And we could say—"By using atomic energy we have discovered the way to change inert matter into living cells."

We could show the world that learning is something for use and enjoyment, for peace and peace only. We could tell the world that no scientist in the University of Toronto is working on secret war research! The University of Toronto must have no secrets. Our radio station will immediately disseminate all new knowledge discovered by our research workers and theorists.

We could tell the world how we the members of the University of Toronto have reunited the arts and sciences and philosophies into one consistent pattern, one philosophy—a working philosophy—of life, one human enjoyment and creation! We could tell the world how our campus is the centre of active movements of theory and practice working together for the benefit of the citizens of our great country.

The University of Toronto Radio Station will reach the men and women of Europe, Asia and Africa, and our own Americas, men on farms, men on ships, peaceful men—and students on other campus who are also broadcasting to us.

Our Radio Station will be a member of a world-wide chain of University-of-the-World Radio Stations dedicated to the advancement of learning in the name of common humanity.

WILLIAM FAIRLEY,
IV UC

All-Varsity Centre

Twice in the past thirty years the youth of the world have met in deadly combat. Already voices are being raised Cassandra-like to predict the approach of a third and even more universally disastrous conflict.

Those who perished have been praised and mourned and are now to be commemorated; those who may similarly perish are now attending schools and colleges. The dead are enshrined in the hearts of the bereaved; it is up to their survivors to lead the people of the world into a new era of enlightenment and harmony. Surely the day has passed when the erection of cenotaphs and mausoleums could close the matter; surely it would be more to the point to look to the future and dedicate our war memorials to practical efforts toward that international understanding which alone can ensure peace.

Knowledge and responsibility have gone hand in hand since the dawn of history. The University, traditional "seat of higher learning" must make its students conscious of their greater debt to society. Prejudice, greed, intolerance and thoughtless discrimination cannot be permitted to exist in the minds of those who are to assume leadership in a peace-loving world. Perhaps, if the various Faculties and Colleges upon the campus had a common meeting-ground, some of the germs of these social ills might be eliminated before reaching the contagion point. With this in mind I recommend that the proposed War Memorial take the form of an All-

Varsity Building, containing a large auditorium and lecture hall and a Common Room open to students day and night, regardless of college, faculty, race, sex, color or creed.

Within these walls an attempt would be made to integrate such widely diverse fields of knowledge as the Arts and the Sciences. Through special open lectures held regularly by the heads of the various Faculties, and through informal student discussion, much could be accomplished. Here also could be held special All-Varsity debates upon topics of general interest to students as prospective citizens of the world.

A War Memorial should not be merely a reminder of the mistakes and sorrows of the past; it should offer something constructive toward the correction of those errors and the prevention of similar catastrophes in the future. I believe that an All-Varsity Building would over a period of years, contribute more than a little to the realization of that ideal.

—MARGARET R. BOWES,
II Pass Arts.

A New Philosophy

Every society is the sum-total of its individual personalities, and personalities are influenced by education.

As a war memorial, then, could a prize be offered for the best outline (submitted by a Canadian) dealing with philosophy—in which morals and ethics are highlighted—which would be suitable for use as a textbook in secondary schools?

To the objection that philosophy requires a mature mind for its proper understanding, it could be pointed out, that it was to the youth of Athens that Socrates taught.

Most psychologists agree that mental development is limited after sixteen; and Plato, in outlining his system of education, started his "winnowing" process for the selection of possible philosopher-kings, at an early stage.

To the further objection that school curriculums are already overcrowded, one could reply, that if the present system has not achieved the desired result of a completely harmonized relationship of Personalities in Society, then something should be eliminated to make room for the introduction of something new.

It is true we must know basic facts upon which to build, but in History, for instance, historical facts do not change with time. Why rehash them from grade to grade merely extending the factual field? Since all history is the expression, in some concrete form, of reactions of universal human nature, why not correlate social studies with philosophy? Why not stimulate attempts to interpret the past—which has been influenced by geographical, physical, environmental or various psychological factors—in the light of the various teleological ends considered important in each particular era? In addition to the initial prize for the best outline submitted, could the war memorial not be perpetuated by each year offering a suitable prize for the best school essay—a discussion or interpretation from a philosophical point of view, of some pertinent, political or social problem of the day?

Youth and Maturity are merely two different aspects or phases of basic human nature. It is as natural, for Youth to resent the implications involved in "proffered" good advice as it is for Maturity, altruistically to desire to offer it. Socrates, in seeking to impart to Youth, the wisdom acquired by experience and maturity, attempted to overcome youthful rebellion against control from without by transforming the same problem into control from within, in the guise of an anticipatory adventure in quest of Truth.

Immediate results from such a program could hardly be expected in our social and political life, but it is not in this generation that we anticipate another world upheaval; while, ever in the background, looms the atomic bomb!

Concerned in the same spirit as the Nobel prize and originating in an internationally recognized seat of learning, could not the fact that Canada was the first to initiate such a program—which, in time, might become universal—be the most fitting and enduring memorial we could erect to all our Canadian boys?

—EVELYN M. LINDSAY,
Pass Teachers' III

America's Trumpet and Trombone Stylist!

In Person
SONNY DUNHAM
AND HIS ORCHESTRA

also

- Art Hallman
- Bobby Gimby
- Floor Show

at the

University College ARTS BALL

Tickets - U.C. Rotunda

Ajax men may obtain tickets at their S.A.C. office.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity:
Dear Sir:

Congratulations upon your editorial of to-day, "About Debates". For some time we have had the idea that your editorials are written with a view to stirring up letters to the editor. In the past you have succeeded to a remarkable degree but surely this latest spate of nonsense will be an overwhelming success. With the advent of the larger form you have become bigger and better for you have printed today the best example of balderdash to appear this year.

"Debates never settled anything that we know of" perhaps because they are not intended to. No person would suggest that the result of a campus debate be taken as the last word on any subject. They can, however, be viewed as an indication of the opinion of a section of the campus upon the subject.

As this writer sees it there are two aspects of the debate which are of value. The more important is that it allows the members of the house to hear many shades of opinion on the question. It is true that speakers on the paper will generally present the more extreme views on each side. It is, however, important to remember that about five times as much speaking time is given over to speeches from the orator and that these will usually include every shade from snow white to jet black. Surely, you will realize that this fact gives the lie to your statement that "the debaters on both sides are invariably special pleaders". It is by listening to all these various shades of opinion and weighing them in his mind that the member of the house is enabled to come to a more soundly based opinion himself. "What is wanted is balance" and what is obtained is balance, obtained by this very means.

The second asset of the debate is the ability to state their opinions clearly in public which participants derive. It should not be necessary to do more than state such a truism.

You have made the statement that "since no binding conclusion can emerge, the emphasis might as well be on fun". Your editorial page has recently indulged in a written debate with correspondents on the scientific method. Might it be suggested that if you actually believe the statement quoted above and as it was evident that no binding conclusions were reached that you might as well have turned your editorial column over to another Cat.

—D. Harvie Hay,
I Vic.

The Editor,
The Varsity.
Dear Sir,

After having read the masterpiece of misinterpretation on the issue of education, which Messrs. Campbell and Sople had printed yesterday, I felt prompted to reply. The "Democracy" that they bandy about is democracy in the Greek sense of the word; namely the rights of the unorganized mob. From what I gather from their letter, they feel that anyone should be entitled to a B.A., if so why not a Ph.D.?

The answer is obvious: Degrees are merely accepted and arbitrary standards. The question arises as to whether the standards should be high or low. If it were agreed upon, it could be arranged that everyone, upon graduation from high school would receive a B.A.

I would be the last one to complain, if everyone were allowed to continue with his education until his intellectual limitations prevented him from going any further. There is no doubt that any one has the right to an education, if he has the capacity to utilize it.

Some years ago, when there were fewer graduates from high school, a B.A. was regarded as very high standard; that this is no longer so, can be substantiated by the fact that most scientific students who wish to carry on into research try to get a Ph.D., because, now there are so many people with B.A.s that, that degree alone is no indication of the brilliant student.

There has been an unfortunate tendency in the society of today to regard a B.A. as a must for people of the "upper" strata; the result of this, I feel, is that a great number of people attend the University with the express purpose of getting their degree. This is the problem that faces us; how to differentiate between the genuine students and the members of the University who regard the four years spent here, as some time for fun in a private club, which hands out a very useful scrap of parchment at the end of active membership.

This is a rather imperfect world, and the only way, worked out so far to draw some distinction between various types of "students" has been the method of oral and written examination. Until a better method is devised, the only possible chance the University has of keeping out the riff-raff (those who come here for other reasons than to obtain an education) is to erect the so-called "intellectual barriers", which everyone seems to be afraid of.

The setting up of those "Nazi" measures will never keep out the determined student, but will admittedly cut in on the "Democracy" of charlatans and fakes.

Let us do as Humpty-Dumpty did; say our words double, and make them mean what we like. Pay "B.A." double and make it stand for a recognized standard of education—not as a recognition of time served at university.

As far as Pass Arts is concerned; any course is justified by the presence of genuine students. The only kick I have against it, is that I feel that not all the members of Pass Arts can be classified as such. If these views contribute to "Nazi" attitude to education, I then will have to admit shamelessly that I must be a Nazi.

M. Shubik,
III U.C.

Paris Scholarship For Vic Graduate

Word has been received by the parents of Dick Jeanes, honour graduate, modern languages, Vic '45, that he has been awarded a French Government scholarship for study at the University of Paris.

Dick went overseas in Feb. '45, and served with Canadian Counter Intelligence. In November last he went to Paris under the auspices of Khaki University Extension, and commenced an advanced French course in the Faculty of Letters in the University of Paris. He expects to get his discharge soon in the U. K., and the scholarship will enable him to complete the course.

"FRI. NITE"

DANCE CLASS

STARTS FRIDAY

FEBRUARY 1st.

Don't miss this Opportunity to Become a Really Smart Dancer.

Phone For Information

Da Costa

STUDIOS OF DANCING

1139 Bay Street, Corner Charles

MT. 5624

Got A Notice? Send It Early!

Necessity of preparing the paper by remote control, 30 miles from the printers, makes it imperative that all possible copy be ready by 5 p.m. Coming events, notices of meetings, etc., should be delivered to the day office, Room 42-A, University College, on the afternoon of the day preceding publication.

Material of this kind delivered to the night office cannot be guaranteed a place in the paper.

Hold the sleighing party

and

DANCE

After in the clubhouse at the

TAM

O'SHANTER

GOLF CLUB

AGINCOURT

Rates - Telephone Zone 2 - 100

Please

Patronize

The People

Whose Appearance

Periodically

In This Paper

Makes Publication

Possible ...

Our Advertisers!

Art, Music and Drama

Les Precieuses de Mme Rubenstein

Modern art reflects a world in the throes of transition. What will happen now, no one can say. It was an historian describing the Roman Empire who wrote that this political structure had become so vast that there was no single mind capable of comprehending all of it; that all one man could do was to watch the wheels go round in that part of the vast machine nearest him, quite unable to grasp how or why it worked. To something similar has the megalomania of former generations brought the Western world. Our society can no longer be understood rationally. Therefore the artist who interprets the 20th century in terms of rationalized sight—the old way of representing things in three-dimensional space, anatomically drawn in accurate perspective as established in the humanistic Renaissance—is out of harmony with the spirit of his time.

In this lies a common explanation of modern art. That is why we see very little recognizable in a "modern" painting. "The world is confused," the artist explains; "but ordinary people don't realize how bewildered they are—how little they understand life . . . We, les artistes, make them realize, through our disordered canvases, their fundamental maladjustment in society . . . We make them dissatisfied with their mechanized existence . . ." Casually glancing over a newspaper, one wonders if this really is a significant contribution to the world.

Similarly, that is why you see those endless renditions of shapeless masses of lines and blotches, optimistically labelled "Standing Woman," "Head of Boy," "Still Life with Pipe," and the like. These state in effect, "The individual in a mechanized society is a complete nonentity." As the superior, detached person—l'artiste, par exemple!—looks out upon the world, he sees the individual as a dull cog in the machine—and so he records him, as part of the scenery, to be treated as impartially as rocks in a landscape, or apples in a still life . . .

It is possible to go on for hours on this subject; other people have, with many weighty tomes as the result. The foregoing reflections, and others, were occasioned by my visit to the "Helena Rubenstein Collection of Modern Paintings" at Eaton's College Street. There is fertile ground here for unlimited speculation, as for instance, whether it is legitimate to call something purporting to be a representation of confusion, a work of art, i.e., a consciously ordered creation of the human mind . . . If music without rhythm is called noise, why are lines without order not called scribbling, or colors without form called blobs? (You don't have to answer this one.

There were several pictures in the collection which I found striking. One was Salvador Dalí's "Recollections of Memory"; another, "Childhood," by Pavel Tchelitchew. Of course, in these paintings you never can be sure that anything you feel in looking at them is what the artist intended you should feel, that is, it is no art of communication . . . Nevertheless, they do evoke some emotion. Possibly what the artists hoped to convey was the usual sense of frustration and intangibility in a confused world; if so, they succeeded better in these than in most of the other works shown. But certainly, the exhibition is interesting, and well worth a visit, albeit I do think a better selection from Mme. Rubenstein's collection could have been made.

ALLAN GOWANS.

Encouraging Signs

As Dr. Arnold Walter, vice-principal of the conservatory pointed out in an interview with The Varsity, the visit of Paul Hindemith is an important event in Toronto musical circles. Bringing outstanding musical personalities to the city is bound to have a stimulating effect on the art. The news of Hindemith's lecture will be more enthusiastically greeted when it is generally learned that it is the first of a proposed series which will feature famous composers and musicologists. The next lecture is planned for late in February when Dr. Curt Sachs, noted musicologist, will be the speaker.

It will be acknowledged that such a series is long overdue. Dr. Walter is to be congratulated for inaugurating it.

This series is one of the two healthy signs which have cropped up in Toronto's musical activities. The other is the establishing of The Friends of Great Music, an organization which is sponsoring concerts of great chamber music played by the best of ensembles. These concerts help satisfy a definite need for those here who take their music seriously. Now that a start has been made, it is up to those interested to see that these ventures are successful.

It is no longer sufficient to sit back and deplore the type of musical events in Toronto. The opportunity is at hand to see that these concerts and lectures of high calibre are continued.

— P.F.

Women's Badminton

Badminton facilities for women have never been better on the campus. The gym of St. Paul's Anglican Church one block east of Yonge on Bloor, is available Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, at 2:30. Tuesday nights the Lillian Massey gym is reserved for badminton players. A negligible number of players have taken advantage of this situation. With an interfaculty meet scheduled for the last week in February, and the winners of this to represent Toronto in the Intercollegiate meet at Queen's March 1 and 2, the lack of enthusiasm bodes no good for the Blue and White standards.

There is no lack of players, but they do not seem aware that faculty tournaments must be played off in a month's time. Faculty reps should contact Jan Hughes, Mulock house of Whitney Hall, with lists of players and times available for games.

THE VARSITY

SECOND HOUR
The record program, held daily from 4.00 to 5.30 in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.
Today's program:
Mendelssohn — Overture "Hebrides".
Mozart — Piano Sonata (K570).
Borodin—On the Steppes of Central Asia.
Tchaikovsky — Symphony No. 4.

Main Library

(Continued from Page 1)
cals, and larger stacks to provide for present and future needs.

Had Humble Beginnings
It was a meagre collection of less than 4,000 volumes stood on the shelves of the first university library in 1859. This was east hall of the then newly-finished University College, an imposing structure set off in the comparative wilderness of Queen's Park. Some of these volumes, no doubt, had reposed in the second-floor room of the remodelled Upper Canada Parliament Buildings in 1843. There they had been used by the 26 undergraduates who, 18 years before, had signed the roll and donned the gown of King's College under the watchful eye of its president, Bishop John Strachan, in the opening ceremonies at the remodelled Upper Canada Parliament Buildings on Front Street.

The First Librarian
The east hall collection began under the care of the Rev. Alexander Lorimer, a Baptist minister who had managed to achieve the position in 1854 by virtue of being the brother-in-law of a member of the government of the day. In accepting the post, he ousted the university's first full-time librarian, the Rev. John W. Small, a '27 graduate of Trinity College, whose most interesting record is a letter to Lord Elgin in 1863 lamenting the fact that "a beadle should be thought worthy of a higher remuneration than a librarian."

Librarian Lorimer, clad in a stiff and formal black tail-coat, was small, slight, and consumptive. However, when a disturbance was going on in the reading room, his appearance, with even a little show of indignation, was usually enough to quiet the men.

Although he had gained his position through political patronage, Mr. Lorimer presided over his handful of books in the new, gloved U. C. library with care and efficiency, and classified the volumes by painstakingly writing the titles and authors on slips of paper and pasting them into six ponderous brown-paper scrapbooks.

Upon his death in 1869 he was succeeded by John E. Thompson, a King's College graduate, who later became insane. Professor William Henry Van der Smitten, head of the German department, who succeeded him, leaves this cryptic message about his predecessor:

"Dr. Ellis gave him some medicine, which seemed to make him violent. He was shut up in the asylum."

Accessions Early Problem
From 1874 until the year when fire gutted U. C. in 1890, Professor Van der Smitten was librarian. In spite of constant difficulties the library grew until, when destroyed entirely by the blaze, it had about 33,000 volumes. Government of the library, in the early days, as at present, was in the hands of the Senate library committee, but no appropriation was made by the Senate until the reconstruction of that body, and the addition of members elected by the graduates.

Brebnor Was Assistant
Dr. Brebnor was the last assistant of the library at the time of the fire, and afterwards assisted until his appointment as registrar in 1892, when Hugh H. Langton took charge of the newly-built library on its present site.

Although not a volume was spared by the great fire, the years following began to show the first real development in the library's history. New books streamed in from benefactors all over the world, and a new building—the nucleus of the present one—was thrown up on the banks of the Taddle, on the east side of the campus.

As university librarian, Mr. Langton helped the development through the longest period of service of any who functioned in the position. From 1900 to 1906 the number of volumes rose from about 50,000 to 83,000, and in 1912 the facilities were hopelessly inadequate, and the building was enlarged to assume its present form.

The Royal Charter for King's College, forerunner of U. C. and of the University, was granted by George IV in 1827. It permitted the foundation of a college at York, in Upper Canada.

SPORTS SCHEDULE

Week of January 28th.

HOCKEY

MON. JAN. 28
1:00	WYC vs. FOR. B.....Horkins, Farrell
4:30	MED I vs. U.C. I.....Doyle, Brownridge
TUES. JAN. 29
4:00	BUS. ADM. vs. U.C. III.....Anderson, Davison
5:00	MED III vs. DENT B.....Anderson, Davison
WED. JAN. 30
1:00	TRIN. B vs. VIC III.....Weedon, Miller
4:00	St. M. B vs. EMMAN.....Lawler, Atkinson
THURS. JAN. 31
12:00	VIC I vs. SPS I.....I. Hart, Patterson
4:00	TRIN. A vs. ST. M. A.....Street, Pelow
6:00	FOR B vs. KNOX B.....Crawford, Smith
FRI FEB. 1
1:00	SPS V vs. WYC.....Brownridge, P. Fyfe
6:00	SPS IV vs. PHARM.....Lawler, J. C. McClelland

BASKETBALL, MAJOR LEAGUE

MON. JAN. 28
1:00	JR. MED vs. JR. SPS.....Maxwell
4:00	PRE-MED. A vs. DENT. A.....Dzupino
6:30	PHE II vs. JR. U.C.B.....Swan
TUES. JAN. 29
1:00	PHARM vs. FOR. A.....Holman
4:00	SR. SPS vs. PHE I.....Lye
6:30	TRIN B vs. DENT B.....Mott
7:30	VIC III vs. ST. M. B.....Mott
WED. JAN. 30
1:00	VIC. III vs. TRIN. B.....Jackson
4:00	EMM. A vs. KNOX A.....Maxwell
THURS. JAN. 31
1:00	TRIN. A vs. JR. U.C. B.....Johnson
4:00	WYC. A vs. SPS V.....McAdam
6:30	SR. VIC vs. SE. MED.....Jackson
FRI FEB. 1
1:00	DENT. B vs. ST. M. B.....Maxwell
4:00	SR. SPS vs. JR. U.C. A.....Lye

BASKETBALL, MINOR LEAGUE

MON. JAN. 28
1:00	EMM. B vs. U.C. HOLWOOD.....Smith
4:00	IV AERO vs. II CIVIL.....Kerrison
6:30	PRE-MED. B vs. U.C. IV.....Rotman
TUES. JAN. 29
1:00	III ELEC. vs. III MED. B.....Farrell
4:00	PHE IV vs. VIC. IV.....Ewins
5:00	III CHEM. vs. VIC. V.....Ewins
6:00	MED. SER. B vs. U.C. V.....Charendoff
7:00	VIC VII vs. ST. M. D.....Charendoff
WED. JAN. 30
1:00	VIC. IX vs. PHE V.....Kennedy
4:00	VIC VIII vs. FOR. C.....Babcock
6:30	FOR E vs. I ELEC.....Strathearn
7:30	VIC XI vs. TRIN. V.....Strathearn
THURS. JAN. 31
1:00	TRIN. VI vs. VIC. XII.....McPhedran
4:30	TRIN. VII vs. ST. M. E.....Hamm
5:30	U.C. HOLWOOD vs. VIC X.....Hamm
6:30	U.C. III vs. III MED. A.....Bond
7:30	PHE III vs. II MED A.....Bond
FRI FEB. 1
1:00	I MED. vs. IV AERO.....Cochrane
4:00	VIC. V vs. V DENT.....Ewins
SAT. FEB. 2
1:00	PRE-MED. B vs. IV METAL.....Stone

Classified Advertisements

FOR SALE
Tatts: tall, slim, chest 38-40, waist 32, fine English twill, $35.; Tuxedo: medium, chest 36, waist 31, $25.; both in perfect condition, complete with shirts and vests. Private. Phone HU 9089.

FOUND
Black evening purse. Owner can have same by identifying it and paying for this ad at S.A.C. office.

FOR SALE
Evening wraps: imported white bunny, $90.; black transparent velvet, $15.00; both tailored full length, size 14-16, excellent quality and condition. Private. Phone HU 9089.

EXCHANGE
Will exchange house in Ajax for accommodation in Toronto. Must be ex-service student with family. Apply Box B, The Varsity.

LOST
One blue cloth bag, in Room 41, Physics Bldg., Fri. Jan. 18. Reward. JU 9260.

RADIO REPAIRS
For Radio Repairs at Ajax, see Gus. Room 10, Bldg. 733.

FOR SALE
Tuxedo and tails for sale. Reasonable. Also 3 dress shirts. Size 38. 5 ft. 8". Telephone RA 5740, evenings.

WANTED
Ticket for Feb. 22nd, Vic-At-Home, in exchange for ticket for Feb. 1st dance. MO. 7320, after six.

Speaking OF SPORT

EDITOR'S NOTE:—

Continuing a precedent set last year, the representative of the faculty sponsoring an Athletic Night, will be allowed S. O. S. space to give our readers a preview of the coming Saturday's events. The first of these, written by U.C.'s Jerry Rafelman, appears below. Carry on, Jerry....

WHAT'S AN ATHLETIC NIGHT?

It seems that there is a general lack of knowledge concerning these very popular Saturday night events around the campus this year. This ignorance can be found not only in the first year but also in the minds of sophomores, juniors and seniors, who ask such questions as—"Are they still having those things?" Athletic nights date back to before the war when they were every bit as elaborate as they are now, and there seems to be no doubt that they will continue ad infinitum.

WHEN, WHERE, AND WHAT?

The first "A" night of this season will take place this Saturday, January 26th, and will be held under the auspices of University College and Knox College who are acting as hosts to the twelve hundred guys and gals who will jam Hart House to partake of a very enjoyable evening.

The proceedings will start off in the Big Gym where O.A.C. tangles with the Varsity Sr. "A" team in the preliminary basketball game. Following this, the lads from Kingston (I don't mean the Pen) will take the floors against our Senior Intercollegiate Team. There will be cheer-leaders to help the boys an against our perennial Queens rivals. At half time, Charlie Zwygand and some of his most promising proteges will perform on the high bar as a preview for the coming intercollegiate Gymnastics Meet.

After the feature game, there will be dancing until 11:45 during which time several novelty features will take place. In the Upper Gym, pugilists and grapplers from O.A.C. will enter the ring against a hand-picked team from this campus. When the ring has been removed, those that prefer square-dancing will be able to wear out the soles of their shoes, under the expert direction of a caller and his Mountaineers. For those that don't care for basketball or the art of self-defence, there will be an exhibition water polo game between the Hamilton Aquatic Club and the Varsity Intercollegiate Team. After, there will be an interfaculty match between Knox and Victoria.

Between the two games and after the second game, there will be a water show put on by Gus Ryder and his Lakeshore Swimming Club. Don't miss this because Gus has promised to put on a show that will be entirely different from anything you have ever seen.

AND THAT'S NOT ALL!

In the Fencing Room, there will be movies concerning the current popular winter sports and if you feel like playing a little table tennis or table hockey, drop in the Boxing Room. The Wrestling Room will be furnished with soft furniture and dim lights to provide a spot for those couples to relax who have felt the strain of the evening's activities. Adding this all up, it looks like a pretty full night and well worth the small price of fifty cents per person. The proceeds from the night are all directed towards well-deserving charities despite the opinion of a few that the Athletic Association is getting wealthy.

TICKET SALES

No longer will tickets for these gala nights be sold at the door of Hart House. To obtain a fair representation of the students of the University, the tickets have been allocated to the various faculties participating in the Intramural Program according to the number enrolled. This means that to attend an Athletic Night it will be necessary to buy your tickets in advance from your faculty representative.

No doubt, the majority of students will be very surprised to hear this but unfortunately, there has been no previous opportunity of bringing this news to them. These nights will continue for six consecutive Saturday nights, right through until March 2nd, so if you didn't manage to secure a ducat for this Saturday, don't be too disappointed because there are five more of them.

WHAT WILL I WEAR?

With the return of the Intercollegiate competition, your hosts, U.C. and Knox want you to dress with this idea in mind. For almost the whole six years of war, our campus has been split up with inter-faculty rivalry which should now be removed on occasions such as these.

So, let's see everyone wearing a blazer, a crest or ribbons telling all and sundry that you are from the University of Toronto. As was mentioned previously, the same cheerleaders that helped you get sore throats and lungs at the football games will be present to carry on the campaign for building up the good old Rah-Rah spirit that this campus has been sadly lacking.

DON'T FORGET...

The welcome mat will be spread in front of the Hart House door at seven so try and get there early. There is lot to see and do—try and take the best advantage possible of these wonderful Saturday night institutions. See you at seven, huh?

Gordy McMillan, 5'11" of center action, is the Wolverines high scorer with 24 points to his credit, made up of 13 goals and 11 assists. He played three years as a regular at Moose Jaw high school, and has worked in the oil fields of Western Canada for the last three summers. McMillan centers Michigan's top scoring line flanked by Bill Jackson and Al Renfrew.

Face Michigan Wolves In Hot Hockey Contest

By AL CRINGAN

Two of the hottest teams in college hockey on the continent clash at Varsity Arena, tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

The Toronto Blues, with seven wins in eight starts take on the highly-rated University of Michigan Wolverines, undefeated in nine bouts this season. This is the first of four games scheduled between the two teams this year, the second slated for Saturday afternoon at the Varsity Ice Palace, and the remaining two at Ann Arbor, Michigan, on February 8 and 9.

Both high-scoring, polished squads the homesters have netted a total of 78 goals in their eight encounters while the Wolverines have tallied 69 times in their nine games. The only common opposition of the two teams so far has been Colorado College, who bowed to the Blue last December in 11-2 and 8-2 games, and who lost to Michigan by counts of 5-4 and 10-3.

On the roster of the Michigan club are seventeen men, twelve Canadians and five Americans. From the De LaSalle prep school squad of a few years back are three Toronto men with years of teamwork together, Jack MacInnes, Ross Smith and Al Renfrew. MacInnes, the team's netminder, has speed and a good pair of hands, which accounts for the team's good goals —against average in high-scoring competition.

Ross Smith is the squad's smallest player, yet he plays a fine two-way game of hockey from his defence position. Al Renfrew is a first line left winger, and in that position has collected a top total of 24 scoring points.

Sharing top scoring honors with Renfrew is Gord McMillan, of Moose Jaw, Sask., first string centerman, who has scored thirteen goals to Renfrew's ten, in amassing 24 points. Bill Jacobson of Saskatoon is the third member of Michigan's first line, and has a total of eight goals and thirteen assists to his credit.

Facing Michigan's big scoring threats will be Varsity's ace forward line of Bob Henry, Wally Halder and Gord Ball, all consistent scorers to date. The two contests over the week-end will be somewhat reminiscent of Toronto prep school hockey, when Bill Doyle and Jack Murphy, ex-St. Mike's m.c., and Dick and Gord Ball, old U.T.S. men, all of Toronto, again face their rivals from Del.

The rivalry between the Toronto and Ann Arbor teams dates back to 1937, when one game was played, and was followed up for the next two years, with a game each year. Varsity has a clean record over the visitors, with a 4-2 win in '37, a 3-2 victory the next year, and a 4-2 decision in their last game before the war curtailed further contests.

With other Canadian competition, Michigan has fared better. In six games with McMaster University from 1935-40, Mac came out with only one win and two ties, and this year, the Wolverines have beaten the Windsor Spitfires twice, the Owen Sound Juniors once, the Windsor Colonials once, Sault Ste. Marie once, De La Salle once, and Sarnia once.

Well students, you've been clamoring to see the hockey Blues in action, after they've been burning up the ice on out-of-town circuits. Here's your chance—the first home work-end of the new year. It's been a long time since intercollegiate rugby, away back last fall, and here it is, your opportunity and your duty to carry on with the rah-rahs, the songs, the little gags, and the big applause for your athletes in the Royal Blue and White, where you left off.

Wanted

Wanted! 4 divers to perform at some of the athletic nights and to travel with swimming team. Jonny Tett, former Canadian diving champ will be at the Hart House pool Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays to coach the fellows.

Bill Flanagan, who won the senior inter-faculty diving championship last year has been practising regularly. George Geary, ace gymnast of PHE is doing a little diving. There also, today was J. B. Thompson who learned to dive while serving in the R.C.A.F.

Where are all the PHE men who are supposed to be good divers?

Varsity Polo Poolsters Splash To Victory, Down Central Crew

By CRAIG CRINGAN

With a 5-4 victory, the Varsity water polo team completed a four game series with Central Y.

Wednesday night's game was the third consecutive win against Central for the Blues, the Y squad having won the first game. For this final game, both teams were strengthened by returned veterans.

Les Curry from Ajax, playing for Varsity and Brooks and Pratt of Central were members of the Central Y team which won the Dominion championship at Montreal in the 1939-40 season.

In the first period Central kept sniping away at the Varsity goal but the few shots which didn't hit the post were stopped by goal-keeper Jones. Varsity's shooting was a little more accurate with goals by Martin and Rosen in the first.

A score by Curry in the second was matched by one by Bryers a few seconds later.

In the last two periods, Bryers, Brown and Brooks scored for Central, while Curry and Arthurs netted a couple for Varsity.

Throughout the whole game there was a deal of confusion about the legality of various goals since referee Bill Tilston was the only official on a job which requires two or three men to watch things.

Frank DeMarco's coaching is largely responsible for the success of Varsity's water polo squad. Central were faster and carried the offensive for a large part of the game, but good team play coupled with fine marksmanship gave Varsity their winning edge.

Members of both the first and second teams alternated in the games with Central. At Athletic Night Jan. 26 the Firsts will play against Hamilton Aquatic. On the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 29, the second team will play at Broadview Y.

The Teams

Varsity:—Martin, Kohl, Arthurs, Jones (G), Bossin, Rosen, Lindgren, Boa, Fleet, Ballou, Morrow, Brown, Shubick and Curry.

Central:—McCallum, English, Hutton, Brown, Demeter, Brooks, Pratt, and Bryers.

Ajax Sports

Next Monday Ajax dignitaries will toss the first ball on the big basketball floor which will officially open the hoopsters schedule on their campus. The scope of the program may be illustrated by the fact that the girls will be encouraged to get into the swing of things. All teams are to have sweaters eventually. The program will concentrate on team competition rather than individual sports with a view to building up a high morale.

Melodious music is to liven up the pleasure skating rink. The gals should really get a workout considering the number of eager beavers who will want their company to go with the music. Facilities for sharpening skates are on the way, so don't be discouraged about those first few falls, lads and lassies.

A young actor by the name of Raymond Massey played Marchbanks in the Hart House Theatre's 1922 production of Bernard Shaw's "Candida."

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY:—

1:00	SPS V vs. KNOX B.....	Doyle, Farrell
4:00	TRIN. B vs. EMMAN.....	Lawler, Patterson
6:00	SPS IV vs. DENT B.....	Smith, Brownridge

BASKETBALL MAJOR:—

1:00	DENT A vs. SPS III.....	Johnson
4:00	SPS V vs. EMMAN A.....	Stone
6:30	PHARM. A vs. SPS IV.....	Stone

BASKETBALL MINOR:—

1:00	PHE III vs. IV ELEC.....	Voight
4:30	I DENT vs. III ELEC.....	Peacock
5:30	III MED. A vs. IV MECH.....	Peacock
6:30	II DENT vs. III MECH.....	Mackan
7:30	WYC. B vs. VIC XI.....	Mackan

WATER POLO MEETING TODAY 1:00 p.m. (Re interfaculty series)

SKI MEETING—STANDING COMMITTEE—TODAY 1:00 p.m.

(Re interfaculty series)

INTRAMURAL MEETING TODAY 5:00 p.m. (Re intramural points)

these four promise to make things more than interesting for their better-known rivals.

News of an interfaculty ski meet scheduled for February 10 reached us via homing pigeon... which we immediately dispatched to the gals interested in the ski racket... with the notice that there are no trophies at stake, the purpose is to provide a source of practice and entertainment... Judy Rowe would like all Athletic reps to send entries to her by the Wednesday before the meet... The Place?... Oh, yes, Newmarket.

ATTENTION AJAX STUDENTS

Two hundred and fifteen tickets for the Athletic Night Saturday January 26 have been reserved for Ajax students. Tickets, no more than two per person, may be procured at the Athletic Office in the Recreation Hall up to 8 p.m. Friday night.

• Sportswoman •

By Polly Mutz

AN INVITATION TO SKI...

Four picked skiers from the Mt. University Ski Club are in for a busy weekend. For the last few days the foursome has been readying itself for the venture with wax, elbow grease and a handful of hours of practising. On Saturday, these four leave for Collingwood at the special invitation of the Toronto Ski Club to participate in the extravaganza scheduled for Sunday.

The four representatives will compete with the top snow scutlers in the region and expect to run into a bundle of competition in the well-publicised Wurtle twins of Montreal and the Laurentians who have proved habitual winners in both downhill and slalom competition.

A resident of Collingwood heads the Varsity contingent in the person of Sue McFaul who will double as guide for her three companions, Jan Rutherford, ex-member of the Glebe Collegiate Ski team, Helen Proudfoot, ex-Navy and Judy Rowe, head of the women's division of the campus club.

Although Peg Mann will not be a member of the team,

Talking Shop

WE THINK YOU SHOULD KNOW about Miss Clenman . . . she's one of those conscientious, careful hair stylists who really likes her work, and she actually enjoys going to your own house, or room, and doing a cold wave or a machineless on your head while you work. Price for the cold wave is twelve and fifty, of the machineless, six dollars and up. Miss Clenman brings her own electric dryer, and you'd be surprised how comfortably the complete job is done, and guaranteed to last six to eight months. Just phone LA 2671 for an appointment.

GILLESPIE'S AT 70 Wellington Street West, like to sell you the kind of coat that advertises your own good judgment . . . whether in supple black Persian, or in one of those new sublimated muskrats with turn-back cuffs and box backs, or one of those classics of the campus, a rich, sturdily furred coon coat, a fur coat from Gillespie's is a "quality bearing" fur coat with a future career as well as a very satisfactory "Winter, 1946."

ALWAYS THE BEST THING YOU CAN WEAR is the only thing you do wear . . . no doubt you've discovered that no matter how many possess the one you'll choose to wear day after day is the one that is definitely top quality. Which is why we think shopping at Joan Rigby's is good business. It's there that you'll purchase a dress which will be that perennially chosen one from among the others, the one outstanding in workmanship, in fit and in that certain quality which declares a good background.

NICE TO HAVE AROUND . . . you don't have to be a cripple to appreciate the value of a bottle of Sloan's Liniment as a regular item in the medicine cabinet. Athletes know the value of a quick patting on of Sloan's after exercise when the muscles begin to complain with that first warning of discomfort which is the result of overstrain. Sloan's works by stimulating through counter irritation, bringing blood supplies to the trouble-area. This new supply of blood immediately gets to work driving out congested poisons, then nature does the healing.

WOMEN WANT TO BE BRIGHT, it's true, but not, very definitely, on the tip of the nose! THREE FLOWERS FACE POWDER clings for hours and is colour blended in subtly smart shades designed to harmonize with any costume you may choose. It helps achieve that suavely moulded look demanded of well-dressed women, by subduing highlights, unobtrusively blending in with its background. Freshly fragrant, THREE FLOWERS never "cakes" . . . makes constant touching-up unnecessary because it is gently clinging.

THE BARE-HEADED FASHION makes it essential to concentrate on a well groomed head. Hair health is an important matter with the Antoine experts, who realize that no amount of styling can quite overcome the habit of an unhealthy, dispirited head of hair. A reconditioning treatment now and again is advisable, and in mid-winter it is especially important because natural vitamins are lacking in much of the food, and the hair is apt to reflect the general rundown condition. Next time you're downtown, have an Antoine check-up on the health of your hair. Holt Renfrew's Third Floor.

WE DON'T KNOW HOW they do it, what with the general scarcity of original blouses around town, but the Evangeline Shops have collected some of the gayest, brightest and most original shirtwaists these eyes have looked on since back before the war. Plaids and plains in gingham and crepes and new fabrics we haven't seen anywhere . . . any of 'em ready, willing and able to aid and abet one of those Evangeline pastel suits to dictate fashion news. Evangeline suits are in a variety of the trim new styles you're looking for just now, pastel suits particularly important.

THERE ARE IMPROVEMENTS ON THE WAY! But that does not mean you are not made comfortable and given a home-like welcome at The Hearsthouse, where such things as sparkling linen and table appointments are important and

The Russians Say "Gardez!" Otherwise Chess The Same

By ROSS McLEAN

In cloistered quarters opposite the Debates Room in Hart House meet the chess fiends of the University of Toronto for their daily mental stimulus—a game of chess.

Here gather representatives of all faculties to share their common interest. Classics students, Physicists, embryo doctors, mathematicians, dentists and engineers assemble almost daily for a game whose playing time varies from 10 minutes to 60 and more.

Staff Photographer Ralph Jones and I caught F. R. Wilson of S.P.S. and Leon Masourel, of Medicine, in contest together. We were seeking picture studies of intense concentration. Neither could oblige.

"The easiest way to play chess," said Electrical Engineer Wilson, "is to relax. Only the final minutes of the game are tense." Wilson has been playing chess for three years. His uncle taught him. Now he regularly beats his teacher. A moral somewhere there?

Medsman Masourel, in his first medical year and aiming to become a lab technician, began chess at the age of six in Russia. He came to Canada in 1930. Did he have to unlearn the Russian style of chess to understand the Canadian? No, there was not that much difference.

I seemed to remember a philosophy professor illustrating some vague lesson in logic by claiming that the Russian rules for chess were entirely different to ours.

Only difference, Masourel told us, is that when the Russian chess player attacks a Queen he warns: "Gardez!"

It seemed very courteous of the Russian chess player, we said.

The game is more popular in Russia, Leon said. "It is very stimulating," he thought. "Good for the mind, Good for M. & P.'s. I don't know about Meds."

Neither did we.

Secretary Quits Hart House Becomes Fine Art Student

At the end or last month, W. B. Burwell, for the past three years secretary to the Warden of Hart House resigned. A familiar figure about Hart House, his absence will be noticed by those who participated in the various activities provided by the House.

Although a "firm disbeliever in all forms of exercise", he is an energetic photographer, inhabitant of the dark-room, and habitue of the rifle range where he shoots with revolver, rifle, bow and arrow. His interest in music and art led him to attend every recital and art class he could.

For the past two years, Mr. Burwell has been attending lectures leading to an M.A. degree, and is now putting the finishing touches to a thesis on Joseph Conrad's short stories. He is continuing his lectures and taking a course in Fine Art. Next fall, he hopes to enroll in another university for a three-year concentrated post-graduate course.

I am particularly interested in art gallery administration," he said, "and would like to hold that kind of position. An art gallery should really mean something in the general life of a community. I think there is a great need for increased interest in art in this country."

Mr. Burwell is rarely seen without being enfolded in the billowing clouds of a pipe. "I have a modest collection of pipes," he admitted, "of about thirty. I guess I smoke about four different pipes a day and use around half a pound of tobacco a week." Prize of the collection is an old 20-inch clay churchwarden pipe. Next in line comes a very large, well-cured calabash which he picked up in a little downtown shop.

Mr. Burwell has a car. Around Hart House this is more legend than fact. "When he goes out in it," remarked one member of the staff, "he never knows when he'll be back. He is always very optimistic though."

"It has a clutch," mused Mr. Burwell, "and a brake too. But I don't use that very much wouldn't want to wear it out."

Wanted

One caller wanted with a strong voice for square dancing at the Athletic Nights. This call is urgent, apply immediately at the Athletic Office. Good money; no references required.

Editorial Encores

Propose Insurance Scheme Aid Returned Student-Vets

From the Boston University News comes a quoteworthy editorial, entitled "True Life Insurance".

"It has been said that the true function of human society is to 'release and employ the talents of all its citizens.' The obvious truths in that statement are well demonstrated by the attempts our government is making towards rehabilitation and educating veterans of the present war.

It cannot be denied that our government is doing its best to "release and employ" the abilities of servicemen, in spite of individual injustices and inevitable red tape. Even if present efforts seem inadequate at times, they nevertheless represent a far cry from earlier methods of "rewarding" our fighters in the days when getting discharged meant no more than the payment of a petty bonus or perhaps a pension.

What we are now giving our ex-servicemen in the form of training, we owe in a way to all our youth, the chance for adequate schooling and planned opportunity. That is what the phrase . . . "all its citizens" really means.

It is not enough to raise the "average" level of education, or to single out exceptional students for scholarship rewards, for by this action we shall certainly not be utilizing all the potentialities that lie hidden in all our citizens.

Perhaps, by taking a cue from the veterans, we could institute a system of public education and training by means of which students could, with government assistance, realize their personal abilities and utilize them for their own advancement as well as that of the nation.

The major obstacles in the path of such a system would undoubtedly come from groups or individuals whose financial and political schemes necessitate keeping a large part of the population in relative ignorance and poverty. They are the only ones who stand to lose anything by such a system.

The costs of financing it would be infinitely smaller than the cost of wars, and perhaps it will pay even greater dividends in the future when wars may be avoided as a partial result of such training.

Even if nothing so Utopian should result from it, it will still be a worthwhile project. Only by making it possible for all of our citizens to discover and realize their latent abilities shall we be able to function as a living, democratic society should."

NEWMAN CLUB

The discussion of the Encyclical against Nazism will be continued at a meeting of the Newman Club today at 7.30 p.m.

Blouse Success

by "Magee"

Soft pastel flower tones that whisper of Spring . . . this new "Magee" blouse in jersey crepe with its fine detail, jewel neckline and short sleeves will capture your fancy and add sophisticated charm to your suit or separate skirt. Available in all the lovely Spring shades—also white, black, brown and navy. Sizes 14 to 20.

$3.98

Sorry, No Mail Orders

Evangeline

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 751 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pape

In Hamilton—King and John Sts.

Education Will Solve Our Racial Problems

By MARTHA SCHOBBER

Last night at Central Commerce High School, Miss Margaret Gould, or the Toronto Star, introduced Dr. Gene Weltfish, of the Department of Anthropology in Columbia University, and co-author of the pamphlet "The Races of Mankind," to a public audience.

"You know that the people of Europe are worried because the Japs and the Germans have been spreading true horror stories about what happens to the Negroes in the U.S." said Dr. Weltfish.

"After travel in the 16th century began, people started to classify man into three groups: White, black and yellow. But that is all the classifying that can be done because otherwise all men are equal. They have the same length intestines, the same number of bones in their bodies, and you can find men with group B blood among the Zulu and the Eskimo as among ourselves, so the skin colour is still the main problem," said Dr. Weltfish. "All pigments in the skin are made up of two substances. Except for the Albinos which occur in all lands and races, everybody has them in different proportions. Thus even physically there is no difference."

"Can they all think the same? Fourteen scientists dissected brains of all different races, and when they were through they could not tell what brain belong to whom. Intelligence tests have been given to many representative groups of all races to find out whether there is an inborn something that separates men. As it was found, this is not so, and the great influence of environment was not and could not be measured. It is not race but education that counts."

"Even nutrition can have a major effect on intelligence indirectly, since healthily fed children are able to control their thoughts more and think better. This is one of the greatest problems that starving Europe has to face nowadays. Teachers are complaining that there is no point in teaching children who are physically unable to think."

Dr. Weltfish told her audience how in New York every year the University gave I.Q. tests to all the children and on that basis selected

(Continued on Page 3)

Vic-sens Seek Men

"We need men," said Doreen Campbell, Associate President of the class of '47 at Vic, "hundreds of them!"

She was discussing the coming class party Saturday night in Burwash Hall for the senior years of Victoria College. The main problem at the moment is the distinct dearth of men in the senior years and so she invited all ex-servicemen on the campus.

Dancing will start at 8:30 in Burwash Hall with recorded music and refreshments.

Bobbie Burns Day Returns Hoot Lad, Let's Eat Haggie

By GEORGE LEGRIS

It is often said by elderly Scots that their country is so poor because all its natives have gone to other lands and have developed them.

Whether this is right or not, good Scotchmen in Nurnberg, Germany, will have a new contact with the old homeland tomorrow, complete with haggis and pipers. This festive time occasion is brought about by the annual recurrence of the Great Bobbie Burns' birthday, every Jan. 25.

To help themselves celebrate, officials connected with the War Gull Trials have arranged to have a load of haggis flown to Germany, where it will be piped into the city of Nurnberg by two pipers of the Gordon Highlanders.

Good Scotchmen at the University are probably getting together their stocks of haggis and MacNeish's divine dew, in preparation for the celebration of this signal event.

Despite complaints from other nationalities backed by some members of the Faculty of Household Science, state that haggis is perfectly harmless if you have been brought up on it.

Dr. M. Doreen Smith, Associate

Distribute Handbook

The Students' Handbook for the Ajax Division is now ready for distribution and copies may be obtained at the S.A.C. office in Ajax.

The book a 102 page equivalent of the Queen's Park Handbook, is complete with messages from President Smith, Dean Young of S.P.S., J. R. Gilley, Director of Ajax, and Professor W. J. T. Wright, Supervisor of Studies.

In addition there is a map of the grounds, information on campus activities such as the S.A.C., The Varsity, Hart House and Athletics. There is also diary space and a calendar of Ajax activities.

Ajax Stone's Throw Away As Compared to Guelph

Ajax is not the only microcosm removed from the parent campus; there is another educational unit connected with the University, located at a distance of about 50 miles from the city. Guelph Agricultural College, closely affiliated with the University of Toronto, is represented in the Senate by its President and two elected graduates.

Each year an outline for the four year curriculum in agriculture, and requirements for admission to First Year are approved of by the Senate and Board of Governors in Toronto. Examiners, as well as results, are passed by the Senate. The course embraces lectures, laboratory and experimental work, supplemented by practical experience acquired during summer months.

Relatively few girls are proceeding to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. MacDonald Hall in Guelph formerly provided the women with a one or two year course in Household Economics, after which they could continue in the Toronto Faculty of Household Science course.

Graduates often return to farms to do practical work, many teach in secondary schools, and some act as agricultural representatives in the counties. This position involves helping farmers of each district with new methods, crop rotation, and community activities.

Extensive residence accommodation is available to the students at Guelph in the building erected by the Provincial Government, as well as an earlier structure providing dining and recreational facilities.

The course has recently been greatly overcrowded with returning servicemen, having a much larger enrolment than the Faculty of Forestry, for example, on this campus. It would seem, then, that these young men and women consider agriculture to be a worthwhile career, and "back to the farm" a road with a bright future.

Wanted

Students to assist in unloading Varsity from delivery truck each morning and for Varsity delivery from Students' Council office. One to two hours work each morning. Apply in person to Students' Administrative Council office, Hart House.

Industry Narrows Architect's Scope

The divisions between art and industry are gradually disappearing according to Serge Chermayeff, Professor of Architecture at Brooklyn College. Mr. Chermayeff believes that things that are produced today by industrial processes cannot be the product of a single mind or even of a single group.

In housing, industrial production is taking over the main part of the field, one which used to belong to architects and design. Mass production and new electrical and mechanical appliances have narrowed the scope for architects.

Mr. Chermayeff, a naturalized British subject, was born in Russia. He was educated in England, Germany and France and won prizes in painting, drawing and sculpture. After practising architecture in England and the United States until 1942, he was appointed to his present position, and was also made Consultant on Industrial Design and Architecture at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

On Saturday evening Mr. Chermayeff will speak on "Industry, Architecture and Design" at Convocation Hall. The Professor of Architecture and Chairman of Design will address a joint meeting of the Royal Canadian Institute and the Art Gallery of Toronto.

EXTEND LOAN

The Emergency Loan Fund of the Students' Administrative Council for ex-servicemen students has been extended to the Ajax Division according to an announcement from E. A. MacDonald, General Secretary Treasurer of the S.A.C.

The Undergraduate Newspaper

The VARSITY

VOL. LXV—No. 68

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Friday, January 25, 1946

NATIONAL UNITY MUST FOR PARLEY

AJAX CHESS

Ajax division students interested in forming a Chess Club modeled on the Queens Park Club, may leave their names with the Students' Administrative Council in the Administration Building, Ajax. Watch for a notice of the first meeting.

Jolliffe Tells C.C.F. Diversity Is Hurdle

Says Commitments Up Taxes

E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the Ontario C. C. F. party said yesterday to the U. of T. C.C.F. Club that success of the Dominion-Provincial Conference depends on "whether the people of Canada want the country to be a nation or a league of nations."

E. B. JOLLIFFE

Complete centralization would be impossible, he said, because of the racial, geographic, and economic diversity of Canada. "Our country can not expect to make progress unless it has some semblance of national unity. The solution of our constitutional difficulties will not bring a solution to all our problems."

Explaining how the Dominion Government had proposed that the provinces should surrender their taxation powers provided that the Dominion accept responsibility for welfare, education and health. He said that the present proposals call for the Dominion Government to collect the aforementioned taxes, and pay the provinces a twelve-dollar subsidy on a per capita basis. The Gross National Product should be increased, and the subsidies would be correspondingly raised.

"The C.C.F.," he said, "look the stand that the provinces should surrender their taxation powers provided that the Dominion accept responsibility for welfare, education and health." He said that the present proposals call for the Dominion Government to collect the aforementioned taxes, and pay the provinces a twelve-dollar subsidy on a per capita basis. The Gross National Product should be increased, and the subsidies would be correspondingly raised.

It was his opinion that because of Canada's U.N.O. and U.N.R.R.A. commitments, federal taxation cannot be appreciably reduced, and unless the Dominion-Provincial Governments reach an agreement, Canadian citizens will be paying

(Continued on Page 5)

SKI BUS

The ski bus will be running to the varsity ski club, Sunday, 9 a.m. from Hart House. Tickets to be purchased at Athletic Office.

School's Social Life Strains Strategist Belshaw

By BOB COOKE

"It's just one thing after another," says Whitey Belshaw describing his work as First Vice-President of the Engineering Society. "There was School Nite, the At-Home and other dances to be arranged."

"When I was elected last spring I promised the fellows that I would get a band from the States for the At-Home," he explained when he asked him the reason for having Jerry Wald at the dance. "Ever since last spring I have been trying to arrange for a good orchestra from the States. I had a lot of help from Bill White, manager of the Kingsway, but I wasn't able to hire the Royal York for any definite date until we were sure of the orchestra. Another problem about arranging for the American orchestra was that we had to work it so that we got them when they were on tour. It costs less that way. That's about all there was to the At-Home, arranging this, arranging that and then arranging something else."

"School Nite was something different," he said, changing the subject. "I was chairman as well as Musical Director, but fortunately I had a good committee which took care of arranging the dance and allowed me to spend most of my time arranging the songs and getting an orchestra together. The band wasn't hard to get. We had some fellows who were in last year's band, and they knew other fellows who could play."

"The score wasn't hard either. Every year there is some catchy tune which just seems to fit into the show, this year it was Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. The fellows who sang the parody, 'The Four Professors', wrote the script themselves."

"The song 'Five Guys Named Mo' was just a slight change in the arrangement of the record and the song, 'The Bags of Baghdad', was a parody on the 'Sheik of Araby'. I'm Yours For the Asking' was original."

"Even writing 'I'm Yours For the Asking' wasn't difficult. I knew the script and what was wanted in the way of songs so the lyrics were easy. The music—well every modern song is made of certain chords in a certain pattern. If you know your chords you can change the pattern and you have a new song."

"Those were the big things this year, but I have to arrange for the orchestras used in all dances except the year parties."

Just then he was interrupted by a chap who asked, "Will Glunby have eleven or thirteen men at the Junior Soph-Frosh?"

"Thirteen," replied Whitey and as the chap turned and left he said to us, "You see what I mean. Right now I am trying to arrange a really tremendous Cast Party for those who worked on School Nite."

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a

University College MI. 6611

Business Office MI. 6221

Night Office MI. 8405

Editor-in-Chief... W. Hugh Kenner, B.A. Sports Editor... Bredin Stapells, 476
 Women's Editor... Peggy Bates, 476 Assistant... Don Mason, 476
 Managing Editor... Wally Belfry, 478 Women's Sports Editor Polly Muts, 476
 Make-up Editor... Peg Wallace, B.A. C.U.P. & Exchange
 Rewrite Editor... John Rooke, 477 Editor... Barbara Jones, B.A.
 News Editor... George Forster, 476 Assistant... Dorothy Harley, 476
 Assistant... Blanche Stanley, 476 Art, Music, and Drama
 Feature Editor... E. Ross McLean, 477 Editor... Philip Freedman, 476
 Assistant... Reg Herman, 476 Staff Photographer... Ralph Jones, 477
 Business and Advertising Manager... E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Friday, January 25, 1946

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

In pursuance to various features appearing on the editorial page of your recently expurgated paper, I would like to give you some of my impressions on your exciting, thrilling and thoroughly nerve-racking serial based on my recent novel "Finnegans Wake".

As you undoubtedly know, copyright laws exist in this country and all parts of our great Commonwealth (with the exception of that green-hued land of Saints and Snakes.) But, I digress.

Allow me, Mr. Editor, to put in a formal protest, not on your well-known editorial policy, not on your new format, but (and I emphasize) on this flagrant plagiarism of my best-selling novel.

Despite the fact that I wrote the thing, and that I proof read it personally because Messrs. J. Cape were unable to understand it, I cannot recall any of those most amazing and ubiquitous characters whom you insist wander through the pages of my opus.

Also, most revered Mr. Editor, despite the fact that I have recently read the novel again five times in a row I simply cannot recall ever having had anything to do with Mary Cassidy et al.

This may be something of a minor record in the literary world, because some of my correspondents at your University tell me that their English professors in Pass Arts First year insist it is almost impossible to plough through my book without bogging down at every page. This is a downright fallacy. I can tell you offhand of two friends of mine who are quite proud of having finished three chapters in five weeks. So put that in your linotype and set it.

I feel therefore that it is not the least bit sporting, not even cricket, as Warden Hardbreath would say in his pseudo-Texan drawl, for your otherwise enchanting paper to continue printing this parody on my most profound novel which I insist has a most obvious message hidden in it somewhere, although I can't recollect exactly where.

You may henceforth consider yourself warned that the next infringement of my rights as provided under our new constitution of 1937 will lead to trouble. Consider yourself sat upon and remember that the next time you will be looking down the business end of a summons.

Yours truly,

"JAMES JOYCE."

P.S. I MEAN BUSINESS.

P.P.S. Best regards to all your staff.

Simon.

PPPS. I did not publish this book.

Jonathan Cape.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity:—

Dear Sir:

We feel, Mr. Editor, that we have a legitimate complaint. A complaint which centres around the reporting of the recent Hart House Debate. We feel that an injustice has been done to speakers of both sides.

We would support this contention with the following remarks:—

First, we would point out that we feel that it is useless to debate unless we define the terms of the resolution we are debating. This would have been done regardless of any editorials, so we feel that the undue assumption of responsibility of the Varsity for the trend of the debate last night was unwarranted.

Second, attempts were made by both sides to ascertain what exactly were the rights of management. We feel that the position of the affirmative was misrepresented by the paragraph read:—

"Questioned by The Varsity after the debate, negative speakers felt that their victory had not been won within the stated terms of the motion. They felt a more complete picture of what the house endorsed would be given by substituting the word 'share' for the word 'usurp'."

This comment alone, without any statement from the affirmative to (Continued on Page 8)

"That's Cant, Sir!"

The conversation recorded below took place on May 15, 1783, which is no reason, Progressivists to the contrary, why it may not hold a moral for 1946.

BOSWELL: I wish much to be in Parliament, Sir.

JOHNSON: Why, Sir, unless you come resolved to support any administration, you would be the worse for being in Parliament, because you would be obliged to live more expensively.

BOSWELL: Perhaps, Sir, I should be the less happy for being in Parliament. I would never sell my vote, and I should be vexed if things went wrong.

JOHNSON: That's cant, Sir. It would not vex you more in the House than in the gallery; public affairs vex no man.

BOSWELL: Have they not vexed yourself a little, Sir? Have you not been vexed by all the turbulence of this reign, and by that absurd vote of the House of Commons, "That the influence of the Crown has increased, is increasing and ought to be diminished?"

JOHNSON: Sir, I have not slept an hour less, nor eat an ounce less meat. I would have knocked the factious dogs on the head, to be sure, but I was not vexed.

BOSWELL: I declare, Sir, upon my honor, I did imagine I was vexed, and took a pride in it; but it was, perhaps, can't, for I own I neither ate less nor slept less.

JOHNSTON: My dear friend, clear your mind of can't. You may talk as other people do: you may say to a man, "Sir, I am your most humble servant." You are not his most humble servant. You may say, "These are bad times. It is a melancholy thing to be reserved at such times." You don't mind the times. You tell a man, "I am sorry you had such bad weather the last day of your journey, and were so much wet." You don't care six-pence whether he is wet or dry. You may talk in this manner; it is a mode of talking in society; but don't think foolishly.

It was Johnson's claim that the hardships of life are private and domestic; and that man's infelicity does not at all depend on the whims of kings, the follies of parliaments, or any of those other matters of so much concern to men.

He who concerns himself with affairs of government, Johnson would have said, does so not because affairs of government have the power to make him happy or unhappy, but for some other reason. If a man says the king has power to vex him, his mind is stuffed with cant.

But Johnson does not recommend apathy. Although he was "not vexed" by a parliamentary vote which he considered scurrilous, he "would have knocked the factious dogs on the head."

Why? Because he had a strict regard for truth, which is the conformity of the mind with the object, and for morality, which is the conformity of what men's actions are with what they ought to be.

He believed it was in the nature of things that there should be a political hierarchy descending from the king; and hence that any attempt by parliamentary dogs to overthrow the hierarchy was to be resisted with cudgels.

His criterion of political action was moral; his motive in political criticism was moral. Neither was utilitarian.

One may disagree with Johnson's notion of political morality; but his attribution of all clear-headed political and social action to a moral motive is difficult to deny.

To political reformers Johnson's dictum is at once a slam and a boost. It is a slam because most of them claim an infinite personal concern with the government of nations; they claim to lose sleep over the plight of the betyrannized, and to have lost appetite for a hearty breakfast from brooding on the injustice of an order-in-council. To which Johnson retorts, "That's cant, Sir!"

But the motive to which he attributes their concern is infinitely higher than the motive they themselves would urge; for he says in effect that they are actuated by a love of truth and justice.

It is against truth and justice that the charge of cant is commonly hurled. There is no surer proof of Johnson's greatness, and of his faith in the nobility of man, than his hurling of that charge at everything else.

The New Way to look in formals.... the new way for formals to look.
 from the Younger Set fashions at

LISTEN TO

"Canada in the Modern World"

by Professor Bertie Wilkinson, M.A., Ph.D.

Dept. of History, University of Toronto

CFRB — Every Sunday — 2:15 p.m.

Copies of Talks available on request

Sponsored on behalf of the Optical Profession by

IMPERIAL OPTICAL COMPANY

Pioneer Canadian Optical Manufacturers

smoke the mild
cigarette

Hart House Bulletin Board

Midday Sing Song.

There will be a sing song in the east common room at 1.30 p.m. today.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mina Grant, soprano, with Henry Attack at the piano, will give a recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. today. Members of Hart House are invited to attend.

Visitors' Sunday

Next Sunday, 27th January, will be a Visitor's Day at Hart House, when members may bring friends, including ladies, to see the building between 2 and 4 in the afternoon. The Annual Exhibition of Photographs will be on view in the art gallery. The whole building will be open for inspection. Members are asked to have their membership cards to show at the door.

Democracy "At Stake" Cup Conference Says

Kingston, Jan. 25.—CUP—Immediate steps to test the allegiance of Japanese Canadians and to guarantee "full rights of citizenship" have been urged by the regional conference of the Canadian University Press meeting here.

Means of ascertaining the true allegiance of such Japanese Canadians as are in possession of Canadian citizenship through naturalization were proposed in the unanimously supported resolution. "Judicially conducted tribunals" could be instituted, the Conference felt, to ensure loyal Canadians of Japanese birth of complete citizenship.

"In full realization of the fact that Canada has recently concluded a war in defense of the principles of democracy and considering that the declared policy of the government in deporting some 10,000 Japanese origin is directly in conflict with these principles which we have professed to defend," the Conference resolved to "voice our strong disapproval of such a policy and to urge government and student action to suspend the deportation."

Regarding Jap-Canadians who are Canadian citizens by birth, the Conference urged that they be given all rights of citizenship "without further question" unless conduct during the past war has definitely indicated allegiance with Japan.

Immediate consideration of the facts was demanded by the resolution passed by the attending CUP members. "The principles of democratic freedom are at stake and should be safe-guarded before further transgressions occur."

Education Will

(Continued from Page 1)

the, so to speak, geniuses. Many people, she went on, received a great surprise to see how many coloured children were chosen.

The man and woman of today is frustrated, angry and afraid," stated Dr. Weltfish emphatically. "This is a reaction of the war mostly, and a fear the jobs they are holding. People who have a lot less more than the people who have little, yet they are both worried. This is a vicious circle. These small worries spread from our everyday world to the Japanese, to the Germans, and result in atomic bombs."

As to what could be done to remedy this sorry situation, the only solution that Dr. Weltfish had to offer was education, education to make the people understand each other. She told of the work of the Anti-Discrimination Committee which was trying to abolish racial and religious segregation in employment and in schools. Though this committee has no official power, it is doing wonderful work. "The group-by-group separation is a very serious thing and creates great race and prejudice problems. Common housing, radio and newspapers should work together. A sound unification and uniformity branch will act separately from the Toronto Society, but it will follow the constitution we have here and we will give them any help we can," he continued. "We will arrange for the speakers for Engineering Society Meetings. If any activities are curtailed because of their location we will try to arrange substitutes."

The store which has been equipped with $40,000 dollars worth of supplies and which is twice as big as the store in Toronto, will be turned over to them. They will receive all the profit from the operation of the store, and in the first three days over $16,000 was spent on equipment by the students."

"Later in the year members of the Ajax executive will make a trip to Toronto where they will hold a joint meeting with us and at the same time see the labs and buildings here."

er, it is doing wonderful work.

"The group-by-group separation is a very serious thing and creates great race and prejudice problems. Common housing, radio and newspapers should work together. A sound unification and uniformity in the avenue of communication should be made."

The first question that came up after Leon Wigdor, President of the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers, had opened up the free discussion time, was the one of intermarriage.

"Intermarriage is a completely personal problem," stated Dr. Weltfish. "The issue does not lie in the difference of color or of race, but in the willingness of the parents to take care of their children. Though 29 States out of the 48 in the United States have forbidden it by law, scientists have no biological objections to it. Love knows no boundaries of colour."

"The question about the feelings of the ex-servicemen was treated quite lightly by the speaker. Servicemen, she claimed, were beginning to act just like civilians, though some developed a broader view. For instance, Elliot Roosevelt organized a common housing layout at the head of which is a Porto Rican negro."

"Temperament is not an inherited feature nor is it a dark secret to the scientist. Education and experience have a lot to do with it," claimed Dr. Weltfish.

"Fascism is not imported but is in every one of us to a certain degree. It is an inborn something that propaganda from here and abroad excites and brings out," was another reply.

"Our educational system has left out quite a bit of important material. Experimental science has introduced many different methods of racial education, to get it to the young people at the same time as to the old ones, in churches and schools and Y's. This is just like an octopus which must be hit in all parts simultaneously."

Whither The Clock Chime? Reporter Love Inquires.

By SYDNEY LOVE

Professors and graduate students will remember the day when the clock in the Hart House tower used to toll out the hours. Just why it stopped ringing has been a puzzle to many a staff member. Some said it annoyed them; some thought it needed repairs, while still others could not remember ever hearing it at all.

"On a clear night it could be heard up on Bloor Street," said Mr. Cowan, Hart House Comptroller, "but the bells couldn't keep the same time as the clock. Finally, after much confusion about the time, the bell was stopped and has remained so for the last four or five years."

The carillon and clock were given by the Alumni Federation in memory of U. of T. graduates and undergraduates who fell in the war of 1914-1918. They were dedicated on the event of the centenary of the University, Oct. 6, 1927.

There are twenty-three bells, ranging in weight from 140 to 7,728 lbs. They were made in Croyden,

England, and cost over $35,000. An interesting feature of the carillon is that a portion of the original bell that hung in the old tower of U.C., which was melted in the Great Fire which destroyed the building in 1890, was taken to Croyden by one of our graduates and cast into one of the carillon bells.

The room directly over the arch in the tower is called the Muniment Room. Entering by the door closest to Hart House, one climbs up three flights of narrow stairs and finds himself in a tall and almost bare cathedral-like room. From the ceiling hang two old flags, aged and tattered. In the middle of the room is a solitary stand, holding the Roll of Service for the First World War. On the walls are various memorial tablets. For those interested in seeing what a Muniment is, the key may be obtained from the Hall Porter in Hart House.

Mrs. Campbell of the Alumni Federation informs us that it is possible to see the bell chamber when the bells are being played. They can be heard on Convocation Day in June and often on Sundays.

Like Orphan Annie's Dog; Snake's Charms Recited

Languishing in a dark cage with four of its companions, is the largest Garter snake ever captured. It is not in Asia, not in Europe, not even in the United States. This fifty-inch monster is now living in our own Royal Ontario Museum.

The previous record length for a snake was a mere 44 inches, but Gerry, that's its name, is really king-size as far as garter snakes go. Gerry has an inch-long head topping off a long body of 1 1/2 inches in diameter. With his three sparkling yellow stripes, attendants say that many of the city's fashionable ladies look upon him with an envious eye since he would make a beautiful garter-skin belt. But, say those same attendants, Gerry is not yet slated for the executioner's block. The real reason is that they like him and are fondly attached to him like Little Orphan Annie is attracted to Sandy.

E. B. S. Logier, who looks after reptiles and amphibians at the Museum, says that Gerry Garter is now 18 years old. Although he is now approaching middle age, they have not yet prepared the standard pickle-jar for him.

"Snakes are mature at length of 24 inches," Mr. Logier admitted candidly, "and they keep on growing at the rate of 5% a year.

Through this indirect method we found out Gerry's real age because he is quite difficult to handle when alive. Very few snakes can be thus measured because they are in a constant state of constriction."

Gerry was found and captured by Sprague Troyer of Oak Ridge, Ontario, at the beginning of October, 1945. Mr. Troyer also supplies Gerry's food which consists mostly of pretty green live frogs.

"We are slowly training Gerry to eat dead frogs," Mr. Logier continued, "because we have a lot of trouble transporting the living animals into the city. Gerry's roommates, on the other hand, seem to enjoy fresh liver."

"How many times a week do we feed him? Well, now, during the winter months he isn't so hungry and only eats once a week a couple of nice fat amphibians."

"You know," Mr. Logier ruminated, "many people love snakes as pets. Personally I keep quite a few in my bed-room and now that my wife has come to like them I take all the small ones home to be reared. They are tame and only the rattlers of the Georgian peninsula are poisonous."

In spite of this build up, the attendants agreed that they would rather watch Gerry than play with him.

Speaker No "Wet Fish" Uses Easy "Drewoll"

By RUTHIE COHEN

Despite the fact that Wednesday's issue of The Varsity misstated that Dr. Gene Weltfish (instead of Weltfish) would lecture to the Canadian Association of Scientific Workers, we found that the noted anthropologist is by no means a "wet fish."

Quite the opposite! Dr. Gene Weltfish is a well-informed scientist, a woman who has just returned from the continent of Europe where starvation, misery and desolation has hit the people. She saw children drop dead in the streets; she saw workers die of exhaustion in factories. This, she said, is the result of war, a war which inevitably occurred as the outcome of will for power-race predomination.

Dr. Weltfish, co-author of "The Races of Mankind," represented the United States of America at a world conference in Paris, France. "I was impressed with the fact that the women at the conference are in agreement for a strong United Nations organizations. There were representatives there from Communist China, regular China and many other nations. They all wanted the same kind of world."

Dr. Weltfish is a charming woman who talks with an easy American drawl (or "drewoll" as she would say) which in itself seems to captivate her audience. And her audience was large, composed of Negroes, Chinese, Japanese, Russians and white people. "One cannot look at human beings dispassionately" were among her opening words. We can well believe that because her voice seems to express her thought—sadness when talking of Europe's plight—a trill of humor when relating some personal incident.

We expected a serious lecture. We got a serious lecture. But the seriousness went hand in hand by her uncanny sense of humor. For example: Half way through the lecture, that High School bell "dingled" (the lecture took place in Central Technical School) and she stopped short, asking "Does that mean I am to quit talking?"

Before Professor Ray Birdwistle (of the University of Toronto) introduced us, he told us that Dr. Weltfish teaches classes at Columbia University. "And," he went on slyly, "she is very popular with her students!" So we asked her to tell us how her teachings affected her students. "Of course by the time they leave the Anthropology Department," (she smiled) "they have lost their racial prejudice. They think if they maintain aspects of prejudice."

Dr. Weltfish ended our interview by saying that there should be a compulsory Anthropology course for school teachers. "Grads," she said, "on the whole show less racial prejudice."

McGill Colossal Drive Replaces Three Ventures

A one week drive was begun on the McGill campus, Wednesday, to raise money for the I.S.S., Red Cross, and Amalgamated Charities. This week-campaign will be one "colossal" drive, replacing the usual three undertakings. Organized by the Student Executive Council, the various faculty class presidents are planning to collect a small standard donation from each student.

Divided on a percentage basis from collections of past years the proceeds will be fairly distributed to the charities.

A charity Festival will be held on Jan. 26th, in the college gymnasium where a basketball game will be followed by a dance. The proceeds will be added to the contributions of the students.

I.S.S. BULLETIN

KEEP UP-TO-DATE on I.S.S. with IGNATZ

J.M.

It Might As Well Be Swing

We haven't read a Down Beat since our last shoe shine. (Gershwin had just written a new tune called Rhapsody in Something). We haven't seen a Metronome in months. Leonard Feather and I last connected (via Esquire's Jazz Section) many Vargas ago. I haven't visited Promenade or Waxie for many moons (Racing With The, Fishing For The, Shine On Harvest, Blue, Velvet and Comes Over The Mountain, When The). And we catch Dillon O'Leary only on spasmodic Saturdays.

Much dust of nostalgia (must write that down and use it sometime) therefore reposes forbiddingly upon whatever knowledge of popular music we once had.

Hep, if ever we were, are no longer.

However, if Friend Freedman of the longhair department can review a book by flipping pages at random, we can perhaps patch together a column by remembered remnants of a former semi-swing-savvy.

Certainly, someone has to begin this column. So that we'll do and then we'll begin beggin' for volunteer scribes of more intimate acquaintance with the science of swing as currently practiced.

We'll turn over the reins to such connoisseurs as Barton, Hemmerick, Lindgren, Starkman, Westcott, Mason (of the Stapells-Mutz-Mason Page 7 clique) et aliter. The lads, in other words, who managed to keep up their subscriptions to the Beat.

Chief Contributor

Perhaps one of aforesaid will care to consider the case of Woodrow Wilson Herman and the Herd. It's this group that have been copping all extant trophies for their past year's contributions to the cause of swing music.

Herman has been high on our hero list since way back in the pre-4030 days. 4030, if we recollect correctly, was the label number on Woody's waxing of Harold Arlen's too-coy "indigo classic" Blues In The Night with which he crashed commercial ranks.

Before that time he had been pretty steadily experimenting in blue. It was his prime pre-occupation from the time he severed connections with the Isham Jones crew.

He had produced Chips Blues, Caliope Blues, Blues Upstairs, Blues Downstairs, Blues Etcetera, all of which we treasure today. But his "Night" really established the band. It's been improvement ever since.

At the moment he is at his excitingest. Apple Honey, Refuse It, Cherry, Starlight Souvenirs, Your Father's Moustache are recordings and transcriptions we know and enjoy.

And of course Caldonia with its commercialized riff and its tremendous beat and its beautiful brass precision and its feverish—but here, here!

Herman hits us. We would like to summon a more enlightening analysis.

Can any helper read?

Browned-Off?

Praps someone likes his music done up Brown. We've been following Les Brown from his Joltin' Joe Dimaggio' days and caught and plugged on the air (we were once there, you know) such early Brown groovings as Bizet Has His Day, Mexican Hat Dance, Long, Long Ago and his theme Leap Frog.

Didcha know that Satchmo's Joe Garland wrote said L. F. as well as In The Mood, Serenade To A Savage?

Well, be edified my bourgeois ignoramus!

Les Brown's current stock-in-trade for our $$$ is platinum Doris Day. The chick's warbling of Brown's Sentimental Journey was too! Hear her more on You Won't Be Satisfied, Aren't You Glad You're You.

With us she's beside Anita O'Day, Peggy Lee and La Shore who have long been, beside Billy Holliday.

Praps you'd care to discourse on today's Ellington. Is The Swing Fortress crumbling?

Praps we could consider the neat nuances between the definitions of swing and jazz. Last Down Beat (last shoe shine) we saw (we had) that controversy was delighting numerous To-The-Editor letter-writers. We have no reason to suspect that people have stopped worrying the point.

Jazz is this and Swing is not that but not this either.

The First

Hop on the bandwagon through this column and play whichever tune you wish. Call it swing or call it jazz, if enough lectures arrive on the subject we'll call 'em a column.

Praps someone is busy these days discovering Eliot Lawrence or Eddie Miller (again) or Buddy Rich (again) with their new orchestras.

Praps someone still idolizes Stan Kenton. We know we do and so does Schoolman Whitey Belshaw. Any others?

Praps someone is nauseated by Frank Sinatra and, or Perry Como. A naive supposition!

Praps someone would do us the service of reviewing the top items among Columbia, Victor, Decca and Capitol monthly outputs.

Praps someone else thinks Don Byas is unrecognized. That's his bias, we claim, but he can buy us some. The column's at his disposal.

Where's BG? How good is Sonny Dunham (Pure plug!)?

Does anyone else know King Cole's Keep Aknockin' On Wood?

Who appreciates Mel Torme? (Did you know that he wrote the torch tune Lament To Love while only 16? His most recent hit: A Stranger In Town.)

On The Homefront

What of Canadian talent: What does Gimby have? Is Oscar Peterson all he seems? Why Mart Kenney on Victor without a Bert Niosi? someone write an open, hopin' letter to these shmaltz-obsessed record people.

How can James' Ain't Misbehavin' live on the same record with his 9.20 Special?

As we have said, we want to get rid of this column and go back to our first love New and Entrenous. Pronounced, incidentally, Noo and Own-tra-noo. We've heard everything from Goo and Intravenous to Noose and Interviews (between which there is a closer link than you may realize).

So this is 30. To you we throw the flaming Remington!

And please, Mr. Freedman, please, be tolerant of the venture!

ROSS McLEAN

BE SMART-LOOK SMART USE BRYLCREEM

THE PERFECT HAIR DRESSING

● Applied every morning, BRYLCREEM will keep your hair looking smart and well-groomed all day long. The natural oils in BRYLCREEM overcome dandruff and dry scalp, give the hair a healthy, natural lustre without that greasy appearance. All druggists sell BRYLCREEM in the handy, convenient tube. Buy today.

NO GUM - NO SOAP - NO ALCOHOL - NO STARCH

Bloodless Revolt Wesleyan Product

"The evangelical revival of John Wesley made possible the growth of practical democracy without the bloodshed of a French revolution."

HANDY FOR STUDENTS

TAILORS - 6 Harbord St.

All alterations, repairs and remodelling

LADIES' AND GENTS' SUITS

Also Fur Coats

Workmanship Guaranteed

MI. 0618

said Dr. J. W. Bready.

Speaking at yesterday's noon missionary meeting of the Varsity Christian Fellowship, the renowned Canadian historian discussed his recent book "This Freedom - Whence?"

Dr. Bready termed Wesley the greatest spiritual and moral influence in the modern world. He claimed that in France, "Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity" remained an ideological concept and never became a practical reality. The abolishing of slavery within the British Empire was one of the fruits of this religious revival among the common people.

"Democracy cannot live on intellectualism alone," said Dr. Bready, it must have faith. Speaking on his own book, he concluded that faith was "the mother of our freedom."

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

In view of the crowded conditions in the changing room for the outdoor hockey cushion, women players must come to the game completely dressed for play with the exception of skates.

TOOTHsome TWOsome

A piping hot Ritz Carlton (you apply the mustard) alongside a tall and tantalizing glass of Honey Dew—there's a snack you'll snap into with relish and linger over with delight.

Take time out today for this tasty treat.

HONEY DEW COFFEE SHOPS

Hold the sleighing party and
DANCE
After in the clubhouse at the

TAM O'SHANTER
GOLF CLUB
AGINCOURT

Rates - Telephone Zone 2 - 100

LOOK TO VICTOR RECORDS for the Newest Hits... Here are Just a Few

IT'S A GRAND NIGHT FOR SINGING
COME CLOSER TO ME

Larry Stevens

VICTOR RECORD 20-1776

AREN'T YOU GLAD YOU'RE YOU?
A DOOR WILL OPEN

Tommy Dorsey

VICTOR RECORD 20-1728

DIG YOU LATER (A Hubba-Hubba-Hubba)
HERE COMES HEAVEN AGAIN

Perry Como

VICTOR RECORD 20-1750

PUT THAT RING ON MY FINGER
COFFEE TIME

Shep Fields and his New Music

VICTOR RECORD 20-1763

Also LET HIM GO, LET HIM TARRY
Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen
Both on VICTOR RECORD 56-0009 - 75c

"Angel"

From the Film "Yolanda and the Thief"

A super-smooth recording of a lovely new number, by Canada's number one dance band, Mart Kenney's special sweet-swing style is at its best in this hit. Hear it today.

Coming Soon!

RCA VICTOR RECORD PLAYER

Your RCA Victor dealer will soon be displaying this compact, precision built RCA Victor Record Player. Playing records through your radio it doubles the enjoyment of home entertainment for a small investment. Watch for it at your RCA Victor dealer's or a better still place your order with him now.

VICTOR Records

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ARTISTS ARE ON

"Let's Talk About You!"—Herman Approach "He'll Sing For His Supper?" Says Schipper of Swain-To-Be

By REG. HERMAN

As the head of the University biology department labelled his blackboard drawing of the grub of a horsefly, The Varsity reporter turned to the beautiful brunette and murmured, "Let's talk about you."

"Sure," grinned Shirley Schipper. Melancholy Midnight girl of the U. C. Follies, "did you know that I had an audition with Glen Miller back in January, 1942?"

Miller was interested and got in touch with the Canadian manager of R.C.A. Victor, who arranged with the Toronto branch to make a record to send to Glen. "I was too young, and I didn't go down," Shirley explained, "but I've still got the letter of introduction. I'm going to try to use it to make some records of Melancholy Midnight and Lucy From U.C. for some friends of mine."

Shirley began her career like so many other world-famous singers by taking parts in Gilbert and Sullivan in high school. "But swing swayed me," quipped the comedy singer, "and I sang with the Forest Hill Troubadours, a school swing band that went up to Borden to entertain the boys."

In her first year at college, (Pass Arts, naturally) Shirley sang with Mart Kenney at the Arts Ball. Her career in the Follies began three years ago with the famous 'Sippin' a Coke', was continued in '44 with the Pass Arts Polka and climaxed this fall with her passionate rendition of Melancholy Midnight.

"I act, too, offered the girl wonder. It seems Shirley is Clare in Noel Coward's 'Hands Across the Sea', which was chosen to represent University College in the Inter-College Drama Festival.

The future? After graduation this spring, she plans to visit a brother

Svelte songstress Shirley Schipper is shown at the microphone crooning the Follies' ballad hit "Melancholy Midnight."

in Los Angeles. "I hope to live there, get married and make my husband sing for his supper—I've done all the singing up till now."

"Of course I'm aspiring too high," modestly announced Miss Schipper, "but Dinah Shore is my sorority sister, and maybe the inspiration or something—maybe . . ."

600 Veterans Enroll in Sask.

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Jan. 23—(C.U.P.)—Six hundred veterans have enrolled in the University of Saskatchewan's post-Christmas courses designed expressly for veterans. Figures released from the registrar's office indicate distribution of the registrants to the following faculties: Agriculture, 61; Arts (including pre-Meds), 75; Arts (including pre-Law), 36; Commerce, 118; Pharmacy and pre-Dental, 43; Engineering 208.

All the Christmas registrants will take three classes only in the next four months, and take the remainder of their classes in the summer months.

About 300 of the new students will be housed at Carson College at the former R.C.A.F. Air Training School. The other 300 students have found private accommodation in the city.

ATTENTION AJAX!

Two hundred and fifteen tickets for the Athletic Night, Saturday, January 26th, have been reserved for Ajax students.

Tickets, costing 50c each, may be procured at the Athletic Office in the Recreation Hall up until 8 p.m. this evening. Tickets are limited to two per person.

LIFE SAVING EXAMINATION

Examinations are being held this week. Results of previous tests are to be found on the Athletic notice board.

Those who successfully pass these tests are eligible for enrolment in the Intermediate swimming course which will commence on Feb. 4.

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacleware at reasonable prices. Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone Ml. 6762 (Ground Floor St. George Apartments) OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

LAST CHANCE

Billed as "the last chance to get a date for the Arts Ball" by Bert Wilkes, U.C. Lit. Publicity Director, Friday afternoon's tea-dance will also feature the four finalists in the "Coke-Date Co-ed" contest.

There will be dancing in the Junior Common Room from 4 to 6 p.m. to the recorded music of Sonny Dunham.

University Symphony Orchestra

Next Rehearsal On

SATURDAY, JAN. 26th, at 2 P.M. SHARP

WOMEN'S UNION THEATRE
79 ST. GEORGE STREET

Trombones need not come until Wednesday.
Otherwise Full Attendance Requested

Jolliffe Tells

(Continued from Page 1.)

taxes, not only to Ottawa, but also to their provincial capitals.

The speaker stressed the importance of co-operation, declaring "If another depression comes, it will mean that the provinces will be faced with a deficit. Yet the British North America Act stipulates that each province must care for its own unemployed."

Expenditures for such projects as the St. Lawrence Waterway and Rapid Transit, while they will benefit the individual, will fail to beat the depression as did the New Deal.

Labelling the Conservative Party of Ontario as "The only conservative party in the world," Mr. Jolliffe referred to Mr. Drew's Empire Club speech on the "Ontario way of life," and declared that the spectacle of Ontario remaining an "island of reaction is a fantastic absurdity." "I am bound to conclude," he added, "that the present Ontario government does not want an agreement."

During the ensuing question period, the speaker replied to Mr.

HART HOUSE ELECTIONS SQUASH RACQUETS COMMITTEE

To qualify for nomination to the Squash Racquets Committee an undergraduate is required:

(1) To have played squash at least six times during the academic year.

(2) To have had his name on the ranking list A. B. or Freshman for three weeks prior to the date of nomination.

Nominations Open 22nd February, Close 27th February.

Blackwell's recent speech, in which he charged that Ontario would be stabilizing a socialist government in Saskatchewan, by saying that the Dominion proposes to establish a capital subsidy, a capital subsidy fund to help the "less fortunate provinces."

"I can only hope for the success of the Conference," he told The Varsity. "I think most of the provinces will co-operate and I hope that Ontario will also." Asked if the C.C.F. party would bring Mr. Stewart's charges regarding racial discrimination in the University to the floor of the Provincial House, Mr. Jolliffe reserved comment.

ULTRA MODERNA . . .

Nuevo tipo de crema de afeitar SIN BROCHA para afeitadas diarias

Elimina molestia y trabajo —ayuda a evitar el escozor y la irritación

Para triunfar en un mundo progresista, debe Ud. lucir bien afeitado, a ras de piel, cada día de la semana. Pero no es siempre fácil afeitarse diariamente y puede hasta causar irritaciones molestas.

Ahora, Williams ha resuelto este problema con el descubrimiento de la sorprendente Crema Glider, que no requiere brocha. La Glider convierte la afeitada diaria en algo fácil. Contiene un ingrediente que actúa como una loción—protege la piel, deja una sensación de frescura.

"Una afeitada ultra sencilla"

Para usar la Crema Glider, lávese la cara con agua y jabón. Luego, espárzase la crema por la cara usando la punta de los dedos—jamás con brocha—y afeítese. Glider protege la cara. Permite que el filo de la hoja se deslice y corte la barba a ras de piel, sin irritarla ni horirla. Friccionese con el residuo de la crema que quede en la cara. Tiene un ingrediente que actúa como una loción. Da un acabado perfecto a la afeitada y refresca la piel—se siente el cutis más suave y más liso.

IMPORTANT! Send in your translation of this advertisement, with your name and address, to J. B. Williams Co. (Canada) Ltd., Dept. TV-2, LaSalle, Montreal. We'll send you a big tube of GLIDER, giving you at least 30 days clean, comfortable shaves.

Everybody Happy Happy As Can Be

"Ajax students are in excellent spirits and are quite content with their lot," J. R. Gilley, director of Ajax Division, told The Varsity recently. Speaking on behalf of Professor J. W. T. Wright, Director of Studies, detained at home on account of illness, as well as for the whole staff, Mr. Gilley added that all was smiles on the Ajax front.

"This spirit of co-operation among staff and students will help us all to achieve success in this enterprise," continued Mr. Gilley. "Although the whole project seemed impossible at first, the staff have really made it something of which they can be proud."

Mr. Gilley went on to speak about the condition of buildings at Ajax. Although Hart House is not yet finished because of the shortage of materials, the Engineers' Common Room is complete and in use.

The Library is in operation with a daily circulation of about 50 books. Both the circulation and the number of books available is increasing rapidly.

"Our entire program of activities is in full swing," concluded Mr. Gilley. "House elections are being held, athletic programs are being planned, and even the hospital is taking care of the odd patient."

"The staff are very proud of the way things have turned out, and say that they are already realizing a spirit of achievement."

The University sent out its first extension lecturer in 1894.

"FRI. NITE"

DANCE CLASS
STARTS FRIDAY
FEBRUARY 1st.

Don't miss this Opportunity to Become a Really Smart Dancer.
Phone For Information

Da Costa

STUDIOS OF DANCING
1139 Bay Street, Corner Charles
Mt. 3624

USED COLLEGE TEXT BOOKS

At Best Current Prices

Open Evenings Until 10 p.m.

WE BUY
BOOKS

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(1 BLOCK SOUTH OF BLOOR)

Musicians Sought

The Music School of the University Settlement is seeking musicians among the students of the University of Toronto willing to play in the Settlement Orchestra. Second violin, cello, viola and wind instruments are needed to complement the present organization. Rehearsals are held Wednesday evenings. Regular attendance of rehearsals would not be necessary in the cases of experienced musicians. Persons able to assist the Settlement in this way are requested to telephone AD0736. The Music School is also desperately short of instruments. Anyone able to aid in this emergency is asked to contact the same number.

Twenty-six students signed the rolls and commenced academic work in the first year of the opening of King's College.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

ARTS BALL

PRESENTS

America's Trumpet and Trombone Stylist!

In Person
SONNY DUNHAM
AND HIS ORCHESTRA

Thurs. Jan. 31

Tickets - U.C. Rotunda
Ajax - S.A.C. Office

Concert Tickets

The Music Committee of Hart House has made available a number of double tickets for this Sunday evening concert in the Great Hall of Hart House in Toronto.

The artists for the concert are Miss Kathleen Busby, soprano, and Mr. Jean Le-tourneau, tenor.

Members of Hart House (Ajax) wishing to attend the concert should call for tickets in Room 7, Administration Building, not later than 12 noon Friday.

RECORD HOUR

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 p.m. in the Women's Common Room at U.C., is open to the men and women of every college and faculty.

Today's Program

Wagner—Tannhauser Overture. Tchaikowsky—Romeo and Juliet Fantasy Overture. Bach—Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 in D Major. Tchaikowsky—Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mina Grant, soprano, who was heard in recital at Eaton Auditorium this week and has been doing concert and radio work in Toronto, will sing the following programme at the Friday afternoon Recital in the music room of Hart House at 5 p.m. today. Henry Attack will be at the piano.

I
Vieni, Torna Idolo Mio, Handel.
Gia Il Sole Dal Gange, Scarlatti.

Well-judging Phyllis, Boyce.
II
Wohn (Whither), Schubert.
Frühlingsglaube (Faith in Spring), Schubert.
Die Yonke Nonne (The Young Nun), Schubert.
Frühlingssehnsucht (Longing for Spring), Schubert.

III
Soft-footed Snow (Norway) Lie.

There is a Laddie (Sweden) Hallen.
Sing, Thou, Sing (Finland), Jarnefelt.

IV
Eros (Norway), Grieg.
A Green Cornfield, Head.
The Sea Wrack, Hart.
Twilight Fancies, Delius.
The Bargain, Somerwell.

A half-century ago, five separate appearances were chronicled of a University College ghost, a broad-bearded figure believed to be the shade of a workman who mysteriously lost his life during the construction of the building.

Art, Music and Drama

The Composer As Theorist

Last night at the Conservatory Concert Hall, the distinguished composer and professor of music at Yale University, Paul Hindemith, in a lecture entitled The Craft of Musical Composition, explained in some detail the basis of musical theory as he understood it. He drew a distinct line between those theorists of the past whose ideas followed from the analysis of existing compositions of one style or another, and those who were anxious to formulate the basic facts of musical composition as a universal starting-ground from which the individual composer could develop his own style. To start with, Mr. Hindemith discussed various methods of deriving the material of music. No satisfactory system of scales and intervals has yet been evolved, he claimed, for the Pythagorean system was suitable only for a purely melodic art, while the natural scale, if applied to the piano, would result in endless difficulty. The tempered scale was an unavoidable compromise.

This material, once found, had to be manipulated into musical compositions, the basic procedures of which were melody, harmony and rhythm. Because older theorists were mainly concerned with analysis, no satisfactory system of basic facts from which the composer could work, had been evolved for these three procedures. Rhythm had been understood the least, for rhythm was the factor which determined musical form. In particular Mr. Hindemith felt that no satisfactory theory had been presented which would explain the unfolding of the material of the composition, its expansion or compression. It was all very well to say that the development followed the exposition, but the real musical theorist must ask why. Attempts had been made to formulate the basic facts of melody and harmony, particularly harmony. Theorists had provided facts here and there, mixed up with errors which did not work. Rameau, for example, based much of his theory on the chord-unit and the principle of inversion, both of which had to be discarded. But in analyzing progressions in terms of the movement of roots, he provided us with a system of which use could be made today, even if, as Mr. Hindemith seemed to think, we were returning to the mediaeval conception of the interval as unit rather than the chord. The principle of inversion, however, was completely outmoded. It was impossible, he pointed out, to invert a chord of the eleventh.

One cannot but be impressed by Hindemith's admission of the ineptitude of most music-teaching today. It is concerned primarily, as he told us, with imitations of style. Our harmony text books rest on the 18th century and cannot even explain Tristan, which is a hundred years old. Our counterpoint is based on the 17th century. If Mr. Hindemith can determine the facts which are below the level of style, he will do us a service indeed. But it will not follow that by determining these facts (if facts they are) an age of musical prosperity will be induced, as he seemed to suggest. Musical theory need merely be taken as a study, interesting in itself, whose usefulness can be determined only in specific cases and will depend on the unpredictable needs of the particular composer.

—MILTON WILSON.

Ajax Sports

The Ajax sport programme will start on Monday. This is the good word that came out of yesterday's meeting of sixteen athletic representatives.

Final schedules and rules for intramural competition were agreed upon. The tentative programme indicates at least 25 basketball teams, 19 hockey teams, 19 volleyball teams, and well over 60 bowling crews.

The well-planned schedule allows for "commuters" games on Tuesday evenings, when special transportation will be provided to Toronto at 9:15 p.m., allowing the boys from the "city" to stay and play, assured that they will get home that night.

The teams will be equipped, $800.00 having been spent to purchase sweaters, jerseys, goalie pads, hockey sticks, shoulder and shin pads. It was agreed by the Committee members that rules for bowling, hockey and basketball should follow those laid down by the Canadian Bowling Association, The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and the Canadian Basketball Association.

The Monday night opening promises to be a gala event, with imported dignitaries, a real orchestra, and crowded galleries making it as big a spectacle as one of the famous Athletic Nights on the Queen's Park campus.

Monday's basketball schedule opens are as follows:

Group 1
(7:00 p.m.) Res. 722 vs. Res. 723A (Caldwell)

Group 2
(8:00 p.m.) Res. 726 vs. Res. 731A (McAuliffe)

Group 3
(9:00 p.m.) Res. 736 vs. Res. 734 (McPhail)

Group 4
(10:00 p.m.) Res. 723B vs. Res.

724B (Bate)

The following day, Tuesday, hockey activities will commence, as follows:

Group 4—Cushion 1
(6:30 p.m.) Res. 727 vs. Commuters' "A" (McReady, White)

Group 3—Cushion 111
(6:30 p.m.) Res. 728 vs. Commuters' "B" (Stefanyashyn, Caldwell)

Burwash Hall is named after Nathaniel Burwash, a former chancellor of the college.

Coming Events

Sunday: The Thomistic Society will meet at Brennan Hall, St. Michael's College, to hear an address by Father Dore on "Higher Education and Unity."

9:00 p.m.—Newman Club will show short films on sports and music.

Monday: 12:00 noon—meeting of the study group on modern humanist philosophy of the Humanist Society in the U.C. Rotunda to discuss "The positive affirmations of humanism."

Sunday: 2:30 p.m.—The regular meeting of the Ukrainian Students Club will be held at the Newman Club on January 27. All members are asked to attend.

ATHLETIC NIGHTS

Please use the west door entrance to the athletic wing and NOT the main door.

Co-ed Curlers
So Fast — So Simple

- Natural Full Curl
 - Pleasant to Sleep in
- SEE DEMONSTRATION NOW
AT NOTION DEPT., ROBT. SIMPSON CO.

I've taken to pipe smoking like a pro to knowledge since I've discovered sweet, cool, mild Picobac.

Picobac
THE PICK OF TOBACCO

Classified Advertisements

WANTED

One ticket for Feb. 22nd Vic-At-Home, in exchange for Feb. 1st dance. HY 7229.

WANTED

Chant and Burton "College Physics". MI 1041.

RADIO REPAIRS

For Radio repairs at Ajax, see Gus, Room 10, Bldg. 733.

LOST

Blue cloth bag, in Room 41, Physics Bldg., Fri. Jan. 18th. Reward, JU 9260.

FOR SALE

Evening wraps: imported white bunny, $90.; black transparent velvet, $15.; both tailored, full length, size 14-16, excellent quality and condition. Private. Phone HU 9083.

FOR SALE

Tuxedo: medium, chest 36, waist 31, $25.; both in perfect condition, complete with shirts and vests. Private. Phone HU 9083.

LOST

Rimless glasses, gold frame, without case, lost on Monday, possibly in one of south campus buildings. Phone JU 3201, or leave at S.A.C. office. Reward.

FOUND

All over Toronto—the best radio entertainment 24 hours daily. Apply at Dial 580.

BIG DANCE

BURWASH HALL — VICTORIA HALL

Saturday, January 26th

The Classes of 4T6 and 4T7 Invite Ex-servicemen of all Faculties to Their

SPRING DANCE

Girls—Best on the Campus. Time—8.30. Plan to be early.
Refreshments — Terrific

CHARGE — NONE, OF COURSE

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
BRASS BAND

Full Attendance Required at Practices on
TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS, 5 P.M.
at the Drill Hall

BAND IS NEEDED TO SUPPORT ATHLETIC EVENTS
DANCE IS PLANNED IN FEBRUARY FOR THE BAND

Speaking OF SPORT

By BREDIN STAPPELLS

Tonight is the night lads. What's doing tonight? Hovent you heard, our Varsity Blues are at long last playing on home ice! The old Arena is again going to hear the loud roars of the student hockey fans. It's been a long time, six years in fact. It is rumoured that the staff of that historic building has substituted rubber beams in anticipation of the throngs of Blue and White supporters.

Varsity ice palace has witnessed many famous pucksters, and has shared the good times with the bad. The Arena was completed way back in '26 at yuletide. Seating capacity for hockey games ran just under the 5000 mark.

Ace Bailey came to the Blues in the middle of the long Varsity slump from '33 to '39 when McGill was very definitely on top of the heap. The season of '35-'37 was a period of rebuilding for Ace and the season ended in an optimistic look to the future. The '38-'39 season saw the long awaited success, that is with the exception of the tiresome Redmen.

In the last year of intercollegiate hockey, glory and honour at last crowned the efforts of our long suffering coach. Jack Maynard brought the coveted Queen's Cup back to our Alma Mater. The Torontoensis of that year summed up this climatic event. "Five years of hard work and sacrifice on the part of Ace Bailey and Warren Stevens has been finally rewarded, and the handsome Thompson Trophy comes to Toronto".

The Thompson Trophy was presented by Mr. Alexis Thompson in 1936 for competition in the International Intercollegiate ice hockey league. This handsome cup is made of silver and bronze, surmounted by a figure modelled after a famous Yale puckster, Mr. Thompson being a Yale graduate.

This league has not yet been in operation, since the war brought the series to a close. We have not heard of any more to re-open the international competition, although those who have been following the many exhibition games of this season might well imagine that the powers that be have an eye to this in the near future.

Getting back to the Blues, on a recent tour, Ace was heard to mutter in his beard that he wished he could take his boys out on his own hook—they're good, they're really good! Well, after his long inactivity as far as the Blues are concerned, he deserves the break. We seem to be taking up where the '39-'40 squad left off.

W wonder if the big Varsity Band could possibly add the final touch to the game tonight. Music is a wonderful institution, and will certainly do much to welcome the victorious Blues home. Well, what's the answer, you members of the Sousa cult, will you, won't you, will you, won't make with the music tonight?

• Sportswoman •

By SHIRLEY TUCK

for in the intercollegiate league. . . . Mrs. Jean Stevenson, a graduate of O.C.E. and Vic. has taken the Varsity team under her wing. She's an old hand at the basketball game, having played intercollegiate in her second year at Vic. in '40, and coached one of Vic's teams last fall. Sports are her hobby, and anything connected with P.T. is her meat. Though a grad of O.C.E. she graduated in Home Economics. . . . and got married. At present she is teaching Home Ec. half days at Western Commerce so has a goodly portion of her time free to devote on the team.

About the team itself. . . . it has been narrowed down to twelve enthusiastically energetic girls who will meet the Wrens on Sat. Feb. 2, in Hart House. For the later big college tilt the team will be cut to nine. . . . and needless to say the coach is having a tough time trying to single out the stars from the host of crack players.

VOLLEYBALL REMINDER . . .

Don't forget that the volleyball schedule starts Mon., Jan. 28, at Lillian Massey gym, so all last minute volunteers forgo those coke-dates to get in touch with your rep.

ONE DATE

That is having a difficult time getting recognized and printed is the final intercollegiate swimming meet. . . . so we'll make one more attempt to bring it to everyone's attention. . . . January 31 at Hart House. . . . got it?

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY
4:30	SPS I vs. VIC I.....Lawler, J. C. McClelland
5:30	FOR. A vs. KNOX A.....Brownridge, J. C. McClelland
BASKETBALL MAJOR
1:00	SR. MED. vs. PHE I.....Mott
4:00	JR. U.C. B vs. ST. M. A.....Lye
6:30	JR. MED. vs. JR. VIC.....Rotman

BASKETBALL MINOR
1:00	II MED. B vs. I CIVIL.....Drupino
4:00	TRIN. III vs. III MINING.....Stone
6:30	ST. M. C vs. III CIVIL.....Maxwell (postponed)

SATURDAY'S GAMES

BASKETBALL MAJOR
1:00	SR. SPS vs. SR. VIC.....Rotman
BASKETBALL MINOR
1:00	FOR B vs. II ELEC.....Jones

WATER POLO SCHEDULE

TUES. JAN. 29
4:15	FOR vs. KNOX.....Shubik
6:15	TRIN. vs. WYC.....Allore
WED. JAN. 30
4:15	ST. M. vs. U. C.....Tilston
6:15	JR. MED. vs. VIC I.....Rosen
THURS. JAN. 31
4:15	MED. III vs. SPS III.....MacDonald
6:15	JR. MED. vs. DENT.....Bartlett
FRI. FEB. 1
4:15	JR. SPS vs. VIC. I.....Morrow

WOMEN'S HOCKEY SCHEDULE

WEEK OF JAN. 28.

MON. JAN. 28—12-1, P.H.E. II vs. MEDS.
TUES. JAN. 29—1-2, P.H.E. I vs. U.C. I
WED. JAN. 30—1-2, VIC. I vs. ST. HILDA'S I
THURS. JAN. 31—12-1, VIC. II vs. ST. HILDA'S II
ALL GAMES IN VARSITY ARENA.

Record Water Polo Entry As Play Starts Tuesday

Inter-mural water-polo will commence Tuesday, Jan. 29, announced Jim Martin, IV S.P.S., president of the water-polo committee yesterday. The committee decided that play would go on until the first week in March. So many teams were entered that the league was divided into four groups, with a possible fifth, as following:

- Group I: U.C. I, Senior S.P.S., Senior Meds.
- Group II: Junior S.P.S. Dents., Vic., Junior Meds.
- Group III: St. Michaels, S.P.S. III, P.H.E.-U.C., Meds. III.
- Group IV: Trinity, Knox, Wycliffe, Forestry.
- Group V will include any other teams entered.

Ajax Rec. Hall

"The most popular building on the campus", according to Ajax students, is the Recreation Hall. It supplies the student body with varied programs of sports and entertainment welcome after a long day of lectures and labs.

The present Hall was erected in 1941 by Defence Industries, Ltd., to render service to some 7,000 to 9,000 employees. Halloween night, 1941, marked its opening, and until the closing of the plant, it worked overtime, providing workers with relaxation after a day working on the production line.

Now, taken over by the University of Toronto, officers of Hart House are expending energies on remodeling it so it may help carry out plans for games and social gatherings for the benefit of the 1,600 freshmen enrolled at Ajax.

The present facilities under the supervision of Hart House Ajax consist of four bowling alleys, a large hall with stage, screen and sound equipment and a small canteen, where hungry hordes of Schoolmen may eat at reasonable prices, and smokers find their brand of cigarettes, pipe tobacco, or cigars.

With a seating capacity of over 750, the main hall shows movies twice a week. It is hoped that musical concerts and other entertainment featuring both intra and extramural talent will be presented on Sunday evening to replace the present movie schedule. Here also, other activities, such as dances, basketball and volleyball, can be staged easily. A large following of volleyball fans has been attracted.

Crowded bowling allies attest to the popularity of that sport, and scores of bowlers are trying to adjust their style to unfamiliar alleys.

When the remodeling period is over, students will benefit by an enlarged and more convenient canteen, storing place for athletic equipment, a powder-room for the girls, and soundproofing of the auditorium walls.

New and Entrenous

Senoritas Swap Lessons, Both Become Bi-Lingual

By ROSS McCLEAN

There's a lend-lease system in language lessons at Loretto College these days.

Maria Hortensia Moya is one of the lovely lend-lease agents. Maria came to Canada from Costa Rica to learn English. She spoke only Spanish.

Grace Serrao came from Trinidad to study Spanish. She spoke only English—and with a broad British West Indies accent.

In adjoining rooms at Loretto, Maria and Grace have become each other's teacher and pupil.

The mutual aid program seems to have been successful. We didn't test Grace's Spanish. Couldn't. But Maria's English is progressing nicely.

Homework for Maria is really a cinch. Her room-mate is a French Canadian who assists her with that tongue. Maria's problem is translating Spanish into English and here Grace aids.

It's all culture on a most co-operative basis. Maria, 21-year-old daughter of a Costa Rican business man, left Central America two years ago. She is of pure Spanish descent. Grace is of Portuguese ancestry but has spent her 20 years at Trinidad.

Canada, they both feel, is too cold. "I like the snow," comments Grace, "but I don't like the cold." Maria nods. "Si." Grace Serrao may use her Spanish when she returns to Trinidad. Maria is uncertain about her future.

"Pass Art people nevaire know whats to do," she claims. "But," she avows, "I want to use up my English."

Senior Waterpolo Squad Meets Dominion Champions

By CRAIG CRINGAN

Hamilton Aquatic, holders of Dominion championships in both swimming and waterpolo, will meet Varsity's senior waterpolo squad in the Hart House pool at tomorrow's Athletic Night.

For the Varsity team, which has beaten all local competition, this will probably be the hardest tussle of the season. In a game before Christmas, Hamilton defeated Central Y by a score of 6-1. Wednesday night Varsity beat a much stronger team from Central by 5-4. Since H.A.C. are the only strong waterpolo team in Hamilton, it is very hard to estimate just how good they actually are.

Twice this year Hamilton's free style relay team has beaten all comers in C.A.S.A. open competition. At least five of their men, the two Larsen brothers, the Parke brothers and McCormack are individual champions in various swimming events. With such a line-up of stars coach Jim Thompson feels very confident about his team.

Frank DeMarco's Varsity team is in peak form and ready for anything. Experienced ball-handlers all, the Blues have been practising together three or four times weekly since last fall. The games with Central Y showed that fast swimmers do not necessarily make a winning waterpolo squad.

Varsity's Lineup

Jim Martin, SPS—center, a leading scorer who played for School in the inter-faculty league.

Harry Kohl, SPS—wing, earned a place on last year's interfaculty all-stars by his aggressive play.

Bill Arthurs, St. Mikes—wing, a star with the inter-faculty finals of last year.

Phil Rosen, UC—wing, can hold his own against any opponent.

Syd Bossin, UC—wing, lots of fight.

Ed Lindgren, UC—rover, an experienced player, formerly with Central Y.

Les Curry, Ajax—a versatile swimmer who can fill in anywhere, played with Dominion Championship team of Central Y before the war.

Bill Moffat, Grad. Studies—defence, has had about twelve years' experience in organized swimming and waterpolo.

Gil Bos, SPS—wing, played for School in last year's inter-faculty series.

Bev Jones, Vic—goal, a lanky lad who generally stops them if they can be stopped.

SKI NOTES

Varsity skiers spread out over hills, both far and near last week-end. No matter where they went they had fun, and all enjoyed many hours of useful practice.

Old Man Winter supplied the hickory addicts with an abundance of snow, but the Wicked Wind blew it around somewhat, making the hills spotty at some points.

Two bus loads of enthusiasts left Hart House on Sunday, and went up to the University Ski Club property near Newmarket, and from all reports it was well worth while. To those who got "lost," all we can say is—get a map.

The Toronto Ski Club properties at Summit and Dagmar were visited by other groups, and although the bush and trail skiing was good, the open slopes were windblown and very cold. A few of the more advanced skiers went up to favourite Collingwood haunts, where, under the able coaching of Doug and Peg-Mann they went through their paces, brushing up on their flag running, with an eye to future ski meets.

There will be an Inter-faculty competition early in February, which promises to bring a large turn-out. All Varsityites who have so much as had a pair of ski boots on, are urged to contact their faculty ski representative concerning entrance—and get out and practice, your College needs you! All potential Ajax skiers are especially urged to get in proper hill-form, as Queen's Park enthusiasts are looking forward to competing against the Whitby Skuleman.

With a fair amount of snow falling all this week, the coming Saturday and Sunday promise to be great skiing days. Buses will be running from Hart House at 9:00 a.m. Sunday morning, to the University ski grounds, and returning at 4:00 p.m. from the corner of Mulock and Yonge Sts.

LORRAINE McALLISTER

Vocalist with Art Hallman's Orchestra who will be playing at the University College Arts Ball on Thurs. Jan. 31.

★ mart kenney ★
currently appearing at the
Royal York Hotel

★ art hallman ★
currently appearing at
Casa Loma, Toronto

★ stan patton ★
currently appearing at
Brant Inn, Burlington

These and other very well-known
orchestras available

Exclusive Management
Office of MART KENNEY
HEC' McALLUM, Manager
125 Dupont St., Toronto
K1, 3147—Nights: GR. 4454

Make Better Marks

WITH THESE COLLEGE
FAVORITES

YOU'LL PASS ALL
YOUR TESTS
WITH HONOURS!

MIRADO
WRITING PENCIL

VERITHIN
COLORED PENCIL

TURQUOISE
DRAWING PENCIL

BUY ALL 3

FROM YOUR
favorite

SCHOOL SUPPLY DEALER

Canadian Campus

By BARBARA JONES

"To belong or not to belong"—that was the question. And when it comes to Fraternities Canadian Campus voices a not too positive "No".

Fraternities, whether officially recognized or not, in the opinion of Canadian students need not be synonymous with fun. The small college or university gets along very well in a social way without Fraternities, though some arguments are raised in their favour on the large and, presumably less friendly, campus. But the large campus, speaking for itself, claims that they are only one part of a university life.

At the University of Toronto with a registration of over 13,000 approximately 12 percent make up the population of Fraternity Row. The non-fraternity body take their stand for a variety of reasons, ranging from excessive interest in their courses, club affiliations and enthusiastic participation in athletics to active anti-fraternity feeling. The opinion of the majority is upheld officially since Fraternities are not recognized on the Toronto campus.

Western views are expressed by the Universities of Manitoba and Alberta, representing both side of the question. University heads at Manitoba sanction fraternity organizations, although student opinion varies, as many do not wish to join fraternities now or ever. Fraternities are powerful on the Manitoba campus, and though given no space in The Manitoban, the student newspaper, they are allotted space in the university year book.

Twelve Fraternities are recognized at the University of Alberta but these take no active place in student or social affairs. Frat and non-Frat members comment "Maintain status quo. There is little point in creating contradictions where the existing system meets with general approval."

At Bishop's University, where there are no Fraternities, recognized or unrecognized, students admit both sides of the question but the general feeling is that Fraternities are detrimental, and clique-forming. As one of the smaller universities they believe that fraternal sentiments already exist among the students and that no further unifying agent is necessary.

The same attitude is current on Queen's University campus where the detonating cap, in the form of an official fraternity ban exploded in October 1934. Since that time student opinion has agreed that Queen's is too small to "foster false feeling, distinction, disunity, and exclusiveness". The majority are absolutely against Fraternities believing that they "spoil school spirit."

A compromise has been reached at McGill University where Fraternities enjoy official recognition though their members are a campus minority. Students on the whole favor Fraternities but consider them too expensive for some.

Pro or con, east or west, frat member or non-frat member, there are no hostile camps, no bitter feelings, and very little friction.

Correspondence

(Continued from Page 2)

clearly its position gives a very erroneous view of the position, of the affirmative.

We also object to the reporting of the paragraph which read:

"Only Mr. Mosher discussed the major point of whether or not unions were attempting to usurp the rights of management." Acknowledging that the wording of the motion was "difficult to vote on and difficult for the Ayes to support," Mr. Mosher said that "no attempt has been made to show that the unions have tried to usurp the rights of management."

This paragraph alone, with no mention of various incidents presented by affirmative speakers in just such an attempt was an unfair representation of the situation. Mr. Mosher himself stated that incidents had occurred in the past which should be deplored and for which labour had to take the responsibility.

Our point, Mr. Editor, is that there was an attempt to show that the unions were usurping the rights of management but that this was not mentioned in the article in The Varsity. Whether or not such an attempt was successful, it was made. 58 members thought that it was a successful attempt, 99 thought that it was not.

Mr. Editor, we feel that he who preaches should practice what he preaches. There was right and wrong on both sides, as you yourself have stated in your recent editorial. Then why not treat the reporting in the same vein.

This is not an attempt to carry a debate to the columns of The Varsity, but a plea that the morale preached by The Varsity be practiced by The Varsity.

A. M. LOUNT
IV SP5.

St. Paul's Anglican Church BLOOR STREET EAST

Rector
REV. CANON F. H. WILKINSON,
M.A., D.D.

8 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION

11 a.m.—MORNING PRAYER

Preacher:
THE RECTOR

3 p.m.—BIBLE CLASSES.

7 p.m.—CHORAL CONGREGATIONAL CONVE-

Preacher:
THE RECTOR

"ABIDE WITH ME"

Organist:
Charles Peaker, Mus. D., F.R.C.O.

University Students Welcome at

All Services

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

Corner Bloor and Huron Streets

11 a.m.

Rev. Geo. C. Pidgeon

D.D.

6 p.m.

Rev. John L. Nicol

Ph.D., D.D. of Saskatoon

6:40 P.M.—ORGAN RECITAL

8:15 P.M.—FRIENDSHIP HOUR.

FREDERICK C. SILVESTER

Organist and Choirmaster

STUDENTS SPECIALLY

WELCOME

KNOX CHURCH

SPADINA AND HARBORD

11 A.M.—"MORNING COMETH AND ALSO THE NIGHT"

7 P.M.—"RESTORING LIFE'S BALANCE"

REV. ROBT. LENNOX, M.A., Th.B.

Professor, Presbyterian College, Montreal

8:15 p.m.: Fellowship Hour.

REV. KENNETH STRACHAN

Secretary, Latin American Missions, Inc.

Students Specially Invited

Goes to College!

Captivating, gay young dresses of spun rayon to whirl you through daytime to datetyme in a light-hearted way! They're smooth and swish—whether elegantly simple or distractingly frothy. Styled especially for the young.

Sketched, in grey with red only, sizes 9 to 15, each

19.95

FOURTH FLOOR
MAIN STORE

T. EATON CO.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

Huron Street—Just South of Bloor

7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Holy

Eucharist

11 a.m.—Junior Congregation.

11 a.m.—CHORAL EUCHARIST

Preacher:

Rev. Canon C. J. S. Stuart, M.A.

7 p.m.—CHORAL EVENSONG.

Preacher:

Rev. J. M. N. Jackson, M.A.

Cordial Welcome To All University Students.

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY

Trinity Square

(Off Yonge, 2 below Dundas)

Invites students to join with us in services that combine beauty of worship with progressive Christian action

Regular Sunday services at 8, 9:30, and 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m.

St. Andrew's

KING AND SIMCOE STS.

Minister

Very Rev. Stuart C. Parker, D.D.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

DR. PARKER

Students specially invited

THE RELIGIOUS SOCIETY OF FRIENDS (QUAKER)

MEETING FOR WORSHIP on Sunday morning at 11 a.m. AT THE

Meeting House, 109 Maitland St.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO WORSHIP WITH US.

A Good End Cannot Sanctify Evil Means"
WILLIAM PENN

Westminster Central United

117 Bloor Street East

Sunday Services

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.:

Minister:

Rev. J. Bruce Hunter

D.D., LL.D.

Fire-side hour at close of Evening Service.

Students Cordially Invited

HOLY BLOSSOM TEMPLE

Bathurst Street At Ava Road

at 11:00 a.m.

RABBI ABRAHAM L. FEINBERG

will speak on

"PALESTINE - EUROPE - ISRAEL

CHRISTIANITY!

THE FUTURE OF THE JEW—

IS LIBERALISM DEAD?

Public cordially invited

Free Bus Service from Bathurst and St. Clair every 15 minutes, commencing at 10:40 a.m. until 11:20 a.m. and leaving the Temple at 12:30 p.m. and 12:50 p.m.

RADIO BROADCAST RABBI FEIN-

BERG, OKEY, SUNDAY, 9:45 A.M.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

First Church of Christ, Scientist

St. George St. at Lowther Ave.

Branch of The Mother Church

The First Church of Christ,

Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

11 a.m.

Sunday, January 27th

"TRUTH"

Wed. Evening Meeting at 8.00 o'clock

Including Testimonies of Healing through Christian Science

Free Public Reading Room where the Bible and Authorized Christian Science Literature may be read, borrowed or purchased.

80 Richmond St. West

BLUE HOOPSTERS WIN 53-42

The

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VARSITY

VOL. LXV—No. 69 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Monday, January 28, 1946

To Survey Housing Needs Of Married Veterans

A survey of the housing requirements of married ex-service students has been announced by the Ex-Service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council. The survey is intended to give the committee a comprehensive picture of the accommodation required by married students during the summer and fall.

Upon completion of the survey, the Committee plans to draw up a concrete plan for presentation to the Board of Governors to try to remedy what is felt to be the most pressing need of student veterans.

Although the S.A.C. Housing Service has succeeded in finding accommodation for all students this year much of it has been unsatisfactory. Married students in particular, although they all have been placed, have been inconvenienced by the general housing shortage. Some married students have been separated from their families because of the impossibility of obtaining accommodation suitable for a family.

All married ex-service students who are at present living in unsatisfactory accommodation are requested to register immediately at the office of the S.A.C. in Hart House in order that the survey may be completed as quickly as possible.

One Of These Is TGWWMRSALTHACDW

Narrowing down its search for "The Girl We Would Most Readily Skip A Lecture To Have A Coke-Date With", University College at its Red and White Night chose this quartet of freshette charmers. From this fulsome foursome on Thursday evening at the Arts Ball will be selected U.C.'s most suitable coke-date candidate. Barb MacDonald, Dodie Robinette, Shirley Smith and Nan Marlow are the four finalists as the University of Toronto's most pulchritude-packed Arts College seeks its queen.

Footloose Amps and Volts Circuit Break Stops Jolts

By BOB COOKE

There was a flash of light and then all was dark and the busy humming of machines stopped; experiments in the second year Direct Current Machines Lab. came to an abrupt halt. After the first shock of surprise students shouted "Turn on the current".

The demonstrator in charge went to the huge switch panel and pushed a switch and the machines again started. But the students wanted to know what had happened. They grouped around a heavy cable which was burned through and looking at the student of whose experiment it was a part they asked, "What'd you do?"

"I stepped on it and it shorted," he replied, still visibly shaken.

That was all there was to it. Curiosity satisfied, current restored, they returned to their experiments. They gave little thought to the fact that in the course of their experiments they were in constant danger of damaging the machinery or being electrocuted. In fact there is one student in the lab. who regularly gets a shock of 220 volts and believes that it would be quite simple to measure the resistance of his body. All he would have to do is connect himself as part of an electrical circuit and measure the voltage and current of that circuit. Then with a little artificial respiration and a simple calculation he would have his answer.

But the majority of the students aren't so adventurous and accidents are rare. True, they are working with heavy currents, current so heavy that special wires have to be used to carry them, and the machines use 220 volts, and because they are using experimental circuits, the ends of the wires are bare, a constant menace. Also true is the fact that the slightest bit of carelessness could easily cause a motor to burn out, a meter to be smashed or someone to be hurt. To offset these dangers, certain precautions are taken.

Before the main switch which supplies current to the circuit is closed all connections are carefully checked by a demonstrator. Cecking to see that there are circuit breakers in the circuit that will automatically stop the current if it is too heavy, checking to see that meters are properly protected and checking to see that wires used are heavy enough to carry the current and that they are properly connected, the demonstrator makes certain that no accident will happen. Then and only then is the main switch closed and the experiment begun.

But even after the circuit is approved by the demonstrator some accident may happen such as the one described above. Too heavy a current may be drawn and the circuit breakers, either in the experimental circuit or on the switch panel may be blown. Fortunately it is not like blowing a fuse, where a new one has to be bought. A circuit breaker is just an automatic switch that turns off if the current is too heavy. To restore the current flow the handle of the circuit breaker merely has to be pushed to

Intercollegiate Game Has Audience of 1200

Use 'floating' two and one system

By DON COLES

On Saturday night a fighting bunch of Queen's basketballers learned that the will to win is no substitute for experience, and bowed to the Varsity Blues on the latter's home floor by a score of 53-42.

Over 1200 paying customers were present to see the first intercollegiate game to be played in Hart House since the wartime suspension of competition.

The big Blues steam-rolled over their rivals in a convincing demonstration of sheer power and ability, and showed enough basketball "savvy" to satisfy all but the most critical among their supporters.

The opening tip-off gave Varsity control of the ball, and they wasted little time in putting this advantage to good use. Wallace to Thomson to Mayzel, and a neat '2' was hung under Toronto on the score-board. The Blues never looked back.

Mayzel came through with his second basket just after Mal Finlay had tied the game up with a nice shot from outside the key. A Queen's time-out failed to relieve the pressure, Weir and then Cranham hooping shots to make the score 6-4 in Varsity's favour.

After another basket by the sharp shooting Mayzel, followed by a scramble session lasting long enough for both teams to miss several easy chances, Varsity coach Roy Dilworth sent out a new team. Jack Edwards, mentor of the Kingston team, indulged in a bit of strategy, and left his starting line-up on the floor.

Sloppy clearing around their basket cost Varsity 2 points, Gordy McDonnell doing the honours. The same player took advantage of a foul called on Stu Scott to bring the score up to Varsity 8-Queen's 7. The time-keepers showed four minutes had gone by.

At this point—and the Queen's players are still wondering how it happened—the roof literally fell in on them. Doug Spry sparked a Toronto scoring flurry which produced a fast six points. A respite called by the Gaels didn't help, as Mayzel, Thomson and Co., ran them dizzy scoring baskets almost at will.

At the other end of the floor, the floating "2 in 1" defence system of the Dilworth men baffled would-be sharp-shooters at every turn. Wally Zeaton was a ball hawk non pareil, playing his best game of the year.

Referee Harry Mitchell's vociferous antics as he hurled himself up and down the floor, added an undefinable something to the game which made it a real crowd pleaser.

Baskets by Gibson and Spry set the score at 27-13, with four minutes left in the half. The disorganization of the Kingston team was painfully apparent at this stage of the game, with erratic shooting, fouling, and one floor-length pass which almost hit the gallery, as symptoms. Their gruelling week-end schedule Kingston to London to Toronto, with games on successive nights, probably accounts for this lapse.

When the horn went to end the half, the score-board read Varsity 28-Queen's 13. The first minutes of the second half were characterized by scrambly play, to which players of both teams contributed.

Finlay of Queen's was the first to break the scoring ice, making the count 29-15. A rash of baskets followed, Queens chalking up six points to Varsity's five in a space of two minutes. The Gaels were really flying, and only a lack of finesse around the basket kept them from hitting the score-sheet more often than they did.

Varsity called a time-out period (Continued on Page 4) INTERCOLLEGIATE

NOTICE

With respect to the cost of living survey, will all ex-service students who have received letters come to Examination Hall, Monday at 5.15 p.m. Non-service students who have received letters come on Tuesday at 5.15 p.m.

Wanted

Student to make four evening trips between Varsity office and bus station with copy. Bicycle a convenience. Good pay; some time for studying. Apply in person at S.A.C. office, Hart House.

C.U.P. Flashes

Socialists Organize

Winnipeg—Socialists on the Manitoba campus have organized for the first time. Known as the "Labor Club", they plan to discuss Marx and Engels as a beginning to a study of the history of modern socialism.

Broadcast Basketball

Winnipeg—Inter-university basketball publicity has reached radio. Station CKRC, here broadcast Saturday promoting the Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba basketball tournament to be held here at the end of the month.

Baylor Students Now In Trailers

Waco, Texas, Jan. 25 — (Exchange)—Trailers are being used at Baylor University to relieve the housing shortage, according to the Baylor Lariat.

Baylor's business manager announced that the 58 trailer house units would be ready for occupancy shortly. Each of the redecorated units will contain two rooms with sleeping accommodations for four persons and a connecting bath.

The houses, designed for veterans returning to Baylor, will be rented furnished for $30 per month.

the "on" position and the experiments proceed as before.

With all these guards experiments are made with six horsepower motors and generators, verifying facts taught in lectures, usually, and demonstrating the performance and characteristics of direct current motor and generators. An experiment may demonstrate the effect of armature speed on the voltage produced by a generator or it may demonstrate a method of finding the efficiency of a motor, but whatever the experiment, the results are similar to those that would be found in industry for these machines are standard motors and generators.

They are permanently mounted on solid concrete bases and, because this lab. is a part of the training of undergraduate engineers, the experiments, the instruction books, and the lab. reports are the same as they were last year and the year before. But now there is a change impending. If second year is to be at Ajax next year the motor and generators may have to be removed from their mounts and moved out.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a University CollegeMf. 8611
Business OfficeMf. 6221
Night OfficeMf. 8405

Editor-in-Chief...W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor.....Wally Belfry, 476
Make-up Editor.....Peg Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor...John Rooke, 477
News Editor.....George Forster, 477
Assistant.....Blanche Starley, 476
Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor.....Bredin Stapells, 476
Assistant.....Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor Polly Mutz, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange
Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama
Editor.....Phillip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer...Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager—E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Monday, January 28, 1946.

On Schooling (1)

Our readers (bless them) are the most moral and righteous readers with which a paper was ever blessed. The tone of three-fourths of their letters is moral indignation, generally directed at us. It is not to their discredit in our eyes that they are (we think) generally mistaken. It is to the discredit of the shifting times we live in. Indeed, it gladdens us that any dwellers in these times have sufficient grip on a set of standards, however meager, to be morally indignant.

The times, we believe, are largely to blame for the universal groan that has gone up over our recent remarks on education, in the course of which we expressed some doubt of the value of compulsory schooling. We are impenitent. We are content to remain behind the times—or ahead of them. We believe that the human craving, on which we have remarked, to worship something even when the traditional objects of worship are being abandoned, has led to an absurd over-emphasis on the place of schools and the worth of schooling, one of the over-emphases from which the 20th century constitution suffers: like mumps.

It is the law in this province that one must attend school until he has reached a designated age. During that time the state is allowed and indeed encouraged to stuff him full of fantastic lore: after which he is cut adrift to orient himself to the real world. We cannot imagine why General Chisholm and the others who so dread this shock of disenchantment do not attack the school system rather than Santa Claus: perhaps it is because they and the schools are equally in the pay of the state.

Now the universal acceptance of this handing the child over for a period to state instructors constitutes, when one thinks of it, a very strange state of mind. A citizen who would not trust a politician with a dime entrusts him with a dogma. A man who rebels against the state's proposal to deliver his groceries allows it to furnish his child's learning. A man the cornerstone of whose religion is his own private judgment delivers up his son to the state's capricious authority. Why is this?

There are many reasons. One is expert-worship, which is a perversion of the basic and inhuman heresy of success-worship. First the ideal was that all people lived and were loved; then, with the spiritual upheaval of the late Renaissance, the ideal came to be that certain people who "succeeded" at something or other such as plundering should be revered. Next there arose a class of people, hungry like all men for adulation, who were not successful but claimed that they knew how to be; they were the experts, and verily they have their reward. Teachers tend to belong to this class; and a principal claim of the state to educate youth is that it has all the experts in its pay. No one trusts mother any more. Johnny must be "educated" by an expert: at school.

A second intellectual failing contributing to the craze for compulsory schooling is a new confusion about the meaning of education. Education has been well defined as the preparation of the child for what he must do and for what he must be; the modern mind, having lost the notion of being, uses only the second half of the definition. Hence education is falsely equated with mere schooling, and the infinitely more truly educative influences of the home and the church are rejected as having nothing to do with the matter. It is at school, and not at mother's knee, that a boy may learn the number of square feet of paper he will require to decorate some rich man's room with alcoves; or the cost of the cubic yardage of concrete he will need when he settles down to his life-work of lining cylindrical sewers.

It is certainly the job of the school to teach reading, writing, arithmetic, and such other essentials as the world may demand for a useful life; the trouble is that no one now thinks of the necessity of learning anything else; or if he does, he assumes that the school, the established teaching-machine, should teach it.

And again, there is intellectual snobbery; for Mrs. Jones would never dream of letting her neighbour's child grow up a more accurate figurer of wallpaper areas than her Johnny; so off to the same school must Johnny go, for the same period. This intellectual snobbery, by the way . . .

But it is a whole subject in itself, is snobbery of the mind; and it demands more space and a second wind. If our readers will restrain their itch to write rejoinders for one more day, we promise them a royal banquet.

(To Be Continued)

—W. H. K.

Grampus Grumpy Jerkland Jumpy

The following material has been scalped by mental telepathy from the forthcoming third issue of The Grampus. The Varsity offers this service to Grampus editors at no extra charge.

(The meeting-place of the Students' Autocratic Congress. Members, in evening dress and wearing black domino masks, file in, muttering to uniformed guards the password, "Fumble Fumble Fumble". They exchange curt nods of non-recognition, and drift to solitary niches where they cogitate away privately at plans for their college dances.

(At 5:17 the guards snap to salute. Drums roll. Bugles bugle. A peal of ordnance is fired. Enter on the battlements, President Jerkland, armed. The members scurry to their places.)

Jerkland: "Very slow. I do feel it was slow. We'll take that again. Must have discipline."

(He wheels, exits, and repeats the grand entry. Members this time snap to life at the first toot and spring stiffly to attention, chanting "Hail to the Goof who Begs Passes to Dances." Jerkland, satisfied, raps for order.)

Jerkland: "Order, please."
A member: "Ham and eggs." (He is served just dessert.)

Jerkland: "I do feel we must get down to business. I feel a draft. Close that door." (It is closed). I do feel the draft anyway. Better lock it." (It is locked). "That's better. I do feel we can now dispense with the masks."

(There is a rustle of protest.)
Jerkland: "Hurry up, hurry up. or I'll have you pickled." (Shout of joy from the member from S.P.S.)

A member: "But . . . is it safe?"
Jerkland: "Of course, ya dumb tool. I do feel . . ." (sitting "that by this time . . ." (Oonut places a tack on his chair.)

Jerkland: (Starting up) "I do feel . . ." (A member yawns.)

Donut: "Mr. President, things cannot go on like this. Mr. Rickshaw has yawned."

Jerkland (severely): "Mr. Rickshaw, we take a very grave view indeed of such behaviour."

Rickshaw (humbly): "I am sorry, Mr. Chairman. I withdraw my yawn. It was, I realize, out of order."

A member (brightly): "I second the yawn." (He is led out.)

Jerkland: "Have we looked under the table?" (They all do so. Suddenly, scuffling, a figure is dragged out by the heels, clutching a note-book and a bomb, his beard dangling about his left ear. It is the editor of Grampus.)

Jerkland: "Out with him!" (He is led out muttering one-sidedly.)

A voice: "What did he say meeeeee?"

Donut: "It is now safe to proceed. What is on the agenda?"

ced

Jerkland: "To hell with the agenda. I do feel we must first of all hear my opening remarks. In the first place, there is the matter of knitting. I take a very grave view of this. Then there is the matter of spitting. I take a very, very grave view of this. Finally, I should like to say a few words about S.P.S. I am sure we all take a very grave view, a very, very grave view indeed, of this. Now firstly . . ."

Member from S.P.S.: "We've had that."

Jerkland: "Off with his head!"

Members (gasping): "Ohhhhh"

Jerkland (off-handedly): "Off with their heads." (They are taken off). "I shall now read the minutes of the last meeting. At the last meeting, attended, as I recollect, by myself, I moved and seconded . . ."

(Enter a spy with a stink bomb, wrapped in yellow rags.)

Jerkland: "Rally round, comrades, or all is lost!"

(They do not rally round.)

Jerkland (stamping his foot): "I say, rally round."

(They do not move. Their heads are off. The spy advances, uncorking his bomb.)

Jerkland: "I do feel that this is serious. Must I take grave steps, or will you rally round?"

(Babbling, unheeded, he is obscured by thick yellow clouds. A hoarse chuckle sounds.)
Curtain

The famous "sailor" trademark is recognized as a guarantee of unfailing quality.

PLAYER'S NAVY CUT
CIGARETTES

COLLEGE TEXT BOOKS NEW and USED

Try Cole's for that hard-to-get Text book you need

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.

BOOK MARKET
AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE

RA. 1148

(1 Block south of Bloor)

MARRIED EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

The Ex-service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council is conducting an immediate survey of housing requirements for married ex-service students and for those who have children. All married ex-service students who will require living accommodation during this summer and particularly for the next academic term, opening in September are asked to leave their names now at the Students' Administrative Council office, Hart House. Women may register Room 82, University College.

Type of accommodation required and number in the family is necessary.

Only by securing accurate statistics of those who require accommodation can steps be taken to meet the situation this summer and next fall. Nothing will be left undone in attempting to secure adequate living quarters, so that families of ex-service students may not be separated while in attendance at the University.

Do not delay to register.

DO IT NOW

The Ex-Service Committee of the Students
Administrative Council.

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 5 p.m. today.

Ambitious City Crew Swamp Varsity 'Polo'

By CRAIG CRINGAN

Sparked by the sure-fire scoring of McCormack, the Hamilton Aquatic Club swamped Varsity with a 14-4 victory at Hart House Saturday night.

Smoother playing throughout the game gave the experienced Hamilton team their winning edge. With all but one of their group returned war veterans, H.A.C. has practically the same team that won the Dominion Championships in '36, '37 and '38.

One feature of the polo game is that although champion swimmers are generally teen-agers who reach their peak in about two years training, waterpolo players keep on improving with experience. The average age of players on the Hamilton team is 25 years.

Hamilton's coach, Jim Thompson, is a former championship swimmer who won a 3rd for Canada in the Olympics of 1928. He is at present trying to revive interest in waterpolo, a game that was knocked out by the war. Swimmers who tire of trying to beat the stop-watch sooner or later turn to polo, for a sport comparable to hockey or basketball in the tactics employed.

In the first period of the game Hamilton overran a confused Varsity squad, scoring 5 goals in 5 minutes. Goal-keeper C. Larsen was sensational in stopping all Varsity shots.

Tightening up in the second, the Blues poolsters held the visitors to one goal which was matched with a score by Syd Bossin, Varsity wing.

In the third, Hamilton again dominated the play scoring five more goals. Despite the mounting odds the Blues kept fighting throughout the game making the Aquatics earn every goal they got. A Varsity play almost completed would be followed by a successful Hamilton play. Against Intercollegiate teams the Blues will probably find more success.

The final period saw Varsity's most aggressive attacking of the whole evening with three goals scored by each team. Stopping the play whenever necessary, the ref awarded several penalty shots and occasionally removed men from the game.

In the last second Bill Arthurs scored the final goal of the game for Varsity.

Goals Scored

Hamilton:—McCormack (6), L. Larsen (5), Sheehan (1), White-man (1), Cochran (1).

Varsity:—Bossin (1), Martin (1), Kohl (1), Arthurs (1).

The Teams:

Hamilton:—McCormack, L. Larsen, Sheehan, White-man, Depelham, Allaster, St. Aubin, C. Larsen (G), Cochran, Thompson, Park.

Varsity:—Martin, Bossin, Kohl, Curry, Arthurs, Moffat, Rosen, Boa, Fleet, Jones, Lindgren, Jones (G).

"Flying Angels" Flown By Varsity Gymnasts

A hand-picked crew of the cream of the Varsity gymnasts gave a breath-taking exhibition of high-bar work at the halftime rest period of the big basketball game at Saturday's Athletic Night.

Gymnastics instructor and past Olympic champion Charlie Zwygard began the show with an upstart, some elementary bar movements and a cutoff. Jack Phippen, Joe Humphrey and Joe McLaren performed giant swings, fly-away cut-offs, flying angels, and topped the show with a couple of layout back somersaults to sign off.

Willie Mark held the house silent with a marvellous show of strong arm upstarts, circles and other slow, difficult feats of strength.

Last man to appear on the six-man slate was Glen Curtis, who ran into serious difficulties with an unchained bar while going through a very complicated upstart, and after descending, took a theatrical bow, and departed hence—sans une jambe de ses pantalons.

Charlie Zwygard reappeared to put on a superb exhibition of giant swings. For ten minutes he was on the bar, starting with the ordinary swing, then reversing at the apex of his sweep several times, swinging with crossed hands, and pulling every variation on the movement that's in the books. Climaxing the show, Charlie and Joe McClaren mounted the bar at opposite ends, did upstarts, giant swings, and fly-away cut-offs, all simultaneously and all in opposite directions.

If Saturday night's show was a preview of the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Competition slated for Hart House about the end of February, the Toronto students are in for one of the most enjoyable shows ever presented the Athletic Night crowds.

Lack of Support Ends The Council

Montreal, Jan. 24.—(CUP)—Lack of support may bring the Dawson Students' Council to an end. Only ten men turned out to a meeting called Wednesday to outline the organization and purpose of the Council and announce that a new council composed entirely of new students must be elected and operating by the first of March.

Council President Peter Hadsill pointed out that the Council will cease to exist if response is lacking when nominations for Council positions are called for next week.

If this should be the case the funds will revert to the McGill Students' Council and bowling alleys, snack bars, canteen, etc., will be closed at least temporarily. Furthermore Dawson students will have no means of presenting petitions, complaints or suggestions to the university authorities if the need for such should arise.

BEAU BUREAU

Installation of a two-way Date Bureau to accommodate persons anxious to attend the U.C. Arts Ball, has been announced.

A date list may be signed by the dateless men in the U.C. Rotunda, the Arts Ball committee stated. Between 12.30 and 1.30 daily the women of U.C. may sign a similar list in the Women's Union.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 69

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Monday, January 28, 1946

Ivory Towers Less Popular Today Students Voice Opinions—Beattie

By JOHN McRAE

The undergraduate of 1946 clings obstinately but rightfully to his identity as a citizen of the world. Students today are less the mute ivory-tower dwellers. Today the student is determined to have an opinion on world affairs; whether on sturdy or fragile foundation, matters not.

Those are the observations of Dr. S. Beattie, forty years ago an undergraduate at the University of Toronto and today Dean of its Faculty of Arts.

"I am not so sure that this interference of the students is a wise thing," remarked Dean Beattie during an interview with The Varsity. Referring to student participation in local strikes last fall, he suggested that "if they would think it out carefully they would decide they didn't know much about it. They approach with an academic interest and are found to be short on the practical knowledge of the local situation."

PASSIVE REACTION GONE

"Nevertheless," Dean Beattie declared, "better some activity—even wrong—than a stolid view of life that doesn't do anything but accept it the way it is."

The student body of 1945-46 has shown a keener interest in outside affairs than any other in Dean Beattie's memory. The passive undergraduate reaction had vanished in the wake of war, he reported. "It is indicative of the times."

"In our time we would have seen the world go by. We might have been displeased by some of its tendencies, but never would have done anything about it. We thought that we were here to learn what we could and that's all."

"Now students realize that they are individuals and citizens of their country and are qualified to have an opinion about it."

Today's students, in Dean Beattie's opinion, measured up to the rising standards of the University. He noted a decided improvement in class room deportment. Students are "less juvenile and given to childish horse play." Class room dress has improved.

VETS SET FACE

It is his view that the ex-service-men on the campus are the pace setters. The returned man, he said, feels that he must make up for lost time and take life more seriously than the average student just out of high school. "It is inevitable that the high school student will have to follow his lead."

In defense of the recently maligned Pass Course, Dean Beattie asserted that it "serves a very useful function."

"I would not sympathize with the critics of the Pass Course," he said. "It has its advantages. In an Honor Course, especially one in the sciences or mathematics, the student has to work so hard studying the intricacies of mathematical formulae and the curious behaviour of chemical reactions that he very often misses some of the more important aspects of life."

"What good will his formulae do him in life? In the Pass Course however there is the opportunity for the student to develop himself by his own efforts. The lighter demand on his time gives him time to think things out for himself."

"By reading, by discussion, by thought he comes to understand his social function and the important social problems. He can make excellent use of his free time, as after all the level of personal demand can be as high as one wants to make it no matter what the course."

"The employer usually does prefer the Honor to the Pass, but a person can't cash in on this very long. Again it's up to the individual."

Trinity College was founded by Bishop Strachan, who broke with the "Godless" University when religious teaching was abolished and built old Trinity University on Queen St. West.

Coming Events

Tuesday:—A meeting of the University C.C.F. club will be held at Wymilwood in the Blue Room at 8 p.m. to be attended only by members or those who wish to become members.

Tuesday: Canadian War Artist Rowland Murphy will address the Medical Arts and Letters Club on "Art and the Sea" at Wymilwood, 6.45-8.00 p.m. All faculties welcome.

Tuesday: Psychology Club will debate "Resolved that further entrance into the Honor Psychology Course should be discouraged," in Cartwright Hall, 8.00. A special invitation is extended to members of Soc. and Phil.

Hobby Hotbed In Nevada U.

Reno, Nevada, Jan. 25.—(Exchange)—Students at the University of Nevada have some very unusual habits according to the University of Nevada's weekly, Sagebrush.

Hosca Masini, for example, began collecting poetry in the ninth grade because of a compulsory course in English poetry. After wading through a great deal of "long hair rhythm" she decided that amateur poetry, which was especially clever should be given special recognition.

One of the gems of her collection is a poem called "Logic" by Betty Rae of Sparks, Nevada:

"If I were not so fat and big,
I would not eat like a pig,
I would not be so fat and big."

Freshman George Prietti started collecting blotters and pencils ten years ago because the other youngsters his age were doing the same thing. He has about 1,000 of them from all over the world.

Among his more interesting specimens is a pencil with a beer mug on top, and another in the form of a pencil. Both are from Germany. He has one from Austria shaped like a doll.

In addition, Prietti has blotters from every state in the U.S.A. and from several foreign countries.

Prize Papers Read At Meeting

Better aeroplanes, motors, dams, and alloys were discussed in the Engineering papers presented in Hart House Thursday night to the Engineering Society of Canada. Prizes of $40, $30, and $20 were awarded.

First prize winning paper was presented by N. R. Buchanan, IV Electrical, who considered the problems of variable speed alternating current motors.

"The Schrage brush-shifting motor can operate efficiently above or below synchronous speed," he said, "but we have yet to design a thoroughly good alternating current motor."

Ivy, IV Civil, who spoke on "Earth Dams." Though earth dams date back to about 4000 B.C., he predicted that they might supplant concrete to become the dam of the future.

Tied for third place were Gord. Rosenthal, editor of Toke Oike, and J. R. Moore. Rosenthal's paper, on Problems of High Speed Flight, mentioned a German wind-tunnel model of a one-winged, jet-propelled plane which was expected to reach 1,400 m.p.h. Moore's paper dealt with Cemented Carbides, used in industrial cutting tools.

Other contestants were awarded one year's free membership.

Saturday Night's editor B. K. Candwell wrote an article for The Varsity in 1896 entitled "The Influence of the Bicycle upon Poetry."

David A. Croll, Member of Parliament for Toronto Spadina, who will speak to the Liberal Association Wednesday on "Labor Relations". Mayor of Windsor from 1931-34, he was elected to the Ontario Legislature from the constituency of Windsor-Walkerville and was Minister of Public Welfare and Municipal Affairs from 1934-1937. He joined the army as a private in 1939 and rose to Lieutenant-Colonel. He will speak in the Women's Union at 8.00 p.m. Wednesday.

Join Six Groups For NCSV Action

Montreal, Jan. 24.—(CUP)—Six Veteran groups formed a new society at McGill Tuesday, "The Committee of Montreal", to consider action which would implement the decisions of the first National Conference of Student Veterans.

The main purpose of the first meeting was to acquaint the committee with the views and demands of the N.C.S.V. as presented in the brief last week to W. A. Tucker, chairman of the House of Commons Committee of Veterans Affairs.

Representatives from several colleges attended the meeting: McGill, U. of Montreal, Loyola College, Sir George William College, Commercial College of Rehabilitation, and McDonald College.

Most Difficult Course - English

Winnipeg, January 23.—(CUP)—English leads all other languages as the most difficult subject according to a language poll held among students of the Junior Division of United College of the University of Manitoba.

Results of the poll indicate that the students on the whole are not satisfied with teaching methods although they approve of the study of foreign languages itself. A ratio of four to five favor smaller classes.

However 158 of 280 students polled said they would voluntarily choose a language in university and of 150 scientists 160 advocated inclusion of cultural elements into their courses, such as, English and a foreign language.

All students agreed that more study on ground work and vocabulary in foreign languages would be desirable.

FELT CRESTS

Official University felt crests are sold only at the S.A.C. office, Hart House

Price 50c

To be worn only on University Blue.

Suitable for sweater, gym suit or blazer.

Bochner Traitor To Toronto In CBC "Panorama" Appearance

By MARGARET BOWES

He's modest but self-confident; he's in both second and third-year Sociology; and, although a native Torontonion, he last week took part in one of the C.B.C. "Panorama" series shows entitled "We All Hate Toronto". His name is Lloyd Bochner.

Years of stage and radio experience were a prelude to Bochner's appearance upon the comment-stirring show on Toron'o. At the age of eleven his dramatic lessons first bore fruit when he won a juvenile part in the pup-food program "Doc. Pard". Throughout public and high schools he continued his amateur stage work in conjunction with work on such radio shows as Rai Purdy's "Circle-K Club" and O'Keefe's "Teen Times". In 1942 with his Senior Matriculation diploma in one hand, Lloyd settled down in radio for a year. During this time, among other things, he announced for Lux Radio Theatre and emoted in that well-known tear-jerker "Soldier's Wife."

In 1944 after a year in U.C.'s Pass Course he deserted the campus to join the Navy. It was while with the Navy that Lloyd took part in the "Fighting Navy" show and in various Victory Loan programmes, sharing the spotlight with such celebrities as Brian Aherne and Shirley Temple. Well, almost Shirley Temple. The Navy put it up to him like this, "It's either Shirley Temple—or a commission." He'd already heard that she was going to be married, so—

It seems that when they heard Lloyd's mellow voice on "Fighting Navy" the bobby-soxers melted right in their tracks. At any rate he blushing admits the receipt of some fanmail of an "effervescent" nature. Had television been in, perhaps Swoonster Sinatra might have been called upon to defend his laurel wreath. Among his naval comrades Lloyd says he had Jekyll-Hyde trouble, for he was constantly being identified and introduced as "Jack Marlowe" (the fictitious character from "Fighting Navy").

This Fall Lloyd re-entered Varsity using his service credits to switch from Pass Arts to Sociology and to take half second and half third year work. "Which means" quoth he, "that next year I graduate." His plans for the future are still somewhat indefinite; however, on the basis of past performances success is easy to predict.

Currently, what with the demands of his Course, pleas for aids in campus shows, and his radio schedule, Lloyd finds little time for thumb-twiddling. We could go on to remind you that he helped direct the U.C. Follies and to suggest that he will probably materialize on stage again sometime during the Arts Ball. Oh yes, and we almost forgot—he's in the movies too! Last December he made his screen debut in an Associated Screen News short, "Grandpa Throws a Party". He was, he says, neither Grandpa nor the Party but a juvenile.

"Yes," agreed this versatile young man, "I have played everything from puddings to Romeo." He meant it literally too.

At twelve years of age he enacted the role of The Great Lover, and strangely enough, during a recent production of "Alice in Wonderland" was obliged to simulate a pudding. Looks as if the cart had somehow been hitched before the horse.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

It seems unfortunate that these discussions in The Varsity editorials and in the correspondence columns so quickly go to extremes. It is only natural, suppose, that in attempting to state the truth in contradistinction to an opposing error, one tends to miss the truth contained in that error. And so I have been with the problem of education. The "sides" haven't taken the time to state their principles.

Clearly education is not an end in itself. For it is of the nature of an end to satisfy us; to let us rest upon its attainment. This is not so with education. All are agreed so far, I think, for though they must look upon education as the entire to better social circles, or as the way to support their family, or as a guide to the real end, it is as a means to something.

Thus if education is a means, its type will be determined by the nature of the end for which it is the means. If you and I are "economic men" then education to be good should provide us with the tools to be good economic men. If we are intellectual beings, then education to be good, should help us to be full and developed intellectual beings. If we are also moral beings, with a supernatural end beyond the living of this life, then education should guide and assist us to be good moral beings. Here then is opportunity for divergence, but since tradition has given place to all three, let us keep them, and grant that our education should be of such a nature as to provide for these ends. That should help us find the path.

If we know where we are going generally, does it mean that there is only one way to get there? Is there one type of education for all men, standing for all time? Should we demand that all children be taught, at least, how to read, and write, and cipher? I think not. For a parent in some small Indian village to teach his son how to carve ivory ornaments, to relate the tales and stories of their cultural traditions until his son has them well enough by memory to relate to his son in turn, and to instruct him in the practice of their religion, fulfills the end of education as well as the general instruction given in our Canadian schools. That is far from saying that such instruction is complete or corresponding to a perfect form. May we say then that education is a good thing in so far as it helps achieve the end or purpose of our life.

How is all this related to the Pass Arts question? In your editorials you have maintained that a university education is not necessarily good for all, and I agree with you. Some who have not an aptitude for study, need not go to university, and they will not miss for they will voluntarily decline to fulfill the conditions which such an education demands. And amongst those who have the aptitude, there are bound to be various powers and levels. The distinction between the Pass and Honor Courses in the University of Toronto is realistic and helpful since it recognizes this difference and tries to answer the various needs. So why the absolute condemnation of Pass Arts? It may be criticized in this or that aspect in which it appears to be failing to fulfill its purpose. Again as Mr. Hutchins has, someone may suggest the Pass Arts course be discontinued because it is misused, is cutting the nose to spite the face, or rather throwing away the face because of the nose.

The question is large and difficult, and a mere stating of views is incomplete. The Varsity has rightly questioned the so called progressive notion that education without giving much thought to its purpose, thing, and there should be lots of and hence its content, is a good thing. The Varsity has rightly stated that to commend democracy as a suitable form of government for us, is not to admit that all men are equally capable of benefiting from higher education. In fact, I have been consistently delighted by The Varsity's editorials.

I wonder—does this make me a reactionary?

—Des Fitzgerald,
IV Philosophy.

Intercollegiate

(Continued from Page 1)

at the seven minute mark, with the score standing at 33-23 in their favour. The rest proved sound strategy for it gave the red hot Tricolor boys a chance to cool off—and they took it! When the play was resumed the Blue and White once again held the initiative, and they never lost it.

Wally Zeaton, who can flash the ball around in a style reminiscent of 'Hoop' Davey, of Rochester Royal fame, was the key man in a ball-ragging campaign, which served to protect the Varsity lead. Over-anxiety on the part of the Queen's players was responsible for the addition of several points to the home-sters via the foul-shot route.

Murray Thomson and Colin Cranham were the big guns in the Toronto attack in the last ten minutes, with Doug Spry's defensive work also a feature.

Weir and McDonnell put on a display of marksmanship for the rest of Queen's field goals, the latter being high scorer for the evening with 15 points to his credit.

The game ended with Varsity in possession, and ragging the ball at the centre, the final score reading Varsity 53-Queen's 42.

Jack Edwards, head basketball coach at Queen's, had no alibis for his team's defeat. "We were simply overpowered. They had ten men to our five. But, he added, "we will do better in Kingston."

Ormy Weir, right guard, was more emphatic. Ex-Varsity intermediate, ex-air force, but definitely not an 'ex' as far as basket ball ability is concerned, Ormy climbed right out on ye proverbial limb, and said, "We'll nail 'em to the mast . . . You can quote me on that."

Master-mind Roy Dilworth expressed his satisfaction at the way his boys had worked, mildly noting that "our set-shot men were off." He praised Doug Spry's rebound work, and went on to sound a note of warning re next week's game.

Lineups

Varsity: Wallace (captain), Mayzel (9), Spry (8), Fountain, Thomson (8), Gibson (3), Clayton, Scott (8), Cranham (12), Zeaton (5).

Queen's: Weir (9), Devitt (5), Brown, Hewitson (4), McDonnell (15), Moss, Cooper (2), Mason (2), Finlay (5).

Officials: — Bill Rogin, Harry Mitchell.

Vic's rousing "On the Old Ontario Strand" is adapted from a Rutgers' University song of the 80's, containing the lines, "On the bank of the old Raritan, my boys, Where Rutgers evermore shall stand."

ignatz sez:
"Watch for the

TYPICAL COLED
CONTEST"

Sponsored by the I.S.S.

Eager Aggies Down Senior Blues 44-39

After tossing the lead back and forth through forty minutes of ball the Guelph Aggies took a 44-39 win over the Toronto Senior A's. Varsity edged out two points over Guelph in the first half, to be leading 29-27 at half-time. The Aggies came back strong to outscore Toronto 17-10 in the last frame and carry their close victory back to Guelph.

The visitors took an early lead of one point, when Carlson netted a foul shot. Galt and Potruff countered to give Toronto a 4-1 lead which was quickly eaten up by the eager Aggies, who held their margin until it was all knotted up at 19-19. Varsity then leaped to a 25-19 edge, but lost four baskets to the Aggies while scoring only two themselves, to complete the 29-27 rest period score.

The teams advanced neck and neck through the better part of the last half, and with seven minutes to go, the score-board read 38-38. In the next four minutes, the Aggies went through to count six points, and with a three basket margin and three minutes of play, settled down to Kitty-bar-the-door play. They were successful—their defence kept the Varsity squad from making any field-goals, and although Toronto had four foul-shots awarded in the last three minutes, they waived the throw each time, to helplessly try for the needed field goals.

The Guelph squad worked more as a trio—three men, Burnett (14), Hutchinson (10) and Smith (9), counted 33 of the team's 44-point total, the Toronto gang worked as a team, the scoring being divided much more evenly. Tetmar was top man for Varsity, with nine points, followed by Andrews and Himmel with seven apiece.

O.A.C.—Arscott, Kennedy (4), Burnett (14), Smith (9), Carlson (4), Hutchinson (10), Shields (3), Cunningham, Thomson.

Toronto—Galt (4), Andrews (7), McAdam (4), Lowes (2), Potruff (4), Himmel (7), Hennessy, Swan (2), Tetmar (9), Sturgis.

?
Who Will Be
The King of Hearts
?

smoke the mild
cigarette

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Stores: 31 Bloor W., MI. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation

OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty—Have Your Date Wear One to the U.C. Arts Ball.

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Still Some Tickets

ARTS BALL

Thursday, January 31

SONNY DUNHAM

ART HALLMAN

BOBBY GIMBY

FLOOR SHOW

Cinemarathon

Appeal In Percentage

Varsity Intermediates Vanquish O.A.C. Seconds

By REG. HERMAN

Streamlining our reviews to keep in step with the new professional format, The Varsity herewith begins an ultra-professional movie review column. The pictures will not be classified by bells or stars but by per centage—the proportion of the audience that will enjoy the picture. This idea is not copyrighted.

Yolanda and The Thief at Loews, 10%. The one-tenth who will enjoy this picture are the kind that goes in for technicolor, gorgeous sets and bathtub scenes. All the reviews of this picture yell that something "doesn't click", something has slipped.

Fred Astaire isn't to blame, even if he isn't a ballet dancer. Most people like their dancing a little less deep, though. Just what is the significance of a dish-towel anyway?

And Frank Morgan isn't to blame, although he does precious little to help. Lucille Bremer looks cute in soap-suds, but she takes more time getting dressed than she does bathing, which is bad for Yolanda and The Thief.

The direction and photography are good, the music is fair and the sets are sensational. And it's all in Technicolor!

But the most insipid, hackneyed, nauseating script ever attached to a half-decent picture ruins the show completely. The lines are trite, banal, unfunny and corny, from the very beginning to the final clinch.

'S a shame.

Madonna and the Seven Moons at the Uptown, 99%. The 1% that won't like this picture are ministers and children. For any University student this picture is one of the best of the year, something for which to be grateful to England's movie studios.

Aside from a little English corn Madonna is a really absorbing and exciting picture. It hits moments of high drama and a pitch of intense emotion rarely achieved in movies.

The two stars, Phyllis Calvert and Stewart Granger stand out, but the whole cast is pretty fair, and for once the girls are pretty. This is a rare achievement in British films.

See the picture from the beginning or you'll be sorry, and don't let the English accent of the Italian gangsters spoil your enjoyment of the love scenes.

The symbolism of the final scene is perfection.

Johnny Angel at the Imperial, 85%. Here's another picture you've got to see from the beginning, or you'll spoil the better-than-average whodunit angle.

Searching for the murderer of his father, who disappears with crew off his ship at sea, George Raft runs into a tangle of bouncers, night-club gangsters, frustrated love and Hoagy Carmichael's 'Memphis in June'.

An outstanding bit is played by a fat boy (whose name slips our mind), as the owner of the steamship line. He is madly in love with his wife, Claire Trevor, who needless to say despises him and is madly in love with our Johnny.

After visiting the bedrooms of both Claire and Signe Hasso, Johnny has a tough decision to make, but after he's beat up practically everybody in the picture and unravelled a rather good mystery, he and Hoagy Carmichael set up a menage a trois with Signe.

If you enjoy this type of picture, then this is a head above others of its type. If you go more for Shirley Temple, read on.

Kiss and Tell at Shea's, 90%. The rating is high for this picture because the audience went into hysterics every time Dexter said "Holy Cow" and Corliss Archer attempted to display her maturity.

The humor is slapstick on a fairly high level, that is if you like complicated situations. And if you like precociousness in an over-sexed adolescent with a tendency towards idiocy, why you'll simply adore Corliss, who is rather well-played by Shirley Temple.

The story eventually centres around Corliss' pregnancy resulting from a long series of complications and family troubles. The high spot of the picture is when Dexter is named as the father. Unfortunately it's all a mistake.

If you saw the play, don't see the picture. Sex doesn't transplant too well to a Hollywood movie.

is the basis, I believe, of our disagreement.

I claim that, due to insufficient discrimination, you have, in rejecting Scientific Method as a witch word rejected along with it what could be your most powerful weapon in your campaign against witchcraft in general. I tried to show in a previous letter, that you had thrown away a possible key to the problem of the Open Mind.

You have already made your views on the Japanese-Canadian situation known, and I wish to point out that Scientific Method is one of your most powerful allies in the solution of this problem.

One of the primary causes of this situation is the kind of irrational, unscientific thinking which comes to the conclusion that all people of Japanese descent are inherently evil. "... these people, who kicked the teeth out of half our boys over there..." History shows what horrors can be committed, even by well-meaning people, when corrupted by superstition, irrationality, and the habit of overlooking facts.

Every time that you deride Scientific Method, when your intention is actually to deride its fraudulent imitators, you are giving inestimable aid and comfort to our mutual

On Saturday afternoon the Varsity Intermediate basketball team under the coaching of Tommy Waldon defeated the Ontario Agricultural College second team by the score of 47 to 39.

Both teams played fairly clean, fast ball with the visitors appearing to have a slight edge of stage fright at the first, but towards the end of the game they were hitting their stride and were threatening to tie up the game but for some nice work by big Red Heinbuck of Varsity.

The Blue boys began the scoring when Cheifitz sunk a one-hander which was followed by baskets from Shimizu, Oakleaf and Heinbuck, until Pat Humphries popped in two nice jump shots from the head of the key-hole only to have Varsity captain Yashim Shimizu add two more to make the score 12-4.

From here to the end of the half the teams took turns at scoring, but in this period many of the Red-men's shots were decidedly tricky, and did not meet with much success.

The first half finished up with the score in favour of the hometown boys 25-16. O.A.C.'s Pat Humphries was outstanding for his floorwork and screening as well as being leading scorer for both teams while "Shimy" Shimizu played well for Varsity.

The second half started out with some very fast basketball and the slight tendency toward rough play was quickly and efficiently checked by officials Bob Lye and Gene Duracher. Varsity got the better of the third quarter and forced O.A.C. to call a time out with the score 38-24 against them.

A weird defensive play occurred when Varsity's Heinbuck smoothly tipped the ball out of the basket from the inside, but this nice bit of goal tending did not go unnoticed by the ref, who rightfully awarded Humphries his field goal.

With Fred Roemmele and Captain Bob McConney playing good ball the visitors steadied up their erratic shooting and outscored the Blues 15-9 after the time-out. Their foul shot record was excellent.

Red Heinbuck of Varsity led the scoring with Pat Humphries not far behind. Red's 14 with 12 points. Herb Cheifitz (V), Shimy Shimizu (V) and Fred Roemmele (O.A.C.) followed with nine each.

Lineup and scoring:

Varsity Intermediates—Don Blair (4), Herb Cheifitz (9), Yashim Shimizu (9), Ian Morrison (1), Red Heinbuck (14), Eric McMillan (7), Ken Oakleaf (3). Total 47.

O.A.C. Seconds—Orme Raymond (4), George McDonald (2), Pat Humphries (12), Bob Black (2), Bill Randall (3), Jim Hay, Joe Leggett (2), Bob McConney (5), Fred Roemmele (9). Total 39.

DIRECT TO AJAX

BUSES LEAVE

TORONTO BUS TERMINAL

a 6:25 a.m. a 2:30 p.m.
b 7:45 a.m. b 3:55 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)
(b—except Sat., Sun. and Hol.)

TO AJAX ROAD AND NO. 2 HIGHWAY

a 6:30 a.m. 8:40 a.m.
7:30 a.m. 9:30 a.m.
and every hour
on the half hour
until 10:30 p.m.
Also 11:40 p.m.
(a—except Sun. and Hol.)

GRAY COACH LINES

Bay at Dundas—Adelaide 4221

Fists And Twists Varsity O.A.C.

In the Hart House Upper Gym, on Saturday night Varsity played host to the wrestlers and boxers from the Ontario Agriculture College.

Did I say Hosts?? At times they appeared more like blood enemies as the Aggies and Blues "Hammer & Tongue" men went about their work in a sincere and business like fashion.

In the pachyderm Department, the first half of the programme, The Blue and White won the match by a decided margin—6 bouts to 2 with 1 draw. The final and feature wrestling contest lasted, but a fraction of a round as Vickers hurt his knee when thrown heavily by Campbell of Varsity.

The individual results in wrestling were as follows: (150 lbs.) Heath (T) over Clifford (A), (118) Drouin (T) over Eichenberger (A),

(Continued on Page 7)

FISTS AND TWISTS

Dates Without Tears Via Purdue Bureau

West Lafayette, Indiana, Jan. 26. —(Exchange)—The Student Senate of Purdue University has established a date bureau for lonesome twosomes. Spurred on by the equal ratio of the sexes on the campus, the Senate announced that the scheme will work on a filing card system.

In order to qualify, students must state their age, height, complexion, and preference in the opposite sex. Far from being unpopular, the system attracts more and more clients.

Spokesmen for the Senate insist that selection for dates is done on a purely impartial basis. The executive of the Sweet Shoppe Sign-Up Section also say that they are planning tours of the women's residences to induce bashful lassies to sign. Most of the activity takes place on the last three days of the week since most dates are wanted on week-end evenings.

Paper's Policy Is Now Amended

Montreal, January 24.—(CUP)—Amendments in the future policy of The Daily, McGill's campus newspaper, were discussed Wednesday night at a joint meeting of the Students' Executive Council with the Managing Board and full editors of The Daily.

Among recommendations approved by the Council were that editorials written in The Daily be initiated by the author, that greater care be taken to ensure printing of essential and official notices which must appear on a certain day, and that The Daily take greater care in covering undergraduate Society news. These will come into effect following approval by a general meeting of The Daily Staff.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I hope that a conditioned commendation from one of your regular critics will not be too much of a shock.

I wish to join with you in your battle against "witchwords". It is too depressingly true that superstition is rampant in this century. It is true, too, that one of the most common varieties of superstition is connected with science.

There are quacks, imitators and fanatics in every field of human endeavor, and undoubtedly science is an exceedingly fertile field in this respect.

"Sudso soap is 99 99/100 percent Pure."

"Scientific Tests show that 3 out of 4 doctors smoke Dromedary cigarettes." (Accompanied by picture of 'eminent scientist' with a slide-rule and a stack of log tables.)

"Science shows that Man is merely a collection of atoms."

Yes, and even science as commonly taught in schools abounds in superstition and metaphysics, in a less dangerous form. "Mass is the quantity of matter in a body: Conservation of Energy: . . . Potential Energy: . . . Total Effective Force: . . ." These magic phrases are repeated by the bulk of students with a reverence which might more appropriately be attached to "One is All, All is One: . . . Truth is the Essence of Beauty: . . ." They are, it is true, fundamental physical concepts, but unless they are examined with care by the student, they become metaphysical concepts as far as he is concerned.

We must fight against witchcraft. But, in doing so, we must distinguish the fraud from the genuine, lest, in throwing out the one we abandon with it the other. This

HIAWATHA JUNIOR CAMP

For boys and girls 4 to 10 years

Engaging counsellors now, men and women

PHONE MRS. H. LEIZNER—MEL. 9634

Mighty welcome

Drink

Coca-Cola

COCO-COLA CO. LTD. - TORONTO

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone MI. 6762

(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)

OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING

Special Discounts to Students and Members of the Faculty

Art, Music and Drama

Mr. and Mrs.

An outstanding vocal recital was given last night at the regular Hart House Sunday evening concert, by Kathleen Busby, soprano and Jean Letourneau, tenor, who last fall became "Mr. and Mrs.". The attendance was smaller than usual, but it will not be long before ticket-scalpers will be doing a good business on this family's concerts.

The program consisted mainly of seldom-heard duets and solos, all of which are of the highest musical calibre. By comparison, most of the songs presented by the celebrated Jussi Björling at a recent Toronto concert were utter twaddle.

Although Miss Busby is only in her middle twenties, her performance was amazing. Her voice is light in timbre, but clear and very beautiful. Her technique appears flawless; her breath-control is such that on high sustained notes her voice floats along with an ethereal calm; her decrescendos raise that means into an end in itself. She can sing rapid staccato passages that are more like a violinist's saltando than a human voice. A recording of her performance of three short pieces from Britten's Serenade would be a valuable acquisition to anyone's collection. The lightness of her voice tends to limit the types of works in which she sounds at her very best, but there is still a wealth of great music at her disposal.

The duets were very well blended, which is not the case when singers of very different tastes perform together. Both artists sang in a very musicianly manner.

Mr. Letourneau's group showed to good advantage his pleasing lyric style and his warm, attractive voice.

Marjorie Lea at the piano proved an able accompanist.

—BROCK McELHERAN

Lament and Faint Praises

In the space of 72 short hours this city's orchestra descended from the exalted heights to which Hans Kindler had brought it on Tuesday night to the level of an ordinary, nay, a mediocre Pops concert last Friday. On Tuesday the house was packed, but on Friday there were long rows of empty seats. What is the reason for this? Is it the frequency of these concerts, the monotony of the program-making, or the musical discrimination of the Toronto public? The by-line tells us that the organization still has a very large annual deficit, and is petitioning the city for funds again; no orchestra is expected to be self-supporting, but surely there is no sense in pursuing an apathetic policy which fills a hall to a mere two-thirds capacity.

Be that as it may, Friday's concert illustrates this theory perfectly. Director MacMillan led adequately but never exceptionally. The Prelude to Don Giovanni, bristling with dramatic opportunity, was insufficiently realized; Strauss' Rosenkavalier Waltzes sounded listless; while the Scherzo was thoughtlessly pilfered from Tchaikovsky's Fourth, creating a most ineffective tone poem. The sole standout appeared to be the fine Semiramide Overture, which exemplifies anew Rossini's remarkable flair for melodic line and the dramatic crescendo. Nevertheless, the energy of the performance was largely impelled from within the score itself.

The soloist merits attention, although through no great excellence of her own. I do not mean to be deliberately malicious, but one marvels at the courage of a singer who dares to display such lack of voice before a reasonably sophisticated gathering. Miss Mildred Dixon, of Hamilton, can scarcely be considered an exponent of inter-civic relations; for I suspect that the audience did not warm to a pinched upper range, insufficient volume and noisy luftpausen, scooping before climaxes, etc. Here, at last, is the small town girl who hasn't quite made good, and who indubitably requires a good deal of practise and breathing exercise before she can expect any measure of critical acclaim. Miss Dixon has pos-

Skippping Army Classes Can Be Expensive

Lawrence, Kansas, Jan. 25.—(Exchange)—Students who skip classes at the United States Army's University in Shrivenham, England, are liable to acourt-martial and a $25 fine. Dr. John W. Ashton former professor of the university told students at the University of Kansas last week.

Overcoming the soldier's suspicions was the first task of the university, and the old army slogan "don't volunteer for anything" made the volunteer students alert for the "catch", he said.

sibilities and is certainly not without talent, but it must be nurtured assiduously and carefully before further exhibition. In the meantime, we have a right to expect a better standard of guest artist.

—D. GORDON ROSS

From Saskatoon To Rachmaninoff

Good tonal balance and a remarkable co-ordination marked the Eby and Bedford duo-piano recital in Eaton Auditorium Saturday night. Both artists hail from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, where they received their first acclaim. Since that time, advanced study and a wide experience have provided them with a repertoire extending from Mozart to Rachmaninoff.

Bedford has achieved a crisp, efficient style of technique, using a distracting amount of vertical arm movement. Miss Eby's approach is not less effective, yet she possesses in addition a finely-developed poetic sense which is often subordinated to her partner's mechanical tendencies. As a consequence, the numbers with Miss Eby at the first piano proved to be the more sensitive, the more aesthetically satisfying.

Debussy's En Blanc et Noir contained all the sparkle and splash of the impressionist's art. The duo-pianists treated it with full sympathy and finesse. A trifle disappointing was the encore, Bach's Sheep May Safely Graze arranged by Grainger. In spite of a sensitive interpretation, Grainger's attempt to Graingerize Bach did not appear to good advantage. Mary Howe's transcription for two pinacos containing a more tasteful display of the Bach qualities, and does not debase them.

It is lamentable that the old masters did not realize the scope and articulation of the piano ensemble.

AJAX ENG. SOC.
PRESIDENT

VOTE
McAULIFFE

"The Man For Ajax"

5 GOOD SENSES
—Senses, That Is

(Thank You, Senator Claghorn)

HEARING Sonny Dunham at the Arts Ball

SEEING the handmade clothes at Louis Cohen's

TASTING the delicacies of chicken chow mein

FEELING the imported woolens at Louis Cohen's

SMELLING the Great Hall Kitchen

LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES

499 SPADINA AVENUE
at College
RA 8995-6

Open nine to nine,
Saturdays until six.

Three to four week service.
(Sooner if you prod us.)

If they had, we would own today a wealth of music written expressly for two pianos. As it is, many transcriptions of the masters' works are worse than mediocre.

—COURT STONE.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	1:00	WYC vs. FOR. B.	Horkins, Farrell
	4:30	MED I vs. U.C. I.	Doyle, Brownridge
BASKETBALL MAJOR	1:00	JR. MED vs. JR. SPS.	Maxwell
	4:00	PRE-MED. A vs. DENT. A.	Dzapino
	6:30	PHE II vs. JR. U.C.B.	Swan
BASKETBALL MINOR	1:00	EMM. B vs. U.C. HOLWOOD.	Smith
	4:00	IV AERO vs. II CIVIL.	Kerrison
	6:30	PRE-MED. B vs. U.C. IV.	Rotman

HOUSING ACCOMMODATION

Ajax

A list of available living quarters in Ajax Village, Whitby, and Oshawa, for married couples and single students, has been prepared by the Students' Administrative Council, Ajax. Apply S.A.C. Office, Administration Bldg., 1 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.

Classified Advertisements

WANTED

Harper's abridged "Der Streit um den Sergenten Grische," by Zweig. Please phone KI 5779 after 6.

LOST

B.S.R. Fraternity pen, lost on Tuesday on the campus. Reward. Phone RA 6848.

TIPS

'n Tunes for all students. Nightly, 11.05 to 12.00. CKEY.

FOR SALE

Women's white figure skates, size 6. Excellent condition. Fine make. Phone KI 2978, after 7 p.m. M. Matuska.

LOST

Lady's Birk's Challenger watch, Thurs. a.m. Please return to S.A.C. office, Hart House. $20.00 reward.

RADIO REPAIRS

For Radio Repairs at Ajax, see Gus. Room 10, Buldg. 733.

LOST

High School ring, Harbord Collegiate crest, vicinity Physics and Biology Bldgs. or Grads Lunch, Friday, Jan. 25. Please leave at S.A.C. office.

PERSONAL

Maude, if you are still desirous of going to the Arts Ball, try the Date Bureau which will be in the Women's Union every day from 12.30-1.30 p.m. There are still lots of available men who need dates. Beulah.

LOST

Grey Waterman's pencil between House 730 and classroom 705. R. P. Lindsay, Res. 730, Room 5, or leave at S.A.C. office, Ajax.

FOUND

Man's wrist watch, in Athletic Wing, Hart House, before Christmas. May be claimed at S.A.C. office, for price of this ad.

LOST

Scarlet wool scarf, between Economics Bldg. and Convocation Hall, before Christmas. Finder please leave at Women's S.A.C. office, Room 82 U.C.

LOST

Parker vacuumatic pen, in Economics Bldg., Thurs. afternoon. Finder please phone Jacobson, MI 2700.

TYPING

Notes, theses, etc. Very reasonable rates. JU 5667.

WANTED

Ticket for Feb. 22nd, Vic-At-Home, in exchange for ticket for Feb. 1st dance. MO. 7320, after six.

PERSONAL

Moe if you have not yet gotten a date for the Arts Ball try the ARTS BALL DATE BUREAU which is being situated in the U.C. Rotunda daily for our use. I hear results are guaranteed. Joe.

U.C. SOPH-FROSH BANQUET PICTURES

Will all those students who have signed for Soph-Frosh Banquet picture but who have not received them, come to the Lit office in the Junior Common Room, to-day between 3-4.30 p.m.

AJAX!

"ALL THAT CAN BE DONE
WILL BE DONE"

VOTE
CHASSELS
1st. Year President

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
BRASS BAND

Full Attendance Required at Practices on
TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS, 5 P.M.
at the Drill Hall

BAND IS NEEDED TO SUPPORT ATHLETIC EVENTS
DANCE IS PLANNED IN FEBRUARY FOR THE BAND

BEAT MICHIGAN TWICE HERE

• Sportswoman •

By Polly Mutz

MORE CHOPPED ICE

Vic. I started last week's hockey schedule with a right good start . . . defeated U.C. 14-0 in a good, fast and clean game . . . with Jean Brandon, Joan Chalk and Leona Emsun doing the scoring, the U.C. goalie Mary McMillan was kept reasonably busy, did a creditable job keeping the score pared down to the size reported.

Tuesday featured P.H.E. 1 with a win over St. Hilda's with a score of 1-0 . . . Earle making the sole goal. It was a rough game, each team with one penalty to their credit, which was generous of the referee considering the dogged determination exhibited by all players to win.

St. Mike's came out on top in their game with P.H.E. 11, after abandoning defensive tactics for offensive play—Olive Coughlin smashing in three goals, Pat Douane one. Other scores . . . U.C. II 4—St. Hilda's II 1; O.C. E 3—Vic. II 1.

More rules and regulations have appeared . . . the most disastrous prohibits Intercollegiate basketball players from playing hockey . . . thus Vic. loses Betty Fullerton and Joan Chalk, U.C. Mary Hicks. To facilitate the turning of the hockey wheels, an ordinance has limited the number of players to be dressed for a game to 10 . . . they must be ready to go on the ice fifteen minutes before the game or lose by default . . . the "no body-checking" rule was underlined.

2,000 Rooters Watch Home Team Outplay Visiting Wolverines 9-5

By BOB. MORRISON

The overwhelming power which the Blues possess throughout their squad came to the fore on Friday night as Varsity walloped the University of Michigan Wolverines 9-3, in the first game of a week-end double-header.

The gathering of about 2,000 watched the Yanks live up to pre-game predictions in the opening five minutes of play as they efficiently routed the attacks of the Halder-Ball-Henry trio. Right-winger Bill Jacobson broke through early to test Dick Ball who handled the threat easily.

With the play gradually being confined to the Michigan end zone, Capt. Connie Hill of the visitors received the game's first penalty for charging. Ace Bailey then launched a five-forward squad composed of the Halder centred line, aided by Jim Bromley and Bill Kosick. This combination paid off while holding the one-man advantage as Halder cashed in on a three-way passing play with Kosick and Ball.

The Blues continued to press strongly as MacInnes was called upon to make several good saves. Breaking up the locals' ganging attack, Jacobson went down alone but was hampered by Kosick who got the nod from Referee Pat Patterson on a tripping count. The Ann Arbor Crew were unimpressive during this advantage as Toronto's Bill Lawler threatened to break away on several occasions.

Just as Kosick returned Wolverine Renfrew was banished for hooking followed in succession by Cossalter and Henry. While Cossalter was cooling his heels Ball made it 2-0 on a pass from Halder.

In the play that followed both goalies were tested from close in with Kryzanowski doing a bit of solid blue-line thumping while Varsity was short handed. With the teams at full strength Celley, Gacek and Grant made a determined, but short-lived bid, to put the visitors in the game.

The Blues moved into the Michigan territory and stormed all around the opposition's goal. Halder did everything but put the puck in the net while lying on the ice in front of goalie MacInnes. Thereafter Halder regained his feet and pushed in the final goal of the canto with Doyle and Gord. Ball being credited with assists. The play roughened as the Blues continued to keep MacInnes on his knees until the period ended.

Opening the second stanza with a rapid thrust Gacek drew first blood for Michigan on a pass from Grant just 20 seconds after the face-off. The visitors continued to threaten for several minutes but failed to get a direct shot on goal. Henry cleared and moved the puck into enemy territory and Lawler made it 4-1 on an ankle-high shot from directly in front of the goal and 20 feet out.

Play moved up and down the ice with first MacMillan, Jacobson and Renfrew showing some better than average passing plays for Michigan and then Bauer receiving an ovation as he broke in the clear only to be robbed on a fine save by MacInnes. Renfrew bolstered the Wolverine attack at 5:29 when he twined a crease edge shot after a flurry had been turned aside by Dick Ball.

The pace livened considerably at this point as Doyle was thumbed for interference. Wally Gacek drove in repeatedly but failed to find the mark. The officials drew down the loudest protest of the night when visitor Ross Smith was given a misconduct penalty for not removing his stick which he broke during a rush in the play. With Doyle still off, 'Sonny' Kryzanowski put on an entertaining puck-raging display which baffled and somewhat embarrassed the Michigan forwards. Toronto began to drive once more and Kryzanowski set up Halder who went in for a back hand that beat the goalie cleanly. Henry followed this up seconds later to make it 6-2 for Toronto. Toronto continued their ganging after the player change with Puttock and Bromley being stopped from close in. Dave Bauer flashed the light to put the locals up by a five goal margin. The players began to mix it up slightly and the play became scrampily with neither team threatening for several minutes. Then Toronto's "Rushing Defenseman" Kryzanowski skated through the entire Michigan team only to lose his balance in front of the net before he could get a shot away.

The Blues began to monopolize play once more with Kosick, Bromley and Bauer drawing several rounds of applause for their smooth play to bring the score up to 8-2. Seconds later Ball made one of his best saves of the night—doing the splits on Jacobson who came in alone. As the frame ended Bromley was worrying MacInnes again with a couple of close in sizzlers.

In the opening minutes of the final period the shots on goal were about evenly distributed as successive efforts by both teams to hit the score sheet failed. Kosick broke through once, took his shot, drew back the rebound but just couldn't raise the disk over the prone MacInnes who had blocked "Wild Bill's" shot. The Jacobson-Renfrew-MacMillan line carried the puck right back and Jacobson cut sharply around the defense but Wade tipped his shot over the top of the net.

At the 9:04 mark Wally Gacek, one of Michigan's best, scored what proved to be the visitors' final marker when he split the Blue defense cleverly and beat Dick Ball all the way. The Wolverines started to tire visibly but Toronto was handicapped greatly as first Halder then Lawler were gated for high-sticking and slashing respectively.

With the locals playing four men to six, the Ann Arbor squad found trouble getting past centre-ice. Doyle and Kryzanowski again ragged the puck till, at an opportune

(Continued on Page 8)

ROOTERS WATCH

Fists and Twists

(Continued From Page 5)

(155) Pugliese (T) over Anderson (A) (135) Casselles (T) over Allen (A) (145) Sovereign (A) over Kerrison (T), (165) McDonough and Miller—Draw (175) Gile (T) over Graham (A), (145) Alunan (a) by default, (Heavyweight) Campbell (T) over Vickers (A).

The talent is more evenly distributed as Toronto eked out a victory on the match in boxing over the Aggies by a 4 bout to 3 edge.

(1) Smith (A) won from Woolfson (T) on a T.K.O. as Woolfson dislocated his shoulder.
(2) McCuish (T) kayced Vance (A).
(3) Roberts (T) won a decision over Bryden (A).
(4) Johnston (A) won a decision over Dafeo (T).
(5) McGuigan (A) won a decision over Adams (T).
(6) Mulholland (T) won from Biggs on a T.K.O. when the latter received a badly cut eye.
(7) Crowhurst (T) kayced Sherk in the 3rd round.

Newman Club Discuss Socialism

Directed against socialism, the Pope's latest encyclical is currently being considered by the weekly Club meetings. After reading the encyclical it is discussed, its applications examined.

The chief encyclical against Atheistic Communism in November 1945 began the series.

Occasionally invited guests defended the opposite point of view, bringing attendance to maximum before Christmas. Further meetings will be announced in The Varsity.

Leader of the meetings, David McQueen served overseas as a captain in the Canadian Army. Now studying for his Ph.D. in Classics here, Mr. McQueen formerly studied at Cambridge, travelled in Germany and Italy.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

In view of the crowded conditions in the changing room for the outdoor hockey cushion, women players must come to the game completely dressed for play with the exception of skates.

Jr. Bees Now Top League Win 6-4 Over Richmond Hill

By HANK WESTCOTT

The Junior Bees are on top of the heap. The overtime decision against Richmond Hill Lions Friday night edges out these arch rivals for league leadership, and leaves the Blues with top slot in their hockey grouping. They came from behind to beat the Lions 6-4 stretching their unbeaten streak to six scheduled games.

Until game-time the two teams were tied for the league leadership. Both wanted the win. Both went out to get it. The resulting battle entertained immensely the paying customers in the Richmond Hill Arena.

Until the last ten minutes of regulation time, it looked like the Lions had the game in the burlap. They led the Blues 4-2. Then Pelow took a pass from Davison, and rolled the rubber just over the goal line to put the Blues back in the game. With only two minutes to play, Hugh Smythe took the puck at centre ice, shook off his check, weaved around the defence, and poked the puck past Stunden in the Richmond Hill cage, for the most beautiful goal of the night.

The coaches decided to play overtime to break the league-leading deadlock. The boys were quite tired indeed, but came out with plenty of spirit.

At the 4:24 mark in this extra frame Pelow again broke up the game, netting a counter in a scramble. Clement of the Lions was gathering splinters in the bad box at the time. Foran clinched the contest with only seconds to play on passes from Boyd and Smythe.

It was a fast, hard-hitting game the whole distance, even with the rough ice making the puck difficult to control. Smythe was the individual star of the game. He scored two goals, and set up a couple more. He worked hard all through the game, and deserved his points.

Pelow, who had no little trouble controlling the disc, was Paul-on-the-spot. He materialized on two chances around the net.

Another Paul, cage-guardian Hutzaluk, deserves plenty of credit for the win. Time after time the Lions toiled in only to be tamed by his superb saves. His coolness at such times was amazing. He became a trifle irritated however when Sonny Rowntree boisterously pushed him into the net after one of these stops. Hutzaluk came out of his corner like Dempsey in his prime, but the bout was stopped early in the first round. Both boys got minor penalties with Irwin serving Hutzaluk's.

The young 16-year-old goaler, Stunden, at the other end of the ice carpet, looks like he'll be around for some time. He robbed the visitors of goals several times. Centreman Earl McCrone and defenceman

Herb Rose are two other big reasons that the Richmond Hill team are so close to the top.

Although the referee waved 13 boys to the sin bin the game was never reduced to the 'dirty' class. The penalties were mostly for minor misdemeanours—result of the players' enthusiasm.

Lineups:

Varsity:—Hutzaluk, Irwin, Pelow, Brankston, Davison, Smythe, Boyd, Foran, Hurley, Morrison, Short.
Richmond Hill:—Stunden, Rose, Smith, Clement, Blakely, Rowntree, Haddleton, Milne, McCrone, Munnell, Palmateer, Dunn, Smith, Fox.

First Period

08:12—Richmond Hill, Fox.
09:12—Richmond Hill, Jim Smith.
18:50—Varsity, Smythe (Boyd).

Penalties—Morrison, Dunn, McCrone, Smythe, Jim Smith.

Second Period

05:46—Richmond Hill, McCrone.

07:19—Varsity, Foran (Boyd, Smythe).

14:25—Richmond Hill, Rose.

Penalties—Foran, Al Smith, Boyd, Rose.

Third Period

10:50—Varsity, Pelow (Davison).

18:00—Varsity, Smythe.

Penalties—Jim Smith, Rowntree.

Overtime

04:24—Varsity, Pelow.

09:34—Varsity, Foran (Boyd, Smythe).

Penalties—Clement, Irwin.

do over the big hockey week-end, and Kryzanowski did just that while Puttock was off for elbowing. The play leading up to Ed's goal was one of the loveliest examples of broken-ice skating, to steal a phrase from rugby, that has been seen around these parts.

Sundry goals were scored in the last frame, the Blues out-counting the visitors 5-1, to come from behind in fine style, extending their winning streak to seven straight.

Bill Kosick opened things up early in the period, a neat goal capping a nice solo rush. Kosick followed with his second goal of the night, scoring on a two-way pass from Jim Bromley and Bill Doyle. Captain Wally Halder got Varsity's next, a clean goal on a solo effort. From a scramble in front of the Michigan nets, Kosick passed the puck out to Ed Kryzanowski at the blue line, who let go with a big drive, to put the Blues ahead 6-4.

MacMillan's goal late in the period, on a pass from Renfrew cut the Toronto lead to one goal, and a tied game looked likely. However Wally Halder rescued, with a last-minute goal, to cut off Michigan's chances for a win and there the game ended, 7-5 for the Blues.

Michigan's star line of McMillan, Jacobson and Renfrew, along with Connie Hill on defense, showed truer to form than they had in the first game, accounting for three of their team's goals.

Centreman Wally Halder of the Michigan Goalkeeper Just Not Good Enough

By AL CRINGAN

In the second game of the week-end double-header, Varsity eked out a 7-5 victory over the fighting Michigan squad, after the Wolves swept to a 4-0 lead during the first half of the game.

Jack MacInnes played superbly in the Michigan nets, stopping every goaldard thrust of the Blues until 16:32 in the second period. The Yanks, on the whole, were a brand new team, as compared with their Friday evening opener. Their forwards were on, their defense was hot, and MacInnes' goal-keeping was—out of this world.

Sparring for Varsity all afternoon was Bill Kosick, turning in one of the finest shows of forward play seen up at the arena this season. Sharing honors with Kosick was Sonny Kryzanowski, whose checks, rushes and shots kept the entire Michigan team unnerved.

Bill Jacobson put the visitors on the score-sheet early in the first period, after he was set up by linemate Gord MacMillan. The Wolves ran their lead to 2-0 before the stanza ended, the second goal coming off the stick of Captain Connie Hill, on a pass from Al Renfrew.

Officials Patterson and Holmshaw were calling a tight game, and in the opening period two players were sent to the sin-bin, Grant Puttock of Varsity and Bob Marshall of Michigan, both for interference. While Michigan was playing the extra man, they put on a terrific drive, but Dick Ball held out everything the Wolverines threw at him. When Varsity had the extra man, they played five forwards, but were unable to break through the stonewall in the Michigan nets.

The score was split 2-2 in the second canto, to put Michigan up 4-2 when the curtain fell prior to the last period. Wally Grant, starry little first-string left winger notched two in a row to put the Americans four up. Varsity countered with two in a row by Halder, from Doyle and Ball, and Kryzanowski, from Kosick.

Grant's first goal came when the visitors were playing one man short, with Marshall serving a sentence for tripping. Scoring while one man short was quite the thing to moment Kosick broke from his own blue line, passed the opposing defense at centre, romped in on MacInnes, and completed the most picturesque move of the night by parking the lemon neatly in the corner of the cage. With about 3 minutes left, flared and Halder, Grant and Doyle became entangled at the blue line. No penalties were handed out but shortly after, Ross Smith was banished for mixing it up with Gord Ball. Ball in turn, joined Smith as the game ended.

Rooters Watch

(Continued From Page 7)

THE LINE-UPS:

MICHIGAN — MacInnes, Smith, Hill, Celley, Grant and Gacek. Alternates — Marshall, Cossalter, Renfrew, Jacobson, MacMillan, Kuzniar, Starrak.
TORONTO — Dick Ball, Kryzanowski, Doyle, Halder, Gord Ball, Henry. Alternates—Wade, Puttock, Kosick, Bark, Bromley, Bauer, Lawler.

FRIDAY'S GAME

First Period
1—V-Halder, (Kosick, Ball) .. 8:08
2—V-Ball, (Halder) .. 14:10
3—V-Halder, (Ball, Doyle) .. 18:32
Penalties:—Hill, Kosick, Renfrew, Henry, Cossalter.
Second Period
4—M-Gacek, (Grant) :20
5—V-Lawler, (Henry) 2:07
6—M-Renfrew, (McMillan) .. 5:29
7—V-Halder (Kryzanowski Henry) 9:20
8—V-Henry, (Halder) 10:00
9—V-Bauer, (Bromley) 12:30

10—V-Bauer, (Kosick, Bromley) 18:54
Third Period
11—M-Gacek 9:04
12—V-Kosick 14:46
Penalties:—Halder, Lawler, Cossalter, Ball.
SATURDAY'S GAME
First Period
1—M-Jacobson, (McMillan) .. 3:33
2—M-Hill, (Renfrew) 13:10
Penalties:—Puttock (interference) Marshall (interference).
Second Period
3—M-Grant, (Hill) 3:49

4—M-Grant, (Gacek) 14:58
5—V-Halder, (Doyle, Ball) .. 16:32
6—V-Kryzanowski, (Kosick) .. 18:42
Penalties:—Marshall (tripping), Puttock (elbowing), McMillan (slashing).
Third Period
7—V-Kosick 2:19
8—V-Kosick, (Bromley, Doyle) 12:22
9—V-Halder 14:25
10—V-Kryzanowski, (Kosick) 15:07
11—M-McMillan, (Renfrew) .. 15:42
12—V-Halder 19:30
Penalty:—Wade (kneeling).

brings Cotton to your home

COTTON is not grown in Canada—our climate is too cold. Very little Nickel is mined in the United States—most deposits so far discovered there cannot be mined at a profit. So Canada imports American cotton. The United States imports Canadian Nickel. Each product helps to pay for the other.

Canada produces 90 per cent of the world's Nickel, but uses less than three per cent. So we must continue to export Canadian Nickel if we are to continue to employ thousands of Canadians in the Nickel mines, smelters and refineries, and other thousands who produce the lumber, power, steel, explosives, machinery and supplies used by the Canadian Nickel industry.

Canada cannot keep on importing from other lands unless she exports Canadian goods. By constantly seeking to expand the uses of Nickel at home and abroad, the Canadian Nickel industry brings additional benefits to Canada.

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED, 25 KING ST. WEST, TORONTO

Montreal Standard To Sponsor Contest

One of the largest-scale nation-wide essay contests ever to be held in Canada is being launched by The Montreal Standard, according to a recent press release. Special prizes are being offered university undergraduates.

The newspaper will give away more than $3,000 in prizes for the best essays about atomic energy and the building of a world government in the Atomic Age. The contest is being run in conjunction with a series of weekly supplements on the Atomic Age currently being published in The Standard. The supplements are being written by eminent political and scientific personalities in Canada, the United States and Britain.

Prizes start at $1,000 and 39 prize winners will share a total of $3,385.

The contest is divided into three classes, open, undergraduate and junior, all open to Canadian citizens or residents of Canada. The open class includes the general public, undergraduate covers any undergraduate of a recognized Canadian university, and junior comprises any Canadian boy or girl who has not reached his or her 18th birthday on April 13, 1946.

First prizes for the open and undergraduate classes are $1,000 each, second prizes are $250, third prizes are $100 and there are ten prizes each of $25. First prize for the junior class is $100, second prize is $25, third prize is $10 and there are ten prizes of $5 each. The topic for the open and undergraduate class is "How should we build a World Government in the Atomic Age?" The junior class will write on "Why Atomic Energy is Important to Me." The contest will close April 13, 1946 and entries must bear a postmark not later than that date. Full details will be found in the supplements.

Clocks & Watches Everywhere But None of Them Correct

By PEGGY HEINONEN

Clocks to the left of them, clocks to the right of them . . . This is what confronts students on entering the University buildings. But, all students have one complaint, to wit, which of all the clocks tells the correct time?

Everybody sees the big brass-handed clock on the top of Hart House Tower, and thousands of students are misled by it. As a matter of fact, all the clocks in the House, as most men will tell you, are not synchronized.

The clock which ticks its heart out in the Tuck Shop is exactly seven minutes faster, and the one in the billiard room is three minutes slower than the timepiece opposite the Hall Porter's desk.

The clocks in the various colleges also suffer from the same handicap. The big, circular, brown-tinted clock in the entrance hall at Victoria College always shows five minutes after the hour, no matter what time the eager beaver students get in. Some lassies even say that it shows five minutes after nine even if they get there ten minutes before the hour.

Although the University Senate have not been officially approached on the subject, this acute deficiency in the efficiency of the University cries out to the wide world for redress.

Although no official poll of student opinion on the subject has yet been held, the clamour and the groans and the shame-faced looks which accompany the student late for his lecture should have been brought to the attention of the authorities long ago. If undergraduates are afraid to act on the matter, irate professors could very easily be found to bring the matter up, because it is undoubtedly very disconcerting for the lecturer who comes rushing in at fifteen minutes after the hour to find that all his students have rushed out to the nearest restaurant or are in the process of climbing breathlessly into their coats.

Although many solutions to the problem have been advanced, none is quite satisfactory. Water clocks, sand-filled hour-glasses, and even dust-filled timers for boiling eggs have all been suggested.

The best remedy, however, has been lying in front of everyone's eyes for the last 22 years. It is the little sundial which stands in the quadrangle of Hart House. Despite its covering of snow and ice, it still shows the correct time in its moving shadowy hand which during the course of the day moves all around its face and ends up pointing at the statue of the ill-clad young man who stands looking at his reflection in a frozen puddle.

Only when these radical reforms in the local hour system have been instituted will the poor struggling student be assured of moderate success in his annual examinations.

The Varsity

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 70 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Tuesday, January 29, 1946

SPORTS SCHEDULE STARTED AT AJAX

Gambling, Sports (?) Featured in German

You don't have to be able to spell "Reichsgerichtsbauabteilung" in order to attend the next meeting of the German Club according to President Otto Butz. Neither is the correct pronunciation of "Konstantinopolitanscher Dudelsackpfeifenmacherseile" an absolute necessity.

The outburst of Teutonic tongue-twisters was inspired by the fact that the next club meeting will feature a full-length German movie entitled Das Grosse Spiel. The most reasonably accurate translation available hinted that the picture was concerned with either sports or gambling but this has not been definitely established.

In addition a Canadian made newsreel will be shown with a German script. A discussion—in English—will follow the movies, in accordance with the club's policy of stimulating interest in contemporary topics.

The meeting will be held Wednesday night in the Women's Union at 8:00 p.m.

Sophs at Victoria Spread Welcome Mat

"Well," said Gloria Fisher, "it might work."

"Besides," said John Teeter, "it looks like a barn—we have to make it a barn dance."

As a result of this conversation between the Associate President and the President, Victoria College sophomores' spring party will take the form of a barn dance.

Held in Little Vic gym on Charles St. Wednesday afternoon from 4-6 p.m. the dance is open to everybody.

"Especially men," said Gloria.

Closely Fought Games Feature Opening Night

Ambitious Program Lined Up

Last night marked the opening of the intramural sports schedule at Ajax. Four basketball games and 28 lines of bowling formed the events of the initial effort.

Warren Stevens, Director of Athletics, threw in the first ball at the opening basketball game, while Joe Griffiths and J. R. Gillies were on hand to watch the proceedings. Buff Horton and Tom Davey kept a supervisory eye on activities, as student referee, timers, and score-keepers watched the technical end.

Baylor Students Revamp Council

Waco, Texas, Jan. 28.—(Exchange)—Plans for a student council will shortly be presented to the student body of Baylor University by Dean James P. Cornette.

If the plan is approved by the students, members of a temporary council will be elected immediately by secret ballot. The temporary council will make plans for a permanent council, method of election, constitution and other details.

The council, if accepted, will not be a student government council with executive power, but a "medium for crystallizing and expressing student opinion and representing the student body on official occasions."

In the nature of an activities council, the group will represent Baylor students in connection with other colleges and universities and will consider such campus affairs as the honor council and the governing of student participation in campus organization and affairs according to Dean Cornette.

Mr. Stevens in opening this vast system of athletic competition said that he wished all Ajax every success in this endeavour while Mr. Buff Horton, Ajax athletic supervisor, was very keen about the spirit exemplified. "The boys were playing all out as evidenced by the close scores of three of the games, and the comparatively light crowd shows that what fellows aren't on the six teams bowling, or the six hockey teams practising are probably studying. Our schedules should be such that all the lads will be well occupied in their spare time, but not kept from their studies. (Continued on Page 4)

Love Nest Looted!

Recently built, recently billed as "the coldest girl on the campus," it seems that her aloofness proved too much for some of our weaker willed undergraduates.

"Queenie," the snow queen erected on the front campus some few days ago has been destroyed.

Not the powerful wind nor the smiling sun, none of these agents of nature was responsible for this irresponsible destruction. Human hands and human hands alone dealt the blow that swung death's scythe across Queenie's languid life.

Now that The Varsity has broken into an eight page tabloid, the temptation to follow the example of certain money-making tabloids is overwhelming. In the greater cities to the south, tabloids exist which draw a greater circulation than any other dailies in the country. These journals would seem to lean heavily on stories whose nature might shock many a northern reader.

With lurid lines and improper pictures they stress the angle of supposed "human interest" in their stories.

The Varsity envies them their circulation, their popularity. But their methods

If ever occasion for such treatment of a news story should arise on the University of Toronto campus—this is it.

But Queenie—she was mutilated, yes.

Just what other popular terms can be applied to such treatment of a snow lady?

the war to keep Canadian servicemen overseas in touch with the people at home. Flat marshland at Sackville, N.B., was chosen as the site of the first venture into the international radio field, because of the excellent conductivity of the land and also because it was situated outside the influence of the north magnetic pole.

Toronto Students To Prepare Short-Wave Show To Southern Climes

Elbow deep in plans for the formation of the new series of radio short-wave broadcasts entitled "Caribbean Forum," to be given by various Canadian universities, members of the McGill Radio Workshop, the Cosmopolitan Club and the British West Indian Society listen to Chairman Roy Sampeth as he presents a report from the West Indian Royal Commission.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—(CUP)—The University of Toronto will produce one of a series of student radio broadcasts which is to originate from the major Canadian camp for listeners in the Caribbean area and South America.

These plans were announced following a Christmas broadcast, a 30-minute edition of "Canadian Spotlight," produced by McGill University. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation considered the program sufficiently successful to warrant a more elaborate schedule for the interchange of intellectual and cultural activity between the Caribbean South American and Canada.

Producer From McGill

Roy Sampeth, a former McGill student, has been appointed producer of these broadcasts which will originate from McGill, Toronto, Dalhousie, and Manitoba Universities, and will be short-waved to the Southern Hemisphere.

He is a former student of science at McGill and was at one time on the staff of the McGill Daily. He has travelled extensively in the Caribbean and has visited many of the larger cities of North America.

Three Societies Co-operate

Going into production immediately is edition No. of the Caribbean Forum. Three McGill campus organizations, the British West Indian Society, the Cosmopolitan Club and the Radio Workshop will look after this broadcast.

The International Service of the CBC, which will broadcast the series, was originally founded during

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University College MI. 6611
Business Office MI. 6221
Night Office MI. 8405

Editor-In-Chief... W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor... Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor... Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor... Peg Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor... John Rooke, 477
News Editor... George Forster, 477
Assistant... Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor... E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant... Reg Herman, 476
Business and Advertising Manager... E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Sports Editor... Bredin Stapells, 476
Assistant... Don Mason, 476
Women's Sports Editor... Polly Mutz, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange
Editor... Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant... Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama
Editor... Phillip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer... Ralph Jones, 477

Tuesday, January 29, 1946

Wanted - To Rent...

Despite countless economists from Adam Smith to Frederick Hayek, we have never been convinced that economic forces are something weird and wonderful with which man must never tamper. We fail to see how the mysterious forces of supply and demand can, by themselves, satisfactorily control our economic life.

We read in the papers that many discharged veterans are having considerable difficulty in finding both homes and jobs. We know that last fall hundreds of students had difficulty in finding rooms, and we suspect that next summer hundreds will have difficulty finding jobs.

We cannot understand how a housing shortage and a job shortage can exist side by side. Why are the men who need jobs not set to work building homes for the men who need houses?

Controller Stewart Smith shed some very illuminating light on the problem of housing at a recent meeting of the LPP Club. No matter how much one may differ with the political ideologies of Controller Smith and his audience, one is forced to admit the logic of his argument.

A billion dollar construction program, said Controller Smith, could provide low cost housing for all Canadians and full employment for a decade. Although his claims may be somewhat optimistic, there is no doubt that such a program would be of tremendous assistance in alleviating a very acute situation, both with regards to employment and housing.

The urgency of the housing situation is unquestioned. Everyone knows of the troubles of students last fall, and when one realizes that it is far easier for a single student to obtain a room in a garret than it is for a family of five to obtain an apartment one may get a glimpse of the total situation. One should also bear in mind that the situation is becoming more acute every day.

A stroll through a Toronto slum area will convince even the most socially unconscious of the necessity of rebuilding these spawning grounds of crime, vice, disease, and degradation. Slum areas MUST be replaced by decent homes and decent playgrounds if Canada is to become the land of opportunity we are promised.

One should also remember that in April, and again in September, there will be another influx of students onto an already overcrowded campus. Where are they going to live? The S.A.C. Housing Service has toiled tirelessly and thankfully to place students in every available room in the city, but there are no more available rooms. "Share your home" campaigns have scraped the bottom of the billeting barrel. There are no more rooms in Toronto. Houses under construction at the present time are pitifully inadequate to meet the pressing need.

What is needed is a well-planned, all-embracing housing and slum clearance project. During the war, airdromes rose overnight out of marshes. Why then, in the fight for decency, cannot houses arise overnight out of slums?

Controller Smith suggests that selfish interests feel that their present lucrative position would be prejudiced by any government sponsored housing project. He is probably right.

But if a pressure group is opposing the construction of the much needed housing, other pressure groups must be formed to counteract them. We would suggest, therefore, that both the S.A.C. and the Board of Governors make strong representations to federal, provincial, and municipal authorities demanding instant institution of an adequate housing program.

G. V. F.

Biography of A Great Man

When Iggnutz Jones was born, nobody could tell. Nobody could tell that he was a human being, let alone destined to be a Great Man. But from the very beginning they always referred to him as Iggnutz, a sure portent of the future.

Billie Pitt, Jr., spoke Greek when he was two. Sammie Johnson, before him, wrote Greek sonnets when he was two and a half. Iggnutz spoke his first word when he was nine years old, never quite learned how to read and signed his will with a thumb-print.

His parents were very ordinary people, and were killed in an atomic bomb experiment before he was born.

None of this deterred Iggnutz. He got up early every morning and went to bed late every night. He didn't join any unions. He never picketed anybody about anything. He prepared himself night and day to be a Great Man.

And so naturally Iggnutz entered Pass Arts. And when he graduated, 25 years later, he had a B.A. following his name, which signified lots and lots. By this time Iggnutz was the Prime Minister of Late Simcoe, Founder of the Society for the Investigation of the Sex-Life of Cheries and President of the graduating Class in Fossil-drawing (especially Tschichatscheffianum.)

And he was interviewed by The Varsity on the Secret of his Success.

"Well?" said The Varsity.

"I am a self-made man," stated Iggnutz.

"It's nice of you to take the blame," commented The Varsity. "But have you a word of advice for posterity?"

Slowly Iggnutz Jones drew himself to his full four feet, and with an impressive burp, began "When I was born, nobody could tell...."

RACO

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

May I add a few remarks to the current discussion of scientific method? First of all, it is important to remember that it is a method. By it, our thoughts and impressions become organized into a pattern that has meaning beyond the immediate situation and can apply to other situations of a similar nature.

However, as I see it, science is more than mere method. It includes in addition scientific knowledge, which is the accumulation of all previous discoveries and concepts developed in the past. Without this, scientific method would be as useless as an equation of meaningless symbols. No technique, whatever its merits, can of itself provide us with any actual knowledge. Science is a means of finding in sensory impressions and mental concepts an orderly pattern that obeys the rule of non-contradiction. But the pattern itself can not be created by mere technique. Many if not all scientists recognize the importance of intuition in scientific work.

Science is more than mere organization of data. It also involves the creation of principles to fit the data (indeed, without such principles the organization of data would be impossible). These principles do not arise as an inevitable result of analysis. It is that sudden spark of inspiration, when in a flash the whole idea or at least the germ of it appears before the scientist, that is the essential part of all scientific research. The process of inductive and deductive analysis serves only to verify this idea, and in the process, fit it more closely to reality.

All of us experience sudden flashes of insight, if we may call it that, but these ideas are of no value to scientific activity until they are first verified by being able to fit the generalized theory into any possible situation in which it might apply, and second, related to other concepts dealing with allied fields. Where these concepts are contradictory or where gaps are

(Continued on Page 5)

LIGHT UP AND Relax

Yes sir, there's nothing like a Sweet Cap to put you in a relaxed mood when the 'cram' session's over!

Bank on a Sweet Cap for satisfaction—anywhere... anytime! And when you tune in

"LIGHT UP AND LISTEN" WITH

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

CKEY - CJBC

9.30 p.m. Every Thursday Night

Formal Attire for the VIC - AT - HOME

Ladies' and Men's Complete Outfits and Accessories for Rent

AT FREEMAN'S FORMAL

256 COLLEGE STREET, at SPADINA, KI. 0991
571 YONGE STREET, Near Wellesley, KI. 3270
Special Student Rates, Open Evenings

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO BRASS BAND

Full Attendance Required at Practices on TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS, 5 P.M. at the Drill Hall

BAND IS NEEDED TO SUPPORT ATHLETIC EVENTS
DANCE IS PLANNED IN FEBRUARY FOR THE BAND

OCULIST PRESCRIPTION CO.

Prescriptions for glasses filled with quality spectacle-ware at reasonable prices.

Quick, accurate repair service

321 BLOOR ST. W. Phone MI. 6762
(Ground Floor St. George Apartments)
OPPOSITE MEDICAL ARTS BUILDING
Special Discount to Students and Members of the Faculty

Co-ed Curlers

So Fast — So Simple

- Natural Full Curl
- Pleasant to Sleep in

SEE DEMONSTRATION NOW AT NOTION DEPT., ROBT. SIMPSON CO.

STUDENTS!

When post war Ring Covers are available, DOMINION will have them.

For the present we will do our best to look after as many orders as possible. Materials for the manufacture of Ring Covers are still very limited.

Ask your bookstore. He will keep you posted.

DOMINION BLANK BOOK COMPANY

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

HANS GRUBER, CONDUCTOR

Next Rehearsal for Full Orchestra, Trombones Included
Wednesday, January 30, — 7.30 p.m., Sharp

AT CONVOCATION HALL
(SOUTH-BACK ENTRANCE)

Hart House Bulletin Board

Glee Club

A regular rehearsal of the Glee Club will be held in the music room at 5 p.m. today.

Faculty Advisors For Jap Canadians?

The possibility that faculty advisers may be appointed to the Japanese-Canadian Committee was expressed yesterday by Shelagh Kennedy, Vice-Chairman of the Committee.

Advised that the "mature guidance of faculty" was of advantage to student activities, the Committee is reported to have approached at least two faculty members who might act in an advisory capacity, perhaps participate in the educational program scheduled for the near future.

Members of the Civil Liberties Committee, both faculty members are said to share the sentiments of the Committee in this matter. Confirmation of this development may be sought in to-morrow's issue of The Varsity.

Ajax Nominations

This afternoon at 4:10, potential office-holders in the Ajax Engineering Society will make their election speeches in the Recreations Hall. Seventeen are in the nomination line-up: President—R. A. Chassels, W. A. Cleros, C. F. Dixon, B. Hayes, M. J. McAuliffe, D. G. Pipper, and T. B. Reid; First Vice-Pres.—G. W. Beatty, E. G. Caldwell, J. W. Draper, C. E. King; Second Vice-Pres.—E. C. Hodgson; Treasurer—N. Prochniki; Secretary—R. J. Millsop, J. R. Rogers; Athletic Rep.—D. Andrews, J. M. Dobson.

Engineers are to make their final choice in the elections Wednesday, in the Common Room of Residence No. 123, between the hours of 12 and 2:30 p.m. Everyone out.

Students Want New Flag Including Union Jack

A CUP Feature

Conducted by the Queen's Journal
KINGSTON—The great majority of Canadian university students feel Canada should have a distinctive flag, but want it to include the Union Jack.

This was shown in the first survey taken by the newly organized Canadian University Press Institute of Student Opinion. The results, however, are not all-inclusive, since 11 of CUP's 18 members failed to report.

Students at the seven universities which participated were asked the following question, with results as indicated:

"Do you favour a distinctive flag for Canada?"

Yes	78.4%
No	16.7%
Undecided	4.9%

Those who supported the idea of a special Canadian flag were further asked:

"Should this new flag contain the Union Jack?"

Yes	65.2%
No	30.4%
Undecided	4.4%

Individual breakdown of these overall figures reveals that University of Ottawa is 100 percent behind the Government's proposal to adopt a national flag. Of this number, only 79.2 percent think such an emblem should contain the Union Jack.

Statistics at University of New Brunswick show sharp contrast. Of the 60 students approached, only 50 percent wanted to see Canada obtain her own flag.

Students at Queen's University are decidedly in favour of a new emblem: 71 percent replied "Yes" to the first question. About 80 percent of the Dalhousie students approved the suggestion. The total rose to 87 percent at McGill and soared to 94 percent at St. Francis Xavier. However, while St. FX Artmen and Engineers were unanimously in favour of an original flag, they were decidedly opposed to any retention of the present Union Jack.

At Bishop's University, students were apparently not too enthusiastic over the possibility of acquiring a special emblem for the Dominion. Only 66.6 percent were amenable to the idea, while 27.7 percent were opposed. The remainder was undecided. Of the first figure, three-quarters thought the Commonwealth flag should be retained in some manner.

C.C.F. Overhauled Meeting Tonight

A constitutional overhaul altering the basis of the C.C.F. Club is on the agenda for to-night's meeting. "It is extremely important that all eligible members attend," said President Roy Clark.

The meeting is slated for Wymilwood's Blue Room at 8 p.m.

MAY EXAMINATIONS

All students in the Faculty of Arts must make application for the May examinations before February 1st at the office of the College or University Registrar.

Bedroom Bedlam; All Riot On The Wycliffe Front

By BOB COOKE

Wearily Mr. Clark dragged himself home to Wycliffe. "Yes," he thought, "the Annesley Formal was a splendid dance," but vaguely there was a fear in the back of his mind. What ocdion would his room be in when he got back to Wycliffe?

It is a tradition that whenever a Wycliffe resident goes out to a formal, especially if it is his first, he will return to a room that isn't there. Mr. Clark knew this tradition, in fact he had once helped to carry it out, and vaguely he was afraid. At two o'clock in the morning he had no desire to try to find a bed and mattress that might be anywhere inside the building and might even be outside.

When he arrived in the College and climbed the two long flights of stairs to his room his worst fears were realized. His door was missing and in its place hung one that was much smaller. It was a slatted door and hung as it was, so that there was a space beneath and above it, it gave the impression of a saloon door. And on the door was a large sign:

CLARK'S TAVERN
Dew Drop Inn John Clark, Prop.
Opposed to the W.C.T.U. and other beer clubs.

If the entrance to his room was realistic the interior was even more realistic. It was a perfect replica of a bar where there had been a fight. There was no bed, as he had expected, and the mattress and blankets, were missing. The blankets, however, were near at hand. Tied in knots they were stung from his door down the hall.

"Well," he thought, "I might as well get these tails off and go looking for my bed," and going over to his chest of drawers he pulled out one of the drawers. But the raiders had been thorough in their work, for with devilish cunning they had put the drawers, clothes and all, in upside down. When he pulled out the drawer his clothes cascaded onto the floor.

The tradition had been fulfilled and, when last heard of, Mr. Clark was crawling out the ridge pole to retrieve his bed.

But that was just the beginning of the night's activities for the tradition has several other clauses. One of these states that "all freshmen must be tubbed as soon as possible after their arrival" and since the last tubbing there had been several new boarders. "The time has come," roared the mob making a concentrated rush for the room of the most recent arrival.

Struggling furiously, but to no avail, he was carried to a little room where a tub of cold water was patiently waiting. "Splash," and the dirty deed was done.

But the passions of the raiders were not satisfied. "Another cadaver," roared a Medsman (there are Medsmen in Wycliffe), and they headed for the room of the Senior Student. Struggling in a most undignified manner he was carried on to his fate.

"It wasn't exactly according to tradition," admitted one of the mob, "but we had to tub somebody."

At three o'clock the rumbling of warfare was still going on, but The Varsity's reporter was drifting into the land of dreams and was unable to find out what the final score was. How many men were aroused from their peaceful sleep to find themselves engulfed by very cold water will never be known.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 70

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Tuesday, January 29, 1946

Dobbs Makes Ayem Mayhem, Forster Breakfasts At Chum

Air Show Has Campus Slant

By REG HERMAN

Ajax Village, Care Of

Other than its home campus community of approximately 14,000 students and staff, its Ajax auxiliary of some 2500 students and staff, the University is maintaining a village of some 600 homes.

When the University of Toronto officially annexed part of Defense Industries Limited, as its Ajax division, it was stipulated that she accept responsibility for many services of the small village—Ajax.

Formerly the home of the greater percentage of the D.I.L. employees, this village has dwindled to 600 homes but remains a live responsibility for the university.

In keeping with this service, it is now announced that five new telephones have been installed so that residents of the village can communicate with the fire-department. Also maintained by the university is the village fire-fighting force.

A staff under Fire Chief Cecil Winters, maintains a 24 hour service planned to cover the university property, war assets and the wartime housing project of 600 homes. Equipment is a hose and fire-truck and an auxiliary truck with chemical fire-fighting apparatus.

Synthetic Fuel Sought in W. Va.

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 15.—(Exchange)—The U.S. Government program to discover a cheap synthetic substitute to replace the dwindling supplies of coal in this country has sent researchers to the University of West Virginia, according to the campus paper, The Athenaeum.

The U.S. Bureau of Mines has established new offices in the Mineral Industries Building of the University to house the estimated forty chemists, engineers, and geologists who will do research on the problem.

The Government program will be extensive in its scope, federal appropriations amounting to about $30,000,000. Some of the nation's top scientists in the field of coal and petroleum will be employed, and the estimated annual payroll will amount to more than $100,000.

Field forces located in various places throughout the state will investigate possible raw materials which may be used as a base for new fuel. Chemical processes such as hydrogenization will be used to treat and produce the fuel in its finished state.

C.U.P. Flashes

(By the Canadian University Press)
Kingston—Queen's men are hard up. Their paper, the Queen's Journal, is publishing unorthodox ads, to say the least:

"Personal: Gentleman with about half a quart of Vermont would like to meet lady with a half a quart of gin. Object—cocktail."

Saskatoon—The University of Saskatchewan held a mass meeting yesterday at which students moved to call upon their city council to reduce street car fare in the city of Saskatoon.

Montreal—McGill won its second senior hockey victory of the year over the University of Montreal Carabins last Saturday with a score of 4-3. The game was featured by fast, spotty defense work and stand-out goal-keeping.

Montreal—McGill senior hoopers swamped Middlebury, Vermont 44-21 in an exhibition cage feature Saturday.

What's On Today

Dr. John Line, Professor of Systematic Theology, will lead the discussion on Ephesians at the noon hour meeting of the V.C.F. in Jackson Hall Victoria College today.

The Psychology Club is meeting tonight in Cartwright Hall at eight o'clock. The topic for discussion is: "Resolved that further entrants into the Honour Psychology Course should be discouraged." The meeting is open to students of Psychology, especially those in Soc. and Phil, and anyone else interested.

There will be a debate in Brennan Hall at St. Michael's College, tonight at 8 p.m. The subject will be "Resolved that the Allied war crimes trial at Nurnberg is a travesty on Justice."

Dr. John L. Nicol, of Saskatoon, will address a joint meeting of the S.C.M. and V.C.F., today at 4:30 in the chapel, Victoria College.

The idea of the announcements is to provide a quick resume, supplied by The Varsity, of the more important events occurring during the day. Now it's a lecture by Professor Ignatius Jones on the evolution of a hermaphrodite, now it's the announcement of a big inter-collegiate sports event.

At present the program runs from 7:45 to 9:00 in the wee, but this Friday it's increasing its time to a 7:15 opening. A sure sign of spring! The bulletins will be planned to follow Dobbs' brief news reports at eight and eight-thirty, to catch the nine o'clock students.

Another feature of the idea, a Harvey Dobbs special, is a weekly interview with selected students on the campus. The interviews will favor human interest, the colorful characters that abound among 11,000 University students.

To get in the right spirit at the beginning, Dobbs' first guest will be George Forster, the man with the University at his finger-tips, News Editor of The Varsity. The interviews are planned for Saturday mornings, at about a quarter to nine. Later interviews will include members of the International Students Club, a colorful organization that has voiced interest in the scheme.

The University makes its first appearance on the air tomorrow morning and if Harvey Dobbs continues rising at 5:30 a.m. each day, then the U. of T. has finally broken into radio!

In an interview with Dobbs, The Varsity discovered that "Breakfast With Chum" is primarily a musical show with service features handed out "in the genial and witty manner which has made Harvey Dobbs one of Canada's outstanding radio announcers."

Furthermore, Dobbs, who speaks French, German and Spanish, plays the Ukelele and harmonica, has one of the largest private collections of records in Canada, acts, writes and produces shows, broke into radio more than 15 years ago as a vocalist.

A journalist before he sang his way into radio, Harvey first went on the air in Montreal, drifted into part-time acting (don't ask him what he did the rest of the time) and produced programs in the Maritimes before coming to Toronto as a free-lance announcer.

"I never got past second form High School," Dobbs admitted candidly, "but I have a large book collection and go to the movies."

Will Professor Ignatius speak? Will the Blues play? Are there any tickets left for Athletic Night? Tune in to "Breakfast at Chum," Harvey Dobbs cereal program (Wow, son) tomorrow morning.

McGill Senior Beats U. of M.

Montreal, Jan. 27.—(C.U.P.)—McGill Senior hockey squad again defeated University of Montreal Saturday night by a score of 4-3.

As the points indicate, the Carabins have improved due to extensive practice. The play was fast with spotty defensive tactics. The respective goalies were the big factor in keeping down the score.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir

Let's have shorter letters from your readers.

—D. CHAPMAN, I Arts.

MARRIED EX-SERVICE STUDENTS

The Ex-service Committee of the Students' Administrative Council is conducting an immediate survey of housing requirements for married ex-service students and for those who have children. All married ex-service students who will require living accommodation during this summer and particularly for the next academic term, opening in September are asked to leave their names now at the Students' Administrative Council office, Hart House. Women may register Room 82, University College.

Type of accommodation required and number in the family is necessary.

Only by securing accurate statistics of those who require accommodation can steps be taken to meet the situation this summer and next fall. Nothing will be left undone in attempting to secure adequate living quarters, so that families of ex-service students may not be separated while in attendance at the University.

Do not delay to register.

DO IT NOW

The Ex-Service Committee of the Students Administrative Council.

ABERDEEN'S Floral Stores

Main Stores: 31 Bloor W., M1. 2495

Special Attention to University Students

15% Discount Upon Presentation

OF ADMIT-TO-LECTURES CARD

Corsages are a Specialty—Have Your Date Wear One to the U.C. Arts Ball.

ORCHIDS AND ROSES ALWAYS IN STOCK

WE WILL BUY USED HIGH SCHOOL BOOKS!

Until our stock is completed, we will pay you these HIGH prices for the titles listed below.

TITLE	AUTHOR	We Will Pay You	TITLE	AUTHOR	We Will Pay You
High School Chemistry	Bruce	1.00	A New Analytical Geometry ...	Durrant & Kingston	.55
Biology	Moon & Mann	1.25	Short Stories & Essays20
Senior Chemistry ..	Cornish75	Expressing Yourself		.50
Plane Trigonometry & Statics ..	Miller & Rourke ..	.80	Chemistry Manual	Jennings10
Senior Algebra ...	Crawford55	General Science II	Bowers30
			Ancient & Medieval History	New & Phillips ..	.50

BRING YOUR BOOKS IN THIS WEEK AND GET THESE HIGH PRICES

BOOK MARKET AND BOOK EXCHANGE

726 YONGE ST.
1 Block South of Bloor

370 BLOOR ST. W.
1 Block West of Spadina

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 P.M.—SATURDAYS UNTIL 11 P.M.

Books

For The Young Writers

Recently Margaret Marshall, the literary editor of The Nation, drew up a list of the most important books published during the past several years. She included only seven novels (one of which was a Henry James reprint) and some twenty books of poetry. None of these books is likely to become a real best-seller; and their total influence will be negligible, particularly when compared with the regular and repeated influence of Life, Colliers, The Reader's Digest, and their contemporaries.

Of course serious creative literature has long exerted little mass influence, especially in Canada and the United States where prospects seem most favourable. Just as the same people go again and again to Civil Liberties meetings, a comparatively small group consistently reads the better contemporary books. Their numbers are smaller than they should be; too many people ignore the present for the past, a tendency frequently promoted by critics and teachers who seem not to realize that we may be forced to pay for the continuance of the classics with the degradation of contemporary writing.

During the war people were eager to read almost anything. And because they were given neither enough important books nor—and perhaps this is an even more fundamental weakness—an opportunity to understand relative merits, they accepted an increasingly large mass of popular culture. In the light of this failure, the young writer should consider what his future personal responsibility must be.

Almost everyone understands some of the complexities of writing and publishing which have contributed to the tragic impotence of contemporary literature. Many potentially valuable writers help manufacture the synthetic creations of Hollywood, the radio networks, the advertising agencies; others satisfy creative instincts by turning to personnel work, to the social sciences, and to journalism. Several of these professions are extremely important of course; it is simply unfortunate that they offer an interesting alternative to some who should have continued to create.

But it remains primarily the writer's duty to strengthen and promote his literature. And I think that it would be wise and even rather noble for the young writer to consider seriously whether he can now afford to be too esoteric. It is only that in a period of uncertainty the eccentric can scarcely be tolerated by those who have strength for only the basic needs of life. There is also a possibility that remote personal expression may be pursued until writers retain no contact with their readers.

This is neither an attack on ob-

Editorial Encores

Petty Politics?

Choice selections taken from the editorial page of the University of British Columbia's Ubysses point up a similar situation on this campus.

Political activity has broken out on the campus like a rash this year, and brief surveys at the London and Montreal student conferences this Christmas seemed to indicate that comparatively speaking, UBC is experiencing more political activity at the present time than any other Canadian university, with the possible exception of one . . . It is obvious that a definite answer will have to be given to small political groups as to whether politics "in earnest" will supercede purely academic studies of political theory on the campus.

If the preponderantly large volume of ex-service students on the campus feel that they would like "political freedom" and think that more social consciousness would be fostered here by the LPP, Progressive-Conservative, Liberal and CCF groups, or whether they consider that they gain more social perspective by emphasizing study curriculum and regarding politics as a strictly extra-campus activity, a very important and a very large student group, should present their views.

. . . It is undeniably true that university men and women with a firm grounding of political and governmental theory are political leaders-elect of the future, and many English statesmen have graduated from Oxford political clubs. If these clubs at UBC were to supplant economic, psychology, government and philosophy courses and provide the medium for a scientific study of Canadian political problems, they would be invaluable. If, however, political idealism resolves into petty political bickering and each campus group became a convenient headquarters for issuing pamphlets and sniping at opposing campus political camps, they might serve to heighten student political consciousness which is not entirely lacking at UBC, but would probably NOT help the average student to gain a clear unbiased picture of what is wrong with the world or provide a solution as to what should be done with it, as much as straight unhampered application to the scholastic grindstone.

English Course Needs Brains

"English may be considered a difficult subject because it requires thinking," said Professor F. E. L. Priestley, of the University College English Department.

Commenting on a despatch from Winnipeg which reported that a poll held at the University of Manitoba rated English as the most difficult subject on the curriculum, Prof. Priestley pointed out that English requires clear, logical, thinking—first of all, and then logical organization in putting down one's thoughts.

"No first-class honor student is a first-class honor student in one department only," he continued. "A good student in mathematics and science should also be a good student in English."

"A high school student who was poor in mathematics and science might get a good mark in English by being interested in it and by doing extra reading, but in university he would probably fail," he concluded, "brains are useful in almost any department."

security nor a plea for an end to experimentation. These are important for literature, and that is sufficient reason for being. But I believe we must adapt the ideas of the seminar to the understanding of the world; for in silence and retreat that vitality and truth of theory are most easily perverted. And while this is perhaps not a feasible plan for all writers, for others it might mean an importance and a competition they would otherwise never attain.

C.U.P. Flashes

(By The Canadian University Press) Lennoxville, Que.—Two teams from Bishop's University gave a public debate in Sherbrooke on Jan. 21. Their subject was "Resolved parents failed in their duty towards their children." The motion was defeated. The Basketball Team defeated the Sherbrooke Regiment 35-24 in a home game. Pharo, Johnson and McGovern starred for the Bishop's team.

Wolfville, N.S.—A flu epidemic has struck Acadia University. The majority of the students are laid up including the Campus nurse. The epidemic has been so severe that supplemental examinations are already necessary to accommodate the large number of students who missed the regular mid-term examinations.

Winnipeg, Man.—Final arrangements for a half-hour broadcast of the monster pep rally promoting the inter-university basketball tournament at the University of Manitoba on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 are now complete. The rally will be broadcast at 1.30 p.m. over CKRC next Saturday, as part of the pre-game publicity campaign.

Montreal, P.Q.—A joint financial campaign, beginning Jan. 23 and continuing until Feb. 1, has been inaugurated by the three main campus charity organizations at McGill University, the Amalgamated Charities, the Red Cross and the ISS. A goal of $7,000 has been set for the Drive. The slogan adopted is "2¢ for the usual 3¢." The central point of the Drive is the Athletics Festival to be held in the McGill Gym on Jan. 26 featuring the McGill-Middlebury basketball game,

Sports Schedule

(Continued from Page 1)

The spirit of all the fellows here is excellent."

Scores:

Res. 722 defeated Res. 723a by a 34-33 score.

Res. 731 defeated Res. 726 by a 26-21 score.

Res. 734 defeated Res. 736 by a 46-14 score.

Res. 724b defeated Res. 723b by a 18-14 score.

Officials were: Caldwell, McAuliffe, and McPhail, respectively.

On the bowling alleys: The six men, two game aggregate scores:

Res. 722a-2025, Res. 723a-1832, Res. 724b-2140, Res. 725b-2170, Res. 726d-1735, Res. 728a-1632, Res. 728a-1538, Res. 730b-1611, Res. 730d-1597, Res. 731b-1913, Res. 734a-1717, Res. 736c-1391, Res. 737b-1856, Res. 737c-1614.

Have You Lost Anything?

Have You Anything For Sale?

For quick results put a Classified Ad. in "The Varsity"

Phone M1. 6221

LAST DAY FOR ARTS BALL TICKETS

It Might As Well Be Swing

No. Two

The flaming Remington thrown so gingerly by Ross McLean has landed—into the outstretched arms of an Oh-too-willing connoisseur (we hope) of La Musique Torride. Yap-yapping back to his Goose & Swoose column has gone old Ross after making the first overtures (and it is about time) to bring Jazz into the limelight on the campus. Rest assured that the flames will not be extinguished, and that echoes from Varsity will yet ricochet from the pavements of Harlem.

The many current controversies, news, and discussions about the men who dabble in jazz will, in due time, be illuminated in these columns. But first we must clear the decks for action; by this we mean that a slight which exists in the minds of too many non-cognizant music lovers must be erased.

A certain Mr. F. in particular has perpetrated and furthered a heinous conception about our music.

It's well known that there exists in these pages an Art, Music and Drama department; now this in itself is no crime. What it outrageous is the fact that not once has jazz been included within the realm of Art or Music. No amount of close scrutiny or reading between the lines (even chemicals have been tried) of page 7 will reveal any recognition that jazz belongs within the pale of civilization.

The renowned three B's of the classics have completely obliterated from those columns the equally illustrious Byas-Beiderbecke-Basie trio. We claim that our art form should be included in this department. We are insulted.

But this situation will now be remedied, thanks to the Gods (alias the Editors) who have at last realized that jazz can no longer be suppressed into the depths of some smoke filled cellar, heard only by a few frantic fiends, and discussed only behind locked doors. It has, to a large extent, overcome the pangs of birth, and emerged into the sun, still as hot as ever, where it is attaining some of the recognition it deserves.

Surely no one will deny the right of modern music to be classified as culture. Excepting of course the few previously mentioned ultra-sensitive classicists. Then why all this jazz inferiority? Why do we blush sheepishly when we admit that we caught the last Duke show?

The music whose basic elements emerged from the depths of a tortured people—which was developed and nourished until today it sways a nation by virtue of its emotional and artistic power, cannot be dismissed with a wave of the hand.

Certainly Satchmo's fabulous jazz, B. G's technical virtuosity and the Hawk's powerful musical patterns rate beside any form of music. So Jazzmen arise! Lift your heads above the violin bow; raise your voices to double-top "C", and make yourselves heard. Your views will be our views.

Now that that bit of justification is off our chests we can turn to a pleasanter and lighter task—that of becoming acquainted with some of the newer personalities on the jazz Broadway, as well as discovering the vicissitudes of some of our old 52nd street standards.

But before cutting this session short, we'd like to make clear without getting into a discussion of what's jazz or what's swing, exactly what readers can expect when tuned to this page.

Anyone hoping to catch the brand called swing and sway will be disappointed; Frankie doesn't make us swoon, and Lombardo sends us—into a state of nausea.

Bands like James and Spivak although holding a certain interest will take a back seat to Herman, Kenton, or Brown.

Frankie Carle and Carman Cavallero after this brief debut, will more likely be forgotten. Our energies will be devoted to an appraisal of a more worthwhile group of pianists, exemplified by Tatum and Wilson.

Well the tune has been called. The beat has been given. Altogether fellas: a one-a two-a three—We're off! Here comes the first chorus—can you hear it? We can—and there are many, more to come.

—SID STARKMAN

Honor Psychology Debatable Topic

A group of students in Honor Psychology are disgruntled with their course. They feel that the course is too narrow in its approach and gives students insufficient vocational preparation.

Another group of students are perfectly satisfied with the course, feeling that it is adequate vocationally and produces mature, well-adjusted graduates.

This difference of opinion has become crystallized and has resulted in a debate to be held at the Psychology Club's meeting tonight in Cartwright Hall at 8 p.m.

The topic, "Resolved that prospective entrants into the Honor Psychology course should be discouraged" will be upheld by Bruce Quarrington and Ralph Shepherd, opposed by Ros Dymond and Don Dewar.

Correspondence

(Continued From Page 2)

left, we are made aware of the fact that our knowledge is incomplete and requires further extension.

The point I wish to establish is that, as essential as the technique of analysis may be, science requires the same creative capacity for conceiving an idea as is necessary in art. Perhaps the fundamental difference between science and art lies in the fact that science disciplines our imaginative wanderings, while art encourages any and all forms of such activity.

A. Porter
IV Pol. Sci.

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

It is with a deliberate mind that I assert and acknowledge the responsibility of us, as University students, to society. If a new world of lofty principles and wholesome morals is to arise from the ashes of a world of deluded Liberalism and false temporalities, then the student of today must become aware of the grave responsibility—which he necessarily and absolutely owes to society. The existence of this responsibility is no mere gratuitous assumption. It should be the immediate goal of our education, and without which all our academic training would be devoid of any altruistic significance. This appeal is made to you as students to become conscious of this responsibility, and to become active and positive workers to re-establish or-

ignatz sez:
"Watch for the

TYPICAL CO-ED
CONTEST"

Sponsored by the I.S.S.

der in society.

Our predecessors have failed to establish a true juridical order. The evidence is before our eyes in the chaos of the modern world.

It is our duty to establish a Society in which men live together in order and tranquility, which result from law. Now tranquility does not mean sloth or apathy. Nor does it mean accepting things as they are, or opposing all change in the social order. Far from it. For a student who is conscious of his responsibility even towards the least of his fellow men, there is no such thing as slothful tranquility. There is no question of refuge, but of struggle and determination. It is a tranquility of action against every inaction and desertion in the great spiritual battle, where the stakes are the construction, nay, the very soul of the Society of tomorrow. We, as students, must realize that in rebuilding the social order, enthusiasm—and courage are not fight fearlessly for Truth, and the dignity of the human person and its eternal destiny. We should co-operate with our elders, availing ourselves of their experience and maturity. This is the hour of action. It is the time for all students of good will and intention to unite in a new crusade. This crusade is to rescue the spirit of society from error, doubt, and sin, and to gather together all the forces of society in a battle for Truth, Justice and Love.

Francis Rocchi
St. Mike's III.

TREES FOR ICELAND

Treeless Iceland is planning a large-scale planting of spruces from Alaska which have been found suitable to the climate.

Queens Musician Prof. Gummer Dies

Kingston, Jan. 28.—(CUP)—Dr. Cuthbert F. Gummer, 64, professor of mathematics at Queen's University died here last week.

Born in Salisbury England, he attended Christ Church College, Oxford, and joined the staff of Queen's in 1913. He was one of the founders of the Kingston Music Club and was its treasurer for the past seven years.

He played in the Queen's orchestra for a number of years and assisted in the production of several Gilbert and Sullivan operettas during the early years of the Queen's Glee Club.

SOUTH AMERICA TOO

Guatemalans celebrate April Fools Day December 28. Their day of pranks is called Dia de los Santos Inocentes.

The Students' Choice:

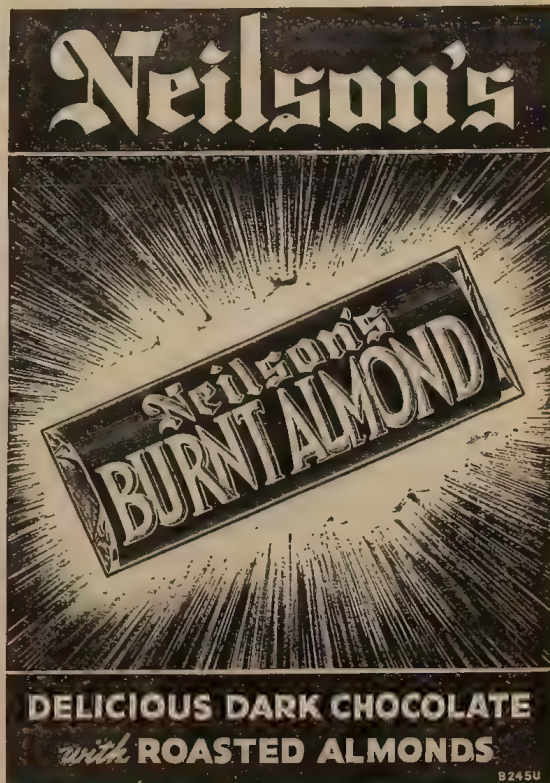

BLOOR TAXI
LIMITED

Sub-station at
HARBORD and ST. GEORGE

RA. 5151

Switchboard connecting
all branches

ALSO GENERAL REPAIRS
AND TOWING

Neilson's
BURNT ALMOND

DELICIOUS DARK CHOCOLATE
with ROASTED ALMONDS

B245U

AACH?

You haven't heard that the only way to Enjoy a Good Show

and
Learn German
At the Same Time

is to go to the

H. of T. German Club

where a full-length German

MOVIE

will be shown?

Wednesday, Jan. 30th
Women's Union, 8p.m.

DANCING
Also: DISCUSSION
DURSTSTILLER

Art, Music and Drama

No Satisfaction

The resemblance of the feminine figure to a wonky dollar mark is surely more than an accidental phenomenon. This presumably is the underlying profundity concealed in the piffing burlesque comedy "School for Brides" which is now playing at the Royal Alex.

Now I must confess, that the feminine form, even at its best, has never impressed me as being a beautiful, that is an aesthetically satisfying, object. The masses above the middle that protrude forward, and the mass below the middle that runs in the reverse direction, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as comprising a balanced or harmonious composition.

With cloths, which give a certain soothing indefiniteness to a woman's figure, these clumsily distributed masses, these violent curves, and indeed the whole absurd design, may be reasonably concealed. Why any woman ever takes her clothes off (in the interests of aesthetic enjoyment) is incomprehensible to me.

But even from the usual 20th century male standpoint, the women hired for ornamental purposes in this play, are earning money under false pretences. The modesties of journalistic practice prevent me from making personal or specific anatomical references.

The story is of an academy formed to coach girls in the culinary and concubinal arts; the valedictorian of said institution to be the seventh wife of one of the great American playboys.

This honour is bestowed after sundry uninteresting complications on Miss Twelveteens. This lady shows admirable restraint by keeping her clothes on all through the play, but she has a voice like radio static.

Jack Sheehan, as the man with the fixation for matrimony, is very funny in the very conventional farce-vaudeville manner. Clay Flagg, who runs this sex-school, exaggerates all his actions in an even more infantile way than this infantile play demands.

Of the supporting women, Marion Hartshorn is best, but the rest of the pin-up chorus are convincing in their general vulgarity.

If you still suffer from delusions of feminine pulchritude you might as well go—they are at least as pretty as the 14 lovely Casinoettes. As a play it isn't worth a good damn.

—JEFF WAITE

Squash Pits Here Scene Of Epics

Though Game Lacking Publicity

The plebian and modern game of squash (I know, boss, I know, but it isn't royal and it isn't ancient!) was suffering, so we were told, from a severe case of under-publicity. So, with no more justification than that, we produced this work, which we have entitled "A Treatise on Squash", or "Down with the Reactionary Capitalists".

Knowing, as we did, practically nothing on the subject, (the subject of squash, that is,) we decided that it might be as well to have a chat with one of the local squashites.

Hart House proving singularly barren of information, we repaired south to the Dept. of Enlightenment under Dr. Richard Richmond. The following is a faithful (well, almost) reproduction of what he told us.

Squash, it would appear, is one of the most recent additions to competitive sport, having been relatively unknown before the First World War.

Students in the University of Toronto received their introduction to the game in the early twenties, at which time three excellent courts were built in Hart House. In the succeeding years, these 'pits' have played host to, and taken a terrible drubbing from, hundreds upon hundreds upon hundreds of otherwise normal undergraduates. They have also been the scene of many famous matches.

Everybody knows that the Prince of Wales once honored Hart House court No. 2 with his presence, but squash devotees do not by any means confine their prideful perorations to THE EVENT OF 1924. L. B. (Mike) Pearson was also a 'great' in his undergraduate years, and as proof of his diversity, squash circles point out that he has since achieved a modicum of success in "the outside world."

As the clinching argument in the theory of "brains through squash", it may be noted that University Registrar A. B. Fennell is still an enthusiastic supporter of the game in which he starred 'a few' years ago, and may often be seen giving advice on its finer points to Hart House novices.

For the benefit of those who, through reading this article, have for the first time been made aware that there is a game called squash, we hasten to point out that there really isn't. It's officially called "squash rackets".

The game is played in a 'pit' of durable construction, with racquets which somewhat resemble a badminton weapon in size, but are much stronger. The badminton bird is here replaced by a rubber ball, which is listed in the books as 'soft', although the aptness of this adjective has been challenged by more than several sadder, but wiser, novices. The rear wall of the pit is crossed by various lines which, to an initiate, are of great significance, and which we shall dismiss by merely reverting to our badminton comparisons, explaining them as the net. Points are scored by either server or receiver, and the 'me' is won by the first player to earn fifteen points.

That, dear reader, is all there is to it. Armed with this knowledge, you may converse with confidence in any company whatsoever—on any subject but squash!

Dr. Richmond also gave us an outline of Hart House squash activities in the last fifteen years. "The Herman Levy Trophy", he told us, "is emblematic of the Ontario squash championship, and the Hart House team won it in the season of 1934-35."

He went on to say that the same group of players were finalists every year from then until 1939, when they again copped the trophy. The war affected this competition in the usual manner, but plans are now under way towards the resumption of operations as soon as possible.

"But what about intercollegiate activity?" we asked.

The doctor informed us that the first attempt in this direction was a meet at Montreal in 1931, with McGill and Toronto as principals. The reason for the official name of this meet, "Assault-at-Arms", was a deep dark mystery to the next squash pundit we consulted (Miss Kidd of the Warden's Office), but to non-squashites, and ye reporter categorizes himself thus, it is very apt indeed.

Another meet between the same two teams was held three years later.

Another meet between the same two teams was held three years later, but since then, there has been a noticeable slackening of interest. This may or may not be connected with the fact that the 'Toronto' team is not an official representative of the university, being an independent Hart House organization.

The officials of the Canadian Squash Racquets Association look forward to a more prominent place for their sport in the years to come. "This year," said Dr. Richmond, "the number of active players has been increased to five times that of last year. Over three hundred players are taking regular practice, and the difficulty of reserving a court is testimony to the game's popularity."

The "ranking list" spaces, from which are chosen the players for the House team, are almost all occupied.

Two graduates, Mr. J. L. Leibel and Mr. W. S. Noyes, who still retain their one-two positions on the ranking list, have been acting as instructors to a beginners class which numbers over forty enthusiasts. The same two men, incidentally, were finalists in a tourney held in Hamilton last week, and they also represented Canada in a recent international match with an American team.

The revived interest in squash has not passed unnoticed. Tentative arrangements have been made for intramural competition, possibly to start next week. This news will be welcomed by many, in every faculty on the campus.

We told Dr. Richmond that we were indebted to him for the information he had so generously supplied us.

"Well," he mused, "how about repaying me with a plug for next week's C.S.R.A. tournament at the Carlton Club, which starts on Saturday, and in which the finals will be played on Sunday, and in which six Hart House men are competing, and which should be well worth seeing?"

We told him that we couldn't think of it.

Victoria Team Leads In Track

In the running-off of the first half of the two mile relay and the 100 yard dash at Hart House last night, Victoria copped first honours in both events. The Vic. team of Spears, Preston, Sloan and Flack finished the time of 9:41.9. Second was Trinity with St. Mike's taking the third spot.

In 100 yard event Hikichi of Vic. broke the tape in 11.3 seconds. One tenth of a second later came Cahoun of Meds. Tippets of Trinity was third in 11.4 and Morelli of St. Mike's and Gardner of Vic. tied for fourth in 11.6 seconds.

10 gals = 1500 guys
AT AJAX
CALDWELL
CAN BALANCE
THIS EQUATION AS
1st. VICE-PRES.

RECORD HOUR
The Record Program, held daily in the Women's Common Room in University College from 4 to 5.30 p.m., is open to men and women of every college and faculty. Today's program:
Wasps Overture...Vaughn Williams.
On Hearing The First Cuckoo in Spring...Dellius.
Rio Grande...Lambert.
Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis...Vaughn Williams.
Capitol Suite...Warlock.
Enigma Variations...Elgar.
PROTECT ALBINO GOOSE
Penreth, Westmorland, England—(CP)—An appeal to Westmorland sportsmen has been made not to shoot an albino wild goose which arrived in the country to winter.

AJAX ENGINEERING SOCIETY
PRESIDENT
• 6 YEAR'S EXEC. EXPERIENCE
• FULL SUPPORT FOR NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF STUDENT VETERANS
• CLOSE AFFILIATION WITH TORONTO SOCIETY
But Your Interests Capably Administered
Vote M. J. McAULIFFE
"The Man For Ajax"

AJAX!
ACTION!
DRIVE!
SECURITY!
VOTE CHASSELS
1st. Year President

5 GOOD SENSES
—Senses, That Is
(Thank You, Senator Claghorn)
HEARING Sonny Dunham at the Arts Ball
SEEING the handmade clothes at Louis Cohen's
TASTING the delicacies of chicken chow mein
FEELING the imported woolens at Louis Cohen's
SMELLING the Great Hall kitchen
LOUIS COHEN CLOTHES
449 SPADINA AVENUE at College
RA 8995-6
Open nine to nine. Saturdays until six.
Three to four week service. (Sooner if you prod us.)

LOST
Wine Parker vacuumatic pen, lost in U.C., Saturday morning. Phone Mildred, KI 5843.

Classified Advertisements
WANTED
Harper's abridged "Der Streit um den Sergenten Grische," by Zweig. Please phone KI 5779 after 6.
LOST
B.S.R. Fraternity pen, lost on Tuesday on the campus. Reward. Phone RA 6848.
TIPS
In Tunes for all students. Nightly, 11.05 to 12.00. CKEY.
WANTED
Qualified teacher for private tutoring for entrance. 2 hours daily. Phone MI 9968.
WANTED
Portable typewriter, in reasonably good running order. Phone KI 3715, evenings after 7.
RADIO REPAIRS
For Radio Repairs at Ajax, see Gus. Room 10, Bldg. 733.
LOST
Grey Waterman's pencil between House 730 and classroom 705. R. P. Lindsay, Res. 730, Room 5, or leave at S.A.C. office, Ajax.
ROOM AND BOARD
For a girl, in exchange for light duties in Forest Hill Village home. Drive down in morning. Phone HU 5412.
LOST
Scarlet wool scarf, between Economics Bldg. and Convocation Hall, before Christmas. Finder please leave at Women's S.A.C. office, Room 82 U.C.
LOST
Parker vacuumatic pen, in Economics Bldg., Thurs. afternoon. Finder please phone Jacobson, MI 2700.
TYPING
Notes, theses, etc. Very reasonable rates. JU 5667.
WANTED
2 girls to share five-roomed apartment, 5 minutes from south campus, with two girls in Medicine. Phone HU 5412.

Speaking OF SPORT

By BREDIN STAPPELLS

WEEK END REVIEW

As everybody has gathered by now, this past week end, and the next six, will be high-lighted by super activity in the Varsity sports world. The Hosts for the evening on this the first Athletic do of the year did themselves right proud. Of course, they were helped by the fact that there happened to be a very heavy schedule already planned. Nevertheless, congratulations to the Hosts, and the best of luck to the future Hosts.

GRUNTS AND GROANS

Yes sir, there were plenty of them, but most of these came from the onlookers. Boredom is not the way to entertain people, but this is the unfortunate fate of strict amateur wrestling. The professionals go to the other extreme. Before intercollegiate wrestling will achieve its proper place in the sporting world, some half way mark must be found in which good wrestling can be combined with a little showmanship.

ARCH VILLAIN HILL

Connie Hill, captain of the Wolverines, became the beard scoundrel over the week end tussle. Red Horn, himself, could not have gained a more enthusiastic following. It seems that friend Hill was a tank warfare instructor for three years in the Canadian Army, and he carried this honourable knowledge into the fray, much to the mixed feelings of the spectators.

Albeit, we ran into this black character in Diana Sweets after the Saturday scramble, and found, much to our surprise, that in civvies he was quite a sociable fellow. Admittedly, he was a bit glum, but who wouldn't after receiving two defeats which broke a ten game winning streak. "We were run into the ground this time", he said with a glint in his eye, "but we'll give them a good reception on their return visit." We were led to understand that this meant stiff opposition, and also a swell social welcome.

This, we hope, clears up Connie of being a real bad man. Well, anyway, we tried, didn't we?

• Sportswoman •

By Polly Mutz

PERFECT SCORES

Though students can't hope to register a cool hundred per cent in class marks, those bound for perfection can turn their endeavors to bowling. In this not-too-strenuous indoor sport, sheltered from the icy West wind, the ambitious devotee can work on the art of throwing balls down the polished alley with just the right twist of the arm. Ah! happy day, when the perfect score has been achieved: some proprietors reward the proud champ with a season's free ticket . . . others place the score sheet in a prominent position with all the neon lights to show it can be done. The officials of the Midtown Bowling alleys have not committed themselves on this question as yet, but we'll print the word as soon as it can be discovered.

Which all leads up to the fact that the University bowling club is well under way, with an interfaculty competition scheduled for the end of February. The U. C. team will be picked from the students with the highest scores marked on the score sheet filed at the Midtown Alleys . . . thus Judy Henderson, president of the club, would like all those with cards to hand in their scores this week. The other faculties have remained silent as to their method of choosing a team . . . yet Judy would like to hear from them re: their progress.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY
4:00	BUS. ADM. vs. U.C. III. Anderson, Davison
5:00	MED. III vs. DENT. B. Anderson, Davison
WATER POLO
4:15	FOR vs. KNOX. Shubik
6:15	TRIN. vs. WYC. Allaire
BASKETBALL MAJOR
4:00	SR. SPS vs. PHE I. Lye
6:30	TRIN. B vs. DENT. B. Mott
7:30	VIC. III vs. ST. M. B. Mott
BASKETBALL MINOR
1:00	III ELEC. vs. III MED. B. Farrell
4:00	PHE IV vs. VIC. IV. Ewins
5:00	III CHER. vs. VIC. V. Ewins
6:00	MED. SER. B vs. U.C. V. Charendoff
7:00	VIC. VII vs. ST. M. D. Charendoff
INDOOR TRACK
5:00	100 YDS DASH—2 MILE RELAY (4-man teams)

SR. INTERFACULTY GYMNASTIC MEET

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd. — 8.15 P.M.

Entries must be in by Thurs., Jan. 31, at 12 noon

Competitors must report by 8.00 p.m. Saturday night in the locker room

Managers of teams note — 3 men comprise a team

For further particulars apply at Athletic Office or see Mr. Zwygard.

PROCLAMATION

To Ye Students of Ye University of Toronto:

Proclaimed this 29th day of January, 1946, A.D.

"It be known that ye, the student body of ye University of Toronto, did, on the 25th day of January last, when the hockey team of that institution did right heartily take on and trounce ye hockey six from ye University of Michigan, which travelled from afar, by the score of 9-3, did right lustily support thy home team."

"It be widely known that after assuming a lead early in the game, the Royal Blues did never relinquish that lead. For each goal the Blues scored ye volunteered a fine cheer indeed. Because of your enthusiastic support, ye home team, when they might have sat back on their laurels after scoring four goals, and safely won the fixture, kept right on scoring goals to ye end of ye match."

"Let it hereby be publicly proclaimed, that on ye following day, when ye same Blues team again met with ye same American squad, that ye, as a student body, neglected your duties, having given no support to the morale of thy fighting athletes when they were behind in the score. When ye Wolverines did honestly earn their four goal lead before the game was half over, and ye Blues squad was feeling right blue, ye famed University of Toronto tried to begin a Toronto yell, which ye yelled down."

"This yelling-down, which has been likened to the mating calls of many male swine, was of a very disgusting and disheartening nature. Phonetically it sounds like "Boo", and the news having travelled afar already, it is rumored in foreign circles that because of this incident, ye name of thy fair city shall be henceforth known as Hoptown rather than Toronto."

"Lastly, it was shown in ye late stages of Saturday's game, that ye can all cheer thy own team only when it's winning. This should not be so. Any team is brim-full of morale and ye fighting spirit when ahead, and albeit ye cheering helps bounteously, when ye same team is behind ye eight ball, it needs the support more greatly than ever, if it hopes to be able to eke out a win."

"Ye facts of ye case being forthwith disclosed, Ye, the student body of this University are:

Charged with: I—A total lack of enthusiasm when it is most needed in an important contest.

II—Unfamiliarity with thy college yells and songs, as shown by your lack thereof during Saturday's competition.

By: I—Ye playing members of both hockey squads, who always expect to have a routin'-tootin' rah-rah audience at any intercollegiate match.

II—Ye members in attendance of the Alumni Society of this institution of higher learning, who, in days of yore, did stick by their teams thick and thin, win or lose."

Furthermore, ye be:

Summoned: to appear in ye stand of ye defence, at courthouse known as "Varsity Arena", situated on ye south side of Bloor Street at ye north end of the campus,

On the date of: February 1, 1946, when thy Blues hockey squad shall engage the People's Credit Jeweller's squad in an exhibition contest,

At the hour of: 2000."

"Thy trial shall last for the duration of about two hours, during which time ye shall all be called upon to yell in thy defense. Ye counsel for ye defense shall be thyself. Ye prosecuting counsel shall be ye members of aforesaid team. Ye trial shall not be a trial by jury, but more properly a trial by fury."

"Thy entrance to the Courthouse will not be admitted by ordinary summonses, but rather by small cards bearing the words "University of Toronto Athletic Association" which were presented to each of thee upon payment of thy fees last fall."

Signed this 29th day of January,

Printed by:

His Mad-jester's Printers

Albion Hand,

to witness.

Editor's Note:—The plaster's smattered over the mantelpiece . . . That is, the plastered master of this autpiece has just . . . That is the author of this masterpiece has just . . . Oh what's the use. The ground floor just phoned up to tell us Mr. Hand is covering more of the sidewalk than a broadloom—a sports reporter to the end—he always thought a sidewalk was a track event."

Gus Ryder Presents...

By Craig Cringan

In a brief interview during the exhibition by some of the talented members of his Lakeshore Swimming Club, Gus Ryder, coach and life-saving instructor, told his story.

"That little boy," he began, "whom you saw swimming there, is David Hughes, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hughes of New Toronto. David is three years old and has been swimming since the age of 16 months."

Just about then your reporter thought that it might be interesting to interview young David, to get the fresh, first-hand views on the sport. However, with an experienced showman like Dave, no formal interview is necessary. Standing on top of a table as his trainer rubbed him dry, David looked out over the vast expanses of the Hart House pool and called out.

"Gus, I want to sthwin again!"

Meanwhile, midst whistling from the gallery, the cute Pullan sisters, Ruth and Marj, gave a display of ornamental swimming.

Asked about the life-saving record of his club, Mr. Ryder an-

Six In Row For Jr. Bees

By JACK M. FINE

Varsity Jr. Bees extended their win skein to six straight by trimming Markham 8-1 in a scheduled O.H.A. hockey game played last night at Varsity Arena. Varsity now occupy first place in the league standing with 13 points, four ahead of second-place Richmond Hill.

The Juniors wasted no time in gaining the lead as Harry Boyd tallied within 30 seconds when he went in alone on McKewan, the Markham netminder. Varsity kept up a continuous pressure in the visitor's end but had to wait till the period was two-thirds over before Pelow banged the puck in after a combination passing play. Davison notched the third Varsity goal near the end of the period from a scramble in front of the net.

Markham rarely had the puck, and when they did, erratic passing and shooting soon lost it. Hutzaiek, in the Varsity goal, had no trouble in handling any stray enemy shots that came his way.

The second stanza opened with a flurry of activity on the part of the Markhamites, which they maintained for the first five minutes. However, Brankston deflected Davison's long shot into the net to make the score 4-0, and turn the tide in Varsity's favour once again. The first penalty of the game was given to Tipoff of Markham for tripping, but the Juniors failed to take advantage of their extra man.

Tipoff gained revenge for his penalty when he got credit for Markham's singleton. The Markham left defenceman picked up a loose puck near the Varsity blue line and shot it blindly in the direction of the cage.

Hutzaiek extended his stick to block the slow-moving rubber but the disc took an unpredictable bounce and landed in the twine, thus preventing ex-Mariboro goalie from gaining his third shutout of the season. Hutzaiek could easily have stopped the puck by moving to his right, but the lack of activity around his net had made him careless.

The Markham first line of Corner, Christie and Little began to connect with a few of their passing plays, but were unable to pop a puck into the Varsity twine. A Varsity ganging attack after a Markham charge resulted in a counter

(Continued on Page 8)

Sport In Short

FRIDAY JAN. 25

Hockey
For. A. 3 Knox, A. 2
S.P.S.I. 1 Vic. I. 3

Major Basketball
Jr. Med. 19 Jr. Vic. 20
Jr. U.C.B. 11 St. M.A. 31
Sr. Med. 23 P.H.E.I. 25

Minor Basketball
Trin. III. 29 III. Min. 23
II. Med. B. 17 I. Civil 32

SATURDAY JAN. 26

Water Polo
Knox. 5 Dents. 5

Major Basketball
Sr. S.P.S. 29 Sr. Vic. 16

MONDAY JAN. 28
For. B. 12 II. Elec. 46

Major Basketball
Jr. Med. 18 Jr. S.P.S. 31
P.H.E.II. 32 Jr. U.C.B. 12

Minor Basketball
Emm. B. 18 U.C. Hol'd. 40
Pre-Med. B. 25 U.C. IV. 18

Hockey
Wyc. 5 For. B. 3
Med. I. 2 U.C. I. 3

NOTICE

Any men's or women's hockey team may reserve the hockey cushions behind Trinity without charge. Several hours are still available upon application to the Athletic Office, Hart House.

nounced that he had just received the Cochrane Cup, won by the Lakeshore Swimming Club for having the greatest number of life-savers trained in 1945. The club received 1,120 points for the 380 awards earned in the year.

"I understand, Mr. Ryder, that you have made quite a number of rescues yourself?"

"Yes," Gus replied, "thirty altogether."

"And where did these rescues take place?"

(Continued on Page 8)

N. Y. State To Make "Bigotry Expensive" Lift Exemption On Discriminating "U's"

Private New York City and State colleges and universities that bar or limit Catholic, Jewish and Negro students may find bigotry expensive, according to a newspaper prediction carried in the Sunday magazine edition of PM.

Legislature has recently witnessed the introduction of a bill to take tax exemption on real estate away from all such discriminating schools, except those that are legally sectarian. The measure would let any barred student complain to the New York State Attorney General.

Provided investigations found the complaint justified, the Attorney General would go to court for a decree barring tax exemption to the college for one or more years.

The PM report continues:

"The move for withdrawal of tax exemption has the backing of the State CIO whose president Louis Hollander has come out against the idea of establishing a state university as a means of combatting discriminations. That proposal, he said, would establish a ghetto university and be a move toward legalizing discrimination. He said he was for a State university, though as a means to enlarge our education facilities.

"Some lawyers said that tax exemption could not be taken away from the biased colleges without changing the State Constitution. This would require two years."

Building Industry Obsolete Needs Standardization

"The building industry is obsolete in the world of today," charged Serge Chermayeff addressing the Royal Canadian Institute in Convocation Hall Saturday night.

"It is as if we were trying to have our cars built by village carriage-makers and village smiths. The building industry today is required to serve one of the world's biggest needs. There is the most urgent need of rationalization and industrialization of the industry."

Professor of Architecture and chairman of the department of design at Brooklyn College, New York, Mr. Chermayeff said the Canadian building industry is "stopped in its tracks" because many of the workmen have been absorbed in war industries.

Pre-fabricated houses may solve the housing shortage for a time, but the real answer to the housing problem is the production of standardized elements which can be assembled in a wide variety of styles, he said.

"Why should there be 15 kinds of taps and 15 kinds of pipe junctions used in houses? We're wasting a great deal of time in a period of maximum speed."

Prof. Chermayeff did not think that there could be any economical substitute for steel in construction of heavy structures. "But I do think that we are on the threshold of an era of synthetic materials. Canada, with her well-developed lumber industry, will take a leading place in the age of synthetics.

Six In Row For Jr. Bees

(Continued From Page 7)
Varsity to make the score 5-1.

As the third frame started, play remained in the visitor's end. Boyd scored from Smythe and Foran to make the Varsity squad six goals up on the inept Markham team. Blankston skated in twice on goal for what seemed sure scores, but once he hit the post and the second time he missed the net completely.

Doug Davison got his fourth point of the evening at the halfway mark when he netted Pelow's pass. Hartrey received Varsity's only penalty when he was sent off for charging but the advantage was of no avail to Markham.

Boyd ended the game's scoring by getting his third goal of the night for a "hat trick" when he lifted the puck over the sprawled form of McKewen.

Varsity showed entirely too much all-round strength for the visitors whose defence was especially weak.

Varsity's next game is scheduled for this Friday at Markham but they won't play at home again until Friday, Feb. 8, when they meet their main rivals for group supremacy, Richmond Hill.

Varsity: Goal, Hutzalek defence, Irwin and Morrison; centre, Pelow; wings, Davison and Blankston; alternates, Petrocco, Hartrey, Short, Foran, Boyd, Smythe.

Markham: Goal, McKewen; defence, Tipoff and Curtis; centre, Corner; wings, Christie and Little; alternates, B. Forgie, H. Forgie, Nicholson, Heeney, Page, Huntley.

First Period

1.—Varsity, Boyd :30
2.—Varsity, Pelow (Davison) ..:13:45
3.—Varsity, Davison:16:20
Penalties—none.

Second Period

4.—Varsity, Blankston (Davison) 6:36
5.—Markham, Tipoff:13:59
6.—Varsity, Foran (Boyd):17:12
Penalty—Tipoff.

Third Period

7.—Varsity, Boyd (Smythe, Foran) 5:50
8.—Varsity, Davison (Pelow, Blankston) 9:15
9.—Varsity, Boyd (Smythe, Foran):17:50
Penalty—Hartrey.

Following is the league standing:

Jr. B. O.H.A.

Team	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Varsity	7	6	0	1	38	16	13
Richmond Hill	7	4	2	1	33	27	9
Scarboro	7	4	3	0	23	19	8
Markham	7	2	4	1	30	37	5
Oshawa	5	2	3	0	22	18	4
Chapman's	6	0	5	1	17	33	1

University Press Club To Hold Open Meetings

"The Varsity Press Club, an exclusive group in the previous session," stated Editor Hugh Kenner late last night, "has a new program in mind which should be of value to students throughout the university."

He explained that members of the Press Club were mostly taken from the Masthead of the Undergraduate Daily, and those of the staff whose work and interest in journalism merited membership.

Men and women prominent in the various fields of journalism address the club at its sporadic meetings in an informal manner and discuss the different phases of writing with students.

"The Press Club feels that an open session which could be attended by all students interested in writing for newspapers, magazines, financial journals, radio, screen, or in advertising would be of interest and worthwhile to students. While the meetings would not, in all probability, be conducted on the informal lines possible with a smaller group, questions will be asked for and answered."

Notice of the addresses will appear in a forthcoming issue of The Varsity. "Watch your daily paper," he said, concluding.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

After reading your editorial of January 8th I was profoundly dismayed that I should ever have seen such sentiments expressed, and extremely shocked that, of all places, such remarks should emanate from a university undergraduate newspaper. Such an attack on Education I should not have thought possible.

If my interpretation is correct, in one paragraph you condemn that legislation which attempts to ensure compulsory education up to the age of 16, and you appear to disapprove the fact that the Law recognizes High School education beyond that age as a right. You also profess an inability to understand why university is considered the final educational step for anybody who wishes to attend.

I have never studied the Classics, but I believe there was once a Greek who spent his life in the search for Truth, a "Man Who Asked Questions", a man who, by displaying his ignorance and his constant demand for proof, brought home to his countrymen the fact that, for all their vaunted culture and civilization, they knew so little, they had so much to learn. His name, I think was Socrates, and his reward for performing this invaluable "debunking"—a cup of hemlock. My philosophy of education had its origin when I first heard of Socrates, and until the publication of your editorial, in my ignorance I believed that my views were fundamentally the same as those of most clear-minded people. Having now been rudely awakened, I will attempt to do something about it.

Man is, on the whole, a gregarious animal; he works and plays and lives together with his fellow men. To do this he has been supplied with a brain, and that great gift which alone distinguishes him from other forms of life—the ability to talk and communicate his ideas to others. Any system of Primary Education therefore should concentrate on these two. He should be taught a language, and taught it perfectly so that his expressions should never be in doubt; mathematics, so that he may exist in this number-riddled civilization; and finally, history, geography, and the elementary sciences, so that he may know something of this wonderful world in which he lives. Unfortunately, we are not all equipped with the same "brain capacity", and perhaps at the end of this period many would drop by the wayside, unable to learn more. But having come thus far they would have no trouble in making a living unaided.

I have said that Man is gregarious. He is also rational—he has ideas, he possesses a Mind (theists would perhaps prefer the word "soul"). It is to the far more important Secondary Education—the training of the Mind—that I turn now. There are three roads leading on from this point, the Sciences, the Arts, and the Humanities. The choice between them should be dependent first upon a person's interests, and then upon his aptitudes. But a choice of one should not mean a complete forsaking of the others: there are several subjects which, while strictly belonging only to one course, should be included in all. Among them are Economics, a study of what makes the world "tick", and Art, to provide an inkling of the magnificent store of beauty and culture that we all possess.

I did not actually intend to outline such a course of studied when I began this letter, but I think my remarks will serve to indicate to you how surprised I was at the tone of your editorial. I entirely agree that there are many people who "have no shadow of an excuse for taking up the time of an institution of higher learning." Such people are those who possess brains physically incapable of assimilating higher knowledge, and there are all too many on the campus today. But any person who has the ability to learn, who realizes the value of the tuition, and possesses the power of applying what he learns, I contend has an inalienable right to such an education. Please note that phrase "who realizes the value of the tuition." I am afraid that unfortunately our present system does not take into account those persons who perhaps do not have sufficient memory power to see them through the annual examinations, but who realize only too well the value of the prize which slips through their fingers. I believe these people should be allowed to complete their course, but without necessarily gaining a degree.

Your criticism of compulsory education being carried "even as far as" 16 I cannot understand at all. In effect you are arguing with Hitler, who burnt the schools and killed the teachers. "Down with too much education," you cry, "all we want is a good supply of workers, drones, slaves. Don't give the people any new ideas." Do you not realize that the fundamental problem facing the world today is the lack of education, a deficiency or too prevalent in even the most civilized countries, a deficiency which you apparently encourage? A lack of knowledge of our fellow men, of history and politics, has led us into two horrible wars within a quarter of a century. A lack of knowledge of economics, business and finance, has led inevitably to bitter clashes between labour and capital. A sorry lack of education in our privileges and responsibilities as citizens has fostered the growth of crime. No knowledge at all of literature, music and art has permitted Hollywood to make millions out of trash. For these and a thousand more reasons I denounce your attitude in this matter.

I can visualize a world where hate and greed are unknown, where intolerance is non-existent, a world of truth and beauty, all brought about by the adequate education of the people. A world where a man with no creative ability of his own has been taught to recognize the beauty of a Spanish peasant's carved angels, and does not pass his time with a Racing Form. Such a world is very far away, I am afraid, but only because of a lack of education.

No, I cannot understand at all your attitude as expressed in the editorial of January 8th.

II SPS Engineering and Business.
Harry E. Ansler

Ryder Presents

(Continued From Page 7)

"In Lake Ontario, Toronto Bay, Grenadier Pond, and at Red Lake in the mining district."

While this interview was taking place, Mr. Ryder frequently went over to the pool's edge to announce different features of the swimming show.

The Hughes twins, Peter and Paul, aged seven, gave a life-saving display and later raced each other a length of the pool. The twins, it seems, can swim a mile and a quarter. It is not known as yet whether any American college has offered them a swimming scholarship.

One of the highlights of the display was an ORIGINAL exhibition of dual diving by Ruth Pullan and Cedl Rice. Patterned after some dual mat routines put on by gymnasts, their act gives diving a new twist.

In another act, Beryl Lewis gave a brief exhibition of the swimming style which won for her the Ontario Tadpole Championship.

During his long experience as a swimming coach Gus Ryder has trained many champions. One of his former pupils, Dorothy Hobson, won Inter-collegiate swimming honours four years in a row for Varsity.

VOLLEYBALL SCHEDULE

The women's volleyball teams will play at the Lillian Massey gym according to the following schedule: Tues., Jan. 29, 6:00, U.C. vs Meds. Wed., 30, 5:00, P.H.E. II vs Vic. I; 6:00, P.H.E. III vs P.H.E. IA. Thurs. 31, 6:00, P.H.E. IB vs O.T. The practice schedule for this week is: Tues., 3:00 Meds.; 4:00, Vic.; 5:00, Saints I; Thurs., 4:00 Saints II; Fri., 5:00 Meds. M.E.S. Fri., 4:30-6:00, P.H.E.

Please
Patronize
The People
Whose Appearance
Periodically
In This Paper
Makes Publication
Possible ...

Our Advertisers!

Home-Seeking Veterans Visit SAC Office In Hordes; Hope to Re-Unite Families

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder",—it says here—but married ex-service students on the campus are quick to add, "A woman's place is in the home!" The fact is that wives and children of ex-service men are living far away from their "lord and master" and not liking it much either.

The S.A.C. is now in the process of surveying this lamentable situation and since yesterday, when the survey was announced, no less than 113 men have registered at the office for new accommodation and that is only the beginning! By the time the survey is compiled—in perhaps a week—the S.A.C. will be in dire need of another filing clerk to take care of the influx.

To Grow More Desperate

The situation is not desperate at the moment for all men attending the University have accommodation. However this accommodation is not always what the men desire. The situation will become critical as the enrolment increases for the summer course and then the fall term.

As soon as the survey is complete the ex-service men's committee of the S.A.C., will begin to work on the problem, and when they have arrived at a solution to the dilemma, make their plans known.

Home Visits Problem

One man states that he must travel thirty miles to visit his family of four—another, that his present accommodation is unhealthy with the mercury sinking to the fifties. One student groans that he finds it impossible to study due to the limited space and noisy interference. One young man in residence at the University protests that he is planning to be married in September.

Generations of Hurrying Students Bypass Ancient Rock - What Is It?

Thousands, millions, who knows the age of the rock on the southeast corner of the front campus?

In a September editorial in The Varsity it was suggested that students in the University of Toronto showed little interest in the surroundings to which they were to devote two to six years of their lives.

"For example," the editorial continued, "how many have any idea of the history of the rock which reposes on the south-east corner of the front campus?"

"Too close to home" perhaps was the question-accusation for no indignant replies were received stating they "knew all along".

Why is this? Various reasons have been advanced by students. Some had not noticed that the rock even existed. Others said that they had so many lectures that they passed the venerable stone so pressed by time that they had no time to pause and read the inscription.

"I often wondered what it was doing there," said Kaye Young, IV Psych. "But I just happened to wonder about it when I was in a hurry. It does seem odd that I didn't think about it much when I was in that vicinity with time on my hands." Co-psychologist Coreen Lowry nodded a blonde head in agreement.

"I noticed a sign on it, but there was so much mud surrounding it that I couldn't get near it at the time," said Hortense Wasteneys, III General. It will probably be there

Veterans' Survey

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics is making a survey of the cost of living of University students in order to determine the adequacy of present Department of Veterans' Affairs maintenance grants to ex-service students.

At Varsity 300 ex-service and 100 non-service students have been sent questionnaires but so far there has been little response. Only a few have been returned which gives the Bureau little opportunity to compile an accurate index.

tomorrow, though."

Bun McBride, III Dents, was discouraging. "What inscription? What rock?" he stated.

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

VOL. LXV—No. 71 THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO Wednesday, January 30, 1946

BREWIN WILL HELP CAMPUS COUNCIL

C.U.P. Flashes

London—(CUP)—The Western Gazette is being revitalized. Besides new plans to give more authority to mast-headers and to distinguish between department functions, Editor Al Brule has announced several revisions in the masthead. John White has been appointed managing editor. The vacancy made by the resignation of Mary Geddes, former CUP editor, has been filled by Lou Leon-owens.

To finance a new physical education building to be built next year, Western is producing a gala follies the first week of March. Accompanied by a fifteen piece swing orchestra, the show will include chorus lines, men's vaudeville, songsters, and piano, violin, and boogie.

Got A Notice? Send It Early!

New deadline schedules for the insertion of notices, announcements, etc., were announced recently by The Varsity.

Necessity of preparing the paper by remote control, 30 miles from the printers, makes it imperative that all possible copy be ready by 5 p.m. Coming Events, notices of meetings, etc., should be delivered to the day office, room 42-a University College, on the afternoon of the day preceding publication.

Material of this kind delivered to the night office cannot be guaranteed a place in the paper.

Jap-Canadian Question Subject Of Discussion

Committee Gains Faculty Support

A nationally-known member of the Japanese Committee for Democracy, Andrew Brewin, K.C., has consented to participate with many other prominent figures in the coming educational program of the campus Japanese-Canadian Committee.

Tentatively scheduled for the second week in February, it is expected that the program will feature Mr. Brewin's discussion of the legal aspect of the problem and the test cases. Predicted also were the participation of Senator Bench, and Mr. Tanaka, Chairman of the Japanese Committee for Democracy.

Announcing this fact, Vice-Chairman of the Committee Sheldagh Kennedy stated further that presidential approval had been granted the activities of the Committee in inviting guest speakers and appointing faculty advisers.

Said Dr. Smith: "The Japanese-Canadian question is a public question that should be a matter of concern to students and which they should discuss."

(To this end the Japanese-Canadian Committee had earlier announced that they would sponsor an educational program, primarily to provide the Faculty of Applied Science with the facts that they feel will make the Engineering School alter their vote from its current neutral stand on the deportation issue.)

Advised that the "mature guidance of faculty" was of advantage to undergraduate activities, this all-student venture has appointed faculty advisers. Named in this capacity to date have been Prof. Tatham of the Geography Department and Prof. Tate of the Greek Department. Both are members of the Civil Liberties Committee.

Thees and other University staff members with the Civil Liberties Committee will conduct a financial appeal to be begun as soon as the Japanese-Canadian Committee's plans are complete. Through that appeal to members of the staff, plans will be officially announced and invitations extended to the educational program.

Further invitations will go to John Cartwright, counsel in the current Ottawa Japanese-Canadian Committee test-cases, and head of the Ontario Bar; members of the Japanese-Canadian Committee for Democracy, and Toronto Co-operative Committee.

"A very important meeting" of the campus Committee has been announced for five o'clock Friday in Cartwright Hall. Representatives of all student organizations, "especially from the faculties of engineering, medicine, and dentistry," have been requested to attend.

Correction

The Varsity regrets that a wrong impression may have been given in yesterday's editorial where it was stated that there are no more rooms in Toronto. The Students' Administrative Council Housing Service still has available an up-to-date list of rooms for students requiring them.

Lonesome Lassies Can Go To Ajax

Thirty lassies are urgently needed for a trip to the outer world of Ajax, House 727 when Ajax campus makes its debut in the social by holding a residence dance next Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Doug Haldenby, head of the residence, and his assistant El Caldwell announce that they have contacted the central campus at Queen's Park in order to find dancing partners for the evening's festivities.

Girls wishing to help out engineers in distress may do their bit by coming to Room 5 University College, tomorrow, Thursday, between 4 and 6 p.m. to leave their names.

The arrangements at the urban end of the line are under the control of Martha Schober (II Psychology) and her assistants.

Transportation by bus will be arranged for the trip both ways. Last minute details will be announced at the registration room.

Record Hour

The record program, held daily from 4:00 to 5:30 in the Women's Common Room of University College, is open to the men and women of every college and faculty. Today's program:

Brahms—Intermezzi
Pranck—Sonata for Violin and Piano
Tchaikowsky—Symphony No. 4

Ajax Varsity

All Varsity contributions at Ajax can be left with the following temporary staff; the Feature editor—Cliff Dixon, Res. 728, Room 60, Phone 171; News editor—Pete Philpott, Res. 729, Room 42, Phone 172; Sports editor—El Caldwell, Res. 727, Room 6, Phone 170.

Become Bi-Lingual Via Barter Methods

Grace Serrao and Maria Hortensia Moya display their lend-lease system of language lessons as Senorita Moya assists Senorita Serrao at her Spanish translation of English and Senority Serrao does vice versa. Costa Rican Maria and Trinidadian Grace are both Pass Arts students at Loretto College. Their future? Home: and for the Spanish-speaking Maria "to use up my English" and for English-speaking Grace "perhaps to use my Spanish". But explains Maria (right): "Pass Arts people nevaire know!"

The VARSITY

The Undergraduate Newspaper

ESTABLISHED 1880

Member Canadian University Press

Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Opinions expressed in these columns are not necessarily the official opinions of the Students' Administrative Council.

Editorial Room, Rm. 42-a
University CollegeMI. 6611
Business OfficeMI. 6221
Night OfficeMI. 8405

Editor-in-Chief, W. Hugh Kenner, B.A.
Women's Editor.....Peggy Bates, 476
Managing Editor.....Wally Belfry, 478
Make-up Editor.....Peg Wallace, B.A.
Rewrite Editor... John Rooke, 477
News Editor.....George Forster, 477
Assistant.....Blanche Stanley, 476
Feature Editor.....E. Ross McLean, 477
Assistant.....Reg Herman, 476
Sports Editor.....Bredin Stapells, 476
Assistant.....Don Mason, 478
Womens Sports Editor Polly Mutz, 476
C.U.P. & Exchange
Editor.....Barbara Jones, B.A.
Assistant.....Dorothy Harley, 476
Art, Music, and Drama
Editor.....Philip Freedman, 476
Staff Photographer.....Ralph Jones, 477
Business and Advertising Manager—E. A. Macdonald, B.A.

Wednesday, January 30, 1946

On Schooling (2)

We were talking on Monday of the reasons behind the curious willingness and even anxiety of parents to entrust the schooling of their children to the state, which means in practice to the politicians and their salaried officials; and the reasons we outlined were ugly.

We have now to examine the ugliest, which is comprehended by the charge of Intellectual Pride.

Intellectual Pride, like so much else in the make-up of the modern mind, is debased from a higher ancestry; and again like so much else, is the product of a circular process—compulsory schooling fosters it, and it in turn encourages compulsory schooling.

We have called it to-day debased. So it is. Intellectual Pride, a thing which has cost men their souls, was at one time worthy of its awful result. It was the inordinate pride of men in what most patently distinguished men from beasts; the rational faculty. It was disproportionate and therefore sinful because it was the pride of men in that for which they could least of all take credit: in a prime gift of the Creator. So justly did the old theologians estimate its scale, that they made it the only dignified sin: the sin of the angels.

To-day's intellectual pride is singularly unangelic. It is not pride in the intellectual faculty, but pride in the modern intellectual content.

It is pride in the universal modern habit of reading, regardless of what is read; pride in the modern widespread habit of writing, regardless of what trash is written: racing dope, or popular journalism, or poor pornography. It is pride even in such things as universal compulsory schooling enforced by the Police.

Such is the new intellectual pride. It stiffens the will and paralyses the judgment; it is the principle obstacle in the way of the scholar, of the educated man, of anyone who opposes the modern cult of half-education.

There remains one more parent, almost as far-reaching, of the mood which endorses Compulsory Schooling. It is the religion of Nationalism. The nation to-day is made an end in itself. Logically, therefore, the Nation teaches the young.

If there has been no chorus of protest until now, there will be one here. It will be urged that we citizens of Canada and similar nations, whatever may be the case with other men, are free of this taint. Did we not, it will be asked, wage a war to purge the earth of the religion of Nationalism? Are we not (O glorious witch-word!) democratic?

Very well. Let anyone who doubts the prevalence of the religion of Nationalism in our society undertake Belloc's experiment. In "Survivals and New Arrivals" Mr. Belloc prescribes:

"Go to a public park on two successive Sundays. On the first, stand upon a chair and disclaim at length against the discipline of religion. Ridicule the doctrine of the Trinity, the Incarnation, the right of a Christian society to enforce the practice of Christian ritual. Nothing will happen to you.

"On the second Sunday, get up on a chair and disclaim at equal length and with equal zeal against the country and its conduct in the late war. Praise enthusiastically some more specially unpopular foreigners—enemies for choice—laugh at the heroism of the troops, call them cowards and go on to denounce with vigor the obedience rendered to their officers by soldiers and sailors. A great many things will happen to you. Even after the police have rescued you from the hands of the mob, the State will proceed to deal with you in a fashion which will enlighten you for good upon the limits of toleration."

In other words, this country, professedly Christian, does indeed hold something sacred: the State.

How easily does there follow from this state-worship, in which all men participate though all deny it, a toleration from its authority of what men would never have tolerated from princes: a submission to rule "which, through sumptuary laws on food and drink, through conscription, through a east-iron system of compulsory instruction for all on State-ordered lines, and through a State examination at the gate of every profession, has almost killed the citizen's power to react on that which controls him, and has almost destroyed that variety which is the mark of life!"

(To Be Concluded)

— W. H. K.

Aesop's Fables No. 1

Once upon a time there was a little boy and a little girl named HANSEL and GRIDDLE. They lived in a woods and their daddy and mummy were very crool.

So-o-o-o they ran away. They ran and ran far into the forest.

All of a sudden they came to a house which was made entirely of candy. An old woman came out. "Who are you?" the kids asked.

"The name is Laura Secord Kiddies" snorted the old girl, picking her teeth and using a wisp of human hair for dental floss. Poor Flossy.

"How would you kids like a short beer?" she asked, and Hansel and Griddle, being very fond of their cups, accepted with alacrity. In they trotted, hand in hand, little knowing what was in store for them.

It turned out to be Labatt's. "Now what's the matter at home Kiddies?" asked the kindly old woman as she brushed a few old skulls off the table to make room for their steins. "Did the folks throw you out?"

Hansel and Griddle feeling that there was something a little peculiar about this peculiar old woman, looked at each other in consternation. Since the house was built on the U.S. border the dear old girl told them some borderline jokes. After which the Kiddies went to bed.

"Sleep tight" cackled the old girl. "Yes, hic" hiccupped Griddle.

The next morning the two shavers were no little surprised to find that the old crone was making things hot for them, by building a fire underneath the room which turned out to be a rather large oven. Only then did they notice that the bed clothes were made of chicken dressing. It dawned upon them that the old lady's intentions were purely gastronomical.

Somewhat perturbed by the situation, little Hansel called out to the old lady for a glass of water. "At this hour of the morning," she exclaimed, "Why do you want to have a hangover?"

However, the old lady gave in and brought a brimming glass of ice-cold water. Hansel showed his appreciation by bashing her over the head with an old femur that happened to be lying on the floor. Then the two children whipped out, and not heeding the old girl's pleas for a glass of water, proceeded to stoke up the fire, and broil her, a la mode.

They sat down to a delicious repast of old witch with ketchup. And that's how crepes suzettes were invented because her name was Suzette.

All of which goes to show that if a woman tries to cook children she may be in a bit of a stew herself.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity,
Dear Sir:

Some one should point out to our eminent world politicians the glaring fact that there are numerous scientists in the world and this includes Soviet Russia, who are capable of solving the atom spitting phenomena, given time.

It is utterly stupid to suppose that the secret of the atomic bomb can be kept an appreciable length of time. No patent or its equivalent will stop its production and exploitation when discovered if desired.

Why was gas not used in this past war? It seems logical that the answer is simply: both sides possessed gases of too terrible a nature. The parallel is obvious.

Not only this but also why have we incurred unnecessarily and pointlessly the justifiable distaste and suspicion of Russia by keeping from her that which she will find out for herself eventually. The diplomacy followed by our eminent world politicians to date smacks of childish immature reasoning. We ask Russia to trust us without trusting her. We are no better than

(Continued on Page 4)

THE EDWARD KYLIE TRUST AWARD

